"I can't tell you how it is done, but it works to a charm, and before night four or five of them will be known to me, and the next day he is known to as many more. Once in a few weeks I send of us 'get on,' as the boys say. It never fails, and the spotter becomes a walking sign to the men on the road whom they are as keen as can be."

She Got Him.

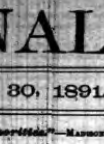
A belle of Dawson county, Tex., after holding half an hour in the office of a justice of the peace for the man she was to marry, got impatient, borrowed the money from a friend and eloped. Not to be outdone, the lover followed her intended. At the end of twenty minutes she returned, driving the legal husband in her, and the ceremony was performed.

Rubber Tires for Wheels.

Rubber tires are now proposed for carriage wheels. They are said to wear longer than steel tires, and to be more reliable against accidents. Forty thousand London vehicles are thus equipped. Recent improvements in manufacture greatly improved the rubber used for this purpose.

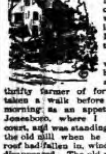
THE HORSE'S TAIL CAME OFF WITH IT.

HOME FROM SCHOOL.



THE OLD MILL.

A Weary Tramp That Won the Young Miller a Wife.



O I KNOW say thing about the old mill? Well, yes, stranger, I should say so. I did. If any one does. It belongs to me, or rather to my wife, what there is of it. I tell you the old mill is much to this old mill."

The speaker was engaged in housepun, and appeared to be a thrifty farmer of forty-five. I had taken a walk before breakfast one morning, and, coming on an upsetting out from Jonesboro, where I was attending court, and was standing by the ruins of the old mill when he came up. The roof had fallen in, windows and doors disappeared. The old water-wheel had crumbled to decay and gone with the rest. The dam was now level with the road, and a cabbage patch had taken the place of the mill-pond.

We took a seat on a moss-grown log by the side of the ruin, and he continued:

"I was with Stonewall during the war, and had some pretty tough times, some narrow escapes and some hard tramps, got the close call and hard tramp that this old mill once caused me made all of my war experience seem, at least for a time, like a pleasure trip. This was the first mill built on Cedar creek, and was built many years ago by old man Ben White, who lies up yonder on the hill.

"After the surrender our army was disbanded, and the most on us was pretty much broke. We had nothing and no way to get any thing. I was only about twenty-one then. I was strolling round looking for something to do, and I happened along this road one morning. Well, this morning the wheel was in action. The gate was histed and the water was skurrying through. Old Ben White was standing in the door. I says:

"'Morning, sir. Can I get a job here?' He took off his spectacles, wiped 'em, put 'em on, and looked at me.

"'Soldier?' says he.

"'I was,' says I, 'till the surrender.'

"'Confederate?' says he, kinder cold.

"One of them staid behind down at Stone river. The other's lying up there on the hill-top, a corpse of Richmond, and come home to die,' and the old man took out his handkerchief and wiped his eyes. 'Did you ever work in a mill?'

"'No.'

"'Well, that don't make much difference,' said he; 'business is picking up, and you can stay. I'm getting old. I'll pay you what I can afford to. We can tell better in a week or two. Have you been to breakfast?'

"'I have not,' I said.

"'Well, go to the house,' said he. 'Tell Kitty (that's my daughter, the only one she Yankee didn't kill) to give you breakfast, and come back, you can work on the dam to-day. There's some tools that need sharpening.'

"So I went over the hill to the house. I still had my Confederate uniform on, and Mrs. White met me on the piazza. I saw tears on her cheeks, and I supposed the uniform reminded her of her own boys. I told her I was going to work for Mr. White, and that he sent me over for breakfast. So we went in and she called Kitty, who soon had my breakfast on the table. Kitty was about four years younger than I, the daughter of Ben White, and as pretty a lier sparkling eyes kindled a spark in my heart that has never gone out. After breakfast I went back, and Kitty went with me, to tend the mill while her father went to breakfast. He showed me the tools in the dam before he went. In fact, I worked a week patching up the old dam, and after that I worked in the mill and on the farm and in the garden. Drove the produce to town, and became more and more attached to the place and to Ben and Martha White and to Kitty. How I did love that girl! She was never so happy as when listening to the music of her voice. I shall never forget the evenings spent in the big front room before the open fire-place when I was Ben White's guest—Ben and Martha, and Kitty and I. I used to attack hickory nuts and butternuts on an old fire shovel, and Kitty popped corn, while the winter wind was whistling outside.

WE'D GET IN THE BIG WHEEL AND FISH.

"In some Kitty said I used to go fishing. Sometimes we would go up the pond in the boat, and sometimes when the mill was not running we'd go down there and get inside the big wheel and fish in the deep hole. There's where we generally got the finest fish. One day we had just got our fishing tackle out of the mill, and were hardly together to go up the pond or down in the wheel, when a neighbor came over and asked me to lend him the boat. He took it, and we went down in the wheel. We'd been fishing probably an hour, and caught some fine ones, when, all of a sudden, down plowed the water from the flood gate above, and the wheel commenced turning. The sudden start threw us both down. I got on my feet to go in search of the gate, but I helped Kitty up, and commenced to tramp in the direction opposite to the way the wheel was turning. We had to be quick to keep our feet. I was calling as loud as I could, but it was of no use. The noise of the rushing water, the wheel going round and the grinding mill overpowered my voice. We couldn't get out. Kitty fell in the water when the wheel turned, and grazed her head against the

SANITARY PLUMBING,
Brick and Portable Furnaces,
GAS FITTING,
TIN ROOFING,
Etc. Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches of business in a workmanlike manner, and at reasonable prices. Satisfaction guaranteed. Shop on Second street, between Park avenue and Watchung avenue.
D. W. LETTELL,
Res. 9 SOMER AVE., NORTH PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Garden Seeds,
Direct from the Growers.
Othello Ranges,
Chaise Closet and Timothy Seed,
House Furnishing Goods,
Hardware, Plumbing and Tinning.
A. H. GRIFFEN,
28 East Front Street.
TELEPHONE CALL, 5. 11-14

ROUGH ON CATS.

A Novel Invention by Which They Are Captured.

The Inventor a Man of Genius Who Has an Ingenious Wife for Backing.

Rose—No More Back-Yard Concerts.

The only Keely's motor is still in the ether, but the invention of a Philadelphia has not ceased to burn brightly. A Philadelphia mechanist, John J. Chattaway, has invented a device for capturing feline minstrels. Quiet as of the cemetery is absolutely essential to the comfort of a Philadelphian, but the Quaker cats have not as yet learned to mitigate their nocturnal concerts or to temper their lovelorn lays. They patter the fences and the back yards with the noisy vehemence of their kind, and pounding Philadelphia sleep is forthwith expiated shouts and screams in vain. But the researches of the ingenious Mr. Chattaway have shown how to bell the cat. The part of the town in which he lives, so writes an enthusiast in the Philadelphia Times, "is the arcadia for all the lovemaking toms and tabbies in the neighborhood. On back fences and on the back fences of all his neighbors it has been the nightly custom, rain or shine, for hundreds of nocturnal prowlers to congregate and there hold discordant revel." Poisoned meat and strong-lung traps were found without effect. The cats laughed at them. Broken glass, barbed wire, and other obstacles to the mechanic's art were equally useless. The cats continued their vociferous proceedings, and the inhabitants swore and suffered.

In the sleepless nights the brain of Chattaway kept working at a plan for conquering the invader of his peace. It came to him finally in a dream. "From his sad-pale bed he dug a pit of empty tomato cans, and out of these supplemented by a roll of condemned roofing felt, with a corresponding weight kindly donated, he manufactured a contrivance that, if universally adopted, will rob the funny paragraphers of one of their most fecund sources of supply."

His completed device for a cat-compeller is a "continuous strip of galvanized-shaped tin, the apex of the pyramid being placed on top of the fence. The base of the triangle is left open, and its sloping sides hang over the fence and stand out from its face. As the apex of this tin roof ends in a sharp point, and its sides are too smooth even for the claw holds of a cat, the result, when a tom or a tabby attempts to cross it, is obvious. As soon as their feet strike the tin they are bound to slip, and a fall on one or the other side of the fence is inevitable. As the tin sides project too far from the fence for it to be impossible for the fallen feline to climb back to its perch again."

The first night's catch in this report is:

"It was late Monday afternoon when Machinist Chattaway finished nailing his cat-compeller in place, and the curious neighbors wondered what it all meant. Darkness had nearly fallen before the cats began to congregate. As Machinist Chattaway's house is near the corner of Fifth and Rose, the fence was a sort of meeting place, and the spot where all combats were arranged and fought to the finish. The night fell as dark as to prevent the confident inventor from witnessing the result from the back window. The first cat that struck the compeller, a gigantic tom, sprang upon the tin coping with a mess of distaste. Like a flash the slanting sides body described a semi-circle, and, much to his surprise, he landed in the yard. Recovering himself, and with his feline mood up, Tom gripped the fence and scrambled sideways. He head struck the projecting tin, and after one or two futile attempts to get a claw hold he slid back into the yard. Some time on until dawn cats came, and but few escaped. Those that were fortunate enough to fall on the inside of the fence scampered away, with their distended tails aloft.

"The next morning the smiling inventor softly opened his back door and peeped out. By actual count there were seventeen cats in the yard. Old fighters and young fighters were huddled together. Misery had made them forget their animosities, and Abner greeted the machinist with frightened shrieks and mournful hissings. When he opened the back gate they rushed out into the alley and scampered away."

SCIENTIFIC DROPS.

Artificial musk as good as the animal musk is now successfully manufactured.

Hemp culture is being made a important culture in the Bahama Islands, over 40,000 acres being under development.

A new substitute for quinine is known as pentchlorin. It is obtained by extract from the root of a shrub of that name.

A 2,500,000 candle power electric light in a lighthouse off the coast of Jutland is said to be the most powerful electric light in the world.

Incandescent lamp globes blacken more readily with alternating currents than with continuous, while the life of the filament is shortened.

California will exhibit at Chicago the widest plate glass in the world, fifteen feet wide, and is now at the depot at Humboldt awaiting shipment.

Mr. Otis Cheel, a chemist, of Cleveland, O., recently rolled a 20-inch square ingot into a three-quarter-inch plate at a single heat in a mill of 3,000 pounds.

The camera shows that the star Vega, which is the brightest in the northern heavens, is apparently a double star, composed of two suns, each revolving around a point midway between them.

A new process of refining sugar depends largely upon the use of fluosilicate of soda for a basis. It is known as crystallos, and is said to be the most powerful of agents, being three times the strength of pyro.

A prominent photographer expresses the opinion that the gallery of the future will contain no skylight. A big room, with the north wall entirely of glass and a roof open to the sky, will produce the best results. The walls painted in light color gives admirable illumination, without the disadvantage of sunlight.

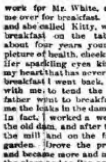
A Suggestion.

She—Would you mind making a little change in your dancing?

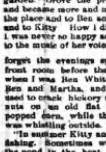
He—In what way?

She—Dancing with right hand on my left foot for a change. The right one has suffered enough.—Fliegende Blaetter.

I RESUMED MY TRAMP IN THE MIDDLE OF THE WHEEL.



HOW TO DISTINGUISH A COOKED FROM A RAW EGG.



When folded up it can be put into a case 8 inches long, 4 inches wide, 1¾ inches thick. Its weight is only two and a quarter pounds. The saw is designed for the use of surveyors, explorers and others to whom portability is an important consideration.

Wall-covering Rides.

The new ride with which the Germans delight and startle the town around Berlin the last few months is a terror in the way of small. Supposa. The guests have a sort of Jiff inclined chamber, composed of lead coated with nickel-steel weighing 14.5 grains, or about half an ounce. The apparatus weighs about 2 pounds, and is 10 inches in length. The magazine of 8 rifle cartridges fits easily. The ball is fired by the hammer leaving the muzzle of the gun is about 3,100 feet per second, and the limit of effectiveness is said to be about 1,000 miles. Brick walls of small thickness are not stood the proof against this gun, and even stone structures are penetrated.

The Constitutionalist.
W. L. FORCE, } A. de FORCE
Editors and Proprietors
VOX POPULI.

An assemblage of Western and Southwestern men, representing various interests of those sections of our country, and designating themselves a Commercial Congress, recently met at Kansas City, Missouri

The Committee on Resolutions submitted two reports, and after a lively discussion, that of the majority was adopted. It declared in favor of—

A free and unlimited coinage of silver and the issue of a sufficient amount of legal-tender notes, redeemable in both gold and silver, to restore the equilibrium between money and all other products.

A tariff for revenue only.

The improvement of the Mississippi River.

The construction of the Nicaragua Canal and other waterways by the Government.

The equalization of taxation.

A national bankrupt law.

The suppression of Trusts and combines.

An amendment of the immigration laws.

The restoration of railway land grants to the public domain and the opening of the surplus lands to settlement.

The reclamation of arid lands.

The enactment of laws to prevent dealing in futures.

The minority report favored—

The free and unlimited coinage of American gold and silver on a ratio established by an international monetary convention, which shall give silver and gold equal purchasing power.

A tariff for revenue, with incidental protection.

Such expressed representative sentiment allows that the people have reasonably taken hold of public questions and are determined to work out true principles of political demagogues or scrofulous seekers.

It also discloses the fact that opposition to all such tariff acts as the McKinley special rewarder is vox populi.

Let the People rule!

LABOR.

The products of labor constitute the basis of all genuine wealth.

That declaration cannot be truthfully assailed.

Those horny-handed men who dig and delve, cultivate the soil and garner its fruits, construct and operate various lines of travel and traffic, erect massive edifices for publics and private use, and, in a thousand other cause crude materials to minister to the needs and comforts of human life, are the real architects of wealth.

They are the makers of riches.

Without their invaluable aid the wheels of progress would cease to revolve.

Labor of all kinds is justly entitled to adequate reward and ought to be securely protected against unjust exactions.

It should receive foremost and honest, not secondary and slipshod treatment, with every legislative ball.

The interests of labor can never be prospered by building Chinese walls of high tariff taxation and mercenary tribute.

To ex such a system protective to labor and industry is trifling with language.

Cramped within artificial bounds is labor wants, bound with natural liberty it gains size and healthy strength.

Freedom is the basis American labor seeks, an enlarged arena wherein to enjoy pursuit and lucrative employment.

A thorough reformation of all absurd and unjustifiable restrictions upon manufacturing, agricultural and commercial labor in this country, would call into duty, dignify and benefit labor, but at the same time amply compensate legitimately invested capital.

Reform is the word!

UNDER THE HALF HOLIDAY LAW.

A plot has been raised that under the new Saturday half holiday law, country editors and their staffs cannot legally file papers or transact business after 12 o'clock noon on Saturday. Chancellor McGill declines to transact any business pertaining to his office after the time specified. The clerks have been advised that while there is a doubt that the law covers their offices, it would be safest for them to follow the example set by the Chancellor at least for future developments through the courts.

Well, the workingmen of the United States have had six months of McKinley wages. How do they like their daily bread baked that way?

During the recent session of the Legislature 718 bills were introduced, 342 were passed and 295 have become laws. The incidental bill of last year and this year were among those passed.

Sugar is selling at five cents per pound. Taking the duty off raw material is what did the work. This is what the Democratic party has advocated for years, but Republicans claimed that it would make sugar higher to place it on the free list.

We extend congratulations to Hon. Fred. C. Marsh, upon his appointment as Prosecutor of Union County. He is well qualified for the position, and will, without doubt, fill it with honor and credit to the County, as has his predecessor, William F. Wilson.

Speaking of the necessity of family support for country newspaper, Chauncey M. Depew said recently: "That journal will have the largest life, the greatest influence and the best profit, which admits to its columns, as far as possible, only such matter as the editor would willingly narrate at his own table." We try to be that way.

It was discovered at Jersey City at its election on Tuesday, 14th inst., that the Election Law will have to be amended. The intent of the law is to enable a legal voter who has not been registered to appeal to the Judge of the County Court upon which he can vote. Judge Lippincott found that the act only applied to the election for members of Assembly and refused to issue certificates to the voters whose names had been inadvertently omitted from the registry list. The election officers are directed under the law to open the boxes to house canvass to verify their registry lists and obtain the names of the voters. The canvass is not always properly done.

It is important for young women who are contemplating matrimony with a veteran for the purpose to note that a bill has been presented on both sides of the House of Assembly at Albany. By the provisions of the desirable act, marriages contracted after June do not entitle the widows thereof to draw a pension. This is rather rough on the old soldiers, whose chances of getting a young wife are largely reduced.

A LITTLE FOR EVERYBODY.

"Hurrah for McKinley!" and Says that His Party Will Make it, Too.

The Finns—But He Wasn't Wheat.

The Evening Post of New Yorkity has slightly elucidated the following:

"A friend of The Evening Post sent the f llowing postal-card to this office a day or two ago, saying that he had received it as an advertisement through the mails in the regular way:

"HURRAH FOR McKINLEY!

"As a beginning, we can now furnish both 1 Card 1 3 Bright Tin, of superior ducility, and heavy coating of pure block tin, for tinning and steel products named those made in Great Britain. Address quickly,

"BEN & WILLIAMS,
"28 Park Row, New York.

"A reporter of The Evening Post called at the office of Messrs. Ely & Williams, No. 28 Park Row (the Potter Building), on Monday, and giving his name inquired of Mr. William how much of the 'Tin Bright Tin 14x20 I C and I X' his firm could contract to deliver in a week, and at what figure. Mr. Williams, far from being overjoyed at the prospect of a custom-r, immediately took on an air of suspicion and asked the reporter what business he was in, where he lived, and so on. The reporter, in his turn, put a few other questions of that character, concluding by saying that the reason he asked the quotations was because he had seen a report of the New York Times called at his office in his absence, and obtained some trade secrets from his clerk, and then had direct that Mr. Williams be proceeded to abuse the New York Times and The Evening Post at great length, and not in the choicest language (although it may be mentioned incidentally that he is greatly esteemed among home temperance and religious people of Plainfield, N. J., where he lives), and after finally ordering that the Times and The Evening Post were unmitigated liars, said that his firm did not care to quote prices to or deal with strangers.

"The reporter, however, asked Mr. Williams where his tin-plate factory was situated. This Mr. Williams also declined to state. The reporter then told him that he was a representative of The Evening Post, and that his object was to ascertain the whereabouts of the factory where the 'I C 8 Bright Tin 14x20 I C and I X 14 x 20' he offered to sell was made. This caused Mr. Williams to indulge in another quarter of an hour's abuse of The Evening Post, but through it all he persistently refused to state the whereabouts of his factory. After he had exhausted him-elf, however, in a tirade against The Evening Post and the Times was concerned, he talked at some length on the beauties of the Mc Kinley bill, the beautiful tin plate its provisions were making, etc., and how much it was to the imported article. Among other things, he said that the importation of tin plate had prejudiced the public by raising the price of tin, although the new tariff had not yet gone into effect; that when the tariff did go into effect, the thousands of goods people who put up goods for export would really get their tin cheaper than they did now, by reason of the drawback; but that the consumers in this country would of course have to pay more for American canned goods than the English because they earned more, got more wages than the English people did. Just what the benefit of protection to the consumer came in under those circumstances Mr. Williams declined to say further than that he would not discuss the question. He maintained, however, that if his tin plate, that it was a far superior article to any that was imported, and concluded in a very excited tone: 'Our arrangements would be perfect by which tin plate would be made in this country on a scale that would practically drive the English tin out of the market.'

"The New York Times publication which Mr. Williams found so much fault with was an article concerning the 'sample of American tin plate' sent to every newspaper office in the land, some months ago, by the Harlem Republican Club. The article in the Times, which Mr. Williams found consisted of a series of interviews with different people, all of which showed that the 'sample of American tin' was a fraud. None of the editors or members of the club knew really anything about the matter. They had accepted the statement that the 'samples' were actually American tin from a letter from James L. Miller of Westfield, and on the strength of his representation had issued the following statement, on each 'sample' of tin sent out:

Sample of American Tin Plate.

Made from American ores, dug by American citizens, manufactured in this city, in the United States Iron and Tin Plate Company's factory at Demarest, Penn., by American workmen who now make their own dinner pails. These are American industries protected by the McKinley bill.

HARLEM REPUBLICAN CLUB.

The "samples" were sworn to about the same time by Mr. Miller, and it was not when F. X. Schu-macher of Putnam avenue was going about the country making affidavits that all the "samples" were promises which had a pretty top-balloon appearance and which secured for the plain-tide argumentative man who made them the distinguished title of "the tin-plate liar", under which subsequent he achieved much fame through the columns of the great daily newspapers.

When the people of the Harlem Republican Club referred the Times reporter to New Jersey's ex-Senator, the newspaper man went to Jersey City and called at the New York office, at the establishment of Frank Miller & Sons, and there Mr. J. L. Miller was found. The same interrogatories were addressed to him which had been put to President Winsor: "What do you know of your own knowledge about this Harlem Club tin plate?"

Mr. Miller said that he didn't know anything about it of his own knowledge. He had obtained it from the New York representatives of the United Sheet Iron and Tin Plate Company, Messrs. Ely & Williams (the Plainfield Mr. Williams's firm), and had understood from them that it was an American product. It came from "Having found out what Mr. Miller did not know," The Times went on to say—"we addressed ourselves to him with the following result:

"The Times went on to say—"Messrs. Ely & Williams, 28 Park Row. Neither member of the firm was in the office, but a representative of the firm kindly volunteered to furnish what new information should be called for which it was in his power to give? He was asked to state if it was true that the tin plate which had been sent out by the Harlem Club answered the description of it given in the label.

"'Yes, it does not'—he said—'We made the black sheets and tinned them, but we did not tin them with American tin. The tin was imported from England.'"

The reporter of the Philadelphia Press was next called to the statement, implied in the Harlem Club literature, that an American factory was actually engaged in manufacturing the plate to be consumed by war and sheeting it for sale in open market. Then the question was asked: "Do you intend to put any manufacturing plate?

"'Only 600 boxes a week just now.'

"'And how long have you been at work?'

"'About a fortnight. We expect to go into the business more extensively later on.'

"'And the price?'

"'Oh, we have not fixed the price yet, but it will be about the same as that we sell at now at a time.'

"Upon which the reporter left, being unable to get any further information.

"The person interviewed was unable to answer this question categorically. The most that he would say was that he understood that the tin-plate which was so fixed by the McKinley bill the Demarest Company would have no difficulty in competing with the foreign article.

"The Evening Post concluded—"that the demand for the Demarest tin plate comes largely from sentimental customers and tinkers throughout the country, who have been worked up to the enthusiastic point of contributing a penny each to the fund, and to make it appear by judicious extrapolation of a small output that the McKinley bill has already resulted in the establishment of an American industry, whereas, as a matter of fact, no new tin-plate machinery has been set up at Demarest, the small product of the factory there having been all coming from an old plant which the company gave up using years ago."

BASE-BALL COMES HIGH.

But the Crescents Promise Superior Games, and the Price Must Stay Up.

At a meeting of the management of the Crescent League base-ball team, and the Field Committee of the League, held last Monday, the question of subscriptions to the grounds was thoroughly discussed, and it was found that it would be impossible for the League to place a first-class team in the field and pay the salaries and guarantees that they are paying their men and visiting clubs, for less than twenty-five cents admission.

Members of the League came out only a little ahead, with the best patronage of any club in New Jersey, and there was very much extra expense connected with salaries and guarantees. This year they have new grounds in another part of the city, and have gone to the expense of $700 to put the same in proper condition. They feel confident in saying that in the course of a month the grounds will be the finest in the State. The League would like to give the people base-ball for 15 cents if they could evade loss by doing so, but they have decided that it will be impossible to do so. The Field Committee will therefore charge 25 cents admission. They say that if they can't make base-ball "go" at 25 cents admission they will have to close up ball playing as one of the sports of the club. Westfield, Somerville and Bergen Point all charge admission fee of 25 cents.

To Rent Next Month in Plainfield.

The regular meeting of the Union county branch of the Y. M. C. A. Secretaries' Association of New Jersey will be held Saturday evening, May 9, at 8:15 o'clock, at the Hall of the Young Men's Christian Association, Plainfield, New Jersey. All those interested in the work of the Association are cordially invited to attend the meeting. The officers of the Union county Branch are:

President—The Rev. Everard Kempshall.
Vice President—The Rev. F. Marion McAllister.
Secretary—Howard Richards.
Treasurer—Mrs. J. K. Myers.

An Elaborate Scenic Production.

During the week beginning Monday, May 4, the immense stage of the Grand Opera House, New York, will be set forth in an elaborate scenic production of a new play dealing with the labor question. The play is significantly entitled "Work and Wages." The title is taken from a young clergyman who essays to go into a steel mill and toil at the bench and blast furnace there, before the ordination at which he was educated. He is a fearless, stout-hearted young Britton, who believes wealth worthy work is an honest man's heritage, and his play has to do with the trials and temptations, his failures and successes and his awakening to a new life—the life of love—during a notable and long continued strike. The moral of labor is that which the play aims to teach, and it advocates progressive ideas generally and the principles and practices of co-operation particularly. It will be presented by a specially engaged cast of metropolitan favorites, and have the advantage of practically perfect mechanical settings built and painted for the production.

Notice of a Tragedy.

A correspondent in the New York World of Sunday last, gives a lengthy account regarding the history of the murder connected with the assassination of President Lincoln by J. Wilkes Booth, and truthfully states that but a few of the great number of people of this country actually know where these relics of a dastardly deed are kept. Many suppose they are in the National Museum at Washington, while numerous Dime Museums profess to exhibit them to a curious public. The writer truthfully states the whereabouts and safe-keeping of the mournful memento, which is in the Arsenal Building and in custody of the Attorney-General at Washington, D. C. It is also stated that but few people, even those engaged up-n them since the memorable trial following the assassination—at least not over five or six a year—have ever been permitted to see it, but I know of Plainfield people who have viewed and handled the relics in the room in which they are kept.

It was during the joyful occasion when the choice of the Democracy and the people, Grover Cleveland, was inaugurated Chief Magistrate of the United States, that myself and wife were visitors at the National Capitol, and guests of friends residing there. On day the matter was brought to the breakfast table, as I was visiting the Attorney-General's office, among other places of interest, and it immediately resolved to see. Upon arrival at the General building, the gentlemanly clerk my card gained us admittance, and in talking over the results of the Presidential election, the kindly-mannered and courteous clerk or official in attendance, he incidentally remarked that he "supposed he would now pack up his traps for Jersey and go to his old home as follows have a show." I immediately began a conversation with him and ascertained that he was a young born from the southern part of the State. They opened the hearts of all as to the grand part Jersey did in the election of Cleveland and no one would be more courteous or entertaining than that official who expected to vacate his position for some one time on the other side of the political fence, and

CITY DEPARTMENT.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY OF UNION

J. A. DEMAREST, - - City Editor.

THEY'LL NEVER BE FORGOTTEN.

The Distinguished Papers and the Solid Men Interest who Will Combine to Extend the Prosperity of Plainfield.

THE PRESS is entirely justified in claiming a large share of credit for the almost unanimous passage of the street railway franchise; its approval by the Mayor and its hearty endorsement by the people.

THE PRESS alone of the papers of Plainfield appeared the project in its beginning, plainly and honestly presented its advantages day after day, and fought and battled with misrepresentations and the hoods of its opponents. Over 50 columns of original, constructed and selected matter relating to the system, its utility and its benefits to town and tax-payers, have appeared in THE PRESS since the project was first thought of.

It is reasonable to believe that such matter—which included letters from the Mayors of cities where the trolley was in use, and statistics and other information from the superintendents of the companies—had the weight and influence that honest purpose always commands, to the end that but one councilman was eventually found opposed to the granting of the franchise.

And day after day THE PRESS presented the matter of a street railway in this city also in a way that was something of a warning. It came thoroughly and lastingly impressed upon the minds of the people by THE PRESS, that "the opponent of such public benefits was a selfish servant if not an absolute enemy of the community."

How pitiful a place in the confidence and respect of the people is that now occupied by the Plainfield papers who have so lied to vain in their unjust and vicious opposition to an electric street railway for Plainfield.

The ball teams of Somerville and Bethany were each beaten at their opening games of Saturday last, but the Cresents won.

—A call with three eyes and two mouths well developed, was born and died at ex-Councilman Finch's stables on Park avenue, Sunday.

—The public schools of this city if they have no patriotism, should at least have public-spirit enough, and have been presented with flags, yet they do not.

—Another loser by the operations of the daring bunkist in the borough Saturday night was Charles Dressell, Jr., of Bethany streets who found $40 missing that had been set him by his bed room.

—To a sense of Monday—published Tuesday—it is cents-a-word ads, while THE PRESS had 21. THE PRESS contained 19 columns of regular ads, every inch of which is all-ve, while the sens had 12½ columns most of which is dead.

—The roof of the building occupied by the Plainfield Relief Association, at Second street and Madison avenue, had a hole burned in it by sparks from a locomotive, Monday. A number of men extinguished the blaze with buckets of water.

—The grand officers of the Grand Lodge of the State will be present at the meeting of Raritan Lodge, No. 35, Knights of Honor, next Monday evening. A large delegation will also be present from sister lodge Wetumpka, No. 3401, of Plainfield.

—Soon after G. E. Cornwell finished reading about the borough burglaries in THE PRESS Monday, he had occasion to open his tool chest in the North Plainfield electric light station on Race street, and found that some one had visited it during the day and had stolen several valuable implements. He hopes to catch the thief.

—A great variety of smoked and cooked foods is turned out daily at C. M. Ulrich's packing house, 35 West Front street. Hams, bacon, shoulders, beef tongues, and similar meats, are prepared in the best manner, all ready for table use. Reading and sausages are also of fresh twice a day. All the smoking and curing is done on the premises.

—The police swooped down on a gang of tramps and other sunning Knights Templars in a vacant lot near the Berekman street railroad bridge Tuesday, and captured every one of them. When threatened with being put to work at breaking stone on the streets they pleaded to be permitted to leave town, and when sol-assed struck off at a rapid gait in the direction of Elizabeth. They never were to come back.

—The laws of the State of New Jersey strictly prohibit any set lines or nets in streams or lakes, and by the laws of the state, under a penalty of $25 fine, or any devices whatever that will interfere or deter such fish from ascending the streams. A penalty for killing any song or insectivorous bird, or taking or destroying eggs of such birds, is $50 for each of-nse. The penalty for trapping or hunting game birds at any time or place, either on one's property or that of another, is $15 for each and every offense. Non-residents not complying with the by-laws of the game protective societies of the State are prohibited from shooting within its limits under a penalty of $50, or imprisonment until the fine is paid.

Coming Home to Die.

John C. VanDyke went to Buena Vista, Col., over a year ago, for his health. Sunday a telegram was received by his relatives in Plainfield, his native city, saying that he intended to start at once for home, and that he was coming back only to die.

Even the state Illustrated.

Governor Abbett, Secretary of State Kelsey and Comptroller Heppenheimer, Tuesday designated the Constitutionalist and the Press, of this city, to print the laws of New Jersey passed by the last Legislature.

In past years the sons of Somerset street, has been appointed, but the State has now followed the City's example and dropped the sheet as beneath recognition and without readers.

Card Players Raided by the Police.

Policemen Kiely and Cooney raided a house on Second street, in the early hours Sunday morning, which had long been under suspicion of being a gambling den. They forced their way into the place, and claim to have caught four people in the act of gambling. They kept an eye on the cards and money they secured, paraded the prisoners for a hearing, which will probably take place in a day or two. Some of the parties implicated are well known and active colored.

MY DISEASE was very bad. For thirty years I have been so troubled with it—have tried a number of physicians without relief—at last I was induced to try Cuticura Remedies. I have used only one bottle of the CUTICURA, and one box of CUTICURA SOAP, and I am free from disease. I feel that I am entitled to the highest testimonial that others may avail themselves of the benefit. C. H. Bell, Bedford, Mass. Nov. 7, 1890.

Worn Fly's Cream Balm is called one to three applications. It relieves at once, and for a cold in the head, catarrh, hay fever, and headache, has never been known to fail. Sold by druggists or sent by mail for 50 cents. Ely Brothers, Owego, N. Y.

—Whitfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., has been appointed to act as escort to the day night. Col. Mason W. Tyler was initiated. Department Commander Millikin was present, inspected the post, and installed the officers. Twenty years ago he and Judge Bingham was made its attorney, a position he held until his death. Besides Mrs. Bingham, he leaves one son and two daughters.

PERSONALIA.

Frank P. Bayne, of West Second street, is out again after a painful illness.

Walter G. Dobbins has returned from Chicago on a vacation visit to his parents.

Alfred S. Moore and family will remove from 24 East Fifth street to 1406 Orange May 1.

F. E. Lockwood, a prominent New Yorker, is visiting Dr. Ryder at 40 Sandford avenue, for the summer.

C. E. Boell, of the firm of Boell & Rose, extensive leather manufacturers of Watertville, N. Y., is visiting Dr. J. A. Allis, of this city.

Dr. Chauncey B. Ripley, of Westfield, has been chosen Commencement Orator by the Alum 1 of his Alma Mater for their next meeting in June.

Jimmy Canean, one of Plainfield's old citizens, is past 85 years of age, and bears the burden and cares of life with remarkable cheerfulness and jollity.

Thomas W. King and family, of Hanford avenue, will pass the week in their summer cottage at Beaconcave, on the island of Nantucket, where they will remain until fall.

Acting on the advice of THE PRESS, the base-ball managers of the Plainfield Crescent League have decided to ask Martin for the season, and the contract is considered.

Invitations have been issued to the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis R. Blackford, at their residence, 170 Grove street, North Plainfield, Saturday evening, May 9.

Mayor Gilbert on Friday signed the ordinance granting the Plainfield Street Railway company the franchise to construct and operate a trolley system of street cars in this city.

A family reunion was held Saturday evening, April 25, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex S. Sea, 14 Crescent avenue, to celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding. Relatives were present from New York and Philadelphia.

Attorney General Stockton VanWinkle was Monday appointed by Chancellor Alexander T. McGill a Special Master in Chancery, and to-day the oath of office was administered to him at Trenton.

Edward McCarthy, a well-known New York counselor, has leased the home of Otto Arens, on Park avenue. Mr. Arens and family will leave this country for Europe in a few days, and make their residence there for an indefinite period.

William G. Ostrom, oldest son of Capt. William S. Ostrom of this city, died Friday at his home in Spring Valley, Rockland county, N. Y. Death was caused by pneumonia following an attack of grip. He leaves a wife and three children.

Thomas Conway, of West Third street, has returned to Plainfield after a year's absence. He has been acting as lieutenant and in large rank of a regiment during the construction of a $250,000 Government dock at Port au Prince, Hayti.

Chancellor McGill has appointed County Counselor William K McClure a Special Master in Chancery, and the latter now enjoys the deserved distinction of being the only lawyer in Plainfield honored by being both a Supreme Court Commissioner and a Special Master in Chancery.

Miss Livingston, daughter of ex-Senator Robert L. Livingston, gave a most delightful and successful card reception in honor of her guest, Miss Sanders of New York, at her home, corner of Broadway and Kensington avenue, Thursday at two o'clock. The cards were dec-rated with rose leaves, and a pink rose lay be-side the plate of each of the ten fair rose buds who were the charming hostess's guests. Parsell of New York was the caterer, and Brower of Fifth avenue furnished the flowers.

Miss Force of Dunellen street, tendered a reception Friday evening to her classmate and guest Miss Lizzie DeCamp, late of Burkeville, Va., and now of Chester, N. J. There was a large attendance of the younger members of society, who all carried out to successful completion the many little details without which entire gratification would be wanting. The music was furnished by Bick.

The remains of E. A. Seeley, of Scotch Plains, were interred in Hillside Cemetery, this city, Thursday. Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M., had charge of the funeral. The beautiful and impressive masonic service was repeated by Past Master Geo. R. Nicholl, of Scotch Plains, and prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Parks, of the Scotch Plains Baptist church. Members of Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company, No. 1, of Scotch Plains, of which deceased was a member, placed upon the coffin a handsome floral piece. The large attendance at the services evidenced the fact that the deceased was held in high esteem and worth by the public. Only a widow survives him.

Mrs. Mylove B. Waters, who died at her home in Elizabeth, Saturday, was the last of a family of ten children, the one dying previous to her being a brother, the Rev. Dr. Daniel T. Hill, a well-known clergyman, who was pastor of the First Baptist church of this city from 1828 to 1839, but whose death occurred in Nebraska three years ago. At the time of death she was the oldest member of the Central Baptist church at Elizabeth. Her age was 84 years. She was the widow of the late Asa G. Waters, the mother of six children, and leaves many daughters. One of her sons was taken prisoner at Drury's Bluff, while serving in the Ninth New Jersey regiment, and died in the prison at Andersonville.

By the unanimous vote of the court at Elizabeth, Saturday, the Hon. Fred. C. Marsh, was appointed prosecutor of the pleas of Union county, for the ensuing term of court. Prosecutor Wilson's term had expired and it was the duty of the bench—Judges Vanderpoel and Van Cleef, and by-judges Parker and Wiley —in accordance with an act passed April 16, 1846, to appoint some one to serve as prosecutor. The same action will be necessary at the beginning of each term. Mr. Marsh's appointment will give universal satisfaction to the bar of Union county. Had a vote been taken of the lawyers of Plainfield, THE PRESS knows of but a solitary ballot that would have been cast for any other candidate.

Ex-Judge John F. Bingham, who died at the home of his physician, Dr. Chauncey M. Field, on Broadway, this city, Friday morning, as told extensively in Friday's PRESS, had been a well-known counselor of Jay Gould since the Fish-Gould partnership of the early seventies. Judge Bingham lived at 170 West One Hundred and Fifth street, New York city. He was born in Newburg, N. Y., forty-six years ago, and moved to Bound Brook at an early age. Twenty years ago he became Mr. Gould's confidential clerk and secretary, with an office in the Grand Opera House. Subsequently Mr. Gould made him President of the Baltimore and Delaware Bay Railroad, a short line running from Chestertown, Md., to the Delaware State Line. When the Manhattan Elevated Railroad Company was organized Judge Bingham was made its attorney, a position he held until his death. Besides Mrs. Bingham, he leaves one son and two daughters.

OPENING THE SEASON.

The Crescent League Base-Ball Nine Play Their First Game and Defeat the Puritan Base Ball Team After Ten Innings.

BRING THIS entire season the Crescent League's base-ball nine will not have a harder game to play than that of last Saturday against the team of the Fred Mooring Post Company. In fact they had been prescribed given it up in their own mind when there were two of the Tree cents out and the Ponds were two runs ahead. Of go said good night and left the field. But one of McIndoe's base drive- was done, and it came unexpectedly as usual, and, as usual, at the right time. It brought home Simmons and Luther; their being the scores. Mayer then went around home when Alberts threw wild in trying to cut him off at third base.

It was just the same man Jones', play-ing all through the game that earned it. The Ponds had thirteen left on bases, many of whom would have scored but for Jones. Freddie Mayer was without an error or an omission. Never has a player shown better form at an opening game than did Jones, Saturday, in spite of wind and snow. His two foul tip catches were beauties. One he could only reach and stop with the tip of his mitten, and gobbled when it dropped. The other he had to run back and fall down to get. Captain Joe Lufbery also played a perfect game, fielding some marvelous stops with ease and effect. Martin, too, accepted every chance, and batted and ran fast at cover. With Bonner at second—for he proved himself, Saturday, the very best—Lufbery on first, Lee third and Martin short, the Crescents will have the strongest infield in its history.

The playing of the Pond team on Saturday deserved a better result. They had less bases on errors charged to them, and no more bases on balls; but the four wild pitches and two passed balls of their battery, and three runs for them. Crescents, and two bases on balls resulted in two more. The other two runs that beat the Ponds were made, one by Martin's base hit, and the other was by Bonner's chest protector buckled, and the other on McIndoe's long hit. The Ponds did more hitting than the Crescents, but it was scattered and no hit came in clusters. But the team played well considering how mixed it was. It had players all the way from Florida to Plainfield, and they were dressed in everything from a game shirt to a derby. Bonner's playing was a feature, and at times there was a crack to the batting that made the chill on even the frozen spectators. In the fourth inning Lee, Simmons and Davis followed one another to the bat, and were all out with the ball batted pitched. The ball was not a fly that would be safe under any other circumstances, but it could n't get away from Walter.

The cover of Davis, the Crescents' new first baseman, was short but far from sweet. He played just six innings, then vanished into right field. He gave an excellent exhibition to the spectator as the new rule of admission. That twenty-five cent charge is, however, a greater mistake than Davis. They are both fine, but dropped, but it is going to be hard enough to coax a crowd to the new grounds even at fifteen cents, and the price and location are liable to kill public interest quicker than a poor first baseman, for the Plainfield people are used to that.

As to the grounds, they are wide spread—although not level. It will be used Saturday—and bare. The distance from Front street is not long, and the accommodations are the same as on the old grounds. The score of the opening game of the new field, was:

CRESCENT LEAGUE.	R.	1B.	SH.	PO.	A.	E.
Martin, ss.	4	2	1	0	0	1
Lufbery, 1b.	4	2	1	7	0	0
Bonner, c.	4	2	1	1	2	0
Hammill, rf., lb.	1	0	0	1	1	0
Lee, 3b.	2	1	0	0	2	1
Simmons, cf.	2	1	0	2	0	0
Davis, lb., rf.	1	0	0	7	1	1
	18	8	3	18	6	3

PONDS.	R.	1B.	SH.	PO.	A.	E.
Bonner, 2b.	0	1	0	1	2	0
Mayer, lb., rf., c.	1	1	0	7	1	0
Corey, ss.	0	1	0	1	1	0
Gulligan, 2nd., 3b.	0	2	1	0	1	2
Jones, p.	1	2	1	0	2	0
Alberts, c.	0	0	1	2	1	0
Mayer, 1st., 2nd., rf.	1	1	0	1	0	0
McMurray, cf.	0	0	0	1	0	0
Walker, lf.	0	0	0	1	0	0
	3	8	3	24	8	2

Time man out when the winning run was made.

SCORE BY INNINGS.
Crescents	2	0	1	0	0	1	0	0	2	1—7
Ponds	0	0	0	0	0	2	0	0	0	1—3

Earned runs—Crescents, 1. Three base hit—McIndoe. First base on errors—Crescents, 5; Ponds, 5. First base on balls—Crescents, 5; Ponds, 4. Hit by ball—Lufbery, Jno. Gulligan and Mayer. Sacrifice hits—Bonner to Holly. Flies—Bonner, Lufbery, Hammill, 2; by Ponds, 3. Time of game, 2.30. Umpires—Mr. Boerman.

Somewhat Different.

The Y. M. C. A. bowling team intend to play a return game with their successful opponents, the Plainfield Crescents, on Friday evening next.—New Brunswick Home News.

The Plainfield Crescents are not the New Brunswick Y. M. C. A.'s "unsuccessful" opponents, for they beat them 216 pins last Wednesday evening, and the Crescents are not going to play them a return game "Friday evening next."

Secured a Complete Vindication.

A test case of the Borough of North Plainfield against the Home Oil Co., and particularly against the agent, Mr. Wetzel, in the grocery store first of F. Westphal & Son, of this city, was tried last Thursday evening before Mayor Place. Mr. Wetzel was represented by counsel as the defendant, and Borough Counsel Charles A. Reed for the prosecution.

The charge was peddling without license, and the prosecution brought forward several witnesses, but failed to prove that peddling had been done, or that the law had been violated. Whereupon Mayor Place dismissed the defendant.

Mr. Westphal was arrested before, some two months ago, on a similar charge, at which time he had to pay a fine for a justice of the peace in Newark. This determined the company to make a test case of it. He secured a complete vindication.

To support the Yorkes Chapel in Bermuda.

A large number of young people assembled in the parlors of the First Baptist church Monday, the occasion being an informal reception of the Young Ladies' Missionary Band.

Mrs. Haskell, of Burmah, gave a very interesting missionary talk. A feature of the evening was the organization of the "Temple Builders", an auxiliary to the Mission Band, composed entirely of young gentlemen. Following the organization of the "Temple Builders", an auxiliary to the Mission Band, composed entirely of young gentlemen, Rev. Mr. Stoffoord and Rev. Mr. Hall made brief addresses.

These gentlemen will support a preacher for the Yorkes chapel in Bermuda recently erected and paid for entirely by the young ladies.

An advisory board composed of Messrs. D. K. Lozier, L. W. Randolph and Joseph Goodwin, with August O. Troost as Treasurer, and Mr. E. Stoffoord and Secretary, was elected for the ensuing year.

The young ladies of the church are congratulating themselves on having so successfully paid off the debt existing on the church from the late mortgage.

HYMENEAL.

Bate—Keith.

The wedding of Miss Beulah Pharo Keithan, only daughter of the Rev Dr. Holland Platt Keithan, to Mr. Joseph Austin Bates, the New York lawyer, at the First Presbyterian church Thursday night, was the very charming affair which Trai Farms of Terrace Gardens. The church, which was beautifully decorated with cut flowers, was thronged with invited witness-es. At a few minutes before eight the bridal party filed into her entrance and was escorted to the altar, and "given away" by Edward Bo. Judd, who had been appointed together with other detailed fraigments of the event, exclusively to THE PRESS. The ceremony was performed by the father of the bride. Miss Mary E. Maxy, the maid of honor, was strikingly handsome in a costume of yellow crepe. The bride looked delightfully charming in a costume of brocaded trimmed with point-lace. The "best man" was Ernest L. Cozzant of New York city. The ushers were Dr. Ellis W. Judges, F. Morris Keith, Arthur Keith and Dexter O. Tiffany, all of this city; Frederick H. Darling of New York, and Lewis B. Chamberlain of Rutgers College, New Brunswick.

A pleasant feature of the wedding was the half-hour musical service given on the church's two organs by Charles Sinclair Kilbreth, organist of the church, previous to the ceremony. An informal reception to the bride and groom and their friends followed the wedding at the home of Dr. and Mrs. William H. Murray, on Broadway.

DR. LOWRIE'S STORY.

No Doubt of Dr. Armstrong's Sanity. No Sure.—The Courts May Free Him.

Dr. H. H. Lowrie, who was family physician to Dr. Henry A. Armstrong during the latter's residence at Fonthill, was interviewed Thursday regarding the story published in Thursday night's PRESS concerning the sanity or insanity of Dr. Armstrong.

"Few people in Plainfield believe Dr. Armstrong to be insane"—said Dr. Lowrie to the reporter—"I am one who does not. No one has ever had a better opportunity to judge of that man's sanity than I have. I was called in by his wife to pass judgment upon his case, and I have found him to be perfectly rational. The doctor had a queer temper. He was very irascible and at times would seem unreasonable, but that is not insanity, but this was always when he was unwarrantably opposed.

"Since his confinement in the asylum I have been over to see him. The department three different times to examine him for an increase of his pension. I met by appointment Dr. Dmid-ville, who is connected with the New York pension office, in Canal street, and both of us have examined him thoroughly. We both concluded that he was perfectly sane and, they were dressed in everything from a genuine shirt to a derby. Bonner's playing was a feature, and at times there was a crack to the batting that made the chill on even the frozen spectators. In the fourth inning Lee, Simmons and Davis followed one another to the bat, and were all out with the ball batted pitched. The ball was not a fly that would be safe under any other circumstances, but it could n't get away from Walter.

The cover of Davis, the Crescents' new first baseman, was short but far from sweet. He played just six innings, then vanished into right field. He gave an excellent exhibition to the spectator as the new rule of admission. That twenty-five cent charge is, however, a greater mistake than Davis. They are both fine, but dropped, but it is going to be hard enough to coax a crowd to the new grounds even at fifteen cents, and the price and location are liable to kill public interest quicker than a poor first baseman, for the Plainfield people are used to that.

As to the grounds, they are wide spread—although not level. It will be used Saturday—and bare. The distance from Front street is not long, and the accommodations are the same as on the old grounds. The score of the opening game of the new field, was:

CRESCENT LEAGUE.	R.	1B.	SH.	PO.	A.	E.
Martin, ss.	4	2	1	0	0	1
Lufbery, 1b.	4	2	1	7	0	0
Bonner, c.	4	2	1	1	2	0
Hammill, rf., lb.	1	0	0	1	1	0
Lee, 3b.	2	1	0	0	2	1
Simmons, cf.	2	1	0	2	0	0
Davis, lb., rf.	1	0	0	7	1	1
	18	8	3	18	6	3

PONDS.	R.	1B.	SH.	PO.	A.	E.
Bonner, 2b.	0	1	0	1	2	0
Mayer, lb., rf., c.	1	1	0	7	1	0
Corey, ss.	0	1	0	1	1	0
Gulligan, 2nd., 3b.	0	2	1	0	1	2
Jones, p.	1	2	1	0	2	0
Alberts, c.	0	0	1	2	1	0
Mayer, 1st., 2nd., rf.	1	1	0	1	0	0
McMurray, cf.	0	0	0	1	0	0
Walker, lf.	0	0	0	1	0	0
	3	8	3	24	8	2

Time man out when the winning run was made.

SCORE BY INNINGS.
Crescents	2	0	1	0	0	1	0	0	2	1—7
Ponds	0	0	0	0	0	2	0	0	0	1—3

Earned runs—Crescents, 1. Three base hit—McIndoe. First base on errors—Crescents, 5; Ponds, 5. First base on balls—Crescents, 5; Ponds, 4. Hit by ball—Lufbery, Jno. Gulligan and Mayer. Sacrifice hits—Bonner to Holly. Flies—Bonner, Lufbery, Hammill, 2; by Ponds, 3. Time of game, 2.30. Umpires—Mr. Boerman.

Somewhat Different.

The Y. M. C. A. bowling team intend to play a return game with their successful opponents, the Plainfield Crescents, on Friday evening next.—New Brunswick Home News.

The Plainfield Crescents are not the New Brunswick Y. M. C. A.'s "unsuccessful" opponents, for they beat them 216 pins last Wednesday evening, and the Crescents are not going to play them a return game "Friday evening next."

Secured a Complete Vindication.

A test case of the Borough of North Plainfield against the Home Oil Co., and particularly against the agent, Mr. Wetzel, in the grocery store first of F. Westphal & Son, of this city, was tried last Thursday evening before Mayor Place. Mr. Wetzel was represented by counsel as the defendant, and Borough Counsel Charles A. Reed for the prosecution.

The charge was peddling without license, and the prosecution brought forward several witnesses, but failed to prove that peddling had been done, or that the law had been violated. Whereupon Mayor Place dismissed the defendant.

Mr. Westphal was arrested before, some two months ago, on a similar charge, at which time he had to pay a fine for a justice of the peace in Newark. This determined the company to make a test case of it. He secured a complete vindication.

To support the Yorkes Chapel in Bermuda.

A large number of young people assembled in the parlors of the First Baptist church Monday, the occasion being an informal reception of the Young Ladies' Missionary Band.

Mrs. Haskell, of Burmah, gave a very interesting missionary talk. A feature of the evening was the organization of the "Temple Builders", an auxiliary to the Mission Band, composed entirely of young gentlemen. Following the organization of the "Temple Builders", an auxiliary to the Mission Band, composed entirely of young gentlemen, Rev. Mr. Stoffoord and Rev. Mr. Hall made brief addresses.

These gentlemen will support a preacher for the Yorkes chapel in Bermuda recently erected and paid for entirely by the young ladies.

An advisory board composed of Messrs. D. K. Lozier, L. W. Randolph and Joseph Goodwin, with August O. Troost as Treasurer, and Mr. E. Stoffoord and Secretary, was elected for the ensuing year.

The young ladies of the church are congratulating themselves on having so successfully paid off the debt existing on the church from the late mortgage.

SANE OR INSANE?

Plainfield Physicians Disagree, to the Courts Will Decide.

The recent proceedings in the case of Anne Dieterman have developed a situation of no. Henry A. Armstrong, who is an inmate of the lunatic asylum at Morris Plains, to make an effort to control the patient's estate is. As a result of this effort was made some time ago. All the relatives except the patient's wife believe Dr. Armstrong to be sane. A writ of habeas corpus was applied for Thursday in Jersey City.

Dr. Armstrong is seventy years of age, and a veteran of four wars. He graduated from West Point. During the Seminole war he was shot in the right leg by Chief Jumper. The ball passed through the vertical scar. At the storming of Chapultepec he received a sabre thrust in the back of the neck which left a large and deep scar. He also served in the Black Hawk war. When the war of the rebellion broke out Dr. Armstrong volunteered in defense of the Union. He served as surgeon of the Second Regiment New York Artillery Volunteers, on ill peace was declared.

His work in the hospitals injured his sight, and he became a patient in a hospital at Washington. There he was also attended by an Englishwoman who had come to America to nurse wounded soldiers. They were married and went to Glen Elizabeth, organist of the church, previous to the ceremony. An informal reception to the bride and groom and their friends followed the wedding at the home of Dr. and Mrs. William H. Murray, on Broadway.

DR. LOWRIE'S STORY.

To Doubt of Dr. Armstrong's Sanity. No Sure.—The Courts May Free Him.

Dr. H. H. Lowrie, who was family physician to Dr. Henry A. Armstrong during the latter's residence at Fonthill, was interviewed Thursday regarding the story published in Thursday night's PRESS concerning the sanity or insanity of Dr. Armstrong.

"Few people in Plainfield believe Dr. Armstrong to be insane"—said Dr. Lowrie to the reporter.—"I am one who does not. No one has ever had a better opportunity to judge of that man's sanity than I have. I was called in by his wife to pass judgment upon his case, and I have found him to be perfectly rational. The doctor had a queer temper. He was very irascible and at times would seem unreasonable, but that is not insanity, but this was always when he was unwarrantably opposed.

"Since his confinement in the asylum I have been over to see him. The department three different times to examine him for an increase of his pension. I met by appointment Dr. Dmid-ville, who is connected with the New York pension office, in Canal street, and both of us have examined him thoroughly. We both concluded that he was perfectly sane and, they were dressed in everything from a genuine shirt to a derby. Bonner's playing was a feature, and at times there was a crack to the batting that made the chill on even the frozen spectators. In the fourth inning Lee, Simmons and Davis followed one another to the bat, and were all out with the ball batted pitched. The ball was not a fly that would be safe under any other circumstances, but it could n't get away from Walter.

The cover of Davis, the Crescents' new first baseman, was short but far from sweet. He played just six innings, then vanished into right field. He gave an excellent exhibition to the spectator as the new rule of admission. That twenty-five cent charge is, however, a greater mistake than Davis. They are both fine, but dropped, but it is going to be hard enough to coax a crowd to the new grounds even at fifteen cents, and the price and location are liable to kill public interest quicker than a poor first baseman, for the Plainfield people are used to that.

As to the grounds, they are wide spread—although not level. It will be used Saturday—and bare. The distance from Front street is not long, and the accommodations are the same as on the old grounds. The score of the opening game of the new field, was:

CRESCENT LEAGUE.	R.	1B.	SH.	PO.	A.	E.
Martin, ss.	4	2	1	0	0	1
Lufbery, 1b.	4	2	1	7	0	0
Bonner, c.	4	2	1	1	2	0
Hammill, rf., lb.	1	0	0	1	1	0
Lee, 3b.	2	1	0	0	2	1
Simmons, cf.	2	1	0	2	0	0
Davis, lb., rf.	1	0	0	7	1	1
	18	8	3	18	6	3

PONDS.	R.	1B.	SH.	PO.	A.	E.
Bonner, 2b.	0	1	0	1	2	0
Mayer, lb., rf., c.	1	1	0	7	1	0
Corey, ss.	0	1	0	1	1	0
Gulligan, 2nd., 3b.	0	2	1	0	1	2
Jones, p.	1	2	1	0	2	0
Alberts, c.	0	0	1	2	1	0
Mayer, 1st., 2nd., rf.	1	1	0	1	0	0
McMurray, cf.	0	0	0	1	0	0
Walker, lf.	0	0	0	1	0	0
	3	8	3	24	8	2

Time man out when the winning run was made.

SCORE BY INNINGS.
Crescents	2	0	1	0	0	1	0	0	2	1—7
Ponds	0	0	0	0	0	2	0	0	0	1—3

Earned runs—Crescents, 1. Three base hit—McIndoe. First base on errors—Crescents, 5; Ponds, 5. First base on balls—Crescents, 5; Ponds, 4. Hit by ball—Lufbery, Jno. Gulligan and Mayer. Sacrifice hits—Bonner to Holly. Flies—Bonner, Lufbery, Hammill, 2; by Ponds, 3. Time of game, 2.30. Umpires—Mr. Boerman.

Somewhat Different.

The Y. M. C. A. bowling team intend to play a return game with their successful opponents, the Plainfield Crescents, on Friday evening next.—New Brunswick Home News.

The Plainfield Crescents are not the New Brunswick Y. M. C. A.'s "unsuccessful" opponents, for they beat them 216 pins last Wednesday evening, and the Crescents are not going to play them a return game "Friday evening next."

Secured a Complete Vindication.

A test case of the Borough of North Plainfield against the Home Oil Co., and particularly against the agent, Mr. Wetzel, in the grocery store first of F. Westphal & Son, of this city, was tried last Thursday evening before Mayor Place. Mr. Wetzel was represented by counsel as the defendant, and Borough Counsel Charles A. Reed for the prosecution.

The charge was peddling without license, and the prosecution brought forward several witnesses, but failed to prove that peddling had been done, or that the law had been violated. Whereupon Mayor Place dismissed the defendant.

Mr. Westphal was arrested before, some two months ago, on a similar charge, at which time he had to pay a fine for a justice of the peace in Newark. This determined the company to make a test case of it. He secured a complete vindication.

To support the Yorkes Chapel in Bermuda.

A large number of young people assembled in the parlors of the First Baptist church Monday, the occasion being an informal reception of the Young Ladies' Missionary Band.

Mrs. Haskell, of Burmah, gave a very interesting missionary talk. A feature of the evening was the organization of the "Temple Builders", an auxiliary to the Mission Band, composed entirely of young gentlemen. Following the organization of the "Temple Builders", an auxiliary to the Mission Band, composed entirely of young gentlemen, Rev. Mr. Stoffoord and Rev. Mr. Hall made brief addresses.

These gentlemen will support a preacher for the Yorkes chapel in Bermuda recently erected and paid for entirely by the young ladies.

An advisory board composed of Messrs. D. K. Lozier, L. W. Randolph and Joseph Goodwin, with August O. Troost as Treasurer, and Mr. E. Stoffoord and Secretary, was elected for the ensuing year.

The young ladies of the church are congratulating themselves on having so successfully paid off the debt existing on the church from the late mortgage.

PERTINENT PARAGRAPHS

NUGGETS OF LOCAL NEWS, WITH GRAINS OF FREE-LANCE COMMENT.

Plainfield pastors was complete of the lack of opportunity to win fame and riches might well take lesson and example from U. s and Thomas Nevins, President of the Plainfield Street Railway Company. When Mr. Nevins—then a mere lad, familiarly known as "Tom"—rode in Arcadia, fresh from the sod of the Emerald Isle, he bravely set about earning to a Plainfield society girl. At a very pretty wedding, recently, just as the sacrament came for the bride and paper to enter the church, there came from the tile organ the opening strains of the Lohengrin march. The society girl was instantly all listlessness. "Oh, dear, what a flats!"—she muttered—"I'm tired of hearing that old tune. Those who heard the small-ti guid, semi-angry remark turned as it looked and wondered. Then they looked within an attractive a face and so ability a costume such gross ill-breeding. The organ did n't, and its melody, in spite of the maiden's protest, and the wedding went on as merrily as if there had not been a bit of ugly churlishness of heart and mind and thing else but for a warning so that she can stay away from the nupti-l ceremony and avoid the music which reminds her so strongly of prickly burrs and rodents.

NATHANIEL FAIRFIELD.

Accept the Firemen from a Bandar Call.

Thkeston's coal sheds, Madison avenue, were set afire, at about half-past nine Sunday morning, by sparks from a locomotive. The fire was discovered by Fred. Sullivan, who ran home, and was put out by him, assisted by Ed. Mosher, an exempt member of No. 2 Engine Company.

The Fullest Letter.

When a man takes a cigar out of his mouth to start a letter on his paper and because he "can't afford it", the editor may say nothing, but he thinks a great deal. And when he orders his paper worthy members of his profession. During the conversation Mr. Nevins casually spoke of a new span of blooded horses he had purchased, and also of the fine turf of the topic of driving very pleasant scenes of that delightful recreation were pictured before the ambitious, struggling lawyer.

"Ah, Mr. Nevins,"—he said, with deep pathos—"please don't talk before a poor man of luxuries that only arouse within him a insatiable longing."

"Ah, you're getting in the world"—Mr. Nevins responded.—"You won't have to travel afoot very long."

Next day, to the lawyer's great astonishment, a gift was sent to his door a valuable horse—one of the finest beauties from the Nevins stables.

With the compliments of Thomas Nevins" was all that the accompanying note contained. The lawyer's face flushed with pleasure and gratefulness, but he immediately sought out the generous donor and protested that he could n't accept such a gift. When Mr. Nevins discovered him he had no acceptable excuse except that he doubted whether he could keep it. Mr. Nevins speedily disposed of that.

"That's all right"—he said.—"Nothing's too good, by long man, for you. If you can't afford to keep till you buy it to assume the expense." And that's the plan he compassed the lawyer to adopt.

Not all Plainfielders who would like to ride are going to get gift-horses from Thomas Nevins, but a great many will be greatly benefited by the enterprises which that gentleman is going to give to Plainfield through the new street railway system. And every one who through the coming of the railway gets to know Mr. Nevins will get to esteem and love him just as he is esteemed and loved elsewhere.

A story came to the ears of The Paragrapher, some days ago, that was decidedly unpleasant for him to hear, but in which was involved so important a principle that he felt impelled to call public attention to it. The story was that certain outside parties had suggested to certain educatio al authorities the

FOR LITTLE PEOPLE

THE ARTFUL ANT.

A Tragic Tale.

Once on a time on spinal ant
Resolved to give a party.
For his' is stature she was small,
She was not over half an inch
A step or bashful little ant.
(She was not shy at all).

She sent her invitations round
The forest far and wide,
To all the Birds and Beasts she knew,
And many more beside.
"I've never had a ball since can do,"
Said she, "until you've tried."

Free score acceptances came in
Fanch time she could count,
Said she: "Dear me! I'd best begin
To stir myself indeed."
(A pretty pickle she was in,
With five score guests to feed!)

The artful ant sat up all night,
A thinking over and o'er,
How she could make her nearly store
Enough to feed five score.
(Between ourselves, I think she might Have thought of that before.)

She thought, and thought, and thought all night,
And all the following day,
Till suddenly she struck a bright
Idea, which was—but stay!
Just wait a wee I am not quite
At liberty to say!)

Enough, that when the festal day
Came round, the ant was found
To smile in a peculiar way,
As—[in fact grin]—she had
From seeing tragic actors play
The kind of smile I mean.

From here and there and everywhere
The happy creatures came,
The Fish came not because he there
(And they were not to blame,
They really were not there at all,
But thanked her just the same.")

The Lion, bowing very low,
Said to her: "Ant"—[I'd
Some Noah's Ark remember so
Including an offer.]
A pretty compliment, although
He was a trifle short.

They danced, and danced, and danced, and danced;
It was a jolly night!
They pranced, and pranced, and pranced
And pranced.
Till it was nearly light.
And then the Lion, for supper "chanced
To turn. (As well they might!)

Then said the Ant: "It's only right
That we should have a feast;
And if you will be so polite,
Pray take each other at it."
(The emphasis was very slight,
But caught the Lion's wit.)

They needed not a second call,
They took the hint. Oh, yes,
The largest guest took the small,
The small "took in" the less,
The few "took" the good of all.
(It was a great success!)

As for the rest—but why spin out
This story of a feast?
The Lion took them in about
As fast as he could eat.
He went home looking very stout,
And walking very slow.

And when the Ant, not long ago,
Lost to all sense of shame,
Tried it again, I refuse to know
That not one answer came.
(Save from the Flea, who would not go,
But thanked her all the same.)

—Lewis Carroll, in St. Nicholas.

FLAMINGOES.

Those Found in Europe Are Exceedingly Large and Have Queer Habits.

What curious creatures they are; so large and ungainly in their movements, yet so carefully made and so brilliantly dressed. Have you ever seen one of the whole race? Probably not, unless about? I shall no idea of their size until I began to call upon Phillis. Then I was meaning four feet from the tip of his bill to the tip of his tail, and I thought that was the limit of claws! Yet that is said to be the average size of those found in Europe. The males are of a beautiful red color, with purple wings. They have very curious bills; near the middle they make a sudden curve down, precisely as though a joint had been broken at that place. This is what a traveler thinks when he sees them, but as they always travel in groups, by the time he has watched dozens of them it is seen to be needless that it would be hardly possible for them all to have broken bills, and discovers that the curve must belong to the made them, planned these same bills with a view to the life they would live.

These are found in Africa, and they can swim as well as fly, though they do not seem to be very fond of the former method of getting on. In fact they have rather in the way of graceful swimming, and the web foot is used chiefly for moving about in the soft mud.

When a flamingo eats his dinner his "beakery" full comes into use. Wading through the soft mud of shallow water, dives his long neck down, placing the bill in such a way that the upper part becomes the under, and with it he gathers the choice bugs or worms or fishes which are to form his meal. The nests of flamingoes are built, if possible, near shallow water, where there is plenty of mud in which to find such forms their chief building material. They make little hills about eighteen inches high of mud, and in the top of that, and leave a place in the center for eggs. It seems it is not proper to speak of these birds as sitting on their nests, for the simple reason that they do not sit, but stand, with their feet in the water and their bodies resting on the edge of the mud nests. In this way they lay their eggs and hatch their young.

Two eggs at a time are all that seem to be allowed in these nests. It is said that if the flamingo has the habit of sitting on her eggs, as do other birds, her body is so heavy that she would be almost certain to break them. Is it not a remarkable thing that she was created with instinct enough to know this, or at least if she does not know any thing of the kind, with habits suited to her duties?—Pansy.

PLAYING COWBOY.

What Cured a Small Boy of His Desire to Ride Like a Man on the Western Plains.

It was a warm winter day. The snow was moist enough to roll good. Hadley and Ned had been out coasting, making a splendid snow-man, when Neighbor Henries came up the path.

Neighbor Henries lives upon a large ...tle ranch in Texas every summer, and he had come to say good-bye, for he was going there in the fall to work. He sat by the open window, and told pape stories of a "cow-boy" life until Hadley ...o ached he could go with him, and be a "cow-boy," too.

"Well, when you can, if you learn to use the lasso," said Neighbor Henries when he talked. "Got a good rope handy?"

Hadley soon found one, and the lesson began. He was an apt scholar, and soon he could make the rope do many things very nicely—if these things did not move.

"Now try your skill on that heifer, my boy," said Neighbor Henries pointed to a steer in a two-year-old, which stood near the barn chewing her cud contentedly.

"All right!" and young Hadley crept up behind her like a young Indian. He coiled the rope and threw it. It settled flabbily over the head and shoulders of the heifer, and the fun began. Pinkey Hadley held on as best he could, and away they went—a frightened heifer at one end of the rope and a frightened boy at the other.

"Ha, ha, ha! That looks like Texas, only we haven't the snow to make a soft place to land in!" laughed Neighbor Henries.

How the snow did fly! The heifer bellowed, and Hadley pulled as she dragged him along, and the mad race went on until Hadley's breath was very nearly gone, and he was ready to give away. The heifer ran close to a high, steep bank, as if she was going to leap over it.

Hadley let go of the rope, but he was going so fast he could not stop, and plunged over the bank and out of sight in the huge snow-bank at the bottom. It took both papa and Neighbor Henries to dig him out, and when he was safe once more Neighbor Henries said:

"A pretty 'cow-boy' you'd make, sir lad! You'll have to stay at home a while longer yet."

"I will not" said Hadley, promptly, "I don't want to be a 'cow-boy,' I wouldn't if I could be well as not. I'd rather be—Pa rather be the President of the United States!"—Daughters of America.

WASHINGTON'S BIRD.

Bird of the Stately Gait Which Was Dear to the Heart of Mount Vernon.

Of all our birds of passage the peacock is the pioneer. He is usually pressed by the twenty-second of February, and ...

...ut are also fighting one another on Washington's bird.

It seems to me there is something in person's character which ...ts the same bestowed upon him. He ...ably ...ed, hasty, and hasheboy, he is willing to brave the bitterest winds of March, and is not afraid to ...ut. Most birds do not ...ter until the leaves are about one-third grown.

If the weather be sunshiny and pleasant person helps himself to ...ing. Birthday ...ay with ...ful ...ing ...yes, yes, yes!" If it prove to be bleak and dreary he sounds the plaintive lay: "Ah, me! Ah, me!"

Washington's bird is a plain, brown little creature, with a yellowish tinge. It does not build its own nest, but prefers old bridges, mills or caves. A pair of birds always consult beforehand as to the selection of the best place for a nest. Madame never gives in to Mr. Peacock, and if there is a difference of opinion a new site is selected which is agreeable to both.

"Birds in their little nests agree," but it is after the "tiff" is over. The nest is made of grass, mud and moss, and has a neat lining of fine grass. The eggs are pure white, spotted with red, so that at least two of the National colors appear, as is proper on the eggs of so patriotic a bird.

There is a peculiarity about the person noticed by the Post Lowell. He is the first bird to pipe in the early morning, but always precedes his song with a wicker "whew" which no other bird does at other time. It is said, too, that his song grows more melancholy as the autumn. Let's no fancy that it is because he is soon to leave the human friends to whom he has become attached by building his nest for many years in or near the same spot.

This affection for people may also account for his early return, in which case it is clear that so intelligent and devoted a bird does not bear the name of honor—Washington's bird.—Our Little Ones.

SEWING ACHES.

The Kind Little Jessie Had When Her Mother Had Work for Her.

Jessie sat down by her mother to sew. She was making a pillow-case for her own little pillow.

"All thin" she asked in a discontented tone, holding the seam out.

"That is not too much for a little girl who has a work-basket of her own," said her mother.

"Yes," thought Jessie, "mother has given me a work-basket and I ought to be willing to sew." And so that she took a few stitches quite diligently.

"I have a dreadful pain at my side," said Jessie, in a few minutes after. "My thumb is very sore," she said, in a few minutes more. "Oh, my hand is so tired!" was the next. Next there was something the matter with her foot and then with her eyes, and so she was full of troubles. At length the sewing was done. Jessie brought it to her mother.

"Mother, is the first seam for a doctor?" said her mother.

"The doctor for me, mother?" cried the little girl, as surprised as could be.

"Certainly. A little girl so full of pains and aches must be ill, and the sooner we have the doctor, the better."

Oh, mother," said Jessie, laughing, "they were sewing aches. I am well now."

I have heard of other little girls besides who had sewing aches and pains whenever their parents had any work for them. Perhaps you have had a bird whose wanderer pacing in upon them, as they sat occupied by this very work, warmth, and being goaded to some crime or to madness by the contrast. Such a wanderer was the bird of prey in bright worsted with which she had been working, smiled as we have before related, and made off with the bird.

Branscome opened his eyes lazily, watched his wife's movements and was hearing confidentially into the fire when she returned to her chair.

"Dave," said Mrs. Branscome, "I'm well, my dear," Branscome answered her spouse.

"Martin's house was robbed Tuesday night, and burglars entered Mr. Smith's house last night, and has they not been frightened away by Mr. Smith fighting with a ax by invention in the house he heard in the basement, would, no doubt, have got away with quite a heap of plunder. As it was they took all the silver in the house."

"Well, I'm a fool to fight the gas," answered Branscome.

"But, my dear, he could not investigate without a light."

"Nonsense! Mrs. B. Smith is a coward. Now if burglars should get into my house, I'd walk right up and tell 'em so."

"I don't know, I'm sure," said Mrs. Branscome, with a shudder, "but I hope you would do as Mr. Smith did, strike a light and frighten them away."

"Yes, or maybe I'd frighten myself. I think that I'm a match for an ordinary burglar, and I think I should try and ...ter him."

Branscome was indeed a match, even more than a match in physical strength for any ordinary burglar, and may therefore be pardoned for making the statement. Of intellectual proportions, he was a trained athlete and had been the crack oarsman of the college crew, could run, box and fence like a professional.

When Branscome's after-dinner cigar was smoked out he went upon retiring at the hands of the clock pointed to ten the gas was turned out in the parlor and he went to his invention in the fastenings of the windows and doors of the rooms upon the basement floor, the doors leading from the parlor and hall. He also ascended with her husband to their bed-chamber. The sound of the rain lulled them to sleep and for over three hours the silence of the house was unbroken.

Suddenly Mrs. Branscome awoke out of a sound sleep with every sense alert. The door leading from the bedroom into the hall was open, and she heard a stealthy step in the parlor below. Every nerve in her body, no doubt, some one unfamiliar with the room had, in the darkness, stumbled against some piece of furniture.

"Dave!" she cried, in a terrified whisper, at the same time seizing him by the arm. "Dave! Dave! Dave, there is someone in the house."

Branscome sat up in bed, sleepily rubbed his eyes, yawned, and repeated and he was wide-awake in an instant.

He placed his hand over his wife's mouth and said in a whisper: "I'm perfectly still, my dear. Nothing happens to not strike a light or make a sound until I call to you."

"Oh, Dave," began his trembling wife.

"He silent," he whispered, sternly, "and obey."

Branscome arose softly and gripped his way to the corner of the room where he knew he would find a pair of Indian clubs. He seized one firmly and felt reinforced in the hall. Again he heard the sound of a footstep. He stole to the end of the hall and listened at the door of the room where Bridget, their one servant, slept. A heavy snore proclaimed to him that she was within and that no danger lurked in that direction. He stole to the head of the stairs he entered the parlor—all was dark and silent. The stores had ceased to make any noise, and the night was intense.

Branscome stood several minutes listening; then came the second battle, and this time he was able to locate it in the dining-room. Slowly he descended the stairs. It was evident that the burglars felt themselves safe, knowing that the inmates of the house were powerless against them and the sleeping rooms of the family, and they were about their work with no little haste. Branscome paused for a chair overturned and then the clink of ...ver.

The Branscome was no enthusiast in regard to antique silver. His sideboard and kitchen table were plainly built and not fragile, and he made up his mind that they would not come under consideration of the safe at night. The thought that he was about to be robbed of the silver roused him to a high state of anger, and the blood in his veins boiled. He took his place at the head of the parlor door, and heard the footsteps of the fellow coming down the hall. The door swung open and he heard a low whistle. Then there was a sudden stop, and the fellow apparently approaching the foot of the stairs, he heard a sound like muffled curses.

The burglar was entrapped in inky blackness. Branscome had descended the stairs when he heard something approaching him. The inducement prompted about to ascend. Raising his Indian club, Branscome struck at the object, striking at the same time a blow that would have killed an ox.

The burglar fell—an empty ale, and Branscome fell, face first, into ice-cold water, which dripped from his single garment and set his pearly teeth a-chattering and called to Mrs. Branscome to bring a light.

What Mrs. Branscome had suffered, lying silent in the darkness, expecting any moment to hear the sound of a struggle and the report of a pistol-shot, may be imagined. At the call of her husband she sprang from the bed, lit a lamp and, with trembling limbs, hurried downstairs. Bridget, too, had been aroused, and in a picturesque combination of night flannel and plaid shawl followed her mistress.

In the hall the basement stairs Branscome, shivering and swearing, with streams of dirty clay-colored water streaking his features and—[—E. H. Trivett, in Rural New Yorker.

The Cause of Nightmare.

Nightmare is a condition of the nervous system in which the cerebrum is inactive, but there is no control of the lower part of the brain which presides over muscular action. A person can think and feel, but he cannot move. It seems to be a sort of temporary paralysis of the muscles of motion. It is sometimes caused by overheating the spinal cord—feather beds are not entirely out of fashion yet—and it is also caused by the pressure of a full stomach upon the aorta. A person should not go to bed immediately after eating a hearty meal. If he does, nightmare may be one of the results.—Dr. J. H. Kellogg.

How to Maintain Erect Health.

First, Sleep.—Give yourself the necessary amount of sleep, from five to eight hours. Avoid feather beds. Sleep in a garment not worn during the day. To maintain robust health sleep with a person as healthful as yourself or no one. Second, Exercise.—Not violent, but sufficient to produce a gentle perspiration, should be had each day. Walk or ride.

A Slippery Quotation.

Amateur Actor—Well, what did you think of my "Hamlet?"

Candid Friend—Er—um— well, to tell the truth, if I'd been the old man's ghost I'd ha' spanked you!—Puck.

Railroads.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD
THE STANDARD RAILWAY OF AMERICA
EQUIPPED THROUGHOUT BY THE Interlocking Switch and Block Signal System
TRAINS FOR THE WEST.
On and after Oct. 26, 1890, trains leave Rosedale as follows:
8:34 A. M. FAST LINE, with Pullman Vestibule Parlor and Sleeping Cars for Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Cleveland, and St. Louis, Dining Cars for Pittsburg and Cincinnati.
8:34 P. M. WESTERN EXPRESS, with Pullman Vestibule Parlor and Sleeping Cars for Pittsburg, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland and St. Louis, Dining Cars for Pittsburg and Cincinnati.
11:30 P. M. NIGHT EXPRESS, with Pullman Vestibule Sleeping Cars, daily for Pittsburg, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland and St. Louis.
For Washington, Washington and the South—10:00 Express 2:30, 4:00, 7:00, 7:50 A. M., 12:02, 2:00, 3:30, 4:30, 5:30, 7:00, 8:00, 9:00 P. M. Sundays 2:30, 4:00, 7:00, 7:50 A. M., 12:02, 2:00, 3:30, 4:30, 5:30, 7:00, 8:00, 9:00 P. M. Express for Washington, 10:00 P. M. Sundays 10:00 P. M.
For Philadelphia and Baltimore via Trenton—2:30, 4:00, 7:00, 7:50, 10:00 A. M., 12:02, 2:00, 3:30, 4:30, 5:30, 7:00, 8:00, 9:00, 10:00 P. M. Sundays 2:30, 4:00, 7:00, 7:50 A. M., 12:02, 2:00, 3:30, 4:30, 5:30, 7:00, 8:00, 9:00, 10:00 P. M. Express for Philadelphia, 10:00 P. M. Sundays 10:00 P. M.
For Boston, Providence and Fall River, 10:00 A. M., 12:02, 2:00, 3:30, 4:30, 5:30, 7:00, 8:00, 9:00, 10:00 P. M. Sundays 10:00 A. M., 12:02, 2:00, 3:30, 4:30, 5:30, 7:00, 8:00, 9:00, 10:00 P. M.
For further information, see time tables or address
CHARLES E. PUGH, General Manager.
J. R. WOOD, General Passenger Agent.

Central Railroad of New Jersey,
Station in New York, foot of Liberty Street. Time Table in effect May 18, 1890.

PLAINFIELD AND NEW YORK.

Leave Plainfield 7 07, 8 34, 9 44, 10 39, 11 39 A. M., 12 39, 1 39, 2 39, 3 39, 4 39, 5 39, 6 39, 7 39, 8 39, 9 39, 10 39, 11 39 P. M., 12 01 Night. Sundays 7 07, 8 34, 9 44, 10 39 A. M., 12 39, 1 39, 2 39, 3 39, 4 39, 5 39, 6 39, 7 39, 8 39, 9 39, 10 39, 11 39 P. M., 12 01 Night.

Leave New York from foot of Liberty street, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 A. M., 12 00 M., 1 00, 2 00, 3 00, 4 00, 5 00, 6 00, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 P. M., 12 00 Night. Sundays 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 A. M., 12 00 M., 1 00, 2 00, 3 00, 4 00, 5 00, 6 00, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 P. M., 12 00 Night.

PLAINFIELD AND BOUND BROOK.

Leave Plainfield 6 00, 6 45, 7 30, 8 15, 9 00, 9 45, 10 30, 11 15 A. M., 12 00, 12 45, 1 30, 2 15, 3 00, 3 45, 4 30, 5 15, 6 00, 6 45, 7 30, 8 15, 9 00, 9 45, 10 30, 11 15 P. M. Sundays 9 00, 9 45, 10 30, 11 15 A. M., 12 00, 12 45, 1 30, 2 15, 3 00, 3 45, 4 30, 5 15, 6 00, 6 45, 7 30, 8 15, 9 00, 9 45, 10 30, 11 15 P. M.

PLAINFIELD AND HAMPTON.

Leave Plainfield 6 00, 8 15, 9 45 A. M., 1 30, 3 45, 5 15, 6 00, 7 30, 9 30 P. M. Sundays—6 00, 9 15 A. M.

Leave Hampton 6 45, 9 00, 10 30 A. M., 2 15, 4 30, 6 45, 8 15, 10 45 P. M. Sundays—10 45 P. M.

PLAINFIELD AND LAKE HOPATCONG.

Leave Plainfield 8 15 A. M., 4 30 P. M.

WESTWARD CONNECTIONS.

Leave Plainfield—

6 45 A. M. for Bound Brook, Somerville, Reading, Manchester, Bethlehem, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Sunbury, Shamokin, Pottsville, Harrisburg, Lebanon, Allentown, Easton, Phillipsburg, Scranton, Binghamton, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Chicago, Cincinnati, Allentown, Easton, Phillipsburg, Harris

The Constitutionalist,
A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.
W. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE, Editors and Proprietors.
AT PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY.
TERMS—TWO DOLLARS A YEAR.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXIV. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, MAY 7, 1891. No. 19.

"Support the Constitution, which is the consent of the Union, as well in its limitations as in its authorities."—MADISON.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

JACKSON A CODDINGTON.

Counsellors-at-Law,
Commissioners of Deeds for Pennsylvania, Notaries Public, Office: corner of Park avenue and Sheppard's corner. —1m[6]

W. V. STEELE,
Counsellor-at-Law.
Master and Examiner in Chancery, Supreme Court Commissioner.
Office, PARK AND NORTH AVES. 4-16-tfm

GUSTAVUS W. DAY,
General Auctioneer,
Sales of Personal Property solicited. P. O. Box 114, Dunellen, N. J., or address, care of Chas. Runyon's Agency, Plainfield.

DR. CHARLES E. TITSEL,
Dentist,
At 6 Front street, Dunellen. A new local anesthetic for painless tooth extraction. All work done without pain. Office a specialty.—y[52]

H. HAND,
Auctioneer,
P. O. Address, Lock B or 71, Scotch Plains, N. J. Or leave card at C. J. Carey's second-hand store, 48 West Front street, Plainfield, N. J., will receive prompt attention.—41[52]

O. JAS. B. THALER,
Architect,
115 Broadway, New York city, Rooms 36 and 38, (Important sales of Plainfield Residences.) Residence Plainfield, N. J.—[y50]

J. R. PRESTER,
Veterinary Surgeon.
Office in A. D. Sweney's livery stable, corner Main street and Madison avenue, Plainfield, N. J. Day and night attendance. P. O. Box 150 or left at Wilson's Store, No. 6 Park avenue will receive prompt attention. Residence, 19 East Fifth street.—y[52]

BUSINESS CARDS.

P. P. VanArsdale,
PIANO TUNER.
Is determined to fill the thorough order. Parties residing outside Plainfield and Orange for sale and to let, or have by correspondence, P. O. Box 150 or left at Wilson's Store, No. 6 Park avenue will receive prompt attention. Residence, 19 East Fifth street, corner Madison street.—y[52]

JOHN CHANDLER,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER.
Plainfield, N. J.,
Is prepared to do all kinds of Carpenter and Jobbing work promptly attended to. Shop, No. 36 East 2d St. apr9

T. J. GILLIES,
Auctioneer & Real Estate Agent.
SALESROOM—Madison avenue, cor. Fifth St., Plainfield, N. J.
Goods received for consignment.

TO THE PUBLIC!
We wish to inform our customers and the public generally that we have on hand the best quality of
LEHIGH COAL,
Fresh from the Mines.
It is under cover and well protected from the weather. We are prepared to deliver it well screened and in good order promptly. We are also prepared to furnish all kinds of Seasoned Lumber and Masons' Materials at short notice.
A. D. COOK & BRO.
1m[9]

J. Hervey Doane,
6 PARK AVENUE.
(Formerly Clark's.)
Watches,
Clocks
And Jewelry.
Repairing neatly and promptly done. 6m[7]

FOR
BEAUTIFUL DESIGNS
In Furniture
GO TO
23, 25 and 27 PARK AVE.
Garret Q. Packer,

Steam Marble Granite Works.
AND
Monuments & Headstones,
Fencing for Cemetery Plots.
Large assortment of Slate Mantels.
Large variety of Granite Monuments

All work executed in the most skilful manner at reasonable prices. All orders carefully executed by
C. HAZELTON,
Front St., next to M. E. Ch., Plainfield, N. J.
Monuments erected in Greenwood Cemetery, N. Y.

Alex. Willett,
DEALER IN
BOOTS & SHOES,
No. 7 PARK AVENUE.
A full assortment of reasonable goods direct from Manufacturers, at Low Prices. 6m[7]

Geo. A. Moore,
(Of the late firm of Moore Bros.)
is now the sole proprietor of the old established
CENTRAL HOUSE,
No. 14 NORTH AVENUE,
where he will be glad to supply patrons with the finest grades of Wood and Kindling. Also all kinds of Coals, Cement, Clean Sand at Reasonable Prices. Orders left at the office, corner of Second and Madison avenues, or at the yard, corner of Second and Watson streets, will receive prompt attention. 6m[7]

HOTELS AND SALOONS.

FORCE'S HOTEL,
NORTH AVENUE, (NEAR N. B. S. STATION.)
JAS. H. FORCE, Prop'r.
A FIRST CLASS FAMILY HOTEL. Steam Heat, Electric Bells and Baths.
Truckmen guests at reasonable rates. 10-12-tf

SOMERSET HOTEL,
Cor. Somerset & Cedar Sts., North Plainfield, N. J.
RICHARD A. BOYCE, Proprietor.
Permanent and transient board, at fair rates.
First-class stabling and sheds attached.
Meals at all reasonable hours.

Dime Savings Institution
OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest at the rate of three (3) per cent. per annum payable semi-annually.
JOHN W. MURRAY, President.
WILLIAM MANNING, "
NATHAN HARPER, "
ELIAS S. POPE, Treasurer.
1892.

Jas. M. Dunn,
Dealer in
GROCERIES, PROVISIONS,
Vegetables, Fruits, etc.
No. 36 Park Ave.
OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.
THORBURN & CO'S GARDEN SEEDS.
CIGARS AT THE WORLD.
ALL GOODS DELIVERED FREE OF CHARGE.
1m[6]

ESTABLISHED 1836.
C. E. & J. W. BROWN,
(Successors to G. F. & C. E. Brown & Co.,)
Importers, Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
WALL PAPER.
321 Canal Street,
NEW YORK.
English Tiles, Anaglypta, Hand, Leather Relief Flock Papers, &c. Burlaps for Walls.
Manufacturers of Window Shades. 3-21-y

LIVERY.
A. M. SEGUINE,
(Successor to John W. Laing.)
Laing's Hotel Stables

Front street, opposite Madison avenue.
Coaches for Weddings, Parties and Private Calls. Light carriages to fit Ladies for shopping.
RIDING OR LIVERY.
Careful, safe drivers for shopping calls or business drives. Special attention given to boarding horses by the day, week or month.
TELEPHONE CALL, NO. 36.

Livery Stables!
Mr. D. S. ROBERTS
Has Removed to His New Building on
NORTH AVENUE,
Adjoining Force's Hotel. Mr. Roberts will always be found ready and obliging, and we recommend a liberal share of the public patronage to him. Orders left at his stables or at the office of the Constitutionalist will receive prompt attention. 6m

Accommodation Express.
PETER SICKERT, Proprietor.
Office—Vanderbeek's Stationery Store, Park avenue. The Accommodation Express will attend to the general carrying business of the city. Delivering goods or Baggage to and from the Depot, or from place to place. Messages Promptly Delivered, and all orders carefully Promptly attended to. Give us a call. 6m

INSURANCE.
FIRE INSURANCE!
The undersigned having been appointed agents for the
Star and Merchants
Fire Insurance Co's of the City of New York, are prepared to write risks upon favorable terms and conditions. Office in Library building, corner Front and Park avenue.
NATHAN HARPER.

Speer's Specialette Claret
Is held in high estimation for its richness and a Dry Table Wine, especially suited for dinner use.
Speer's P. J. Sherry
Is a Wine of superior character, and partakes of the rich qualities of the grape from which it is made.
Speer's P. J. Brandy
IS ALWAYS exclusive of the grape, and stands unrivalled in this country for medicinal purposes. It has a peculiar flavor, similar to that of the grape from which it is distilled.
None but the signature of JOSEPH SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is over the cork of each bottle.
SOLD BY DRUGGISTS; WHO KEEP FIRST-CLASS WINES. 6-26-y

WILLIAM A. WOODRUFF,
FIRE AND LIFE
INSURANCE AGENT,
Office cor. Front St. and Park Ave.,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Real Estate for Sale & Exchange.
MONEY TO LOAN
On Approved Security.

J. C. Pope & Co.,
GENERAL AGENTS OF THE
German American Ins. Co.,
of New York.
Also representing other first-class Fire Assurance Companies. Agents of the Scotch Mutual Fire Insurance Company. Plans and City Additions for sale.

BUILDING LOTS
And Other Real Estate for Sale.
OFFICE:
8 E. FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD.
JAMES C. POPE. ELIAS S. POPE

EDUCATIONAL.

Miss SCRIBNER
AND
Miss NEWTON'S
SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
AND KINDERGARTEN,
17 LaGrande Avenue,
CORNER OF WASHINGTON STREET,
Will reopen WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 17, 1890.
The regular course will include Modeling, Drawing and Painting. 9 12 tf

PAINTERS & PAPERHANGERS SUPPLIES

Paints, Varnishes, Glass,
WINDOW SHADES AND FIXTURES,
WALL PAPERS!
PAPER HANGING A SPECIALTY.
A. SWALM,
No. 6 North Avenue, Plainfield.
apr23

L. B. WOOLSTON, J. P. BUCKLE
Woolston & Buckle,
PAINTERS,
Wall Papers,
PAINTER'S SUPPLIES. 26 NORTH AVENUE
apr23

MISCELLANEOUS.

LEWIS B. CODDINGTON,
[Successor to T. J. Carey.]
Furniture and Freight Express!
OFFICE—N. W. FRONT ST.
Large Covered Vans or Trucks. Goods delivered to any part of the U. S. Satisfaction guaranteed. Charges Reasonable. P. O. Box 220. Tel. Piano moving a specialty. 11-26-tf

Fresh Garden Seeds
AND FERTILIZERS,
Farm and Garden Implements,
Lawn Mowers Refrigerators,
Ice Cream Freezers,
Gasoline Stoves,
Hardware, Tools, etc.
J. J. HEIDELOFF,
No. 13 SOMERSET ST. 9-25-tf

CANOPIES
For Weddings, Parties, Etc.,
TO HIRE. CHARGES REASONABLE
Hugo Weigman,
20 EAST FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD, N. J. apr30

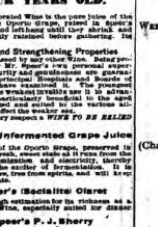
SPEER'S
GRAPE WINES,
ALSO
UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.
Used in the principal churches for communion. Excellent for invalids, weakly persons and the aged.



Speer's Port Grape Wine,
FOUR YEARS OLD.
THIS Celebrated Wine is the pure juice of the finest ripe Oporto grape, raised in Speer's vineyards, and left long still they shrink and become richly ripened before gathering. Its invaluable
Tonic and Strengthening Properties are unsurpassed by any other Wine. Being produced under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed by the principal Boards of Health who have examined it. The youngest child will find the most delicate use it at all stages. It is particularly beneficial to the aged and infirm, and should be used for a few months that effect the weaker sex.
FOR SALE BY WINE AND DRUGGISTS GENERALLY.
Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice
Is the juice of the Oporto Grape, preserved in its natural fresh, sweet state as it runs from the press by fumigation and sterilizing, thereby destroying the ferment of fermentation. It is a delicious beverage, and contains no acid, keep in any climate.
Speer's Specialette Claret
Is held in high estimation for its richness and a Dry Table Wine, especially suited for dinner use.
Speer's P. J. Sherry
Is a Wine of superior character, and partakes of the rich qualities of the grape from which it is made.
Speer's P. J. Brandy
IS ALWAYS exclusive of the grape, and stands unrivalled in this country for medicinal purposes. It has a peculiar flavor, similar to that of the grape from which it is distilled.
None but the signature of JOSEPH SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is over the cork of each bottle.
SOLD BY DRUGGISTS; WHO KEEP FIRST-CLASS WINES. 6-26-y

Garden Seeds,
Direct from the Growers.
Othello Ranges,
Choice Clover and Timothy Seed.
House Furnishing Goods,
Hardware, Plumbing and Tinning.
A. R. GRIFFEN,
128 East Front Street.
TELEPHONE CALL, 6. 11-14

TOBACCO, CIGARS, &c.

H. EGGERDING,
No. 17 Park Avenue,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Manufacturer of the Celebrated
C. O. D. CIGAR.
The best cigar sold in the State, and made entirely from the finest tobacco.
CLEAR HAVANA AND A SPECIALTY.
Always on hand in the Choicest Brands of Foreign and Domestic Cigars. Cigarettes and Tobaccos always on hand.
Cheapest Articles in Great Variety.

C. M. FINE,
Dealer in HAVANA & DOMEST'C
—CIGARS!—
6 SPACE AVE. (NEAR CORNER SECOND ST.)
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Tobacconists and Smokers Materials, of every description.
The choicest "Old Judge" Smoking Tobacco, either by open package or packages (1 oz. each) for sale.

A. WOLFF,
Manufacturer of
CIGARS,
And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles. Also agent for the celebrated "Old Judge" Cigarettes. 41 West Front street, Plainfield, N. J. Cigars put up to suit the trade generally. 1 1-93

CARNEY BROS., Ag'ts,
11 SOMERSET ST.
TINNERS,
PLUMBERS,
GAS FITTERS.
PARLOR STOVES,
COOK STOVES,
HEATERS.
Grates and Bricks for all kinds of Stove can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your Furnace measure to us. We are not Tinners, but best Plumbers, and the best Gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction.
Keys of All Kinds are Made Here.
Tinware Made to Order.
Ranges, Brick and Portable Furnaces
SANITARY PLUMBING.

TOLD IN RHYME.

Hasty Pudding.
Pud pounds, pudst, pudsts, pudsting, pudsted,
Pud's glorious victory o'er the taste;
Sing it in lofty numbers, Muse of Pudding,
Tell out the sorrow and the strife
Of Chicago, Cincinnati and the rest of the world—
A plaid and scotch proposition—
Of the Pudding Question.
Sing in the reign of charity.

Sing in a host of simple joys,
Sing in a host of simple noises and clatter
Chime in the days of sunny nothing,
Sing in the days of sunny nothing,
Tell us the good that we can do
In playing gleefully with pudding.
Sing in the reign of charity.

Oh, Muse, refresh us with a pudding,
Whets our grateful souls attest,
Through spring's delights, Dandelion Salad.

When thorns bloom, what shall be said
For the hawthorn bush, and the bean
The rhythm of thy happy strain,
Nothing of the pudding, pudding and pudding
Sweet echoes of the former bard, —Camilla Thaxter, in Boston Transcript.

The Climax.
It was only a newspaper story
And I read it, as I said it was,
My eyes grew moist and heavy
As they have a way of does.

It was not the art of the writer
That set my heart-strings vibrant,
But it was the theme he wrote of
Went to my heart, and I wept.

But, when I noticed at the "end"
It started out better to be,
And I read and wrote, for that tender tale
Was an advertisement for me.
—Harry B. Smith, in Judge.

A Pessimistic Term.
The Riley poets all have done—or nearly—
The trivial thing;
The triflable ending they have minted every day.
They're "rusticed" it until one tide to done over
And for that reason I have turned it
—Judge.

And after all I do not know but "Inspiration"
That these the general source of thinking my muse should subscribe;
For when I've finished how all nonsense seems reversed,
And nearly all things seem to happen
—Judge.

No doubt you've all arranged with care some plan which seemed to be
A well-laid scheme of love, or gain, or bread and butter;
You thought it o'er, you planned it well, you thought it through,
In some way, all your calculations
—Judge.

I've though sometimes, perchance, our hopes are with fruition crowned,
How keen was my disappointment and chon, soon as the goal is found!
Then I remember with Pleasure's draught, we overturn the cup,
And let our thirsty neighbor fool in —Judge.

And so life's poem is composed, and he who a little good, much that is bad, and some that is of no kind.
God sees the page with smile or sigh, or dap, And, then, like you, four reader, blindly —Henry Herbert Sparks, in Judge.

Select and Mixed.
HIS THOUGHTS.
Half hidden in the grass, she sits
A truant schoolmen softly film
Across her face in dreamy light,
As if the angels thought to leave
Upon those features that they love
The fairest impress from above.
Demure, with modest eyes downcast,
She sits, half hid, and sees me not,
For forty days for just one look
I'd barter all the joys across the book;
And if she'd give me three or four,
I'd be content to see no more.

HER THOUGHTS.
These horrid skates (that draw is bowing),
I wish those pegs would sit down,
Now where could she have got that gown?
Dear, dear, that choir boy has a cold,
How that organist does play! He's really bold.
My bonnet! Can it have a stroke?
I wish I'd taken one more cake.
Umph! Who'd that with the Prairie?
What stories they are in that new book.
There's Percy—won't he be enraged.

When Ciara tells him she's engaged,
Mr. What's-right flees to Ireland;
I cost heretofore dollars, too;
Well, I paid eight, when a mere!
But then, ps stodge makes a fool.
Oh, my! there's Smythy—such a form!
I'll have to get a bow like that.
I hope his sermon won't be long!
Why, there is Fred! Dear me, what dare!
I hope I won't forget the text!
—Tom Masson, in Life.

The Best Way.
I've counted over all the long years, stretching
I wish those years would roll down,
When every there hold up its crown of roses,
And joy danced over tears.

I've counted all the vagaries, and or friendly;
Springs with clear waters sweet;
The first that I ever touched—the lotus that pierced so acutely;
The stone that lost our feet.

The resting place in the kindly shadow
Of the mossy hillside;
The rapper bridge we climbed, the gulfs we traversed,
The high ways we met.

So looking bravely back, nor ever sinking
One ill, or pain, or loss,
Dear, I would take my pilgrim staff, and without sighing
Begin the road again.

Yes, step by step, and ever seeing, feeling
This truth shine fair and clear,
Or smooth or rough, God's dear will guides the journeying,
Everything.

The River.
O, thou calm and silent river!
Gently flowing at my feet,
With a sure and steadfast purpose
Pressing on—the sea to greet;
Toward the ocean, ever flowing,
Trusting in the great unknown,
Forests dark and gloomy planting
Back of thee, and flowers sown.

With a brave, restrictive pressure
Forging on the main,
Till thy weed and graceful bosom
A sailor's navy safely rocks;
Ever trusting, ever flowing,
Ever promising the goal,
Till at last all doubt is ended,
To the deep thy waters roll!

Like thy current—calm and steadfast—
Would that man might journey!
Through rich fields and lonely deserts,
With a serious purpose ever,
Tending onward to the ocean
Surging on the shores of life,
Waiting for the end of labor,
Calm, yet trusting, ready sooner or sorter!
—Elmer Hill, in Lotus Queen.

TRUE PHILANTHROPY.

Tramp—Madam, I wish to tell you that your generosity saved my life.
Lady—Ah, I remember; I gave you a pie.
Tramp—Yes; I pawned it and bought food.—Munsey's Weekly.

Playing a Trump Card.
Miss Lovesmaiden—No, Count, that engagement was all up. I saw by day-before-yesterday's paper that he had failed and busted.
Mr. Ostate—Rebecca, my love, you have made me the happiest man on earth. Consider yourself my wife.—Puck.

FURNISHING A HOUSE.

Mrs. Sherwood Presents Some Seasonable Suggestions to Ladies.

How to Make the Country House a Pleasant and Stopping Place — How to Furnish the Guest Chamber and Living Rooms—Inexpensive but Tasteful Adornments.

[COPYRIGHT, 1891, BY A. E. SHERWOOD.]

The Rambler's publishing house, lay in a number of bath tubs. The tin ones, shaped like a hat, are most convenient. Rubber is a good rubber portable baths which are very convenient. If there is not a bath-room belonging to every sleeping room enable an Englishman to "take his tub" as cold as he pleases, or allow the American to take the warmer sponge bath which Americans generally prefer.

The house should also be well supplied with bath brushes for plenty and for the railway journey. These come now cheap, and well fitted up with drinking cup, knives and forks, and spoons, corkscrews sandwich boxes, etc. These and a great supply of unbreakable cups for the lawn-tennis ground are very valuable.

Also any number of tin-painted pails, and small pitchers by the dozen, and also several services of plain tea things, and Japanese washers, on which to send tea to the bedrooms, add in every room should be placed a table thoroughly furnished with writing materials, and with all the conveniences for writing, sealing and posting a letter.

Shakespeare's bequest to his wife of his second best bed, passed with a bit of post-mortem ungallantry which has dimmed his fame as much as his bard; but it would to-day, "that second best bed," be a very handsome bequest, not only that it was Shakespeare's but because it was doubtless a "tester," for which there is a cram. All the old four-posters which our grandmas sent to the garret are on their way back again to the model bedroom. With all our rage for ventilation and fresh air we no longer fear the bed curtains which a few years ago were supposed to foster disease and death; because the model bedroom can be now furnished with an inlet ventilator for admitting the fresh air from without as well as an outlet one for permitting the egress of the air. Each gas bracket is provided with a pipe ignited and it piercing the wall through which the product of combustion is carried out of the house. This is a late sanitary improvement in London, and is being introduced in New York.

As for the bed curtains, they are hung on rods with brass rings, no canopy on top, so that the curtains can be shaken and dusted freely. This is a great improvement on the old upholstered top, which recalls Dickens' description of Mrs. Todgers's boarding house, where at the top of the stairs "the odor of many generations of sleepers had gathered and had never been dispelled," so the unpleasant feeling that perhaps whole generations of sleepers had breathed into the same upholstery overhead used to haunt the wakeful in old English inns to the haunting of sleep.

There is a growing admiration unfortunately for tufted bedsteads. They are in the long run not either clean, wholesome and not easily kept from vermin; but they are undeniably handsome, and recall the imperial beds of state apartments, where kings and queens are supposed to sweat that repose which comes so unwillingly to them; but so readily to the ploughboy. These upholstered tufted satin-covered bedsteads should be fitted with a canopy, and from this should hang a baldachin and side curtains. Certain very beautiful specimens of this regal arrangement bought in Italy are in the Vanderbilt palaces in New York. Quite recently there can get copies at the great furnishing houses, but it is becoming difficult to get the real antique ones. Those in Brittany find the most wonderful carved bedsteads built into the wall, and are always hoping for the advent of French fisher folk, who had no idea how valuable was their smoke-stained carved oak.

But as to the making up of the bed. There are nowadays, cleanly springs and hair mattresses piled high, in place of the old feather beds; and as to stiff, white bedcovers, pillow slips and sheets. Like shroud and wedding-dress trimmings, monogrammed and ruffled finishes, there is a truce. They were so slippery, so troublesome to keep clean withal, that the beds that have known them shall know them no more forever. They had always to be unpinned and unhooked before the sleeper could enter his bed; and they were the torment of the home-maid. They engendered a degree of washing and ironing which was endless, and yet many a young housekeeper thought them indispensable. That idea has gone out completely. The bed now stands up with its fresh linen sheets, its clean blankets and its Marseilles quilt with square or long pillows, as the sleeper fancies, with bolsters in plain linen sheath. Then over the whole is thrown a light lace cover lined with Liberty silk. This may be as expensive or as cheap as the owner pleases. Spreads of satin might be used, covered with Chinese embroidery, or with patchwork designs, now so fashionable. One light and easily sized drapery succeeds the four-post pieces of unmanageable linen. If the bed is a tester and the curtains of silk or chintz, the bedcovering should match in tint, and in a very pretty bedroom the walls should be covered with chintz or silk.

The modern highly glazed tile paper for walls and ceiling is an admirable covering, as it refuses to harbor dirt. The household cloth can well keep it sweet and clean. Wall papers are so pretty and so exquisite in design that the markets of it no longer use scriptural green or white lead; that it seems hardly necessary to put this caution against. The aggravating old rectangular patterns, which have confused so many weary brains and rendered so many a feverish pillow, let us hope are gone forever.

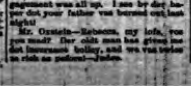
The floors should be of plain, painted wood varnished. Nothing can be cleaner. Or perhaps polished or oiled wood of the natural color, with parquetried borders. If this is impossible, cover your floor with dark stained mattings, which are as clean and healthy as possible. These may remain down all winter.

Readily lifted and shaken rugs have all the comfort of carpets, and solve of their disadvantages.

Much is said of the unhealthiness of gas in bedrooms, but if it does not escape it is not unhealthy. The prettiest illumination is by candles in the chandeliers and wall candlesticks in tin and brass, which are as nice as silver to keep.

In the old pastures of Cromwell's time we find a shelf running across the bed, just above the sleeper's head—placed there for the candle. This is now utilized with a safety lamp, for those who indulge in the pernicious practice of reading in bed. In a room where one need see a receipeale for the book, the letter case, the many little things which an invalid may need, and several calling a nurse.

All paper used in a model bedroom should be unpoisonous. The fireplace should be tiled, and the windows made with a deep window seat. This makes a place of wood like the rest of the frame, which opens up two or three inches in front of the lower sash of the window. The object of this is to admit of the lower sash being raised without a draught, for the air coming in will be ventilated by the air flowing through the closed window.



ON MABEL'S DOORSTEP.

In other parlors. One bites in n't enough when you've been cut so.

"One? Why, Harry, how can you say one when you've been so wicked as to steal fifty, at least?"

"Well, fifty don't seem many."

"Harry! Harry! you've the very worst fellow—no! I am going to good-by—dear."

"Oh, Mabel, why are you in such a hurry to leave me? Have I hurt you?"

"Such a query? Why, Harry, we've been standing here ever and ever so long!"

"Have I seemed so dreadfully long to you?"

"Now, Harry, you know I didn't mean that."

"It hasn't appeared two seconds to me."

"Yes for his fellow—he do look at your watch and see what time it is."

"Why, it's only a little after seven."

"Good-by, Harry."

"Look, you can see for yourself by the street lamp."

"Now, Harry, you know as well as I do that you resumed that watch back two good hours, you rogue! Now, good-by!"

"Good-by, dear, you are so anxious to get rid of me."

"No, Harry—"

"Not without another kiss."

"Oh, you funny, old, foolish fellow, you!"

"Bye-bye, darling—darling!"

"Bye-bye, dearest."

"Good-bye."

"Good-bye."

"You darling!"—Texas Siftings.

DETECTING A ROGUE.

How a Shrewd Forger Was Landed Behind Prison Bars.

ONE of the sad features of the detection, prosecution and capture of criminals is that has lately developed for years was performed by an officer of the detective police force; some years ago.

About that time the officers of the City Bank of New York discovered that they had been swindled out of seventy-five thousand dollars by means of a forged check for that amount, purporting to have been drawn by Commodore Vanderbilt. Nearly a month passed before the fraud was discovered, and in the meantime several other checks of large amounts, drawn by the same party, had been passed; so it was also impossible for any of the bank officials to remember with satisfactory definiteness any of the circumstances connected with the payment of the fraudulent checks. However, it was placed in the hands of a shrewd detective, and he went to work to find, if he could, the author of the mystery.

The officer's first suspicion was that some of the agents of forgers had been in collusion with the forger, and doubtless shared the proceeds of his operations. After two weeks' work the character, habits and associations of the various clerks that theft was abandoned, as it only prevented him from his brother from them if possible, some clew, however slight, to the perpetrator. Every stranger was at any one, not in the habit of presenting checks, and to some degree within the past month. Only two of the clerks had any memory on the subject, and their views of the most strangers were satisfactory character. One remembered seeing a stout, elderly man drive up in a stylish, handsome carriage and coupe to the bank, enter the office and transact some business, he knew not what, and depart, since which he had not seen him.

The other clerk, after a thorough examination, and a multitude of questions and suggestions, recalled to his memory, at last considered, that he did recollect a gentleman who entered the bank one day about the time the forged check was presented, and had a draft drawn for a large amount. The peculiarity in the man's nocticle attracted his attention, and especially a wart in the face and a stained a vivid recollection of every feature. He was an elderly man, and especially expert in pen-drawing. Taking a sheet of paper and an old pen which was lying upon the desk he quickly produced a portrait, which he declared to be a good likeness of the man he suspected.

The officer did not look upon these clews, if such they might be called, as promising much hope of success. He first established a drawing to be that who had seen the suspected rogue drive up with a fine black horse and he confidently identified it.

Here at last was some encouragement. The next attempt was to find the horse and carriage, and discover who owned one who had hired such a thing. The search was unsuccessful for one day along the line the forged check was presented, and had a draft made

The Constitutionalist,
A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.
E. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE, Editors and Proprietors.
AT PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY.
TERMS—TWO DOLLARS A YEAR.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXIV. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, MAY 7, 1891. No. 19.

"Support the Constitution, which is the cement of the Union, as well in its institutions as in its authorities."—Madison.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

JACKSON & CODDINGTON.
Counsellors-at-Law,
Commissioners of Deeds, Notaries Public, Solicitors in Chancery, Conveyancers, &c.
Office: corner of Park avenue and Front street.

W. V. STELLE,
Counsellor-at-Law,
Master and Examiner in Chancery, Supreme Court Commissioner, &c.
Cor. Park and North Aves. 4-13-3m

GEORGE W. DAY,
General Auctioneer,
Sales of Personal Property solicited. P. O. Box 116, Plainfield, N. J., or address to him at Orange avenue and Park avenue, Plainfield.

D. CHARLES E. THERIN,
Dentist,
At West Front street. A new local anesthetic for painless tooth extracting, used without pain. Gold fillings a specialty.—3-26-3m

H. HARD,
Auctioneer,
Residence, Leigh Pl., North Plainfield, N. J. Orders left at P. J. Carey's general store, at West Front street, Plainfield, N. J., will receive prompt attention.—4-23

CHARLES TEALE,
Architect,
261 Broadway, New York city, Rooms 28 and 29. Dwellings and Factory Work Specialties. Residence, Plainfield, N. J.—3-26

J. H. PRENTICE,
Veterinary Surgeon.
Office in A. M. Seguine's livery office, corner Main and Somerset streets, Plainfield, N. J. Day or night calls promptly attended to. Residence, No. 1 Somerset street, Plainfield. Telephone connection with office.—3-26

BUSINESS CARDS.

P. P. VanArsdale,
PIANO TUNER.
Is executing with thorough order. Terms reasonable. Pianos and organs for sale and to rent on hire by rental. P. O. Box 109 or left at Wilson's Music Store, No. 5 East Second street, Plainfield, will receive prompt attention. Residence, 21 Bond street, corner Main street.—3-27-1y

JOHN CHANDLER,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER.
Plainfield, N. J.
Residence and shop, No. 26 East 3d St. Jobbing promptly attended to. 4-9-3m

T. J. GILLIES,
Auctioneer & Real Estate Agent.
SALESROOM—Madison Avenue, cor. Front St., Plainfield. 3-5

Commissioner of Deeds, &c.

TO THE PUBLIC!

We wish to inform our customers and the public generally that we have on hand the best quality of

LEHIGH COAL,
Fresh from the Mines.

It is under cover and well protected from the weather. We are prepared to deliver it well screened, and in good order promptly. We are also prepared to furnish kinds of Dressed Lumber and Masons' Materials at short notice.

A. D. COOK & BRO.
Office: 321 Front street, opposite Madison avenue.

Coaches for Weddings, Parties and Private Calls. Light carriages of all descriptions for pleasure.

RIDING OR LIVERY.

Careful, safe drivers for shopping calls or pleasure drives. Special attention given to boarding horses by the day, week or month.

TELEPHONE CALL, No. 36.

Livery Stables!
Mr. D. S. ROBERTS
Has Removed to His New Building on
NORTH AVENUE,
Adjoining Potok's Hotel. Mr. Roberts will still retain his former patronage, and will endeavor to merit a liberal share of the public patronage in the future. Horses boarded by the day, week or month with care and safety. Prompt attention given to all orders left at the stables or at residence.

Accommodation Express.
PETER RICKERT, Proprietor.
Office—Vanderhoef's Livery, Park Place.
The Accommodation Express will attend to the general carrying business of the city, collecting goods or baggage, and from the Depot, or from goods or baggage, and from the Depot, or from any place or Residence. Orders left at the office will receive prompt attention. Prices reasonable.

FOR
BEAUTIFUL DESIGNS
In Furniture
GO TO
23, 25 and 27 PARK AVE.
Garret Q. Packer,

Steam Marble
Granite Works.
AND
Monuments & Headstones,
Fencing for Cemetery Plots.
Large assortment of Slate Mantels.
Large variety of Granite Monuments
All orders executed in the most stylish manner at satisfactory reasonable prices. All stones delivered and set up.
Front St., next to M. E. Ch., Plainfield, N. J.
Monuments erected in Greenwood Cemetery.

Alex. Willett,
DEALER IN
BOOTS & SHOES,
No. 1 PARK AVENUE.
A full assortment of Gentlemen's fine dress and business shoes, at low figures.

Geo. A. Moore,
(Of the late firm of Moore Bros.)
Is now the sole proprietor of the old established market at
NO. 14 NORTH AVENUE,
Where he will keep constantly on hand a full assortment of the choicest cuts of Fresh and Salt Meats, Vegetables, Fruits, Game in season, and all other goods usually kept in a first-class market. Orders promptly filled and delivered free of charge.

HOTELS AND SALOONS.

FORCE'S HOTEL,
NORTH AVENUE, (Near R. R. Station),
JAS. H. FORCE, Prop'r.
A FIRST CLASS FAMILY HOTEL. Steam Heat. Modern Conveniences throughout.
Transient guests at reasonable rates. 12-31-87

SOMERSET HOTEL,
Cor. Somerset & Daily Sts., North Plainfield N. J.
RICHARD A. BOYCE, Proprietor.
Pleasantly and handsomely located. Rooms newly and tastefully furnished, and supplied with the best of everything the market affords. Table unsurpassed. Stable of all conveniences. Terms moderate.

Dime Savings Institution
OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest at the rate of three (3) per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually.
JOHN W. MURRAY, President.
WILLIAM WHITE, Vice "
NATHAN HARPER, "
ELIAS D. POPE, Treasurer.

Jas. M. Dunn,
Dealer in
GROCERIES, PROVISIONS,
Vegetables, Fruits, etc.
No. 36 Park Ave.
OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.
THORBURN & CO'S GARDEN SEEDS.
BEST IN THE WORLD.
ALL GOODS DELIVERED FREE OF CHARGE.

ESTABLISHED 1836.
C. E. & J. W. BROWN,
Importers, Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
WALL PAPER.
321 Canal Street,
NEW YORK.
English Tiles, Anaglypta, Hand, Leather Stamped Flock Papers, &c. Borrups for Walls.

Manufacturers of Window Shades.

LIVERY.

A. M. SEGUINE,
(Successor to John W. Laing.)
Laing's Hotel Stables
Front street, opposite Madison avenue.

EDUCATIONAL.

Miss SCRIBNER
AND
Miss NEWTON'S
SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
AND KINDERGARTEN,
27 LaGrande Avenue.
CORNER OF WASHINGTON STREET.
Will reopen WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 17, 1890.
The regular course will include Modern Languages and Music. 9-11-3

PAINTERS & PAINTERS' SUPPLIES.

Paints, Varnishes, Glass,
WINDOW SHADES AND FIXTURES.
WALL PAPERS!
PAPER HANGING A SPECIALTY.
A. SWALM,
No. 6 North Avenue, Plainfield.

J. F. SCHULZ. J. P. SCHULZ
Woolston & Buckle,
PAINTERS,
Wall Papers,
PAINTERS' SUPPLIES, 38 NORTH AVENUE

MISCELLANEOUS.

LEWIS B. CODDINGTON,
(Successor to C. J. Carey.)
Furniture and Freight Express!
OFFICE—24 W. FRONT ST.
Large Covered Vans or Trucks. Goods delivered to any part of the U. S. Satisfaction guaranteed. Charges reasonable. P. O. Box 288. Tel. Piano moving a specialty. 11-20

Fresh Garden Seeds
AND F RTILIZERS,
Farm and Garden Implements,
Lawn Mowers Refrigerators,
Ice Cream Freezers,
Gasoline Stoves, Hardware, Tools, etc.
J. J. HEIDELOFF,
No. 10 SOMERSET ST. 3-13-1y

CANOPIES
For Weddings, Parties, Etc.,
TO HIRE. CHARGES REASONABLE
Hugo Weigman,
36 EAST FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Box 1054.

SPEER'S
GRAPE WINES,
ALSO
UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.
Rated in the principal churches for communion. Sold. Excellent for females, weekly persons and little ones.

Speer's Port Grape Wine,
FOUR YEARS OLD.
THIS Celebrated Wine is the pure juice of the Grape, fermented in Speer's vineyards, and left hang until they shrink and become partly raisined before gathering. It is invaluable

Tonic and Strengthening Properties
are unsurpassed by any other Wine. Being produced under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, its purity and unsurpassed wine guaranteed. Medical men prescribe the genuine Speer's Grape Wine. Sold by druggists generally, and by the case by the producer. Terms liberal and the wine invariably pure as represented. Orders solicited. Address

NATHAN HARPER
Speer's (Socialtic) Claret
is held in high estimation for its richness as a tonic. Table Wine, especially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Brandy
is a Wine of superior character, and partakes of the rich delicacy of the grape from which it is distilled.

Speer's P. J. Sherry
IS A PURE distillation of the grape, and blends unrivalled in this country for medicinal purposes. It has a flavor and delicacy similar to that of the grape from which it is distilled.

To meet the demands of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is now the sole of each bottle.

SOLD BY DRUGGISTS AND WINE KEEPERS GENERALLY.
(LARD WINES. 9-25-7

WILLIAM A. WOODRUFF,
FIRE AND LIFE
INSURANCE AGENT,
Office cor. Front St. and Park Ave.,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Real Estate for Sale & Exchange.
MONEY TO LOAN
On Approved Security.

J. C. Pope & Co.,
GENERAL AGENTS OF THE
German American Ins. Co.,
of New York.
Also represents other first-class Fire Insurance Companies. Agents of the Home Mutual Life Insurance Company for this. Fine Residence Property for sale. Plans and estimates furnished. Money to loan.

BUILDING LOTS
And Other Real Estate for sale.
OFFICE:
9 E. FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD.
ELIAS D. POPE. SAM'L D. POPE.

TOBACCO, SEGARS, &c.

H. EGGERDING,
No. 17 Park Avenue,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Manufacturer of Celebrated
C. O. D. CIGAR.
The best Cigar in the State, and made on the premises from the finest tobacco.
CLEAR HAVANA SEGARS A SPECIALTY.
Always a sufficient number of the Choicest Brands on hand. Orders Solicited. Goods Delivered Free of Charge. Always on hand.
Cheapest Articles in Great Variety Quality

C. M. FINE,
Dealer in HAVANA & DOMESTIC
—SEGARS!—
No. 18 PARK AVE., (next door to CROSSLEY'S DRUG STORE.)
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Tobacconist Smoker's materials, of every description.
The celebrated "Old Judge" Smoking Tobacco, also Fine Cut Chewing Tobacco, constantly on hand.

A. WOLFF,
Manufacturer of
CIGARS,
And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles. Also, the second floor from No. 9 West avenue, to 62 West Front, one door east of Somerset street, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally. 4-2-3m

CARNEY BROS., Ag'ts,
11 SOMERSET ST.
TINNERS,
PLUMBERS,
GAS FITTERS.
PARLOR STOVES,
COOK STOVES,
HEATERS.
Grates and Bricks for all kinds of Stove a constant supply. Repairing done with neatness and dispatch. Terms moderate. Tinware mending to us. The best Tinners, the best Plumbers, and the best Gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction.

Keys of All Kinds are Made Here.
Tinware Made to Order.
Ranges, Brick and Portable Furnaces
SANITARY PLUMBING.

SANITARY PLUMBING.
Brick and Portable Furnaces.
GAS FITTING.
TIN ROOFING,
Etc. Etc.
All orders left at the store will receive prompt attention. Terms reasonable.
D. W. LITTELL,
No. 9 NORTH AVE. WEST, PLAINFIELD, N. J.

TOLD IN RHYME.

Hunter Smith.

Foul journals, sweet Hunter Smith,
Finds a glorious victory o'er the teeth;
Sings what glorious work it is
To kill off the nerves and the sleep,
Till the pain is gone and the tooth is dead.
A gold and earnest proposition
Is Hunter Smith's method in filling
Ring in the reign of charity.

Ring in a host of simple joys
That dwell in the hearts of men and boys
Chime in the days of sunny smiles,
And the banishment of wrinkles and frowns
Ring out the old, ring in the new,
Ring out the grief that saps the mind
For those we love, but cannot find
Ring in the valiant man and free,
The larger heart, to every man
Ring out the darkness of the land
Ring in the Christ that is to be.

Oh, gentle temptation of the teeth!
Without our grateful words shall
Through long years of suffering
Ring out the old, ring in the new,
Ring out the wrong, and ring in the true,
Ring out the darkness of the land
Ring in the Christ that is to be.
—Claude Travis, in Good Housekeeping.

The Climax.

It was only a proposal,
And that was all he meant,
My eyes grew moist and misty
And my heart was full of joy.

It was not the act of the writer
That on my heart-strings broke,
But the climax of the sentence
Went to my heart, and I spoke.

But when I arrived at the "Hotel"
And I could but weep, for
Was an awful "Dear Sir" at the end
—Harry B. Smith, in Judge.

A Translation.

The Bible poems all have double meaning—I mean double sense.

Yes, Tommy, I suppose you have noticed that.

They're "contrived" it until one side to mean one thing and the other something else.

Yes, sir.

And for that reason, I have turned to

[illegible]

and after all I do not know but the expression That lines the general course of things by many [illegible]

For have you never noticed how all nature seems

And mostly all things seem to happen

[illegible]

No doubt you've oft arranged with some sweet girl
A plan which seemed to be
A well-laid scheme of love or pain, or bond
Of philanthropy.
You thought to win, you planned it well, you
Began you prospered—and
In some way, all your calculations

[illegible]

We thought sometimes, perchance, our hopes
We were disappointed
Because we'd set our hearts upon
The good to be attained.
Then dressed with Pleasure's daylight, we Overturn the cup,
And let our thirsty neighbor find it

[illegible]

And so Hope's plan is composed, and he who Reads may see
A little good, much that is bad, and those that God sends the page with smile, or sigh, or deep
Or [illegible]
And, then, like you, dear reader, [illegible]

—Harry Herbert Squire, in Puck.

Saint and Sinner.

Half hidden in the [illegible]
A truant bashful sunny ray
Peeps through the curtain's folds
As if the sunrise thought to tease
The slumbers of the lazy girl
As Morpheus drooping from above,
Enfolds her in his downy wings
And whispers, "Sleep, my love."
My angel side. Ah, I would fain
Have you awake and by my side
From thence sweet upon best on the bosom
And if she will not come to me,
I'd be content to end no more.

SIDE THOUGHTS.

Those horrid sidewalks—cold or burning,
I wish these people would see that
Some sense could also have got their feet
Or [illegible] [illegible]
Dear, dear, that shoe has a nail in it!
Why doesn't the man remove it? He's really bold,
My business! Can it have a crack?
I wish I'd taken a car instead.
Umph! Who is that with the Pearls?
Why, I thought I saw her in church!
There's Percy—don't he be enraged

When Clara tells him she's engaged.
Ah, I laughed from it.
I must hear slowly dollars, tick;
Well, I shall regret eighty (what a sum!)
But then, go shops makes a feast,
Oh, my! Mary's daughter—such a face!
Those horrid pearls! I've lost my pencil.
I hope his parents won't be long!
The poor, dear fellow isn't strong.
Why, I'm sure I'm very, dear!
—Madeline S. Bridges, in Ladies' Home Journal.

The Root Way.

I've counted over all the long years, stretching
Back to those first sweet years—
Those years that held in the leaves of roses,
And joy laughed over tears.

I've counted all the vagaries, and or friendly
Springs with other waters crossed,
The first that searched—the letters that pierced
my heart,
The stones that hurt our feet.

The resting places in the kindly shadow
Of trees, with mossy trunks,
The rugged heights we climbed, the paths we Unwrapped.

He is holding hands back, now we're coming
One by one, paths,
Dear, I would leave my pilgrim staff, and brothers
Hold the rest well.

Yes, step by step, and ever seeing, feeling
This truth strike firm and clear,
Counting so much, God's one will guides the wedding;
It is the only way, dear!
—Madeline S. Bridges, in Ladies' Home Journal.

The River.

O, then calm and [illegible] river!
Gently flowing at my feet,
With a tone and decadent purpose
Pressing on—the sea to greet;
Thou art my emblem, river,
Trotting in the great unknown,
Purple skies and waters reflect
Hold, at times, frown wails of stone

With a brave, restless purpose
Thou dost ever onward flow,
Till thy bread and powerful bosom
Bears the ships to and fro.
River boundless—deep—powerful,
Ever flowing to the sea,
Will at last all labor ended,
Thy deep rest be for me!

Like thy current—calm and steadfast—
Would that man might persevere
Through all trials and tempests and dangers,
With a purpose brave—sincere!
Toiling ever to the ocean,
Surging on the throes of life,
Yet still on to the rest of Christ,
Calm, yet toiling, hold answer of eternal!
—Minnie Hill, in Inter Ocean.

THEIR PHILANTHROPY.

Tramp—Madam, I wish to tell you how deeply impressed I am with the Lady—Ah, I remember! I gave you a quarter.

Tramp—Yes; I pawned it and bought food!—Munsey's Weekly.

Playing a Trump Card.

Miss Lowcountie—No, indeed; dat engagement was all up. I says to her dat I'd got a letter from de lowest part of de window.

Mr. Cousin—Between, my lads, you can read? Der odds man had given me dot insurance policy, and we was twice as rich as poked over it.

FURNISHING A HOUSE.

Mrs. Sherwood Presents Some Reasonable Suggestions to Ladies.

How to Make the Country House a Pleasant Stopping Place — How to Furnish the Guest Chamber and Parlor Inexpensive But Sumptuous Accessories.

[COPYRIGHT, 1891, BY M. E. W. SHERWOOD.]

The hostess should, in furnishing her house, lay in a number of bath tubs. The fine ones, shaped like a boat, are most convenient. There are also india rubber portable baths which are very convenient. If there is not a bath room belonging to every room this will enable an Englishman to "take his tub" as cold as he pleases, or allow the American to take the warmer sponge bath which Americans generally prefer.

The house should also be well supplied with lunch baskets for picnics and for the railway journey. These some now make and well fitted up with drinking cups, knives and forks, and spoons, corkscrews sandwich boxes, etc. These and a great supply of unbreakable cups for the lawn-tennis ground are very valuable.

Also say number of thin painted pails, and small pitchers to carry hot water, several services of plain tea things, and Japanese waiters, on which to carry tea to the bedrooms: and in every room should be placed a table thoroughly furnished with writing materials, and with all the conveniences for writing, sealing and posting a letter.

Shakespeare's house in his wife of his second best bed has passed with a bit of post-mortem ungallantry which has dimmed the fame as a model husband; but it would to-day, "that second best bed," be a very dear bed to guest, not only that it was Shakespeare's best because it was doubtless a "feather," for which there is a craze. All the old four-posters which our grandmas sent to the garret are on their way back again to the model bedroom. With all our rage for ventilation and fresh air we no longer fear the bed curtain which a few years ago were supposed to foster disease and death; because the model bedroom can be now furnished with an inlet ventilator, and admitting the fresh air from without as well as an outlet one for permitting the egress of the air, each gas bracket is provided with a pipe placed above it and piercing the wall through which the current of combustion is carried out of the house. This is a late sanitary improvement in London, and is being introduced in New York.

As for the bed curtains, they are hung on rods with brass rings, no canopy on top, so that the curtains may be shaken and dusted freely. This is a great improvement on the old upholstered top, which recalls Dickens' description of Mrs. Todgers's boarding house, where at the top of the stairs "the first floor" of generations of dinners had gathered and had never been dispelled," so the unpleasant feeling that perhaps the whole generations of sleepers had breathed into the same upholstery overhead used to haunt the unselfish old English inns to the murdering of sleep.

There is a growing admiration unfortunately for infant bedsteads which are in the long run neither clean nor wholesome and not easily kept from vermin, but they are fashionable for the nonce, and recall the imperial beds of state apartments, where kings and queens were supposed to first draw breath which comes so unwillingly to them, but so readily to the ploughboy. These upholstered affairs, with their high headsteads should be fitted with a canopy, and from this should hang a baldachin and side curtains. Infants very rarely need full specimens of this regal arrangement bought in Paris or in the best upholstery palaces in New York. Opulent purchasers can get copies at the great furnishing houses, but it is becoming difficult to get the real antiques. Travelers in Brittany find the most wonderful carved bedsteads with twin beds in them, and always buying them of the astonished fisher folk, who had no idea how valuable was their smoke-stained carved work.

But as to the making-up of the bed. There are new sheets, pillow cases, blanket and hair mattresses piled high, in place of the old feather beds; and as to stiff, white furniture, pillow shams and over-fine sheets and valenciennes trimmings, monogrammed and ruffled finery, they have gone. The fresh clear, cool slippery, so troublesome and so false withal, that the beds that have known no shall thank them on certain occasions. They had always to be unpinned and unhooked before the sleeper could enter bed, and they were the torment of the housemaid. They entailed a degree of washing and ironing which was endless, and yet many a gossipy housekeeper thought them indispensable. That idea has gone out completely. The bed now is made with the fresh linen sheets, its clean blankets and its Marseilles quilt with square or long pillows, no side sleeper inclines, with bolster in plain linen sheath. Then over the whole is thrown a light lace cover lined with Liberty silk. This may be as expensive or as cheap as the owner pleases. Spreads of satin can be had, covered with Chinese embroidery, or with patchwork designs, now so fashionable. One light and easily aired drapery succeeds the four or five pieces of unmanageable linen. If the bed is a better one the curtains fall over that, and the bedcovering should match in tint, and in a very pretty bedroom the walls should be covered with chintz or silk.

The modern highly glazed tile paper for walls and ceiling is an admirable covering, as it refuses to harbor dirt. The housemaid's brush can well keep it sweet and clean. Wall papers are so pretty and so exquisite in design (and the makers of it no longer use arsenical green or white lead) that it seems hardly necessary to put in any other suggestion. The aggravating old rectangular patterns, which have confused so many weary brains and haunted so many a feverish pillow, let us hope are gone forever.

The floors should be of plain, painted wood, varnished. Nothing can be cleaner. Or perhaps polished or oiled wood of the natural color, with parquet borders. If this is too costly, cover your floor with dark stained mattings, which are as clean and healthy as possible. These can remain down all winter.

Readily lifted and shaken rugs have all the comfort of carpets, and none of their disadvantages.

Birds in cages are the anhealthiness of one in bedrooms, but if it does not escape it is not unhealthy. The question of insects is by case *dies in the charming new candle-*stick in the tea room, which are as safe as Roman lamps.

In the old posters of Cromwell's time we find a shelf running across the bed, and above the pillows, on which were there for the poset cup. This is now utilized with a safety lamp, for those who indulge in the pleasant habit of reading in bed; but it is even better used as a receptacle for the book, the letter case, the many little things which an invalid may need, and saves calling a maid.

All paint used in a model bedroom, should be unpoisonous. The dreadful shade lilac, and the white-lead shade with a deep blue tint, are the worst. This is a piece of wood like the rest of the room, which comes up two or three inches in front of the lowest part of the window. The object of this is to catch the long-tail hanging draperies which the dressing. The corner is then ventilated by the air filtering through the chief interest being concentrated on the bureau and toilet table. Above all things have an open fireplace in the bedroom. Asbuilt stoves from that sacred precinct. Use wood if possible, if not, the softest of anthracite coal. Have logs ready placed to hand portieres in winter.

Portieres and curtains may be cheaply made of ingrain serged embroidered, Turkish or Indian stuff. splendid Delft polyganies (a mass of gold silk embroidered with bits of looking-glass worked in), velvet, camel's hair shawls, satin, chints, cretonne.

"As a rule, any portieres as the purse can buy," nothing so pretty and so convenient. They need nothing something which will not be easily [illegible] nearly all the fires in apartment houses are caused by the Irish servants setting fire to the portieres.

The glazed chintzes may be hung at the windows without lining as the light shines through the flowers, making a good effect.

Gauzily curtains of soft rich colors are appropriate for the modern bedroom. Madras muslin curtains will do for the windows, but are not heavy enough for portieres.

There are hangings made of willow bamboo, which can be hung at the left hanging down, which give a window a furnished look without interceding the light. Low painted tables, painted red, tables for writing materials, brackets on the walls for vases, handkerchiefs and photographs, a long couch with many pillows, a shaker rocking chair, a row of hanging book shelves—these with bed and curtains in fresh tints make a pretty room in a country house.

If possible people who entertain much should have a suite of bedrooms for guests, so that no one need be turned out of his room to make way for a guest.

Brass beds are to be recommended as cleanly, handsome and durable. Many ladies have, however, found fault with "brass," for which there is a cause. All the old four-posters which our grandmas sent to the garret are on their way back again to the model bedroom. With all our rage for ventilation and fresh air we no longer fear the bed curtain which a few years ago were supposed to foster disease and death; because the model bedroom can be now furnished with an inlet ventilator, and admitting the fresh air from without as well as an outlet one for permitting the egress of the air, each gas bracket is provided with a pipe placed above it and piercing the wall through which the current of combustion is carried out of the house. This is a late sanitary improvement in London, and is being introduced in New York.

As for the bed curtains, they are hung on rods with brass rings, no canopy on top, so that the curtains may be shaken and dusted freely. This is a great improvement on the old upholstered top, which recalls Dickens' description of Mrs. Todgers's boarding house, where at the top of the stairs "the first floor" of generations of dinners had gathered and had never been dispelled," so the unpleasant feeling that perhaps the whole generations of sleepers had breathed into the same upholstery overhead used to haunt the unselfish old English inns to the murdering of sleep.

There is a growing admiration unfortunately for infant bedsteads which are in the long run neither clean nor wholesome and not easily kept from vermin, but they are fashionable for the nonce, and recall the imperial beds of state apartments, where kings and queens were supposed to first draw breath which comes so unwillingly to them, but so readily to the ploughboy. These upholstered affairs, with their high headsteads should be fitted with a canopy, and from this should hang a baldachin and side curtains. Infants very rarely need full specimens of this regal arrangement bought in Paris or in the best upholstery palaces in New York. Opulent purchasers can get copies at the great furnishing houses, but it is becoming difficult to get the real antiques. Travelers in Brittany find the most wonderful carved bedsteads with twin beds in them, and always buying them of the astonished fisher folk, who had no idea how valuable was their smoke-stained carved work.

But as to the making-up of the bed. There are new sheets, pillow cases, blanket and hair mattresses piled high, in place of the old feather beds; and as to stiff, white furniture, pillow shams and over-fine sheets and valenciennes trimmings, monogrammed and ruffled finery, they have gone. The fresh clear, cool slippery, so troublesome and so false withal, that the beds that have known no shall thank them on certain occasions. They had always to be unpinned and unhooked before the sleeper could enter bed, and they were the torment of the housemaid. They entailed a degree of washing and ironing which was endless, and yet many a gossipy housekeeper thought them indispensable. That idea has gone out completely. The bed now is made with the fresh linen sheets, its clean blankets and its Marseilles quilt with square or long pillows, no side sleeper inclines, with bolster in plain linen sheath. Then over the whole is thrown a light lace cover lined with Liberty silk. This may be as expensive or as cheap as the owner pleases. Spreads of satin can be had, covered with Chinese embroidery, or with patchwork designs, now so fashionable. One light and easily aired drapery succeeds the four or five pieces of unmanageable linen. If the bed is a better one the curtains fall over that, and the bedcovering should match in tint, and in a very pretty bedroom the walls should be covered with chintz or silk.

The modern highly glazed tile paper for walls and ceiling is an admirable covering, as it refuses to harbor dirt. The housemaid's brush can well keep it sweet and clean. Wall papers are so pretty and so exquisite in design (and the makers of it no longer use arsenical green or white lead) that it seems hardly necessary to put in any other suggestion. The aggravating old rectangular patterns, which have confused so many weary brains and haunted so many a feverish pillow, let us hope are gone forever.

The floors should be of plain, painted wood, varnished. Nothing can be cleaner. Or perhaps polished or oiled wood of the natural color, with parquet borders. If this is too costly, cover your floor with dark stained mattings, which are as clean and healthy as possible. These can remain down all winter.

Readily lifted and shaken rugs have all the comfort of carpets, and none of their disadvantages.

Birds in cages are the anhealthiness of one in bedrooms, but if it does not escape it is not unhealthy. The question of insects is by case *dies in the charming new candle-*stick in the tea room, which are as safe as Roman lamps.

In the old posters of Cromwell's time we find a shelf running across the bed, and above the pillows, on which were there for the poset cup. This is now utilized with a safety lamp, for those who indulge in the pleasant habit of reading in bed; but it is even better used as a receptacle for the book, the letter case, the many little things which an invalid may need, and saves calling a maid.

All paint used in a model bedroom, should be unpoisonous. The dreadful shade lilac, and the white-lead shade with a deep blue tint, are the worst. This is a piece of wood like the rest of the room, which comes up two or three inches in front of the lowest part of the window. The object of this is to catch the long-tail hanging draperies which the dressing. The corner is then ventilated by the air filtering through the chief interest being concentrated on the bureau and toilet table. Above all things have an open fireplace in the bedroom. As-built stoves from that sacred precinct. Use wood if possible, if not, the softest of anthracite coal. Have logs ready placed to hand portieres in winter.

Portieres and curtains may be cheaply made of ingrain serged embroidered, Turkish or Indian stuff. splendid Delft polyganies (a mass of gold silk embroidered with bits of looking-glass worked in), velvet, camel's hair shawls, satin, chints, cretonne.

"As a rule, any portieres as the purse can buy," nothing so pretty and so convenient. They need nothing something which will not be easily [illegible] nearly all the fires in apartment houses are caused by the Irish servants setting fire to the portieres.

The glazed chintzes may be hung at the windows without lining as the light shines through the flowers, making a good effect.

Gauzily curtains of soft rich colors are appropriate for the modern bedroom. Madras muslin curtains will do for the windows, but are not heavy enough for portieres.

There are hangings made of willow bamboo, which can be hung at the left hanging down, which give a window a furnished look without interceding the light. Low painted tables, painted red, tables for writing materials, brackets on the walls for vases, handkerchiefs and photographs, a long couch with many pillows, a shaker rocking chair, a row of hanging book shelves—these with bed and curtains in fresh tints make a pretty room in a country house.

If possible people who entertain much should have a suite of bedrooms for guests, so that no one need be turned out of his room to make way for a guest.

Brass beds are to be recommended as cleanly, handsome and durable. Many ladies have, however, found fault with "brass," for which there is a cause. All the old four-posters which our grandmas sent to the garret are on their way back again to the model bedroom. With all our rage for ventilation and fresh air we no longer fear the bed curtain which a few years ago were supposed to foster disease and death; because the model bedroom can be now furnished with an inlet ventilator, and admitting the fresh air from without as well as an outlet one for permitting the egress of the air, each gas bracket is provided with a pipe placed above it and piercing the wall through which the current of combustion is carried out of the house. This is a late sanitary improvement in London, and is being introduced in New York.

As for the bed curtains, they are hung on rods with brass rings, no canopy on top, so that the curtains may be shaken and dusted freely. This is a great improvement on the old upholstered top, which recalls Dickens' description of Mrs. Todgers's boarding house, where at the top of the stairs "the first floor" of generations of dinners had gathered and had never been dispelled," so the unpleasant feeling that perhaps the whole generations of sleepers had breathed into the same upholstery overhead used to haunt the unselfish old English inns to the murdering of sleep.

There is a growing admiration unfortunately for infant bedsteads which are in the long run neither clean nor wholesome and not easily kept from vermin, but they are fashionable for the nonce, and recall the imperial beds of state apartments, where kings and queens were supposed to first draw breath which comes so unwillingly to them, but so readily to the ploughboy. These upholstered affairs, with their high headsteads should be fitted with a canopy, and from this should hang a baldachin and side curtains. Infants very rarely need full specimens of this regal arrangement bought in Paris or in the best upholstery palaces in New York. Opulent purchasers can get copies at the great furnishing houses, but it is becoming difficult to get the real antiques. Travelers in Brittany find the most wonderful carved bedsteads with twin beds in them, and always buying them of the astonished fisher folk, who had no idea how valuable was their smoke-stained carved work.

But as to the making-up of the bed. There are new sheets, pillow cases, blanket and hair mattresses piled high, in place of the old feather beds; and as to stiff, white furniture, pillow shams and over-fine sheets and valenciennes trimmings, monogrammed and ruffled finery, they have gone. The fresh clear, cool slippery, so troublesome and so false withal, that the beds that have known no shall thank them on certain occasions. They had always to be unpinned and unhooked before the sleeper could enter bed, and they were the torment of the housemaid. They entailed a degree of washing and ironing which was endless, and yet many a gossipy housekeeper thought them indispensable. That idea has gone out completely. The bed now is made with the fresh linen sheets, its clean blankets and its Marseilles quilt with square or long pillows, no side sleeper inclines, with bolster in plain linen sheath. Then over the whole is thrown a light lace cover lined with Liberty silk. This may be as expensive or as cheap as the owner pleases. Spreads of satin can be had, covered with Chinese embroidery, or with patchwork designs, now so fashionable. One light and easily aired drapery succeeds the four or five pieces of unmanageable linen. If the bed is a better one the curtains fall over that, and the bedcovering should match in tint, and in a very pretty bedroom the walls should be covered with chintz or silk.

The modern highly glazed tile paper for walls and ceiling is an admirable covering, as it refuses to harbor dirt. The housemaid's brush can well keep it sweet and clean. Wall papers are so pretty and so exquisite in design (and the makers of it no longer use arsenical green or white lead) that it seems hardly necessary to put in any other suggestion. The aggravating old rectangular patterns, which have confused so many weary brains and haunted so many a feverish pillow, let us hope are gone forever.

The floors should be of plain, painted wood, varnished. Nothing can be cleaner. Or perhaps polished or oiled wood of the natural color, with parquet borders. If this is too costly, cover your floor with dark stained mattings, which are as clean and healthy as possible. These can remain down all winter.

Readily lifted and shaken rugs have all the comfort of carpets, and none of their disadvantages.

Birds in cages are the anhealthiness of one in bedrooms, but if it does not escape it is not unhealthy. The question of insects is by case *dies in the charming new candle-*stick in the tea room, which are as safe as Roman lamps.

In the old posters of Cromwell's time we find a shelf running across the bed, and above the pillows, on which were there for the poset cup. This is now utilized with a safety lamp, for those who indulge in the pleasant habit of reading in bed; but it is even better used as a receptacle for the book, the letter case, the many little things which an invalid may need, and saves calling a maid.

All paint used in a model bedroom, should be unpoisonous. The dreadful shade lilac, and the white-lead shade with a deep blue tint, are the worst. This is a piece of wood like the rest of the room, which comes up two or three inches in front of the lowest part of the window. The object of this is to catch the long-tail hanging draperies which the dressing. The corner is then ventilated by the air filtering through the chief interest being concentrated on the bureau and toilet table. Above all things have an open fireplace in the bedroom. As-built stoves from that sacred precinct. Use wood if possible, if not, the softest of anthracite coal. Have logs ready placed to hand portieres in winter.

Portieres and curtains may be cheaply made of ingrain serged embroidered, Turkish or Indian stuff. splendid Delft polyganies (a mass of gold silk embroidered with bits of looking-glass worked in), velvet, camel's hair shawls, satin, chints, cretonne.

"As a rule, any portieres as the purse can buy," nothing so pretty and so convenient. They need nothing something which will not be easily [illegible] nearly all the fires in apartment houses are caused by the Irish servants setting fire to the portieres.

The glazed chintzes may be hung at the windows without lining as the light shines through the flowers, making a good effect.

Gauzily curtains of soft rich colors are appropriate for the modern bedroom. Madras muslin curtains will do for the windows, but are not heavy enough for portieres.

There are hangings made of willow bamboo, which can be hung at the left hanging down, which give a window a furnished look without interceding the light. Low painted tables, painted red, tables for writing materials, brackets on the walls for vases, handkerchiefs and photographs, a long couch with many pillows, a shaker rocking chair, a row of hanging book shelves—these with bed and curtains in fresh tints make a pretty room in a country house.

If possible people who entertain much should have a suite of bedrooms for guests, so that no one need be turned out of his room to make way for a guest.

Brass beds are to be recommended as cleanly, handsome and durable. Many ladies have, however, found fault with "brass," for which there is a cause. All the old four-posters which our grandmas sent to the garret are on their way back again to the model bedroom. With all our rage for ventilation and fresh air we no longer fear the bed curtain which a few years ago were supposed to foster disease and death; because the model bedroom can be now furnished with an inlet ventilator, and admitting the fresh air from without as well as an outlet one for permitting the egress of the air, each gas bracket is provided with a pipe placed above it and piercing the wall through which the current of combustion is carried out of the house. This is a late sanitary improvement in London, and is being introduced in New York.

As for the bed curtains, they are hung on rods with brass rings, no canopy on top, so that the curtains may be shaken and dusted freely. This is a great improvement on the old upholstered top, which recalls Dickens' description of Mrs. Todgers's boarding house, where at the top of the stairs "the first floor" of generations of dinners had gathered and had never been dispelled," so the unpleasant feeling that perhaps the whole generations of sleepers had breathed into the same upholstery overhead used to haunt the unselfish old English inns to the murdering of sleep.

*There

The Constitutionalist.
W. L. FORCE, Editor and Proprietor. A. L. FORCE, Publisher.

HURRAH FOR McKINLEY.

There was a grand banquet in New York the other night to do honor to McKinley.

McKinley was present and made a speech.

The recipients of high tariff bounties were there in force and cried vociferously.

Hurrah for McKinley!

The rich men of the party, those plutocratic patriots who contribute thousands for electioneering purposes, were on hand and enthusiastically

Hurrahed for McKinley!

Republican politicians, fully presuming that the people have to be dosed with tariff quack nostrums, swelled the chorus.

Hurrah for McKinley.

One accident admitter even proclaimed him the next President of the United States.

How about Harrison?

The cuisine was delicacies, excepting coffee, and instead of champagne made out of Jersey cows, were all American productions.

Wonderful!

And when more marvelous, the bill of fare was actually printed on sheets of that mysterious article of domestic manufacture entitled American tin.

Hail Columbia!

It was like unto the feast of Belshazzar.

Yea, the modern Daniel was allowed to enter and behold the emblems handwriting on the wall.

Another significant fact was the total absence of representatives of that mighty army of American workingmen whose wages cause the necessities, and stationery of McKinley, and whose living expenses have been largely increased by the McKinley tariff.

They were at the polls next November and will be there again.

Not, however, to hurrah for McKinley.

WILD CATS.

In mountain forests lurks ferocious animals called wild cats, and throughout populated sections of country exists a similar breed of varmints, financial wild cats, prowl for prey, seeking whom they may devour, soon and main.

Both should be avoided by sensible people.

The mountain wild cat is a natural habitant, the financial one a despicable fraud.

The recent collapse of a concern flaunting the attractive title of "Benefield Order of Ernest Workers," having headquarters in Camden and Philadelphia, and promising to return $100 in a short time for about one-third of the sum paid for dues, is an object lesson.

Double less its dupes may be counted by hundreds, but, if they had paused before throwing their money away and considered the utter absurdity of doubling an investment in the course of a few months by any legitimate financial process, their numbers would certainly have been fewer.

Local financial institutions, conducted by men of integrity and practical business ability, and based upon the principles of sound finance, offer but safe accumulation of profits, and never any prospicuous promises, are worthy of support as reliable depositories for savings.

They should be encouraged and sustained, because they are honest dealers, not false pretenders.

Beware of ill fated wild cats!

HOBOKEN'S NEW OFFICIALS.

The ourgoing City Fathers held their final session Monday. A resolution was unanimously adopted to fix the salary of the Mayor, Edward B Stanton, at $2,000. C. G. Edmonston could be supported the measure because Mr. Stanton had made the increase issue during the campaign manfully and openly. James Harkson, of the F ath Ward, was appointed to fill the unexpired term of the vacancy caused by the resignt of Joseph Hurley to qualify.

The new Council met later. The members are: First Ward, August Belz and Peter Fuhrer; Second Ward, Cornelius Eisbock ter and Henry Tinkin; Third Ward, Timothy Kelly and Cornelius J. Taben; Fourth Ward, Henry Snyder and William Fenton. The Council organized by unanimously electing Lieut. Col. Erieubaetter Chairman. Philip Kirschner, First Assistant City Clerk, was appointed for three years. Charles Fuhrer was made Second Assistant City Clerk in place of Charles Darey, resigned. The other appointments were: Park Keepers—Church Square, John Sullivan; Hudson Square, Peter Hogan; Police Station keeper, Robert Housman; Inspector of Weights and Measures, William Ryan; Van Dilvers, Thomas Goode; Bridge and James Daly; Engineer at City Hall, J. Sexton; City Wharf Keeper, Charles Germann. Mayor Stanton's message was full of logical and practical suggestions. He pointed out needed reforms.

Edward B. Stanton, the new Mayor, entered upon his official duties at once. The Mayoral chamber was a veritable floral bower when he took his seat. An admirer of Mr. Stanton had a bouquet gopher on hand and a picture was taken of the scene.

Ex Mayor Grieseman was presented with a handsome gold watch and chain on his retirement from office.

The new Mayor has the honor of having received the largest vote ever given to an Hoboken official. He is the youngest Mayor ever elected in the city. With him are associated some of the best Democratic workers of Hoboken, and the city is assured of a successful and harmonious government for the next three years.

UNION COUNTY COURTS.

The May term of the Union County Court opened Tuesday at Elizabeth, Judge Van Syckel was unable to be present owing to a severe attack of erysipelas, and consequently all the Supreme and Circuit Court cases had to go over until next Monday, when Judge McCormick charged the jury. The calendar comprises fifteen Supreme Court cases, eighteen Circuit Court cases, three jury appeal cases and five justice appeal cases.

Following is a list of the Grand Jurors:

Foreman, Cornelius W. L. Martine, Fanwood; Elizabeth—Richard Prokewitz, Lathrop T. Hand, William Roman, George Classe, Jr., Charles Forsyth, James Carroll, George H. Herring, John Voorhees, Malcolmtine W. Reeve, William J. Winder, Philander Bonnell, Jr., Clarence, Duff, W. Littell, William L. Force, Rahway—James D. Hammell, B. Frank Crowell, John Farrell. Linden—Milton C. Bowden, Westfield—Martin E. Alpers, Scotch Plains—Robert J. Mooney. Plainfield—Joseph H. Achterhoff, Alexander Dalton—J. Robert Sayre, Springfield—John R. Stelzer, Cranford—Gideon Ludlow.

PLAINFIELD'S PLANS FOR PROGRESS.

Public Spirited Citizens Meet and Organize a Board of Trade.

Just when the unsightly freight depot are to be removed from the centre of the city is still a matter of indefinite futurity. According to term which seems to have been accepted by the meeting of the citizens at Monday night's meeting of the Common Council a new and more suitable site has been. Gen Gilman Gilman, chairman of the special committee having the matter in charge, reported that the committee had had an interview with President Maxwell, and that official said that if the city would get possession of the property adjoining it, Iselin's and the company would willingly vacate its own property there and transform the entire spot into an attractive park, with lawns, shrubbery and driveways. The owner of the property, however, Mr. Gilman continued—refused to part with it for any ordinary consideration. The body of the land is devoted to a large coal yard, and unless the city would point out a similarly suitable, procurable site it could not have the present site—and even then not until the present lease would be very high—certainly not under $30,000. Such a proposition—Mr. Gilman added—could hardly be entertained, yet the committee would like to be continued [and it was.], in the hope that some adjustment of the problem might be effected.

In Washington's matter another step forward was taken. Councilman McNett returned to the Council the plans and specifications that had been submitted by J. M. Low & Co., of Kingston, N. Y., and M. Darrance of Philadelphia, and the Plainfield Water Supply Company. The committee reported that in their judgment the proposals received should be given to Low & Co., and by motion of Mr. McNett the matter was returned to the heads of the committee, and they were instructed to draw up, in connection with the Corporation Counsel, a suitable ordinance.

The proposed dog-muzzling ordinance introduced by Mayor Gilbert at a previous meeting and referred to the Committee on Laws and Ordinances was reported with amendments by Mr. Chairman Rushmore, for adoption. Its provisions were that all dogs, male and female, permitted on the streets before June 1 and October 1, should be properly muzzled, and that dog catchers' fees should be fifty cents for each dog caught. Councilman Gluck then said that the ordinance already of the books covered the case; all that was necessary was to secure its enforcement. Mr. Ginna added that he was opposed to muzzling dogs anyway; it was—he thought—a sort of refined cruelty. Councilman Hetfield added that science had determined that muzzling was positively injurious to any animal, as likely to be developed in winter, when dogs ordinarily are unmuzzled, as in summer. Councilman Rushmore explained that so far as muzzling was concerned the proposed ordinance gave the dogs more liberty than did the existing one, for under that now in force the dog is required to be muzzled all the year round. The main purpose of the ordinance—he added —was to increase each catcher's fee from twenty-five to fifty cents, and to make the catcher would accept a fee less than 50 cents, and up to date the extra 25 cents not provided by law aroused no objection of the majority of the citizens, shortening the period of muzzling, was lost. Councilmen Lakerman, Anderson, Rushmore, Smith and Span ushery voted aye, and Councilmen Gallup, Ginna, Hetfield, Moffett, Roberts and Sen voted no. The remaining members were absent. The amount of the dog catcher's fee to 50 cents, was passed, Councilmen Ackerman, Ginna, Johnston, Roberts, Rushmore, Sen, Smith and Spanhusery voting aye, and Councilmen Gallup, Hetfield and Moffett voting no. The amended ordinance was then adopted on its second reading and ordered to be published and advertised, all voting aye.

Councilman Moffett, chairman of the committee on sewers, reported favoring the passage of the Plainfield sewer bill in the Legislature, reported that the bill had been signed by the Governor, and requested that the committee be discharged, which was done.

An ordinance amending the recently passed street railway ordinance, merely correcting several clerical errors, was passed on its second reading and ordered engrossed and advertised.

In referring to the proposed widening and extension of Peace street, chairman Rushmore of the committee to charge relative to that proposition was being heard, and that the committee were now in consultation with the Young Men's Christian Association and the Society of Friends, whose property would be affected by the change. The committee would—he said —probably be able to report something definite in the near future. The liquor license application of Joseph O'Neill was laid on the table, and Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh was instructed to give his opinion over ruling the legality of issuance of the licenses, at it. The ordinance provides that a signer to an application shall not have signed more than one application, and Mr. Marsh said that on first reading he was of the opinion that the intent of the law was that no signer should have signed another application after he had signed the former application had been granted or refused, but he desired time to see how the courts had ruled in the matter. The ordinance was then laid over, as were other license applications this spring, but the applications for which they signed were refused.

The sum of $100 was unanimously donated, on motion of Councilman Hetfield, to Grand Army Posts 73 and 109, for memorial Day purposes.

A communication was received from L. V. F. Randolph, Lawrence Myers Charles Hyde, J. T. Osmon, and others, presidents of the several companies applying to extend the electric street railway out East Front street, and announcing their readiness to assist by all lawful means in their power.

Ordinances establishing the grade on North avenue and East Third street were adopted on third reading and final passage.

The Council adjourned to meet again Monday evening, May 11, at 8 o'clock, in spite of the indignant protest of Mr. Ginna, who asked why a month long Council meetings were held, and who said that never before in Plainfield's history had there been so many Council meetings, and yet the present Council was still accomplishing any more than its predecessors. We might—he added—just as well keep in continual session until the end. The vote for an adjourned meeting was 6 to 5, Councilmen Ackerman, Ginna, Johnston, Rose and Sen voting no.

L. S. Pierson & Co. call attention to their large assortment of carpets, which special prices prevail as an aid to sales. This event is one of the most important in the store's annals, and has achieved great success, due to the offering of the most seasonable kinds of merchandise at prices that will command attention. The latest importations of unobtainable in this country has not yet been received, and the purchasing and leasing of the entire stock of carpets, rugs, etc., at present questions will allow the attendance of various departments and room for the accommodation of new lines. Pending the completion of the above improvements our readers will not find a Newark visit to be often.

LOST, THEIR WORK.

FINGERLESS ORGANIST.

Peculiar Work that Plainfield's Two-dollar Bard Does.

The resignation of Edward J. Fitzhugh, conductor of the Plainfield Choral Society, from the position of organist at St. Mark's Episcopal church in East Front street, and of choirmaster in the Presbyterian church, was announced last Sunday night. Mr. Fitzhugh's resignation from the New York Times—"is of more than ordinary interest to musicians in this city and Brooklyn. In some respects the Plainfield Choral Society organized by Mr. Fitzhugh over the river played in a church in this city. An accident in early life deprived him of three fingers on his right hand, leaving only the thumb and little finger for exercise. It was, of course, necessary for him to utilize the left hand in work that is usually performed by the right, and when he played compositions in which close harmonies were written he had recourse also to sundry bolt of his feet simultaneously on the pedals.

"He became so adept in his performance on the organ in spite of these disadvantages, that only the most expert ear, even when listening with the eyes shut, were undergoing performance, would ever find a difference in his playing and in that of organists of his class who had hands and fingers to use. Indeed, it was only on the most rare occasions that Mr. Fitzhugh ever felt obliged to slight the benemeins in any of the works that he performed. His lightning touch was not yet allowed to interfere with his manual performance, but it served, perhaps, to spur his ability as a trainer and choirmaster to a higher degree of excellence. The choir festivals which he organized at St. Mark's church were most attractive musically. They did not, however, anything like a full measure of Mr. Fitzhugh's ability as a leader and trainer of voices.

"He came much nearer showing what he was in his when he organized the St. Cecilia Society in Brooklyn nearly thirty years ago. At that time he was the organist and choirmaster at St. James's Episcopal church, at the corner of Lafayette avenue, Brooklyn. A generous member of that congregation w a specially interested in music, and gave Mr. Fitzhugh such hearty support that the very best musical performance might be furnished at this church. This enabled Mr. Fitzhugh to enlarge his choir, and in the church to the organization of a society for the performance of English madrigals, glees, and the more exalted forms of choral music. The society developed into the St. Cecilia, which was the pioneer of the Brooklyn choral societies. The Plainfield Choral Society was formed by Mr. Fitzhugh outlived his own prominence in the musical world of Brooklyn, for when he gave up the leadership of the St. Cecilia Society the Apollo Club succeeded it, with Dudley Buck in charge, and out of the Apollo Club grew the Amphion Society, which is still one of the institutions of Brooklyn."

"DUTCH HARRY" KILLS HIMSELF.

Startling End of a Farmer's Bachelor in a Scotch Plains Woodland.

The body of Henry Bunce was found by Miss Archibald, daughter of Wm. Archibald, of Scotch Plains settlement, in the woods on the mountain-side, just back of her father's farm, Monday morning. She had been driving her father's cows to the pasture, and noticing that the bars were down she was sweeping in the breeze, and Spanhusery voting aye, and Councilmen Gallup, Hetfield and Moffett voting no. The amended ordinance was then adopted on its second reading and ordered to be published and advertised, all voting aye.

Councilman Moffett, chairman of the committee on sewers, reported favoring the passage of the Plainfield sewer bill in the Legislature, reported that the bill had been signed by the Governor, and requested that the committee be discharged, which was done.

An ordinance amending the recently passed street railway ordinance, merely correcting several clerical errors, was passed on its second reading and ordered engrossed and advertised.

In referring to the proposed widening and extension of Peace street, chairman Rushmore of the committee to charge relative to that proposition was being heard, and that the committee were now in consultation with the Young Men's Christian Association and the Society of Friends, whose property would be affected by the change. The committee would—he said —probably be able to report something definite in the near future.

The liquor license application of Joseph O'Neill was laid on the table, and Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh was instructed to give his opinion over ruling the legality of issuance of the licenses, at it. The ordinance provides that a signer to an application shall not have signed more than one application, and Mr. Marsh said that on first reading he was of the opinion that the intent of the law was that no signer should have signed another application after he had signed the former application had been granted or refused, but he desired time to see how the courts had ruled in the matter. The ordinance was then laid over, as were other license applications this spring, but the applications for which they signed were refused.

The sum of $100 was unanimously donated, on motion of Councilman Hetfield, to Grand Army Posts 73 and 109, for memorial Day purposes.

A communication was received from L. V. F. Randolph, Lawrence Myers Charles Hyde, J. T. Osmon, and others, presidents of the several companies applying to extend the electric street railway out East Front street, and announcing their readiness to assist by all lawful means in their power.

Ordinances establishing the grade on North avenue and East Third street were adopted on third reading and final passage.

The Council adjourned to meet again Monday evening, May 11, at 8 o'clock, in spite of the indignant prot st of Mr. Ginna, who asked why a month long Council meetings were held, and who said that never before in Plainfield's history had there been so many Council meetings, and yet the present Council was still accomplishing any more than its predecessors. We might—he added—just as well keep in continual session until the end. The vote for an adjourned meeting was 6 to 5, Councilmen Ackerman, Ginna, Johnston, Rose and Sen voting no.

L. S. Pierson & Co. call attention to their large assortment of carpets, which special prices prevail as an aid to sales. This event is one of the most important in the store's annals, and has achieved great success, due to the offering of the most seasonable kinds of merchandise at prices that will command attention. The latest importations of unobtainable in this country has not yet been received, and the purchasing and leasing of the entire stock of carpets, rugs, etc., at present questions will allow the attendance of various departments and room for the accommodation of new lines. Pending the completion of the above improvements our readers will not find a Newark visit to be often.

MISFORTUNATE MISS MAYER.

Her Second Groom to be Changed His Mind at the Very Moment of Her Second Marriage.

[From the Passaic Press of May 2.]

The latest sensational version of Miss Addie Mayer, daughter of ex-Councilman and ex-Fire Commissioner Clifford Mayer, of this city, has proven even more unfortunate than the first. Everybody remembers her marriage to Edward A. Vandervoort, the broker, shortly after her graduation from Miss Kenyon's Seminary. It was a brilliant affair, the groom was a handsome fellow and making plenty of money, and, consequently, the bride was more or less envied. But Vandervoort got in trouble, his income ceased, and so that clever lawyer Richard V. Lindabury procured a divorce for the young lady.

Then she turned her affections and married Mr. "Ike Addie Mayer" on them, and plunged into society again. Rumors of her engagement to divers men of wealth have since floated about, but finally the news of her having been married last month to a New York jeweler by the name of Kelm. But it seems that she was not destined to be married. A New York paper tells the story in this way:

The doors of the Church of the Holy Trinity, Madison avenue and Forty-second street, were swung open at half-past one o'clock on the afternoon of Wednesday, April 15, for a wedding was to take place a half hour later.

The ushers and guests were to be John R. Kelm, of No. 314 West Thirty-fourth street, and Miss Addie Mayer, the woman to whom he gave his heart last June. Reaton McCallister was busily engaged arranging the preliminaries, while in his study the Rev. R. Walpole Warren, the pastor, stood in surplice awaiting the moments to come forth and perform the ceremonies. Slowly the hands of the clock approached the hour of two, and finally they made the bell-ringer the appointed hour.

Rector Warren is exceedingly prompt himself, and when the minute hand had passed the hour he became restless. He felt the necessity for further waiting was absurdly ended, for there came a messenger who brought with him a letter. It was said the messenger was a boy disguised, as the bridegroom was sick. Dr. Warren doffed his surplice and retired to the rectory; the sexton closed the church doors and departed for his home.

There was another scene in West Forty-seventh street, the winter home of Miss Mayer, the promised bride. Throughout the house there was the scent of roses. Mrs. Mayer, in her bridal dress, awaited the coming of the man she loved. Only the night before they had called and planned of the future. Everything in life looked bright to them. There was not a cloud on the horizon of their love. They were to go to Europe for their honeymoon, the railroad tickets were in her reticule, and within an hour they were to be on their way to the balmy South—Nassau and Cuba—to be joined together for life.

BUT NOT HER LOVER.

It was within half an hour of the time appointed for the wedding. The groom had not appeared. The bride, nervously looking at her gold watch, could not tell as to what detained her lover. Impatiently she listened for the approach of a carriage. She listened and listened and the minutes sped on. It was almost six o'clock, when the sound of wheels was heard. At last he was coming. There was a flutter among the guests. Miss Mayer heard the door bell ring, and with the impetuousness of love and forgetting all about her sweetheart ran to welcome him. But, instead of her lover, she met—Fred White, her intended husband's "best man."

Miss Mayer, as soon as she had recovered from her surprise and keen disappointment, inquired where Mr Kelm was Mr White, who looked as if he had been called to officiate at a funeral instead of at a wedding, did not answer, but handed her a note.

She knew the chirography well, it was from her intended husband. She tore open the envelope and drew out the paper. There were only a few lines stating that Mr Kelm was ill, and that he would have to remain indoors.

Miss Mayer, suspecting nothing, inquired if her lover was seriously ill if she would not go and nurse him. But Mr. White was strangely reticent. He only said he had been requested to give her the note. That was all. Then he hastily left the house.

The parents of the bride angry at the discourtesy shown their daughter, declared that they would not permit the affair to take place unless they found that Mr. Kelm was really very ill. The carriage that was to take the bridal party to the church was dismissed and the friends who had gathered in the house for the ceremony dispersed. Miss Mayer took off her wedding gown and threw aside the fragrant bouquet that had been given her only a few hours before by the man she had given her heart to The fragrance of the flowers only brought her pain now.

NO EXPLANATION.

It is said that after a violent fit of weeping the girl went to Mr Kelm's house and had a long interview with him She returned home her eyes were red from weeping. The next day the friends of the family were informed that the marriage would not take place. There was no explanation and none has been given out since.

The only excuse Miss Mayer has received from Mr. Kelm was that he found that it was difficult to leave New York. Within fourteen hours he had changed his mind. He promised, it is said, to make an explanation that he trusts will be satisfactory.

MYSTERIOUS MIDNIGHT VISITORS.

They Were Looked for Babbitt, Who Thinks They Meant to Rule the Works.

James Babbitt, night watchman at the pumping station of Plainfield Water Supply Company, says that he thinks the three men who attacked him Thursday night were not Italians, but men who had designs on the company's property.

It was an hour and a half past midnight—he says—when they approached him from the direction of the railroad tracks. They were all armed, and had a kit of tools such as plumbers use. They pretended they wanted a drink of water, and tried to get into the building. Mr. Babbitt at once divined that their purpose was to damage the pumps and machinery. He knew that with the tools they had they could effect great injury to the works in a very short space of time.

When the men found they could not push past the watchman one of them produced a revolver and flourished it in Babbitt's face. Babbitt instantly pulled out his gun also, and fired a shot in the air. At this the three men jumped back, and one of them fired point-blank at the officer's head. Seeing that they meant business, he opened up a hot fire on them, and a fierce combat ensued. Two shots Bullets whistled all about Babbitt's head, and he found himself between the two fires. He threw himself to the ground, and the bullets passed harmlessly over him. The officer's outranking gun was so close that the men beat a hasty retreat. One of them fell over a log crying "I'm hit!", but soon joined the others, who jumped back, and followed his companions away in the darkness.

Mr. Babbitt said that he had never been under quite as hot a fire before, but he kept his nerve, and does not think the fellows will molest him again.

JOHN W. LAING'S HOTEL,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.

For sale, the old established and well known Hotel property, corner of Second and Park streets, Plainfield, N. J., directly opposite the Depot. Will be sold very cheap for cash. Apply to the undersigned on the premises, or address JOHN W. LAING, Plainfield, N. J.

WASHINGTONVILLE.

Archibald Coddington, an old and respected resident of Washingtonville, died again, with the grip, to which he is slowly succumbing. He has taken no solid nourishment for nearly two weeks. But little hope is held out for his recovery.

Mrs. Henry Burnett is again confined to her room by a serious indisposition. Her recovery is doubtful.

Theodore Zellar has sold his father's farm to Mr. Wilson, who has had enough of Wisconsin farming and has returned to the East again. He says New Jersey is good enough for him. The price paid for the farm was $9,500.

E.

The Ladies Elect New Officers.

The annual meeting for the election of officers of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of the Trinity Reformed church, took place in the church Tuesday afternoon, and resulted as follows. The President, Secretary and Treasurer, were elected:

President—Mrs. Charles P. Legrete.
First Vice President—Mrs. Robert A. Meeker.
Second " —Mrs. A. M. Gilliam.
Third " —Mrs. E. R. Bird.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. Wilson G. S. Lee.
Secretary—Mrs. C. Frank French.

The society has closed a very successful year, and its unanimous point to even greater results the coming season. Interesting and gratifying reports were read by both Secretary and Treasurer.

Land to Rent By Louise Rands.

At the funeral of the late S. O. Dosne, Tuesday afternoon, the Trinity church was thronged to its fullest capacity. On the casket containing the remains of the deceased was a handsome pillow with the word "Papa," immortelles, together with a bunch of beautiful lilies and other cut flowers. The Rev. Dr. J. L. Hurlbut offered prayer, and the Rev. C. S. Mitchell preached a brief sermon, eulogizing and holding up as an example the Christian character and upright living of the departed. He dilated on the death of the Saviour, and unto that spoken of in Job vi: 26—"Thou shalt come to thy grave in a full age, like as a shock of corn cometh in in season." Dr. Hurlbut also spoke beautifully. The singing, which was tender by sweet and touching, was by a choir composed of Morris VanArsdale, Arthur Freeman, R. C. Runyon and George Stevens. The selections were "Jesus, Pilot Me" and "Abide With Me." Interment of the remains was made in the Methodist Episcopal cemetery. The pall-bearers were four sons and two grandsons of the deceased.

Episcopal Clergy Rest.

A large gathering of clergy and laity assembled at Grace church, Tuesday, and opened the 107th annual convention of the Episcopal church of the Diocese of New Jersey.

The proceedings were opened by a celebration of the Holy Communion, the Rt. Rev. John Scarborough, D. D., celebrant, assisted by Rural Dean Barker of Princeton, and Dr. E. M. Bodman.

After the service the convention organized for business, the Bishop reading his annual address, giving an interesting account of the progress of the church in his diocese, especially as a missionary body.

The usual recess was taken at noon, when the convention adjourned for luncheon, which was brought in from the adjoining parish house in magnificent style, in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church.

After the luncheon the afternoon business session was held, and the foundation of the new Grace church was laid, all the clergy being present, together with the surpliced choirs of Grace church and St. Mary the Virgin, New York, who sang at the morning service.

The Rev. R. G. Moses, rector of Grace church at Merchantville, N. J., preached a sermon to the convention.

This morning Early Celebration was held at 7:30, and morning prayer at 9. After the minor routine business luncheon was served.

To-morrow, Ascension Day, there will be Early Celebration held at 7:30, and morning prayer and second celebration at 10:30.

The chaplain for Congress seems to pray hard enough, but still he does no good; and so with the U. S. Senate. Congress has never failed to cure the most stubborn cough or cold.

When ladies wish to conceal a suppressed complaint; when there is no reason for the existence of it, and when life itself seems to be a calamity; and when all this is traceable to a weak or unhealthy condition in the female organism, what device has a woman to resort to?

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S Vegetable Compound

cures all those peculiar weaknesses and affections of women, all organic derangements of the Uterus or Womb, and Kidney Troubles, Backache, Nervous Prostration, Sick Headache, Indigestion, Weak Back, Debility, Nervous Prostration, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. Every Druggist sells it as a standard article, or sent by mail, in the form of Pills or Lozenges, on receipt of $1.00.

Send for pamphlet, "Guide to Health and Etiquette," to Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

The Great Clairvoyant,
Mrs. Dr. EDWARDS,
Has returned to Plainfield for
TWO WEEKS ONLY.
Until May 13, at the City Hotel, Room 2, was Flight Up.
Hours from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m.
TERMS—Ladies, 50c. and $1. Gentlemen, $1.

McGregor & Co.,
850 and 852 Broad St
NEWARK, N. J.

NOTICE. PARK HOTEL, PARK PLACE, 1891.

Estate of Hugo Weigand, deceased.

Pursuant to the order of George V. Barrow, Surrogate of the county of Union, on the application of the undersigned, as executor of said deceased, notice is hereby given to all persons having claims against the said deceased to exhibit to the subscriber under oath or affirmation, within nine months from the date hereof, all such claims, and that if any such claims shall not be exhibited as aforesaid within the time aforesaid, they will be forever barred of any benefit of the said estate.

Dated this 30th day of April, A. D. 1891.

HUGO WEIGAND, Executor.
Samuel Kalisch, Solicitor. 4 7 $7 Law

SHERIFF'S SALE.—In CHANCERY OF New Jersey between Elmira C. Deats and Hiram Deats, Plaintiff, and Jacob Deats and others, Defendants. Fieri facias to me directed, and Peaster Sheridan, Executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and others, Defendants. By virtue of said writ of fieri facias to me directed, I shall expose for sale by public vendue or outcry, at the Court House, in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union, on at one o'clock in the afternoon of said day, all those lots of parcels of land and premises hereinafter described, situate, lying and being in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union, and State of New Jersey.

WEDNESDAY, THE TENTH DAY OF JUNE, A. D., 1891,

First Tract—Beginning at a stone in the middle of Park street, in the city of Plainfield, formerly known as Somerset street, now called Park street, in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union, and State of New Jersey, at the corner of land formerly belonging to Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (1) along the middle of said Park street, south fifty degrees west two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (2) along the middle of said Park street, south forty degrees west two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (3) along the middle of said Park street, south thirty degrees west two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (4) along the middle of said Park street, south twenty degrees west two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (5) along the middle of said Park street, south ten degrees west two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (6) along the middle of said Park street, south ten degrees east two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (7) along the middle of said Park street, south thirty degrees east two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (8) along the middle of said Park street, south fifty degrees east two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (9) along the middle of said Park street, south sixty degrees east two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (10) along the middle of said Park street, south seventy degrees east two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (11) along the middle of said Park street, south eighty degrees east two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (12) along the middle of said Park street, north eighty-nine degrees east two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (13) along the middle of said Park street, north eighty degrees east two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (14) along the middle of said Park street, north seventy degrees east two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (15) along the middle of said Park street, north sixty degrees east two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (16) along the middle of said Park street, north fifty degrees east two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (17) along the middle of said Park street, north forty degrees east two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (18) along the middle of said Park street, north thirty degrees east two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (19) along the middle of said Park street, north twenty degrees east two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (20) along the middle of said Park street, north ten degrees east two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (21) along the middle of said Park street, north ten degrees west two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (22) along the middle of said Park street, north thirty degrees west two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (23) along the middle of said Park street, north forty degrees west two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (24) along the middle of said Park street, north fifty degrees west two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (25) along the middle of said Park street, north sixty degrees west two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (26) along the middle of said Park street, north seventy degrees west two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (27) along the middle of said Park street, north eighty degrees west two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (28) along the middle of said Park street, north eighty-nine degrees west two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (29) along the middle of said Park street, north eighty degrees west two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (30) along the middle of said Park street, north seventy degrees west two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (31) along the middle of said Park street, north sixty degrees west two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (32) along the middle of said Park street, north fifty degrees west two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (33) along the middle of said Park street, north forty degrees west two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (34) along the middle of said Park street, north thirty degrees west two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (35) along the middle of said Park street, north twenty degrees west two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (36) along the middle of said Park street, north ten degrees west two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (37) along the middle of said Park street, north ten degrees east two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (38) along the middle of said Park street, north thirty degrees east two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (39) along the middle of said Park street, north forty degrees east two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (40) along the middle of said Park street, north fifty degrees east two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan, executor of Jacob Deats, deceased, and running thence (41) along the middle of said Park street, north sixty degrees east two chains and seventy-five links to a stone and corner of land formerly belonging to the said Jacob Deats, deceased, and now belonging to Peaster Sheridan,

CITY DEPARTMENT

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY OF UNION

J. A. DEMAREST, - - City Editor.

—The annual meeting for the election of officers of the Y. M. C. A., will be held Thursday, May 14.

—An important change of time-table, with the fall summer schedule, will be announced by the Jersey Central this week to take effect May 10.

—Justice Hope of the Bryant school says that the reason the Russ are all so fighting every clear day is because such constant use soon wears them out.

—Mayor Gilbert last Thursday tried his hand at holding court and sent Jim Hallahan to jail for 30 days. The charge was drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

—Nineteen columns of advertising in THE PRESS again, Monday. It has now become an almost universal rule of the people's, if you don't see it advertised in THE PRESS, don't buy it.

—By a recent serious fire at Alfred Centre, N. Y., Clarence Titsworth, of East Fifth street, and other Plainfield students at Alfred University, were burned out of their boarding house.

—Two years ago Justice L. F. Whitworth lost a valuable seal ring on which was engraved his family crest. Friday it was dug up by a gardener at work on ex-Councilman Reguelin's place.

—James H. Carson, of North Plainfield, is now a graduate machinist, having finished his trade at the Scott printing machine works, Thursday. He will continue in the employ of the company as one of its most capable workmen.

—The Bible used by the Hon. Wm. Paterson, Special Master in the Court of Chancery, at his office on Broad street, Newark, is 135 years old, and formerly belonged to John Brown, "the last time Chief Justice of the Bahama Islands."

—Since Bound Brook became a borough it is developing a decided boom. Just now the Councilmen are planning to have County Engineer Wm. A. Dunlap of Plainfield grade the street's and lay out one of the systems of beautiful highways for which he is noted.

—The Apollo Quartette, consisting of J. C. Martin, E. C. Searing, Charles Parlee and E. M. Southard, rendered several songs at the anniversary celebration of American Lodge Friday evening and were repeatedly encored. John Carney, the humorist, was another favorite of the evening, and Miss Josie Sullivan, of Bound Brook, rendered several charming solos.

—The Frank A. Robbins great "wild west hippodrome and unparalleled athletic exhibition" is announced to exhibit in Plainfield this Thursday afternoon and evening, May 7. The combination comprises equestrians, Indians, mules, mules, cowboys, cowgirls, bucking broncos and donkeys, athletes, gymnasts, jugglers, boxers, fencers, funny, funny fellows and many other attractions, and is said to present the best and most varied of all tented amusements.

"Sale" Gets the Prize.

At the second and last day's sale of Jersey cattle, April 29, at the American Institute, N. Y., Nathan Robbins, of Metuchen, sold his Prince of Pine for $300; Danville Peden, $220, Stampedro and Young Pedro's Darling $80 each, and Daisy Pedro $60. He won the handsome gold watch and chain which was offered as a prize to the breeder whose sales of five cattle showed the highest average price. His average for the cattle sale was $196.

It Depends Upon How You Figure.

The question now agitating the minds of the commercial community here is: Is it worth forty cents and a long walk to see the threecents play ball. The first annual game of the season, when the season will be regularly opened,—Central Press.

The Crescent ball team managers say that with so expensive a nine, and the cost of new grounds, etc., this season, they cannot "afford" to play for less than twenty-five cents admission, but they must have a queer way of figuring. Two hundred people at 25 cents is $50. Six hundred people at 15 cents is $90. Such a fact is that they can't afford to play ball at 25 cents admission, but can at 15 cents.

Bound Brook's Loss.

The news was received in this city last evening of the sudden death of George R. Gaddis, proprietor of Hotel Gaddis at Bound Brook, after an illness of five days from pneumonia. Mr. Gaddis has a host of many warm friends in this vicinity, who will learn with deep regret of his sudden demise. Deceased was a member of Eastern Star Lodge, No. 105, F. & A. M., of Bound Brook, and also of Somerset Lodge, No. 56, K. of P., of the same town. He was also a Chapter mason. He was one of Bound Brook's most prominent and respected citizens, and had held offices of trust in the village. A widow and one son survive him. Genial, honest and generous, his loss will be sadly felt by a host of friends.

Business and Road Plan.

One of the most annoying features of bicycle riding on country roads is the farmer's dog that has been allowed to run after vehicles on the road all his life, to the serious annoyance of travelers. A team can pass such a dog without much trouble, but when a safety bicycle comes at top speed it is altered entirely. A rider is liable to be thrown over the handlebar, bicycle and all, or a wagon to go by unnoticed if he can but get a bicycler.

Some bicyclers can avoid dogs while others even use the whip, or have to resort to stones or carry a revolver. Some riders have an ingeniously arranged box on their handle bar which at a touch opens and displays a fiery charge. A more effective weapon agai nst the attacks of dogs and one less dangerous than the revolver is the ammonia bulb, which has just come into the season. The device consists of an ordinary hollow rubber ball filled with ammonia and provided with an atomizer at the nozzle. When a dog comes bounding up to a machine, the ball is aimed at his eye, and a spray of the thumb sends a spray of the liquid that will satisfy him.—Somerville Unionite Gazette.

Sudden Death of a Prominent Man.

Ex-Senator Augustus C. Canfield died suddenly Tuesday night at his home at Succasunna, Morris county. He was fifty years old. He was a graduate of Princeton College, and studied law in the office of Attorney-General Jacob Vanatta. He practiced law a few years, and then gave his attention to the care of his extensive mining interests. His father was Frederick Canfield, nephew of Gen. Mahlon Dickerson, Governor of New Jersey from 1815 to 1817, and Secretary of the Navy under President Johnson.

Senator Canfield was elected to the Legislature in 1871, 1872 and 1879, and it was largely owing to his energy in the Senate that the General Railroad law was passed. From 1877 to 1880 he was State Senator. He retired from politics when his term expired.

His death leaves a vacancy in the Fairmount Railroad Company, of which he was Secretary and Treasurer. Among mineralogists he was known as the possessor of the finest collection of minerals in the United States. Deceased had many warm friends in this city who will mourn his loss.

A Blind Boy Learns a Useful Trade.

In its news from Dunellen the Bound Brook Chronicle says: "Percy Cannon, brother of the late Willie Cannon, who died from the effects of the Prospect avenue, crossing some time ago, has graduated with honors from the institute for the Blind in New York city and has returned to the home of his parents at the Eight Row. The Institute before his departure presented him with a beautiful set of instruments for tuning pianos, and he hopes soon to be able to make his living at that employment."

It is false! No institution is so good as to escape criticism. Among the most unjust criticisms of the present age are those published against Hires's Root Beer Package made by the Charles E. Hires Co., Philadelphia.

STOPPED AGAIN.

The Court did not Prohibit the City From Interfering With the Water Company's Laying Pipes on East Second Street.

When the Plainfield Water Supply Company commenced digging up Leland avenue, it was inevitable that there would be more trouble in the much contested controversy between the City and the Corporation Counsel was absent from the city at the time, but upon his return found a letter from the counsel of the Water Company, stating that on Wednesday of North avenue by the city interference with the company's laying pipes along that avenue, he had directed the contractors to lay pipes to Cedar Brook by way of Leland avenue, South and Belvidere avenues and Broadway.

The company understood, he said, that the order of the Judge prohibited the city from interfering with the company east of Cedar Brook.

The city realized this interpretation of the Judge's order and held that it referred to the direct route from the company's works to Cedar Brook on North avenue. Counsel for both sides were heard at Trenton, Thursday, before the Judge who granted the order.

The following telegram from Judge Van Syckel states the result:

Trenton, N. J., April 30, 1891.

Craig A. Marsh,

Plainfield, N. J.

You are right, H. VAN SYCKEL.

The company say that they do not regret having made the move, even though the Court ruled favorably to the city. The city can take the view that these additionies will hasten a decision on the main question. Both sides are anxious to have the case decided, and it is believed that the judges may announce their decision next week. Whatever that decision may be, one thing is certain, Mayor Gilbert has done his whole duty in rigidly enforcing the ordinance as he found it on the books so far as he could without being guilty of contempt of court. He believes, and the Council are with him, that the sooner the entire settle what the rights are of the city and the Water Company, respectively, are, the better for all concerned.

OBITUARY.

Abraham Coles.

At the office of Dr. Coles's son, 222 Market street, Newark, it was learned, Tuesday afternoon, that a dispatch had been received by Warren Ackerman, Dr. Coles's brother-in-law, announcing the sudden death, in California, of the venerable Dr. Abraham Coles, whose Union county boy hood knows and best loved citizens.

Dr. Coles and his son were members of the Pennsylvania Railroad excursion party that left Newark April 16 for a six weeks' excursion to California. The party had been visiting the various points of interest in Southern California since April 21, and were expected to leave for the East May 14, arriving in Newark the 26th. Dr. Coles was, so far as is known, in good health when he left his home at South Plains for Newark three weeks ago, but was seized with an attack of grip while traveling, and consequent complications resulted in his death at Monterey, Cal., Sunday. Dr. Coles was one of the oldest and most eminent physicians in New Jersey, and was a very well known literary character. His home at South Plains was the resort of many cultured literary and professional people.

Dr. Coles was a native Jerseyman. He was born at South Plains, December 26, 1813. His father was Denis Coles, a printer and publisher well known in his day, and a man of rare literary taste and judgment. Like his father, in the early years of his life Abraham turned his attention to literary pursuits, and he was the author of various works in literature, medicine and science. His first employment as a young man was in mercantile life, and he entered, as a clerk, a dry goods store. Two years of such life were sufficient to prove to him that there was other and more congenial work for him to do. He applied himself diligently to his studies, and at the age of 19 was made teacher of Latin and mathematics in a private school at Plainfield. Here he continued his studies, and turned his attention more particularly to the law, and a few years later he entered as a student in the office of Joseph C. Hornblower, who was afterwards Chief Justice of this State.

In early life Dr. Coles had shown great interest in science, and in connection with his law studies, pursued a course which gave his taste for scientific knowledge. He gave up his position in the law office to go to the University of Pennsylvania, where his time to the study of medicine, graduating in 1835. He returned to his home at South Plains, and in 1836 settled in Newark, where, by his ability, energy, he soon established an extensive and lucrative practice. He made for him all a wide reputation as a skillful physician and surgeon. In 1842 Dr. Coles married Caroline E., daughter of Jonathan G. Ackerman, of New Brunswick. Five years later Mrs. Coles died, leaving one son and one daughter, who are still living. During the following year Dr. Coles visited Europe. He was in Paris at the time of the revolution of 1848, and did excellent service as surgeon in the hospitals of the French capital. He returned to Newark the following year, and continued his practice there until 1854, when he paid a second visit to Europe, remaining about seventeen months. When he returned, Dr. Coles became associated with his Dr. Bethuel L. Dod, a former pupil, and although he still engaged actively in his profession he was less active, devoting more time to literary pursuits. Dr. Coles had always shown great interest in educational matters, and especially in the public school system, and was for many years a member of the Board of Education in Newark. He was also a trustee of the Newark Academy and a director of the Newark Library Association and the University. He delivered an address before the degree of Ph. D., and in 1871 Princeton C. I. legge conferred on him the degree of LL. D. Dr. Coles's literary work was voluminous and erudite. His love of the classics was very strong, and his best of mind led him to the Greek, Latin and Oriental literature as a student and explorer. He wrought very faithfully in Hebrew, and his metrical versions of the Psalms were highly commended as well as many prose transcriptions. He translated and printed, in 1847, his own version of the famous Latin hymn, "Dies Irae," and in 1869 he published this in another volume, with twelve other versions by other hands, under the title of "Dies Irae, in Thirteen Original Versions". In 1866, he printed "The Metronomicon," a physiological poem, originally delivered before the New Jersey Medical society, of which he was then President. In 1867 he had published the first part of "The Evangel", which was the Life of our Lord in verse, with texts and notes, 4to, in 1881, he put forth a volume which, under the title of "The Microcosm and Other Poems", included all of his more important translations and original poems up to that date. His "Latin Hymns" appeared in 1869, and his "Light of the World" in 1884. His versified edition of the Psalms of David was published in 1889.

The deceased's widow is an aunt of Councilman Ernest R. Ackerman, of West Second street.

After suffering for years with the worst form of Dyspepsia, such as bloating, distress, sour stomach, heart burn, etc., I came across Dr. Boone's Dyspepsia Pills, Gold them on difficult 100 months, and still continuing, find great relief. Would not be without them for ten times their cost. Sold by druggists. Send for testimonials. Dr. JAMES HENDERSON, Hoffman and Broadway, 120 Newark avenue, Jersey City.

HELPING THE G. A. R.

Three Thousand Dollars Appropriated for Re-modeling the Armory.

At the regular May meeting of the Borough Council North Plainfield, Friday evening, Mayor Place and all the Councilmen were present. The public meeting was short—not only routine business was transacted.

A communication was received and filed from Dr. J. H. Carmen, Secretary of the Board of Health, stating that the board would want an appropriation of $250 for its work this year.

A petition was received at the joint tion of Grove street and Park place was referred to the Street Committee.

Wm. Newman was made a member of Warren Ex. ine Company No. 1.

Dr. J. H. Cooley wrote that his work as a se sor would be greatly facilitated on Westervelt avenue if the houses on that thoroughfare were numbered. The Street Committee were given power in the matter.

A letter was read from the Joint Detail of Grand Army Post 73 and 102, requesting an appropriation for Memorial Day The sum of $25 was unanimously voted.

Chas. Gallagher, Jr., gave up and presented a petition for the location of the Edison Electric Light Company of North Plainfield, wrote that the company's charter f ll ting the engine and boilers, could be made in the capital. 1 cent per hour for each lamp of 16-candle power.

Bids were opened for furnishing crushed stone to the borough A. I. Smalley's prices for the four sizes were $1, $1 10, $1.15, and $1 20, delivered, or 20c per ton less delivered at the crusher. Alfred C. Johnson's prices were .60, .75, .75 and .75 at the crusher, but he said he couldn't get his crusher to working order before June 1, and the borough wanted delivery begun immediately. Jasper H. Wilson's prices were .85, .95, .97½ and $1 05 at the crusher, or 20 cents per ton higher for delivering. Christopher Weil's prices were .60 per ton put in a bid for carting at 17 cents per ton. By resolution of Councilman Buckle A. I. Smalley's bid was accepted as the lowest.

Councilman Smalley reported for the Committee on Licenses and Markets that the matter of choosing a marshal was not yet settled, but that progress was being made. This report was taken as evidence that Mr. Smalley had consented to serve as Chairman of the Committee on Licenses, and that the list of standing committees appointed by Mayor Place at the previous meeting was not to be changed at present.

By resolution of Councilmen Buckle the Street Committee were authorized to order flagging for Greenwood avenue, to cost not to exceed 25 cents per load.

The petition to macadamize Grandview avenue from Somerset street to Watchung avenue was granted, and by unanimous vote on Mr. Buckle's resolution work was ordered begun as soon as possible. The city will be asked to appropriate $1,600 feet. The citizens contribute $355 towards the cost.

A resolution was adopted that all sub-contracts to macadamize the streets must be paid over to the Mayor and Council before work can be begun on the streets.

A bid from George C. Folhemus was read, stating that he would wire the borough buildings for 11 electric lights at a cost of $30. The matter was referred to the Committee on Fire, Water and Lamp.

The Council then went into executive session, and all spectators left the room. Final adjournment was made to Monday evening, May 11, when the selection of a borough marshal will be considered.

Will Proceed Against Schorb for Selling to a Minor.

Walter Martin, of West Fourth street, was arrested Friday for making a disturbance on Central avenue near Reform Hall. Next morning he told Judge Codington that he was intoxicated at the time, and Schorb Sentenced to Jail in the Future. Sentence was suspended.

When the court found out that Martin was only 18 years of age, it determined to proceed against the saloon keeper for selling liquor to a minor in violation of the law. Martin said Schorb had let him drink, and had he got it there whenever he wanted.

Somerset's Sheriff Stops Work Saturdays.

A point has been raised that, under the Saturday half-holiday law, county clerks and surrogates cannot legally file papers after noon Saturdays. It is said that Sheriff Voorhees, Chancellor McGill declines to receive any business pertaining to his office after the time specified, but the Surrogate thinks he has been advised that, while there is a doubt whether the new law covers their offices, it would be well for them to follow the example set by the Chancellor and await future developments through the courts. The Somerset county officers are now closed Saturdays at noon. On the dinner table, and whom no trace could be found.

The Epworth League.

The Epworth League held its regular meeting in Vincent chapel, Friday night, at which the annual election of officers took place:

President—Rev. Chas. H. Mitchell.
First Vice President—Geo. M. Rittenhouse.
Corresponding Secretary Work—Miss K. O. Kastler, Miss Emma F. Brown, Miss Minnie Sharp.
Second Vice President—James R. Joy.
Literary Work and Press—Charles E. Scudder, Miss Ida Angleman, Miss Susie Emerson.
Third Vice President—George R. Cornwall.
Committee on Social Work—Miss Alice Barnes, Miss Mary Pancoast, Harry Jenkins.
Secretary—Arthur E. Crowe.
Treasurer—Charles Sherman.

All members of the League, who ride a wheel are invited to join in an "Epworth League" Bicycle Run on Saturday, May 9. Meet in front of the M. E. church at 2 p. m.

Night Keep Split His Skull.

A young man was driving through East Front street in a sulky at 6:15 Thursday night, when a portion of his horse's harness broke. Dismounting to repair it, he had a bystander hold the horse by the bridle. He still, however, kept hold of the reins himself. Suddenly the horse gave a start, and broke away from the man at his head. The driver was dragged along while the horse plunged headlong towards the big planing-mills windows of Gavett's store. The young man was thrown against an iron post, letting go the reins just in time to save himself from having his head split open by the shock, and shielding himself with his arms. The reins then caught in one of the sulky wheels in such a manner as to turn the horse around and bring him to a halt The incident came considerable excitement.

Recently Registered Here.

The following are the latest arrivals at The Alamo:

Miss Walters, Miss Anna Ida Walters, Mrs. M. E. Bacon, Mrs. Frank Fromegi, New York city; John H. Sawyer and family, Miss Belle Sawyer, Brooklyn; Mrs. J. J. Whigham, Miss E. Lyall, Pittsburg; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Booth, nurse and two children, Bergen Point, N. J.; S. C. Symonds and wife, Dr. and Mrs. D. C. King, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. M. King, New York city; Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Southard, Miss Southard, Brooklyn; Mrs. D. Fremont, New York city; Miss H. K. Chapman, Plainfield; Wm. Tolland and wife, Brooklyn; J. C. Rogers and wife, New York city; F. C. Hinsdale, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Stanton, nurse and two children, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Arens and two children, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Browne and son, Plainfield; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. A. Dunsmore and child, Mr. A. Seaney, New York city.

OBITUARY.

Samuel Osborne Dome Dead at His Home on East Fourth street, at eight o'clock this morn ing. He had been very ill all Winter, but yesterday was out riding in the morning, and said that he had never felt better in his life. He was taken seriously ill again during the night, and soon died could not save him. He was born in Darlington, Mon mouth, December 17, 1836. He spent most of his life in and about Brooklyn, New York and Jersey City, and came to Plainfield in 1852 and lived in this vicinity ever since. As a builder he built up a large business in Brooklyn, and also in Plainfield. His life was a busy and successful one.

He was married July 16, 1860, to Miss Sarah Bogart, who survives him. His parents also four sons, Theodore O., Chief of the Plainfield Fire Department, John H. J. Harvey, and Charles, and one daughter, Mrs. S. P. Craig of East Fourth street, and Mrs. T. T. Bartrell of South avenue. All the children live in this city.

The deceased was a member and w rden of the Methodist Epi copal church, and was a consistent Christian. He was upright and honorable in all his dealings, and the home circle of his neighborhood will be sadly missed by all the affairs of his daily life.

TWO RUNAWAY BABES.

They Cause a Flutter of Anxiety in Several Happy Homes.

Two tiny daughters of Oscar Pearson, of Steiner place, North Plainfield, took it in their heads to spend a short afternoon calling on their grandmamma, who lives on West Second street. As one is but three years old, and the other only six, they were not very successful in finding the way, and at half-past four o'clock they were the most miserable little tots in the city, for they were utterly lost, and were anxious to go back home. They were roaming up and down West Front street, near Liberty, sobbing as if their hearts would break, when two sympathetic young married women happened along and undertook to pilot them home. This was a few days ago, and they still The infants gave but meagre information in response to the questions as of their good Samaritans. The one said her name was Florence, the other sometimes called herself Mabel and sometimes Eva. The nearest they could set to their surname was "Powers"—and that was far from right. Their mother, however, had not—was simply mamma. They called her t.at, and so did papa. The women who lived next door was just a lady—and she had a nice new parasol. The lady didn't call mamma anything but just had—not Mrs. What, but Mrs. Lady. Papa's name was Oscar, and he petted babies.

So, after drying the tears of the pretty little waifs, the two young women set out on a long search for Oscar who was a nice, kind man. The children insisted in going towards Ecoss—for that, they, s-id, was the direction where they lived—and they cried when taken any other way. As the search proceeded, the two children grew very happy. The six-year-old was very re lent, but the younger (it skipped along joyously and prattled merrily. She kept up a notable talk to her newfound friends, and they highly enjoyed her chatter.

"I won't show no ovens sister lives f—" she exclaimed laughingly, shaking her flaxen ringlets as she do ned along the pavement.—"We is lost, no' oos uns has did to find us. We won't help. We's lots of fun to play lost, 'speshully ven oo is weally lost for dood, an' don't know who oo is, or vere oo lives."

The search was made more difficult by the number of weary street, inquiring at h ses after house, and searching through numberless yards, for none of them could identify the youngsters. After a time the strays began to get tired, and had to be carried in arms. They had a long, weary chase, and had to be carried too, so the two young married women had their hands full.

Near the Evans station a motherly woman who knew every cat in the neighborhood stated positively that the children were not from that part of town, though people all along the road had noticed the young women trying, crying. "Oh, yes; we've often seen them about here; they must live but a few doors be yond." The motherly woman had the children passed to her carriage, and had her boy drive the worn-out women and their charges back to town. The little ones were so tired that they fell asleep in their mothers' arms, and the other lolled for a while on the front seat. By this time it was 5 o'clock, and two disconsolate young husbands were searching anxiously about for two young wives who were strangely absent from the dinner table, and of whom Police Captain Grant very soon found the children's father, when the case was made known to his hand, and the little waifs were t ken away from a very nice supper over which they were prattling happily, surrounded by a group of women who called them little dear and little lamb lings, and were taken to their home, where a tearful and distracted mother clasped them fondly to her breast, overjoyed at their safe return. Their father and the neighbors had been searching for them three hours.

Some time after eight o'clock the two weary young wives reached their respective homes and by their presence restored happiness and tranquility to the hearts and stoves which their absence had saddened, and to the countenances of two worried young husbands reformed the sensationed joyous smile.

Save the Flesh from His Arm.

Wm. Julian, an extensive employer at the Scotch Printing Machine Works, had an arm badly injured in machinery Friday afternoon. A large piece of flesh was torn out of it, and it will require several weeks for healing.

"Ladies Day" at the Bowling Creek.

The bowling green season will be opened at New Germany, only green at Dunellen, this week Saturday, May 9, when the annual dinner of the Middlesex Bowling Green Club will be given, and the election of officers for the coming year will be held. The gentlemen are expected to take their wives to the meeting, and in honor of the presence of the gentler sex the day will be called "ladies day". The ladies will be protected from the sun's rays by a marquee, which will be erected for their accommodation.

"The Plainfield People Understand."

(From The Plainfield Herald.)

Our neighbor the Journal is obliged to have recourse to the Plainfield papers in order to publish Elizabeth news. Had it read the HERALD of Monday it would have seen that the item as to Mr. Ebenezer Lamberg's bicycling experience was from this city and Rahway, which it transferred to its columns from a circular sheet published in Plainfield.—the Union County Leader—and that the information,—was stolen—more politely, conveyed—word for word and letter for letter from the HERALD of Monday last. And too, without any acknowledgement on the part of the Plainfield sheet, who palmed it off on its constituency as its own. The Plainfield people, however, understand the case, and when they want news that is news indeed, they do not go to the Journal, but to the HERALD, the paper that prints it first and best.

AN EXPENSIVE POKER GAME.

Richard Mettle, Said Guilty and Fined $50 for Running a Gambling Den.

A mixed assemblage of waits and colored people gathered in the police station last Thursday morning to know what Judge Codington was going to do with Richard Mettle, who was charged with the offence of keeping a disorderly house. Policemen Kiely and Cooney were the principal witnesses for the city. They said that they had been visiting in Mettle's house at the corner of Spooner avenue and Third street and had listened outside the window. They had heard money being handled, and heard voices "reading" the amount of "the pot". A man coming out of the place had told them, in response to their questions, that there was gambling going on inside, so they had entered the house. There were cards and money on the table, around which were seated Mr. Mettle, a white man named Schlan, and two colored men, a Mr. O'Neill and Leander Brown. Another man lay on the cot-bed, evidently sleeping off an overdose of liquor. When the officers entered Schlan grabbed up the money, and Kiely took it away from him. Mettle tried to get out, but Cooney caught him.

The officers said further that Mettle and the others had admitted to them that they were gambling, but that they had put on the stand admitted that gaming for money had been going on.

The policemen said that Mettle had placed that this was the first time the men had ever been in the house—and had said that he was sorry for it and hoped the Judge would be lenient

Brown had told the officers: "Yes: we were gambling, but let us go this time and we'll never do it again."

O'Neill had said: "I had n't come in when you did there would have been a fight, for I was just going to lamm a man in the jaw for not keeping his promise to set up a round."

Mettle insisted that he was n't in the habit of having card playing going on in his house, and that in this in tance the men had come with the money in their hands, and by the invitation of another. It was only a sociable, friendly game—he added.

Brown said that the poker games were in progress from some time bef re 12 Saturday night t nearly 4 Sunday morning.

Judge Codington said that the court "was determined to break up this kind of business, these games of chance, which were damaging and ruining people. He judged Mettle guilty and fined him $50 "If the fine is n't paid"—he added—"you will go to the county jail for thirty days."

FIREMEN CHOOSE THEIR LEADERS.

Annual Election Among the Various Companies of the Department.

At the annual elections held by the Plainfield Fire Department on Monday last several companies selected officers as follows:

ALERT HOSE CO., NO. 1.

Foreman—J. L. Moore.
First Assistant Foreman—C. C. Barnett.
Second Assistant Foreman—C. P. Leggett.
Secretary—H. M. Demarest.
Treasurer—E. L. Anthony.
Steward—C. J. Fisk.
Representative to Relief Association—J. E. Tuttle.
G. J. Fisk.

ZEPHYR HOOK AND LADDER CO., NO. 1.

Foreman—R. I. Vroom.
First Assistant—H. P. Sharp.
Second Assistant—George Ball.
Recording Secretary—Jos. C. Bilson.
Financial Secretary—C. E. Miller.
Treasurer—Jacob Bilson.
Representative to Executive Committee—Wm. H. Bilson, Geo. Studer, F. B. Fine.
Auditing Committee—F. B. Fine, H. C. Bush.
Representative to Relief Association—Jacob Bilson, F. A. Gilbert.

GAZELLE ENGINE CO., NO. 1.

Foreman—Charles Johnson.
First Assistant—L. L. Blackford.
Second Assistant—William T. Newman.
Secretary—Theodore A. Sohmer.
Assistant Secretary—Charles Love.
Treasurer—Vincent L. Fennac.
Financial Secretary—Emil Schedrecker.
Engineer—John B. Gutze.
First Assistant—John Albert.
Second Assistant—Charles Hock.
Third Assistant—Charles Bellew.
Representative to Relief Association—Joseph A. Hubbard, Lorenzo J. Scicer.

PLAINFIELD ENGINE CO., NO. 2.

Foreman—Edward Mosher.
First Assistant—Garrett Dorlon.
Second Assistant—Robert B. Marsh.
Secretary—William Chamberlain.
Assistant Secretary—Charles W. Smith.
Treasurer—H. L. Rogers.
Engineer—Frank Schuck.
First Assistant—Charles W Smith.
Second Assistant—Charles J. Newman.
Third Assistant—Albert C. Wilson.
Representative to Relief Association—Edward Mosher, Charles W. Tallman.

WARREN HOSE CO., NO. 1.

At the annual meeting of this company held in the bo ough, Monday, the following were elected:

Foreman—George H. Fairchild.
First Assistant—George B. Schiereth.
Second Assistant—George B. Stewart.
Secretary—J. D. S. Anderson.
Treasurer—J. J. Stall.
Engineer—F. Kellogg.
First Assistant—W. V. Kreusen.
Second Assistant—W. T. Newman.
Steward—Charles Sperry.
Relief Committee—One year, H. J. Martin; two years, J. F. Burkle; three years, L. R. Wooston.

I HAVE not used all of the bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for many years, sometimes the unnerving dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and now feel almost entirely cured various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston "Budget." I procured a bottle, and since Dr. Brs. Hopkins and Hall have been treating—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. C. ARNOLD, with the Boston "Budget," formerly with Boston "Journal."

Personal Reminiscences of Distinguished People.

LECTURE

BY

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall,

At the UNITARIAN ROOMS, SECOND PLACE, Plainfield, N. J.,

FRIDAY, MAY 8, 1891,

At 8 o'clock.

TICKETS, Fifty Cents.

For sale at Moy's Pharmacy and at the door.

FUR STORAGE!

For every description

Taken on Storage

And insured against all loss by Moth or Fire, at a small percentage on their value.

Seal Skin Garments

To be re-dyed must be done during the summer months.

Alterations & Repairs

Should be done NOW, to avoid delay in the Fall.

W. H. & R. BURNETT,

17 ACADEMY STREET,

NEWARK, N. J.

SPECIAL OFFER.

75 Cents to January 1, 1892.

EVERY FARMER SHOULD READ

The American Dairyman,

The Oldest Dairy Paper in the World.

It treats on Feeding, Breeding and Care of Cows, Horses, Sheep, Swine, Poultry, Bees, Crops, Soils, Seeds, Fruit, Flowers, Vegetables, Grass, Grain and Where to market them. Illustrated.

Its market reports are absolutely correct.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

Subscription Price, $1 00 per year.

Will be mailed to any address in the United States, Canada or Mexico, from now to January 1, 1892, for 75 cents.

Address J. B. CLARK, Publisher, 7 and 9 Murray street, N. Y.

WANTS AND INFORMATION.

TO RENT—By May 1st, North Plainfield, Warm and Dry House, 7 rooms, bath, etc. Apply at 7 Spring. 9 1t d

MAMMOTH Alteration SALE AT THE NEWARK BEE HIVE.

SPECIAL PRICES IN EVERY DEPARTMENT

L. S. PLAUT & CO.,

BROAD STREET, 707 to 721,

NEWARK, N. J.

Write us for copy of Newark papers giving full details. 5 7 7

POSITIVELY COMING!

In a Blaze of Refulgent Glory!

THE Colossus of Christendom!

THE FRANK A. ROBBINS

STUPENDOUS

NEW SHOWS

INCORPORATED!

The Grand, Broad and Incomparable

WILD WEST

Roman Hippodrome

AND UNPARALLELED

ATHLETIC CONGRESS!

Will Exhibit as

PLAINFIELD

This Afternoon and Evening.

The Fanciful Wild West Exhibition is presented by the entire company of 200 Men and Women, including Tribes of Noted Indians, Cowboys, Mexicans!

INDIANS,

Bucks, Squaws and Papooses.

COWBOYS,

Scouts, Trappers, Hunters, Quaintly Cos Girls, Rough Riders.

MEXICANS!

Vaqueros and Caballeros, Rifle, Shot Guns and Revolvers.

Beautiful Mustangs!

wilder, Prairie Bugs, and Vicious Bucking Broncos, Stampeding Herds of Cattle and Cavalry throwing

2 PERFORMANCES DAILY. Afternoon and Evening.

Admission, 25 Cents.

The Grand Street Parade will start from the Show Grounds at 10 o'clock in the day of exhibition, and proceed through the principal streets of the city. It will be given under the auspices of the Police Department of Union, on Wednesday, the first day of July next.

Dated April 16th, 1891.

WILLIAM C. DUMMERY,
WILLIAM H. DEAS
4 30 w10

NOTICE. NEWARK, MARCH 30TH, 1891.

Estate of Patrick Day, Deceased.

Pursuant to the order of George T. Parrit, Surrogate of the County of Union, this day made, on the application of the undersigned, administrator of said deceased, notice is hereby given to all the creditors of said deceased to exhibit to the subscriber, under oath or affirmation, their claims against the estate of said deceased within nine months from the date of this order, or they will be barred from prosecuting or recovering the same against the subscriber.

JAMES DAY, Administrator.
4 30 6t

DEATHS.

A BOOTH—In this city, April 30, of scarlet fever, Ella Vande-bur, daughter of John and E. V. Allen, aged 4 years.

BAILEY—On Wednesday, April 29, at Platte burgh, N. Y., John W. Bailey in the fifth year of his age.

BELDEN—At her late residence, No. 30 Halsey street, Newark, N. J., Friday, May 1, 1891, Hannah, widow of the late John Belden, and mother of Henry D. Belden, and the late Mathias Anglebert, in her 82d year.

DOANE—In this city, May 3, 1891, Samuel G. Doane, in his 70th year.

STILWORTH—At South Plainfield, May 1, 1891, Mrs. Juliet, widow of the late A. D. Stilworth, in her 80th year.

A. M. RUNYON & SON,

UNDERTAKERS, EMBALMERS,

60 PARK AVENUE.

Telephone Call 49.

RESIDENCE—48 MADISON AVENUE.

Telephone Call 37.

"Office of Hillside Cemetery."

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

IF YOU ARE GOING TO BUY A SUIT,

Or OVERCOAT, or anything in the line of

SPRING CLOTHING,

This season remember, that we are in the business simply and purely.

We propose to do what we know we cannot do, and never did it is to lure you into ulterior schemes, which

All-Wool Suit Every Time,

For a very few hard-earned Collars, that go faster than they come.

Come to and see our stock. And if you buy a suit we pay your car fare both ways.

COLYER & CO., 815 and 817 BROAD STREET,

NEWARK, N. J. 4 15 2maw

MELLIN'S FOOD FOR INFANTS AND INVALIDS.

THE ONLY Perfect Substitute for Mother's Milk. INVALUABLE IN CHRONIC INDIGESTION. A Quickly Assimilated Food for DYSPEPTICS, CONSUMPTIVES, CONVALESCENTS, & PERSONS OF SEDENTARY HABITS. REQUIRING NO COOKING. Sold by all Chemists. SEND for our Pamphlet, "The Care of Infants." Sent free by mail. Mellin's Food Co., Boston, Mass.

Bolton-Goodale Co., BOSTON, MASS.

MULLINS & CO.,

218 and 220 Market Street, NEWARK, N. J.

The largest and most Reliable CASH or CREDIT House in the United States.

EVERYTHING FOR HOUSEKEEPING.

PRICES REDUCED!

Every Article Marked Down to Within a Fraction of Cost. Those who buy of us Cannot Fail to Save Money. We Carry the Largest and Finest Assortment in the World. NOTE OUR PRICES.

FURNITURE.

Parlor Suits, 6 Pieces, Plush,	$30 and up
Bedroom Suits, from the Plain Stained to the Elaborate Mahogany	15 and up
Wardrobes, Oak or without Mirror	10 and up
Folding Beds, large variety	6 and up
Lounges, New and Handsome Patterns	5 and up

Rood and Rattan Furniture, Rockers, Chairs, Tables, Sideboards, Desks, Hatracks, Mirrors, Clocks, Stoves, etc.

BABY CARRIAGES.

We have hundreds of handsome Baby Carriages, which we are selling at Extraordinary Low Prices. Now is the time to secure Bargains.

REFRIGERATORS.

These we believe are the best Improved and best in the market, being Ventilators Ice Savers and Manufacturers' Prices.

CARPETS.

Our Carpets are all New, of the Latest Designs and Superb Colors, from the Best Makers. We Guarantee them in every respect. Parties purchasing from us save fully 25 per cent. Note our prices:

Ingrains, good and serviceable	25c and up per yard.
Tapestries, fine patterns	50c and up per yard.
Body Brussels, fast colors	$1 and up per yard.
Velvets, fine texture	1 and up per yard.
Moquettes, elegant	1 25 and up per yard.
Wiltons, choice	1 25 and up per yd.

A large line of Plain and Fancy China Mattings, new patterns, at 15c. and up per yard. Also a large lot of Rugs, Mats, Shirtsleeves, Oilcloths, etc.

To those desiring CREDIT we give the best Terms at the LOWEST CASH PRICES.

All Goods Guaranteed as Represented.

Open Evenings Until 8; Saturdays, 10 o'clock.

MULLINS & CO.,

218 & 220 MARKET ST.,

NEWARK, N. J. TELEPHONE No. 945. 3 19 to 3

Lumber & Coal LOOMIS & RICE

B'dway 49 Telephone 75 J.

BERNHARD MEYER,

Successor to A. D. Thompson.

Riverside Stock Farm,

AT FIDERNE STATION,

On Central Railroad of New Jersey, will always have for sale a large assortment of Horses of all kin

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

A DRUNKARD'S REFORM.

A demon has traveled beside me
For years that distressed me sore
Through paths of intemperance wandering
Then promised to limit my store;
And with what I suppose in good faith,
And take a more suitable guise,
He laughed at my weakness and folly,
And traveled more close by my side.

He lured me with wild fascination,
And whispered pure things in my ear;
My tongue seemed to lisp of no ramblings
Whereof I felt he was aware.
His presence repelled honest friendship,
Whilst conscience seemed to forbear
Because of his dangerous power
Regarded to be virtue and good.

I dozed of his soothing palaver
Till hope seemed my portion to be—
Till in remorseful relapses
I felt I was willing to die,
And then with a God-given footstone
Discovered, and low as the lowest,
I solemnly vowed, with the demon,
With infinite scorn to part.

He taunted at my guardian angel
Whenever it called me away,
Because he had found that it cost
His touch would command me to stay.
Until I seemed shackled completely
And till he felt sure that my soul
As well as my body was enslaved
Unto him beyond my control.

He sneered when admonishing friendships
Impressed on me honest advice,
And when I'd resist a loved parent's
Last warning and entreaty with zest
With thwarting my efforts to draw him,
His scorn never ceased to be cold.
To clasp my poor wings with a fire drought
That left me unable to fly.

Till once in the depth of my thraldom
I happened a moment to pray
That inspired of pure manhood and right
And kindly direct me away.
When quick to my prayer came the answer:
"Up! fight for redemption at once"
Whilst echoes seemed gladly repeating
"Thou needst assistance, but once."

I instantly fought with the demon
In vowful but brave earnestness,
And prayed to mine from hell,
Until from my lips came the effort
I must his foul clutches wrap.
When my prayer was understood me
And shod on my life a new ray.
—Michael McGovern, in National Labor Tribune.

GINGER DRINKING.

Alarming Prevalence of Ginger Tippling in Society.

The ginger habit has supplemented the liquor habit. It has become a kind of fad in some classes of society. That its dangerous effects upon health are forcing it upon the attention of physicians, while the agitation for high license legislation it is at the same time recommending itself to the attention of temperance people. The ginger habit is worse than the ordinary liquor habit, because it is more rapid in its effects and consists of the ruin to the health of the individual. It has only recently come to the attention of physicians and druggists that in the manufacture of the peppery dose that has borne the popular appearance of innocence and respectability there is a large part of debauchery.

The tincture of ginger, or Jamaica ginger, as it is popularly known, is the strongest and most irritating alcoholic solution in existence. Ginger is a powerful absolute, which is undrinkable, and standing equal to commercial alcohol, which is drinkable, in point of strength. The Jamaica ginger is sold by druggists and grocers in four-ounce vials, and the undrinkable liquor is retailed at one ounce and upward. During the last few months the demand for the article, it is said, by druggists, is growing for a number of years, has become unprecedented. Druggists outside of Jersey City are beginning to "flag" habitual inquirers.

The greatest demand is in those sections that are at a distance from the principal business centers of the city, although Grand, Hudson and Market street druggists themselves have experienced and noted the rapid growth of the habit. Many of the victims of the habit is its prevalence among women.

Dr. W. G. MacConnell said recently: "The tincture of ginger can be bought for about five cents an ounce. It contains fully 90 per cent of alcohol, so that in an ounce of ginger there is more than two ounces of whiskey. The way it is used is astonishing. I used to know a physician, a man prominent in his profession, who died only a short time ago of the effects of ginger drinking. You would think a physician would know better, and he did, but in spite of that fact and previous admonitions of his friends in the profession he used to dally as a beverage, diluting it one-third.

"I was in a drug store only a few days ago when a young girl came in and, buying each time two ounces of ginger. The druggist said she'd been in there before. She knew that he knew her mother and her sisters drank it, but it had never occurred to him that he should refuse to sell it to the girl. I was called not long ago to attend a woman who admitted to me that she was in the habit of drinking sixteen ounces a day. Think what a dose that is. It would have the strength of more than twice that amount of whiskey. It would surprise you to know how many patients afflicted with the ginger habit that physicians of this city are now struggling with.

"The majority of them are women who on ill a few years past would accustomed to sending to the neighboring saloon for beer or whiskey when they wanted it, night or morning or Sunday. One woman told me she began to drink it at the time of the local option fight. The proposition said she'd been in favor of it, but when the saloon was closed

The Constitutionalist,
A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.
M. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE, Editors and Proprietors.
AT PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY.
TERMS—TWO DOLLARS A YEAR.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXIV. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, MAY 14, 1891. No. 20.

"Support the Constitution, which is the consent of the Union, as well in its limitations as in its authorities."—Madison.

Rates of Advertising

Space	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	2 m.	3 m.	6 m.	1 y.
1 in.	$1 00	$1 50	$2 00	$3 00	$5 00	$6 00	$10 00	$15 00
2 in.	1 50	2 00	3 00	5 00	8 00	10 00	15 00	25 00
3 in.	2 00	3 00	4 00	6 00	10 00	12 00	20 00	30 00
4 in.	2 50	3 50	5 00	8 00	12 00	15 00	25 00	40 00
5 in.	3 00	4 00	6 00	10 00	15 00	18 00	30 00	50 00
6 in.	3 50	5 00	7 00	12 00	18 00	20 00	35 00	60 00
7 in.	4 00	6 00	8 00	14 00	20 00	25 00	40 00	70 00
8 in.	4 50	6 50	9 00	15 00	22 00	28 00	45 00	80 00
9 in.	5 00	7 00	10 00	16 00	24 00	30 00	50 00	90 00
10 in.	5 50	8 00	11 00	18 00	26 00	32 00	55 00	100 00
11 in.	6 00	8 50	12 00	19 00	28 00	35 00	60 00	110 00
12 in.	6 50	9 00	13 00	20 00	30 00	38 00	65 00	120 00

All Electric must be solid metal.
"Lists of Everything" column, 5 cts. per line.
Double rate, 10 cts. per ct. Allowance of above none.

SEMI-NEWSY TID-BITS.

A moss for broken down bachelors has been founded in St. Louis.

The discovery of nickel near the village of Picove, in Ontario, has created much excitement.

A NORTHERN Bellamy colony is to be started near Beaver City in No Man's Land. It is expected to number five hundred.

Poison ivy grain has been scattered in the courthouse yard at Sioux City, and it is expected that the English sparrows will eat it and die.

A FUNERAL procession got stuck in the mud at St. Joseph, Mo., the other day, and everybody had to get out and walk excepting the corpse.

The city engineer of Santa Barbara, Cal., has ordered every eucalyptus tree that stands within one hundred feet of a sewer main to be cut down.

L. K. TANNOR, of Pratt Mines, Ala., jumped into a well sixty feet deep. There was not enough water in it to drown him, and he was taken out alive but badly bruised.

A MISSOURI woman in which Susan B. Anthony taught for three years, up in Cataharie, in central New York, has been advertised for sale at auction. It was built in 1802.

A CHATTANOOGA dentist lost a valuable diamond the other day in a curious manner. He was examining the back teeth of a patient, when the ring slipped down the latter's throat. The ring has not yet been recovered.

BERLIN doctors have come to an understanding that hereafter their academician shall wear white hats, so that a doctor's carriage may be always immediately distinguished and the police enabled to summon medical aid on the streets in urgent cases.

A CRAZY spectator in court at Woonsocket, R. I., a few days ago seized some copies of the general statutes and smashed glass panels in Judge Ballou's bookcase and window lights to the extent of thirty-five dollars before he could be seized and locked up.

SHERIFF HAYNES, of Dearborn county, Ind., was awakened by a pull on the doorbell of his residence in Lawrenceburg the other morning, and upon responding to the summons found a note of the prisoners on the outside who had voluntarily returned. Investigation showed that all the prisoners had escaped during the night.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

BERRIE BERRIE is the name of a resident of Beeville, Bee county, Tex.

THERE are one hundred and one fire engineers in the Kentucky penitentiaries.

THE thinnest and at the same time one of the toughest leathers tanned is a frogskin.

STRABO informs us that the invention of bellows is due to the Scythian philosopher Anacharsis, who lived in the time of Solon.

ABOUT the only farm work that cannot now successfully be done by machinery is husking corn. It is still done about the same as of old.

A SMALL company invited to taste the tea recently purchased by a London company at fifty-three dollars a pound arrived at the conclusion that it was worth the money.

ONE of the streets of Palermo is named after President Lincoln. This was done by order of the marquis of Rudini, then a prominent citizen and now mayor of Palermo at the time of Lincoln's assassination.

A FRENCH paper tells of the imperfectional criminals of the country have decorations in India ink tattooed in some secret place on the body between them and the owner and sometimes aid in his identification when he is wanted for a crime.

SCIENCE FOR MECHANICS.

IT has recently been found that certain fungoid growths have the power of removing gold from water containing it in suspension.

WIRE cast and malleable iron are used in the same structure a galvanic action is set up between them, and the malleable iron is corroded.

SEAWEED is now made into a tough paper, which takes the place of window glass. When colored the effect is singular to stained or painted glass.

TO CAPTURE the waste of steam in steam hammers an improvement has been introduced in fitting the hammers with two plates of different diameters, corresponding them, in fact.

GUM arabic, which was once universally used, has become very scarce and dear, and a substitute for it is being made from starch, which is subjected to prolonged roasting at a high temperature to the action of sulphurous acid. The product, after neutralization, is said to be very similar to gum arabic.

A NEW kind of metal is reported from Birmingham, Eng., which is said to be interchangeable with gold and other metals of all kinds when properly applied. Its greatest use will probably be found in the manufacture of engraving, for coating iron and steel for propulsion to prevent rust, painting.

A WATCH for under water has been invented, and one for the United States navy department is in course of construction at Bethlehem, Pa. This experimental guards to be thirty-five feet long, and the projectile is to be thrown five feet in length, containing four hundred pounds of nitroglycerine, one thousand feet through the water.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

JACKSON & CODDINGTON,
Counsellors-at-Law,
Commissioners of Deeds, Masters in Chancery, Notaries Public, Office corner of Park Avenue and Somerset street.

W. V. STEELE,
Counsellor-at-Law,
Master and Examiner in Chancery, Supreme Court Commissioner of Deeds, Office, Park and North Avenue.

G. ROBINSON, DAY,
General Auctioneer,
Sales of Real Property solicited. P. O. Box 1, Dunellen, N. J. Personal attention given to all sales entrusted to me.

DR. CHARLES E. THRIFT,
Dentist,
20 West Front street. A new local anesthetic administered to extract without pain. Gold filling a specialty.—[p-12]

H. HAND,
Auctioneer,
Office, Addison Block, No. 11, Second Floor, R. 2. Sales in any part of Union County promptly attended to. Residence, 11 West Front street, Plainfield, N. J., will receive prompt attention.—[p12]

OSCAR S. TEALE,
Architect,
147 Broadway, New York city, Room 38 and 39. Residence, Queen Anne Building, Second street, Plainfield, N. J.—[p-12]

J. A. FISCHER,
Veterinary Surgeon,
Office in A. C. Sanford's livery stable, corner Main street and Madison avenue, Plainfield, N. J. Day or night calls promptly attended to. Residence, No. 15 Grandview avenue. Specialties, Diseases of the feet and ankle joint. Residence, 79 East Front street.—[p-12]

JOHN CHANDLER,
[LAPERETTES AND SUITABLE,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Residence and shop, No. 36 East 2d St.
Jobbing promptly attended to. apr9

T. J. GILLIES,
Auctioneer & Real Estate Agent.
SALESROOM—Madison Avenue, cor. Front St. Plainfield, N. J.
Goods received on consignment.

TO THE PUBLIC!

We wish to inform our customers and the public generally that we have on hand the best quality of

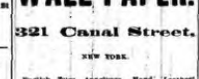
LEHIGH COAL,

Fresh from the Mines.

It is under cover and will positively keep from the weather. We are prepared to deliver it well screened and in good order promptly. We are also prepared to furnish all kinds of Lumber, Lime and Masons' Materials at short notice.

A. D. COOK & BRO.
[apr9]

A. M. SEGUINE,
(Successor to John W. Laing.)
Laing's Hotel Stables



Front street, opposite Madison avenue.
Coaches for Weddings, Funerals and Private Calls. Light carriages of all descriptions for pleasure
RIDING OR LIVERY.
Carefully, safely driven for shopping calls or excursions. Special attention given to boarding horses by the day, week or month.—oct13y1
TELEPHONE CALL NO. 58.

Livery Stables!
Mr. D. S. ROBERTS
Has Removed to His New Building on
NORTH AVENUE,
Adjoining Force's Hotel. Mr. Roberts will always be found ready and able to serve customers in all kinds of first-class livery business. Horses and carriages furnished on reasonable terms. Horses taken to board by the day, week or month. Prompt attention given to Orders

INSURANCE.

FIRE INSURANCE!
The undersigned having an agency for each of the following first-class reliable companies, viz:
Star and Merchants Fire Insurance Co's of the City of New York, are prepared to write insurance against loss or damage by fire on favorable terms. All losses promptly adjusted and paid at this office.
NATHAN HARPER,
Agent.

WILLIAM A. WOODRUFF,
FIRE AND LIFE
INSURANCE AGENT,
Office cor. Front St. and Park Ave.,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Real Estate for Sale & Exchange.
MONEY TO LOAN
On Approved Security.

Alex. Willett,
DEALER IN
BOOTS & SHOES.
No. 7 PARK AVENUE.
A full assortment of Ammunition always on hand. Repairing neatly done. Low Prices.

Geo. A. Moore,
(Of the late firm of Moore Bros.)
Is now the sole proprietor of the old established
NO. 14 NORTH AVENUE,
Where he will offer to the public a complete assortment of Fresh Groceries, Provisions, Flour, Feed, Fruits, Confectionery, Cigars, Close to Station at Grant Avenue. Goods delivered free to any part of the city. Patronage respectfully solicited.

HOTELS AND SALOONS.

FORCE'S HOTEL,
NORTH AVENUE, (NEAR D. L. & W. STATION.)
JAS. M. FORCE, Prop'r.
FIRST CLASS FAMILY HOTEL. Steam Heat. Up-to-date Plumbing.
Thoroughly cleaned and remodeled throughout. 12-25-yr

SOMERSET HOTEL,
(Formerly Albany Sts. North Plainfield, N. J.
RICHARD A. BOYCE, Proprietor.
The newest and most attractive hotel, at fair rates. First-class rooms and meals assured.
Meals at all reasonable hours.

Dime Savings Institution
OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest at the rate of three (3) per cent. per annum compounded quarterly.
JOHN W. MURRAY, President.
WILLIAM WHITE, Vice
NATHAN HARPER,
ELIAS D. POPE, Treasurer.

Jas. M. Dunn,
Dealer in
GROCERIES, PROVISIONS,
Vegetables, Fruits, etc.
No. 36 Park Ave.
OPPOSITE MOSITE AVENUE.

THORBURN & CO'S GARDEN SEEDS, SENT IN THE WORLD.
ALL GOODS DELIVERED FREE OF CHARGE.

ESTABLISHED 1836.
C.E. & J.W. BROWN,
(Successors to C. P. & C. E. Brown & Co.)
Importers, Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
WALL PAPER.
321 Canal Street.
NEW YORK.
English Tints, Anaglypta, Hand, Leather Stamped Flock Papers, &c. Burlaps for Walls.
Manufacturers of Window Shades.
9-18-3f

EDUCATIONAL.

Miss SCRIBNER
AND
Miss NEWTON'S
SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
AND KINDERGARTEN,
27 LaGrande Avenue,
CORNER OF WASHINGTON AVENUE.
Will reopen WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 17, 1890.
The Kindergarten will include Modeling, Drawing and Painting. 9-11

PAINTERS & PAINTERS' SUPPLIES.

Paints, Varnishes, Glass,
WINDOW SHADES AND FIXTURES.
WALL PAPERS!
PAPER HANGING A SPECIALTY.
A. SWALM,
No. 8 North Avenue, Plainfield.

J. S. WORTHINGTON. J. P. MORGAN
Woolston & Buckle,
PAINTERS,
Wall Papers,
PAINTER'S SUPPLIES. 20 NORTH AVENUE

MISCELLANEOUS.

LEWIS B. CODDINGTON,
(Successor to T. J. Carey.)
Furniture and Freight Express!
OFFICE—24 W. FRONT ST.
Large Covered Vans or Trucks. Goods delivered to any part of the U. S. Satisfaction guaranteed. Charges reasonable. P. O. Box 28. Piano moving a specialty. [12m]

Fresh Garden Seeds
AND F RTILIZERS,
Farm and Garden Implements,
Lawn Mowers Refrigerators,
Ice Cream Freezers,
Gasoline Stoves, Hardware, Tools, etc.
J. J. HEIDELOFF,
No. 13 SOMERSET ST. 8-28-tf

CANOPIES
For Weddings, Parties, Etc.,
TO HIRE. CHARGES REASONABLE
Hugo Weigman,
24 EAST FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD, N. J.
[6-13-yr]

SPEER'S
GRAPE WINES,
ALSO
UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.

Used in the principal churches for communion. Revelaur for females, weakly persons and the aged.

Speer's Port Grape Wine,
FOUR YEARS OLD.
THIS Celebrated Wine is the pure juice of the Concord Ripe Grape, raised in Speer's vineyards, and left long until very aged and mellow, rightly called Nature's Medicine. Its invaluable

Tonic and Strengthening Properties are unsurpassed by any other Wine. Being produced under the supervision of the most eminent physicians, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed, and it is recommended by Pastors and Boards of Health who have examined it. The youngest, weakest and most delicate may use it to advantage. It is particularly beneficial to the aged and infirm, and to those who lead sedentary lives. Ask your physician what he thinks of it. Sold by druggists. IF YOUR DRUGGIST DOES NOT KEEP IT, DON'T BE BELIED by his statements, but send to us.

Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice
Is the juice of the Grape grape, preserved in its purity by the use of Salicylic Acid, and is taken by patients of all constitutions, and especially those in a delicate state of health. It is especially pure, free from spirits, and will keep in any climate.

Speer's Sacramental Claret
Is held in high estimation for its richness as a Sacramental Wine. It is especially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Sherry
Is a Wine of superior character, and partakes of the rich flavor of the grape from which it is made.

Speer's P. J. Brandy
Is a PURE distillation of the grape, and stands unrivalled in this country for medical purposes. It is the only brandy recommended by the Board of Health.

ALFRED SPEER,
Passaic, N. J., is over the mark of each bottle.
SOLD BY DRUGGISTS WHO KEEP STRAIGHT CLASS WINES. 6-14-y

TOBACCO, SEGARS, &c.

H. EGGERDING,
No. 17 Park Avenue,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Manufacturer of the Celebrated
C. O. D. CIGAR.
The best cigar in the market for the money. Also manufacturer of HAVANA BRANDS A SPECIALTY.
Also agent for the celebrated Sweets of Pocahontas and Domestic Cigars. Cigarettes and Smokers' Articles in Great Variety.

C. M. FINE,
Dealer in Leaf & Smoking
SEGARS!
No. 8 PARK AVE., (First door north of Second St.)
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Tobaccos of the Best Standard Manufactories, always on hand.
The celebrated "Old Judge" Smoking Tobacco, which I keep constantly on hand.

A. WOLFF,
Manufacturer of
CIGARS,
And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and all other articles used in connection therewith. Store, No. 20 West Front street. Factory, No. 22 West Front, one door east of Madison avenue, and solicits a continuance of the liberal and kind patronage of his friends, and of the public generally. 4-2-yr

CARNEY BROS., Ag'ts,
11 SOMERSET ST.
TINNERS,
PLUMBERS,
GAS FITTERS.
PARLOR STOVES,
COOK STOVES,
HEATERS.
Quotes and Bricks for all kinds of Stoves can be found here at J. Odors' prices. Bring your Tinware mending to us. The best Tinners, the best Plumbers, and the best Gas-Stoves in the market. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction.
Keys of All Kinds are Made Here.
Tinware Made to Order.
Ranges, Brick and Portable Furnaces
SANITARY PLUMBING.

SANITARY PLUMBING,
Brick and Portable Furnaces,
GAS FITTING,
TIN ROOFING,
Etc., Etc.
I am prepared to do any of the above mentioned work in the best manner and at reasonable prices. Having machinery operated by the steam power of my factory, I am able to do work in my line at lower prices than those who do not have the same facilities. Call and see me before giving your orders elsewhere. Shop, No. 4 North Ave. Store, No. 6 North Ave.
D. W. LISTMAN,
No. 4 NORTH AVE. NEW PLAINFIELD, N. J.

WHAT I LIKE.

I like the gentle north wind
That comes with fresh and cool,
When sunshine and showers
Make the flowers grow;
When birds their notes are tuning
Among the leaves of green,
And in the meadows
Oh, that I like always.

I like the spring
When first it falls around,
And silver rays of the moonlight
Shine through the trees;
And perfumes from flower rose
And sweet violet,
Steal on upon the senses
As though the dead arose.

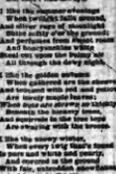
I like the golden autumn
When gathered are the grapes,
And the yellow corn and pumpkin
Are ready made harvest;
The fruits from the orchard,
Brought in the laden cart,
And the merry shouts of children
Are swaying with the heart.

I like the snowy winter,
When sleighing is found
In pure and white and pearly,
And everywhere around;
With fur, ermine and broadcloth
And furs in the air
That make the wintry weather
Seem like summer fair.

But what I like the best, dear,
Is you here by my side,
And hear your voice so cheering
Whene'er I may be;
Then all the world besides
Is nothing to me,
And I have a heart that's happy
And fully and fraught,
And I love you more and more,
Tell all the years are fled.
—Verna V. Chilcoat, in Our Homestead.

TAKING A BOARDER.

A Shrewd Husband's Method of Managing His Wife.



ONE day my wife who, by the way, is the best of housekeepers, visited our friend, Mrs. Hopkins.

Now that estimable lady is being enterprising and thrifty to a remarkable degree, couldn't rest until she induced her husband's friend and myself to take ance of pin money, but must keep a few boarders, or "company" as the called them. So I was to have a private interview of her own to spend as she liked.

Of course she managed to fill my wife's head with all sorts of fine notions about not having to depend on a sometimes forgetful husband for pecuniary aid, and also of making her self-reliant as accounting to him of expenditures and thus be charged with extravagance or ridiculed for investing his money in needless "bargains" so tempting to a woman's soul.

Consequently, when my better half returned nothing must do but that she, too, should go into the boarder business and make money on her own hook, etc., etc.

I argued against it to vain. I showed her there was little or no profit in taking boarders; that it would destroy the privacy and comfort of our home; that it would worry me to death attempting to please people always ready to find fault, and that her present world of wedding cake and gush will by and by, as she was able to accomplish, and often must be.

I told her she would be a slave to strangers, whose smile to get out the while, and whose frown to get in the street in the cold mornings, and that, after all her trouble and expense in getting ready for the season, the small money she made—if any—would actually come from my pocket, for it would cost more to run the house.

I informed her of other singulas females who had started to make their fortunes by lolling at unfaithful boarders, and, after a desperate struggle, but unconsciously fully merited their bankruptcy overwhelmed with debts and themselves too shattered in health and nerves for any sanitarium to cure.

But the dear woman had an answer to every objection I raised and replied triumphantly to Mrs. Hopkins as a knockdown argument against me.

She said I should allow her to develop business talents which might be very useful in case I died; that the profits would be many pretty dress clothes, besides getting so many pretty things for the house and so easy, on account of money that it didn't cost any more to feed six people than five; that she would systematize the work so it would be easier, etc., etc., etc.

When the first started for a parade I knew the end that I would be vanquished no matter how strong and right, and generous were against the boarder business.

But I wanted to put myself on record so, when the proper moment came, I found my self-reliant wife and the profits of superior wisdom and foresight so necessary for a husband to possess.

I also wanted to gain time in hopes that something might turn up to prevent the rash act. I even prayed that the wonderful Mrs. Hopkins would explain an unexpected will or something.

But about the change. Something new is turning up every day. It takes time to test the new inventions and harmonize them with the old established. Before their utility can be determined they must be tried under all the conditions to which they are to be subject. The American sleeping car weighs about forty-two tons, while the English first-class carriage occupying a relative position to our sleeper will average only ten tons. The ordinary passenger or day coach will weigh about ten tons. Handicapped by the weight in cars I think we make even better time than the English railways where the average speed is fifty miles an hour. Now, an American train like the express No. 1 will weigh with six sleepers, baggage cars and the usual number of coaches, fully four hundred tons. A similar train to accommodate the same number of passengers on an English road will weigh but one hundred and seventy-five tons. So the future speed of our trains may be increased after, of course, the roadbed is in first-class condition, almost entirely on the weight of our trains. What we must do to reduce the weight of our cars, and at the same time retain their strength."

"What inventions have been made in this line?"

"There have been quite a number suggested. The steel car is perhaps the most important. Steel cars, however, are not to be in the least surprised to see steel passenger and sleeping cars run on our railroads in the near future. Steel is the material for the future."

"How about the brakes and electric signals?"

"The brakes are very satisfactory, and I see little room for improvement in that direction—but what I have already stated applies to the brake. Everything in the progressive direction is constantly advancing and new ideas are coming to the front every day. I am satisfied that the best automatic signals are very safe as they stand to-day. They never run down, thoroughly tested and not found wanting.

"The train of the future will travel at a much greater rate of speed if conditions I have named prevail in detail. But to get fast trains for the country the railroad corporations will have to lend a helping hand in aiding to obtain grade crossings and permitting road beds either under or over the highways."

CURTIS J. MAY.

THERE IS TIME ENOUGH.

The Busiest People Are Those Who Have the Most Time to Spare.

Busy people always seem to have plenty of time. Their day is only twenty-four hours long, yet out of that twenty-four hours fifteen hundred and forty moments they find space for an astonishing amount of work. They are never afraid to undertake a new thing. They have always a few minutes to give to a friend. They will secure an hour for some congenial occupation. It is to the busy men you go when you want a thing done. It is the busy people who take a part in this new project. Certainly; stale what you would like done, tell how you wish it, and it is in hand a hand. Why, if you no doubt, they will take time to tell you just what you ought to begin and how to begin it. Ans when one piece of work is accomplished they pass to the next with perfect readiness, and a calm confidence in their own ability.

Yes, strange to say, the people who never have time to do anything for those who never have anything to do. They would steal this scheme, take part in that transaction, if they only had a little more time. They would be so glad to pay calls, only they are so frightened to give that help, to learn a language, or to read a book, but they cannot make the time. And while they lament their lack of it, all the time they had is gone, and their plans are still unfinished.

After all, what more time have the busy than the idle? Has not each of us to-day? Has not each of us all the time there is?—Harper's Bazar.

JUST LIKE ONE OF THE FORCE.

Police Sergeant—Well, what has this man been doing?

Officer Gillespie—Impersonatin' an officer, sor. When I found him sittin' chrunk on a lager keg he said he had been elected a alderman at the last shoastrings.—Judge.

Not Passed for Time.

The train ——— made a stopping at the twenty-sixth Avenue and Cherry depot, and solid-looking passenger turned and blandly inquired of the conductor that was the matchbox with the train.

The Conductor (curtly)—If you don't like the way this train runs you can get off and walk.

The Bland Passenger (more affably than ever)—Oh, never mind—I'm in no special hurry.—Texas Siftings.

A Stumbo of Luck.

Doodles—Jake had a tremendous piece of luck.

Noodles—As cow?

Doodles—Why, I met Snyder, and he struck me for a dollar.

Noodles—We?

Doodles—Why, I hadn't a cent. Say, you haven't got five dollars?

Noodles—No. I'm in the same good luck.—Harper's Bazar.

The Power of Circumstances.

Mrs. Peterby—Can you wash?

Matilda Small—Oh course I kin wash, if it hasn't got to be.

"Can you cook?

"If it has to be, oh course I kin cook."

"Are you honest?"

"You bet I'm honest, if I has to be."—Texas Siftings.

A Question of Degree.

Mrs. Bingo—My dear, you are late again, as usual.

Bingo—Yes, darling, I had to stop at the tailor's and order a pair of trousers.

Mrs. Bingo—I suppose (sniff) if you had ordered a bib he would have given you a whole pair of whisky.—Puck.

Left to the Cat Out.

Featherstone—Is this your stated inn?

Little Willie—Yes, but she's sewing up a hole in it and you may have a long time to wait.

"Don't see why?"

"Cause she's a Dress on a mend."

"It does what, there's you said to Mr. Clothier and Furnisher.

Not to Believe.

Pompous Old Boy (to veteran editor)—What would you advise a man to do whose ideas are in advance of the times?

Veteran Editor (promptly)—I would advise him to subscribe for a paper.—Judge.

Not Particular Square.

First Historian—I hear a great deal of fault found with the new courthouse.

Second Historian—Yes, but there appears to be little ground for complaint, as it was certainly built on the square.—Boston Herald.

Partial to Pigs.

Wool—Why are you so sure Hiffkins' pretty will be short lived?

Hall—He's given a birthday residency, and his wife gave him a fountain pen!—Mumsey's Weekly.

A Disturbing Business.

James—Oh, Geraldine, just think how we have understated Mr. Thorley. Why, it seems he has been all over Europe, Cuba, China, Africa and Asia Minor.

Geraldine — Anything remarkable about that?

James—Yes. He's never talked any place to me but Brownsville.—Judge.

DEMI-NEWSY FOREIGN NOTES.

RUSSIAN peasants will be prohibited by law shortly from selling or mortgaging their lands.

A DISPATCH from Zanzibar says the constitution of a treaty with the protectorate signed by which the latter agrees to abolish slavery at Vitu is officially announced.

AN association has been established in London to send colonies of poor Jews to Palestine. Sir Moses Montefiore, of Jerusalem that it is one of the most rapidly growing cities in the world.

GAMBLING at Monte Carlo still flourishes. The capital stock of its great playhouse is six million of dollars, and the stockholders have just received a dividend of thirty-two per cent. for the past year.

A CYCLONIC epidemic has appeared among the natives of Griqualand. If alarmed by any sudden noise, such as a clap of thunder, or the report of a gun, violently, contract their features and stiffen their limbs, jump about and walk like cowboys.

A SENSATION has been caused in the German foreign office by a suit brought by a broker named Jacobsohn against a barrister named Neuern for 9,000 marks' commission for securing Neuern a position in the service. Neuern has been dismissed on account of the scandal.

IN Germany experiments have recently been made with small locomotives for towing heavy boats on canals. Instead, however, of utilizing the power of the locomotive it is attached to a heavy towing car, which is drawn by the locomotive. The plan is said to be satisfactory.

THE Hindoos are about to adopt modern methods of farming. A "Hindoo exercise party" for visiting England, America, China, Japan and the states. "The Hindoo ladies and gentlemen" who are invited to join the party are assured that they will be able to travel without violation of caste rules.

JAPAN had a plethora of epidemics during 1890. Influenza reached her maximum in February, Cholera followed with over 45,000 deaths. Dysentery claimed 23,000 victims, and Typhoid Fever, 18,000 deaths, a ratio of 12 per cent. Typhoid fever conveyed 29,704 deaths, with 4,000 deaths, 68,500 per cent.

LISBON is to have an international exposition in the summer of 1892 for the operations and methods of the fishing industry, the most important means of living and catching supplies, and its products. It will be in the Crystal palace, a structure of about twice the size of Madison Square garden.

A Considerate Wife.

Guesthead broom, modest? Tee-hee! I heard you say that yesterday!

Mrs. Tangle—A soft one, pleese. I always treat my husband as gently as I can.—Lights.

Expected Too Few.

It is well to have things approximate best a man will get take this view when his wife tells him she expected to have a few guests.

WEEKLY CONSTITUTIONALIST.

DAILY PRESS

(Chautauqua Building)

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

EIGHTY MILES AN HOUR.

Chauncey M. Depew Talks About Railroad Travel.

Past Engines Rumored in Steel Cocoons and Bowling Close-Shipped Coaches Will Probably Be Some of the Innovations—Evolution of Abolishing Grade Crossings.

[COPYRIGHT, 1891.]

There will soon be a revolution in the speed of railroad trains in America. The introduction of fast mail trains, more rapid transit in travel, and the great railroad corporations are going to be forced to it. Chauncey M. Depew, while not a believer in fast trains going in the excessive danger in fast running, says that in ten years express trains on American roads will in all probability be sailing an average of sixty-five miles an hour between the big cities.

STEEL COACH AND ENGINE WITH STEEL COVER.

The prediction is made with the expectation of new inventions, a number of which are now under consideration by the Vanderbilt system officials. President Depew does not believe that the safety devices can be improved on to a very great extent and that with faster trains there will be more danger, although many existing deficiencies can be remedied.

"The railroad of the future will be a truly marvelous institution if we keep on 'improving for the next ten years as we have for ten years past," said President Depew. "It will be an enormous growth of the best conditions now existing among the various railroads of the world. Consider the model railroad we must first look after the roadbed. The iron the will some in the course of time it is now than probable, and the bed on which it is laid will be made of stone to hold the earth filling. Wherever there is liability of a washout it will be constructed of solid masonry. By getting the roadbed first of all, in a perfect condition, using stone and iron, in place of timber and rail, we lay the first foundation for greater speed and for greater safety. We consider the roadbeds on the Vanderbilt system A No. 1, but we advance with the times. Curves and grades will be done away with to a great extent and wherever it is possible to do the railroad of the future. To accomplish this, existing routes between stations will be changed and if necessary tunnels cut."

"How about grade crossings as a preventive to speed and safety?"

"Keep to get the perfect roadbed with tracks straight and level the grade crossing is of vital importance. It will have to be abolished, and on the great roads probably will be in the course of a few years more. When the grade crossings are eliminated, Mr. Stuffer laid down his knife and fork, and, after asking what time we had reached, withdrew with me to the smoking-room where, when the door was shut, we laughed wickedly at the successful success of our plot.

It turned out as I expected. Before the week was half gone my wife came to me with tears in her sweet eyes and said the weekly allowance was used up and I must let the boarder go, for she plainly saw there was no profit in the business. After frightening her by telling her we had engaged the house for a year and would have to feed him if it took our last cent and mortgaged the home, I offered to see what I could do.

Jack left at the end of his week, and no Mrs. Hopkins can ever again persuade my wife that there is profit to be kept herself and me with boarders—and when some one who don't understand the difficulty of properly managing a wife sees fit to "give me away."—H. C. Dodge, in Goodall's Sun cities in viaducts with no grade, we can talk about running our engines at a greater rate of speed and with greater evenness of motion."

I AROUND AGAINST IT.

MODELS OF ENGINES THAT WILL RUN AT THE RATE OF 90 MILES AN HOUR.

"And now what of the rolling stock and tackle generally?"

"Yes, I suppose improvements will be made in rolling stock, although to look at some of the great limited trains to the west with their magnificent cars one can hardly imagine anything more commodious or comfortable. The only improvements in cars that I anticipate will be in the heating apparatus and by reducing the weight at the same time retain the strength. It can hardly be predicted that there will be a change over the present system of heating by steam. While steam heating was a good advance over the car stove yet it is likely to be bettered. It is useless to speculate on what form it will be."

Sharp Business.

Mrs. Hindoo are about to adopt modern methods of farming. A "Hindoo exercise party" for visiting England, America, China, Japan and the states. "The Hindoo ladies and gentlemen" who are invited to join the party are assured that they will be able to travel without violation of caste rules.

JAPAN had a plethora of epidemics during 1890. Influenza reached her maximum in February, Cholera followed with over 45,000 deaths. Dysentery claimed 23,000 victims, and Typhoid Fever, 18,000 deaths, a ratio of 12 per cent. Typhoid fever conveyed 29,704 deaths, with 4,000 deaths, 68,500 per cent.

LISBON is to have an international exposition in the summer of 1892 for the operations and methods of the fishing industry, the most important means of living and catching supplies, and its products. It will be in the Crystal palace, a structure of about twice the size of Madison Square garden.

A Considerate Wife.

Guesthead broom, modest? Tee-hee! I heard you say that yesterday!

Mrs. Tangle—A soft one, pleese. I always treat my husband as gently as I can.—Lights.

Expected Too Few.

It is well to have things approximate best a man will get take this view when his wife tells him she expected to have a few guests.

The Constitutionalist.
W. L. FORCE, A. L. FORCE,
Editors and Proprietors.

TAXATION

Governments honestly and economically administered for the safety and prosperity of the whole people are essential, and deserving of taxation support.

Taxation is of two kinds, direct and indirect, one being a license demand, and the other, although viewed as a like positive charge upon the tax payer's pocket.

All just taxation must be levied with rigid equity and for uses other than legitimate public purposes.

To demand for taxation the property of any individual or corporation at a less proportionate valuation than that of others is rank injustice, and equally so is it to make any business or industrial pursuit pay tribute through the medium of tariff favoritism.

It is argued by free trade advocates that if all revenue was raised by direct taxation, instead of duties on imported use, the people would feelingly be aware of the cost of government and put an end to extravagance and reckless appropriations.

There is truth in that argument.

But, under existing circumstances, tariff duties are revenuely, because of the requisite revenue being yield and the incidental protection they give many home productions.

The tariff is a tax.

To make it equitable and non-oppressive is the whole question.

The remedy abides with the people. By protesting through the ballot boxes of the land against the wanton waste of public money, and in like manner denouncing the corrupting legislating of special privileges shall give way to equal and exact justice, would be to advance their own pecuniary welfare and to a great extent lift the country of the blighting effects of political corruptions and mercenary monopolies.

THE ESSENCE.

An Illinois editor says the election of Mr. Cleveland for another Presidential term would mean—

"That votes must come down."

"That strict economy must prevail."

"That the administration of affairs must be clean, able and also lutely fair."

That editorial pen is a few words truthfully portrays the very essence of good government, a government for the real honor and benefit of the people.

We shall await an administration of public affairs from March 4, 1885 to March 4, 1889.

Since then exactly the reverse has predominated.

A change is an absolute necessity. It can and will be attained in 1892 by voting—

FOR PRESIDENT,
GROVER CLEVELAND.

Under the provisions of an act passed at the late session of the Legislature, Comptroller Hepps-hitmer has furnished to the Governor a list of the corporations which are in default to the State which have failed to pay the State tax. The law referred to provides that the delinquent corporations shall forfeit their charters. The list embraces one hundred and fifty-three names, and twelve are manufacturing business in other States under charters obtained here. The provisions of the law in regard to these delinquent corporations come into effect upon the proclamation of the Governor announcing the list.

Wants Money for His Damaged Name.

The New York Tribune in a recent issue said that the leader of the gang of burglars that broke into Wendell Phillips' house and stole the silver presented to Wendell Phillips, he from that, he has been arrested and has had his trial in court. Chauncey H. Ripley, bring suit against the Tribune for heavy damages.

Judge Cooley's Plans for Just Taxation.

Justice H. Cooley, Assessor of North Plainfield borough and township, reports to the State Board of Taxation a total assessment of $1,681,500 on real estate, $261,550 on personal property and $60,000 on debts. Dr. Cooley thinks that if a man sells a lot at so much a foot that that price should be the guide for price of his other land on the same front. He suggests that debtors should be allowed no deduction exceeding the amount of their personal property, or that only debts of record be considered.

Business at Washington.

All who desire to correspond with Senator McPherson on matters of business relating to claims before the department, pensions or other cases, will address him at Wadsworth place on Mount. Mr. Matthews, the Senator's private secretary, will remain in Washington during the summer and will give close attention to any correspondence sent to him about McPherson. No one need hesitate to write on legitimate business matters, for the Senator and his secretary are there for pains in attending to such things for the people.

Where They Draw the Line.

The following, from a New York paper, cannot have any reference to the Plainfield communities who travel in club cars. Tam Farman is the best natured man at a poker part, but it knows they draw the line at shirt sleeves.

If you live in the suburbs, and travel between New York and your home by rail daily, the proper thing is to join a car club. Many of the members of such clubs commute every hour they can. A number of men club together and hire a parlor car. They put in leather settees and movable wicker chairs and lounges. No outsiders are admitted, no matter how crowded the other cars may be. The members of the club are at liberty to invite friends. They have cards issued, and it is whispered that money is not objected to. In summer a man can sit in his shirt sleeves, and he is always sure of pleasant traveling companions.

McPherson for President.

[From the Chicago Herald.]

An interesting piece of gossip is that Senator Gorman is not committed to Hill as against Cleveland, but is somewhat a dark horse in the person of Senator McPherson of New Jersey. Mr. McPherson has a number of friends in the east, and his friends predict that he will carry off the nomination away from both Cleveland and Hill. It was noticed last winter that the New York Hill men had a strong anti-Hill man, ex-deed lifting up his voice in the silver debate. Without any great difficulty, in view opinion of his friends, therefore, it will be safe to satisfy the East on his previous record, and the West on his conservation of last winter. The McPherson men say Hill and Cleveland will get into a mix-up in New York and cut each other up; that Hill will have the delegation, and by voting to it make Cleveland's nomination impossible and his own go well, and that McPherson will run off with the prize.

WATER-WORKS WAR GOES ON.

JUSTICE VAN SYCKEL'S OPINION NOT SUFFICIENT FOR THE COUNCIL.

Outside Legal Talent to be Employed Attacking the Charter of the Water Company—Special City Session to be held this day and not its Business—Charter Sixths Sweet Arbitrarily Interpreted—Mr. Low is to be Created the Only Municipally Authorized Water Works and Sewerage Franchise.

The recent semi-official announcement from Justice Van Syckel has not by any means settled the water-works question to the satisfaction of the Plainfield Common Council, and at Monday's meeting steps were taken which indicate that a heavy fight may yet be expected. The Councilmen—or at least a majority of them—seem determined to find out just what rights the city has under its charter, and will order the Plainfield Water Supply Company is to overrite arbitrarily what privileges thereby used to think it had.

The matter of Justice Hedfield's opinion was officially brought to the attention of the Council by Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, who reported that in opinion of the Justice it was essentially that the Water Supply Company was entitled to a decision in its favor provided it could prove by evidence what it claimed in the papers lately filed; that if the city was ready to admit the facts claimed by the company, the Court would have to decide that the ordinance under which the city ought to be acting and all the charter rights of the company was unreasonable and did not stand, but would not allow any money to the city; but of course if the city required the company to proceed with the taking of testimo y to prove the facts necessary to the decision, the Court would not say that decision would carry with it a heavy bill of costs for the defeated litigants to pay.

The clerk had no sooner finished reading Mr. Marsh's report than Councilman Ackerman moved that the report be accepted and that the Corporation Counsel be instructed to prepare legal acceptance of the forecast of what the Court's opinion would be, so that there would be no further litigation.

To this Councilman Hetfield objected, and suggested that as the matter was an important one, requiring careful investigation, it ought to be laid over for a week.

Counselor Marsh said that a prompt decision by the Council was necessary. Justice Van Syckel had wanted him to decide the case then, the day the papers were read, and only with difficulty was the Court persuaded to wait until the present meeting of the Council. If the Council do not decide to-night, he concluded—to so mit to the Court's ruling, the taking of testimony will be begun next Monday.

Mr. Marsh's report than Councilman Ackerman moved that the report be accepted and that the Corporation Counsel be instructed to prepare legal acceptance of the forecast of what the Court's opinion would be, so that there would be no further litigation.

To this Councilman Hetfield objected, and suggested that as the matter was an important one, requiring careful investigation, it ought to be laid over for a week.

Counselor Marsh said that a prompt decision by the Council was necessary. Justice Van Syckel had wanted him to decide the case then, the day the papers were read, and only with difficulty was the Court persuaded to wait until the present meeting of the Council. If the Council do not decide to-night, he concluded—to so mit to the Court's ruling, the taking of testimony will be begun next Monday.

That solicitor was then asked to give his opinion as to the validity of the ordinance, and said that he did not consider it valid, but that he would not like to say so officially.

Councilman Hetfield thought that the fact that Mr. Marsh had never before been asked to give his signal ability to conduct unaided the case in point.

Councilman Ackerman said that no reflection was ever cast intended against Mr. Marsh, who was a good lawyer, an able attorney.

The motion and as of the resolution were acted on separately. Councilman Ackerman made the three futile attempts to substitute a motion to put it its consideration indefinitely, to lay it on the table, and to set down July 4 as the date of action on it, but were each beaten by the following vote:

Ayes—Councilmen Ackerman, Gluns, Johnston, Rushmore, See—4.

Nays—Councilmen Gallup, Hetfield, Moffett, Roberts, Smith, Spangenberg—5.

Section 1 was adopted by the following vote:

Ayes—Councilmen Gallup, Hetfield, Moffett, Roberts, Smith, Spangenberg—5.

Nays—Councilmen Ackerman, Gluns, Johnston, Rushmore, See—4.

Before Section 2 was voted on, Mr. Rushmore asked if the Corporation Counsel had not been instructed to draw up just such an ordinance.

Mr. Hetfield answered that he had, but had not yet had time, according to his understanding, to draw up such ordinance with which he was satisfied.

Mr. See asked why a special council was needed.

Mr. Hetfield replied "We can get it done inside of a week then. It's been dragging a week now."

Mr. Hetfield then moved for the reading of a communication that Mr. Marsh had sent in with his incomplete ordinance, so that the public might know what were the requirements of the city and the granting of a franchise to Mr. Low. This aroused Mr. Hetfield. "It's foolish, ridiculous, nonsensical, he's play"—he muttered to himself, but not very closely, the public, this continued pooling as the people's champion. The Councilmen have all read Mr. Marsh's letter, and it merely repeats what he had stated, that he is not satisfied with the ordinance he has attempted to prepare, and that letter is simply a matter of an explanation of the state of the ordinances. Mr. Marsh did n't want the ordinance read without the communication, as he knew he wouldn't understand there's no need of bringing up the other."

An attempt to amend Section 2 of the resolution so that the special counsel engaged by the Water Supply Company Counsel was lost by a vote of 5 to 6, Councilmen Ackerman, Gluns, Johnston, Rushmore, See voting aye. The section unamended was then adopted.

Ayes—Councilmen Gallup, Hetfield, Moffett, Roberts, Smith, Spangenberg—6.

Noes—Councilmen Ackerman, Gluns, Johnston, Rushmore, See—4.

As soon as the vote on the resolution was completed Councilmen See moved to adjourn. Councilmen Ackerman, Gluns, Johnston, Rushmore alone voted with him, and the sea to was tied. longed on, over routine matters, till midnight, when adjournment was taken to Monday, May 18.

ROUTINE BUSINESS OF THE COUNCIL.

No Rain May Legally Sign Two Licenses Applications in One Year.

Corporation Counsel Craig A Marsh Monday reported to the Common Council that having examined the State law on the subject he was still of the opinion that anyone having within a year signed a petition for a license to sell liquor, could sign a second one, whether the first had been granted or refused. As some of the petitioners for saloon licenses also voted with him, and the sea to was prolonged on, over routine matters, till midnight, when adjournment was taken to Monday, May 18.

ROUTINE BUSINESS OF THE COUNCIL.

No Rain May Legally Sign Two License Applications in One Year.

Corporation Counsel Craig A Marsh Monday reported to the Common Council that having examined the State law on the subject he was still of the opinion that anyone having within a year signed a petition for a license to sell liquor, could sign a second one, whether the first had been granted or refused. As some of the petitioners for saloon licenses also voted with him, and the sea to was prolonged on, over routine matters, till midnight, when adjournment was taken to Monday, May 18.

ROUTINE BUSINESS OF THE COUNCIL.

No Rain May Legally Sign Two License Applications in One Year.

Corporation Counsel Craig A Marsh Monday reported to the Common Council that having examined the State law on the subject he was still of the opinion that anyone having within a year signed a petition for a license to sell liquor, could sign a second one, whether the first had been granted or refused. As some of the petitioners for saloon licenses also voted with him, and the sea to was prolonged on, over routine matters, till midnight, when adjournment was taken to Monday, May 18.

ROUTINE BUSINESS OF THE COUNCIL.

No Rain May Legally Sign Two License Applications in One Year.

Corporation Counsel Craig A Marsh Monday reported to the Common Council that having examined the State law on the subject he was still of the opinion that anyone having within a year signed a petition for a license to sell liquor, could sign a second one, whether the first had been granted or refused. As some of the petitioners for saloon licenses also voted with him, and the sea to was prolonged on, over routine matters, till midnight, when adjournment was taken to Monday, May 18.

CRUSHED BY THE CARS.

Agent Mr. Hill of the Boy Killed in the Yards.

John Hill, father-in-law of ex-Street Commissioner George M. Anglemann, met with a shocking accident Saturday evening. He was on his way to visit a son in Somerville, but by mistake boarded a train going no further than Dunellen. While walking up and down the track at the Dunellen station, awaiting the arrival of a train that would take him immediately on to the city, he was struck by a train that was being drilled back and forth, and was thrown to the ground, a leg across the rail. The wheels crushed his foot into a shapeless pulp, and as soon as he could be conveyed to the Muhlenberg Hospital the injured member was amputated, above the ankle. Dr. Long was the surgeon in attendance. Owing to Mr. Hill's age, which is 81 years, it was feared that the shock of the operation might prove fatal, but Matron Walzel, at whose hands the patient is receiving the best of care, reports very favorably concerning the condition of the sufferer, and Mr. Hill will be removed to his home with Mr. Anglemann, on Washington street.

A Chance for a State Scholarship.

A competitive examination for free scholarship to the New Jersey State College at New Brunswick will be held in the court house, Elizabeth, Saturday, June 6, 1891. The examination will be in arithmetic, including the metric system, through progression; all of algebra through progression; all of plane geometry; English grammar, including spelling; descriptive geography of New Jersey and Europe. A short English essay will be required. Further information may be obtained of Supt. B Holmes, Elizabeth, N J.

A Lad's Ear Torn.

Willie, a little son of C. W. Smith of 21 East Front street, while playing Saturday about the streets Monday afternoon, with his ear torn, and his clothing bloody. At first he said that a dog had attacked him, but it is thought that he received the hurt in a fall. The tear in his ear was sewed up by Dr. Carman, and a slight cut back of the ear was also dressed. The injury is not considered in any way serious.

Mrs. Cuff Jumps Out the Window.

City Physician Manning and Dr. Tomlinson, Tuesday, signed the papers that will authorize the transfer of Mrs. John Sullivan, of North Plainfield, and Mrs. Sylvester Cuff, to the insane asylum at Morristown.

Mrs. Cuff has been there before. Recently, however, she has been considered quite sensible to live at home. Sunday night she jumped through the closed window of her b-droom, carrying the sash with her, and struck on the picket fence below. She now lies shed very badly cut.

Another Death from Scarlet Fever.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. McCarthy, who lost a child aged two years and seven months Friday last, another, a daughter, Jennie B., aged three years and seven months, Monday, a.m., of the same disease, malignant scarlet fever. The attack which proved fatal to Jennie was the worst type of the disease. She was ill only 24 hours, and on Saturday afternoon visited Miss Nellie Cox's room and said, "There lies my little brother."

"Church now", the block on New street between Front and Second streets, where the case of scarlet fever patients have been housed, has been placed under quarantine by the Board of Health, and persons keep people from passing through.

Laura Crandall Queen.

The young ladies of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, Thursday, gave an interstate carnival contest. The house was well filled, and those who participated in the exercises did well.

Miss Laura B Robinson was crowned queen, having received 506 votes to the amount of $22.10. Miss Low was a member of the church, and an active worker.

Every feature of the entertainment was commendably rendered. Each young lady wore a dress and carried a flag.

Miss Fannie Nelson, who sold 155 votes, was next to Miss Robinson, and Miss Ella Doyle was third, having sold 96 votes. All deserve credit for their excellent efforts. An excellent committee served refreshments.

Neither Time Nor Distance Makes Them Forget Home.

To-o homstic pigeons belonging to C E Faber, that were started a year ago in the 300 and 400 mile contest, have never came home until last w k. They were flown in May, 1890 The one who was in the shorter fly arrived in its home loft after a total disappearance. May 5, 1891. The one who was in the 300-mile race arrived May 8, 1891. The latter has a strange band on its left leg, numbered 256. The birds have undoubtedly been cooped up by some thief for a year past for breeding purposes. Yet they have not forgotten their home or its comforts. An excellent committee served refreshments.

Neither Time Nor Distance Makes Them Forget Home.

To-o homstic pigeons belonging to C E Faber, that were started a year ago in the 300 and 400 mile contest, have never came home until last w k. They were flown in May, 1890 The one who was in the shorter fly arrived in its home loft after a total disappearance. May 5, 1891. The one who was in the 300-mile race arrived May 8, 1891. The latter has a strange band on its left leg, numbered 256. The birds have undoubtedly been cooped up by some thief for a year past for breeding purposes. Yet they have not forgotten their home or its comforts. An excellent committee served refreshments.

Neither Time Nor Distance Makes Them Forget Home.

To-o homstic pigeons belonging to C E Faber, that were started a year ago in the 300 and 400 mile contest, have never came home until last w k. They were flown in May, 1890 The one who was in the shorter fly arrived in its home loft after a total disappearance. May 5, 1891. The one who was in the 300-mile race arrived May 8, 1891. The latter has a strange band on its left leg, numbered 256. The birds have undoubtedly been cooped up by some thief for a year past for breeding purposes. Yet they have not forgotten their home or its comforts. An excellent committee served refreshments.

The Test Suits.

Chief Doane and Assistant Waters gave a demonstration of Plainfield's fire-alarm system and "sounded the gong" in South Elizabeth officials Monday afternoon. Their city has the same system of "sounding in" the alarm, but a bell is used instead of the steam whistle.

The visitors consisted of Elizabeth's fire committee: Isaac Van Hart, Thomas T. Dillon and Joseph Flynn; Arthur D. Hahn, treasurer of the fire alarm telegraph company; Superintendent Root of the telephone company, and last, but not least, Chief Engineer Nathaniel H. Axtell, the latter being chief in New Jersey barring Chief Doane.

All of the party expressed to a Press reporter their thorough satisfaction with the system in every way. The alarm was sounded from all parts of the city, instantly and accurately. At the next meeting of the Elizabeth council, Chief Doane's visitors to Plainfield will undoubtedly recommend that that city adopt a tocs instead of a ring as its fire alarm hereafter.

Music Hall to be Resurrected.

The annual election of a board of directors of the Music Hall association was held Monday night. Out of a total of 300 shares, only 213 were voted. The ballot resulted in the re-election of the old board as follows, with the exception of A. T. Gallup in place of Mr. Low:

A. Gilbert, O. T. Warine, W. J. Rooms, W. E. Lowe, M. W. Tyler, L. V. F. Randolph, J. B. Dumont, D. A. Hegeman, J. W. Murray, C. A. Marshall and A. T. Gallup.

At eight o'clock the how fixed for the annual meeting of the stockholders, there were present, A. Gilbert, O. T. Waring, L. W. Serrell, R. H. Cook, B. F. Cortell, A. T. Gallup and R. M. Stile. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, A. Gilbert; secretary and treasurer, R. M. Stile; executive committee, A. Gilbert, O. T. Waring, B. F. Cortell.

Among the members present at the meeting of the board of directors of the Music Hall association was the suggestion that the hall be put in new hands, thoroughly renovated, the higher priced seats done away with, a competent manager for next season, and every effort made and means adopted to make Music Hall the most popular and prosperous opera house in the state.

Wanted a Mechanic.

We heard a mechanic say that he would not be without Salvation Oil at any time, for it cured his rheumatism. Price 25 cents a bottle.

LET THE CITY OWN THE WORKS

THAT'S MAYOR GILBERT'S PLAN IN REGARD TO SEWERAGE.

But He First Wants the People to Vote on the Question at the Polls, and Thinks that 75 Sewers Will be Needed—Twenty Years Franchise Demanded, and no Interesting Letter.

At Monday's meeting of the Plainfield Common Council the following communication from Mayor Gilbert was received, it being largely unexpected, and nevertheless caused considerable excitement among the Councilmen, as it presented and read:

PLAINFIELD, N. J., May 11, 1891.
To the Honorable Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

GENTLEMEN:—On the 7th ult. I was invited to attend an informal meeting of the members of the Common Council for the purpose of conferring with them in regard to the introduction into our city of a sewerage system for the city.

Up til this meeting I had not fully realized that your honorable body seriously contemplated taking any action in the matter without giving the people an opportunity to express their views upon the subject, and for with you relative to the selection of a system that would be best adapted to the wants of the city. On the 7th inst. I realized that you would be willing to go ahead without the advice of the people interested in the interest of the city to advise you with reference to the practicability of plans.

On entering as I do that the question of providing Plainfield with a system of sewers is the most important one that we have had to deal with for many days. I deem it my duty to present to your honorable body my views relative thereto, with the sincere hope that if you conclude to carry forward this project at the present time, you will proceed as cautiously and deliberately as the importance of the subject demands and with an eye single to the interests of the city. The importance of this matter can not be overestimated. The real estate and future growth and prosperity of the city requires that no step shall be taken without the most careful and a painstaking investigation.

In the absence of information, it seems to me, should be to call a meeting of our citizens to confer with you not only as to the advisability of serving the city at the present time, but also as to the selection of a system that will be best adapted to our needs. In a multitude of counselors there is safety, and in opposing so important a matter we need all the wisdom that we can command.

The next step should be the appointment of a committee from your honorable body for the purpose of making a thorough investigation of the various systems now in use in different parts of the country, in order that we may have the benefit of the most perfect system that can be found. This committee should be empowered to employ an expert civil engineer and scientific to point and direct his investigations, to make plans and estimates, and otherwise to assist the committee in obtaining a definite information concerning this important project.

The committee should be thoroughly representative one, and large enough to accomplish every question that may arise bearing on the subject. Especially should it consider the adv antages that would accrue to the city if it could construct, own and control its own sewers, and the possible advantages that would follow the construction and ownership of the sewers by a private corporation.

The question of outlets is one of the most difficult problems that we are confronted with, and no Common Council proved fatal to Jennie was the worst type of the disease. She was ill only 24 hours, and on Saturday afternoon visited Miss Nellie Cox's room and said, "There lies my little brother."

"Church now", the block on New street between Front and Second streets, where the case of scarlet fever patients have been housed, has been placed under quarantine by the Board of Health, and persons keep people from passing through.

Laura Crandall Queen.

The young ladies of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, Thursday, gave an interstate carnival contest. The house was well filled, and those who participated in the exercises did well.

Miss Laura B Robinson was crowned queen, having received 506 votes to the amount of $22.10. Miss Low was a member of the church, and an active worker.

Every feature of the entertainment was commendably rendered. Each young lady wore a dress and carried a flag.

Miss Fannie Nelson, who sold 155 votes, was next to Miss Robinson, and Miss Ella Doyle was third, having sold 96 votes. All deserve credit for their excellent efforts. An excellent committee served refreshments.

Neither Time Nor Distance Makes Them Forget Home.

To-o homstic pigeons belonging to C E Faber, that were started a year ago in the 300 and 400 mile contest, have never came home until last w k. They were flown in May, 1890 The one who was in the shorter fly arrived in its home loft after a total disappearance. May 5, 1891. The one who was in the 300-mile race arrived May 8, 1891. The latter has a strange band on its left leg, numbered 256. The birds have undoubtedly been cooped up by some thief for a year past for breeding purposes. Yet they have not forgotten their home or its comforts. An excellent committee served refreshments.

Neither Time Nor Distance Makes Them Forget Home.

To-o homstic pigeons belonging to C E Faber, that were started a year ago in the 300 and 400 mile contest, have never came home until last w k. They were flown in May, 1890 The one who was in the shorter fly arrived in its home loft after a total disappearance. May 5, 1891. The one who was in the 300-mile race arrived May 8, 1891. The latter has a strange band on its left leg, numbered 256. The birds have undoubtedly been cooped up by some thief for a year past for breeding purposes. Yet they have not forgotten their home or its comforts. An excellent committee served refreshments.

Neither Time Nor Distance Makes Them Forget Home.

To-o homstic pigeons belonging to C E Faber, that were started a year ago in the 300 and 400 mile contest, have never came home until last w k. They were flown in May, 1890 The one who was in the shorter fly arrived in its home loft after a total disappearance. May 5, 1891. The one who was in the 300-mile race arrived May 8, 1891. The latter has a strange band on its left leg, numbered 256. The birds have undoubtedly been cooped up by some thief for a year past for breeding purposes. Yet they have not forgotten their home or its comforts. An excellent committee served refreshments.

BOWLING ON THE GREEN.

Players Prepare for a Delightful Season on Christian Schaefer's Lawn.

There is only one place in the country where the bowling green is kept in order and played, too, with all the science and skill traditional with the game in the United States. That place is the bowling green on the grounds of Christian Schaefer in Dunellen. The green is not quite seventy feet square, and is sodded, rolled and trimmed to a shade of velvety green. The players arrange themselves in sides, usually of four each, and each man generally has two bowls. These are of lignum vitæ, are somewhat larger than a cocoanut, and, to make them still more fascinating things to handle, one side is flattened so that in any way can a bowl be made to take a perfectly straight course. They weigh about five pounds each. A smaller ball that is perfectly round and weighs about three is plaged at one end of green. This is called the jack. The players stand at the other end of the green and try to send their bowls so that they will approach as near as possible to the jack without knocking it off the green. This would be sufficiently difficult if the bowls were to go in a straight line, but instead the player has to bowl in a curve. To curve it will take and the condition of the ground. Some rainker is decided on before hand to make a game, either 7, 14, 21 or 31.

The season has just been opened by the Middlesex County Bowling Green Club. The officers for this season, elected at the annual meeting last Saturday, are: H B Willis of New Brunswick, President; Fred Wetherill, Secretary, and J. B. Dutta, J. E. Powelson and H. P. Bethel, Executive Committee. Among the members are F. J. Richter of Newark, Dr. H. G. Wright, Chief Engineer of the Mid-land Bound Brook, A. W. Pettit, T. B. Boorsen, L. A. Powelson, S. M. Pettitt, E. D Christie, Dr. W. E. Linstead, P. Cowery, W. Fisher, Dr. Wm. Hall, Dr. Wm. Hall, W. Pick, Dr. C. M. Stuck, Dr. and Mrs. C. F. Barber of New Brunswick, Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Bodder and F. P. Bather of Plainfield. The match game of the Middlesex Bowling Green Club, but the Dunellen Club has for three years held the championship medal. There are players in the latter club equal to any skilled in Canada, but they have not yet challenged Dunellen.

Besides the usual friendly games, Saturday, May 30, and Memorial Saturday, June 6, will be special tournaments, the latter open to all comers.

GONE WITH ABOMINATION MAN.

A Happy Home Deserted by a Fortune Wife.

The borough of North Plainfield was the scene of excitement on the occasion of the wife of Wm. B. Avery with John B. Gable of this city.

Mr. Avery is a prosperous stationer in New York city. His country residence is at 104 Grove street. Gable is one of the finest in that aristocratic neighborhood. Mr. Avery has always provided liberally for his wife and family, and every comfort, even with horses, carriages, fine furniture, jewelry, elegant costumes, and every luxury which her tastes demanded.

Why a woman with not a wish ungratified should prove faithless to so kind and loving a husband, Mr. Avery cannot understand; and his wife's strange infatuation with Gable is all a mystery to him.

The woman seems madly in love with her paramour. They fled together last Friday. Gable has since returned to town secretly at night and has been seen by friends and other friends that Mrs. Avery was "about stuck" on him and that she was accusing for the ball. He exhibited pawn tickets for jewels and other goods to show that Mrs. Avery had had him dispose of to pay their expenses.

Mr. Avery says that he is now satisfied that Mrs. Avery has been away with Gable before. He was never suspicious until recently, and now that he knows the truth he will apply at once for a divorce.

Gable is an awning maker and upholsterer by occupation, and has been engaged for considerable time in No. 1, but has turn'd his keyes over to the department and has handed in his resignation. He has a wife and family at 47 Cottage place. They are said to be in destitute circumstances, or will be, as Gable's deserting family have the fullest sympathy of the public.

The League's Greatest Social.

Never have the parlors of the First Baptist church contained more young people than on Tuesday evening, the occasion being the monthly sociable of that wide-awake organization, the Young People's League.

Every one was there thoroughly to enjoy the fine entertainment prepared by E. W. Randolph and his able assistants of the Social Committee.

Mr. Mark's exhibition of the phonograph captivated all. The sociability of every one present was a subject of much favorable comment. The following excellent programme was rendered:

Address of welcome.....Prof. L. H. Bigbow, Jr
Phonographic Concert.....Mr. Mark
Duet and Mrs. Bigbow, Miss Edith Harold, Mr. Wm. E. MacClymont.
Encore—"The Lily and the Rose."
Recitation—"A Mother's Prayer,"...Miss Elliott
Phonographic addresses and songs—
Address.....Mr. Mark
Sociability with refreshments.
Duet and Solo—"Minuette".....Mr. MacClymont
Phonographs.....Mr. Mary
Quartette—"Good night, Good Night, Beloved."

Knights Templar Grand Commandery.

The thirty-third annual constance of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar met in Masonic Temple at Trenton, Tuesday, Grand Commander Leonard L. Great, of Passaic Bridge, presiding. He report-ed a flourishing condition of the Masonic saanderies in the State, with a membership of 1,500. The following officers were elected:

Joseph Fulper, Washington, Grand Commander; Wm. T. Muchmore, Morristown, Deputy Grand Commander; James McCully, Trenton, Grand Captain General; Thos. Godson, Newark, Grand Prelate; Edward Mills, Camden, Grand Standard Bearer; Reuben Dingman, Newark, Grand Junior Warden; Frederick G. Weise, Bordentown, Grand Treasurer; Charles Bechtel, Trenton, Grand Recorder; Wm. J. Lockwood, Trenton, Grand Standard Bearer; Albert J. Briggs, Riverton, Grand Sword Bearer; J. V. Alstrom, Asbury Park, Grand Warden; Samuel G. Smith, Trenton, Grand Captain of Guards.

The Past Grand Commanders' Association elected J. S. Roberts, now of New York, Trustee, and Wm. J. Lockwood, Grand Standard Bearer; Albert J. Briggs, Riverton, Grand Sword Bearer; J. V. Alstrom, Asbury Park, Grand Warden; Samuel G. Smith, Trenton, Grand Captain of Guards.

Walked Miles Each Day in School.

A contributor to the Trenton Times, signing himself "E. M. H.", pays a glowing tribute, in a column article, to the memory of Miss Lucie Dr. Abraham Coles of Scotch Plains. The correspondent was a medical student under the venerable physician, and therefore speaks with knowledge of the facts. He emphasizes the deceased "as a model to young men, and as an example of a spotless life devoted to the highest lines of study and usefulness."

Continui e, he says:

"As a tutor boy at Scotch Plains, he was used only to the russile life and hard work of the farm, but he found time to study him to spectial study. Yet the older Dr. Craig of Plainfield has told me how, beginning about the year 1826, he might seven day going and returning, walked three miles or more from Scotch Plains to Plain field in order to avail himself of the lectures of Dr. Abraham. He was not to have either the means or the encouragement to go to college, but had to concentrate on the medical profession, which he did with close.

"It was by is own plodding industry and his habits of precision that he came to be a classical scholar of the highest rank and a thorough practitioner of medicine.

"Settling in Newark, N. J., notwithstanding his diffidence and reticence, he slowly came to be recognized as a power for good and as a friend to the poor and not called ambitious. He loved medicine, he loved authorship, he loved religion, because he loved humanity. He was a true, cultured taste, his love of God could find expression."

Obsequies of George E. Geddis.

The funeral services of the late George E. Geddis, of Bound Brook, were largely attended last Saturday afternoon. The sorrow in the face of every resident of that borough over the sad event. The coffin was sur- unded with costly and beautiful floral designs, the tributes of less than fifteen set pieces of appropriate designs. Prayer was offered and an impressive sermon delivered by the Rev. J. T. Schock, of the Reformed church of Bound Brook, after which the Rev. Mr. Davis of the Presbyterian church spoke as would others of the deceased friend, in which he eulogized the deceased in fitting and just terms. He described him as the warm-hearted, generous friend, the kind husband and father, and the loving husband and father, in such a manner as to cause the tears to flow from many eyes.

The remains were conveyed on the 12:30 p. m. train to Somerton, Pa., and were interred with Masonic honors by members of Amwell Lodge, of Lambertville, N. J., of which the deceased was a member. Members of Somerset Lodge, No. 56, Knights of Pythias, attended in a body, and accompanied the remains to their last resting-place, carrying with them the floral offerings.

The circumstances regarding the sudden demise of Mr. Geddis are briefly stated as follows: He had been to Philadelphia and in his endeavors to catch a train on his return had exerted himself so that he became overheated. He got on the car and near window contracted a cold which resulted in pneumonia.

Among those present at the funeral were from Plainfield: Engineer Bogert Smith, President of the Common Council, ex-Councilman Samuel Wilbur, ex-Postmaster W. L. Force, Thomas H. Keller, John Force and Mrs. Emma H. Force.

A BEAUTIFUL WRECK.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Is the only Positive Cure now Known for all those painful Complaints and Weaknesses so common to our best female population. It will cure entirely the worst forms of Female Complaints, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation, Ulceration, Falling and Displacement of the Womb, and consequent Spinal Weakness, and is peculiarly adapted to the Change of Life. Dissipation Diseases of the Uterus or Womb, Leucorrhœa, Sterility, Nervous Prostration, Exhaustion, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Headache, Backache, Fainting Spells, Dizziness, Faintness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and Kidney Complaints of either sex.

It will dissolve and expel Tumors from the Uterus in an early stage of development. The tendency to Cancerous humors there is checked very speedily by its use. It will at all times and under all circumstances act in harmony with the laws that govern the female system.

For the cure of Kidney Complaints of either sex, this Compound is unsurpassed.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM MED. CO., LYNN, MASS.

Lozenges, on receipt of $1.00.

MEN'S SPRING SUITS

A fine line in all the latest styles. Our own manufacture.

Prices from $8 to $18.

BOYS' SPRING SUITS.

The most comprehensive stock in the State New styles and all sizes. Prices as low as $5 per suit for our own make.

CHILDREN'S SPRING SUITS.

The prettiest patterns out. Kilts, Jerseys, Reefers, Knickerbockers, etc., in great variety, from $1.50 per suit to $10.

MEN'S SPRING TOP COATS.

Never had so large a stock or so fine throughout. All the handsome new shades, light and dark. Prices to fit you.

PRICES—$6, 8, 10, 12, 15, 18.* AT $10 AND $15.

You get the best selections, and the best values.

Come see us, we put your fare.

MARSHALL & BALL,

807, 809, 811 and 813 BROAD STREET.

4 16 2m

Your Boy and Clothes.

A costly combination. He: indigenous, ready to ride a horse, climb a pole, descend a sewer—anything but sit still.

They; the clothes: mostly made to sell cheap. Look fine enough to start on but wear out as fast as the heels of gum boots.

There isn't anything meaner I've a boy than mean clothing; show clothing.

Give him tough clothing to do it in. The tougher it is the more it is worth to him. As fine as you choose, only don't forget toughness.

Get something that's stylish, of course. There's no need to get anything else. We'll show you none other; you come to our store.

And give him a sensible fit. Neither a size larger nor less than what it ought to be. If too tight, the boy will soon pay for it in stronger than the clothes and he'll make room. If too big, they're in his road and he'll knock them out as fast as he can.

Isn't this clothing wisdom for you? You can get all this and get it at the right price by dealing with us.

Don't forget we've men's clothing, too, and of the very best kind.

A grand and mammoth assortment of SPRING CLOTHING for men and boys of all ages and all sizes.

McGregor & Co., 850 and 852 Broad St NEWARK, N. J.

3-30-12

FUR STORAGE!

HARRISON'S "Town and Country" READY MIXED PAINTS

Are unsurpassed if equalled in the following particulars:

They are painters' panics.
They are ready for use.
They may be used by an odd-time painter just as well as by a practical painter.
They will save money to painters.
They will save time.
They are as bright as the best mixing painters can make them.
They are permanent.
They will last many years wear.
They are economical.
They need no additional breaking-up.
They are prepared for any climate.
They are put up in packages of one gallon, two gallons, five gallons.
They are put up in one quart or one pint cans, two cans, per gallon.
They are put up in four quart or three pint cans, three cans, per gallon.
They are put up in five quart or four pint cans, four cans, per gallon.
They are thinned out with pure, raw linseed oil, their providing quantity is still preserved.

WOOLLEY & STUCKER, Agents for North Avenue, side of Park, Plainfield, vicinity.

DURING WARM WEATHER GO TO The Plainfield Packing House, 25 WEST FRONT STREET, FOR Boiled Ham, Tongues & Corned Beef Ready for Table Use, ALSO Bolognas & Sausages, Are Noted for Their Excellent Quality and Flavor. C. M. ULRICH.

Taken on Storage

And insured at lowest rates by Mutch or Fire, at a small percentage on their value.

Seal Skin Garments

To be dyed equal to new during the Summer months.

Alterations & Repairs

Should be done NOW, to avoid delay in the fall.

W. H. & R. BURNETT, 17 ACADEMY STREET, NEWARK, N. J. 3-7 3m

JOHN W. LAING'S HOTEL, PLAINFIELD, N. J.

For table board apply at the office of the Plainfield Packing House, 25 West Front street, Plainfield, N. J.

Board and lodging can be had at the above hotel by the day, week or month. Terms reasonable. Rooms large and well ventilated. Table supplied with the best the market affords. Bar supplied with the choicest brands of liquors and cigars. Stabling and carriage house in connection with the hotel. Horses boarded by the day, week or month. Terms reasonable. Carriages for hire at all hours. Horses broken to harness and to ride. Horses bought and sold on commission. Horses taken on storage. Horses shod and all kinds of blacksmithing done. Wagons made to order. Repairing done on short notice. Prices reasonable. Satisfaction guaranteed. Give me a call.

JOHN W. LAING.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

LAWS OF NEW JERSEY.

1877 AUTHORIZED EDITION.

CHAPTER I.

An act to amend an act entitled "An act for the more speedy recovery of small debts," approved March twenty-fifth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section seven of an act entitled "An act for the more speedy recovery of small debts," approved March twenty-fifth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 4, 1881.

CHAPTER II.

An act to amend an act entitled "An act to incorporate the Newark Gas-Light Company," approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the corporation which may have succeeded to the rights, powers and privileges of the said corporation under the act to which this is a supplement, and which is mentioned in the first section of the act to which this is a supplement, shall be known hereafter as the Newark Gas-Light Company.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 4, 1881.

CHAPTER III.

An act regulating the removal of stone between the limits of the towns of Bergen and Hudson City.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the mayor and common council of the city of Hudson are hereby authorized and empowered to grant licenses or revocable permits to any person or persons, corporation or corporations, to remove stone from the lands between the limits of the towns of Bergen and Hudson City, and to dig and excavate the same, in such manner as the said mayor and common council may deem proper.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 4, 1881.

CHAPTER IV.

An act to carry into complete effect the intent of the State of New Jersey to the grant to the United States of certain lands for the purposes expressed in the act of congress, entitled "An act donating public lands to the several States and Territories which may provide colleges for the benefit of agriculture and the mechanic arts," established by the act of congress approved July second, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, and the several acts supplemental thereto, and to the act of congress approved August eighteenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-six, and the several acts supplemental thereto.

Whereas, By an act of the legislature approved August thirtieth, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, the then existing state board of agriculture was constituted and declared to be the state board of agriculture and education, and the said act of congress approved July second, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, was duly accepted by the said act; and

Whereas, By an act of the legislature approved August twenty-first, one thousand eight hundred and seventy, the said state board of agriculture and education was reorganized in accordance with an act of congress entitled an act supplemental to an act donating public lands to several states," and whereas, the Rutgers Scientific School, and whereas, the Rutgers Female College in New Jersey," board always hereafter be known as the trustees of the Rutgers literary college or agricultural department of the college established by the said act of congress, the said act of congress approved July second, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, and the said act of congress approved August eighteenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-six, which

Whereas, By an act of the legislature approved August twenty-first, one thousand eight hundred and seventy, the said board of trustees was reorganized and declared to be the state board of agriculture and education, and the said act of congress approved July second, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, and the said act approved August eighteenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-six, by reason of the reorganization of the said state board of agriculture and education, and the change of the name of the said board of trustees of the Rutgers literary college or agricultural department of the college established by the said act of congress approved July second, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, and the said act of congress approved August eighteenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-six, and the several acts supplemental thereto, became, by reason of the reorganization of the said state board of agriculture and education, and the change of the name of the said board of trustees of the Rutgers literary college or agricultural department of the college established by the said act of congress approved July second, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, and the said act of congress approved August eighteenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-six, and the several acts supplemental thereto, no longer applicable to the said state board of agriculture and education, and the said board of trustees of the Rutgers literary college or agricultural department of the college established by the said act of congress approved July second, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, and the said act of congress approved August eighteenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-six, and the several acts supplemental thereto, and the said state board of agriculture and education and the said board of trustees of the Rutgers literary college or agricultural department of the college established by the said act of congress approved July second, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, and the said act of congress approved August eighteenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-six, and the several acts supplemental thereto, were no longer entitled to the benefits of the said acts of congress

CHAPTER XVII.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act to enable boards of chosen freeholders and townships to borrow money, and the powers and duties of assessors in this state to equalize assessments," approved April 4th, 1871.

1. Be it enacted, That it shall be lawful for any such board of chosen freeholders, or township committee, to borrow money, and issue bonds therefor, in the manner and for the purposes mentioned in the act to which this is a supplement, and to pay a rate of interest not exceeding seven per centum per annum on the same, any thing in the act to which this is a supplement to the contrary notwithstanding.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts or parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 18, 1881.

CHAPTER XVIII.

An act to amend an act entitled "An act to provide for the printing of the laws of the legislature of New Jersey," approved April 4th, 1871, and the supplements thereto, approved April 9th, 1873, and April 8th, 1875.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section two of the act to which this is a supplement, approved April 9th, 1873, be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

2. That two thousand copies of the laws of each session of the legislature of New Jersey shall be furnished for the use of the legislature, and that the legislature may order, whenever it shall deem necessary, such other number of copies to be for the use of the executive department, the judiciary and the assembly; and upon the delivery of the said number of copies of the laws of each session, and upon presentation of a receipt therefor from the secretary of state, the state printer shall be entitled to receive from the state treasurer the sum of twenty-five cents per page for the said number of copies of the laws of each session; and the said state treasurer are hereby authorized to pay the same; provided, however, that the same shall not exceed the sum of one thousand dollars for any one year, in addition to the per diem or other allowance now fixed by law.

2. And be it enacted, That after the filing of the official certificate of election of any senator, there shall then be warrants drawn, monthly, and from time to time, by the state treasurer, upon the requisition of the president of the senate, countersigned by the secretary of state, in favor of the senator entitled to the said certificate.

3. And be it enacted, That all acts or parts of acts inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 18, 1881.

CHAPTER XIX.

An Act to authorize and empower the chancellor to sell and convey the state's interest and estate in the land to the several corporate authorities of the several counties of this state.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That whenever any of the several counties of this state will to any executor or executors, trustee or trustees, in trust for the use of the poor of the given said county, or until the happening of some event or contingency, or for any use, or to enable anyone to appear to the chancellor by petition of the said executor or executors, trustee or trustees, that it would be advantageous to the said county and other children that additional buildings or improvements on the premises should be erected, or new building or buildings should be erected, or both, it shall be lawful for the chancellor, by order and decree that the petitioner or petitioners as aforesaid, in the name of the said executor or executors, trustee or trustees, for the purpose of carrying out the purposes of the said trust, to mortgage or lease the said land held in trust for said purposes, or any part thereof, for such sum or sums of money as shall be sufficient to amount to pay for the improvements or additions to the said building already on said land or for the erection of such new building or buildings.

2. And be it enacted, That the moneys or parts of sale hereunder, with the provisions of this act, be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 18, 1881.

CHAPTER XX.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act to amend an act entitled An act to establish a system of public schools for the county of Hudson," approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, and the several supplements thereto, approved February twenty-five, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the said board of education of the city of Hoboken shall not be authorized to purchase, erect or lease any school-house or houses, or to rent any room or rooms for school purposes, without the consent of the common council of the said city of Hoboken, any thing in the act to which this is a supplement to the contrary notwithstanding.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts or parts of acts inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 18, 1881.

CHAPTER XXI.

An Act to amend an act entitled "An act to establish boards of education of cities of the first class in this state, and to prescribe the duties of school officers therein," approved one thousand eight hundred and ninety.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That any board of education of any city of the first class in this state shall have power to appoint a person of qualified experience, who shall be superintendent of schools, define his duties and fix his term of office and compensation, which shall not be changed during the term of office.

2. And be it enacted, That the office of superintendent of schools shall hold office for the said term and until his successor is appointed and qualified, not to removal by the board of education on complaint of cause.

3. And be it enacted, That all acts or parts of acts, general or special, inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed.

4. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved February 25, 1881.

CHAPTER XXVII.

An Act concerning district courts in this state.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the judges of the district courts in cities of the first class now in office shall continue in office until the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one, on which day their terms of office shall expire, and the judges of the said courts now in office shall be appointed by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, and shall continue in office for the term of five years, and until their successors shall be appointed and qualified, unless their successors shall be appointed by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 2, 1881.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

A Further Supplement to an act entitled "An act to provide for the incorporation of railroad companies and to regulate the same," approved April ninth, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That whenever any railroad company heretofore incorporated under the provisions of the act to which this is a supplement, or any railroad company heretofore incorporated under the provisions of the several supplements thereto, or any railroad company heretofore incorporated by the consolidation of such company and the provisions of said act, and the several supplements thereto, shall have constructed and completed its railroad, or any railroad company heretofore incorporated by the consolidation of such company and the provisions of said act, and the several supplements thereto, shall have constructed and completed its railroad, and the street railway company have been duly and legally incorporated by any two municipalities in this state, and the street railway company have been duly and legally incorporated by any municipality in this state, and the street railway company shall be built and equipped ready for the passenger service of the public, it shall be lawful for the purchasers of such railroad, and the street railway company to consolidate themselves together by articles in writing for the purpose of forming a consolidated railroad company, and to maintain and operate such street railways and railroad.

2. And be it enacted, That the articles of consolidation shall state the name of the consolidated company, the name of the railroad which shall be operated by the consolidated company, the name of the street railway and turnpike, as soon as may be, which such consolidated company shall own and operate through which said consolidated company shall operate its railroad, the number of shares of the company, the number of shares into which the capital stock of the company shall be divided, the amount of the capital stock of the company, the number of the directors of the company, the names and residences of the persons who shall be directors of the company for the first year, and the time and place of the annual election of directors of the company, and such other matters as may be necessary to the proper organization of the company.

3. And be it enacted, That the said articles of consolidation, the capital stock of the company, the number of shares of which the capital stock shall consist, the number of directors, and the names of the persons who shall be directors for the first year, shall be subscribed to by the persons forming the said consolidated company, and the said articles shall be acknowledged before some officer authorized to take the acknowledgment of deeds, and a certificate of the acknowledgment of the same, and a copy of the said articles of consolidation, shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, and the said articles of consolidation shall have endorsed upon the same, and upon the copy thereof, the certificate of the secretary of state that he has examined the said articles of consolidation, and finds that they conform to the requirements of this act, and when the said articles of consolidation shall have been so filed, and the said certificate endorsed thereon, the persons who have subscribed the said articles of consolidation, and their associates and successors, shall be a body corporate by the name stated in the said articles of consolidation, and shall have the powers conferred upon railroad companies by the act to which this is a supplement, and the several supplements thereto, and shall be subject to the restrictions and duties imposed upon railroad companies incorporated under said act, except so far as the provisions of said act are modified or changed by this act.

4. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act shall be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 1, 1881.

CHAPTER XXIX.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act to provide for the support and maintenance of the several counties of this state," approved March seventeenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the sum of one thousand eight hundred and forty-seven dollars and seventy-four cents, be and the same is hereby appropriated to the county of Passaic, to pay the amount of the judgment recovered against the said county by the Paterson Savings Institution, and that the said sum be paid by the state treasurer upon the warrant of the comptroller, out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 4, 1881.

CHAPTER XXX.

A Further Supplement to "An act respecting conveyances," approved April twenty-seventh, twenty-seven, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five.

Whereas, Commissioners of deeds in and for this state have, in numerous cases, through inadvertence or mistake, continued to take acknowledgments of deeds, mortgages and other writings after their term of office had expired, and whereas such acknowledgments have become void at the time of taking such acknowledgments, and whereas it is necessary that such deeds, mortgages and other writings should be confirmed and made valid and legal and effectual, and whereas many such deeds have already been valid, legal and effectual if the terms of office of the commissioners who took the same by enlargement or proof had not expired, nor his office become vacated, but the same would be valid and in no wise affected.

1. Be it enacted, That this act shall be deemed a public act, and shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 2, 1881.

CHAPTER XXXI.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act concerning executors," approved April fourteenth one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the administrator cum testamento annexo shall have the same powers and be subject to the same duties under the provisions of said act to which this is a supplement.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 2, 1881.

CHAPTER XXXII.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act to regulate elections," approved April eighteenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in all cases of contested elections of any county, township, ward or district officer, or member of any county of this state, the questions of fact shall be tried and determined by the circuit court in such county, and in the same manner as is now provided by law for the trial of contested elections of members of the assembly; and the said court shall have the same jurisdiction and power in the premises as it has in the trial of contested elections of members of the assembly, and the proceedings shall be the same as nearly as practicable as in the trial of contested elections of members of the assembly, and the said court shall have the same power to issue writs of subpœna, and to punish for contempt, as in the trial of contested elections of members of the assembly.

2. And be it enacted, That the said petition of contest or notice thereof shall be served upon the said incumbent at least ten days before the first day of the term of the said court at which the said petition is to be presented, and that the said petition shall be presented to the said court during the first three days of said term, and if not presented during said three days, the said petition of contest shall be dismissed; and the said court shall have power to make all such rules and regulations as may be necessary for the due and orderly conduct of the said trial, and for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this act.

3. And be it enacted, That the said petition of contest or notice thereof shall be served upon the said incumbent by the sheriff of the county, or by the coroner, if the sheriff is a party to the contest, by delivering to him a copy thereof, or by leaving a copy thereof at his usual place of residence with some person of suitable age and discretion residing therein, and that the return of service of the said petition or notice thereof shall be made to the said court.

4. And be it enacted, That the said petitioner or petitioners shall, before the presentation of the said petition, enter into a recognizance to the state of New Jersey, with sufficient sureties, in the penal sum of two hundred dollars, conditioned for the payment of all costs that may be awarded against the said petitioner or petitioners, and that the said petitioner or petitioners shall not withdraw the said petition without the consent of the court.

5. And be it enacted, That the said petitioner or petitioners shall, before the presentation of the said petition, deposit with the clerk of the said court the sum of two hundred dollars, to be paid to the said incumbent, if he shall be declared entitled to the same by the decision of the said court, and that the said petitioner or petitioners shall also deposit with the said clerk the sum of fifty dollars, to be paid to the said clerk for his services in the premises, and that the said petitioner or petitioners shall also deposit with the said clerk the sum of fifty dollars, to be paid to the sheriff or coroner for his services in the premises, and that the said petitioner or petitioners shall also deposit with the said clerk the sum of fifty dollars, to be paid to the said incumbent, if he shall be declared entitled to the same by the decision of the said court

CITY DEPARTMENT.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY OF UNION.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - City Editor.

—A shad was recently caught in the Raritan River at New Brunswick, weighing 8½ pounds.

—Thomas Rotherlee was appointed Borough Bailiff by the Borough Council Monday night.

—The Legal Legion has closed for the summer. Due notice of the re-opening in the fall will be given.

—The Edmont cafe, West Second street near Park avenue, is open on Sundays from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m.

—The Plainfield Board of Health authorizes THE PRESS to state that not a single case of scarlet fever exists in Plainfield to-day.

—Through the agency of real estate broker Mulford, the Putnam avenue residence of Leo Dalt has been sold to Dr. King of New York.

—A tramp in woman had her pocket picked at the corner of Broadway and Murray street, while on a shopping trip to New York Monday.

—The First Baptists are trying to decide between Lake Hopatcong and Asbury Park as the means of their excursion train this year. Hopatcong will probably be selected.

—A North Plainfield lad by the name of Orr was killed a black-snake more than four feet long, on the mountains, Sunday, and dissected the body to an admiring crowd of people.

—Some of the lumber sheds at Boice's coal yard were afire twice Saturday night, both times from locomotive sparks. Boys just cost the first night's blaze, and night-watchman Dunavan the second.

—The firm of Milliken Bros., of which Samuel Milliken's Sons of Central avenue are members, have received the contract for Second street Railway Company an order for 275 trolley poles, such as has been erected in front of Roberts's stables on North avenue.

—John French, an old man who has of late worked for Mrs. Chase of East Front street, fainted away at the Salvation Army meeting Tuesday and had to be assisted to his home. He has been failing rapidly the past few weeks, and is said to be dying of old age.

—During the recent scarlet-fever scare a woman who had been told by a physician that belladonna was an excellent preventive of the disease, for one exposed to it, got a little evidence of it during and nearly died. Prompt medical attendance was all that saved her.

—Patrick Muldoon's mustang got out of its stable on West Third street early Tuesday morning and in its wild career frightened milkman Mollek's horse so that that animal took refuge on the front steps of Sullivan's saloon, after upsetting the wagon, damaging the vehicle, and spilling all the milk.

—For twenty years the late ex-Senator Cornell, of Morris county, drove a gray horse. The animal was owned by her old master and was very kindly treated. Last week she dropped dead suddenly at the Succasunna railroad station of heart failure. Two hours later her master died of the same trouble.

—The small boy has few swimming-holes in this vicinity, now-a-days. What good places there used for by the law are guarded jealously by men with guns and dogs. All the people would half with delight the advent of free baths, with a generous supply of water, in Plainfield. The baths would be self-supporting.

—The third and last concert of the Plainfield Choral Society for this season, will occur on Friday evening next, as already announced in THE PRESS. The "Creation" Oratorio will be given by the Society, assisted by Miss Clementine De Vere, soprano; Mr. H. E. Holmes, bass, Ericson Bushnell, bass, and an orchestra.

—Two lads who had been throwing stones through the windows of the Crescent rink building, were arrested by Capt. Grant and taken before the City Judge, who suspended sentence on them on Saturday. Other arrests will probably follow, and some of those who have been breaking in the building will be sent to jail.

—John Nichols and William Mosher, who are known to the theatrical fraternity as "Tom John" and "Amateur Billy", dropped their lines in the briny deep at Bound Brook, last Saturday. The catch was large, as usual, and among the number was a 5 and a half pound German carp, taken in out of the wet by the Amateur.

—Lieutenant Watkins, of the Salvation Army, who is known as "the English girl" by the people among whom she works, but who is of Welsh nationality, has been quite ill. In spite of her sickness she has pluckily attended to her Army duties, and has been active in seeking and saving sinners in the dark corners of the city.

—Last Saturday night's run of the Elizabeth Wheelmen was one of the largest and most enjoyable held in years. Seventeen men comprised the party, and the ride was to Plainfield. At Plainfield they met the Plainfield Club, and the entire party, numbering about forty, rode on together and made a short parade through the streets of Plainfield.

—Sunday afternoon at the Church of the Holy Cross was given the first elaborate musical rendering of "Passion Music" in title in a series of services of such to be given at least monthly, or as may be announced. There was a large congregation present, and the music was led by the choir master, W. H. Miner, as well as to the members of the choir, who acquitted themselves admirably.

—The people of Grace Protestant Episcopal church are very proud of their surpliced choir, and naturally want full credit given for the excellent work done by the singers during the recent dedication of the Diocese. The published report that the choir were assisted by singers from the Church of the Holy Cross is an error growing out, of misinformation given to the reporters by some of the clergymen.

—A very interesting game of base-ball was played Saturday afternoon between the Juniors of South Plains and the Juniors of the Pond Meadow Tool Work's. The score of 19 to 18 was in favor of the Professionals, who, although men, did not beat the Juniors by a big margin. The battery for the Professionals was Hand and Ball; for the Juniors Foose and McComas. The umpire was Albert McComas.

The Penalty of Not Advertising.

Some Hebrew merchants who came from the great metropolis to Plainfield a short time ago and opened a store on West Front street with stock that was unpaid for, has had to close. Sheriff Cook is the sheriff representing his creditors, and the store has been closed. As he did n't advertise, no one knows his name, save the deputy sheriff, and he won't tell.

The City Hotel Probably Sold.

William Kelly, an extensive property owner in this city, having Broads and Somerset streets and Park avenue, at John Mercer's property, including the line in front of the City Hotel at the corner of Second street and Park avenue, at John Mercer. The property includes the line in front of and for as the Crescent League club-house, and the price is about $25,000. The buildings at 26 and 28 Park avenue are owned by Mr. Kelly.

PERSONALIA.

Rowland Cox called for Europe Saturday.

Dr. C. M. Field has returned from Bermuda.

Dr. T. S. Davis returned to-day from a short vacation trip.

C. W. McCutchen and family have returned from a western trip.

Miss Dorcas Tier of Rahway is visiting her relatives at Tier's Lake.

William D. Murray and the Misses Murray have been traveling in Kentucky.

Miss Mabel Woodruff of East Second street, is visiting friends in Philadelphia.

Messrs. Frazer and Ed. Raymond, of Central avenue, sail for Europe on Saturday.

Miss Morse of Brooklyn is visiting her sister, Mrs. Armstrong Mulford, of East Fifth street.

Eugene Ecorit of La Grande avenue arrived home to-day from Atlantic City. Much improved in health.

J. B. Dumont has been elected a member of the Governing Committee of the New York Stock Exchange, to serve four years.

Miss Phillips is very hospitably filling the place of matron vacated at the Home by Lenteny Hospital during Miss Walrod's vacation.

Miss Ida H. Sofield of West Second street returned on Tuesday after a few weeks' enjoyable visit with her grandparents at Perth Amboy, N. J.

Bishop Wiscent will visit his many friends in this city in June, and will preach morning and evening, June 21, in the Methodist Episcopal church.

Architect Charles Smith will soon begin the erection of a fine residence for John G Musgrave, on the corner of Second and Sycamore avenues, Washington Park.

Sinclair Stewart of Park avenue was one of the prominent guests at the launching of the handsome new-style screw ferryboat Bronx at Rahway on Tuesday.

S. B. Booth, of Bergen Point, has leased a home at 69 Madison avenue, this city, for the Summer at least. He is a brother of A. H. Booth, President of the New Jersey Athletic Club.

The marriage of Miss Esther L. Garett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Garett, of Sandford avenue, to Henry W. Rankin, will take place on Tuesday afternoon, May 26, at 12:30 o'clock, at the home of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Blackford, of Grove street, celebrated their silver wedding anniversary Saturday evening. A large number of guests were present, and each brought a handsome gift. The evening was a most enjoyable one.

Tuesday night Miss Florence M. Randolph, of West Front street, gave an evening social to a large number of young people. Miss Randolph parted at a late hour, with the regret that they had spent a very enjoyable evening.

The Rev. Charles E. Dunn, son of S. F. Dunn of this city, and the Rev. A. V. V. Raymond, pastor of the Second Baptist, are among the commissioners to the Presbyterian general assembly at New York that will try Prof. Briggs for heresy, next week.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Becker, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., who have been spending a few days at The Albion, left Tuesday afternoon for their home. Mrs. Becker is the sister of Senator Hines of Wilkesbarre, and niece of Mrs. Peter Hines of Liberty street.

W. N. Runyon, who is one of the best singers on the Yale Glee Club, and who sang so acceptably at the club's concert in New York city Saturday night, was the guest over Sunday of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Runyon of East Second street.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Cassel, of the Plainfield House, New York, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. William Cadmus, of Doer street. They are delighted with Plainfield, which they had never before visited. Mrs. Cassel is an aunt of Mr. Cadmus.

Horatio McCoy is the clerk; men appointed by Bishop H. M. Turner at the Second Conference year, and in charge of the African Methodist Episcopal church at Plainfield. The church at present meets in Manning's hall on West Front street.

The wedding of the Rev. George M. Angleson to Miss Ella Cory took place at the home of the bride's parents on Grant avenue, at 6 o'clock, on the 6th of May 6, in the presence of only immediate relatives. The bride and groom left for their home in Kansas City soon after the ceremony. They received many handsome gifts.

The Rev. and Mrs. Davis, of Shanghai, China, where they have charge of the Seventh Day Baptist mission, are spending this country Saturday, after a ten years' absence, and are visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hubbard, of West Fifth street. Mrs. Davis is a sister of Mrs. Hubbard. The missionaries brought with them a nine-year-old son, Theodore, who was born in China, and who never before saw any country but China and Japan. He nevertheless speaks English with the nicest precision. Mr. Davis will spend two years here for the benefit of his health.

New Officers and a New Hall.

The new hall of the Park Club will be opened with a brilliant entertainment the latter part of this month.

At the recent annual election of the club the following officers were elected:

President—J. C. Stevens.
Vice President—Clarence W. Smith.
Secretary—Percy Hallenbeck.
Trustees—George Hamlin, George R. Brown.

But His Plainfield Church Goes on.

The Bound Brook Chronicle says: "The Rev. J. B. Cleaver and family have removed from Plainfield to the farm lately purchased of H. A. King, just east of Bound Brook. Mr. Cleaver is a man of enterprise and push, and has great faith in the future prosperity of our community. He and his family are valuable acquisitions to our town."

The Fast Tour of Grace Parish.

On Sunday last, the Rev. E. M. Rodman, rector, read the parochial report of the work of Grace church parish for the past year, including the following statement:

Families in the parish, 133; individuals, about 260. Baptisms—Infants, 12; adults, 2. Confirmed, 23. Marriages, 8. Burials, 27. Communicants, 239 Receipts, $12,620.

The Pills Assume Superior Blood.

Joseph Pitts, of wheelbarrow ability as a bicyclist Plainfielders have heard a great deal, since his remarkable story of his remarkable run to Newark was published in THE PRESS, to now and to be training for the big road race at Irvington. He expects to capture first prize, and local sports trusting in his assurances promise to wager their money on his success.

Deadline Reinstated Form a League.

The young people of the Dunellen Methodist church have organized a chapter of the Epworth League. Officers have been elected as follows:

President—W. C. Kinney.
Vice President—Miss Hines, Miss Louise Apgar, Miss Ella Fisher, Mrs. T. J. Todd.
Secretary—Frank Cooley.
Treasurer—Miss Lizzie Todd.

The league will hold business meetings the evening of the first Friday of every month, and a prayer-meeting every Sunday evening at 6:45. A training class will meet Monday, at night.

—90 in the shade, on the downtown streets, Monday.

Real Estate Transfers.

The Central Trust, the organ of the Republican party of this city, says: "Senator Fred Ahrens has been appointed Prosecutor of Pleas in Union county in place of W. R. Wilson. He could think and fast to this young lawyer and they do not consider appointment. The best-is in his astronomical ability to jump masses restricted to Mr. Mayer's own party."

Their Pleasant Time Planned.

The ladies of the Monday afternoon Club elected officers, at their recent annual meeting, as follows:

President—Mrs. Isaac Miller, Jr.
Vice President—Mrs. Isaac Miller, Mrs. Charles Hall, Mrs. Thomas Stillman, Jr.
Treasurer—Mrs. William H. Hartley.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. George Warren Edwards.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. George Phillips Mellick.

To Rome Soft for the Local Papers.

In commenting on the list of contributions and request issued advertising pamphlets and other articles deposited in the cornerstone of the new Grace church building, the Elizabeth Herald remarks that "strangely enough no recording or city papers were thought worthy of being thus handed down to posterity". But they had better parked a copy of the New York World beside a prayer-book!

Our Neighbor's Fleas Are Always Fighting.

(From The Bonded Justice.)

The public schools of this city if they have no patrolman, should at least have politicians. They have all been presented, with flags, yet few fly them.—Plainfield Press.

Let us send some of Westfield's regular Color Guard to help them out, Brother Democrat. Have n't missed a day—yet, rain or shine, ever since the flag was first run up. Westfield was this first in the field, too, so far as this part of the county is concerned.

Third Somerset County Party Leaders.

The State Board of Taxation, which met Somerville yesterday and met a number of the Town ship Assessors. Each assessor was put under a cross examination as to the property he had listed, and what his judgment on the value if found. The State Board came to the conclusion that Somerset county was the most fairly assessed of any it had yet visited. One of the members said that the personal property was more thoroughly reached than the Commissioners had seen elsewhere. In most of the townships they found that the farming land was assessed to its full value and even beyond.

The Reason of It.

For the information of the editor of the Trenton Times—although his assumption that a person in Plainfield exists is rather presumptuous—we will say that the designation of the Central Times at this city, instead of the news, as an official paper to publish the laws of the last legislature, was done at the solicitation of the leading members of the Republican and the Democratic parties of this city.

The Republicans asked it because they do not recognize the news as in anyway their representative. The Republican Board of Freeholders of this county have refused the news their official work while the Republican Common Council of this city have cut the news off their list, and the Democratic State party has ignored it so far as any recognition of its existence is concerned.

The Democrats asked for the appointment of the Central Times, because they respect it as an honest antagonist fighting for political victory with its party's principles and accomplishments as weapons. On the other hand the entire community agree that the news is a dirty foe, with dirty words and dirty ways of battle.

When the Freight House Will be Moved.

(From The Central Times.)

When the city acquires a piece of property, that is lost in the island, and when the city would not buy ever if it were, then the Central Railroad Company may be induced to move the freight house not into that which is unsightly into a garden spot. It is pretty safe to say, therefore, that the same death trap will exist, as it has existed for years, until the company sees fit to have it otherwise, in spite of all the petitions Plainfield people may sign. It is a characteristic way railroads have of having their own sweet will, and of telling the people to mind their own business, though the Central Railroad is a little more polite at out it than some others in surrounding localities, as far as possible provision. There is one thing that will remove the freight house with its network of deadly tracks. When a number of Plainfield widows or Plainfield orphans seek damages for the loss of dear ones at this place, the railroad company will certainly move the freight house into the middle of nowhere. Then will the accident we all have been predicting for years. It has not come yet, but it will some time; and when it does the freight house will surely move on.

Dr. Lewis Speaks for His Alma Mater.

Alumni of Alfred University, the Seventh Day Baptist institution at Alfred Centre, Allegheny county, New York State, gave a reception recently at the residence of Hill Hotel, New York city, to the Rev Dr. Jonathan Allen, the President of the University. Over seventy-five people were present. An association of the Alumni living in and near New York was formed. Officers were chosen as follows: President—Dr. Daniel Lewis, Vice Presidents—Prof. Gardner P. Randolph, Dr. C. P. Minard, and C. G. Chapman; Secretary and Treasurer—Herbert G. Whipple. Speeches were made by the Rev. Dr. Thomas Armitage, the Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis of Plainfield, and President Allen.

Some of those present were: Prof. Thomas Hiscox, of Stevens Institute, son of ex-Mayor Stillman of this city, Mrs. Stillman, the late Dr. L. E. Livermore of Dunellen, and Mrs. G. J. Mayfield, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Taylor, Dr. and Mrs Ames C. Lewis, P. E. McClennan of Syracuse, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Dunham, Charles Potter Rogers, and other Plainfield graduates, Joseph M. Titsworth, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gorton, Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Titsworth, Prof. F. L. Green, Dr. Proctor J. B. Waite, and Prof. Stephen Babcock.

Some Hot Their Salaries, and Some Not a Pi.

From the schedule of assessments and receipts announced by the Episcopal Convention of New Jersey for the year ending May 1, 1891, it appears that Grace church of this city has paid with most commendable promptness the rector's salary of $2,000 and its Convention expenses of $50. Holy Cross church of North Plainfield has been similarly prompt in paying its rector's salary of $1,500, its Convention assessment of $30, and its Bishop's salary assessment of $55. Dr. Redman of Grace church gets the third highest salary in the Diocese. The highest two are: St. John's of Elizabeth, $4,000; St. Paul's, of Camden, $3,000. Other salaries range from $200 to $1,800, per year. One church, 44 Mullica Hill, offers only $100 as a salary. The assessments for the Bishop's salary during the year amounted to $1,130.00. Of this sum $1,075 00 was paid. The balance, outstanding former arrears of $631.50, is $578.-00. The total salary list of the Diocese is $61,125. Almost one-fifth of it remains unpaid. Some poor pastors seem not to have received anything on their salaries. Grace church at Westfield paid its salary of $600 and went into arrears of $30 on Convention expenses. The total Convention expense arrears is $205. Twenty-eight out of the 91 churches in the Diocese are delinquent according to the Convention during the year.

WOMAN'S WORTHY WORK.

Another Useful Year for a Plainfield Band of Laborers.

The tenth anniversary of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of the Trinity Reformed church was celebrated Sunday evening. The past year's work in the church interest has been its best, and much good work has been accomplished, as the appended reports will show. The meeting was intensely interesting from start to finish. Mr. Poole is a pleasant-faced, editying, fluent speaker. Those who absented themselves from hearing him lost a treat. "A dry talk on missions" missed a genuine treat.

The interesting reports which follow show the variety and extent of work done by the society. The first is that of Mrs. C. F. Frank, secretary, and the second that of Mrs. Jennie S. Bod, treasurer:

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

We meet to-day on the tenth anniversary of the Ladies' Christian Work Society, and it has been a happy work that we have done.

Our meetings have been well attended, and much interest has been manifested in the evening meetings, which have been generally held at the home of the ladies, who by turns so hospitably assist pleasant hours together, while working for others.

We have at present a membership of 47. During the past year we have lost no members, and but one has left our church and our work; while six new names have been added to our roll.

By the aid of a regular pledged amount for the chairman of the sewing committee, we were enabled to make up a quantity of new garments during the year.

Last November a box of clothing and other useful articles was sent to Mr. and Mrs. Mensinga's, of Fremont, Michigan, whom we found very grateful recipients of our gifts. The box was valued at $75.35, and was considered the best box ever sent from this church.

The Washington Street Mission Sunday-school, valued at $20. Over the collection for domestic missions this year was especially deputed for ministers for a parsonage in the west, and a small collection was sent for foreign missions.

Last month (April 28), a barrel of cast-off clothing was sent to the Schenkel colored school, at Aiken, South Carolina, valued at $25. In May, the ladies held a bazar, for the purpose of raising money to help pay the floating debt on the church, and for most of which we realized, which was handed to the treasurer, Mr. Gayle.

At our last business meeting it was decided to hold a number of afternoon teas at the homes of the ladies who might so desire, and that an offering of twenty-five cents be expected from each, the proceeds to be used towards paying off the floating debt.

One of these teas has been held, and proved so helpful a pleasure, that financial success, and it is hoped that at the next a still larger number of the congregation and friends may attend.

Social meetings have been held in the lecture room, which have proved very helpful ones. The reports from the visiting committees, how that a great many of our congregation have been called on by the ladies of the society.

The poor of the church have been cared for, and at Thanksgiving six families were provided with provisions. All our committees have worked faithfully, and we thank them all for cause for encouragement; but on all strives to do more than in the past, and we feel that we are doing so far as any recognition of its existence is concerned.

The Democrats asked for the appointment of the Central Times, because they respect it as an honest antagonist fighting for political victory with its party's principles and accomplishments as weapons. On the other hand the entire community agree that the news is a dirty foe, with dirty words and dirty ways of battle.

When the Freight House Will be Moved.

(From The Central Times.)

When the city acquires a piece of property, that is lost in the island, and when the city would not buy ever if it were, then the Central Railroad Company may be induced to move the freight house not into that which is unsightly into a garden spot. It is pretty safe to say, therefore, that the same death trap will exist, as it has existed for years, until the company sees fit to have it otherwise, in spite of all the petitions Plainfield people may sign. It is a characteristic way railroads have of having their own sweet will, and of telling the people to mind their own business, though the Central Railroad is a little more polite at out it than some others in surrounding localities, as far as possible provision. There is one thing that will remove the freight house with its network of deadly tracks. When a number of Plainfield widows or Plainfield orphans seek damages for the loss of dear ones at this place, the railroad company will certainly move the freight house into the middle of nowhere. Then will the accident we all have been predicting for years. It has not come yet, but it will some time; and when it does the freight house will surely move on.

Dr. Lewis Speaks for His Alma Mater.

Alumni of Alfred University, the Seventh Day Baptist institution at Alfred Centre, Allegheny county, New York State, gave a reception recently at the residence of Hill Hotel, New York city, to the Rev Dr. Jonathan Allen, the President of the University. Over seventy-five people were present. An association of the Alumni living in and near New York was formed. Officers were chosen as follows: President—Dr. Daniel Lewis, Vice Presidents—Prof. Gardner P. Randolph, Dr. C. P. Minard, and C. G. Chapman; Secretary and Treasurer—Herbert G. Whipple. Speeches were made by the Rev. Dr. Thomas Armitage, the Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis of Plainfield, and President Allen.

Some of those present were: Prof. Thomas Hiscox, of Stevens Institute, son of ex-Mayor Stillman of this city, Mrs. Stillman, the late Dr. L. E. Livermore of Dunellen, and Mrs. G. J. Mayfield, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Taylor, Dr. and Mrs Ames C. Lewis, P. E. McClennan of Syracuse, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Dunham, Charles Potter Rogers, and other Plainfield graduates, Joseph M. Titsworth, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gorton, Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Titsworth, Prof. F. L. Green, Dr. Proctor J. B. Waite, and Prof. Stephen Babcock.

Some Hot Their Salaries, and Some Not a Pi.

From the schedule of assessments and receipts announced by the Episcopal Convention of New Jersey for the year ending May 1, 1891, it appears that Grace church of this city has paid with most commendable promptness the rector's salary of $2,000 and its Convention expenses of $50. Holy Cross church of North Plainfield has been similarly prompt in paying its rector's salary of $1,500, its Convention assessment of $30, and its Bishop's salary assessment of $55. Dr. Redman of Grace church gets the third highest salary in the Diocese. The highest two are: St. John's of Elizabeth, $4,000; St. Paul's, of Camden, $3,000. Other salaries range from $200 to $1,800, per year. One church, 44 Mullica Hill, offers only $100 as a salary. The assessments for the Bishop's salary during the year amounted to $1,130.00. Of this sum $1,075 00 was paid. The balance, outstanding former arrears of $631.50, is $578.-00. The total salary list of the Diocese is $61,125. Almost one-fifth of it remains unpaid. Some poor pastors seem not to have received anything on their salaries. Grace church at Westfield paid its salary of $600 and went into arrears of $30 on Convention expenses. The total Convention expense arrears is $205. Twenty-eight out of the 91 churches in the Diocese are delinquent according to the Convention during the year.

Rector Has Wife and Want Sent to Jail.

William Kenny, of Plainfield was recently committed to the county jail for sixty days. When he had served about half the term his wife visited and the jail authorities, in sympathy for Kenny and relenting him in order that he might attend the funeral services. That was Wednesday. Kenny returned to jail Monday night again committed for sixty days, having been arrested for disorderly conduct.—Elizabeth Journal.

A Sermon and a Supper.

The Rev. E. M. Redman, of Grace church, participated in the celebration of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church, Sunday evening, and the names of Sir Knight F. O. Herring and other Plainfielders appear in the list. A both papers list of Knights Templar attending the services especially prepared for them. From the church the cavalcade of knights went to VanOrnt Inn and had a jolly supper.

New Planing Mill a Home for Truly Master.

Not satisfied with having begun the building of one of the handsomest church edifices in the city, the Grace church people are already talking of the erection, at some future period, of a rectory and a parish building. For the latter the old church will do duty for a time.

Bi-hop Scarborough speaks of the new church as the consummation of Dr. Redman's long rectorship and a lasting monument of his unwearied labors among the citizens".

Head of the Age of Ninety Years.

Mrs. Nancy Hays Scudder, who was born in Westfield in July, 1801, died of pneumonia at her home, 205 West Twelfth street, New York city, May 6, in the 90th year of her age. She was the daughter of William Hays, one of Westfield's original settlers. At the age of 22 she was married to William Scudder, who died about 20 years ago. Mrs. Scudder and builder in New York city, and went to Newark to live. Mr. Scudder died forty-five years ago. Mrs. Scudder has been confined to her room for the past two years, but her mental faculties were clear until the end. She leaves four children, five grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Escaped Railway Dangers to be Obviated.

When E. Hicks Cattman began travelling daily back and forth between Bound Brook and New York city, over the Jersey Central, he deemed it the part of a prudent man to secure a policy insuring him off against accident, and regularly for several years he paid the premium, and regularly each year got a check in settlement of his losses. Wednesday morning he got up a trifle earlier than usual, took a delightful walk about in the fresh morning air and ate a bit of dirt-cake, went out into his father's barn and worried a sitting hen. The hen got fighting mad, however, and chased him off a high fence. In landing in the field Mr. Board floor he damaged his internal mechanism considerably and severely sprained his ankle. And now, though all his more unexpected needs, he is able to enjoy the fruits of his years of premium-paying. During the three months he will be laid up he will draw $60 per week, and when he is fully fledged when he next s-es their trustful beneficiary.

Borough Police Protection Wanted.

Now that the borough has a regularly appointed marshal in Thomas Rutledge and a police justice in Thomas Crosley it is to be hoped that the police protection that of late has been so sadly lacking will now be accorded to the North Plainfielders.

During the past week several ladies have been openly insulted on the potrolled streets, and one who was seized by the arm by a ruffianly fellow got rid of her assailant only by screaming and finally whacking him in the face with her parasol.

Night before last a young man on a bicycle was stopped by a local bully and money was demanded. The bicyclist managed to get away without injury or loss, but the disappointed robber threw stones after him and almost hit him.

It is said that bad gangs infest the dark corners near some of the bridges and demand money of the foot passengers they waylay.

They Kicked Not Enough, But Cut Towels Sore.

Bound Brook has a dog pound, and Plainfield's base-tastes seem to be very discriminating. From the fact that the woods are just now full of tramps, that the nights are chilly, and that the skilly-less fellows like snug beds and warm provender, the Bound Brook Chronicle infers that the big tan hill of nice new pets at the dog-pound, and the six months' term at hard labor, which the law awards to the skilly-less fellow who is caught in feeding her child. It is mailed free to say address.

Praise for Secretary Easterday's Thursday Talks.

The following brief eulogy of a most excellent Plainfield institution is quoted from the Sabbath Recorder, a religious paper published at Alfred Centre, N. Y.:

The Young Men's Christian Association holds a prominent and important place among the benevolent institutions of Plainfield. One interesting and profitable feature of the good work it is doing, is an occasional practical talk given gratuitously to young men, by men of experience in the particular line of which they speak. These talks are sometimes heard-talks for business men, and sometimes talks on health by local physicians. At how many of our towns and villages, even to which we send missionaries and, have been formed in the Y. M. C. A.'s, and how many of them are doing the work which this one in Plainfield is doing? Why is it that in so many places the Y. M. C. A. is a failure? Is it not because it is not doing the work which this one is doing? Illustrations. A series of ad dress and interviews given by Secretary Easterday.

AGENTS WANTED.

I want One Agent in every township or county in the United States to sell my Family Knitter. Price, $5. Will knit a pair of stockings in 20 minutes. Address G. W. ELLINGHAM, Publisher, New York.

3 14 mo

ELY'S CREAM BALM

Cleanses the Nasal Passages, Allays Pain and Inflammation, Heals the Sores, Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell.

CATARRH

HAY-FEVER TRY THE CURE.

A particle is applied into each nostril and is agreeable. Price 50 cents at Druggists or by mail. Circulars free. ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren street, Roch'r, N. Y.

1 19 19

CLAIRVOYANT!

A Few Days More!

Until Tuesday Evening, Seven o'clock, MAY 19,

NEVER TO RETURN AGAIN.

Call at once, and get your future told. I am the only clairvoyant now in this city, to see the greatest, most celebrated and most beloved palmist of the World.

Mrs DR. EDWARDS,

Known in this country from Maine to Mexico, and from Canada to Florida. Has never failed in a single case to tell the past, present and future correct, and will tell you the name of the person you are to marry, and when you will be married, and all about your business affairs. She gives reliable information to gentlemen in business matters, and tells you whether you will have to make profitable investments and acquire wealth by speculation or not. Mrs. Dr. Edwards is the most wonderful clairvoyant and palmist that ever visited this city. Her parlors are elegantly furnished, and she receives ladies and gentlemen in her private parlors. Remember the number, 19 Somerset street, Plainfield, N. J.

Ladies, 50c. to $2. Gentlemen, $2. Can be consulted in English.

City Hotel, Room 3, one Flight Up, PLAINFIELD, N. J. 5 5 14

PUBLIC AUCTION SALE.

To sell: the estate of J. J. Whitman, deceased, at 11 o'clock A. M. on the premises.

TUESDAY, MAY 19, 1891, at 11 a. m., on the premises.

This property is situated on East Front street, between Mr. J. Whitman's residence and the residence of Mr. Wm. Cox, and consists of Milford Cottage, with large Stores of 12 rooms, with all modern conveniences, bath-room, hot and cold water, carriage house, etc. Beautiful lawn, 66 feet front by 200 feet deep. Also, the Store and Dwelling House adjoining, with 7 rooms, bath-room, and one of the finest places to be had in the city. Also, the Store and Dwelling House on the rear, on Second street, with 6 rooms. Terms and title made known on day of sale.

Also, at the same time and place, after the sale of the above property, will be sold the Household Furniture, consisting of Parlor Suits, Bedroom Suits, Carpets, Mattresses, Bedding, Kitchen Furniture, Stoves, etc., etc., will be open for inspection on the day of sale. This must be a bona fide sale, as the property is to be settled up without reserve to the highest bidder.

Terms of sale made known on day of sale.

For further particulars call on or address

LEVI PIERCE, Auctioneer,
Office—2,114 Lexington avenue, N. Y. City.
Residence—Plainfield, N. J. 5 7 14

WANTS AND INFORMATION.

A. M. RUNYON & SON,
UNDERTAKERS, EMBALMERS,
69 PARK AVENUE.
Telephone Call 9.
RESIDENCE—68 MADISON AVENUE.
Telephone Call 82.
"Office of Hillside Cemetery."

WANTED—By residence, corner Myrtle and Grant avenues, Plainfield, a Pure Jersey Cow. Address, 19 Myrtle avenue, Plainfield. 5 7 14

—Several Salvation Army cadets paid a pleasant visit to cadet Greenwood, at Montclair, Sunday.

—The Boys' Club now opens evenings at 7:30 and closes at 9:45. Several new games have been added to the rooms.

—S. H. Smith, a colored man who lives near Netherwood, ran a nail into his foot while working at 202 Park avenue Tuesday. Lockjaw is feared.

Number of Children Born.

I have not used six of one bottle yet, and find myself improving in health every day. I am experiencing the astonishing prospect of the return of my youthful days. I am 60 years old, and have suffered from various complaints without benefit until I used Hop Bitters. I have not used any medicine for years that has done me so much good as Hop Bitters. I recommend a bottle, and have induced many of my friends to use it, and they all say the same as I do, that it is the best medicine in the world.—Mrs. C. Lewis, Detroit, Mich. Sold by druggists.

Number of children 2
Number of families 2
Number of children 5
Total number assisted 10
Number of persons or families otherwise assisted 5
Total rent paid in year ..... $ 1,200 00
Amount paid for coal, groceries and provisions 600 00
Amount paid for clothing 200 00
Amount paid for coal 225 00
Amount paid for rent 75 00
Amount paid for funerals 75 00
Salary of Overseer 200 00
Salary of City Physician, including medicines 200 00
Amount paid for board 200 00
Price per week for board of inmates per week 4 50

Total outlay during year $4,000 00
Number of legitimate births in destitute families 2
Number of illegitimate births assisted families 1
The city has recently rented a building of thirty-two rooms, where paupers are kept together instead of being scattered over the city, but the committee think that as the paupers are under supervision there are objections to the change.

A PLAINFIELD PASTOR'S PLAN.

Protestants Must Get Together, He Says, Or Fail Before Their Enemy.

The Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis has an interesting paper on "Christian Unity" in a recent issue of The Church Union. He says:

* * * Protestantism claims to be a reformatory movement; out from Roman Catholicism. It was an army fighting for a cause which gave it birth, nor escape the well-directed fire of the enemy. Its ranks were broken by a broader, better, and more enduring union than the church from which it has withdrawn. Denominalism, divided and dividing, is confronted by its ancient enemy, compact, subtle, adjustable, changing its tactics to meet the tactics of its methods, but never its purpose of making the world Roman Catholic. Arguing such an enemy, Protestantism has no hope of victory without greater union. * * *

I mention the following as a practical step toward Church Union. Let there be a world-wide commission appointed, say by the agency of the Evangelical Alliance, or by State action, to include the representatives of the various Protestant schools of thought. Add to these not less than five men of known standar, learning and honesty, who are not members of any denomination, clear-headed students of history. Let that commission begin a systematic examination of the Bible, especially of the New Testament, to determine what Christianity was actually and originally, before it was perverted by paganism. Give at least ten years' time to the examination of the books of the New Testament and the birth of Christ. This would constitute assisting symbols. I believe such an examination would develop a practical basis for worship, a godly adjustable enough, a system of faith sufficiently enough to meet the needs of the age, and Christianity to hasten the answer to Christ's prayer for unity. All movements that are unconstitutional must be abandoned. The test of the movement is justifiable, if it is based on the fundamental truths of the age. Let there be unity. The cross of this century ought to see such union repeating. If no such union can be accomplished, Protestantism as a system and Christianity is not an universal religion.

Borough Police Protection Wanted.

Now that the borough has a regularly appointed marshal in Thomas Rutledge and a police justice in Thomas Crosley it is to be hoped that the police protection that of late has been so sadly lacking will now be accorded to the North Plainfielders.

During the past week several ladies have been openly insulted on the potrolled streets, and one who was seized by the arm by a ruffianly fellow got rid of her assailant only by screaming and finally whacking him in the face with her parasol.

Night before last a young man on a bicycle was stopped by a local bully and money was demanded. The bicyclist managed to get away without injury or loss, but the disappointed robber threw stones after him and almost hit him.

It is said that bad gangs infest the dark corners near some of the bridges and demand money of the foot passengers they waylay.

They Kicked Not Enough, But Cut Towels Sore.

Bound Brook has a dog pound, and Plainfield's base-tastes seem to be very discriminating. From the fact that the woods are just now full of tramps, that the nights are chilly, and that the skilly-less fellows like snug beds and warm provender, the Bound Brook Chronicle infers that the big tan hill of nice new pets at the dog-pound, and the six months' term at hard labor, which the law awards to the skilly-less fellow who is caught in feeding her child. It is mailed free to say address.

Praise for Secretary Easterday's Thursday Talks.

The following brief eulogy of a most excellent Plainfield institution is quoted from the Sabbath Recorder, a religious paper published at Alfred Centre, N. Y.:

The Young Men's Christian Association holds a prominent and important place among the benevolent institutions of Plainfield. One interesting and profitable feature of the good work it is doing, is an occasional practical talk given gratuitously to young men, by men of experience in the particular line of which they speak. These talks are sometimes heard-talks for business men, and sometimes talks on health by local physicians. At how many of our towns and villages, even to which we send missionaries and, have been formed in the Y. M. C. A.'s, and how many of them are doing the work which this one in Plainfield is doing? Why is it that in so many places the Y. M. C. A. is a failure? Is it not because it is not doing the work which this one is doing? Illustrations. A series of ad dress and interviews given by Secretary Easterday.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Misses A. L. & M. D. GORSLINE,

Fancy Goods, Notions, Art Needle Work, Painted Novelties, &c.,

14 WEST FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD, N. J.

STAMPING AND DESIGNING A SPECIALTY.

ARTISTIC OUTLINING AND EMBROIDERY A SPE

IF YOU ARE GOING TO BUY A SUIT,

Or OVERCOAT, or anything in the line of

SPRING CLOTHING,

FOR GIRLS AND BOYS.

OUR BIRTHDAY.

You're a secret to tell you Dolly;
Let me whisper it in your ear
To-morrow will be our birthday;
Your heart says and mine, my dear!
As soon as the sun peeps over
The hill where the blackbird's nest is,
I'll be eight years old, my Dolly,
And you will be one, you know.

Don't pout so, my Dolly, Dolly;
I'm perfectly sure you do—
You're quite too old for nursing
The first thing I say was you?
You sat on the edge of a work box,
Waiting for baby child!
And when you saw I was looking,
You stretched out your arms and smiled.

And you're just as lovely as ever,
Though your cheek grew pale and thin,
And your lips as white as ashes,
And your left eye's taken in;
And if one leg is broken,
Another doll count hugs,
We'll be kind to her, brother shall not Suppleat you, Dolly dear.

We'll go to bed quite early,
And try to fall asleep,
And if we hear Mamma rustle,
We must take care not to peep,
And when we wake in the morning,
I will kiss you, dear, and say,
"Many happy returns, my Dolly!—
You're a year old to-day!"
—Charles Prescott Simmons, in Little Men and Women.

WHERE ELSIE FOUND HIM.

A Little Girl's search for the Maker of the Winter Window Pane Pictures.

The morning after the first nicely cold night had come, and Elsie was looking with great delight at the frost pictures on the window.

"Who did it, Phil?" she asked her brother.

"Jack Frost," said Phil.

"O, how pretty! When did he do it?"

"In the night, when you were fast asleep."

"Where is he now? I want to see him."

"You can't see him. Nobody ever sees him."

There were beautiful castles and towns and lakes and bridges. And in one place there were trees which looked exactly as if you might walk under them and pick wild flowers and hear the birds sing. And some of the panes were covered with delicate lace. After breakfast Elsie put on her coat and cap and mittens and went out of doors.

"O, see!" she cried. "The little brook is all covered up with glass. Who did it?"

"That isn't glass," said Phil. "That's ice, and I'm glad of it, for I'm going to have a good skate on it. Jack Frost did it, and see how hard he has made the ground."

Elsie could not skate, so, after watching Phil for a little while, she went into the house to look at the frost pictures again. But they were all gone. The sun had told her that it was the moisture in the air of the room which made them. The cold outside froze it to keep the panes in those pretty shapes. When the room gets warm they melt away.

"Then where is Jack Frost?" asked Elsie.

"People talk about Jack Frost just for a fancy," said mamma. "But there is really no such person."

Of course Elsie believed every word mamma said, but she could not help thinking there must be somebody to make such pretty pictures. He might be something like Santa Claus, a person in whom mamma only seemed not to believe. Probably mamma had never been awake in the night to see him. She made up her mind she would watch for him, and she went to bed she kept her eyes fixed on the pane, sure she would keep awake until he came to make more pictures. But the next thing she knew the gaslight was gone and the sunlight was peeping in. She sprang up and looked at the window. There they were—all the frost pictures again, but this time different ones.

She crept on the lookout for Jack Frost. One morning she said: "The trees are like little white feathers."

"That's Jack Frost," said Phil.

Sometimes a pitcher of water would be found broken in the morning.

"That's Jack Frost," said Susan, the girl. "He has been drinking out of them."

Elsie thought it was not good manners in Jack to do that, and when he came to get a drink. At last it rained all one day, and the next morning as Elsie looked out she cried:

"Oh, the trees all over diamonds."

"Jack Frost," said Phil.

Every night was shining and glistening in the sunlight. Elsie went out to see if she could not at last get a glimpse at Jack. But he always hid when he far off. In a minute she came rushing back to mamma.

"O, mamma, I've found him!

"Found whom, dear?"

"Jack Frost. Come and see." She led mamma out.

"See, there's his tail. He's hiding up there on the top of the porch."

A long icicle was hanging down from the porch.

Mamma laughed as she patted Elsie's cheek and said: "I guess you've found Jack Frost at last."—Interior.

TULA'S GUEST.

The Way a Kind Dog Fed Another One Who Was Starving.

I went out-of-doors early one morning, as was the custom with our near-living and wonderful people, to take a study of the weather, and the probable way of the wind for the day. We did this frequently at that time of the year—time—and when we were very tired of the east wind, which hindered all out-of-door occupations. She said it was east now, as it had been for several days; the waters of the bay were pale and sullen under its influence. The wind when it snapped and smashed at the shore, and round the pier and the boats was very loud, whose masts bobbed unchangingly in every way. The marina lighted on the ridgepole of the barn, to watch the worms "come out of the west," like young Joshuaver.

The back door of the street was not safe, the post-office door was not open, and the shutters of the store were still up. I stood by the chimney and watched the efforts of a cold, watery sun coming through a band of stern clouds, and then I saw a dark object moving up from the end of the road. It was a large dog Tula, black but not over-comely, for he was a dog of many breeds, the result of which was a mongrel. She told me that we were blessed with a mongrel, although through it all Tula became associations of my presence. He began to dig the ground violently, and she still he unearthed a bone. Then he lay down, his head on his forepaws, and watched his luncheon with great gravity

The Constitutionalist,
A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.
M.L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE, Editors and Proprietors.
AT PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY.
TERMS—TWO DOLLARS A YEAR.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXIV. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, MAY 21, 1891. No. 21.

"Support the Constitution, which is the cement of the Union, as well in its limitations as to its powers."—Madison.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

JACKSON & DODDINGTON.
Counsellors-at-Law,
Commissioners of Deeds, Masters in Chancery, Notaries Public, &c.
Office, Front St., Plainfield, over Post Office.
Entrance on Park Place.

W. V. STEELE,
Counselor-at-Law,
Master and Examiner in Chancery, Supreme Court Commissioner, &c.
Office, PARK AND NORTH AVES. 4-30-1m

GEORGE W. DAY,
General Auctioneer,
Real Estate Agent and Conveyancer,
Office, No. 2 Park Place, Plainfield, N. J.
Sales of Real Estate, Personal property, Farms, Stock, &c., attended to in town or Country. Terms reasonable. 4-30-1y

DR. CHARLES E. TRIEBS,
Dentist,
22 West Front street, a new local anesthetic preparation for extracting teeth without pain. Gold filling a specialty.—4-9-3

H. HAND,
Auctioneer,
Office, Address, and Sale Room, Second Floor, No. 2, Park Place, N. J.
Sales held at F. P. Dorey's second-hand store, 28 West Front street, Plainfield, N. J., will receive prompt attention.—4-16-1

OSCAR S. TRALE,
Architect,
247 Broadway, New York (cor. Rooms 12 and 13, Importers' and Traders' Bank Building.) Residence, Plainfield, N. J.—4-9-1

J. M. FROST, M.D.,
Veterinary Surgeon.
Office in A. M. Seguine's livery stable, corner Main Street and Madison avenue, Plainfield, N. J. Day residence, No. 1 Madison avenue. Night residence, No. 5 Madison avenue. Calls answered promptly at all hours. Telephone, No. 39 Plainfield, corner Main street.—3-26-1m

JOHN CHANDLER,
PAPERHANGER AND BUILDER,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Residence and Shop, No. 26 East 2d St.
Jobbing promptly attended to. 4-9-1y

T. J. GILLIES,
Auctioneer & Real Estate Agent.
SALESROOM—Madison Avenue, Fourth Door from Park Place, Plainfield, N. J.
Goods received on consignment.

TO THE PUBLIC!

We wish to inform our customers and the public generally that we have on hand a full supply of

LEHIGH COAL,

Fresh from the Mines.

It is under cover and well protected from the weather. We are prepared to deliver it well screened and in good order promptly. We are also prepared to furnish all kinds of Seasoned Lumber and Masons' Materials at short notice.

A. D. COOK & BRO.
[ninety]

J. Hervey Doane,
6 PARK AVENUE.
[Formerly Clerk's.]
Watches,
Clocks
And Jewelry.
Repairing neatly and promptly done. 4-9-1

FOR
BEAUTIFUL DESIGNS
In Furniture
GO TO
23, 25 and 27 PARK AVE.
Garret Q. Packer,

Steam Marble
Granite Works.
AND
Monuments & Headstones,
Fencing for Cemetery Plots.
Large assortment of Rhode Montello, Large variety of Granite Monuments
—
All orders executed in the most skillful manner and at very reasonable rates. All stones fully warranted up.
FRONT ST., NEAR THE M. E. CH., PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Monuments erected in Glenwood Cemetery free of charge. 4-9-1y

Alex. Willett,
DEALER IN
BOOTS & SHOES,
No. 1 PARK AVENUE.
A full assortment of desirable goods direct from manufacturers, at low prices. 4-9-1y

Geo. A. Moore,
(Of the late firm of Moore Bros.)
Is now finishing premises of the old established store at
NO. 14 NORTH AVENUE,
Where he will commence business on the 15th of March, with a full line of Fresh and Salt Meats, Fish of all kinds, Oysters, Clams, &c., in season. Also Poultry, Game, &c. Goods delivered to all parts of the city. Orders solicited and satisfaction guaranteed. 3-5-1m

HOTELS AND SALOONS.

FORCE'S HOTEL,
NORTH AVENUE, (NEAR N. B. S. STATION.)
JAS. H. FORCE, Prop'r.
A FIRST CLASS FAMILY HOTEL. Omnibus Meets Every Train. Transient guests at reasonable rates. 12-31-87

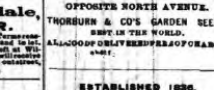
SOMERSET HOTEL,
Cor. Somerset & Cherry Sts., North Plainfield, N. J.
RICHARD A. BOYCE, Proprietor.
Permanent and transient board, at fair rates.
Livery and sale stables attached.
Meals in all communication hours.

Dime Savings Institution
OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest at the rate of three (3) per cent. per annum payable semi-annually.
JOHN W. MURRAY, President.
WILLIAM WHITE, Vice "
NATHAN HASKIN, "
ELIAS D. POTE, Treasurer.
4-9-1

Jas. M. Dunn,
Dealer in
GROCERIES, PROVISIONS,
Vegetables, Fruits, etc.
No. 36 Park Ave.
OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.
THORBURN & CO'S GARDEN SEEDS, SENT IN THE WORLD.
ALL GOOD DELIVERED FREE OF CHARGE. 4-30-1

ESTABLISHED 1836.
C.E. & J.W. BROWN,
[Successors to C. F. & C. E. Brown & Co.,]
Importers, Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
WALL PAPER.
21 Canal Street.
NEW YORK.
English Flats, Anaglypta, Hard, Leather Relaxed Flock Papers, &c. Borders for Halls.
Manufacturers of Window Shades. 2-21-17

LIVERY.

A. M. SEGUINE,
(Successor to John W. Laing.)
Laing's Hotel Stables


Front street, opposite Madison avenue.
Coaches for Weddings, Funerals and Private Calls. Light carriages of all descriptions for pleasure.
RIDING OR LIVERY.
Careful, safe drivers for shopping calls or pleasure drives. Special attention given to hunting horses by the day, week or month.
TELEPHONE CALL, NO. 34.

Livery Stables!
Mr. D. S. ROBERTS
Has Removed to His New Building on
NORTH AVENUE,
Adjoining Force's Hotel. Mr. Roberts will always be found ready and able to serve friends and the public in every particular and solicits a share of patronage. Horses and carriages for funerals and weddings furnished at short notice. Horses boarded by the day, week or month. Special attention given to boarding horses. Prompt attendance and careful drivers guaranteed.

Accommodation Express.
PETER RICKERT, Proprietor.
Office at Force's Hotel, Plainfield, N. J.
The Accommodation Express will leave the office at Force's Hotel at 7:30, 9:30, 11:30, 1:30, 3:30, 5:30 and 7:30 o'clock. Parties wishing to go to Dunellen or Bound Brook will please call at the office. Baggage, Furniture, Pianos, etc., with care and safely. Prompt attention given to orders.

INSURANCE.

FIRE INSURANCE!
The undersigned having accepted an agency for the
Star and Merchants
Fire Insurance Co's of the City of New York, is prepared to write insurance on dwellings, stores, factories and other buildings, and on household furniture, at the lowest rates consistent with safety.
NATHAN HARPER.

Speer's Sacramental Wine
Is held in high estimation for its richness as a Dry Table Wine, especially suited for dinner use.
Speer's P. J. Sherry
Is a Wine of superior body, aroma, and partakes of the rich qualities of the grape from which it is distilled.
Speer's P. J. Brandy
IS A PURE distillation of the grape, and stands unrivalled in this country for its medicinal purposes. It is used principally by physicians in the treatment of the sick.
See that the signature of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is over the cork of each bottle.
SOLD BY DRUGGISTS WHO KEEP FIRST-CLASS WINES. 6-19-y

WILLIAM A. WOODRUFF,
FIRE AND LIFE
INSURANCE AGENT,
Office cor. Front St. and Park Ave.,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Real Estate for Sale & Exchange.
MONEY TO LOAN
On Approved Security.

J. C. Pope & Co.,
GENERAL AGENTS OF THE
German American Ins. Co.,
of New York.
Also represent other first-class Fire Insurance Companies. Agents of the Lorillard Fire Insurance Co., Dividend Insured for cash. First and City National Bank Bonds Bought and Sold. Also, Real Estate.

BUILDING LOTS
And Other Real Estate for sale.
OFFICE:
No. 5 FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD.
ELIAS D. POTE.

EDUCATIONAL.

Miss SCRIBNER
AND
Miss NEWTON'S
SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
AND KINDERGARTEN,
17 LaGrande Avenue,
CORNER OF WASHINGTON STREET,
Will reopen WEDNESDAY, SEPT 17, 1890.
This regular course will include Modeling, Drawing and Cooking. 9 11 tf

PAINTERS & PAPERHANGERS SUPPLIES

Paints, Varnishes, Glass.
WINDOW SHADES AND FIXTURES.
WALL PAPERS!
PAPER HANGING A SPECIALTY.
A. SWALM,
No. 6 North Avenue, Plainfield.
3-26-3

S. B. WOOLSTON, J. P. BUCKLE
Woolston & Buckle,
PAINTERS,
Wall Papers,
PAINTERS' SUPPLIES. 26 NORTH AVENUE
4-30-1y

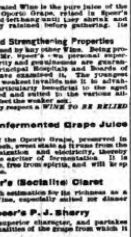
MISCELLANEOUS.

LEWIS B. CODDINGTON,
[Successor to T. J. Oberly.]
Furniture and Freight Express!
OFFICE—N. W. FRONT ST.
Large Covered Vans or Trucks. Goods delivered to any part of the U. S. Satisfaction guaranteed. Charges moderate. P. O. Box 326. Tel. No. 68. Piano moving a specialty. 12-27

Fresh Garden Seeds
AND FERTILIZERS,
Farm and Garden Implements,
Lawn Mowers Refrigerators,
Ice Cream Freezers,
Gasoline Stoves, Hardware, Tools, etc.
J. J. HEIDELOFF,
No. 13 SOMERSET ST. 4-15-tf

CANOPIES
For Weddings, Parties, Etc.,
TO HIRE. CHARGES REASONABLE
Hugo Weigman,
30 EAST FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD, N. J.
10-25-87

SPEER'S
GRAPE WINES,
ALSO
UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.
Used in the principal churches for communion. Excellent for females, weakly persons and the aged.



Speer's Port Grape Wine,
FOUR YEARS OLD.
THIS Celebrated Wine is the pure juice of the Concord (or Opetet Grape, raised in Speer's vineyards, and bottled by them only. Every article of production is carefully tested before gathering. Is invaluable.
Tonic and Strengthening Properties are guaranteed by hay other Wine. Being produced under the supervision of the proprietor, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed. Recommended by Physicians and Boards of Health who have examined it. The youngest child and the weakest females use it to advantage. It is particularly beneficial to the aged and debilitated and suited to the various ailments that effect the weaker sex.
THE ONLY WINE THAT CAN BE RELIED ON
Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice
is the juice of the Concord Grape, preserved in its natural fresh, sweet state as it runs from the press by fumigation and sterility, thereby destroying the exciter of fermentation. It is perfectly pure, free from spirits, and will keep in any climate.
Speer's (Socialite) Claret
is held in high estimation for its richness as a Dry Table Wine, especially suited for dinner use.
Speer's P. J. Sherry
is a Wine of superior body, aroma, and partakes of the rich qualities of the grape from which it is distilled.
Speer's P. J. Brandy
IS A PURE distillation of the grape, and stands unrivalled in this country for its medicinal purposes. It is used principally by physicians in the treatment of the sick.
See that the signature of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J. is over the cork of each bottle.
SOLD BY DRUGGISTS WHO KEEP FIRST-CLASS WINES. 6-19-y

Garden Seeds,
Direct from the Growers.
Othello Ranges,
Choice Clover and Timothy Seed,
House Furnishing Goods,
Hardware, Plumbing and Tinning.
A. E. GRIFFEN,
12 East Front Street.
TELEPHONE CALL, 8. 11-14

TOBACCO, SEGARS, &c.

H. EGGERDING,
No. 17 Park Avenue,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Manufacturer of the Celebrated
C. O. D. CIGAR.
The best cigar sold in the State, and made on the premises from the choicest tobacco.
ULLMAN HAVANA SEGARS A SPECIALTY.
A large assortment of the Choicest Brands of Foreign and Domestic Cigars. Cigarettes and Tobacco always on hand.
Smoker's Articles in Great Variety.
Trade Solicited.

O. M. FINE
Dealer in HAVANA & DOMESTIC
SEGARS!
No. 8 PARK AVE. (NEAR CORNER OF SECOND ST.)
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Tobacco and Smoker's Materials, of every description.
The celebrated "Old Judge" Smoking Tobacco, with the keepsake in each can. 4-9-1y

A. WOLFF,
Manufacturer of
CIGARS.
And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles, has removed from 304 W. Front street, to 62 W. Front street, one door east of Madison avenue, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally. 4-2-3m

CARNEY BROS., Ag'ts,
11 SOMERSET ST.
TINNERS,
PLUMBERS,
GAS FITTERS.
PARLOR STOVES.
COOK STOVES.
HEATERS.
Grates and Irons for all kinds of Stov s can be found here at Johnson's prices. Bring your Tinware mending to us. The best Tinners, the best Plumbers, and the best Gas-fitters in the section. We now use the very best of zinc for berials, and our work always gives satisfaction.

Keys of All Kinds are Made Here.
Tinware Made to Order.
Ranges, Brick and
Portable Furnaces
SANITARY PLUMBING.

"GOING HOME."

(Suggested by a touching tenderly pathetic picture, at the end and conclusion of a recent play called Jim.)

Across the meadows of years,
Where the sunlight of memory falls,
I hear the voices of children
And the echo of their footfalls.

I hear the laughter and shouting
From the fields of childhood days
That are hushed and still forever
Under the sunset haze.

While the mother sits sewing
Near the window, and looks out to watch
For the coming of her children
Across the meadow lots.

For old-time hopes and loyalties
Are in the mother's heart,
Waiting to welcome the children
Back from the fields of play.

But, oh, the years between!
Those hopes and loyalties were not enough
With fervent and flame of youth years
To keep the children home.

The weary soul removed the strength
Of the mother's arms and love,
From Him who knoweth when to call
The children home to rest.

To realms of everlasting day,
Where the mother's heart is waiting
For the children to come home.

While fireworks here and greetings there
Blot out those hours and hearts' longing,
Another shall come, and another,
Waiting to welcome the children home.

But, oh, the years between!
Those hopes and hearts were not enough
With fervent and flame of youth years
To keep the children home.

The weary soul removed the strength
Of the mother's arms and love,
From Him who knoweth when to call
The children home to rest.

To realms of everlasting day,
Where the mother's heart is waiting
For the children to come home.

While fireworks here and greetings there
Blot out those hours and hearts' longing,
Another shall come, and another,
Waiting to welcome the children home.

A HARD NUT.

The Difference Between Appraised and Compromised.

Our Reasons Tells Us One Thing and the Senses Flatly Contradict Them. Facts Which Are Not Always Facts.

The difference between apprehending a thing and comprehending it is a familiar distinction. We always understand it when we come on to it and feel its reality; we comprehend it when we have measured it and found its limits within our own. I can comprehend the fact that if the law of gravitation be true, a body at the earth's center of earth will have no weight, and I can apprehend the fact that at that point there would be no up and down, but I cannot actually comprehend it. Our senses, our experience say that in digging through the earth the deeper we get the heavier will be going down all the way; but our senses and our reason tell us that the moment we emerge from the surface on the other side, for we see we should be standing on many heads. We cannot comprehend this puzzle; we cannot adjust our minds to this fact. We are turned upward, and we cannot help it. What happened. The man who reaches the north pole will have abolished all direction but one. East and west are gone, and west are gone, only south remains. He can move in no direction but toward the equator. He can't go east and he can't go west and he can't go north

The Constitutionalist.

W. L. FORCE, A. L. FORCE
Editors and Proprietors

NEXT FALL ELECTIONS.

This year seven State Senators are to be elected. Of the retiring Senators five are Democrats, representing Passaic, Somerset, Hunterdon, Mercer and Hudson; and two are Republicans, representing Burlington and Cape May. The present Senate has seven Democratic majority. To get a majority in the Senate in 1892 the Democrats need only elect two Senators while the Republicans must elect six. Of the counties to elect, four are Democratic and two are doubtful. Burlington and Cape May are generally considered Republican, but the Democrats have frequently carried them, and can do so this year with good nominations and harmonious work. Passaic, now represented by Senator Mallon, Democrat, is also generally conceded to the Republicans when they are united, which was not the case at the last Senatorial election. The honored one, therefore, say that the Democrats will elect four out of the seven and retain a majority in the Senate—13 to 8. In the arranging of the Assembly districts, forty of the sixty are Democratic by unquestionable majorities, though it is hardly to be expected that all of them will be secured, as errors of judgment sometimes occur in making nominations, to the advantage of the opposition. The next Legislature, however, should have at least twenty majority on joint ballot.

AN IMPORTANT FACT.

The leaders of the Republican party have at times made the absence of the element of sectional discord cannot be gainfully d into life.

It is dead.

For a time the capital of political Republicanism has mainly consisted in fanning the fires of Northern prejudice and ill-will against the people of the South.

Upon that the leaders relied for partisan success.

The props have decayed and fallen down, burying deep the ominous rag of hate.

The Northern and Western people are now in rebellion, not in martial, but political array, not armed with muskets, but with potent ballots.

They have the war cry: "Right to a decision" long years ago, that the Constitution was vindicated and the Union preserved, and they justly declare that any political rancor or party jealousy shall not be raised to open the wounds of strife to rank treason to the North.

They further see and know that the men of the South are peaceably prosperous, loyal to the Union, attending to their own affairs, and diligently engaged in augmenting both personal and national wealth, and that to withhold from them the kindly grasp of brotherhood is to commit the folly of suicide.

Feeble, unalloyed and unbroken peace is now the policy and purpose of all power-minded majority of Northern voters, and all partisan leaders who attempt to interfere with that popular determination will find themselves pointedly rebuked.

The sectional war ended and forever five and twenty years ago.

That is the important fact.

MORE OF THE TIN-PLATE SWINDLE.

The latest fairy tale about tin-plate is that the Welsh Tin plate Trust (an imaginary institution) has decided to shut down its works to alarm over the competition of American tin-plate in this country. This fiction, with customary embellishments concerning the benign influence of the McKinley tariff, recently appeared in the editorial columns of the New York Tribune. As evidence of the highly imaginative character of the story the official Treasury report shows that the imports of tin-plate in the month of March, 1891, amounted to 101,174,507 pounds, against an importation of 48,609,428 pounds in March, 1890.

To this Protectionist tale a further figment is added by way of adornment to the effect that the prices of tin-plate are falling in this market under the rapidly growing competition of the products of American manufacturers. The mere slightest search has not yet been able to ascertain the whereabouts of operative tin-plate factories or the extent of their production, except so far as relates to a fanciful contribution of American plate by Mr. McKinley, when to two Protectionist dinners. But the Treasury statement, which is, of course, carefully ignored by the authors of tariff fiction, shows that the price of the imports of March, 1891, was 3.6 cents a pound against 3.2 cents a pound for the total importation of March, 1890. At the price of March, 1890, the importation of March, 1891, would have cost $200,000 less at the Custom House. In the meanwhile the manufacturers of galvanized sheet iron (the American tin-plate Association), for whose especial behoof the duty on tin-plate was doubled, are increasing their profits.—Phila-leiphia Record.

Prosecutor March takes to his new duties as readily as a duck takes to water. He will prove a terror to evil doers.

The citizens of Summit are enthusiastic over Detective Kelley, who so cleverly ran down the burglar who recently been committing depredations around Summit, Westfield, Cranford and Rahway. The goods found on the burglar were identified by persons from whose premises they were taken.

Elizabeth's New City Attorney.

Ex-Alderman James C. Connolly, of Elizabeth was last Monday night elected City Attorney by the Elizabeth City Council to succeed State Senator March. Mr. Connolly served four years in the Board of Aldermen, and he was one of the very best representatives Elizabethport ever had in that body. He has been a prosperous lawyer in Elizabeth about four years, and last February was made notary public.

Death of John Verdin.

John Verdin, for many years a prominent citizen of Somerset county, died at Somerville on Saturday last. He was a long time Collector and then President of the Somerset County Bank, and was at the time then dissolved connection with it, a wealthy man and in excellent circumstances. He was at one time a prominent candidate for the Congressional nomination in the then Democratic district, in which a division resulted in the choice about the twenty-ninth ballot of Hon. Gilbert Dickinson, who held the seat for a long time and died in office. He was the father of Mrs. Frelinghuysen.

THIRTEEN YEARS OF FAITHFUL WORK.

Celebration of Progress in the Cause of Abstinence.

The anniversary commemorating the thirteenth birthday of St. Mary's T. A. B. Society was held last night in the A. P. A. Association Hall. All the members and their families were present, making a good-sized audience. The exercises were opened at nine o'clock. On the stage were seated the officers of the society, all of the ex-presidents that are living, namely, Rev. P. E. Smyth, Father Lalor, and the Rev. J. B. McKenna, of Rahway.

At the opening of the meeting President John Welsh congratulated all that was the first meeting of its kind in the history of the society, a brief review of the work had been prepared, which he read as follows:

The St. Mary's Total Abstinence and Benevolent Society of Plainfield, N. J., was organized May 19, 1872. It is founded on a thoroughly Catholic basis. Its object is first and chiefly the spread of total abstinence principles, and secondly the distribution of relief to the sick, and burial of deceased members. Since its organization until the present time the following have been its presiding officers: Peter Flynn, Sr., Jas. Reid, Peter Flynn, Jr., John Hanlon, Wm. Moynihan, Peter Gahert, P. Flynn, Jr., Peter Gallaher, A. E. Kenney, John O'Rourke, John Harding, F. Kiely, M. B. Flynn, John Welsh.

Our officers have always been patient and faithful in the performances of their duties. The pastor of St. Mary's church has always been chaplain of the society, and has always administered the pledge.

We deem it our duty to give a brief review of the past and the story of the inception of this society.

Observing the necessity of promoting the work of temperance among his people, and especially the young men of the parish, the Rev. J. P. Morris, then pastor of St. Mary's church, determined to organize a society having for its object the above-named principles. After consultation with some of his parishioners & was decided to have a lecture on total abstinence delivered in the basement by an able man and the way for organization opened. Consequently the Rev. P. Cody, now of St. James church, Newark, N. J., was invited to deliver a lecture, which he did, the evening of May 19, 1872, nineteen years ago. The reverend father gave a very impressive lecture, and urged on his hearers the necessity of at once uniting by enrolling themselves in the society about to be established and to take the pledge of total abstinence for the remainder of their lives. The result of his earnest appeal was that he administered the pledge to nineteen persons, five of whom are still with us. These immediately organized themselves into what is now known as St. Mary's T. & B. Society of Plainfield.

The beneficial feature of this society is a very important one, of much consideration, but, recognizing the fact that prop-r care for the sick, relieving distress, and burial of the deceased members, were the most effective for our people to become members, it was unanimously decided to place that plank in the declaration of principles.

Facts and figures which we here present go to show that their action proved a wise one. Many other wise features were added to their constitution from time to time. The story of what we have accomplished during these nineteen years of activity, is one filled with many pocketfuls of happy days, but the handling of many pleasant scenes, and the sad parting with members whose memory we still cherish.

We have many thanks to offer for the encouragement always given by the parishioners. When the society was young, and financial difficulties were many, it was on the movement which had been inaugurated, they came forward with a liberal hand. The same can be said of our Protestant brethren who were interested in this cause. During the first year of its existence this society raised by subscription and other means one thousand dollars. Out of this fund we purchased our American flag, one Irish flag, and one banner on which is inscribed our motto, viz: Mary's Temperance Society. We visit our sick and bury our dead". These flags still remain with us, bidding us fight for the cause of temperance, home and country. It is to be noted that after a war is over the flags are laid away in some venerated place. It is significant that our war is not over, that our flags are still floating on the head of the staff, surrounded by a group of the bravest. The growth of this society has fluctuated; during the first year 140 members enrolled. Since that time the number has dropped to 60, and thereabouts, at one time going down to as low as seven members, when renewed vigor improved those remaining to action and soon rebuilt the organization. The average membership, however, during the whole time, has been 55. Up to October, 1875, the drinking of cider had made inroads upon the roll. At this time the rule was adopted punishing each member for, one month the sale or use of cider. Intoxicating liquors. In October, 1875, a committee was appointed by the society to form a constitution and by-laws to install the total abstinence into the rising generation. The following were appointed: John Harding, Chas. Winston, S. M. Thompson. The result of their labors in this direction was that a society was formed with a large membership, and their meetings were under the direction of good moral principles. Intoxicating liquors of these have been transferred from into the cider organization.

First, That the members for the society to assist in all the ceremonies connected with building of churches on invitation from the pastor. During the life of this organization we have assisted in the laying of cornerstones for three churches in this neighborhood, namely: St. Mary's, of Plainfield, St. John's, of Dunellen, and St. Joseph's, of North Plainfield.

In discharging works of charity we received appeal for assistance from places which have been visited by fire calamities—the yellow-fever suffering at Savannah, and at Charleston, the Irish famine, and the recent floods at Johnstown, are among the calls to which this society has given this society responded liberally. In October, 1878, a mission was held in St. Mary's church, where a great interest in the cause of temperance was aroused and recently been committing depredations around Summit, Westfield, Cranford and Rahway. The goods found on the burglar were identified by persons from whose premises they were taken.

Second, That the said Plainfield Street Railway Company, a corporation of the State of New Jersey, organized under an act of the Legislature, entitled "An act to provide for the formation of street railway companies, and for the same," approved April twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred and eighty-one, for the location of the tracks of its proposed street railways in the city of Plainfield, and especially to the route designated in its articles of incorporation, and that the said Common Council of the city of Plainfield, at a meeting held on the twenty-first day of April, A. D., eighteen hundred and ninety-one, adopted an ordinance granting the tracks of the railway of the said company through various streets of the said city of Plainfield, including Park avenue, between Front and Sixth streets, a printed copy of which said ordinance is hereto annexed and made a part hereof.

Third, That the said Railway Company pro-poses to use and operate cars known as the Trolley System for the propulsion of its cars, and to lease and operate such cars and lines of poles between the curb lines and sidewalks, on each side of the street occupied by the railway, which poles, according to the said ordinance are to be placed opposite to each other, and one hundred and twenty-five feet apart.

Fourth, That the said ordinance makes provision for the condemnation of the property rights affected by the erection of the said poles, and requires the said railway and said corporation to organize make any such condemnation, and to pay the damages that may be assessed by the said jury.

Fifth, That the said Plainfield Street Railway Company presented to the said Common Council, before the passage of the said ordinance, consents to the location of its said Railway, on the north and south sides of the said Park avenue, through which the said railway is located, without the intervention of intersecting streets, a fifteen hundred and ninety-four feet, or thereabouts, and within the intersecting streets it is eighteen hundred and thirty feet, or thereabouts.

Sixth, That the said Council has examined the said consents for the said sixteen hundred and ninety-four feet, or thereabouts, and the location of the said ordinance and finds that at least one of them, for forty-five feet, is void for defective acknowledgment, and that at least three others for two hundred and fifty feet, are not signed by the persons owning the land for which they purport to be.

Seventh, That the said ordinance is now before the Common Council for its second reading for publication, and that it would be effective upon the completion of the said consents, and the completion of the requirements of the said ordinance.

Eigh

CITY DEPARTMENT.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY OF UNION.

J. A. DEMAREST, . . City Editor.

—Mr. and Mrs. Moses Carey of North Plainfield are the happy parents of a fine baby boy.

—Muhlenber Hospital is much in need of linen. Any donations of second-hand material of such character, will be thankfully received.

—The New York papers think it's queer that the Plainfield police let willdeserter Gaule slip through their fingers. Some Plainfield officials think so too.

—An easy way to save $10 is to leave at THE PRESS office for the advertiser the name of the culprit who steals milk from your premises on Washington avenue, near the block.

—The Galignani Messenger, of Paris, dated May 2, contains an item taken from THE PRESS regarding Frank Gray the accomplished young pianist. It is another straw that marks the extended circulation of Plainfield's only newspaper.

—The Central Oil Cloth Works, of which T. L. Gephart, of East Ninth street, is manager, have been shut down pending a reorganization of the company. A number of men have been temporarily thrown out of employment thereby.

—The members of the Holy Cross choir are working hard towards raising the amount needed for their camping expenses, and they have the best friends with them in the entertainment to be given in the Sunday-school room the evening of May 27.

—The Independent Woman's Exchange has removed from 108 Park avenue, New York, to No. 9 East Fifty-first street, in the First National Bank building, where Mrs. W. L. Force will be pleased to see all her former customers, and those wishing stamping, plaiting, pinking or stitching.

—Through the efforts of Senator McPherson, Casimir Ebner, a disabled Union soldier of this city, has been granted a pension of $12 a month, dating back. This is another instance of the interest New Jersey's U. S. Senator takes in the matter of securing pensions for deserving cases.

—A box filled with chemicals was received by the United States Express Company at Plainfield, a few days ago, destined for some farmer and an interior boat while standing in the office awaiting an owner, and to prevent the fire that was threatened the liquids were sump led into the gutter.

—The 20th annual session of the "Grand Lodge No. 4, Independent Order of Good Samaritans and Daughters of Samaria," will be held in this city, Wednesday, June 3. Mt. Olive Lodge, and Celestial Crescent Lodge, both of Plainfield, will entertain the delegates. Colemin society is in a flurry of expectancy about it all.

—Mrs. Gable wishes THE PRESS to request that people having had furniture left with her for storage, will please call and have it taken away from her premises. She says that as long as she can work she will earn her own living.

—The people advocating the opening of North Broadway will ask the next Common Council to appoint commissioners to see that equity is done to all in the development of the new thoroughfare. The enterprise is being pushed by a number of prominent and influential men who are united to achieve the desired improvements.

—A free ride will leave on Sunday morning for Netherwood chapel. It will will start from the North avenue station at 10:30, through Broadway to LaGrande avenue, LaGrande avenue to Franklin place, Franklin place to Broadway, Broadway to Woodlawn avenue, to the chapel, returning after the services by the same route to the station.

—To night at seven o'clock the Bible normal class of the Young People's League, conducted by Chas. B Brown, meets in the parlors of the First Baptist church. "An introductory study in the book of Numbers." Any of the young people of the city will be cordially invited to be visitors or members of the class.

—People who saw the collision at North and Park avenues, Wednesday night, between Adam Bixler's buggy and Peter Hockridge's wagon, think that neither party was to blame more than the other. The affair seems to have been an entirely unavoidable one. Mr. Bixler was driving homeward, Mr. Blair from the charge that he was driving recklessly. The courteous and obliging mail carrier does not deserve to be censured for carelessness of which he was not guilty.

—The Ladies' Christian Work Society of the Trinity Reformed church will give a "tea" this evening, from 5 to 10, at the house of Mr. Lambert D. VanEmburgh, 85 East Second street. No admission fee will be charged, but contributions of 25 cents, or more, will be gratefully accepted. The proceeds will be used to help pay off the church debt. The ladies hope to receive a large patronage from their friends, in aid of this worthy cause.

—A service was held in the Seventh-Day Baptist church, at New Market on sunday, in memory of a former officer and member, Lieut. Colonel Nathan Dunham, of Fariss, Ill. Deacon Clawson was for many years a resident at New Market, owning the place on the Bound Brook road now known as the Sydney Congress property. For upwards of 20 years the deceased had resided at the place of his death, but many descendants and relatives live in the east, and attended today's services.

—The Bound Brook Chronicle says: "Last Friday on his way home from Newark after delivering his load of hay, a certain hay merchant of many miles from Dunellen fell asleep on his wagon or was under a spell of some kind. When he arrived at Plainfield he became turned into West Second street, pulling into Michael Higgin's house, tearing the banisters off and one post from under the porch. By this time he had come to his senses and realized the damage he had done. So he started for home, turning his team into Richmond street on his way past to Seward. It was very late when he arrived at his destination."

—Captain W. E. Fuller of the Brooklyn Bicycle Club, and Captain Frank L. C. Martin of the Plainfield Bicycle Club, made a run to Philadelphia, Saturday over the route to be taken by the Circuit Century (100 miles) run on June 13. They left here at 5 o'clock in the morning. They report the roads in the Quaker City and with the exception of about two miles between Dunellen and Bound Brook, and ten miles between Trenton and Bristol, which they found quite heavy owing to the dry weather. A good rain would put these in good shape. The prospects are that about 60 wheelmen will participate in the Century run for people. The rain set in upon to all wheelmen, and Plainfield should be able to send a good many of her riders.

I suffered from severe inflammation in my eyes. I tried Ely's Cream Balm and in a few days was entirely cured. I take pleasure in recommending it to my friends.—Harvey C. Clark, Fort Scott, Kansas's Quarantine Station, Jersey City, N. J.

COME OFF THAT PERCH.

Where the Matter With Using Some of the Money Now in the Treasury for Its Own Benefit?

The Times harkens who write those exaggerated "leaders" that the paper's ostensible but subsidized editor is forced to publish in spite of his superior judgment and better taste, need suffer no longer from the pain that has attacked them upon contemplation of the terrible bill the taxpayers will have to pay for the services of additional counsel in waterworks matters.

There is idle in the bank about $4,000 of John Kean's money that was paid into the city's treasury before he had completed his deed of choking the life out of a company that was already engaged in constructing a system of water-works in this city under control of the Council and with the people's rights thoroughly protected.

That money may properly be used just now in discovering whether the city has any rights John Kean is bound to respect, and whether the city has the privilege of granting a franchise to a water-works company that will agree not to rob the people.

PERSONALIA.

F. A. Dunham is absent for a few days in Michigan.

F. C. Langhorne has gone to Canada again, on a fishing trip.

Councilman Rushmore is off on a fishing trip in the Adirondacks.

Mrs. Gaylord is visiting her brother, James R. Joy, and his wife, nee Miss Mellen.

Miss Susie VanWinkle is visiting her uncle, N. Carman Dunn, of Philadelphia.

Ex-Councilman Tell Bergen's family called for Europe from Michigan, where he has been engaged for the very important and lucrative undertaking of constructing an atlas of Lapeer county. Andrew Scott, Mr. Dunham's competent assistant, has been left in charge of the important preliminary steps of the work.

Mr. Engle, in turn, will have his day after it is fairly started, in the hands of Frank J. Hubbard, also of Plainfield. On his way home Mr. Dunham secured the services for proving the streets of Dunkirk, N. Y., with fire brick.

Dr. Charles Bullman, of Third place, returned the other day from another of what he calls his "little trips." He was at Stockbridge, Mass., for a week. Mrs. Bullman has been visiting there for the past time. He chartered a steamer at San Francisco, sailed for the Sandwich Islands, and was back in Plainfield safe in a week or so, after traveling over thirteen thousand miles, without a freckle on his face. Despite his being such a busy man, however, he finds time for literary work. Upon returning from a visit to Ecuador, recently, he wrote a book on "78 Kinds of Snakes I've Met."

THEIR HONESTY BEYOND QUESTION.

Men of Such Social and Professional Standing in the Community Cannot be Harmed by Vicious Papers.

Dr. Wm. F. Gaston and Dr. Vincent W. Baker visited the office of THE PRESS on Friday, and denied any connection with the calling of a meeting for the organization of what the same says was a bogus insurance scheme. They say that Mr. Vice President Smith of the Council—that their names were signed to the advertisement without their authority or knowledge.

Both gentlemen were naturally very indignant at being publicly drawn into the matter. The article in the same paper of date of the advertisement, everybody who looked through the files of THE PRESS could see who were the signers of the "specific" that the case was said to be brought to the attention of the Secretary of State and had put "ex-Chief" Carey on the track of.

The entire community know that men of such standing in social and professional life as Dr. Shaw, Dr. Baker and Dr. Gaston, do not lend their names to, or encourage, dishonest or unfair projects of any sort. The calling of public attention to an advertisement with the names of such reputable men attached, and which is a swindle without first investigating the truth of their connection with it, was a contemptible trick.

That, at the time the paper said Thursday, these men are only additional victims added to the long list of those who have been slandered by the sheet that blackguards but that cannot harm.

A Journey With Pastor Schauck.

At the sociable of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the Trinity Reformed church, Thursday, the Rev. Mr. Schauck kindly consented to give an account of his tour in the great city of London. There was a large attendance, and all highly appreciated his graphic description of the various places of note in that largest of cities. Among the places he pictured were St. Paul's cathedral, located in the exterior, Bank of England, interior and exterior, Tower of London, Westminster Palace, interior and exterior, and Westminster Abbey, interior and exterior. He also took his hearers to the great docks and warehouses, and gave an interesting description of the great establishments.

Miss F. Mattison sang a solo very acceptably, accompanied on the piano by her sister, Miss J. Mattison. At an appropriate time refreshments were served. The committee of young ladies having the sociable in charge were Miss F. Mattison, Miss Minnie Force, Miss Mabel Woodruff and Miss Phoebe Mills.

Plainfield Indians Feast and Enjoy Themselves.

Minnetonomah Lodge of Plainfield red men held a social session at their wigwam Friday night. The distinguished warriors of other tribes present were: Thomas McDonough, great sachem of New Jersey; Frederick Wehl, great senior sagamore, and Daniel W. Stevens, great chief of records.

The programme opened with the "Visitation Ode" by the tribe, and the entry of the Great Chiefs. Then followed recitations by warriors Carney, Leigh and Townsend, and songs by Chief Stevens and warriors Rogers and Odam. Supper was subsequently served at Freye's hotel after Chief Sidney E. Flower responded to the toast, "Good of the Order." Addresses were also delivered by Chiefs Stevens and McDonough and songs were sung by brothers W. E. Rogers, G. Fisher, W. Howell, W. Elmer, E. Odam and E. Rogers. The closing address was by the Sachem of Plainfield's tribe, Richard E. Bahman. The committee of arrangements consisted of S. E. Flower and George McGinnis.

Death of Alfred Bedford.

Alfred Bedford, for many years a resident of this city, where he occupied a home with his wife and children, at the corner of Park avenue and Fifth street, died in New York city, Saturday last, aged 72 years. Deceased was a native of the town, at the age of eighty-seven years. He was born in Hunterdon county, N. J., a descendant of two well-known families, the Bedfords, who owned much land and lived on Bedford hill, and the Hoffmans, Mr. Bedford's mother, Elizabeth Hoffman, being a daughter of Governor Hoffman, who was also a member of Colonel Henry Rutgers' regiment in the Revolutionary war.

Mr. Bedford was married and her two years ago. He leaves a son, Alfred, and two daughters, one of whom is married to Mr. Edward F. Pringle, of New York. The latter is the wife of Lieut. Col. Townsend, of the 22nd regiment, N. G. S. N. Y. Alfred Bedford was a member of the Second Presbyterian church of this city, and the funeral services were held in the present year.

Mrs. Rathmann of Brooklyn is visiting Mrs. Lindgren of East Front street.

J. Fred MacDonald, Nelson Runyon, and Wilmon E. Hoffman are rapidly selling off the stocks, bonds and other marketable collateral of the Luther estate, of which they are executors, with the view of winding up the final settlement of the heirs by July 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Godyke are at home at the residence of their father, Samuel W. Godyke, in this city. Young Mr. Godyke has been absent for some years in the "far West" where he occupied the position of Chief Clerk in the office of the General Manager of the Union Pacific Railroad.

At the annual meeting of the Hogantic Fish and Game Club, held in Portland, Me., Wednesday, Dr. Hoffman of this city was unanimously elected one of the board of directors. The club is composed of some of the wealthiest sportsmen in the country. Ex-Senator Livingston and Messrs. Brower and Wadsworth, of this city, are members.

Among the bridesmaids chosen to attend Miss Elmer Bogard upon the occasion of her marriage to Mr. Jack Miller, in Dr. Ketcham's church, on June 1, are Miss Nellie Hayes and Miss Kitty Stewart. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. John C. Bliss, formerly pastor of the Crescent Avenue church. Mr. and Mrs. Miller will make their future home in England.

A merry party of Brooklyn young women came out last S turday to a yellow luncheon tendered them by Miss Tarbell, of East Fifth street, who was one of their classmates at the Packer Collegiate Institute, Brooklyn. The house was profusely decorated with flowers, the weather was delightful and the party had a fine time. At eight and took back over the year just closed. The luncheon was served in the table set for that purpose, and how that it was the wish of all that we know ought to be done for the young men of this city, we do find that the year has not been spent in idleness.

Many of us had hoped that this meeting would be an "At Home" for our Association—that by this time we should be in our own building, that once more we was only hoped that our next annual meeting will be such, that they have been delayed in so far as building project. Our plans for a building had been adopted, but the cost of erecting it, with all that we wished, was found to exceed the amount contemplated. We have therefore been compelled to have the plans modified, and are now to bring the cost within our means. Then the question of whether Peace street would be opened or not has been very troublesome. It seems now, however, that the street will be extended, and will go through one side of our lot. Recognizing that we are the servants of the people, and dependent on them for financial support, a desire not to do anything which might seem antagonistic to the city's best interests has caused us to temporarily defer the location of the local authorities in the matter. Our subscriptions amount to $28,000, of which $16,000 has been paid in.

And now briefly of the work of the year. While not accomplishing as much as we could have desired, we believe that we have kept before you how to kindly continued to assist us, we can truthfully say that we have adhered to Association principles; for we, by, we do believe that the good people of this city have come to the conclusion that it is not all of money because our object has always been to improve the moral and spiritual condition of the young men of the place. To this end we have employed the usual social, physical, intellectual and religious methods.

Socially we are restricted. Nevertheless we have continued to furnish the one early resort, and many a pleasant evening have the young men. The rooms have been used by Christian Endeavor societies, Bible classes, the Band of Hope societies, and kindred organizations of the city. Here we have given receptions to visiting ministers, etc., etc.

Not the least interesting feature of our work this year has been a series of timely talks on such subjects as "How to Keep Well", "Money", "Gambling", "Business Success", "How Young Men Ought to Know", and "Hard to Get Rich". These talks have been well attended, and must do much good.

Physical exercises have been well patronized—16 different people having been counted with the gymnasium at one time—boxing, penmanship, book-keeping, vocal music, and stenography. Two members of the last class have been placed in responsible positions for large business houses.

Educational classes of employment were secured for men, some of whom owe not a little to the start thus given them. Last but not least in importance has been the contribution made that might would be used to provide attractive rooms and secure the attendance. Through the kindness of the officials of the Central Railway of New Jersey the use of passes was secured to the city of Fanwood, where in one day caught the eye of three young Baptist ministers, who were on their way to follow out the directions and called at the rooms to post themselves. They were pleased to find so pleasant and so good and permanent position was found.

Religiously we have been more restricted than in any other line. The sending of six of our boys to the Association camp for boys, and the annual outing of the men and boys are about all that we attempted. Eight of our members, occupying two rooms, attended the Bible-school conducted by Dwight L. Moody at Northfield. But no much spiritual good was realized from the gathering in the parlor by night; his mind was tried; and his whole heart was overcome by the Master's service—"compelled to Him".

Spiritually our work has prospered. An average of 35 men have attended each of our 49 Sunday afternoon Gospel meetings. Two of these meetings were personal-purity talks. Our evangelistic "tent," held during April, and the two gospel meetings attended by Dr. Schauck kindly consented to give an account of his tour in the great city of London. There was a large attendance, and all highly appreciated his graphic description of the various places of note in that largest of cities. Among the places he pictured were St. Paul's cathedral, located in the exterior, Bank of England, interior and exterior, Tower of London, Westminster Palace, interior and exterior, and Westminster Abbey, interior and exterior. He also took his hearers to the great docks and warehouses, and gave an interesting description of the great establishments.

Miss F. Mattison sang a solo very acceptably, accompanied on the piano by her sister, Miss J. Mattison. At an appropriate time refreshments were served. The committee of young ladies having the sociable in charge were Miss F. Mattison, Miss Minnie Force, Miss Mabel Woodruff and Miss Phoebe Mills.

Plainfield Indians Feast and Enjoy Themselves.

Minnetonomah Lodge of Plainfield red men held a social session at their wigwam Friday night. The distinguished warriors of other tribes present were: Thomas McDonough, great sachem of New Jersey; Frederick Wehl, great senior sagamore, and Daniel W. Stevens, great chief of records.

The programme opened with the "Visitation Ode" by the tribe, and the entry of the Great Chiefs. Then followed recitations by warriors Carney, Leigh and Townsend, and songs by Chief Stevens and warriors Rogers and Odam. Supper was subsequently served at Freye's hotel after Chief Sidney E. Flower responded to the toast, "Good of the Order." Addresses were also delivered by Chiefs Stevens and McDonough and songs were sung by brothers W. E. Rogers, G. Fisher, W. Howell, W. Elmer, E. Odam and E. Rogers. The closing address was by the Sachem of Plainfield's tribe, Richard E. Bahman. The committee of arrangements consisted of S. E. Flower and George McGinnis.

Death of Alfred Bedford.

Alfred Bedford, for many years a resident of this city, where he occupied a home with his wife and children, at the corner of Park avenue and Fifth street, died in New York city, Saturday last, aged 72 years. Deceased was a native of the town, at the age of eighty-seven years. He was born in Hunterdon county, N. J., a descendant of two well-known families, the Bedfords, who owned much land and lived on Bedford hill, and the Hoffmans, Mr. Bedford's mother, Elizabeth Hoffman, being a daughter of Governor Hoffman, who was also a member of Colonel Henry Rutgers' regiment in the Revolutionary war.

Mr. Bedford was married and her two years ago. She leaves a son, Alfred, and two daughters, one of whom is married to Mr. Edward F. Pringle, of New York. The latter is the wife of Lieut. Col. Townsend, of the 22nd regiment, N. G. S. N. Y. Alfred Bedford was a member of the Second Presbyterian church of this city, and the funeral services were held in the present year.

PLAINFIELD IS PROUD OF IT.

ANOTHER YEAR OF ZEALOUS WORK BY THE LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

Faithful officers Reelected—Interesting Report Presented—Plans for the Future—Over $30,000—How They Benefit Young Men—Progress of the Year—Encouraging Outlook.

The Young Men's Christian Association of Plainfield, at their annual meeting held on Tuesday evening, May 12, elected the following named officers and committees for the ensuing year as follows:

President—W. D. Murray.
Vice President—D. R. Thorworth.
Treasurer—E. R. Johns.
Recording Secretary—J. R. Joy.
Corresponding Secretary—A. C. LaBoyteaux.
Directors—J. W. Gaverit, James W. Jackson, S. Cahoone, T. S. Hiandt, R. L. Dossy, A. B. Rogers, W. Thompson, W. S. Anderson, G. S. Gerewell, C. R. Ross, Nelson Runyon, G. G. Pardee, E. L. Perkins.

The following interesting report, revealing the great volume of work accomplished by the Association during the year, was presented by President Murray:

To the Members of the Young Men's Christian Association of Plainfield, N. J.:

It is always a pleasure to be able to look back on the past and find that although it is in the morning it has done something towards uniting the present better and the future brighter. Such a place our Association can stand to-night and look back over the year just closed. The work which we have not done, and that we wished to do, while it has not been possible for us, we have good reason to believe that we should not do all that we know ought to be done for the young men of this city, we do find that the year has not been spent in idleness.

Many of us had hoped that this meeting would be an "At Home" for our Association—that by this time we should be in our own building, that once more we was only hoped that our next annual meeting will be such, that they have been delayed in so far as building project. Our plans for a building had been adopted, but the cost of erecting it, with all that we wished, was found to exceed the amount contemplated. We have therefore been compelled to have the plans modified, and are now to bring the cost within our means. Then the question of whether Peace street would be opened or not has been very troublesome. It seems now, however, that the street will be extended, and will go through one side of our lot. Recognizing that we are the servants of the people, and dependent on them for financial support, a desire not to do anything which might seem antagonistic to the city's best interests has caused us to temporarily defer the location of the local authorities in the matter. Our subscriptions amount to $28,000, of which $16,000 has been paid in.

And now briefly of the work of the year. While not accomplishing as much as we could have desired, we believe that we have kept before you how to kindly continued to assist us, we can truthfully say that we have adhered to Association principles; for we, by, we do believe that the good people of this city have come to the conclusion that it is not all of money because our object has always been to improve the moral and spiritual condition of the young men of the place. To this end we have employed the usual social, physical, intellectual and religious methods.

Socially we are restricted. Nevertheless we have continued to furnish the one early resort, and many a pleasant evening have the young men. The rooms have been used by Christian Endeavor societies, Bible classes, the Band of Hope societies, and kindred organizations of the city. Here we have given receptions to visiting ministers, etc., etc.

Not the least interesting feature of our work this year has been a series of timely talks on such subjects as "How to Keep Well", "Money", "Gambling", "Business Success", "How Young Men Ought to Know", and "Hard to Get Rich". These talks have been well attended, and must do much good.

Physical exercises have been well patronized—16 different people having been counted with the gymnasium at one time—boxing, penmanship, book-keeping, vocal music, and stenography. Two members of the last class have been placed in responsible positions for large business houses.

Educational classes of employment were secured for men, some of whom owe not a little to the start thus given them. Last but not least in importance has been the contribution made that might would be used to provide attractive rooms and secure the attendance. Through the kindness of the officials of the Central Railway of New Jersey the use of passes was secured to the city of Fanwood, where in one day caught the eye of three young Baptist ministers, who were on their way to follow out the directions and called at the rooms to post themselves. They were pleased to find so pleasant and so good and permanent position was found.

Religiously we have been more restricted than in any other line. The sending of six of our boys to the Association camp for boys, and the annual outing of the men and boys are about all that we attempted. Eight of our members, occupying two rooms, attended the Bible-school conducted by Dwight L. Moody at Northfield. But so much spiritual good was realized from the gathering in the parlor by night; his mind was tried; and his whole heart was overcome by the Master's service—"compelled to Him".

Spiritually our work has prospered. An average of 35 men have attended each of our 49 Sunday afternoon Gospel meetings. Two of these meetings were personal-purity talks. Our evangelistic "tent," held during April, and the two gospel meetings attended by Mr. Schenck kindly consented to give an account of his tour in the great city of London. There was a large attendance, and all highly appreciated his graphic description of the various places of note in that largest of cities. Among the places he pictured were St. Paul's cathedral, located in the exterior, Bank of England, interior and exterior, Tower of London, Westminster Palace, interior and exterior, and Westminster Abbey, interior and exterior. He also took his hearers to the great docks and warehouses, and gave an interesting description of the great establishments.

Miss F. Mattison sang a solo very acceptably, accompanied on the piano by her sister, Miss J. Mattison. At an appropriate time refreshments were served. The committee of young ladies having the sociable in charge were Miss F. Mattison, Miss Minnie Force, Miss Mabel Woodruff and Miss Phoebe Mills.

Plainfield Indians Feast and Enjoy Themselves.

Minnetonomah Lodge of Plainfield red men held a social session at their wigwam Friday night. The distinguished warriors of other tribes present were: Thomas McDonough, great sachem of New Jersey; Frederick Wehl, great senior sagamore, and Daniel W. Stevens, great chief of records.

The programme opened with the "Visitation Ode" by the tribe, and the entry of the Great Chiefs. Then followed recitations by warriors Carney, Leigh and Townsend, and songs by Chief Stevens and warriors Rogers and Odam. Supper was subsequently served at Freye's hotel after Chief Sidney E. Flower responded to the toast, "Good of the Order." Addresses were also delivered by Chiefs Stevens and McDonough and songs were sung by brothers W. E. Rogers, G. Fisher, W. Howell, W. Elmer, E. Odam and E. Rogers. The closing address was by the Sachem of Plainfield's tribe, Richard E. Bahman. The committee of arrangements consisted of S. E. Flower and George McGinnis.

Death of Alfred Bedford.

Alfred Bedford, for many years a resident of this city, where he occupied a home with his wife and children, at the corner of Park avenue and Fifth street, died in New York city, Saturday last, aged 72 years. Deceased was a native of the town, at the age of eighty-seven years. He was born in Hunterdon county, N. J., a descendant of two well-known families, the Bedfords, who owned much land and lived on Bedford hill, and the Hoffmans, Mr. Bedford's mother, Elizabeth Hoffman, being a daughter of Governor Hoffman, who was also a member of Colonel Henry Rutgers' regiment in the Revolutionary war.

Mr. Bedford was married and her two years ago. She leaves a son, Alfred, and two daughters, one of whom is married to Mr. Edward F. Pringle, of New York. The latter is the wife of Lieut. Col. Townsend, of the 22nd regiment, N. G. S. N. Y. Alfred Bedford was a member of the Second Presbyterian church of this city, and the funeral services were held in the present year.

SUING FOR THE CHILDREN.

The Claim Against the Plainfield Fythians to be Heard by the Courts.

The suit of Mrs. James Keating against the Plainfield Lodge of the Knights of Pythias for the possession of her two children, and the children of the late Knights put in the Children's Home of Plainfield, will be begun in the Orphans' Court of Somerset county at Somerville next Friday, May 22nd.

Mrs. Keating has retained Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, of Plainfield, to conduct her suit. Her case was carried to John Dockerwitz, a tenor oil Plainfield and who died there last fall. His wife had died some time before. Dockerwitz's friends allege that it was his intent that his children should all be educated in the Children's Home, where he had put one of them after his wife's death. He was a member in good standing of the Plainfield Knights of Pythias.

Mrs. Keating's husband is a prosperous business man of Bridgeport. They have children of their own, and claim that they are amply a' le to stand the additional bur den of rearing the Duckworth orphans.

SAVED THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS.

Yet the Board Firmen Receive but a Paltry Donation Towards the Relief of Their Sick and Destitute.

The Firemen's Relief Association of this city met Wednesday, May 13, in annual meeting. The treasurer's report shows that the year's expenses were $1,162, but the disbursements have been $300 in excess. This outge has all been for the relief of sick and destitute firemen, and to take care of them. It has been the worst year in the history of the Association. Demands for assistance have never before been in excess of the requirements.

For many years it had been the custom of the owners of property where fire occurred, to "set the boys up" to whatever they were pleased to order. This sometimes meant two or the o lings of beer at an expense to the host and a damage to the firemen. Chief Engineer Hoagland requested that three whose property had been saved and who felt disposed to show their appreciation of the "grub" direct to donate the cost of the "grub" direct to the Relief Association's treasury. S the "boys" have gone without their "refreshments", but the Association has gained much thereby. One donation of $25 and one of $5, is all that has been received.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

President—T. O. Donne.
Vice President—John Sharpe.
Treasurer—Joseph A. Hubbard.
Secretary—E. Mosher.

PLAINFIELD TO HAVE THE BEST.

Its Street Railway Company Investigating Every Improvement in Motor and Machinery.

The extract below, taken from a certain very unreliable paper of this city, shows how an immense lot of lies in the moment can be twisted by a false head into conveying testimony directly contrary to the fact it records.

Discussion over Motors.

The Evening Wisconsin, of May 4th, says that the Plainfield Street Railway Co. is to put on an electric line in that city. If it does, it will be the first electric line in the State which does away with much passing, steadiness of motion, noiselessness, and the like of present nothing.

The item itself merely states that a new motor is to be introduced. The head line asserts that the trolley is to be discarded.

Councilman Spangenberg of the committee on streets, was seen this forenoon by a reporter of THE PRESS. He said that the very motor spoken of was being investigated by the Plainfield Street Railway Company, and if it proved to be the best would be adopted for this city.

It is the intention of the company to go even further than that—they will be the first in the country to discard the trolley as soon as any more practicable, economical or serviceable system shall be perfected. The latter they intend officially to accept last Monday contains this requirement:

Section II. That when any improvements or other method of furnishing the power for the propulsion of cars shall be introduced, which shall be determined to be a practical success, by a majority vote of the board of directors of the grantees, same to be selected by the Common Council, and the Board of Public Works, or controlled by the two as chosen, such company shall have the right to change the motive power to be used in operating its cars, and if it proves to be the best would be adopted for this city.

Section III. That the grantees shall give notice to the Common Council and Board of Public Works of their intention to change the motive power, and take down their overhead construction, and shall have a reasonable time for changing over their method of propulsion.

The officers and directors of the company all signed the acceptance of this and the many other wise provisions for the interests of the people that the franchise embodies. The company from the outset will strive to please the community in every particular. The material for the construction of the road is all ordered, that can be procured at once. The cars are being built by the Pullman company. They are of mahogany, vestibuled and upholstered in light green plush such as is used in the Blue Line cars.

Renewing the Battle.

A meeting of "The Citizens' League of the State of New Jersey", formed at Trenton, May 2, will be held in Library Hall, Elizabeth, next Saturday night, May 23rd. The object of this meeting is a free conference upon the matter of opposing future legislation in favor of legalizing gambling upon race-tracks in New Jersey, and Sunday liquor selling. From all reports this accomplishes in this direction, we may well thank God, and take courage. Much, however, remains to be done. The battle will be decided only by unceasing vigilance and unswerving determination. We must prepare for a new battle in the next Legislature of our State. For this we must be ready, and now. This is not a "a minister's movement"; it springs from and belongs to the moral and religious people of New Jersey. All who are interested in this matter, which is of such vital moment to our homes, our communities, and the whole State, are earnestly invited to attend this meeting. Let every part of present members of the League or not.

EVERARD KENDALL, D. D., President.

Men of brains originate, the unprincipled imitate. Consistent never has the true ring of the genuine. Worthless people refuse to be stifled. They insist on Piso's Cure for Consumption.

DEATHS.

GALBRAITH—In this city, May 19, Susie Dunn, wife of Patrick Galbraith, aged 29 years.

HOAGLAND—In this city, May 17, 1891, Peter Hoagland, aged 72 years, 7 months and 17 days.

HUFF—On Sunday, May 17, 1891, at Hamilton, John C. Huff, son of James and Emeline Huff.

MARRIED—In this city, on May 20, 1891, at the Parsonage, by Rev. Robert Kennedy, Mr. Charles Ege, of Plainfield, and Miss Mary Ann Ege, of Bound Brook.

WANTS AND INFORMATION.

MARRIED men would like to hear good news, of work by day. Inquire No. 6 Park avenue.

TO RENT—Furnished rooms, corner Myrtle and Second streets. Inquire of Mrs. Dr. Bullman, Third place.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

MELLIN'S FOOD FOR INFANTS AND INVALIDS.

THE ONLY Perfect Substitute for Mother's Milk.

INVALUABLE in CHRONIC INDIGESTION, DIARRHŒA, VOMITING, CONVALESCENCE.

A PERFECT NUTRIENT in all WASTING DISEASES of CHILDREN and ADULTS.

Sent FREE to all CLIMATES.

SEND for PAMPHLET.

A Quickly Assimilated Food for DYSPEPTICS.

Physicians Everywhere Endorse It.

A Quickly Assimilated Food for DYSPEPTICS.

Physicians Everywhere Endorse It.

Mellin's Food Boiled with Milk.

Mellin's Food Boiled with Milk.

Mellin's Food Boiled with Milk

PRESIDENTIAL EPISTLES

Andrew Johnson's Letters Are the Rarest of All.

Collectors Are Scouring for Past Sets of Presidential Letters—The Prices Which Those Valuable Documents Command.

[Washington, 1891.]

Many persons in this country are just now vieing with each other in the collection of the letters or historical manuscripts of the leading men, literary artists; others for authors; some for millionaires, and still others for statesmen or politicians and generals of the revolution or rebellion. Expense on a somewhat extensive scale attends the satisfying of an artist's desire, or a bibliophile's list of any of these. For instance, sample letters of all the presidents, from Washington down to Benjamin Harrison would be worth upward of $400, and there are very few persons who possess such a collection.

The information on this subject contained in this article was given me by Walter A. Bosquet, of Chicago-third street, New York, who is a professional dealer in autograph letters and has a stock embracing a very wide range of notable persons, and valued at over $50,000. Mr. Benjamin possesses some remarkable treasures in his line of business, including letters of some of the most noted people in history, such as Henry VIII., Marie and Catherine de Medici, Mazarin, Bonaparte, Napoleon III., Lincoln, Webster and others of equal fame. His American collections are even more noteworthy and interesting since they consist nearly of nearly all the famous characters of early

[signature]

[signature]

[signature]

The Constitutionalist,
A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.
W. L. FORCE & W. L. FORCE, Editors and Proprietors.
AT PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY.
TERMS—TWO DOLLARS A YEAR.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXIV. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, MAY 28, 1891. No. 22.

"Support the Constitution, which is the cement of the Union, as well as the limitations as to its authorities."—MADISON.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

JACKSON & CODDINGTON,
Counsellors-at-Law,
Solicitors in Chancery, Notaries Public, Masters in Chancery, Conveyancers &c.
Office, Front Street, Plainfield, N. J.

W. V. STERLE,
Counsellor-at-Law,
Master and Examiner in Chancery, Notary Public, Conveyancer, &c.
Office, Park Building, Corner Second and North Avenue. 1-2-tf

GIDEON W. DAY,
General Auctioneer,
Sales of Personal Property solicited. P. O. Box 178, Dunellen, N. J. Will attend to sales at Office of Constitutionalist. Terms reasonable.

DR. CHARLES E. THEISS,
Dentist,
26 West Front street. A new local anæsthetic applied for extracting teeth without pain, and filling a specialty. 4-1-tf

H. HAND,
Auctioneer,
P. O. Address, Lock Box 75, Scotch Plains, N. J., Unión toll at E. J. Carey's, Dunellen, and also at Woodruff's, Middle street, Plainfield. Will attend promptly to all sales. Reasonable terms. 4-1-tf

O'CHAIN & TEALE,
Architects,
247 Broadway, New York city, Rooms 52 and 53, (Important) "Real Estate" Bank Building.) Residence, Plainfield, N. J.

J. H. FORSTER,
Veterinary Surgeon.
Office in A. M. Seguine's livery stable, near Main street and Madison avenue, Plainfield, N. J. All calls made promptly attended to. Telephone No. 5. Orders left at Seguine's livery stable will receive prompt attention. Residence, 79 East Front st. 4-1-tf

BUSINESS CARDS.

P. P. VAN ARSDALE,
PIANO TUNER.
Is open to engage in the thorough order. Terms reasonable. Pianos and Organs for sale and to let, exchange, by postal, P. O. Box 159 or left at Wilson's Music Store, No. 5 Park avenue will receive prompt attention. Residence, 21 East 7th street, corner 4th street. 4-1-tf

JOHN CHANDLER,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Residence and Shop No. 36 East 3d St.
Jobbing promptly attended to. 4-1-tf

T. J. GILLIES,
Auctioneer & Real Estate Agent.
SALESROOM—Madison Avenue and Park Place, PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Conveyancer on engrossment.

TO THE PUBLIC!

We also to inform our customers and the public generally that we have hand one best quality of

LEHIGH COAL,
Fresh from the Mines.

It is under cover and well protected from the weather. We are prepared to deliver it well screened and in good order promptly. We are also prepared to furnish all kinds of Seasoned Lumber and Masons' Materials at short notice.

A. D. COOK & BRO.
1-2-tf

J. Hervey Doane,
6 PARK AVENUE.
(Formerly Clerk).

Watches,
Clocks
And Jewelry.

Repairing neatly and promptly done.
4-1-tf

FOR
BEAUTIFUL DESIGNS
In Furniture
GO TO
23, 25 and 27 PARK AVE.
Garret Q. Packer,

Steam Marble
Granite Works.
AND
Monuments & Headstones,
Fencing for Cemetery Plots.
Large assortment of Stone Mantels.
Large variety of Granite Monuments.

All orders executed in the most skillful manner at as low rates as any competitor. All communications by mail will receive prompt attention. L. MANNING, Factory St., next to N. E. Co., PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Monuments erected in Greenwood Cemetery, N. Y. 1-2-tf

Alex. Willett,
DEALER IN
BOOTS & SHOES.
No 7 PARK AVENUE.
A full assortment of desirable goods (direct from manufacturers, at low prices. 4-1-tf

Geo. A. Moore,
(Of the late firm of Moore Bros.)
Is now the sole proprietor of the old established stand at
No. 14 NORTH AVENUE.
Where he will continue to supply patrons with the finest grades of Fruit and Soda Waters. Fruit of all kinds in season. Nuts in large or small quantities. Cigars and Tobacco. Ice cream parlor in connection. Orders left at the store or sent by telephone will receive prompt attention. 4-1-tf

HOTELS AND SALOONS.

FORCE'S HOTEL,
NORTH AVENUE, (NEAR D. L. & W. STATION.)
JAS. M. FORCE, Prop'r.
A FIRST-CLASS FAMILY HOTEL. Steam Heat. Porcelain Plumbing.
Transient guests at reasonable rates. 10-21-tf

SOMERSET HOTEL,
Cor. Somerset & Smith Sts., North Plainfield N. J.
RICHARD A. BOYCE, Proprietor.
Permanent and transient board, at fair rates.
First-class stabling and sheds attached.
Meals at all reasonable hours.

Dime Savings Institution
OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest at the rate of three (3) per cent. per annum payable semi-annually.
JOHN W. MURRAY, President,
WILLIAM WHITE, Vice "
NATHAN HARPER, "
ELIAS R. POST, Treasurer.
4-1-tf

Jas. M. Dunn,
Dealer in
GROCERIES, PROVISIONS,
Vegetables, Fruits, etc.
No. 36 Park Ave.
OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.
THORBURN & CO'S GARDEN SEEDS,
BEST IN THE WORLD,
ALL GOODS DELIVERED FREE OF CHARGE.
4-1-tf

ESTABLISHED 1836.
C.E. & J.W. BROWN,
(Successors to G. F. & C. E. Brown & Co.)
Importers, Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
WALL PAPER.
21 Canal Street.
NEW YORK.
English Tiles, Anaglypta, Hand, Leather-Raised Flock Papers, &c. Scrips for Walls.
Manufacturers of Window Shades.
4-15-tf

LIVERY.

A. M. SEGUINE,
(Successor to John W. Leigh.)
Laing's Hotel Stables

Front street, opposite Madison avenue.
Coaches for Weddings, Parades and Private Calls. Light carriages of all descriptions for hire.
RIDING OR LIVERY.
Safe, safe drivers for shopping calls or pleasure drives. Special attention given to boarding horses by the day, week or month. Prices reasonable
TELEPHONE CALL. NO. 36.

Livery Stables!
Mr. D. S. ROBERTS
Has Removed to His New Building on
NORTH AVENUE,
Adjoining Force's Hotel. Mr. Roberts will always be found ready and able to answer demands for all kinds of turn-outs at short notice and moderate rates. Horses taken to board by the day, week or month. Telephone connection. Accommodation Express a specialty. 8-13-tf

Accommodation Express.
UPPER RICKERT, Proprietor.
Office—Vanderbeek's Restaurant, Park avenue. The Accommodation Express will attend to the transferring of baggage to and from the Depot, or from place to place. Orders can be left at the office mentioned above, and when left at Vanderbeek's Restaurant will receive prompt attention. 4-1-tf

INSURANCE.

FIRE INSURANCE
Star and Merchants
Fire Insurance Co's of the City of New York.
are prepared to assume responsible and satisfactory risks on favorable terms. Fire and casualty risks of every description effected promptly and satisfactorily. Policies issued for the shortest as well as the longest terms.
NATHAN HARPER
Agent.

WILLIAM A. WOODRUFF,
FIRE AND LIFE
INSURANCE AGENT,
Office cor. Front St. and Park Ave.,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Real Estate for Sale & Exchange.
MONEY TO LOAN
On Approved Security.

J. C. Pope & Co.,
GENERAL AGENTS OF THE
German American Ins. Co.,
of New York.
also the agencies of other first-class Fire insurance Companies. Agents of the Inman Steam Ship Line. Drafts on Ireland for sale. Post and City Line. Drafts on Ireland for sale. Post and City Line. Drafts on Ireland for sale. Post and City Line.
National Bank Bonds Bought and Sold. Also,
BUILDING LOTS
And Other Real Estate for Sale.
OFFICE:
8 E. FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD.
JAMES C. POPE. ELIAS R. POST

EDUCATIONAL.

Miss SCRIBNER
AND
Miss NEWTON'S
SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
AND KINDERGARTEN,
17 LaGrande Avenue,
CORNER OF WASHINGTON STREET.
Will reopen WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 17, 1890.
The regular course will include Modern Reading, Drawing and Gaming. 9 11 tf

PAINTERS & PAINTERS' SUPPLIES.

Paints, Varnishes, Glass.
WINDOW SHADES AND FIXTURES.
WALL PAPERS!
PAPER HANGING A SPECIALTY.
A. SWALM,
No. 6 North Avenue, Plainfield.
8-22

L. B. WOOLSTON. J. P. BOGERT
Woolston & Buckle,
PAINTERS,
Wall Papers,
PAINTER'S SUPPLIES. 28 NORTH AVENUE
4-30-tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

LEWIS B. CODDINGTON,
(Successor to T. J. Carey.)
Furniture and Freight Express!
OFFICE—24 W. FRONT ST.
Large Covered Vans or Trucks. Goods delivered to any part of the U. S. Satisfaction guaranteed. Charges reasonable. P. O. Box 228. Ph. Piano moving a specialty. 11-26

Fresh Garden Seeds
AND F RTILIZERS,
Farm and Garden Implements,
Lawn Mowers Refrigerators,
Ice Cream Freezers,
Gasoline Stoves,
Hardware, Tools, etc.
J. J. HEIDELOFF,
No. 13 SOMERSET ST. 8-15-tf

Grains and Seeds for all kinds of Stock can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your Tinware mending to us. The best Tinners, the best Plumbers, and the best Gas fitters in that section. We buy none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction.

Keys of All Kinds are Made Here.

Tinware Made to Order.

Ranges, Brick and Portable Furnaces
SANITARY PLUMBING.

CANOPIES
For Weddings, Parties, Etc.,
TO HIRE. CHARGES REASONABLE
Hugo Weigman,
30 EAST FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD, N. J.
10-30-tf

SPEER'S
GRAPE WINES,
AND
UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.
Used in the principal churches for communion. Excellent for females, weakly persons and the aged.

Speer's Port Grape Wine,
FOUR YEARS OLD.
THIS Celebrated Wine is the pure juice of the Concord ripe Oporto Grape, raised in Speer's vineyards, and left hand until very aged, and become partly raisined before gathering. Its invigorating are unsurpassed by any wine in use. Being prescribed by our most eminent physicians, especially for Females and Children. Universally endorsed by the principal Hospitals and Boards of Health who have examined it. The young and aged and the weakest invalids use it to advantage. It is particularly recommended as the aged and debilitated and suited to the various ailments that affect the weak. It is in every respect a WINE TO BE RELIED ON.

Tonic and Strengthening Properties

Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice
is the juice of the Oporto grape, preserved in its natural fresh, sweet state as it runs from the press by fumigation and electricity, thereby excluding the ferment of fermentation. It is perfectly pure, free from spirits, and will keep in any climate.

Speer's (Exclusive) Claret
is held in high estimation for its richness as a Pure Table Wine, especially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Sherry
is a Wine of superior character, and partakes more of the quality of the grape from which it is made.

Speer's P. J. Brandy
IS A PURE distillation of the grape, and stands unrivaled for its purity and delicacy of flavor. It has a peculiar flavor, similar to that of the grape from which it is distilled.

See that the signature of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is over the neck of each bottle.

SOLD BY DRUGGISTS AND WINE DEALERS. 6-10-y

A. WOLFF,
Manufacturer of
CIGARS,
And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, has removed from 20 to 16 East Front street, where he will be pleased to see his friends and the public generally. 4-1-tf

CARNEY BROS., Ag'ts,
11 SOMERSET ST.
TINNERS,
PLUMBERS,
GAS FITTERS.
PARLOR STOVES,
COOK STOVES,
HEATERS.

TOBACCO, SEGARS, &c.

H. EGGERDING,
No. 17 Park Avenue,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Headquarters for Cigars and Tobacco.
C. O. D. CIGAR.
The best Cigar made in the State, and made of the choicest grades of Havana Tobacco.
CLEAR HAVANA SMOKES A SPECIALTY.
A Shipment of the famous Cheroot Rosario Principe and Domestic Cigars. Cigarettes and Smoking Tobacco in Great Variety.
Orders Solicited.

C. M. FINE,
Dealer in HAVANA & DOMESTIC
—SEGARS!—
4-30-PARK AVE., (NEXT DOOR TO POSTOFFICE.)
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Tobacconist's Materials,
of every description.
The Celebrated Seed Leaf Tobacco, Wilhelmina, always on hand.

CARNEY BROS., Ag'ts,
11 SOMERSET ST.
TINNERS,
PLUMBERS,
GAS FITTERS.
PARLOR STOVES,
COOK STOVES,
HEATERS.

SANITARY PLUMBING,
Brick and Portable Furnaces,
GAS FITTING,
TIN ROOFING,
Etc. Etc.
I am prepared to do any of the above branches of work in the most satisfactory manner and at reasonable prices. 4-1-tf

Having purchased myself with the Stock of Hardware, Tinware, Stoves, Ranges, Etc., of the late firm of Hall & Bro., I am prepared to do all kinds of Tinning, Roofing, Plumbing, Gas Fitting, Etc., Etc., in the most satisfactory manner and at reasonable prices. Thanking the public for their liberal patronage in the past, I hope to merit a continuance of the same.
D. V. LITTELL,
No. 2 NORTH AVE. (NEAR RAILROAD) N. J.

WHATEVER form of printed matter you require we can be of service to you; whether it be

Letter Headings,
Circulars,
Programmes, Menus,
Addresses,
Memorials,
By-Laws of Societies,
Prospectuses and Reports of Financial Associations, or any other matter for Public or Private Circulation.

Everything,

WEEKLY CONSTITUTIONALIST,

DAILY PRESS

(Chautauqua Building),

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

POEMS OF THE SEASON.

Aunt Mary.
There's a time at the noon of day
When Aunt Mary takes her walks,
When Aunt Mary chatters and talks,
And what does she think of, pray?

Does she think of the days gone by
And the years that are to be?
Or the hours she spent in misery
When care was her every sigh?

Do those sights, long past, recall
Aunt Mary's old youthful days?
Does she think of the many ways
And make her poor heart pain?

Or is it of other things
Her thoughts then do take wings—
Of treasures she has not found?
Of the unexplored and unbound?

If her thoughts are of this or that,
For the gift of a heart content
She would give the world could she—
Aunt Molly's the richest one!
Wilson M. Lord, in Good Housekeeping.

What is the Reason?
Until Hezekiah to tell Widow Gray
The reason he never would name the day
He had thought he would wait and see
If Widow Gray would ever be free.
Then he would ask her to be his bride
And make her happy at his side.
How could she ever think of such
A thing as that? Why, it was much Too sudden! Hezekiah, you're mad!
Why, you're old, to think of marrying!
Then Widow Gray, in timid blushes,
Asked Hezekiah to tell Widow Gray
The reason he never would name the day.
—Clinton C. Dowd, in Good Housekeeping.

A Tragic Ballad.
All in cruel Cupid's toils
Bound is my poor heart;
With a name upon its brand
Which I hate to part.

Open to it to the day!
Dot the grief so cold there in
In its anguish and its pain
We've again to throb with gain!
Shall I sadly sing the lay
That that outland grief can buy
Words obtain? Let them try!
—M. G. Saltzer, in Good Housekeeping.

In the Night.
The proud may call me homeless no longer
Beside his breast;
They cannot see my grief,
The happy thoughts of a more happy day,
Though they are brief.
The child's fair location long ago inspired
My single strongest and my warmest love,
Which out of doors upon the roof the rain is pouring
Like—

And dreams pass by—they bland and fade away and change,
Myself is not always right,
Things do so strangely, yet it seems not strange
Nor other than bright;
Our bodies with the sunshine white cherrys pat,
Waxing it is also beside that first deathbed,
And out of doors upon the roof the rain is pouring
Like—

Which shall it be? we say,
White wastes looks the forms around us take,
We, who have loved of old,
But sweeter hands will bestow us rounds
Than ever yet have been,
And out of doors upon the roof the rain is drip-drip-—Elizabeth M. Chapin, in Spirit of Journalism.

The Mirror of a Lie.
"The sun is up," he gayly cried;
"I think it best that I
Should get my spade and hoe
My garden hard by."

And so he told until he saw
Where he was digging supine
A corpse-like form, and knew
Inclining feeling worse.

"I will o-nothing at," said he,
And fled the place with speed;
But presently a tombstone dark
Appeared near by I read.

"My sun," he thought, "I should have brought;
I'll go and get it straight."
And so he started on his way,
Although the hour was late.

The following verse was the verses
That on the stone appear;
I'll take the opportunity
To read them here."

And so he told him down and slept,
And ere his sleep was done
The lake looked like a sheet full
Gleamed with the setting sun.

Alas! to one so poor a day
With good cheer ended!
Alas! how oft it may be found
The mirror of a lie.
—Harper's Weekly.

A Battle.
I saw a battle yesterday!
And would you have me tell
The story of the fearful fray,
And how it all befell?

Against the sunset the sun made war;
The foggy mists did fight
That in the morn by sun and shower
Thickly formed dew.

The sun shut down its shafts of light
And pierced their ranks, and made
Them scatter with the shafts of night!
And flying bits of shade.

It was an utter rout, I wean;
The mists fled from the sun,
He begin called, so mixed and torn,
I scarce could tell which one.

Yet in an hour the day was clear,
The sky triumphant shone!
White, fleecy clouds that battled near,
The wind a flower had blown.

Till at my very feet it lay,
All white within the cup;
It was a fog of truce, to say
The fight was fought and won.
—Richard H. Burton, in St. Nicholas.

The Wonderful Chameleon.
He changes as he lies a-basking
To be a politician
And show his sense who brains they never have
Or had a little money—
This many indeed sound money—
For politicians in the U. S. A. they are.

He soon became "good fellow"—
So from the first he ne'er was native.
The "good" all grew to love him more and more Until
They pushed him and they groomed him,
They fondled him and they boomed him,
They revelled his head fourteen by twenty-four

He kept the bootle flowing,
The "good" he kept loudly howling—
He had a "check" so everything it might,
He had a "check" so everything it might,
They said he was improving—
He grew stupid and by day or night.

He grew stupid and by day or night.

Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice
is the juice of the Oporto grape, preserved in its natural fresh, sweet state as it runs from the press by fumigation and electricity, thereby excluding the ferment of fermentation. It is perfectly pure, free from spirits, and will keep in any climate.

Speer's (Exclusive) Claret
is held in high estimation for its richness as a Pure Table Wine, especially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Sherry
is a Wine of superior character, and partakes more of the quality of the grape from which it is made.

Speer's P. J. Brandy
IS A PURE distillation of the grape, and stands unrivaled for its purity and delicacy of flavor. It has a peculiar flavor, similar to that of the grape from which it is distilled.

See that the signature of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is over the neck of each bottle.

SOLD BY DRUGGISTS AND WINE DEALERS. 6-10-y

Garden Seeds,
Direct from the Growers.
Othello Ranges,
Choice Clover and Timothy Seed,
House Furnishing Goods,
Hardware, Flooring and Tinning.
A. E. GRIFFEN,
12 East Front Street.

Could Not See Beyond His Nose.
Volkhovsky, a Russian exile, while lecturing at Chicago, said of Bismarck, a desperate antidote to which he once resorted. A police official once searched the house of a suspected person, and at the time there was in his possession a certain document the discovery of which would have compromised only to himself, but also to his friends. Volkhovsky was desperate, for it was quite certain that the document would be found. But a daring trick saved him. He coolly handed the document to the official, who serenely glanced at it and handed it back. Then, after the most minute search, the official, satisfied that there was no more to be discovered with letters—for he had even examined the stereotype and the bedding—had to apologize and depart.

Winter in Finland.
Finns have to battle with the horrors of Arctic winter from November until May, and the clearing this dark period blocks all trade with foreign countries. To remedy this the Finnish government has built a railway from Helsingfors to Tornea, specially constructed strong enough to force the severest of ice, and, although it cost upwards of 1,000,000 marks, the Finns do not regret the money.

The Sinful Creature.
Gabblelove—Now, if you'll take a friend's advice—
Miss Vivian (curtly)—Certainly, old boy! It will be the first thing I ever got from you.

RELICS OF A TRAGEDY.

Carefully Preserved in the War Department Archives.

The Weapon With Which Lincoln Was Shot—The Dagger That Booth Used in His Flight — Other Tragic Mementoes.

[COPYRIGHT, 1891.]

"How many people do you suppose," asked Mr. Saxton, a clerk in the office of the Judge Advocate General of the army, the other day, "have ever seen the weapon with which Wilkes Booth killed President Lincoln?"

Mr. Saxton was with a party of friends, and his question rather aroused interest. Nobody could guess, of course. It had been generally supposed that every relic of the Lincoln assassination had long ago been secure or stolen about by everybody who had interest in such things, but when somebody let Mr. Saxton's company suggested that idea, he only smiled and said: "There everybody has been greatly fooled. I suppose the dime museums are filled with such things, and we all know that the Army Medical museum, which is now in Ford's old theater, has many interesting relics of those tragic days, which every visitor to Washington can see if he chooses. But the real interests of the assassination—the genuine exhibits of the trial before the military commission which hanged Booth's fellow conspirators are in the judge advocate general's office, as part of the record of the trial, and" (here Mr. Saxton looked mysterious) "they are in my charge."

Mr. Saxton, is a graybaired man. His friends try to dub him "Major," but he won't have it, for he says: "I was never in the army but first sergeant, and I am proud of that title." Sergt. Saxton has charge of all five of the rooms in the big war department building, which contains the court martial records. It is a bureau of war departments rarely visited because it is not known to contain anything especially interesting. Everything connected with the assassination of President Lincoln was long ago supposed to have been distributed among the various museums and collections of curiosities, or to private hands.

Still, every implement, every exhibit, and every physical object that figured in the official deed forms a part of the military record of the trial, and much is carefully guarded in the office of the judge advocate general. But few people ever know that such interesting relics are in existence. When Mr. Saxton asked how many in the opinion of his young friends he presented, a shot looked at them. His answer, "About three or four people a year—friends of the secretary of war, or judge advocate general," was indeed a surprise. The exhibits in the great trial are most carefully guarded. Nobody can ever see them without permission of the secretary, or the judge advocate general, and nobody can take copies of any of the written matter without express permission of the secretary himself.

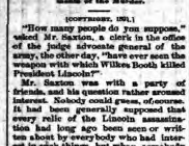
It is a grewsome exhibit that Mr. Saxton has to display, when anybody comes to him with the proper authority. The room that he occupies is big and broad, with ceilings fifteen feet high. All the four walls are covered with a solid frame work of pigeon holes and drawers, numbered in a way that nobody could understand. To the left of Mr. Saxton's desk is a range of screen-door drawers. In these drawers, packed in close, is the record of the trial of the Lincoln assassins. There were no typewriters in those days; the whole record is written in a big, bold hand, on departmental paper, and the whole is kept carefully locked up.

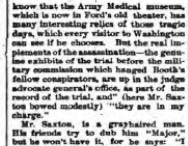
The physical exhibits of the trial are kept in the vault. When Saxton brings out these dreadful things, he does it with an air that indicates his personal responsibility. His voice is hushed; he directs his typewriters to cease work, he sends his lady stenographer out of the room, and with the most delicate touch lifts the protecting relics, shows them, and it is only with evident reluctance that he allows even a favored visitor to touch them.

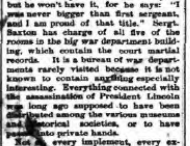
The first thing of importance that he has to show, is the stage plan of Ford's theater—the plan that was drawn by the engineering department of the army for use on the trial. It is ragged and blumbleblotted. Four circles mark the positions of the various actors in the great tragedy. Every position occupied by Booth, Harold, Atzerodt, Payne is marked in red. Where Mr. Lincoln sat is his box, and the position of the rocking chair in which Mrs. Lincoln, Maj. Rathbone and Miss Harris, is marked in blue. Where Lenie Keene and Hawk sulked part, Harry Hawk, stood in the second act of "Our American Cousin," right in the center of the stage, is marked in purple, and where Booth fell from the stage on his leap from the box and broke his leg, is indicated in green.

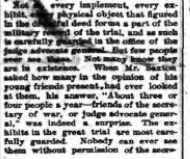
The most interesting, because it was the official diagram before the court. The certificates as to its genuineness are signed by the engineer officer who drew it, and the whole is backed up by a young lieutenant of engineers who probably had no idea of the great historic importance that was likely to become. When Mr. Saxton had carefully called this up and put it in its place, he took from the vault a small box, about two feet long and a foot wide. It is marked "Lincoln Relics," and the lid is fastened by two inches thick. It was fingerworn, and full of bruises. Over one of its ends were huge blots of red sealing wax, and when Mr. Saxton, with almost an air of sacredness, gently lifted the lid off of wood and laid it aside, until he could get at the box that was inside, the lecturer as well as a custodian, and he said: "I put that aside away from here, for I would not like to have the public see that. I have always thought that there was something sacred about this box, and I would not like to have it exhibited to the public." Then he lifted out the box first, and put them all on the floor you. He left the side there, and then took out an old, tattered, dirty piece of newspaper, and, as the very touch of it completely laid that down, the lecturer explained that some visitor during the war had evidently wrapped this package in a newspaper, and that early portraits are being so carefully preserved by the judge advocate general of the army.

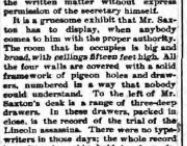
In fact no carefully done by the judge advocate general that he will not permit them to be touched by any one. Even the President of the United States, however, he is content with a brief exercise of such patience, and the testimony of this death

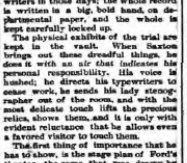


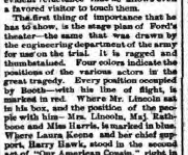


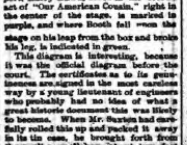


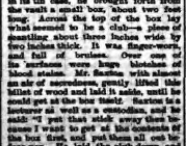


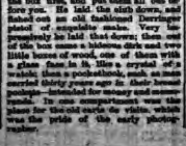












When Mr. Saxton brought out the little Derringer he said impressively: "This is the weapon with which Mr. Lincoln was killed." Mr. Saxton allows no one to take that in his hand. It is an expensive gunpowder toy—just as they now, or had always been, made for a quarter of a country age. It is an expensive weapon, as those things were in those days. The short barrel is sharply rifled and studded with silver. The hammer action is two "clicks," folded with the same silver mountings. comes down on a percussion cap. The stock is of rose wood, beautifully carved, and the whole is artistically mounted and decorated in silver. That old type of Derringer was a wicked shooter at short range. Booth put it at President Lincoln's head, within two inches of the left ear, and fired quickly followed. He threw it away in the box before making his leap to the stage, and that is how the little weapon got into the hands of the government. It has been of the little pistol are two old-fashioned percussion caps. They are still dewed with age and worthless, but Mr. Saxton says: "These little caps are just as they were found in the butt of the pistol." When Mr. Saxton shows them he gets a good black, fine white paper, and dumps the little caps out. No stranger is permitted to touch them.

Mr. Saxton next produced one of the little wooden pill boxes, and out of it came the leaden bullet which had caused Mr. Lincoln's death. It had originally been a round bullet, but was slightly flattened by impact with the president's skull, and it was also shorn just as it came from the hands of the army surgeons who had extracted it. It is precisely the size and shape of an old-fashioned oval lemon candy drop. It weighs about a quarter of an ounce. "This," said Mr. Saxton, as he took up a little steel rod with a fine point, "is the probe with which they found the bullet."

"These," continued the custodian of the sacred treasures, "are the fragments of bone taken from the wound. They are little scraps of the bony structure of Mr. Lincoln's skull." The little box containing them is lined with velvet and covered with a watch crystal, so they can be seen, but not handled.

Mr. Saxton has next to show a pocket compass, which Booth used to direct him in his flight through the Maryland swamps. Though unused now and carefully locked up, the needle still points unerringly to the north. The leather case, lined with velvet, and the droppings of sperm from the candle, which Booth used at night to note his observations, yet disfigure the velvet in which the compass is set. This is one of the most interesting of the hidden relics of the great tragedy.

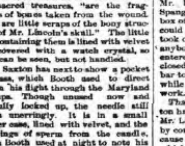
Booth's diary takes from his dead body, after he was killed in the barn at Garrett's farm, has been time and time again printed, but scarcely anybody of the present generation ever saw the original. Mr. Saxton has it among his treasures. It is a small leather-covered book beginning with April 16, 1865, all preceding pages having been cut out, presumably by the assassin himself. The contents of the remaining pages, which cover the month, on April 21, are simply the rawings of a crazed man in his flight, with the name "Booth" repeatedly "the great deed." The matter itself has no great interest at this late day, but the little leather-covered book in itself has. Booth wrote a regular hand, admirable in its simplicity. It was of the Italian type, small and compact. On one of the small pages of his diary he sold pat one thousand words. He wrote with a lead pencil, and the entries seem to be as fresh as when written. Nobody can copy them without permission of the secretary of war—a privilege accorded to but few, and few ask for it, for they are very tiresome, disconnected, and are of no value as reliable history.

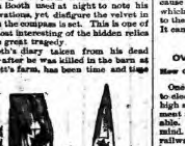
But there is one compartment of the little museum that is always sure to excite something interesting. These are four cartes de visite of actresses famous in Booth's time for their beauty. The picture is dated, as was the custom in those days. Miss Effie Germon, once known as "Lily Hacker," is one. It is a fair, young face, strikingly beautiful. The hair is combed down over the temples and ears, as was the fashion thirty years ago, but the features are fresh and girlish. Miss Germon, if living, is a woman of middle age, and they say she is fat.

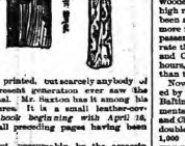
Caroline Richings, the once famous singer, is another face that figures in this historic dairy. She, too, is fresh and fair. Her picture is taken in profile, and is the most artistic of the four. The third picture, Mr. Saxton said, no body knows who it is, but there is a vague doubts as to whether Mr. Saxton was speaking the exact truth. The picture is of Ada Richland, a pretty girl who was once a noted actress in New York and about as authentic of reputation as Booth himself. It was she, but Mr. Saxton bashed himself about something else. The lady was full of face, with dark hair, and the picture is finely arranged—a lace scarf in Spanish fashion. The reticence of Mr. Saxton was otherwise unbroken, and it is well known that this was the picture of a daughter of one distinguished senator and a United States minister to a foreign court of another now living from the same position.

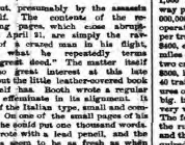
The fourth picture in the diary is that of Rose Eytinge, long since retired from the stage, and living in elegant ease and dignity in the bosom of her family. Booth in the beginning of their youth and friendship, as the very words of his diary show, was in love with her, and the living may read with astonishment that their early portraits are being so carefully preserved by the judge advocate general of the army.

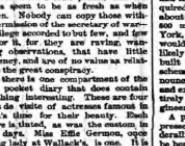
In fact no carefully done by the judge advocate general that he will not permit them to be touched by any one. Even the President of the United States, however, he is content with a brief exercise of such patience, and the testimony of this death

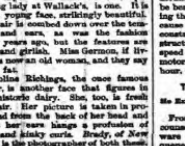


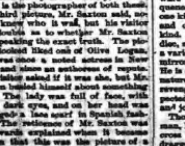












Rates of Advertising.

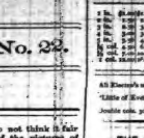
	1 WEEK	2	3	1 MONTH	2	3	6
1 In.	$1.00	$1.50	$2.00	$3.00	$5.00	$7.00	$12.00
2 In.	1.50	2.00	2.50	5.00	7.00	9.00	15.00
3 In.	2.00	2.50	3.00	7.00	9.00	12.00	18.00
4 In.	2.50	3.00	3.50	9.00	12.00	15.00	20.00
5 In.	3.00	3.50	4.00	12.00	15.00	18.00	25.00
6 In.	3.50	4.00	4.50	15.00	18.00	20.00	30.00
1 Col.	4.00	4.50	5.00	18.00	20.00	25.00	35.00

All Electric's must be solid ended.

"Little of Everything" column, 5 cts. per line. Double rate, 10 per ct. advance of above rates.

THE TALE OF A CAT.

Teddy Chats About His Experiences with Ralph Adams.



SUPPOSE I am one of the happiest cats that ever lived. Ever since I was born, down in the basement of the house that we live in, I have had about every cat's heart could wish for.

They say that I am very pretty, and there were fairly open I could hear children telling how cunning and sweet I was, and when I used to be taken up into the library and placed on that nice soft soft pillow I could cause in and that I was a little beauty. I suppose if everybody said so it must have been true. I had the nicest blue ribbons around my neck all the time, and my coat was always as glossy as it could be.

We have some very good times at our house now. There is Ralph, a nice little boy about four years old, and Hector, one of the nicest great dogs you ever saw, and we three have lots of fun. Sometimes Ralph plays circus and puts me on Hector's back, and then he makes Hector walk around the yard while he plays on a little trumpet that he has and leads the procession. He makes believe that he is the band at the head of circus, and we all enjoy it very much.

HECTOR.

Sometimes when Hector is taking a nap in front of the fire I go up to it softly up and crawl up on his back and curl down to a nap myself. Hector is quite still and sort and seems to like it. One day when I was sleeping on Hector's back Ralph came in and laid down upon the mat, put his head on Hector, and he went to sleep, too; so there we were, all three of us, asleep together, and when my mistress came in and found us there. I heard her say she would like very much to have our pictures taken.

My master said he would get his camera, and he soon brought in the funniest looking box with long yellow legs and then put his head under a cloth. When he did that I felt a little nervous and moved a little, and then Hector woke up and he moved, and that woke Ralph up. So when master got his head from under the cloth there was nothing there but a picture of us.

About the funniest thing that ever happened to me was last fall, when the apples were being gathered. Ralph got a brush somewhere and before I knew it he had his arm around my neck and was trying to make me all over with that white paint, and on my black fur it didn't look pretty at all. I got away, and for two or three days I was too ashamed of myself to go upstairs, so I stayed in the basement with coals.

I had a funny thing happen one day when cook was out. I was hungry and thought I would just help myself to milk, so into the pantry and onto the shelf I went, and what do you think! Just as I looked over the side of the pan there was a mouse in the milk swimming away as fast as he could, but he couldn't get out. I thought I would let him stay there a little while, and after I had drank the milk. I would eat him. But he was so quick to circle the pan, and it grew lower and lower in the pan, and the first thing I knew jump went the mouse over the side of the pan, across the shelf into his hole! I jumped after him, but he was too smart for me.

THE MOUSE IN THE PAN.

I don't like to be whipped at all by boys. Big boys are always throwing stones and things and chasing me, and when I am until I am almost jump out of your skin when you see one coming.

I think I shall be well for more of the good times that I have, but to tell the truth I have an invitation to a cat party to-night over in Teddy Jones' house, and I must get on since Egyptian red ribbon and wear my mustache, some day! I'll tell you about the party what is, if we have a good time, and I guess we will. Good-by.—Ralph Amos' Cat Teddy, in St. Nicholas.

Old-Time Aristocracy.

The so-called cities of the United States at the time of the adoption of the constitution in 1789 were of a size that would now be counted towns of moderate size. But in each of these little capitals there was an aristocracy that affected the style and fashion of the English gentry. Profession and ladies gathered about fashionable parties in the afternoon and spent the time in talking and sipping tea. Evening dances and routs, sometimes large parties, took down to a public garden in the country or a favorite tavern by the fireside. In most of the chief towns there were held once in two weeks "assemblies," or balls. At these assemblies there were stately minuets and country dances, and much money was lost and won at cards. Tables for a meal prepared for fashionable gambling, which was then one of the recognized amusements of good society.

Literary Note.

"I see that in the preface to your book you state that is written to kill a long-felt want. What do you mean by that?"

"What do I mean by that? Why, I've been needing a square meal for the last eighteen months. Don't you call that a long-felt want?"—Texas Siftings.

Boarding Terms.

Applicant—You say the rooms in your house just fills the bill. How about the wash question?

Mistress—Never any trouble about that. The cellar is full of it.—Harper's Bazar.

At a Jamestown Boy.

"Why!" said the visitor, "what is your ambition?"

"I'll tell you," said the boy, putting down his yellow-covered story of the plains. "He knows people from all the nations in the queer mention of my name."—Harper's Young People.

The Constitutionalist.

W. L. FORCE, Editors and Proprietors. A. L. FORCE

ONWARD! DEMOCRATS!

Present appearances indicate that four or more Presidential nominations will be in the field next year.

There is evident commotion in the political atmosphere. The unwarranted action of the last Republican Congress, sustained by the Harrison Administration, has provoked wide-spread and deep-seated popular opposition, and the final result will doubtless be needed rain.

It matters not whether two or three two partisan organizations enter the fray, the flag of one will be discovered proudly waving as the representative of the true principles of free government and the best principles of the people.

That flag is the emblem of Democracy, the untarnished banner of many bitter contests, and although at times driven back, no political power on earth ever did or ever can conquer it.

The party of Democracy stands ready to fearlessly receive the conflict against every imaginable foe that can be marshaled. Enthusiasm sways its faults because the principles of freedom are at stake. The triumph of Democracy means that—

Every official duty shall be domestic and discharged as a sacred trust as for the public good.

Honesty and strict accountability shall rule every department of government.

Prudent economy shall take the place of profligate extravagance, and purpose to destroy partisan corruption.

Revenue shall be raised for the general public welfare, and not for the special enrichment of any person or combine.

Equal and exact justice and protection to all classes of people and every legitimate pursuit shall be ordained, and rightly enforced.

Onward! Democrats!

Your cause is just!

WOOL

"Those men who drafted the wool schedule of the McKinley Bill and made of it the keystone and the very soul of that measure, were then intolerable and intolerant fools who declared that an increase in the wool duties would raise the price of Ohio and Michigan fleece, enrich farmers, keep out foreign goods and wonderfully stimulate home production of the domestic article. They put through their wool schedule in spite of the Democratic men and the experiences of the last six months have shown that they were seditious fools and ignorant fools. Several months ago they increased the farmers' price and they were going to continue until they have badly injured the party they called they were going to benefit. Such men are traitors. Is it not time for them to own up that they made fools of themselves and to confess their error like honest men?

We presume some Republicans will denounce the above quotation as the spiteful utterance of a rabid Democratic editor.

Be seated, gentlemen!

It is nothing of the kind, but, on the contrary, the avowed sentiment of a prominent, Republican journal out West, the "Chicago Tribune."

And it is under the fact, that it voices the judgment of thousands of your own party friends in regard to that "bad measure" denominated the McKinley tariff.

ALL JOIN IN ITS ERECTION!

The Soldiers Monument Should be Built by Contributions From Every Inhabitant of Plainfield, Old and Young.

Three thousand circulars like the following have been mailed to citizens of Plainfield and the borough. Let everybody give something; as much as he or she can afford, no matter how small. Each one should feel a personal pride in the monument when completed, and the city will receive honor therefor.

It is proposed to erect in this city a monument to commemorate the victories of the armies of the United States during the late Civil War, and to perpetuate and memorate the patriotism and valor of New Jersey soldiers and sailors; and to this end a corporation has been formed, pursuant to the laws of New Jersey, known as "The Soldiers' Monument Association of Plainfield, New Jersey."

Plainfield and its neighborhood sent to the war for the maintenance of the Union many gallant men. Of these some were killed in battle and others died of wounds and of sickness gotten out of hardship and exposure. All were found faithful in the hour of trial.

In nearly every State that sent soldiers and sailors to conquer the peace of rebellion, the gratitude and patriotism of its citizens have erected monuments to commemorate the worth and bravery of the Country's noble dead. In this respect New Jersey has hardly kept pace with her sister States, and Plainfield has not yet set up in her public places a single monument. Now is a suitable one for the accomplishment of this object. A model or plan of the proposed monument has, after much careful consideration, been agreed upon; the best possible site has been secured for it; namely, the triangular plot opposite the present Asbury church; and the Association is now ready for the subscription necessary for the purpose. It proposes that the Two Grand Army Posts (Winfield Scott Post, No. 10, and Major And ren Post, No. 109) and the officers and directors of the Association, all of whom are named below, are officially and fraternally requesting to take part. The final roll-call will be kept separate from all others and will be sacredly devoted to the purpose of erecting the proposed Monument. Said subscription papers will be circulated by the directors of the Association and by the Grand Army Posts. All reasonable inquiries should be made to J. H. Force, Treasurer of the Association, 96 West Seventh street, Plainfield, N. J.

Plainfield to-day adds this statement and appeal to those making at least a small contribution to the Monument Fund: Let the memory of the brave be cherished and let a generous spirit rise to keep alive in the thoughts of our children's children the noble, humble, sturdy and successful devotion of our Nation's integrity, made by those who have gone before and by those who are now at last passing away.

Mason W. Tyler, President; J. Evarts Tracy, Vice President; Nelson W. Boynton, Secretary; Abel E. Stewart, Treasurer. Directors—Mason W. Tyler, J. E. Stewart, Nelson Boynton, L. V. F. Randolph, Edward J. Dimon, George M. Moore, Wm. H. Williams, James B. Negley, E. B. Hart, J. W. Murray, Alex. Gilbert, A. C. Baldwin, S. A. Gluss, C. W. Mortimer, L. W. Sherrell, Rowland Cox, J. Evarts Tracy.

A Rose-Bull Yelp from Mt. Arsnal.
(From the Washington Standard.)

We understand that the Plainfield Crescents' hopes are swelling again. Well, we united last night to the Plainfield Crescents will not be able to accede a victory from us as they did last year. We third for sure!

SHE'S AGIN THE GOVERNMENT.

The "Big 6" to the "Central Three" to Lick the Rod Boy to the Nail.

That striking old woman, the colored Times, is not only a rejoicing exemplar of that close-on-Mayor Randolph palate out, which opposes a thing merely because the "Big 6" are in favor of it, but the Colored Times will go further and stoop to an expostulation in her cheerlessness.

For instance: the ordinance granting the Plainfield and Watchung Railway Company franchises to construct and maintain a trolley system of street car service in this city, was approved by the Mayor after the Common Council had passed it over the veto of Councilman Gross, who, however, openly stated that he was opposed only on personal grounds, entirely aside from the merits of the "Big 6" scheme. Yet in spite of these facts the old woman speaks ever and always of the project as being "forced on" the people by the "Big 6." That is a mere example of what is meant when it is said that she will stoop to misrepresentation.

The charge is further shown to be just, by many such references to the street railway matter as the following:

"A little more evidence that the attempt is made to satisfy only the few, instead of what the people of Plainfield feel more kindly toward the Watchung Railway Company through the future the measure that is acknowledged to be a measure to rid property and trade.

"Nothing of the kind has been pledged. It is only so asserted by the New York Times, whose owners are financially interested in the impracticable scheme of trolley system, and by our scolding old friend on Front street, who has never once seen the system proposed for Plainfield, does not know what it is all about, and merely cherishes the same sentiments as the Irishman just landed who was asked his politics—said he, "I'm agin the Government." Therefore they are being "wanted" that an attempt is made to secure only the best, the Times is fully aware that there is a chance in the franchise compelling the railroad to tear down the trolley as soon as a better system is perfected.

But let's stop our own scolding and wind up with a laugh. Instead, at the gullibility of the Times. She has discovered perpetual motion, and hastens to announce its "discovery" and to recommend it at once for street railway purposes in Plainfield. She says:

Now that the writ of contempt in the railway matter granted by the Supreme Court gives the "Big Six" an opportunity for much needed reflection, suppose they turn their attention to the morals of the Waddell-Reis storage-battery for street cars as shown by the recent experiments in Philadelphia. The mental effort will not hurt them in the least.

The joke of this is right here. This Waddell-Reis storage-battery has been "written up" by a very clever press agent employed by the owners who are trying to float the company's stock. Yet, according to his glowing story the car when running down hill generates the electricity that is used to run the car up the hill again or across the level. Only a little of the electricity is used to run the car up the hill again or across the level. Only a little of the electricity is used to run the car up the hill again or across the level. Only a little of the electricity

LAWS OF NEW JERSEY.

(BY AUTHORITY.)

CHAPTER CX.

An act concerning cities of the first class in this state, and the several counties wherein such cities respectively are situate, and the inhabitants thereof.

Whereas, much litigation, loss, confusion and inconvenience have been occasioned to the said cities, counties and inhabitants thereof, by reason of the uncertainty that exists in the law as to what is and what is not taxable property, and the proper mode and manner of assessing the same for taxation; and whereas, many persons, firms and corporations, owning property in said cities, could be benefited by municipal improvements and yet escape their proportion of the burdens incident thereto, by the changes made in the ownership of such property; now, therefore,

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the state of New Jersey, That hereafter all the official papers, books and records respecting all municipal liens and charges against real estate, and all conveyances within the corporate limits of cities of the first class in this state, shall be filed in the office of the recorder or the same duly certified to, by the comptroller of such city, and the duplicate thereof certified by such city keeper of records, and all such papers, books and records relating to municipal liens and charges against real estate, shall be allowed, and the same shall be made by such officer in his own name, and not as recorder or the assessor and town accountant severally, and for such papers, books and records, and their duplicates, shall have the same force and effect as the original papers, books and records in his office, or any board or department thereof.

2. And be it enacted, That hereafter all the records respecting municipal liens on land or real estate, situate within the limits of said cities, shall consist of three numbers, who shall be appointed by the mayor thereof for the term of three years, and be known as the board of assessors of taxes and assessments, and shall be sworn to the faithful discharge of their duties, before entering upon the same, by any officer authorized to administer oaths, and three members of said board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business, and the said board shall have power to appoint a clerk, who shall receive a salary of not more than twenty-five hundred dollars per annum, and the said board shall have power to appoint a messenger, who shall receive a salary of not more than one thousand dollars per annum, payable monthly, and the said board shall have power to appoint a collector of taxes and assessments, who shall receive a salary of not more than two thousand dollars per annum, payable monthly, and the said board shall have power to appoint a counsel, who shall receive a salary of not more than two thousand dollars per annum, payable monthly, and the said board shall have power to appoint a surveyor, who shall receive a salary of not more than two thousand dollars per annum, payable monthly, and the said board shall have power to appoint a clerk of the board, who shall receive a salary of not more than two thousand dollars per annum, payable monthly, and the said board shall have power to appoint a draughtsman, who shall receive a salary of not more than two thousand dollars per annum, payable monthly

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

LAWS OF NEW JERSEY.

(BY AUTHORITY)

CHAPTER XC.

An act to extend the time for completing certain roads.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That all the provisions of the act entitled "An act to authorize the laying out and making of certain roads in the State of New Jersey," approved March twenty-first, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, and the supplements thereto, be and the same are hereby extended for the term of two years from the passage of this act, provided that between the counties of Hudson and Bergen, and between the counties of Hudson and Essex, the time for the completion of the roads authorized by the said act shall be extended for the term of three years from the passage of this act.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 19, 1881.

CHAPTER XCVIII.

A Supplement to the act entitled "An act to provide for the funding of a certain debt of this State," approved March twenty-first, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall not be lawful for the State Board of Assessors to assess any property of the State, or any property owned by this state, for the purpose of taxation, nor shall the property of the state be subject to taxation by any municipal corporation in this state, or by any county thereof, for any purpose whatsoever; and the governor and treasurer of this state are hereby authorized and required to execute and deliver to the trustees of the sinking fund of the city of Camden, a release of the claim of this state against the said city of Camden, for the sum of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, with interest thereon from the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, which said release shall be executed upon the payment by the said city of Camden to the treasurer of this state of the sum of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, with interest thereon from the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, and upon the execution of such release the said claim of this state against the said city of Camden shall be and the same is hereby released and discharged.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 17, 1881.

CHAPTER XCIX.

An act to authorize the election of a city treasurer in cities of the second class for a longer term than one year.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That at all and each of the several times in this state for the election of a city treasurer in cities of the second class for one year, the said city treasurer may be elected for two years, and the said city treasurer so elected shall hold his office for the term of two years.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith and hereby declared to be repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 17, 1881.

CHAPTER C.

An act empowering water gaugetaxers to appoint their own assistants, and to remove the same, in cities where the water registrar is now elected by the people.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall and may be lawful for any water registrar in any city of this state, where the water registrar is now elected by the people, to appoint and employ such assistants as he may deem necessary to aid him in his lawful duties that are now prescribed by law.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act be and the same are hereby repealed.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 17, 1881.

CHAPTER CI.

A supplement to the act entitled "An act to establish a system of public instruction." Revised March twenty-first, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section three of the act to which this is a supplement be amended to read as follows:

3. The governor, with the senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, shall appoint a state superintendent of public instruction, whose duty it shall be to visit the several counties of this state, and to examine into the condition of the public schools therein, and to report to the governor annually, on the first Tuesday of January, such information as he may deem necessary, together with such suggestions as he may think proper, relative to the improvement of the public schools, and the management of the school fund; he shall also report to the governor annually, on the first Tuesday of January, the number of persons who have received certificates of qualification as teachers, and the number of certificates granted to each person, and

LAWS OF NEW JERSEY.

[BY AUTHORITY.]

CHAPTER LXII.

A Further Act to amend the act entitled "An act for the better regulation of the militia of this state," passed the eighteenth day of February, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-eight.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the fifth section of the said act be and the same is hereby repealed, and that the following be enacted in lieu thereof:

2. And be it enacted, That the persons free from military duty, except in time of war, insurrection or invasion, shall be the following, to wit: The governor of this state, the members of the council, the secretary of state, the treasurer, the attorney general, the clerks of the supreme and circuit courts, the sheriffs and coroners of the several counties, the ministers of the gospel of every denomination, the officers and privates of the several companies of light artillery, the officers and privates of the several troops of horse, the officers and privates of the several companies of grenadiers, the officers and privates of the several companies of riflemen, the officers and privates of the several companies of sappers and miners, the officers and privates of the several companies of pontoniers, the officers and privates of the several companies of artificers, the officers and privates of the several companies of musicians, the officers and privates of the several companies of flank companies, the officers and privates of the several companies of infantry, the officers and privates of the several companies of cavalry, the officers and privates of the several companies of artillery, the officers and privates of the several companies of engineers, the officers and privates of the several companies of pioneers, the officers and privates of the several companies of quartermasters, the officers and privates of the several companies of commissaries, the officers and privates of the several companies of paymasters, the officers and privates of the several companies of surgeons, the officers and privates of the several companies of chaplains, the officers and privates of the several companies of adjutants, the officers and privates of the several companies of inspectors, the officers and privates of the several companies of aides-de-camp, the officers and privates of the several companies of brigade majors, the officers and privates of the several companies of brigade inspectors, the officers and privates of the several companies of brigade quartermasters, the officers and privates of the several companies of brigade commissaries, the officers and privates of the several companies of brigade paymasters, the officers and privates of the several companies of brigade surgeons, the officers and privates of the several companies of brigade chaplains, the officers and privates of the several companies of brigade adjutants, the officers and privates of the several companies of brigade inspectors, the officers and privates of the several companies of brigade

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

LAWS OF NEW JERSEY.

[BY AUTHORITY.]

CHAPTER CXXVIII.

A Supplement to the act entitled "An act concerning elections," approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five, which supplement was approved May twenty-eighth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the board of registry and election of each election district in this state shall consist of three members, who shall be residents of the district for which they are appointed, and who shall be appointed as follows: At least ten days before the day of registration shall arrive in each year, the county board of chosen freeholders of each county in this state shall appoint for each election district in their county two persons, who shall be known as the board of registry and election of such district, and shall designate one of said persons as chairman of said board; and the two persons so appointed at the county board in their several districts shall meet at the court house in their county on the day following their appointment, and shall proceed to the choice of a third member of said board, to be the chairman of the same, and shall make out a certificate of the appointment of the persons so appointed, which certificate shall be signed by the persons appointed, or by a majority of them, and shall be delivered to the chairman of the board of chosen freeholders of the county, or to the clerk of the county, who shall file the same in his office; and the persons so appointed shall be the chairman and members of the board of registry and election of the election district for which they were appointed, and shall continue in office for one year, and until their successors shall be appointed and qualified; and the chairman of the board of chosen freeholders of each county shall have been on the day of registration in each year, and at the time of appointing the persons to be appointed at the county board, and one of the persons so appointed at the county board in their several districts shall be the chairman of the board of registry and election of the district for which they were appointed; and in case the persons appointed by the county board of chosen freeholders of any county shall fail to appoint a chairman of the board of registry and election of any election district, or in case the persons appointed at the county board in their several districts shall fail to appoint a chairman of the board of registry and election of the district for which they were appointed, then the chairman of the board of chosen freeholders of the county shall appoint a chairman of the board of registry and election of such district; and in case any vacancy shall occur in any board of registry and election by the death, resignation, removal from the district, refusal to act, or neglect to act of any member of such board, the chairman of such board shall appoint a person to fill such vacancy, who shall be a resident of the district for which he is appointed, and who shall be a member of the same political party as the person whose place he is appointed to fill; and in case the chairman of any board of registry and election shall refuse or neglect to appoint a person to fill a vacancy occurring in the board of registry and election of which he is chairman, for the space of ten days after such vacancy shall occur, the remaining members of such board shall appoint a person to fill such vacancy, who shall be a resident of the district for which he is appointed, and who shall be a member of the same political party as the person whose place he is appointed to fill; and in case the chairman of any board of registry and election shall refuse or neglect to appoint a person to fill a vacancy occurring in the board of registry and election of which he is chairman, for the space of ten days after such vacancy shall occur, the remaining members of such board shall appoint a person to fill such vacancy, who shall be a resident of the district for which he is appointed, and who shall be a member of the same political party as the person whose place he is appointed to fill; and in case any person appointed to fill a vacancy in the board of registry and election shall refuse or neglect to act as a member of such board for the space of ten days after his appointment, he shall be deemed to have refused to act, and the remaining members of such board shall appoint a person to fill such vacancy, who shall be a resident of the district for which he is appointed, and who shall be a member of the same political party as the person who refused to act

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY OF UNION.

J. A. DEWAREST, - City Editor.

—The Newark Bee Hive will be closed Decoration Day afternoon.

—Mrs. M. C. Dobbins, of Elmwood place, who had a severe fall a few days ago, is once more able to be out.

—The First Baptist Sunday-school has decided to go to Belmar (Ocean Beach) on its annual excursion this summer.

—The Dunellen Borough Commissioners believe in good roads. They are now abolishing New Market avenue from Center street to the Central Railroad.

—An organ concert will be given by the First Baptist Sunday-school on June 9. The proceeds will be used to help pay for the new class-room addition to the church.

—The New Brunswick Fredonian says that cards are out for the marriage of Miss Hattie D. Colthar, of Plainfield, to John Reid, of Princeton, to take place at Plainfield June 3.

—Mrs. John Gable, who has been described by her husband, has since died at 47 Cushetunk avenue without any means of support and with three children, besides to clothe and feed.

—It is reported that the Dunellen Borough Commissioners have ordered the trash carts of Dunellen, Bowling & New Market to be emcaamished, and will expend $800 on the work.

—The virtuous and vigilant police force of the borough lined up for the cottage photograph gallery Sunday, and those who wanted likenesses were compelled to wait till Sunday was over.

—A former member of Grace church has signified his desire of donating a new brass pulpit in the new church as a memorial to his mother. The children of the parish have begun the accumulation fund for a font.

—The top of the tall water tower at Netherwood was visited by Mrs. Gieser and Mr. and Mrs. Myer, of Netherwood, Sunday, and also by John W. Murray, Jr., and James Marth, the fire chief. An American flag was planted at that dizzy height.

—Improvements are still going on in the thriving borough of Dunellen, through the inducements made by the Dunellen Building and Loan Association. At the recent monthly meeting a loan of $1,000 was given out, for the purpose of erecting a cott-ge on Front street.

—Those few who have read in the crazy sheet that the local saloons are not to be closed Saturdays until 12 p. m. need not be misled. The correct hour of closing, 12 m., has been announced through THE PRESS. The midnight closing isn't so, because you saw it elsewhere.

—The Whatsoever Circle, Kings Daughters, of Trinity Reformed church, will hold an Ice Cream and Strawberry Festival at 59 North avenue, Thursday and Friday afternoons and evenings of next week. A worthy cause and one that should be liberally patronized. Admission ten cents.

—Jeptha Wagner dropped in THE PRESS office Monday and displayed a "twig" off one of his peach trees. The twig was not more than four feet long, and it bore over fifty peaches, each about the size of a hazel nut. Jeptha has 1,200 trees in his grove near Stirling, all loaded just as heavily. He says there will be as many peaches this year as the trees can hold long enough to ripen.

—The Elizabeth Daily Journal says: "J. R. Pond, the well-known lecturer and of the Adaption Society of this city, has taken the management of the Postal Telegraph Company at Plainfield. Mr. Pond was formerly superintendent of the B. and O. Telegraph Company of New York, and was later in the Auditing Department of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. He is a man of many talents in musical circles, and his many friends unite in wishing him good luck and prosperity in his new home." Mr. Pond already has made improvements in the Plainfield Postal Telegraph office, which now gives superior service.

Will Fred Marsh and W. R. Wilcox in Elizabeth's Battery!

A highly interesting battle on the baseball field is being arranged for, to take place within a few days. The nines will be composed of the legal talent of Elizabeth and Plainfield, and the trial of skill will take place in this city.

Death of Mrs. Vincent L. Frazee.

Annie B., wife of Vincent L. Frazee, died at her home at 6 o'clock Sunday morning, after a brief illness. Saturday morning she was well enough to prepare her husband's breakfast. She was 30 years of age the 26th of April. She leaves no children.

Union County Teachers' Examination.

According to the rules of the State Board of Education, the regular spring examination is held the last Friday and Saturday of May. As, however, the last Saturday of May this year coincides with Decoration Day, which is a legal holiday, the examination will be held Friday and Saturday, June 5 and 6, at the usual place, the High school in Westfield. It will be for all grades of certificate.

Washintonville Notes.

John Kengar has sold his place to a party of capitalists who contemplate the immediate erection of a large boarding house. The price paid was $2,500.

David D. Smalley, Jr., has sold his farm to a party from New York, for $3,500.

John Koch's horse ran away in the woods Friday, completely wrecking the cart to which it was hitched. The beast with the shafts as far as Jackson avenue, North Plainfield, a distance of two miles, before he was caught. Mr. Koch and the cart were not in a runaway horse is to kill him before he kills some one else.

Aaron Jimmson has sold his place to a Mr. Visbile of Newark. The valley will lose its Mr. Jimmson one of the most respected citizens, a good neighbor and kind friend.

The Crescent League and Base-Ball.

Representatives of the Plainfield Crescent League say that they have made their decision concerning the price of admission to their base-ball games, and are going to stick all summer to the charge of 25 cents to enter through the gate with 10 cents extra for seats. Their Field Committee is said to be 9 to 1 in favor of the high prices, and that's the way the matter's going to stand. They say they cannot support a team at lower prices.

THE PRESS may be wrong in thinking this a mistake. Certainly THE PRESS hopes it is wrong, for after watching so successfully all last season to make base-ball popular in Plainfield, THE PRESS would have the greatest cause to regret a loss of interest this season.

Another member of the Field Committee denies that that committee have anything to do with the prices, and adds that no vote has been taken by the committee in regard to reducing the price. No one has asked for his opinion, he says.

I suppose from every information I can get that Mr. Gladstone will be the next Premier. I would like to see him in office. I would like to see Mr. Gladstone in office. I would like to see Mr. Gladstone in office. I would like to see Mr. Gladstone

GRASSVALE.

Grassvale lay hidden in the hills in beloved Somerset,
It lay there, like a snow-flake in the bosom of a rose,
Against the mountains on the east the east wind whistled coldly,
And the mountains stopped the fury of the storm-born foes from Devonshire.

But the Grassvale people waited for a railroad to come to them,
And tunnel through the mountains and wind gracefully like heaven
Through the wood-grown streets of Grassvale that would sanister to and fro,
And tell how, when the railroad came, the Station town would grow,

Every night to Farmer's grocery came a crowd of men to talk it,
With big empties in their fancy and two stickers in their pocket;
But the town lost down the dahlias in each housewife's small, front yard,
And whole dozens of ships went rooting down the village boulevard.

Every morn the muzzle marties all the cockers kills would clutch,
And God flung His sunset banner from the top-most western peak;
But when grew on the houses where no paint had yet appeared,
As the face that had no beauty is the first to raise a beard.

The chimney of the old town hall was thrown down by the rain,
And they struck a rusty tunnel through the hot-ten Winter's plain;
At the Baptist church the steeple blew off one tempestuous day,
And they left it as a rendezvous where hens would go and lay.

The great dream of the railroad banished their uneasy fears,
Although they had a suit of clothes but once in thirteen years;
For they reasoned when the railroad shook some winding down their way
They should have a pair of trousers almost every other day.

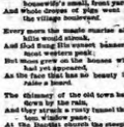
And we all wait for our railroad, while our front yards grow with thistles,
Lay and hoein in our valley for the locomotive's whistle;
Yes, we build up mighty railroads in our paper-headed streets,
While we eager to climb our mountains and just find it to be plain.

—S. W. Foss in Yankee Blade.

MR. BOWSER.

Some of His Eccentricities as Related by Mrs. B.

What He Knows About Corns—The Difference Between a Dress-Making and a Tailor-Made Wife's Stenographic Work.



I HAD been suffering with a soft corn for about a week before Mr. Bowser suddenly inquired:

"What on earth makes you limp as you walk?"

"I didn't know as I did limp. I have a corn, however."

"Corn — you! Evidence that the fools are not all dead yet! Good enough for you or any other woman who'll jam her No. 5 feet into No. 3 shoes! Hope you'll have a dozen!"

"Corns don't always come from wearing tight shoes."

"Don't they? Bet you a million dollars to a cent they do! Can't come any other way; and a man or woman who will wear a shoe that won't fit their feet ought to be published to the public at large as non compos mentis."

On the third day after the above conversation I noticed that Mr. Bowser limped as he came home to supper.

"Had a fall? I queried.

"No, ma'am."

"I notice that you are lame."

"Not enough to knock out one of the lame sort."

I was sure that he was unconscious, if not suffering, but nothing more was said until after supper. Then he dodged around a while and at last got upstairs after him a few minutes later I found him with his shoe and sock off.

"I see the cook said I thought I would rub it a little, you know," he explained.

"Mr. Bowser, you've got a corn!"

"Never!"

"I'm certain of it! Hold your foot up here!"

"Bosh! My foot is cold—that's all. Corn! I'd like to see a corn come on my foot!"

"Hold it up here! There! There, Mr. Bowser, if that isn't a corn between your toes, then I never saw one! It's a

The Constitutionalist,
A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.
W. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE, Editors and Proprietors.
AT PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY.
TERMS—TWO DOLLARS A YEAR.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXIV. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, JUNE 4, 1891. No. 23.

"Support the Constitution, which is the consent of the Union, as well as its limitations as to its authorities."—MADISON.

Rates of Advertising

Space	1 WEEK	2	3	4	5	6	13	26	52
1 in.	$1.00	$1.50	$2.00	$2.50	$3.00	$3.50	$5.00	$8.00	$15.00
2 in.	1.50	2.00	2.50	3.00	3.50	4.00	6.00	10.00	18.00
3 in.	2.00	2.50	3.00	3.50	4.00	4.50	7.00	12.00	21.00
4 in.	2.50	3.00	3.50	4.00	4.50	5.00	8.00	14.00	24.00
5 in.	3.00	3.50	4.00	4.50	5.00	5.50	9.00	16.00	27.00
6 in.	3.50	4.00	4.50	5.00	5.50	6.00	10.00	18.00	30.00

All Electric's must be solid metal.

"Little of Everything" column, 5 cts. per line.
Double rule, 50 per cent. advance of above rates.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

JACKSON & CODDINGTON.
Counsellors-at-Law,
Commissioners of Deeds, Masters-in-Chancery, Notaries Public, Office: corner of Park avenue and Second street.—1m87

W. V. STEELE,
Counselor-at-Law,
Master and Examiner in Chancery, Supreme Court Commissioner.
Office: 2d floor, Park and North Ayes. 4-16-3m

GEORGE W. DAY,
General Auditorium,
Sales of Personal Property solicited. P. O. Box 153, Dunellen, N. J., or address in care of Constitutionalist. Terms reasonable.

DR. CHARLES R. THEISS,
Dentist,
20 West Front street, Plainfield. Special preparation for extracting teeth without pain. Gold filling a specialty.—ly137

H. HAND,
Auctioneer,
P. O. Address, Cook Box 71, South Plainfield, N. J. Orders left at T. J. Cheney's residence and store, 20 West Front street, Plainfield, N. J., will receive prompt attention.—ly137

OSCAR S. TEALE,
Architect,
142 Broadway, New York city, Rooms 33 and 35, (Importers' and Exporters' Bank Building.) Residence, Plainfield, N. J.—1m87

J. B. FORSTER,
Veterinary Surgeon,
Office at S. Sanford's livery office, corner Main street and Madison avenue, Plainfield, N. J. Day or night calls promptly attended to. Telephone: No. 15. Consultation on diseases of all domestic animals. Residence, 73 East Fifth street.—1m87

BUSINESS CARDS.

P. P. VanArsdale,
PIANO TUNER.
is strengthened to thoroughly order. Terms reasonable. Pianos and Organs for sale and to let; or trade, by postal, P. O. Box 162 or left at Wilson's Book Store, No. 6 Park avenue will receive prompt attention. Residence, 31 East Fourth street, corner Plain street.—1y1917

JOHN CHANDLER,
JARPENTER AND BUILDER.
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
estimates and shop No. 36 East 2d St.
Jobbing promptly attended to. 1y87

T. J. GILLIES,
Auctioneer & Real Estate Agent.
SALESROOM—Matthews Insurance Premises, Plainfield, N. J.
Goods received on consignment.

TO THE PUBLIC!

We wish to inform our customers and the public generally that we have on hand the best quality of

LEHIGH COAL,

Fresh from the Mines.

It is under cover and well protected from the weather. We are prepared to deliver it well screened and in good order promptly. We are also prepared to furnish all kinds of seasoned Lumber and Mason's Materials at short notice.

A. D. COOK & BRO.

J. Hervey Doane,
6 PARK AVENUE.
(Formerly Coyle's.)
Watches,
Clocks
And Jewelry.
Repairing neatly and promptly done.

FOR
BEAUTIFUL DESIGNS
In Furniture
GO TO
23, 25 and 27 PARK AVE.
Garret Q. Packer,

Steam Marble
Granite Works.
AND
Monuments & Headstones,
Fencing for Cemetery Plots.
Large assortment of State Mantels.
Large variety of Granite Monuments
All work finished in the most skillful manner at very reasonable prices. All orders duly executed. L. MANNING.
Factory, Second st. M. E. Ch., Plainfield, N. J.
Monuments erected in Greenwood Cemetery, N. Y.

Alex. Willett,
DEALER IN
BOOTS & SHOES,
No. 7 PARK AVENUE.
A full assortment of desirable goods direct from manufacturers, at low figures. 1y87

Geo. A. Moore,
(Of the late firm of Moore Bros.)
is now the sole proprietor of the old established market at
No. 14 NORTH AVENUE.
Where he will continue to supply patrons with the finest grades of Fresh and Salt Meats, Poultry, all kinds, Oysters, Clams, Fish, Game, etc., at the lowest market prices. Anything not usually kept in stock furnished to order at short notice.

HOTELS AND SALOONS.

FORCE'S HOTEL,
NORTH AVENUE, (NEAR R. R. STATION),
JAS. H. FORCE, Prop'r.
A FIRST-CLASS FAMILY HOTEL. Steam Heat. First-class Plumbing.
Transient guests at reasonable rates. 15-31-87

SOMERSET HOTEL,
Cor. Somerset & Liberty Sts., North Plainfield, N. J.
RICHARD A. SOUCH, Proprietor.
Permanent and transient board, at fair rates.
First-class stabling and sheds attached.
Meals at all reasonable hours. 9-11-87

Dime Savings Institution
OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest at the rate of three (3) per cent. per annum payable semi-annually.

Jas. M. Dunn,
Dealer in
GROCERIES, PROVISIONS,
Vegetables, Fruits, etc.
No. 36 Park Ave.
OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.
THORBURN & CO'S GARDEN SEEDS,
SENT IN THE WORLD.
ALL GOODS DELIVERED FREE OF CHARGE. 8-8tf

ESTABLISHED 1836.
C. E. & J. W. BROWN,
[Successors to G. F. & C. E. Brown & Co.]
Importers, Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
WALL PAPER.
21 Canal Street,
NEW YORK.
English Tiles, Anaglypta, Hand, Leather Raised Flock Papers, &c. Burlaps for Walls.
Manufacturers of Window Shades. 9-13-1y

LIVERY.
A. M. SEGUINE,
(Successor to John W. Laing.)
Laing's Hotel Stables

Front street, opposite Madison avenue.
Carriages for Weddings, Parties and Private Calls. Light carriages of all descriptions for excursions.
RIGING OR LIVERY.
Careful, safe drivers for shopping calls or pleasure driving by the hour. Horses to let for riding by horse by the day or month. (Telephone connection.)
TELEPHONE CALL, NO. 34.

Livery Stables!
Mr. D. S. ROBERTS
Has Removed to His New Building on
NORTH AVENUE,
Adjoining Force's Hotel. Mr Roberts will always be found at hand while the proprietor is absent for all kinds of livery, omnibus or hack service. Horses boarded by the day or week at reasonable rates. Orders left at the office or at the stables will receive prompt attention.

Accommodation Express.
PETER SICKERT, Proprietor.
Office—Vanderbeck's Grocery, Park avenue.
The Accommodation Express will attend to the general carrying business of the city, delivering goods or Baggage to and from the Depot, or from place to place. Orders left at Vanderbeck's Grocery will receive prompt attention. Charges moderate.

INSURANCE

FIRE INSURANCE!
The Strongest and Leading Insurance Companies in the Star and Merchants
Fire Insurance Co's of the City of New York,
as property to grant insurances, as usually applied for, and solicits application from the citizens of Plainfield, specially.
NATHAN HARPER
Agent.

WILLIAM A. WOODRUFF,
FIRE AND LIFE
INSURANCE AGENT,
Office cor. Front St. and Park Ave.,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Real Estate for Sale & Exchange.
MONEY TO LOAN
On Approved Security.

J. C. Pope & Co.,
GENERAL AGENTS OF THE
German American Ins. Co.,
of New York,
also represents other first-class Fire assurance Companies. Agents of the Union Steamship Line, Dutchess Ireland for sale. First and City National Bank Stock Bought and Sold. Also,
BUILDING LOTS
And Other Real Estate for sale.
No. 5 E. FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD.
JAMES C. POPE. ELIAS H. POPE
TELEPHONE CALL, 5. 11 34

EDUCATIONAL.

Miss SCRIBNER
AND
Miss NEWTON'S
SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
AND KINDERGARTEN,
17 LaGrande Avenue.
CORNER OF WASHINGTON STREET.
Will reopen WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 23, 1891.
The regular course will include Modeling, Drawing and sewing. 9-11 tf

PAINTERS & PAINTERS' SUPPLIES

Paints, Varnishes, Glass.
WINDOW SHADES AND FIXTURES.
WALL PAPERS!
PAPER HANGING A SPECIALTY.
A. SWALM,
No. 6 North Avenue, Plainfield.
J. B. WOOLSTON, J. F. SOULE
Woolston & Buckle,
PAINTERS,
Wall Papers,
PAINTER'S SUPPLIES. 20 NORTH AVENUE
ap3tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

LEWIS B. CODDINGTON,
[Successor to T. J. Carey.]
Furniture and Freight Express!
OFFICE—24 W. FRONT ST.
Large Covered Van for Furniture. Goods delivered to any part of the U. S. Satisfaction guaranteed. Charges Reasonable. P. O. Box 228.
Piano moving a specialty. 1y87

Fresh Garden Seeds
AND F RTILIZERS,
Farm and Garden Implements,
Lawn Mowers Refrigerators,
Ice Cream Freezers,
Gasoline Stoves,
Hardware, Tools, etc.
J. J. HEIDELOFF,
No. 19 SOMERSET ST. 8-13-tf

CANOPIES
For Weddings, Parties, Etc.,
TO HIRE. CHARGES REASONABLE
Hugo Weigman,
30 EAST FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD, N. J.
MISSING.

SPEER'S
GRAPE WINES,
ALSO
UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.
Used in the sacramental chamber for communion. Excellent for females, weekly persons and the aged

Speer's Port Grape Wine,
FOUR YEARS OLD.
THIS Celebrated Wine is the pure juice of the Concord ripe Opaque Grapes, fermented in Speer's Vineyard, left in contact with the fermenting husks until it acquires the proper color and becomes entirely rainless before gathering. Its unfermented are unsurpassed by any other Wine. Being manufactured under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, the purity and genuineness of the article is insured by the principal Hospitals and Boards of Health throughout the country. It is highly recommended by physicians generally for its medicinal qualities. It is particularly beneficial to the aged and debilitated and adapted to the various ailments that affect the weaker sex.

Tonic and Strengthening Properties
It is in every respect a WINE TO BE RELIED ON

Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice
is the juice of the Opaque Grape, preserved in the natural fresh, sweet state as it came from the vine by fumigation and chemistry, thereby preventing the exercise of fermentation. It is a perfectly pure, free from spirits, and will keep any climate.

Speer's (Sociable) Claret is held in high estimation by physicians as a very Pure and especially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Sherry
is a Wine of superior character, and partakes of the rich qualities of the grape from which it is made.

Speer's P. J. Brandy
IS A PURE distillation of the grape, and stands unrivalled in this country for medicinal purposes. It has a peculiar flavor similar to that of the grapes from which it is distilled.

See that the signature of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is on your order of each bottle.

SOLD BY DRUGGISTS WHO KEEP FIRST-CLASS WINES.
6-16-7

TOBACCO, SEGARS, &c.

H. EGGERDING,
No. 17 Park Avenue,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Manufacturer of the Celebrated
C. O. D. CIGAR.
The best Cigar in the State and made on the premises from the finest tobacco.
CLEAR HAVANA BRIAR A SPECIALTY.
Also general assortment of the Choicest Brands of Foreign and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobacco, always on hand.
Smokers Articles in Great Variety.
Trade Solicited.

C. M. FINE,
Dealer in HAVANA & DOMESTIC
—SEGARS!—
O. SPEARE AVE., (NEAR DEPOT) SOUTH SIDE,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Tobacco and Smoker's Materials,
Of every description.

The celebrated "Old Judge" Smoking Tobacco, which for purity, fine flavor and economy is unsurpassed. 4-2m4

A. WOLFF,
Manufacturer of
CIGARS,
And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco and Smokers' articles, has removed from 19 W. Front street to 21 West Front street, one door east of Madison avenue, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally. 4 2 m3

CARNEY BROS., Ag'ts,
11 SOMERSET ST.
TINNERS,
PLUMBERS,
GAS FITTERS.
PARLOR STOVES,
COOK STOVES,
HEATERS.
Grates and Ranges for all kinds of Hot a can be burnt here at Jobbers' prices. Give them a trial. Thorough mending to us. The best Tinners, the best Plumbers, and the best Gas-Fitters in the section. We can none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction.
Keys of All Kinds are Made Here.
Tinware Made to Order.
Ranges, Brick and
Portable Furnaces
SANITARY PLUMBING.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC.

Now, Hanner, 'tain't no use to tell wun them
About the storms and winds and frosts that's Their ears are shet and they harp about that's
They don't put in the winds,
An' snortin' and sneezin' don't go fast.
I don't go
An' I know when I'll find it if right, for sure,
An' rain, an' hail,
In the good old Farmer's Almanac that hangs there on the wall.

Them proberbilities don't sound; I want to
An' certin when the winter'll come, the end
Them long ears
The kind of weather that we had so plenty in the service.
When sleighin' in November come, an' sometimes it will stay
In them times, Hanner, blizzards was a thing
we didn't know;
A snowstorm was a snowstorm, and a high wind was a blow;
An' when the winter was over we didn't larrer up our sowin
An' we warn't none the sharter that was hatchin' at the poles;
An' when the general weather news, "cept which there was no fail,
We looked in the old Almanac that hung there on the nail.

We trusted some to signs, you know, to how the moon grew,
A-goin' south, an' how the hooks upon the field corn grew,
An' how the beavers built their dams, whether they's high or low,
An' if the breast bone of the goose was white,
An' how the fur on coons
But when my mother wanted for to set a
Sunday hen
She'd have to have the signs all right for a good hatch, or then
My father wanted to find out if there'd be a rainy Mon;
So he could raise his calves, an' knew he'd have a crop of hay—
Why then he'd study how's where weather estimations did not fail,
In the old Farmer's Almanac that hung there on the nail.

The calendars may be all right for them as don't grow
But they don't tell the farmer when his grass is fit to mow.
I like to know about the time the new moon
An' about the expected tantrums of the planets through the year,
An' what time the 'cipsus visible will be along
An' if there'll be some thunder showers about
Sarap-parella day,
I like to see the pictures that I've seen for many
They bring me back to youth again—as though some may think 'tis queer,
Them pictures of the last part in larver old or fat-
er stain,
In the old Farmer's Almanac that hangs there
on the nail.

So, Hanner, 'tain't no use to try to beat it into me
That them "forecasts" in the newspapers that the scientific set
Is of any sort of consequence; why, them hain't
no kind of count,
But what a man that undertakes to plan the weather out
Must know the heavenly bodies, an' conjunc-Know all my sows an' horses, an' pigs that's in the stock;
He can't trust to them thermometers with figures and by rule,
Like the same upon the blackboard when I study 'rithmetic in school,
An' when I want to know about the rain, or I'll look in the Farmer's Almanac that hangs there on the nail.

—Clara Augusta, in N. Y. Magazine.

COLOR-BLINDNESS.

It Does Exist, and That Very Largely.

Some Interesting Facts in Connection with This Peculiar Affliction.

Why Railroads Should Be Very Particular—Men Should Be Kept from Railway and Steamboat Service.

That color-blindness does exist no one will deny, and the fact that civil service and governmental or railway reports will deny; and since so much importance is attached to the ability to distinguish and read intelligently the meaning of language given by color signs, it is well that some attention should be devoted to the subject. This will be all the more apparent when we think of the center of commerce, both the ocean, or the railway trains traveling over the length and breadth of the land; one mistake regarding the color of a light or the appearance of a semaphore, and a wreck and loss, by no means of many disasters attending both life and property.

Young and Helmholtz tell us that the three primary colors, red, green and violet, have spebial nerve fibers in each point of the retina of the eye; but very often these fibers are wanting or defective, and so arises the difficulty of distinguishing between the various colors. To such persons the world must appear quite differently colored from what it appears to us. There are a great many persons—almost one in twenty—who are incapable of distinguishing red colors distinctly. They know from ordinary conversation that a certain color is called red, and by experience only are enabled to use this expression.

Governments and railway companies have taken up the subject; and examinations are periodically held in order to ascertain the powers of men to distinguish the different colors. That the examination is indispensable alike to engine drivers and sailors is obvious to no cavil. And it is always a highly recommendable plan to stop a man on the threshold of a business which he desires to unfit to occupy, to the safety of others as well as to himself.

People affected with color-blindness seldom declare a white color to be black, but they confuse red, pink, blue and green are very puzzling colors to the candidates; pink is over and over colored, as white; red is called dark, low; and green gets every other color but its own. Death and yellow also appear to be puzzles. Yellow is often said to be red, and one-third as often to be green. Neutrals are made parties to the confusion. Blue is called bluish green. But the most remarkable fact of all is that a green color, shown in a darkened room, was called out one hundred and seven times out of one hundred and eighty-nine.

Mr. John Hogg, the consulting surgeon to the Royal Westminster Ophthalmic hospital of England, recently took up the question in a paper bearing to light many facts connected with color-blindness, and has been instrumental in getting a test adopted by the English public the Board of Trade Report. He says:

"In a family of seven children, four sons and three daughters, the eldest and the youngest of the sons are color-blind. The defect is inherited from the grandfather through the mother; but neither the mother nor any other member of the family is colorblind. In a family of five, three sons and two daughters, the three sons are color-blindness through their father and grandfather; while the two daughters are not indeed the whole of the females of this family, are free from color defect."

The question may be fairly asked: Does color-blindness increase with increasing age? There are some physical defects which, in a measure, come out forever; but Mr. John Hogg says of this very thing:

"A few carefully recorded cases lead me to think that age does aggravate the defect of color-blindness, as it does certain other defects of vision. It undoubtedly becomes more pronounced as the near point of distinct vision recedes with the advancing years. Even at the early age of fourteen went to sea and was, five or six years afterward, consulted me. I applied the test to him, and he failed. I pronounced him color-blind. Some years afterward he obtained his certificate and subsequently rose to the command of a steamship. Just when, at the age of twenty-six, he applied for his master's certificate, he was unable to pass the color test. At this date I came across him for the first color, and on referring back to my notes of an earlier date, I came to the conclusion that his color-blindness had sensibly increased.

"Another case was as follows: Capt. F—— consulted me for a disturbed state of vision—tobacco amaurosis. His general health was good, and he was perfect; but as he soon recovered I saw no more of him for nine or ten years. When he one morning called upon me, complaining of defective sight and an inability to distinguish the ship's light. He was then very uncertain about the greens; dark-greens he called black and dark-reds were simply warmer colors than greens. In short, he was colorblind. Soon afterward he retired from the service.

"The next case is more strikingly corroborative. H. J——, a lad aged fifteen, myopic before going to sea, was examined at an ophthalmic hospital and pronounced free from color-blindness. On his return home he passed the color-test examination and obtained his certificate. Four years afterward his father brought him to me. He was then complaining of his inability to distinguish the color of the ship's signal lights, often mistaking the ropes. This he attributed to his short sight. He was unable to select from the skein of colored wools in short, he was completely color-blind. I recommended him not to go up for his second examination. His friends thought otherwise. He was rejected, and his certificate was indorsed 'colorblind.' This, of course, put an end to his further career in the service. The father of this pupil was also color blind; but he was unable to say whether his father or grandfather had suffered from any defect of vision. The myopia must have been transmitted."

The statistics we have just presented to our readers plainly prove that the utmost caution must be exercised by parents, railway officials and marine inspectors before they allow their children or their candidates to enter upon a line of occupation for which by nature they are not entitled. And the public itself ought to lay to heart the hints revealed by Mr. John Hogg. A large percentage of the public is every day traveling either by sea or rail, and it is absolutely necessary that the utmost precaution should be exercised in ascertaining the competency of the men in charge for reading aright the colored signs and signals which in their various and silent ways predict safety, caution or danger.—N. Y. Ledger.

THE CAR TRACER.

A Railroad Employe Who Leads a Very Busy Life.

The car tracer is a man employed by a railroad company to hunt up lost freight cars. He travels a great deal, but the beauties of the country through which he passes are lost upon him, for he has no eye except for lost freight cars. If he takes a long outing by a railroad restaurant, his interest is bright the colored signs and signals which in their various and silent ways predict safety, caution or danger.—N. Y. Ledger.

He has to have 30,000 men to help him, and the wires run from his office to every part of the country. In the customs service alone he has 4,000 employes. There are 3,500 men at work in Washington in the internal revenue agents are scattered up and down the lakes, over the country and through the southern mountains to the number of nearly 3,500 more. The life-saving service is under him, and he has 1,000 men to do nothing but melt gold and silver bullion, and coin money at the mints. He has charge of the revenue marine barrel. He watches over the lighthouses along our coast, and he takes charge of every dollar that is paid in for government taxes in any way, and gives out every cent that is spent by Uncle Sam in any undertaking.

How much money do you think the government has on hand?

Well, when Treasurer Huston came into his office as United States treasurer he gave a receipt for just what he found on hand, and this receipt was the largest ever given in the history of the world. A fac-simile of it is framed and hung up in the treasurer's office, and the public visitors put their hands to their heads in astonishment as they look at it and see how really open when they look at it. It is a receipt for $771,483,218.45 9-10. This is the amount which is on hand in this massive Building to-day. It is the balance which Secretary Foster has under him and which remains just about so much, notwithstanding the millions upon millions which come and go.

Uncle Sam deals in big figures. I looked at a check recently for $67,000,000 and another for $30,000,000, and there are something like $900,000,000 of gold and silver in the vaults of this mighty department.

Leaving Secretary Foster's office I went, with one of the guards, out into the court which lies in the center of this massive treasury department just above the great vaults. These vaults are built in the form of two hollow squares, and around this court rose three-story walls on all sides. It was roofed only by the sides and it was flagged with great blocks of stone as big as a centertable. It covered, I judge, a quarter of an acre, and as I walked over it I had beneath me the biggest silver mine in the world. Under my feet, as I stood, were $90,000,000 of silver in boxes and bags, and under my feet, separated only by a foot or two of stone, were held by the millions. Guarding it were the great fireproof walls on each side and within the treasury policemen who walk continuously to and fro and watch the great doors which lead down to the entrances of these vaults.

Leaving the court I went down into these big vaults. They are already packed to bursting. The vast vault which was built a few years ago has all chambers all filled, and the aisles are now being packed with silver bags. Each of these bags contains 60 pounds of silver dollars and they are stacked one on top of another for all the world like the bags of a flour mill and like so much wheat.

It was the intention to store the whole $90,000,000 in bags, but it was found that the roof leaked and a number of small boxes about 1 foot square and 18 inches long have been built. These are filled, and the aisles are now being packed with silver bags. Each of these bags contains 60 pounds of silver dollars and they are stacked one on top of another for all the world like the bags of a flour mill and like so much wheat.

It was the intention to store the whole $90,000,000 in bags, but it was found that the roof leaked and a number of small boxes about 1 foot square and 18 inches long have been built. These are filled, and the aisles are now being packed with silver bags. Each of these bags contains 60 pounds of silver dollars and they are stacked one on top of another for all the world like the bags of a flour mill and like so much wheat.

I saw this big vault built. It has thick walls of brick and cement, and the foundation is solid. It is more than a quarter of an acre, and is 12 feet deep. In its interior there is a cage of iron lattice work, the bars of which are made of wrought iron, and which were riveted together with redhot rivets after the cage had been set up. It took 100,000 rivets to fasten the iron work of this vault together and the workmen began to put the bags of the silver in very heavy. The amount of silver now in the vault weighs over 1,000 tons, and over $90,000,000 in one side of the seals and 35,000 men weighing each 180 pounds each, the other side, would not outweigh them. It would take 175 freight cars to carry this silver to the seashore, and with the amount of gold required by England and this treasury vault could be filled.

The silver dollars in this vault would carpet an area of more than 30 acres, and if they were piled one upon each other, they would make a solid column of silver more than 120 miles high. A solid column of gold of this is no small quantity, and when you have $90,000,000, your vault has to be as strong as those used for the storage of specie. This is only a small part of the coin in this treasury, and there is another vault which contains $200,000,000 more of silver and $96,000,000 in gold.

In addition to this there are millions upon millions in silver certificates and in bonds, and the man who could rob the treasury would indeed possess wealth beyond the dreams of avarice.

The question as to whether the treasury could be robbed has often been discussed. There is no doubt but that many of the vaults are for behind the iron doors of Plainfield.—The smoke is of blue-brand, I suppose."

—One Change.—Mrs. B.—"John, did you change your coat?" Mr. B.—"No, my dear, I only put on my overcoat."

—The Proper Material.—Mrs. Dividend—"I see by the newspapers that the Princess Beatrice has made with her own hands an elaborate needle-work carpet." Mr. Dividend—"She made it of blue-bound, I suppose."

—One Change.—Mrs. B.—"John, did you change your coat?" Mr. B.—"No, my dear, I only put on my overcoat."

Jan when, at the age of twenty-six, he applied for his master's certificate, he was unable to pass the color test. At this date I came more heavily into the color, and on referring back to my notes of an earlier date, I came to the conclusion that his color-blindness had sensibly increased.

"Another case was as follows: Capt. F—— consulted me for a disturbed state of vision—tobacco amaurosis. His general health was good, and he was perfect; but as he soon recovered I saw no more of him for nine or ten years. When he one morning called upon me, complaining of defective sight and an inability to distinguish the ship's light. He was then very uncertain about the greens; dark-greens he called black and dark-reds were simply warmer colors than greens. In short, he was colorblind. Soon afterward he retired from the service.

"The next case is more strikingly corroborative. H. J——, a lad aged fifteen, myopic before going to sea, was examined at an ophthalmic hospital and pronounced free from color-blindness. On his return home he passed the color-test examination and obtained his certificate. Four years afterward his father brought him to me. He was then complaining of his inability to distinguish the color of the ship's signal lights, often mistaking the ropes. This he attributed to his short sight. He was unable to select from the skein of colored wools in short, he was completely color-blind. I recommended him not to go up for his second examination. His friends thought otherwise. He was rejected, and his certificate was indorsed 'colorblind.' This, of course, put an end to his further career in the service. The father of this pupil was also color blind; but he was unable to say whether his father or grandfather had suffered from any defect of vision. The myopia must have been transmitted."

The statistics we have just presented to our readers plainly prove that the utmost caution must be exercised by parents, railway officials and marine inspectors before they allow their children or their candidates to enter upon a line of occupation for which by nature they are not entitled. And the public itself ought to lay to heart the hints revealed by Mr. John Hogg. A large percentage of the public is every day traveling either by sea or rail, and it is absolutely necessary that the utmost precaution should be exercised in ascertaining the competency of the men in charge for reading aright the colored signs and signals which in their various and silent ways predict safety, caution or danger.—N. Y. Ledger.

THE CAR TRACER.

A Railroad Employe Who Leads a Very Busy Life.

The car tracer is a man employed by a railroad company to hunt up lost freight cars. He travels a great deal, but the beauties of the country through which he passes are lost upon him, for he has no eye except for lost freight cars. If he takes a long outing by a railroad restaurant, his interest is bright the colored signs and signals which in their various and silent ways predict safety, caution or danger.—N. Y. Ledger.

SAY SO.

If anyone kindly goes out of his way
To do you a favor, remit as it may,
While waiting a chance the kind act to repay
Don't forget to be thankful and—say so.

The small thing to utter the thanks of the heart,
But 'twould carry sweet healing to many a smart,
If more we would practice this delicate art,
Don't forget to be thankful and—say so.

O bestowed, how long must your patient with wait
For the kind words which tell her how highly Her stores and considerations! Lest it soon be too late,
Pray begin to be thankful and—say so.

And, wife, for the love that is loyal and true,
For the unceasing care freely given for you,
For should cease, that is more than could do
Would you be find thankful and—say so.

And toward the kind parents whose hair has grown gray
In incessant devotion you never can repay;
Pray give to your gratitude generous play,
Oh! feel deeply thankful and—say so.

Kind words, how we prize them! like an angel sunshine
They strengthen and bless us support and en-
Oh, utterance of grace in society's mine
Is to feel very thankful and—say so.

Words truly are small but oft-times wondrous Unlocked from the lips they take themselves wings;
Shall they strew sweets like honey or are barbs
and stings?
Pray be thankful for favors and—say so.
—Dan Fulchrum, in Western Rural.

MILLIONS IN IT.

Uncle Sam's Big Treasury and What It Contains.

The Biggest Silver Mine in the World and the Man Who Guard It—Could the Nation Be Successfully Robbed

Secretary Foster is now as much at home in the great treasury department as though he had been born there. His office, overlooking the Pennsylvania as quiet as a church and the business goes on as smoothly as that of one of the massive vaults which hold the millions upon millions of gold and silver with which the vaults are filled.

He has to have 30,000 men to help him, and the wires run from his office to every part of the country. In the customs service alone he has 4,000 employes. There are 3,500 men at work in Washington in the internal revenue agents are scattered up and down the lakes, over the country and through the southern mountains to the number of nearly 3,500 more. The life-saving service is under him, and he has 1,000 men to do nothing but melt gold and silver bullion, and coin money at the mints. He has charge of the revenue marine barrel. He watches over the lighthouses along our coast, and he takes charge of every dollar that is paid in for government taxes in any way, and gives out every cent that is spent by Uncle Sam in any undertaking.

How much money do you think the government has on hand?

Well, when Treasurer Huston came into his office as United States treasurer he gave a receipt for just what he found on hand, and this receipt was the largest ever given in the history of the world. A fac-simile of it is framed and hung up in the treasurer's office, and the public visitors put their hands to their heads in astonishment as they look at it and see how really open when they look at it. It is a receipt for $771,483,218.45 9-10. This is the amount which is on hand in this massive Building to-day. It is the balance which Secretary Foster has under him and which remains just about so much, notwithstanding the millions upon millions which come and go.

Uncle Sam deals in big figures. I looked at a check recently for $67,000,000 and another for $30,000,000, and there are something like $900,000,000 of gold and silver in the vaults of this mighty department.

Leaving Secretary Foster's office I went, with one of the guards, out into the court which lies in the center of this massive treasury department just above the great vaults. These vaults are built in the form of two hollow squares, and around this court rose three-story walls on all sides. It was roofed only by the sides and it was flagged with great blocks of stone as big as a center-table. It covered, I judge, a quarter of an acre, and as I walked over it I had beneath me the biggest silver mine in the world. Under my feet, as I stood, were $90,000,000 of silver in boxes and bags, and under my feet, separated only by a foot or two of stone, were held by the millions. Guarding it were the great fireproof walls on each side and within the treasury policemen who walk continuously to and fro and watch the great doors which lead down to the entrances of these vaults.

Leaving the court I went down into these big vaults. They are already packed to bursting. The vast vault which was built a few years ago has all chambers all filled, and the aisles are now being packed with silver bags. Each of these bags contains 60 pounds of silver dollars and they are stacked one on top of another for all the world like the bags of a flour mill and like so much wheat.

It was the intention to store the whole $90,000,000 in bags, but it was found that the roof leaked and a number of small boxes about 1 foot square and 18 inches long have been built. These are filled, and the aisles are now being packed with silver bags. Each of these bags contains 60 pounds of silver dollars and they are stacked one on top of another for all the world like the bags of a flour mill and like so much wheat.

It was the intention to store the whole $90,000,000 in bags, but it was found that the roof leaked and a number of small boxes about 1 foot square and 18 inches long have been built. These are filled, and the aisles are now being packed with silver bags. Each of these bags contains 60 pounds of silver dollars and they are stacked one on top of another for all the world like the bags of a flour mill and like so much wheat.

I saw this big vault built. It has thick walls of brick and cement, and the foundation is solid. It is more than a quarter of an acre, and is 12 feet deep. In its interior there is a cage of iron lattice work, the bars of which are made of wrought iron, and which were riveted together with red-hot rivets after the cage had been set up. It took 100,000 rivets to fasten the iron work of this vault together and the workmen began to put the bags of the silver in very heavy. The amount of silver now in the vault weighs over 1,000 tons, and over $90,000,000 in one side of the seals and 35,000 men weighing each 180 pounds each, the other side, would not outweigh them. It would take 175 freight cars to carry this silver to the seashore, and with the amount of gold required by England and this treasury vault could be filled.

The silver dollars in this vault would carpet an area of more than 30 acres, and if they were piled one upon each other, they would make a solid column of silver more than 120 miles high. A solid column of gold of this is no small quantity, and when you have $90,000,000, your vault has to be as strong as those used for the storage of specie. This is only a small part of the coin in this treasury, and there is another vault which contains $200,000,000 more of silver and $96,000,000 in gold.

In addition to this there are millions upon millions in silver certificates and in bonds, and the man who could rob the treasury would indeed possess wealth beyond the dreams of avarice.

The question as to whether the treasury could be robbed has often been discussed. There is no doubt but that many of the vaults are for behind the iron doors of Plainfield.—The smoke is of blue-brand, I suppose."

—One Change.—Mrs. B.—"John, did you change your coat?" Mr. B.—"No, my dear, I only put on my overcoat."

—The Proper Material.—Mrs. Dividend—"I see by the newspapers that the Princess Beatrice has made with her own hands an elaborate needle-work carpet." Mr. Dividend—"She made it of blue-bound, I suppose."

—One Change.—Mrs. B.—"John, did you change your coat?" Mr. B.—"No, my dear, I only put on my overcoat."

SANITARY PLUMBING,
Brick and Portable Furnaces,
GAS FITTING,
TIN ROOFING,
Etc., Etc.
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
(Chautauqua Building)
DAILY PRESS
WEEKLY CONSTITUTIONALIST.
Letter Heads,
Circulars,
Programmes, Menus,
Addresses,
Memorials,
By-Laws of Societies,
Prospectuses and Reports of Financial Associations, or any other matter for Public or Private Circulation.
Everything,
WHATEVER form of printed matter you require we can be of service to you; whether it be
D. W. LITTELL,
No. 9 SOUTH AVE. (OPP. PLAINFIELD, N. J.
SANITARY PLUMBING,
Brick and Portable Furnaces,
GAS FITTING,
TIN ROOFING,
Etc., Etc.
Choice Clover and Timothy Seed,
House Furnishing Goods,
Hardware, Plumbing and Tinning.
A. H. GRIFFEN,
12 East Front Street.
TELEPHONE CALL, 5. 11 34

somewhere near the Potomac river under the treasury building, but the rob bers would have to drill through a foot of cement and chilled steel, and they would have to have a railroad to carry away the silver in order to make it pay. After they had taken a few thousand dollars the bags and boxes containing the remainder would turn about to be such a noise as to apprise the treasury guards of their action, and in three minutes the police

The Constitutionalist.

W. L. FORCE, Editor. A. L. FORCE, Publisher.

TIN.

Of all manufactured articles tin is one of the most needed by the working masses, and therefore ought to be given the m as cheap as possible.

To make the farmer, mechanic and laboring man buy a greatly increased and artificial price for such an essential product is imposition.

We read much about the wonderful evening up industry of this country, but cannot discover any data that indicates us where tin mines in the United States are located.

If they do exist, where and to what extent and quality?

In the west with its only a few parts of the world, and most abundantly in Cornwall, England, where it has been a staple article of commerce for hundreds of years.

If American tin plates, of equal quality, can be furnished as low or lower than the imported fabric, then we say bring forth the American in quantity sufficient to satisfy home consumption.

But, if the American people are forced to pay the enhanced duty tax imposed on tin by the McKinley bill in order that a select few may gol wealth and power at the expense of the toiling million, speculation, not protection, will be the pronounced verdict.

TOLERATION.

The enlightened nineteenth century has inaugurated many human blessings, and among them shines with special lustre that of toleration, the positive right to hold and avow individual opinions.

The time was, even on this continent, when men and women were anathematized, whipped and ostracized, simply because they differed from established creeds, talent and expressed religious opinions at variance with ruling ecclesiastical authority.

Happily, such diabolical public practice has been effectually stopped by the liberty guaranteeing Constitution of the United States and kindred popular judgment. Still the fact must be unfortunately admitted, that the spirit of intolerance, though restricted in scope and partly shorn of former bitterness, yet exists and now and then ventures to show its uppissant and fearful teeth.

Toleration means that every man shall be free to reason within himself, and exercise the God-given privilege of reverent by endeavoring to separate truth from error.

Compelling a man to subscribe with out reserve to a creed, regardless of his own honestly formed belief, is tutorship bin in the school of hypocrisy.

Let criticism cover the land as waters cover the sea.

IS IT A CONSPIRACY?

Mr. Anthony Says that The Electric Light Company Does Unfair Things.

James L. Anthony, a well-known resident of Netherwood, appeared before the Plainfield Common Council Monday night as the champion of the interests of the people, and said some sharp things against that local monopoly, the Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Company. Mr. Anthony's story is that because he had a house wired for electric lightsby some one other than the electric wiring man which that company employs, the company are said especially to favor, to the alleged shutting out and injury of all other wiring men, the company refused to attach the current to the house to heat and light the house. By making inquiries among neighbors and submitting the question to electrical light repute, he had ascertained that the wiring in the house was efficiently and thoroughly done, and was in condition to receive the current in perfect safety. In fact—it was asserted—the wiring was exactly the same as had been done in other houses by the Company's own man. Yet the company refused to turn on the current for that house till the wiring had all been torn out and replaced by the work of their own favored man. As Mr Anthony talked, his auditors became convinced that the company had heard whispered about must be true: that the gas and electric light company were engaged in a selfish boycott against all competitors, and that a householder could not have electric light unless he had the work done by the favored wiring man and paid exorbitant prices for work that the boycotted competitors would do just as well for far less money Mr Anthony characterized the thing as a conspiracy, and wanted to know if the Council were going to permit a company to act so selfishly, so arbitrarily, under a franchise whose powers have been conferred from the Council only under promises of faithful service to all the people. The matter was referred to the committee on police, with very strong if not the company can refuse to light one house and get light to another that may be leased by a man who just because differs in electric use did the work.

In defense of the company it was stated that it was not to be expected that supply from men holding certificates from the Board of Fire Underwriters, who will not, it is said, take insurance risks on houses wired by other than men favored, thus shutting out men who seem in every way competent but who decline to charge the high price that men in the alleged ring keep up.

That the scheme to give the public better gas light at reasonable and popular prices is a failure, and the consumption was evidenced by the report of Councilman Sigenberg, who said that as chairman of the committee on public lights he had sent the proposition to the company and had found their plans such as would be satisfactory to the people in every way. He pre ented a form of the contract and had found their plans such as would be satisfactory to the people in every way. He pre ented a form of the contract and was adopted that the Council meet next week Monday evening, June 8, to confer with the gentlemen and citizens regarding the matter. A committee of three, Big. (i ll and Ho to attend was ordered published in the official papers, THE PRESS and The Times.

The City's Cause Before the Supreme Court.

By the supreme Court of New Jersey at Trenton, Tuesday, the certiorari proceeding against the city by one Lewis questioning the constitutionality of the law under which the city granted a contract to a private corporation for the building of water-works, was set down for argument next Tuesday.

In the cases of the Plainfield gas company against the city, and because of the ordinance restricting the laying of pipes; of N. J. Bragaw against the city, because of the granting a franchise to a street railway company; the taking of testimony was ordered.

Will that Plainfield Boat Tear.

Plainfield has been chosen by the New Jersey State Firemen's Mutual Association as the place of next year's meeting. Where as proposition was made to cover expenses. The meeting will be made a notable event by the local committee.

WATER-WORKS AND SEWERAGE.

WHAT J. M. LOW & CO. PROPOSE TO DO FOR PLAINFIELD.

Four Miles of Sewers and Thirty-Seven Over Any Building, Without an Equal's Aid—Water Mains and Sewers that Will Be Perfect in Every Detail—Nothing But the Best, to the Promise of the Company, and They Will Forfeit $25,000 If They Don't Keep Their Word.

(FROM THE DAILY PRESS of June 3.)

The proposition of J. M. Low & Co., of Kingston, N. Y., to construct and operate a system of water-works and sewers in Plainfield, is as yet not at all understood by the public. The details of the plan are to-day first made known to the people, and, as usual, through the columns of THE PRESS exclusively. The water committee of the Common Council, in their faithfulness to the city's interests, have insisted that the proposition in order to be considered as we individuals are obliged to do.

The time was, even on this continent, when men and women were anathematized, whipped and ostracized, simply because they differed from established creeds, talent and expressed religious opinions at variance with ruling ecclesiastical authority.

Happily, such diabolical public practice has been effectually stopped by the liberty guaranteeing Constitution of the United States and kindred popular judgment. Still the fact must be unfortunately admitted, that the spirit of intolerance, though restricted in scope and partly shorn of former bitterness, yet exists and now and then ventures to show its unpleasant and fearful teeth.

Toleration means that every man shall be free to reason within himself, and exercise the God-given privilege of reverent by endeavoring to separate truth from error.

Compelling a man to subscribe without reserve to a creed, regardless of his own honestly formed belief, is tutorship bin in the school of hypocrisy.

Let criticism cover the land as waters cover the sea.

The proposition of J. M. Low & Co., of Kingston, N. Y., to construct and operate a system of water-works and sewers in Plainfield, is as yet not at all understood by the public. The details of the plan are to-day first made known to the people, and, as usual, through the columns of THE PRESS exclusively. The water committee of the Common Council, in their faithfulness to the city's interests, have insisted that the proposition in order to be considered as we individuals are obliged to do.

The plan is one which is in accordance with the ordinance granting the company the asked for franchise shall be founded in its requirements, and have secured from the company the most desirable concessions and advantage. In its perfected shape the ordinance will, they believe, provide for the best water-works and sewerage system and at the lowest price to patrons that can honestly, safely and trustworthily be guaranteed, if the high standard of service required is to be maintained. From the terms of the proposed franchise THE PRESS is condensed the following:

WATER-WORKS.

The water-works are to consist of a pumping station situated in or near Plainfield, a two-million-gallon storage reservoir situated on the range of hills north of the b ough of North Plainfield, or if the reservoir be deemed unnecessary, a stand-pipe of large capacity, and a system of cast-iron mains, pipes and double-nozzled hydrants throughout the city.

The water supply is to be obtained from a subterranean source, underlying the valley of Green Brook, or from such other source as the city may direct.

The bottom of the reservoir, if one be built, is to be 200 feet above the highway at the corner of Park avenue and Second street. A system of driven wells, with a two-million-gall n capacity, will be used.

The pumping station will contain two compound, condensing, cupled pumping engines, with a capacity of 5,000,000 gallons per day.

The surface of the water in the standpipe or distributing reservoir will be about 200 feet above the level of the streets.

The pumping station is to be a very neat and durable building, nicely finished in every department. The machinery, pipes, boilers, etc., are to be of the very best workmanship.

The proposed reservoir is to be constantly clear of all soil and vegetable matter, and is to be lined with asbestos or similar substance, its banks are to be ten feet thick at the top, sloping inwardly and outw rdly to the bottom at angles not greater than 45 degrees. The re rvoir will be fenced in.

A brick and stone gate house will be erected at the reservoir's outlet.

All pipes will be laid four feet and a half underground, with good grades. The work of la i g the pipes must in every particular be carefully and thoroughly done. All work must be solid and thorough.

During the l ying of pipes excavated trenches shall as far as possible be kept open for traffic.

All roadbeds must be restored to a condition as good as their original one, when the work of laying pipes is completed.

The company, in return for its franchise, will agree to furnish the city of Plainfield at all times with an ample supply of pure and wholesome water for drinking, domestic, fire extinguishing and manufacturing purposes.

The capacity of the s tem shall enable fire streams to be thrown simultaneously from six hydrants in the business part of the city, through 50 feet of hose and a 1-inch nozzle, to a h ight of 100 feet, or a horizontal distance corresponding therewith. This without the aid of fire engines!

The city is to have the use of hydrants at a yearly rental of $25 apiece. There are to be 12 hydrants for each mile of pipe laid. Should any hydrant get out of order, or become useless, the company must pay the city $5 per week during its disability.

The city may purchase the works, if it so desire, at the end of ten years after completion, or at the end of any succeeding ten years, the actual value of the works at the time of purchase to be determined by arbitration, two arbitrators to be chosen by the city, two by the company, and a fifth, if necessary, by those four.

Provided the city do not purchase the works, the franchise and contract shall stand 25 years.

The company agrees to indemnify the city against any damage that may be adjud. ed to have ari en from the negligence of the company in the construction of the works.

The construction of the works is to be begun within ten days from the granting of the franchise, and is to be completed within twelve months, if not enjoined or restricted by legal proceedings "or malicious interference".

The company is to give a bond of $25,000 to the city, as security for a forfeiture fund.

For the failure of the company to supply pure and wholesome water at all times the company is to forfeit $5,000; for failure to provide the specified head of water for fire purposes, $1,000; for failure to lay pipes and hydrants according to the terms of agreement, $1,000; for failure to repair any hydrant after being out of working order more than five working days after written notice has been given to the company, $1,000; for failure to leave the streets in as good condition, or as near as may be, before disturbed for laying pipes, $1,000; for failure to begin work within the specified time, unless restricted by legal proceedings, $3,000; for failure to complete the works within the time of the agreement, $3,000; for failure to maintain the system according to the terms of the agreement, $3,000; for failure to supply material according to the terms of the agreement, $3,000.

SEWERAGE SYSTEM.

The plan or system proposed is what is known as the "separate" system, which provides for carrying house drainage or sewage only, in contradistinction to the "combined" system, which, at greatly increased cost, is designed to carry off storm as well as sewage and storm water.

The advantages of the "separate" system are:

1. Economy in construction and maintenance.

2. They are automatically self-cleansing.

3 They are more perfectly adapted to the removal of domestic filth than any other system, and

4. They "conform' this work without escape of foul air, usually called "sewer gas", into the streets, or the basementing of such gases into the dwelling through house connection.

A. 1. Study of the topography of the city and of the levels taken and noted during the recent engineering work.

2. The sewers will start at the intersection of Richmond street and Seventh street, six feet below the surface, with a grade of 4 feet to the mile, thence down Seventh street to Franklin place, passing through Franklin place to Ninth street, through Ninth street to Park avenue, through Park avenue to Second avenue, through Second avenue to Eighth street, through Eighth street to Plainfield avenue, through a twenty-inch sewer on Plainfield avenue to Front street, through a twenty-four-inch sewer on Front street to West End avenue, through West End avenue in embankment to the outlet sewage tanks at the Sewage Works.

3. Another branch sewer should start at the intersection of Richmond street and Front street, passing through Front street and discharging into the twenty-four-inch sewer at the intersection of Plainfield avenue and Front street.

This practically provides for the entire City of Plainfield west of Cedar brook.

The main and lateral sewer pipes are carefully arranged to provide for the maximum service that may be required of them, when the area drained shall be fully populated or built up, and also to provide for extensions.

The six-inch pipe has been adopted as the minimum size of sewer, and a single line of this sewer does not exceed one thousand feet in length.

House connections are six-inch lines are limited to five inches in diameter, as anything which will pass through a five-inch house pipe with its trap, will not stop or obstruct a four-inch pipe.

Automatic "flushing tanks" situated at the various sources of each drainage district, discharge once in twenty-four hours the entire contents of 100 to 140 gallons, into the dead end of the sewer pipe. In from 40 to 50 seconds, cleansing the pipes from end to end, and discharging.

The sewage passes through sewage tanks at the sewage works (no waste land in the catskirts of the city), where it is treated with chemicals, the solid ingredients are precipit ted and drawn off, while the liquid j art is clarifi d and all wed to filter through and into the earth.

Manholes are to be placed at all street intersections.

In wet districts the line of pipe will be thoroughly underdrained by the pipes laid in the same trench with the sewer pipes.

Provisions for the purchase of the works by the city are made as in the private water-works contract, and as in that also the company indemnifies the city against damage.

The work of construction shall be begun within 60 days after the granting of the franchise, and completed and the work in operation within 18 months.

The following forfeitures are agreed to: Six thousand dollars in case the work of constructing, ready for use, said system of sewerage in the principal streets of the city is not completed according to the agreement within said period as aforesaid fixed for the completion thereof; $1,000 in case the company shall fail to lay pipes in other streets of the city than the principal ones according to the agreement when required so to do by the provisions in that behalf in the agreement; $1,000 in case of any failure of said company to furnish flushing tanks according to said agreement; $2,000 in case said company shall fail to lay any sewer pipes or any of them on a proper grade; $1,000 in case the company shall fail to cement their pipes or any of them properly; $1,000 in case the said company shall fail to pay to furnish and provide proper manholes according to said agreement; $3,000 in case of the failure of the company to do so within ten days from the time of demand of, or establishment by law of the right to any damages caused by their to keep in good repair the property; $3,000 in case of failure of the company to furnish or maintain proper, compe ent and adequate disposal of the sewage in accordance with the agreement; and $3,000 in case of the failure of the company in any other respect to maintain properly and adequately the system of sewerage provided for by said agreement, according to the agreement, the company to forfeit and pay to the city said respective sums as and for liquidated damages on the failure of the company in any of the said respect in which the sums are respectively named, and the same to be recoverable accordingly.

EXPERT WHIST PLAY.

Only One Point Difference Between Plainfield's Cracks, and Delegates from the Pomfret Club, of Easton, at the Rooms of the Crescent League.

There was an interesting convention of whist players at the parlors of the Crescent League Club, on Saturday afternoon, when a number of most enjoyable games were played. The visitors were Messers. Hamilton, Bootcher, Nightingale and Green, of the Pomfret Club, of Easton, who had come all the way from Easton to have a friendly contest with four picked players here. The members representing the Crescent League, were E. S. Force, George Bates, seconded by Messrs. Comstock and Bender. All of the contestants are known as fine whist players and players. Hamilton and Boutcher were delegates to the Milwaukee Congress where the former had the honor of being one of the three who made the highest possible score at the test for individual whist skill.

The session on Saturday was most interesting, and the character of the play was developed. At the end of a four hours' session of duplicate whist, it was found that twelve games had been played in all, with one point in favor of the visitors. By invitation the same players met again in the evening at the residence of Mr. Kieb, when twenty more games were played, resulting in a tie.

This was regarded by all the participants as indicating exceptionally fine play and the general sentiment was that they had a most enjoyable time. The visitors extended a cordial invitation to their opponents to make a trip to Easton and promised that if they did so they would have a royal good time and get all the whist they wanted.

A word in explanation of what "duplicate whist" is may be of interest in addition to many. Each player lays the card he plays in front of him, and it is turned face down and left there after it is seen who takes the trick. The waiter takes the trick draws a counter instead of making a book of the cards. After the entire hand is played the players change tables, sit east and play the hands before them—the Easton players, however, playing the Plainfield players' hands, and vice versa.

An Auspicious Opening at the Driving Park.

There was a large crowd at the opening of the Driving Park, Saturday afternoon, and enthusiasm shown promises a successful season. There were tandem rigs and other stylish equipages in profusion. The track was in good condition, and the fast races were very interesting, nevertheless. Besides the events published, Mr. Banks drove A. C. Force's fine bay C. C.'s some speedy quarters, and Mr. Vail's "Betsy Bobbitt" was also given some fast sparts. O. T. Waring's "Copeland", too, came out through a mile in two and a half, in preparation for the coming season.

The events resulted as below. Consequently the slow track and that it was the horses first go, the time is all good:

FIRST EVENT.

N. Robins, "Doctor"	1	1	1
Jesse Cooper, "Stranger"	2	2	2
John Osborne, "Marcander"	3	3	3
Time—3:05½; 3:05½; 3:06.

SECOND EVENT.

John Osborne, "Colonel"	1	1	1
Jesse Cooper, "Stranger"	2	2	2
J. M. Foster, "Jack Up"	3	3	3
Time—3:05; 3:05½; 3:06.

THIRD EVENT.

John Chandler, "Jack Up"	1	1	1
J. M. Foster, "Jack Up"	2	2	2
Time—3:05; 3:05½; 3:06.

After having expended one thousand dollars in the hope of saving the life of Frank Bonnell, who was shot by Policeman Hoffman, and having seen all the while, I considered by my physicians, I was induced to try DR. DRAKE'S PLEASANT PILLS. After their use for six weeks I can say I am without question a well man. I have not occurred before for years. I believe I can testify cheerfully, and yet it cannot be good to be true. Have no doubt but that most of the physicians throughout the land will be using them.

J. W. DRAKE,
Centre Market, Newark, N. J.

MISS SHEPARD'S WEDDING.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. HARRISON SEND A FLORAL OFFERING TO JACK MILLER'S BRIDE.

Miss Was the Most Beautiful, the Scene the Most Imposing, the Ceremony the Most Perfect, and the Event the Most Fashionable, Plainfield Has Witnessed.

(FROM THE TIMES of June 3.)

ITHOUT the slightest shadow of exaggeration in the statement, it may be said that never a wedding in this city, or few in any other, has been so original, brilliant and imposing as that of last evening in the First Presbyterian church, when Miss Elinor Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus D. Shepard, of "The Gables", East Front street, became the wife of John Duvall Shepard, a son of William Miller, of Lancaster Gate, Hyde Park, London. The bride is a niece of Col. Elliott F. Shepard, whose wife is a daughter of William K. Vanderbilt, and also a niece of Mrs. William Dean Howells, and of the Misses Mead. The renowned sculptor and the well-known author.

Although the Shepard family are members and constant attendants of the Crescent avenue church, the wedding took place at the First Presbyterian, probably because better available for the ceremony as arranged. It is rumored, however, that an English superstition precludes the marriage of either bride or groom before anything but the blue canopy of heaven, and the arched door of the kirk, while going to and from the wedding. Consecutively, as evening grew railway bridges crossed the road from the bride's home to her church, she gracefully pledged herself to the station at her intended husband's country and chose another place for the wedding.

The ceremony was fixed at seven o'clock, but guests began to arrive an hour before. No one was admitted, however, without a card of invitation, and therefore there was no overcrowding of the church. The arrangements for the accommodation of all were p rfect. One of the gall ries was reserved f r the members of the Ladies' Mission Band of the Presbyterian churches, in whose work the bride is deeply interested. The floral decorations and the flowers of the bridal party, furnished by the florist, were the subjects of universal admiration. Just before the wedding, an elegant floral offering from President and Mrs. Harrison, arrived at the house. Mr. Clarence L. Eick presided at the organ.

The officiating clergymen—the Rev. Dr. E. R. Richards, the bride's former pastor, and the Rev. Dr. John C. Bliss, of Washington Heights, New York, the bride's former pastor—came in from the side of the altar and stood on opposite sides from where they entered. The maids were Miss Elizabeth Stewart, Miss Maud Stewart, Miss Grace Hayes and they cousins of the bride's. Miss Kathleen Mead, Miss Mildred Howells and Miss Edith Shepard. They wore frocks of pink chiffon trimmed with Valenciennes lace, and carried bouquets of pink sweet-pea blossoms and lilies of the valley. Their escorts were A. D. Shepard, Jr., brother of the groom; Mr. Hayes and two of the bride's, and Capt. R. W. F. Monteith, of England. Richard Irvin, Harry L. Salmontsall and Frederick Wendt.

The groom came in from one side of the pulpit, and with his best man, Capt. M. R. P. Asdale, of the Royal Fusileers of England, stood on opposite sides from where they entered. The bride's form as for—came in from the other side of the altar and stood within a floral altar built for the occasion This was the signal for the nuptial march from "Lohengrin", and the bridal party entered.

From each side of the broad pulpit and massive organ, came the bridesmaids and groomsmen in couples. They crossed in front of the altar and stood on opposite sides from where they entered. The maids were Miss Elizabeth Stewart, Miss Maud Stewart, Miss Grace Hayes and they cousins of the bride's, Miss Kathleen Mead, Miss Mildred Howells and Miss Edith Shepard. They wore frocks of pink chiffon trimmed with Valenciennes lace, and carried bouquets of pink sweet-pea blossoms and lilies of the valley. Their escorts were A. D. Shepard, Jr., brother of the groom; Mr. Hayes and two of the bride's, and Capt. R. W. F. Monteith, of England, Richard Irvin, Harry L. Salmontsall and Frederick Wendt.

The groom came in from one side of the pulpit, and with his best man, Capt. M. R. P. Asdale, of the Royal Fusileers of England, stood on opposite sides from where they entered. The bride's former pastor—came in from the side of the altar and stood within a floral altar built for the occasion This was the signal for the nuptial march from "Lohengrin", and the bridal party entered.

The bride's father, the bride's former pastor, and the Rev. Dr. John C. Bliss, of Washington Heights, New York, the bride's former pastor—came in from the side of the altar and stood within a floral altar built for the occasion This was the signal for the nuptial march from "Lohengrin", and the bridal party entered.

The bride's father, the bride's former pastor, and the Rev. Dr. John C. Bliss, of Washington Heights, New York, the bride's former pastor—came in from the side of the altar and stood within a floral altar built for the occasion This was the signal for the nuptial march from "Lohengrin", and the bridal party entered.

The officiating clergymen—the Rev. Dr. E. R. Richards, the bride's former pastor, and the Rev. Dr. John C. Bliss, of Washington Heights, New York, the bride's former pastor—came in from the side of the altar and stood on opposite sides from where they entered. The maids were Miss Elizabeth Stewart, Miss Maud Stewart, Miss Grace Hayes and they cousins of the bride's, Miss Kathleen Mead, Miss Mildred Howells and Miss Edith Shepard. They wore frocks of pink chiffon trimmed with Valenciennes lace, and carried bouquets of pink sweet-pea blossoms and lilies of the valley. Their escorts were A. D. Shepard, Jr., brother of the groom; Mr. Hayes and two of the bride's, and Capt. R. W. F. Monteith, of England, Richard Irvin, Harry L. Salmontsall and Frederick Wendt.

The groom came in from one side of the pulpit, and with his best man, Capt. M. R. P. Asdale, of the Royal Fusileers of England, stood on opposite sides from where they entered. The CHAPTER CLXXXIX.

An act to incorporate the county seat of Hunterdon of the county of New Jersey.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the inhabitants of the county of Hunterdon, and their successors, be and they are hereby constituted a body politic and corporate, by the name, style and title of the "Inhabitants of the county seat of Hunterdon," and by that name shall have perpetual succession, and shall be capable in law to purchase, receive, hold and enjoy to them and their successors, any estate, real, personal or mixed, for the use of the said county seat of Hunterdon, and the same to grant, sell, convey or dispose of at their pleasure; and by the name aforesaid may sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, answer and be answered unto, defend and be defended in all courts and places whatsoever, and in all matters and causes whatsoever, as any other corporate body politic within this state may or can do; and may have a common seal, and the same may break, alter, renew or change at their pleasure.

2. And be it enacted, That the county of Hunterdon shall not be bounded as at present, but shall be bounded as follows:

Beginning at the mouth of Rocky Brook, where it empties into the Delaware river; thence up the middle of said brook to the bridge where the road leading from Lambertville to Flemington crosses said brook; thence northwesterly along the middle of said road to the bridge where the road leading from Lambertville to Pittstown crosses the South Branch of the Raritan river; thence up the middle of said river to the bridge where the road leading from Pittstown to Clinton crosses said river; thence northwesterly along the middle of said road to the bridge where the road leading from Pittstown to Bloomsbury crosses the Musconetcong river; thence up the middle of said river to the bridge where the road leading from Bloomsbury to Hackettstown crosses said river; thence northwesterly along the middle of said road to the bridge where the road leading from Bloomsbury to Belvidere crosses the Pequest river; thence up the middle of said river to the bridge where the road leading from Belvidere to Oxford crosses said river; thence northwesterly along the middle of said road to the bridge where the road leading from Belvidere to Hope crosses the Pequest river; thence up the middle of said river to the bridge where the road leading from Belvidere to Johnsonsburg crosses said river; thence northwesterly along the middle of said road to the bridge where the road leading from Belvidere to Blairstown crosses the Pequest river; thence up the middle of said river to the bridge where the road leading from Belvidere to Hainesburg crosses said river; thence northwesterly along the middle of said road to the bridge where the road leading from Belvidere to Delaware crosses the Delaware river; thence up the middle of said river to the mouth of Flat brook; thence up the middle of said brook to the bridge where the road leading from Belvidere to Columbia crosses said brook; thence northwesterly along the middle of said road to the bridge where the road leading from Belvidere to Walpack crosses the Delaware river; thence up the middle of said river to the mouth of Big Flat brook; thence up the middle of said brook to the bridge where the road leading from Belvidere to Flatbrookville crosses said brook; thence northwesterly along the middle of said road to the bridge where the road leading from Belvidere to Montague

WHAT LUCK!

Methinks I never have been a diver;
Unto the under passion
Of our ocean's depth
I am afraid to venture.
But when I heard the professor say
That there was diamonds
I knew I'd—thought I say to myself—
Have to go down.

She had not pretty taste in dress;
Her form was grandeur rather;
But—William was her fancy.
Her features were not faultless,
Her voice was not musical,
Of course he had heard her;
And yet he loved her.

Of my proposal for her hand
And heart I'll not relate
The circumstances,
Although they were interesting.
Suffice it to say
That she became Mrs. Smith.
—Harry S. Smith, in Success.

A LITTLE CITY CHAP.

Why Miss Keziah Changed Her Mind About a Boy.

Miss Keziah Sheldon, with a sad face, was frantically engaged in dinning into her neighbors' ears from the flowerbed that she had lately planted.

"If it ain't enough to try the patience of Job!" she groaned, excitedly hunting herself with her sunbonnet. "They've gone and scratched up all my choicest roots. Why can't John keep their chickens home, instead of allowing 'em to run around destroying other people's property?"

A very tired little chap, dusty and footsore from the long distance he had traveled, looked in from the gate.

"Please, ma'am," he said, "if those chickens were dead, they wouldn't get in. There's quite a number of 'em missing, you see."

"Why!" ejaculated Miss Keziah in surprise, for she had not noticed him. "Why, so there are. I've meant to drive 'em home, Bessie, a-many times a-long, but it's somehow slipped my mind."

"If you'll let me, ma'am," said the boy, eagerly, "it'll do it cheaper. I'm looking for work."

"Who are you?" asked Miss Keziah.

"Only a boy from the city," was the reply. "Please, ma'am, I'm tired of it, and I thought I might find something to do in the country. Mother's dead, and Aunt Sarah's found room to keep me now."

"Well," said Miss Keziah, rather doubtfully, "if you think you can fix 'em, you may begin this evening, I suppose. The pailings that came off are out in the barn, and I'll get you the hammer and nails."

While the sun grew low in the west the boy industriously worked away, whistling to himself in his calm and appetizing odor of Miss Keziah's cookery.

"My, but it smells good!" he said, with a very hungry feeling at his stomach. "I'd like to live here if I could. I wonder if Miss Keziah's want a boy to do her chores?"

He looked up as he spoke at the window of her little summer kitchen and saw that the work was satisfactorily completed.

"There, ma'am," said the boy, as he came and handed the hatchet up to her, "I've done a pretty good job of it. I don't think the chickens'll get in now."

"You can wash up and then eat the supper you've earned," said Miss Keziah.

He needed no second urging, and was soon seated at a corner of the table ravenously choking down the cold meat, bread, and butter. Cookery fairly got past cookies she had placed before him.

All the while Miss Keziah kept looking at him in undisguised astonishment.

"Dear sakes alive!" she said, "whatever you have got!"

He poured out a last drop of tea in his cup down his throat.

"No, ma'am," he said, apologetically, "we never have anything to spare. I've had anything to eat since morning."

"Why, you poor boy!" said Miss Keziah, with compassion in her face. "I told me I'd have given you a piece of pie."

"I thought I'd wait ma'am," he said, as he arose from the table with a sigh of satisfaction. "I'll split some wood for you now, or else pile a good deep every low."

He chopped away till dusk and then, staggering, a bucket of water from the well. Miss Keziah had a silver half dollar in her hand to give him.

"You don't want a boy, do you?" he asked, wistfully.

"Sakes alive!" said Miss Keziah, as really, "what would I want with a boy? I've lived here all alone and done my own work for years."

"I didn't know but you might," he said, disappointedly. "Thank you, ma'am, for the money. It's getting dark and I'm so tired I can hardly walk; would you mind if I slept in your barn to-night?"

Miss Keziah was a very cautious spinster, but her heart was touched with a very strong feeling of pity.

Up in the cemetery on the hill, where blackberry vines and golden rod run riot, and Sylvester Little Eglebank, the child her dying brother had left in her charge, lay sleeping—for he had been out to the great world instead, fraught less like this little chap?

"If you can't sleep to-night," she said, rather huskily, "and you can be on your way in the morning."

He thanked her very gratefully on the mat and sat down in one of the stiff-backed chairs of her prim sitting-room.

"I don't suppose you care to hear the Bible," she said, austerely, as she lit the lamp on the table, "but I'm going to go to bed. You can go now if you like."

"No," he said, in a low tone, "I'd like to hear it. Mother used to read it to me."

So Miss Keziah put on her gold-rimmed spectacles and read on in a hard, raspy tone from Luke, standing up at last to see that he was nodding his head and having a very hard time to keep his eyes open.

"Humph!" said she, closing the book. "I guess you'd better go to bed."

"I am sleepy," he confessed, drawing his hand across his eyes to brush it all."

She called the cat in and saw that the chickens were safely in the coop and bolted. Then she opened the door of a little chamber adjoining the dining-room.

"That's where you're to sleep," she said, abruptly. "Good night."

"Good night and thank you" was his response. "Thank you very much."

She waited a few minutes and then with the lamp went upstairs to her room.

"I've done a very foolish thing, I know; I'm getting old," she said, "but I couldn't help thinking of little Ephraim. How can I tell what that boy is? He may be in league with evil-doers and robbers. I'll be a mercy if I'm not killed to-night."

She was very careful to look under the bed before she retired, and it was some time before her eyes closed in sleep.

"He has an honest-looking face," was the last thing she said; "but one can't tell about people nowadays. He may be waiting even now to let those in."

The katydids chirped outside and the crescent moon sank low. The old-fashioned clock monotonously ticked two hours away.

Suddenly the stillness of the night was broken by a noise that startled and Miss Keziah, in her frilled cap, sat up in bed.

"It's just as I thought," she groaned, trembling like a leaf. "He's let the chickens out. I knew they're ransacking the garden. Why didn't I put that harvest money in the bank?"

She was about to fly to the window and scream for help when she heard an excited voice call up:

"Please, ma'am! Please, ma'am! I've got a man locked up in the closet. Come down, quick!"

Her words brought confidence to her, and, lighting her lamp, she quickly dressed and went fearfully down the stairs.

Fierce but futile blows were being rained against the stout oaken panels of the dining-room door, and she could hear the smothered curses of some one inside.

As she looked in the room she saw the boy, with the hatchet tightly grasped in his hand. His eyes were glowing with excitement.

"I've got him!" he cried. "Never fear, ma'am, he can't get out."

"Who—who is in it?" asked Miss Keziah, who was so weak that she had to lean upon a chair for support.

"Sh—sh!" said the boy, shadow and voice me," was the response. "I saw him go to the closet and I locked him in."

"Well, you're a brave boy," said Miss Keziah, recovering the use of speech of that new. I'd better go for the constable at once."

The constable threw her chisel over her head and left the house, while the boy remained on guard, apparently undisturbed by the muttered imprecations volleyed at him through the key-hole.

Down the road skimmed Miss Keziah in her high-wheeled bird, and in a short space of time she was back with the village policeman, constable and several other neighbors, who worked with the zest of the peace thought it prudent to call upon to assist him.

The key was taken from the closet in a half-suffocated condition and marched to the town lockup, while Miss Keziah was enabled to compose her ruffled feelings in sleep.

The next morning, after the breakfast to which he had been invited, her small guest arose and said:

"And now, ma'am, I think I will be on my way. You have been very kind, I can do for you before I go?" Do you want another pail of water brought in?"

"Don't be in any hurry," said Miss Keziah, and she laid one hand upon his curly head. "I've changed my mind. I do want a boy, and you're the very boy I want. I'm getting old, and I need some one to drive me about in case if they come in again, not to mention anything of burglars." — Cincinnati Post.

THE WATER BEAR.

Some of the Queer Things Revealed by the Microscope.

If in pond water you should find, reflecting only some crystal drop of the loveliest green color, and covered with a delicate network, you may read about it as long as you look on, unless under the heading Volvox. Inside may be seen smaller balls of the same kind. By and by the ball will burst and be cast from the little ones, each of which will there grow, and in the end the time it will break open too, and still more balls will begin their roving lives. Sometimes, instead of the rolling net cross are two hairs, so small that they are altogether invisible except under very powerful glasses. These are the hairs, like those on the vorticella, are used in securing food and in moving about. The animal may be classified as a plant and not as an animal.

I must not forget my friend the water bear. He is rather a curious little fellow. He goes slowly about on his eight little feet, poking and plodding among the low mosses and other sorts of rioting something good to eat. He is the very embodiment of indolent comfort. Yet for all his fondness for food with his lot in life, his personal appearance is not always pleasant to behold. Now and then he slips boldly out of his skin, and appears in an entirely new suit. He seems to confess the general style of the cast-off dress is retained. Instead of throwing the old suits away, he leaves the larger and clumsier creatures do, he gets out of it so deftly that it stands upright and complete, even to his four pairs of shoes.

When the mother bear slips out of her old dress, she leaves some eggs in it. In a few days these hatch and some baby bears begin swimming around the cast-off skin. Here, also, for a short time. They soon find their way to the feeding grounds, and at once begin climbing slowly about, as much at home as are their parents.—St. Nicholas.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

COLLECTOR'S REPORT

UNION COUNTY, N. J.

For the Year Ending May 12, 1882.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union:

GENTLEMEN—Your committee to audit the duplicate of the collector of taxes for the year 1881, having carefully examined the same, find the following statement correct, and recommend that it be published, and that the collector be allowed the usual commission for collecting and paying over the same:

The receipts and disbursements for the fiscal year are as follows:

Receipts	$633,282 32
Disbursements	633,282 32

Balance in hands of collector $43,676 20

Respectfully submitted,
WM. HAGEL, Jr.,
GEO. W. LEONARD,
WM. W. DUNNELL,
Committee.

Dated May 23, 1882.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union:

GENTLEMEN—I have the honor to submit my annual report of moneys received and disbursed by me, as collector, for the year ending May 12, 1882.

The amount of taxes as levied by the Board of Chosen Freeholders, and as appears on the duplicate, for the year 1881 was as follows:

Union	$43,629 50	$90,847 92
Elizabeth	46,218 42	96,217 50
Elizabethport	13,414 00	27,929 12
Rahway	6,979 45	12,566 97
Townships.
Clark	720 95	1,543 26
Cranford	1,000 00	2,140 00
Fanwood	2,013 73	4,309 19
Linden	1,351 00	2,891 14
New Providence	713 31	1,526 82
Springfield	867 05	1,855 58
Summit	3,500 19	7,493 26
Union	4,362 45	9,339 18
Westfield	2,467 57	5,282 15
Total	$160,236 57	$189,666 97

In addition to the above there was raised for roads the following:

City of Elizabeth		$2,542 97
Fanwood township		1,000 00
Springfield		2,000 00
Westfield		2,750 00
Total		$8,292 97

Raising total amount raised for county purposes $200,000 00

Union county received from the state school fund apportionment the same amount that it paid to the state school fund, as an equivalent basis, the sum of $4,316 97 is in the special state apportionment, which was apportioned to the cities and townships as follows:

Elizabeth	$2,542 97
Rahway	443 94
Clark	95 95
Cranford	86 96
Fanwood	76 00
Linden	113 70
New Providence	63 91
Springfield	84 99
Summit	176 62
Union	169 01
Westfield	254 12
Total	$4,316 97

RECEIPTS AND DISBURSEMENTS.

Total amount of receipts from all sources $633,282 32
Total disbursements 589,606 32

Leaving a balance of $43,676 20

Which is on deposit in the banks on the credit of the county collector.

RECEIPTS.

Balance from last year	$ 66,470 69
State school tax	4,316 98
State school tax	90,847 92
Taxes from cities and townships	189,666 97
Less interest allowed cities and township	189 39
	189,924 25
Miscellaneous	10,481 81
Taxation of railroads, 1881	5,668 41
Amount of advances returned by agents	5,000 00
Amount received from city of Elizabeth in payment of amount paid by county for assessment of property of county, etc., in the year 1880	1,570 56
Amount received from county attorney, being the sum advanced to city of Rahway for collecting taxes, and county tax for 1880	653 80
Amount received from Elizabeth and New York railroad company, being 1½ per cent. on 150,376 00
Interest	286 40
Amount received from Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, being the amount spent by the company in paving within their limits on Grand street	347 78
Interest received from E. M. Ross, collector, on advance payment of taxes for the year 1882	155 80
Amount received from the following places, for interest on moneys expended on county roads completed:
Union township	1,494 24
Linden	1,351 00
Westfield	2,467 57
Springfield	867 05
City of Rahway	345 00
	$3,404 62
Total receipts	625,353 23

Receipts as above by miscellaneous account from John F. Evans, honey account, Maggie Hatman $46 50
From Mary A. Hatman, insect account, 1879 ..... 9 00
From Jacob Davis, insect account, 1879 ..... 72 00
From E. M. Engle, insect account, 1879 ..... 114 00
From T. S. Kelly, insect account, Edward Duffy 117 80
From William Lacy, insect account, Annie Lacy 39 00
From T. Ward, insect account, Francis G. Fish 930 00
From John Nash, justice fees 3 00
George Neill 1 00
W. H. Blake, sheriff fees 7,701 25 costs 715 98
jurors' fees 391 00
C. W. Dodd, jail fees 97 21 costs against H. O. Keefe 60 87 costs against F. E. Kelly 5 00
Charles H. Lobar, out order of springfield township, balance of 1880 ..... 7 60
A. Vanderbeck, sale old bridge material 38 25
George W. Lindsley, sale old bridge material 32 00
Richard Mason, sale old bridge material 3 50
Wm. Howard, sale old bridge material 31 92
W. Dodd, old material 31 38
| | $10,451 94 |

DISBURSEMENTS.

Court—

Salary T. F. Meier	3,679 97
Salary William R. Wood, prosecutor	2,958 33
Salary C. A. Swell, crier	700 00
Salary H. W. Knight, stenographer	1,766 00
Salary S. Hyer, judge	696 16
Salary Lewis Kitchie, judge	730 00
Salary James Kitchie, court crier	566 25

CHAPTER DCXVII.

An act concerning the reserved tax on certain offices or employments for the proper protection of the State.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That hereafter it shall not be lawful for any person to be given by any municipal officer or municipality for the proper performance of official duty, whether given directly or indirectly, any fee, reward or emolument, except the salary or compensation that shall be allowed by law to the officer or body of the municipality to which any such gratuity may be offered, promised, or given, that regarding any matter of official duty as to fitness, qualification of land upon any certified to said officer, which, after due examination, he reserved as evidence in any court of the State, or the proper and necessary steps in law up to the ordinary burden of proof, and upon conviction, shall be punished as for a misdemeanor.

2. And be it enacted, That upon application made by the owner of any office or employment the amount who shall hold the official trust in any municipality or who shall manage the official trust in any municipality, and who shall be required to pay by or on behalf of any citizen any tax, assessment, or other charge, or who shall be required to pay by or on behalf of any citizen any tax, assessment

CITY DEPARTMENT

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY OF UNION.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - City Editor.

—The U tions of Grant avenue will play the Hope chapel base-ball club Saturday afternoon on the grounds.

—A Yenion, having sold his Madison avenue residence to Captain J. Frank Hubtard, has rented the house, 10 East Ninth street.

—Monday's Times contained 18 advertisements of wants and offers, in that interesting "cent a word" column. Monday's news had 14.

—An examination of candidates for State scholarships, for Union county, will be held at the Court House, Elizabeth, Saturday morning, beginning at nine o'clock.

—Thursday, July 2, is said to be the date fixed for the excursion of the First Baptists to Belmar. The Crescent Avenue Presbyterians go to Ocean Grove the week following.

—The American Economist, the bulletin of the Tariff League of New York, copies it fall, in its current issue, E. P. Williams's recent letter to this paper, on the tin-plate question.

—Remember the dates of the Whatsoever Circle, King's Daughters, strawberry and ice cream festival, Thursday and Friday afternoons and evenings, this week, 59 North avenue, opposite Railroad station.

—The Plainfield Water Supply Company keeps on with its work of distributing carloads of pipes for water mains about the city streets, and in Netherwood the work of laying them progresses rapidly.

—The work of changing the grade of North avenue near the Netherwood station, and of Park avenue, in order to make it a fine driveway instead of a water-covered thoroughfare, is being pushed vigorously.

—Complaint is made that certain parties are in the habit of shooting rabbits and song birds in the vicinity of Hotel Netherwood. The guilty ones need not be surprised if they are brought before the courts, when sufficient evidence is secured.

—A cool and inviting scene awaits the public at 59 North avenue, where, to-morrow and Friday afternoon and evening, the Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters will serve luscious strawberries and delicious cream, the funds of will be for a very pleasant event for those who go.

—Sixty fish, of the black bass, pickerel and perch variety, weighing over seventy-five pounds altogether, were the catch at Lake Hopatcong, June 1, by ex-Postmaster W. L. Force and Jack Simpson of Fanwood. The largest was a four and a half-pound small-mouth black bass.

—One of the fifteen subjects on which the High School pupils are deeply engaged in the competitive essays is "Ancient Time-Keepers." Now we are going to learn the historic truth about that recently-resurrected relic of prehistoric days, the Plainfield town clock whose tongue was still so many ages.

—The members of the Woman's Relief Corps, auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, and the veterans of the G. A. R. to this city, desire to publicly express through the columns of this paper, their earnest appreciation of, and deep thankfulness for, the assistance accorded by the people, in making the memorial services of Decoration Day so successful.

—In view of reports to the effect that the articles in THE PRESS disagreeing with the policy of the Board of Trustees of Plainfield Academy in their dealings with the public, were inspired by members of the League, it is proper to emphatically state that no one of the League members in that paper on any subject are solely the opinions of THE PRESS—no more and no less.

—Saturday morning when it was time to begin the game on the Crescent baseball grounds, the Ridgewoods found themselves on hand. They asked for a re-suit and Charles O. Pierson, son of Counselor Pierson, was at once recommended. While he was dressing the Ridgewood nine left the ground, and the audience thus lost an opportunity of witnessing what a clever amateur player young Pierson is. However, he'll be heard from yet.

McCutchen Made a Home Run.

That was a lively game of ball at Somerville, Saturday morning, between the Plainfield Bi Club nine and the West End amateurs. Old reliable McCutchen, Plainfield's favorite short stop of 76 olden time, made a home run, yet the Bi club was defeated by a score of 20 to 17.

W. Cadmus pitched and McMurray caught for Plainfield, and proved a strong battery. But McFarland, who played for Somerville, made three home runs in succession, and Decker, who caught, made one.

Miss Bowers and Other Artists at The Casino.

The recital given by Miss Maude Agnes Bowers on Saturday evening was in all satisfactory in all respects as could be desired. Seminary Hall being too small to accommodate the audience, the concert of the entertainment was held in The Casino, although it was first advertised for the former place.

The programme was varied—the first part consisting of recitations and vocal music, and the second part of two comedietta and instrumental music.

Miss Bowers is a young elocutionist of all. Lines to a Chatelaine Watch; In the Window Seat, by C. W. Coleman, Jr.; De Conversation; The Widow Cummisky; and The Charlot Race, by Lew Wallace. She divided the honors of her talent with her classmate of the Boston School of Oratory, Miss Grace Marchand, who gave equal pleasure in reciting Lucas, by F. Depres, and a selection by T. B. Aldrich.

Miss Alice Holmes sang in her usual acceptable manner, Flour des Alpes, by Wekerlin; Absence, by A. H. Pease, and in response to repeated recall, Marigulta, by Edoardo Marzo, her former teacher.

Both comedietias were very enjoyable. The first, A Narrow Escape, was played by Miss Bowers and Miss Marchand. The second, A Fair Encounter, was by Miss Bowers and Mrs. L. S. Howard. In her part as Mrs. George Granville, Mrs. Howard was irresistible and afforded great amusement. She was the bright particular jewel of the evening.

Though mentioned last, the duet for two pianos, a concerto of Mendelssohn's, by Miss Wolfenbergen and Mr. Vosbiu, was by no means the least enjoyable. No one could fail to appreciate the refinement and delicacy of the playing of these artists. Everything was well agreed in regretting that the public are accorded so few opportunities of hearing Miss Wolfenbergen.

Not to be Blushed.

A merchant in Syracuse offered a young woman twenty yards of silk for a dress if she would save half a cord of wood in front of his store. She borrowed a saw, spit on her hands, and went to work. In less than an hour and three hours, and the admiring crowd bought her a twelve-dollar hat to go with the silk.

I SUFFERED from nervous debility in all its sons and forms—all the symptoms of which I will not mention—for a week at a time I would not care if I were dead. It is wonderful how it has cured me. It is so simple that it does not require a description. I will say this much, however, that I was induced to try it by reading a testimonial, and I am glad that I was induced to try it. I feel like a new man. I have been troubled with nervous debility for a long time, and have tried many remedies, but never found anything to do me any good until I tried Dr. Jefferson's Nervine Tonic. I feel that every person who may be suffering from nervous debility should try it. Yours truly, Mrs. Mary Ann Cleary, Silver Lake, Pa. Dr. Jefferson's Nervine Tonic is for sale by druggists at $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. Sent by express on receipt of price. Dr. Jefferson's Nervine Tonic Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

PERSONALIA.

Dr. Profazzo is expected home from Europe this week.

J. D. Spicer of this city has rented a cottage on Highth avenue, Scotch Plains.

Hannah A. Dunham, wife of William V. Dunham, of New Market, died Monday.

Miss Belle Schuyler, of Roselle, spent Sunday with friends in this city.

The Shakespeare Club met on Tuesday at the residence of Miss Lydia Colton, Grove street.

Miss Minnie Wilson is visiting Miss Arnold, daughter of Judge Arnold of Philadelphia.

Ex-Judge John Ulrich, now of Westfield, told taken the Terry cottage on Sixth avenue, Belmar.

Ex-Governor Joseph D. Bedle dined with Corporation Counsel and Mrs. Craig A. Marsh, Saturday.

Miss Emma Birdsall of White Plains, N. Y., is the guest of Miss Henrietta Dunham of Madison avenue.

Dr. Profazzo reached home at five o'clock last Tuesday. His return trip from Europe was by the steamship "Matsdam".

Henry B. Medlee of North Plainfield has been elected a member of the Board of managers of the New York Produce Exchange.

At the residence of the bride's parents, in this city, last Tuesday, George Bedford and Miss Kate Cone were united in marriage by the Rev. Cornelius Schenck.

The executive board of The Melopsia at a recent meeting, decided unanimously to continue the Society and to re-engage W. H. Chapman as conductor for another season.

The Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Honeyman, of North Plainfield, returned from Detroit last Tuesday. They had a delightful trip, but are glad to get back to New Jersey's cooler climate.

Mrs. George Lisegiocki, of "Sans Souci Villa", East Front street, will give an informal luncheon to a circle of friends, ladies, at six o'clock this afternoon, in honor of her guest, Mrs. Bottmann.

Mrs. Ruth W. Vaughn died Thursday at the home of her granddaughter, Miss Ida M. Vaughn, 21 Franklin place, in the 100th year of her age. She lacked less than five months of completing a century of life.

T. S. Dolittle, D. D., LL. D., one of the most scholarly and best liked professors at Rutgers College and the Theological Seminary at New Brunswick, will occupy the pulpit of Trinity Reformed church next Sunday.

The Rev. Cornelius Schenck left yesterday to attend as a delegate the session of the General Synod of the Reformed church at Asbury Park. The session began Wednesday, and will continue for one week.

The following are some of the counsel who will appear in the Job Male will case: Ex-Gov. Bedle, ex-Chancellor Runyon, Foster Voorhees, Cea.) A Marsh, Nelson Perrine, Charles A. Reed, William M. Stillman and Judge Daly.

W. M. Alberti, formerly of this city, and Secretary of the Seaside Assembly, is with his wife, Miss. Alberti, Dean of the Delaware Institute, Media, Pa., at Avon-by-the-Sea, arranging their pretty cottage on Sylvan Lake for their occupancy.

The Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes read an address "Our Dead Heroes" before the East New Jersey Baptist Association at the second-day's session of the semi-centennial jubilee of Trinity Reformed church. The Rev. J. K. Folwell of Westfield preached the annual doctrinal sermon.

The Board of Directors of the First National Bank of Plainfield Tuesday last rewarded the faithful services of two of the bank's most trusted officials by promoting Frank S. Bunyon to the position of cashier and David M. Bunyon to the position of assistant cashier.

The Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes and the Rev. Asa Reed Dilts took prominent part in the half-centennial celebration of the East New Jersey Baptist Association at Jersey City Tuesday. Dr. Yerkes was appointed a member of the standing committee on publishing the minutes, and Mr. Dilts on the committee on corresponding bodies.

Winfield Scott Angleman of Plainfield and Frederick Nevins Voorhess of Bound Brook were among the graduates of the Class of '91 sent forth by the Law School of the University of the City of New York last Thursday. Mr. Angleman received honorable mention in the award of a $50 prize for the best written examination.

The Misses Sarah and Harriet Manning, of this city, sisters of City Physician Manning, gave a delightful concert and tea and all expenses, to sing as soprano and contralto soloists in a series of concerts in several of the largest cities of the West, including Chicago. They have also been engaged to give concerts in Maine during the latter part of July. The patronesses include some of the most select people of that State.

The Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, pastor of the Plainfield Seventh-Day Baptist church, will take a three months' vacation this summer, and will devote the time to the completion and revision, preparatory to publication, of a work on ancient Real, Phallic, sun and water worship. In the preparation of this work Dr. Lewis has spent much time, study and research, and it cannot but be an interesting and valuable addition to modern publications. During his vacation the pulpit will be occupied by his son, Prof. Edwin Lewis, and Prof. Rogers, both of Alfred University, Alfred Centre, N. Y. Prof. Rogers, who is father of Charles Potter Rogers of this city, will preach his first sermon here July 4.

Borrowed the Wrong Cab in the Owner's Absence.

Three young men about town appropriated Henry Hanson's horse and cab from the street curb where it was standing, during the owner's brief absence, and used it an hour or two, thinking that it belonged to a particular friend of theirs who would n't care. Hanson, however, was of a different mind and he did care, so he had the three gay fellows arrested, by policeman Cooney. Elias Pope furnished bonds for their appearance for trial before Justice Wadsworth.

Scores of the Boys' Club.

The match game between the Boys' Club last week was 44 each evening. The largest in any one evening was 64, and the smallest 28. The monthly average is 53.

All the members are expected to turn out to see the base-ball game next Saturday between the boys from Elizabeth and the nine of the local club. The battery for the home team will be Bolsteric and Adams. Games for July are now being arranged, and the club would like to receive challenges for games on Wednesday afternoons, from other teams whose members are under the age of seventeen.

The Edwards Zouaves made a very fine appearance in the Memorial Day parade, and created exceedingly well for their first appearance. After the exercises at Music Hall the members marched to the residence of George Wharton Edwards on Madison avenue, where they were entertained by Mrs. Edwards and daughters. An exhibition drill was given, and the boys marched back to the club rooms.

John have you not that woman lately? Yes, I have. Is she not that woman? That woman playing croquet for Farr's Wives. Just see her in another column, and read about it; the wives are found by themselves to be absolutely pure and equal to the best in the world. The Boards of Health have adopted their use where there is sickness.

BIRTH AND MUSIC.

Romeo and Juliet Given a Modern Rendering by Amateur Actors of the Borough.

The Holy Cross church choir entertained a large and appreciative audience on Friday night, in the parish rooms of the church, Holy Rood place, North Plainfield. A neat and complete stage had been erected, with curtains, footlights, and all other necessary theatrical appurtenances, and a tasteful floral decorations had been made, so that the various programme items of the evening had a very satisfactory setting.

First on the programme was a chorus by the entire choir; the selection was Barnby's "Sweet and Low", and very well was it rendered.

Next came a violin solo by Master Edward Waring, whose rendition of Ernst's beautiful "Serenade" was so pleasing to his hearers that an encore was demanded.

Master Schutt followed, with a vocal solo, "Darling Margueritte", by Rosenman, which he gave with much tender expression.

A "romantic fairy tale", Romeo and Juliet, (the name by W. Shakespeare; the rest by George Taggart"), was the fourth number, and as everybody anticipated it made a great hit. The part of "Juliet" (a dear girl", was cleverly impersonated by Will Spencer; "Col. J. Fanny Capulet", "Juliet's" pa, was Howard Spencer in disguise; the "Count de Paris Green", to whose fortune (a purely mythical one) "Juliet" would fain have wedded "Juliet", might have been recognized as "Tiny Farnham" had his "Paris Green" been washed with "Sailpeter"; the "deckhand" is "Capulet's" house, who assisted "Romeo" in carrying out his various intrigues; the "Count de Holmes"; "Romeo G McFly" was the author himself, George Taggart. The play was a highly amusing one, and the bright sayings and doings of the actors kept the audience in continuous laughter. Incidentally Mr. Taggart gave some very funny character-drawings, in citing various poetic selections in Delsarte style as interpreted by members of Mc-Finigan's class in "the Fourt' Ward". His version on "Celiacker" was received with much relish. "Romeo" and "Juliet" also read passages from Shakespeare, in burlesque, very cleverly, while Howard Spencer attempted more serious work in difficult but admirably-executed imitations of Booth and Irving. When the wholesome and enjoyable fun of the one-act "fairy tale" was at an end, Master Charles Turrill, one of the smallest singers in the choir—and one of the "quiet", the "ladies and gentlemen" modestly to the front and sang in a sweet and tiny voice that catchy little song, "Over in the Barn Yard". His imitation of the rooster is crowing was admirably mirthful that the audience made him come out and do it all over again.

The familiar and ever-pleasant "Mass of the Sanctus Night" was sung by the semi-chorus of male voices, and a kinder symphony, "A Jolly Sleighing Party", was rendered by the quartette—Misses Mabel Jeffery; whip, Edward Waring; bells, Arthur Murphy; trumpet, Chas. Barlow; drum, Herbert Schutt; clappers, Arthur Ford and Frank Dutt; Miss Grace Waring. The Misses Hasbrouck accompanied very ably on the piano. The music was of the descriptive order, and the different parts were very clearly defined. There was first "the signal to start", then "the start", then "on the ride", "at the inn", "at supper", "the dance", the "sigual for departure", the "start for home", the "arrival home", and "good night".

The sleigh ride over, the audience listened to the beautiful strains of Sullivan's "Lost Chord", beautifully sung by Will Holmes, who was given a storm of deserved applause.

The closing act, a composition by Werner, was sung by the semi-chorus, to whose voices it was admirably suited. The chorus was a very fine one, and one of the best numbers on the programme.

Pinsuti's "Spring Song", by the full chorus, ended the entertainment, which was in every way a delightful one.

To those who patronized the affair further enjoyment was added in the fact that they were helping to swell the fund for the first annual outing of the choir, to be held at Merwin's Point, ten miles from Bridgeport, Conn., from August 3 to August 10.

PLAINFIELD LOSES.

At the Eleventh Hour Rutgers Point Makes a Marvelous Score and Wrests the Whist Championship from the Crescent League.

(FROM THE DAILY PRESS OF MAY 28.)

The New Jersey Athletic Club, much to the surprise of the other contestants, have won the championship of Central New Jersey in the whist tournament that has been in progress since March 25. The Plainfield Crescent League team played their last game they had such a lead over the other clubs that the only team they feared seriously was the Rutgers Point. It did so, but fell short one that had been made in the tournament was 325, by Plainfield, neither was apprehended from the New Jersey Athletic. Yesterday the last night of the league Points made the most phenomenal score of 377, and this extraordinary figure raises them from 371 3-7 to 375 5-8 in the average number of points per game, brings their total 40 points ahead of Plainfield, and gives them the first prize of $50 each, while the Plainfield team secured second prize, $25.

Crescent League players are at a loss to understand how in the three hours allotted to each team the Rutgers Points and Westfields could run up such a tremendous number of points as 669, yet that is just what was done. Westfield's score was 316, and Rutgers' was 353, or 669 1-4 that club's average number of points per game.

At Elizabeth the Elizabeth Athletic Club defeated the Fanwoods by a score of 282 to 249. By this Elizabeth's average is raised from 263 4-7 to 265 7-8, while Fanwood's is lowered from 278 6-7 to 277 1-4.

The complete record is as follows:

	Games Played	Total Points Scored	Average
N. J. A. C., Bergen Point	8	2777	384 5-8
Crescent League	8	2777	347 1-2
Fanwood Club	8	2213	276 5-8
Elizabeth Ath. Club	8	2107	263 1-4
Westfield Ath. Club	8	2102	262 3-4

	Games Played	Games Won	Games Lost
Plainfield	8	7	1
Elizabeth	8	6	2
Bergen Point	8	5	3
Fanwood	8	3	5
Westfield	8	1	7

The score of the Elizabeth-Fanwood game in detail is as follows:

ELIZABETH.	Plainfield.	Bergen Point.	Fanwood.	Westfield.	Games won.
Plainfield		2	1	0	3
Elizabeth		2	1	0	3
Bergen Point	1		2	0	3
Fanwood	2	1		0	3
Westfield	1	2	1		4

Kyte & Dowser	39
Kempshall & Fenwick	39
Miller & Stetson	39
		78
Kyte & Dowser	39
Kempshall & Fenwick	39
Miller & Stetson	39
		78
Kyte & Dowser	39
Kempshall & Fenwick	39
Miller & Stetson	39
		78
Kyte & Dowser	39
Kempshall & Fenwick	39
Miller & Stetson	39
		78
Total		390

FEATURES OF MEMORIAL DAY.

How It was Celebrated in This City—A Grand Parade—Exercises at Music Hall.

The ceremonies of Decoration Day as announced in recent issues of THE PRESS, were carried out on Saturday, impressively, enthusiastically and successfully. In the morning different details of the Plainfield G. A. R. post visited the graves of the dead heroes in the several cemeteries, and decorated the mounds above them. The veterans of this city were astir at an early hour, and at eight o'clock in the morning they held the usual services and ceremonies of the day beside the soldiers' monument in Fairview cemetery. The Rev. Dr. Yerkes delivered an address upon the occasion.

At the Presbyterian cemetery in this city, in the morning, the Garfield Legion, No. 23, of the Local Legion Leagues, decorated the graves of the soldiers buried there and held some beautiful services. The Legion was under the command of Captain Frank Woodruff, Jr., and Lieutenant Joseph Dodsley. No 1, of the Children's Loyal Legion, a chorus of girls, relatives of Union soldiers, and an address by Hon. Charles Plane, Mayor of North Plainfield.

The parade in the afternoon was marshaled by Comrade William C. Smith of this city. It was in the following order: Memorial Committee, Band, Grand Army Post No. 73, Plainfield and North Plainfield Common Councils, Edwards Zouaves, Garfield Legion, Local Legion, Grand Army Post 109, and carriages for disabled comrades. The route was: From Front to Peace, to Crescent avenue, to Park avenue, to Somerset, to Central avenue, to Front, to Grove, to Emily, to Somerset, to Front, to Music Hall, where the exercises were held.

The hall was packed. Over a thousand men, women and children, besides the two hundred on the stage, gathered there. The services were in charge of Captain Smith and the Memorial Detail consisting of, I. McVoy, chairman; John E. Stewart, treasurer; J. R. Dunn, secretary; and committee C. Stevens, J. Mackey, John Emmons, Samuel Reese, A. Titsworth and Charles Randolph.

The programme was opened by the consolidated band of "Decoration Day" and "Grand Army Grave", by Arthur E. Smith. This was followed by a chorus led by T. E. Hazell. T. S. Roberts, of Dunellen then addressed the audience. His address was filled with children who represented the States in the ceremonies of decorating the cenotaph standing in the flag. They were in charge of Mrs. Charles Westphal, Mrs. H. C. Drake and Mrs. E. C. Morse of Winfield Scott Relief Corps.

The "Veteran's Guarding the Flag" were: First veteran, E. C. Morse; second veteran, John Goodwin; third veteran, John Finley; fourth veteran, Charles Stevens; fifth veteran, R. Mallor. The first son was, Raymond McVoy; second son, Elmer Vail; third son, Edward Randolph; fourth son, R. McVoy; fifth son, Joseph Keller. The first daughter was, Maggie Coddington; second daughter, Sadie Smith; third daughter, Jennie Smith; fourth daughter, Minnie Smith; fifth daughter, Lucy Westphal.

Miss Ward and Lucy Westphal presided at the piano throughout the exercises. A brief recital of what was the address of little Ethel Cline, who although only five years of age spoke in behalf of all the States. She was a great success and greatly applauded.

The following were the selections rendered by the following little Misses:

Lony Rickert,	Millie Pearson,
Lilly Mayo,	Ella Pearson,
Carrie Hoffman,	Eva Perry,
Carrie Howard,	Laura Kreuse,
Ella Dunham,	Emma Shann,
Aggie Morse,	Bertha Chun,
Bertha Chun,	Hannah Westphal,
Hannah Westphal,	Carrie Pangborn,
Carrie Pangborn,	Gertie Bowne,
Gertie Bowne,	Clara Southard,
Clara Southard,	Carrie Knight,
Ty Mattox,	Maggie Summers,
Florence Smith,	Florence Smith,
Jennie Smith,	Ida Wetgman,
Lottie Sprague,	Lenn Sanglinger,
Anna Wetgman,	Anna Wetgman,
Maud Smith,	Maud Smith,
Florence Parker,	Florence Parker,
Lida Day,	Carrie Rottinghouse,
Carrie Bertier,	Minnie Foster,
Emma Angleman,	Ida Uninger,
	Bertha Naylor.

THAT UNSIGNED WILL.

It Devises Much Property to the Public Library, But Notably to the Unitarian Church or the U. B. C. A.

At Trenton, yesterday, before the Prerogative Court of New Jersey, the effort was begun to have admitted to probate the disputative will of the late Job Male, ex-Mayor of this city. The Court ordered that testimony in the case be taken before Master in Chancery W. Knight, 35 Newark, Friday of next week.

The following certificate, filed with the Court, sets forth just what are the provisions of the will that Judge A. Q. March, in the interests of its beneficiaries, is fighting so hard to sustain. It is herewith made known to the public for the first time. Through the columns of THE PRESS.

We, the subscribers, George W. Endicott, M. D., Thomas S. Davis, M. D., and Augustus Q. March, Esq., all of the city of Plainfield, County of Union and State of New Jersey, do hereby certify, that on the twenty-ninth day of January, Eighteen hundred and Ninety-one, at about the hour of ten o'clock p. m., and about the hour preceding the death, Job Male, late of said City of Plainfield, did pronounce his last will and testament in our presence, and at the request of and in the presence of the said Job Male did sign, the subscribers who were present and there present, now witness that such was his will; that said will was made in the time of the last sickness of said Job Male, and in his dwelling house in said City of Plainfield, in which he had been confined for several days next before the making of said will; that said will pronounced as aforesaid was so made.

In reply to a question by Coria A. March to him, he, Job Male, said that he wanted to make his will, and that he wished the children of his brothers to share equally, and said but first I give the Park avenue house, No. 120 Park avenue, and Nos. 9, 11 and 13 Ogden avenue, in Plainfield Public Library. He said, I make John W. Herbert, Job Male and George W. Fenno, my executors. I give ten thousand dollars to Mary Ann Simmons, my late servant. I give my executors power to sell my property but not before five years after my death. I give the remainder of my property to the trustees of the Schoonmaker Collection, to the Plainfield Public Library. I give this house and lot to Job Male, but Mr. Male is to have it for her home, without charge, as long as she lives, after her death I give it to Job Male. I give the house in which Mrs. Fenno lives, No. 123 Broadway, to her. What is left after the gifts to the Public Library, to Mary Ann Simmons and Mrs. Stout, I want equally divided among the children of my two brothers, Simon, John, William, James and Ambrose.

We further certify that at the time of pronouncing the said will and command of said Job Male was of sound and disposing mind and memory, and that we were present continuously from that time until he died.

In testimony whereof we have hereunto set our hands and affixed our seals this fourth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.

Signed,
GEO. W. ENDICOTT, M. D.,
THOMAS S. DAVIS, M. D.
A. Q. MARCH.

It is a good will, and it would be most unfortunate if it should not be admitted to probate. The men who decided it was surely as sound as any, and more capable than many. Take for instance the provision about the sale of his large real estate holdings in Plainfield. The heirs at the bedside suggested, "one year", then "two years", then "three years", so that they could get any of the property. The old man shook his head at each suggestion, and then answered, "make it five years". He knew better than they what was for their interest, and if so much real estate was offered for sale too soon. Thus, also, he devised that the residue of his estate be equally divided among the children of his five dead brothers, and he named them all.

SAVED BY A PETITION.

Judge Bartine Suspends Sentence on Ex-Policeman Ackerman.

Judge Bartine, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, Monday morning, suspended sentence on ex-Policeman Ackerman, who was convicted of assault upon John M. Schorb and Edward McCready for attention assaults, T. Logue Murphy thinking that he was the victim. Ackerman, it will be remembered, broke in the door in order to get at the two men, but when he found neither of the men he was after he struck Murphy instead, that Schorb and McCready had assaulted him.

Judge Bartine, in addressing Schorb and McCready, said that they had committed a serious offense and had willfully broken the law twice, and it is was not for the intervention which he must regard, their sentence would have been a heavy one. The court was of the opinion that Schorb and McCready were the ones to blame, and in the absence of Mr. Murphy thought differently, he would do as they asked, and suspend sentence with costs of prosecution. If ever they came before the court again, he said, for such an offense, he would not deal so leniently with them.

A MAMMOTH PRESERVE.

150,000 Acres That Certain Plainfield Sportsmen Shoot and Fish In.

Ex-Councilmen E. N. Erickson, Dr. Frank S. Wells and A. Y. Nelson, of this city, and Ex-Councilman Charles Ellis, the genial Fish and Game Association, of which William B. Wadsworth, ex-Senator Robert L. Livingston, William H. Brown, M. A. Morris, G. A. Kelham, Frank Rogers, Walter G. Sweet, Hiram Deveau, Boston; R. M. Thompson, Lowell; J. Russell Reed, H. W. Sanborn, Bangor; Dr. E. W. Brannigan, Boston; W. K. McClure, Plainfield, N. J. Arthur W. Robinson of Boston was elected clerk of the corporation, and Harry Butler, assistant clerk of the corporation.

The report of the treasurer, Mr. Brown, showed the finances to be in excellent condition, showing the receipts to be $5,364.25, and the expenses $1,773.83. There is a cash balance in the treasury of $1,594.40. The assets of the corporation are $46,487.50. Under the head of "Contingent, $690.76; bonded indebtedness, $40,000; capital stock, $6,000.76; surplus, $4,630 74. By vote the stockholders instructed the directors to issue no more stock for membership from January after June 15, 1891, for less than $100 per share, and a fee for membership of $100 will be advance the price of stock to $500 per share. The corporation, the Adirondack Leased Seven Ponds Township and now owns a preserve of over 150,000 acres. The finest kind of fishing and shooting in the Adirondacks. The officers were elected in a more prosperous condition.

A Beautiful Specimen.

A few months ago, Abram D. Dunlap, while on a business trip to south, was so fortunate as to capture, with rod and line, a beautiful specimen of the speckled kind, silver king fish, weighing 6½ pounds. Mr. Dunlap has had the fish stuffed, and it is now adorns a side wall in the office of Force's Hotel, North avenue, where it is greatly admired by guests and visitors.

Big Game for Borough Property.

Recent real-estate transfers in Somerset county include the following of property in North Plainfield:

James McGee to Henry A. Mellor, $7,000.
Mary A. Mellor (widow of Henry A.) to Mellor, $7,000.
George Christmann and others to Frank Wolfe, $1,000.
William H. Shotwell to John Vetterlein, $1,000.
Sarah A. Young to Augustus A. Winkler, $1,000.
Margaret E. McLaughlin to William D. Hoffman, $1,000.
Fred N. Tall to Jasper H. Wilson, $800.

Raises a Great Teacher, as Well as Seeds.

At the recent annual spring meeting of the Somerset county teachers, Miss M. E. Adair, who last brought to this city, from the Westfield school, gave an illustration of her method of teaching primary reading. The lesson and the discussion which followed showed on the part of the teachers great interest in this important subject. Miss Adair is unquestionably successful in securing good results from her pupils, and ranks very high as a primary teacher.

The Misses Mair, Babbridge and Hoffman, teachers in the Park Plainfield school, gave three good papers on general topics. Superintendent Skinner treated of the importance of teaching children to read nature as well as books.

Fine Basements at Hillside.

From the quarries of the Smith Granite Company, at Westerly, R. I., many fine monuments have been shipped to Plainfield. The company have placed in Hillside Cemetery monuments for Chas. Potter, Jr., J. M. Titsworth, Dr. C. A. Anderson, Dr. Frank Wells, Dr. W. E. Stelle, the Rev. Dr. Robert Lowry, J. L. Van Arsdale and J. M. Bittenbender. The Potter and Titsworth monuments are of the finest granite, highly polished, and are the finest in the cemetery, both being surmounted by statues. A unique feature of the Potter monument is the fact that on it is his famous hymn, "Shall We Gather at the River" is on the base of the column, and line of the staff being represented by a polished shaft.

The company has arranged for work with other Plainfield parties, and hope to have some more fine monuments for Hillside before the season is over.

Resolutions of Respect.

At a regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the First National Bank of Plainfield, New Jersey, held on the morning of May 26, 1891, it was resolved as follows:

WHEREAS, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from us by death our late associate, cashier, Carmon Parse, who for over twenty-five years so honestly and faithfully served this bank;

Resolved, That we have learned of the death of Mr. Parse with unfeigned sorrow, and that we hereby tender to his afflicted widow and relatives our sincere and heart felt sympathy in their great bereavement.

Resolved, That the death of Carmon Parse leaves a vacancy that this Bank has filled an energetic and faithful officer, and this community one of its most valued and trusted citizens, whose loss will be deeply regretted by all who knew him.

Resolved, That these resolutions be entered at length upon the minutes, and a copy thereof forwarded to his widow and also published in local papers.

D. F. RANDOLPH,
A. Y. NELSON,
WM. M. SULLIMAN,
Committee.

Dr. Rodney's Argument as Public Duty.

The Rev. R. M. Rodney, of this city, is one of the members of the New Jersey Clinton League who were opposed to the league's fighting only the one evil of raising greenbacks. He thought it best to oppose the one issue only, also, saying that the people in Plainfield, failing to appreciate the one-issue question, had defeated him, but had little doubt that if the Clinton League would be fully understood, it would be a success. He spoke at a meeting of the League at Bethlehem, with only the one-issue question in his object, and was listened to with marked attention, but if a league would succeed it must be on a broad basis. He was opposed to the anti-gambling element in the league, but if a league would succeed it must be on a broad basis. He was opposed to the anti-gambling element in the league, but if a league would succeed it must be on a broad basis. He was opposed to the anti-gambling element in the league, but if a league would succeed it must be on a broad basis.

Don't be afraid, it won't hurt you! Rent fixed made from Kingsford Starch. Best in the world. Ask your grocer for it.

Philadelphia Purchasing the Fire.

Through a contract made yesterday by Chief Engineer Bonsall, the Rev. Dr. A. H. Geehr, E. E. Edwards, Jr., Mr. Bonsall advised and Stephen Benham, the Board of the American Sabbath Trust Society is arranging for the establishment of a permanent Sabbath rest day, which would render it no longer necessary to collect funds yearly by special appeals.

A New Market Has Gone a Prize.

Printers' Ink, published at New York, announces in its issue of this week the award of $5 prizes to the writers of something more than 5,000 words each. Out of the 711 entries, only one advertising agent in the country carried off a prize, and that fails to New Jersey, into the hands of Stanley Day, publisher of The Advertisers' Guide, New Market.

A Few Weeks Hence Like These Three.

During a recent visit to Utica, N. Y., we were shown through the immense ladies fine shoe manufactory of Reynolds Brothers, through the courtesy of our esteemed friend Mr. Geo. E. Greenwood, the firm's competent inspector. Messrs. Reynolds Bros. employ hundreds of men and women, their work is of the highest perfect, and the material used is the very best. Their shoes would suit the most fastidious customers of our local dealers.

He Made His Call Before the Cash Arrived.

A thief broke into Mallinson's pharmacy, Saturday night, prior to Mallinson's money-drawer with Mr. Mallinson's poker, and stole about five dollars in cash. Nothing else was touched, although in addition to Central avenue money things were handy. The thief was an amateur without tools. He broke the glass in the back door and reached through and unlocked it. Mr. Mallinson bought a safe Saturday, but it had not yet arrived.

Location of the Young Men's Lyceum.

The Catholic Young Men's Lyceum on Tuesday elected the following officers:

President—Thomas Gallagher.
Vice President—John J. Keaney.
Recording Secretary—John J. Gallagher.
Financial Secretary—Michael J. Mack.
Treasurer—John J. Hibbits.

Board of Directors—Michael J. Tobin, James T. Lannigan, John J. Lynch.

Board of Trustees—Thomas Carty, John J. Keaney.

Auditing Committee—Michael J. Whalen, Thomas Walsh, John Gorman.

Librarian—F. Mcinerney.

In Somerset County's Court.

By order of the Court at Somerville, Friday morning, the name of the town of Bernardsville was changed to South Bound Brook—with two Bs.

John Walker and Francis Cook, the torturers of old man Toms, were called to the bar in answer to two indictments against them by the Grand Jury—one for assault with intent to murder, and the other for robbery. To the first one they pleaded "not guilty", and to the second "guilty". They were remanded by Judge Bartine.

His Arm Torn by a Dog's Teeth.

Tunis Hewitt, an eleven-year-old lad living at 80 East Third street, was walking along in front of Weber's butcher shop near his home, Tuesday night, when Weber's big dog sprang at him, threw him upon him, knocked him down, and sunk its teeth into the muscles of his arm. The wound, which was a severe one, was dressed by Dr. Paul. The dog has been kept chained up most of the time, but was released for a run on the street that afternoon.

Dr. Reed Better Than Ex. P. Smith.

The standing examiners of the State Pharmaceutical Association have decided that the druggists best fitted to serve on the State Board of Pharmacy are W. B. Reed, of Plainfield, and Ex. P. Smith, of Asbury, A. S. Cook, and W. Scott Taylor. From this list Governor Abbett is to select two to serve on the State Board.

An Old Time Press Man Dead Saturday.

The standing committee of the State Pharmaceutical Association have decided that the druggists best fitted to serve on the State Board of Pharmacy are W. B. Reed, of Plainfield, and Ex. P. Smith, of Asbury, A. S. Cook, and W. Scott Taylor. From this list Governor Abbett is to select two to serve on the State Board.

An Old Time Press Man Dead Saturday.

The object in planting an experienced druggist on the State Board is especially to detect, prosecute and punish parties or clerks who are illegally employed to fill pre-criptions at seaside resorts or elsewhere.

A Question of Quaker Discipline Settled.

A story comes to this city by way of Denver, that "the Quaker church" of Friends, which owns the Quaker church at Millstrook, has had a strange question referred to it for solution. The late Edward Dell, of Knoxville, near Dover, by his will charged the executors of his estate to expend the sum of $1,000, "no more and no less", for the erection of a monument in the Quaker burying ground at Millbrook, to contain the names of four persons—his father, mother, himself and another—and for a fence to inclose a piece of ground containing four graves. He also devised $500, to be placed at interest, and of the interest $25 per year is to be annually expended for the care of the burying ground and $5 for the care of his own lot. In connection with his first bequest a curious question arises.

"And thirty years ago," says the story, "the Society of Friends adopted and required the enforcement of a rule against the erection of expensive monuments in their burying grounds, such not being in accordance with their ideas of simplicity, and unless this rule has been modified in recent years it is still in force and will militate

BABY'S MISSION.

Everybody has a mission,
Mission great and mission small,
But I think the baby's mission
Is the sweetest most of all.

To all he comes a stranger
Then the land where he was not,
To gently teach the truth of loving
To the human where he is not.

How very sad and lonely, dreary,
Would be each hirh and lowly home,
If for years and years no baby
To this world would ever come.

Yet he comes and takes the homage
Loving hearts and hands do give,
And wakening him we're starting
What it is for lovers to live.

We would grow so cold and selfish
If no pattering voice were heard,
And so charmless these would grow us,
Mouth after month, year after year.

Then thank Heaven for the babies,
Even if they're not your own,
For this world is much the better
For the touch of love they've sown.

—Lottie M. Stutzman, in Western Rural.

QUEER ILLUSIONS.

Something of Interest Concerning a Peculiar Malady.

Startling and Singular Forms of Insanity Developed in People Otherwise Apparently Sound of Mind—Hard to Detect and Difficult to Cure.

Not long ago an old man, looking like a rich, retired merchant or banker, walked into the office of one of the foremost publishing houses of New York and asked to see the head of the firm. That gentleman received the caller as a man who twenty years ago had been the junior member of a great Wall street firm. The visitor announced that the senior member had been one of Lincoln's most trusted advisers in financial matters, and that he (the financial adviser) was still alive.

"You will remember that my partner, who died about six months ago, was a very prominent man during the civil war. Everyone in New York knows that Lincoln many times visited his private house. Now, I have in my possession papers and memoranda showing how very much Lincoln was indebted to him. This information is of a deeply interesting and, I might say, of a startling character. I thought, perhaps, we might make some arrangement to write a memoir. I feel certain that it would prove a great success. I have in my possession a number of letters from Lincoln administration to which I could refer for having been in a very forward state, the art of spinning white sewing thread, and we can picture to ourselves the aged she had of it before she went a fearsome journey, and watched and waited, like a spy among foreign people, in order to bring it into mean great business now, giving support to thousands, giving comfort to millions. —Harper's Bazar.

In sharp Demand.

Capitalist—I understand you have a patent medicine to sell, eh? They say here money is in sharp demand all through that section. How did you find it?

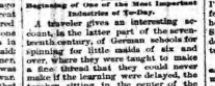
Wacleigh—Is sharp demand? Well, rather. Why, the train we came through was held up twice in one day.—Life.

"Just think of it," communed the snarling man to himself. "I died a nickel in the street and two seconds afterwards I find a saloon. Some men are born lucky."—Chicago Tribune.

HINTS ON SKATING.

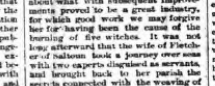
How to Learn Curve, Wave and Other Movements.

After boys have first learned to skate they seem with short, quick strokes like these:



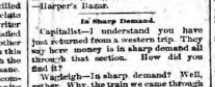
In this, as in the other diagrams, the skater is supposed to be moving from left to right. Each of the foregoing lines means a skate-mark from three to five feet long. This is very simple skating, but five out of six boys never get beyond it, and girl skaters still seldom more.

The next step is to learn to take long straight strokes on each foot, thus:

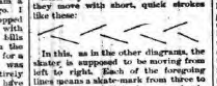


Each mark here means ten or fifteen feet in length.

Next, turn the foot inwards so as to make what is called the inner edge stroke, thus:



Next comes skating on the "outer edge," which is made outward so as to form the following set of marks:



The greater and longer the curve the more graceful your skating will be. This outer edge is the first thing to learn in all fancy skating. By practice you can get so as to carry the curve into nearly a circle, and by the next stroke form a figure 8. In learning the stroke it will greatly aid you if you turn the head and shoulders the way you wish to move. The skate will follow them.

After mastering the outer edge try to place the heel end of each stroke into the inner edge for two or three feet at least. Here is this stroke:

This gives a beautiful wave movement, very graceful and great fun. It is the climax of forward skating. But the skater should not be on the whole at the point where the outer curve changes to the inner one.

After learning these curves boys can go on to fancy skating with its "grapevine," "Mohawk," "Choctaw," "Philadelphia" and numberless other figures. It is well worth while to watch a fancy skater and learn some of the figures to give variety in skating, and it is very enjoyable to study the figures on the ice. But they are not learned by practice. One of the hardest, but most satisfactory when mastered, is the outer edge backward.

In falling when on skates always keep, if possible, the hands near the surface. In this way a soft surface no other parts of the body cushioned by muscle are likely to suffer serious injury even if the shock seems severe.

For skating wear light clothing but not pretty constantly in motion. The shoes should have firm thick soles and be tightly laced. The shoes of most boys are not so. Let the boy who reads this ask his mother to remedy it at once. Let her get a pair of men's stockings, which should be of fine wool, and wear them inside the boys' own stockings. Do not use heel straps. They bring the power painfully at one point on the ankle. Let the skate be set to distribute that pressure over the whole foot by tightly lacing the shoe.—Clarence Deming, in Christian Union.

"Father—Is not [illegible] money?
Editor—Yes, my son, on the articles that appear in the paper.
Visitor—And what does that stand for, Mr. Editor?
Editor—He puts heads on the men who want to write articles for our paper.—Sunday's Weekly.

It Stood.—A dying reporter in Pennsylvania wrote his last will on a paper collar and left a land property to the editor of a land journal. He died before the name of it, however, was known, but he had only a pair of boots to leave.—Life.

WHEN TWO COTTAGE HOMES.

Any boy and anything boy
Loves I to sing,
But when I sing the song of love
I sing the sweetest thing
Of any song I ever sing
From day to day,
For they two are concerned
In the song I play.

When two are a-single all,
Each to their own,
When two are together one,
Mistress the same,
Into a home a-single walk,
This is into a little while,
But into a home a-wedded,
Light the heart and strong,
Life wants within, and—Chicago Herald.

NATHAN'S BEAR HUNT.

How He and His Wife Went After the Turnip Heifer.

The Country Old Man Relates His Experience as a Sabbath-School Scholar Long Ago and Then Goes After the Bear Himself.

It was early in the morning, and, as usual, old man Nathan was hard at work in his garden. He had finished weeding his lettuce, and was just in the act of doing a little chopping to the onions when Long Jake stepped over the garden fence and stood in front of him.

"Howdy, old man."

"Howdy, Jake."

"Old man," said Jake, thrusting his hands down deep in his pockets and dropping down on the bean arbor, "how'd you like to been out of town this week?"

"Why, I've been right here, Jake. I reckon I knocked off for to-day—thought I'd like a little rest, you know; every fellow does mostly. Figure you like a holiday, too, an' we'll go for a hunt. Simmins says b'ar tracks was seen down by the Flat. Preps we might tumble crost a b'ar."

"Mebby so, Jake," replied Nathan, as he took the quid of tobacco from his mouth, stuck it on his hoe-handle and seatedh imself on a head of cabbage—"mebby so; but more an likely I'll b'ar'd tumble 'cross no bears. Look here, man, did you ever kill a b'ar?"

"No, sir."

"Did you ever see one?"

"No, 'cept in circuses," answered Jake, slowly.

"Then you better not tackle b'ars. You don't know nothin 'bout 'em. There's a mighty big difference 'twixt a show b'ar an' one in the woods as there is 'twixt me an' a mule. There is be-'s 'tween me an' a mule. There is because a mule can't, has to be drawed up, you know, to fit the cage. If they won't, why no mule is, an' you can't hold two of 'em. Great day in the mornin' man, if you want to see what a outlandish thing a b'ar is, you come him in the woods; then he's in his element, an' sure's my name's Nathan you'll thank he was an elephant."

"Let me tell you something 'bout these creeters, and when I get through you'll admit I'm right as nuthin'. You'll not say a word agin it. When we was livin' in Miss'sippi I gardened for a livin', jest as I do now, an' there was a mean rous' who made as fine turnups as I did. I remember that in portic'lar. I had one bed 'bout eighty foot square, chock full of milky-white turnups pretty nigh as big as your head. Well, that bed was the pride of my heart. They was a sight! At first one was 'bough to last me all day, an' after while we jest took half of one an' sent other half to Miss Jones, our neighbor, who was an old maid an' not very good at raisin' things.

"Well, one day Cinda came in puffin' an' blowin' like some old steam engine. She drap down in a chair, an' rollin' her eyes 'bout like somethin' was mighty wrong. She said: 'Lord, Nathan, every last turnup's gone. There ain't a leaf left of none on 'em. I'm tired of that kind of business. Last week that old po' calf of Miss Hannons he'd eat a picket a picket a day, so's he po'd I could catch him. Bet 'taint nothin' but him. Git your gun, Nathan, an' I'll show the beast. We'll just go down to that old brier patch, where that beast stays, an' fix him so he won't pester our garden no more!'

"I was mad as a wildcat. So, while Cinda was puttin' on her sun-bonnet an' lookin' for the ammunition, I got my gun. When both of us was ready we started down the road that led to that brier patch, an' I tell you right now that a thought we was out for a week's camp in a woods filled with wolves, for that's how far I had to hunt down. It was right smart of a walk, so long 'fore we got there Cinda got so tired that she had to take a leetle nap.

"We was 'bout an hour gettin' there, an' when we did we didn't see nothin' nor heard nothin' 'cept a lot of birds a-singin' an' shakin' for all she was worth. There was an awful crackin', an' twixt a thought I heard a curse terrible. Presently Cinda said: 'I see him, the ugly, hateful thing. He don't look like the same beast that was eatin' my turnups. He's gettin' to him, sure. He's got life in him, too, standin' up there on his hind legs an' a-pullin' an' a-shakin' for all he's worth. Shoot him with the broom afterward.' 'All right,' said I, 'I'll do about.'

"Cinda began, and said 'Suke, Suke,' till I was sick of hearin' her, an' then she began to cuss. I was so mad 'cause there wasn't nothin' for me to shoot. Cinda kept on cussin' an' I kept on thinkin' I needn't be uneasy; he's in that; he has to stay out of sight for a while, for he's afeard of him. He isn't only po', but shar ain't much hair in him, so he's mighty ashamed of his self. There's a place to go in that thickset somewhere; find it first, then you'll be all right. Have your gun ready, for we was 'bout all over again. Cinda says: 'Never mind, old man; I'll fix him. You git on my back, an' I'll pull the beast down, an' when I call him you shoot—I can give him a whack with the broom afterward.' 'All right,' said I, 'I'll do about.'

"Cinda began, and said 'Suke, Suke,' till I was sick of hearin' her, an' then she began to cuss. I was so mad 'cause there wasn't nothin' for me to shoot. Cinda kept on cussin' an' I kept on thinkin' I needn't be uneasy; he's in that; he has to stay out of sight for a while, for he's afeard of him. He isn't only po', but shar ain't much hair in him, so he's mighty ashamed of his self. There's a place to go in that thickset somewhere; find it first, then you'll be all right. Have your gun ready, for we was 'bout all over again. Cinda says: 'Never mind, old man; I'll fix him. You git on my back, an' I'll pull the beast down, an' when I call him you shoot—I can give him a whack with the broom afterward.' 'All right,' said I, 'I'll do about.'

"Well, one day Cinda came in puffin' an' blowin' like some old steam engine. She drap down in a chair, an' rollin' her eyes 'bout like somethin' was mighty wrong. She said: 'Lord, Nathan, every last turnup's gone. There ain't a leaf left of none on 'em. I'm tired of that kind of business. Last week that old po' calf of Miss Hannons he'd eat a picket a picket a day, so's he po'd I could catch him. Bet 'taint nothin' but him. Git your gun, Nathan, an' I'll show the beast. We'll just go down to that old brier patch, where that beast stays, an' fix him so he won't pester our garden no more!'

"I was mad as a wildcat. So, while Cinda was puttin' on her sun-bonnet an' lookin' for the ammunition, I got my gun. When both of us was ready we started down the road that led to that brier patch, an' I tell you right now that a thought we was out for a week's camp in a woods filled with wolves, for that's how far I had to hunt down. It was right smart of a walk, so long 'fore we got there Cinda got so tired that she had to take a leetle nap.

"We was 'bout an hour gettin' there, an' when we did we didn't see nothin' nor heard nothin' 'cept a lot of birds a-singin' an' shakin' for all she was worth. There was an awful crackin', an' twixt a thought I heard a curse terrible. Presently Cinda said: 'I see him, the ugly, hateful thing. He don't look like the same beast that was eatin' my turnups. He's gettin' to him, sure. He's got life in him, too, standin' up there on his hind legs an' a-pullin' an' a-shakin' for all he's

The Constitutionalist,
A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.
W. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE, Editors and Proprietors.
AT PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY.
TERMS—TWO DOLLARS A YEAR.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXIV. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, JUNE 11, 1891. No. 24.

"Support the Constitution, which is the consent of the Union, and all the limitations as to its authorities."—Madison.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

JACKSON & CORNELISON,
Counsellors-at-Law,
Dunellen Building, Plainfield, Somerset County, New Jersey.
Augustus Jackson, Clinton Cornelison.

W. T. SUDELL,
Counselor-at-Law,
Master and Examiner in Chancery, Supreme Court Commissioner.
Cor. PARK AND NORTH AVES. 4-20-78m

GEORGE W. DAY,
General Auctioneer,
Sales of Personal Property solicited. P. O. Box 134, Dunellen, N. J., or address in care of Constitutionalist Office, Plainfield, N. J.

DR. CHARLES S. THURSH,
Dentist,
30 West Front street. A new local anesthetic applied to the gums renders work without pain. Gold filling a specialty.—[adv.]

H. HAND,
Auctioneer,
P. O. Address, South Side P. O., Somerset County, N. J. Orders left at T. J. Cheney's second-hand store, 46 West Front street, Plainfield, N. J., will receive prompt attention.—[adv.]

OSCAR C. TEALE,
Architect,
247 Broadway, New York city, Rooms 31 and 32. [Elsewhere] and Traders' Bank Building,] Residence, Plainfield, N. J.—[adv.]

J. H. PRESTER,
Veterinary Surgeon,
Office in A. M. Seguine's livery stables, corner Main and Somerset streets, Plainfield, N. J. Calls left at night could promptly attended. Telephone No. 15. Unavailable. Dr. Cleaned of all disease and animals. Residence, 72 East Front st.—[adv.]

BUSINESS CARDS.

P. P. VanArsdale,
PIANO TUNER.
Is strictly up with thorough order. Terms reasonable. Please call or address by mail, or leave by postal, P. O. Box 150 or call at Wilson's Music Store, No. 4 Park avenue will receive prompt attention. Residence, 91 East 2d street, corner Second street.—10-1891

JOHN CHANDLER,
JARZENTER AND BUILDER,
PLAINFIELD, N.J.
Residence and Shop No. 36 East 3d St.
Jobbing promptly attended to. 4-9-89

T. J. GILLIES,
Auctioneer & Real Estate Agent.
SALESROOM—Madison Avenue, cor. Front, Plainfield, N.J.
Commissioner to consignment.

TO THE PUBLIC!

We wish to inform our customers and the public generally that we have on hand the best quality of

LEHIGH COAL,
Fresh from the Mines.

It is under cover and well protected from the weather. We are prepared to deliver it well screened and in good order promptly. We are also prepared to furnish all kinds of Seasoned Lumber and Masons' Materials at short notice.

A. D. COOK & BRO.
1-30-91

J. Hervey Doane,
6 PARK AVENUE,
(Formerly Clerk's)
Watches,
Clocks
And Jewelry.
Repairing neatly and promptly done.
FOR
BEAUTIFUL DESIGNS
In Furniture
GO TO
23, 25 and 27 PARK AVE.
Garret Q. Packer,

Steam Marble
Granite Works.
AND
Monuments & Headstones,
Fencing for Cemetery Plots.
Large assortment of State Mantels.
Large variety of Granite Monuments
All work executed in the most skillful manner at reasonable prices. Estimates given cheerfully. J. MANNING.
Factory cor. Front St. and Park Ave., Plainfield, N. J.
Monuments Selected in Greenwood Cemetery, N. Y.

Alex. Willett,
DEALER IN
BOOTS & SHOES,
20 PARK AVENUE.
A full assortment of Ladies' goods direct from manufactory for Spring Trade.

Geo. A. Moore,
(Successor to Jeremy Moore Estate)
Is now the sole proprietor of the old established and well-known
NO. 14 NORTH AVENUE,
Where he will continue the business of Plumbing, Steam and Gas Fitting, Tinning, Roofing, and all kinds of Jobbing. Orders left at the store will receive prompt attention. Residence, 14 North avenue.

HOTELS AND SALOONS.

FORCE'S HOTEL,
NORTH AVENUE, (Near R. R. Station.)
JAS. H. FORCE, Prop'r.
A FIRST-CLASS FAMILY HOTEL. Steam Heat. First-class Plumbing.
Transient guests at reasonable rates. 10-21-tf

SOMERSET HOTEL,
Corner Somerset and Emily Streets,
NORTH PLAINFIELD.
RICHARD A. SOYCE, Prop'r.
Permanent and transient board at fair rates. First-class stables and sheds attached.
Meals at all reasonable hours

Dime Savings Institution
OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest at the rate of three (3) per cent. per annum payable semi-annually.
JOHN W. MURRAY, President.
WILLIAM WHITE, Vice "
NATHAN HARPER, "
ELIAS R. POPE, Treasurer. 8-8-87

Jas. M. Dunn,
Dealer in
GROCERIES, PROVISIONS,
Vegetables, Fruits, etc.
No. 36 Park Ave.
OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.
THORBURN & CO'S GARDEN SEEDS, BEST IN THE WORLD.
ALL GOODS DELIVERED PROMPTLY FREE.

ESTABLISHED 1836.
C.E. & J.W. BROWN,
(Successors to C. F. & C. E. Brown & Co.)
Importers, Wholesale and Retail Dealers In
WALL PAPER.
21 Canal Street,
NEW YORK.
English, Tiles, Anaglypta, Hand, Leather Relief Flock Papers, &c. Borings for Walls.
Manufacturers of Window Shades. 2-15-87

LIVERY.

A. M. SEGUINE
(Successor to John W. Laing.)
Laing's Hotel Stables

Front street, opposite Madison avenue.
Livery for Weddings, Parties and Private Use. Light carriage of all descriptions for pleasure.

RIDING OR LIVERY.
Useful, safe drivers for shopping calls or pleasure drives. Reasonable rates. Horses boarded by the day, week or month.—monthly
TELEPHONE CALL, NO. 56.

Livery Stables!
Mr. D. S. ROBERTS
Has Removed to His New Building on
NORTH AVENUE,
Adjoining Force's Hotel. Mr. Roberts will always be found ready and able to answer demands for a liberal turn-out in the shortest notice, at reasonable rates. Thankful for past favors, he solicits a continuance of the same.

Accommodation Express.
PETER SICKERT, Proprietor
Office—Tomerlosch's Music store, Park Avenue
The Accommodation Express will attend to the general carrying trade of the city, delivering goods of Baggage to and from depots, or any place to place. Moving of Furniture, Pianos etc., a specialty. Personal attention given to orders left at the above-named places or through Telephone No. 6 or Orders

INSURANCE.

FIRE INSURANCE
The following are among the leading companies represented by the undersigned:
Star and Merchants
Fire Insurance Co's of the City of New York,
Which for promptness in paying losses is equally unsurpassed. Insurance effected on all kinds of risks at the lowest rates consistent with reliable indemnity.
NATHAN HARPER
Agent.

WILLIAM A. WOODRUFF,
FIRE AND LIFE
INSURANCE AGENT,
Office cor. Front St. and Park Ave.,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Real Estate for Sale & Exchange.
MONEY TO LOAN
On Approved Security.

EDUCATIONAL.

Miss SCRIBNER
AND
Miss NEWTON'S
SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
AND KINDERGARTEN,
27 LaGrande Avenue.
CORNER OF WASHINGTON STREET.
Will reopen WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 17, 1890.
The regular course will include Modelling, Drawing and Cooking. 9-11-tf

PAINTERS & PAINTERS' SUPPLIES.

Paints, Varnishes, Glass.
WINDOW SHADES AND FIXTURES.
WALL PAPERS!
PAPER HANGING A SPECIALTY.
A. SWALM,
No. 6 North Avenue, Plainfield.
6-25-87

J. D. WOOLSTON. C. P. BUCKLE
Woolston & Buckle,
PAINTERS.
Wall Papers,
PAINTER'S SUPPLIES. 26 NORTH AVENUE
6-25-87

MISCELLANEOUS.

LEWIS B. CODDINGTON,
(Successor to T. J. Carey.)
Furniture and Freight Express!
OFFICE—24 W. FRONT ST.
Large Covered Vans or Trucks. Goods delivered promptly to any part of the U. S. Satisfaction guaranteed. Charges reasonable. P. O. Box 828. Telephone No. 28. Piano Moving a specialty. 11-87

Fresh Garden Seeds
AND FERTILIZERS,
Farm and Garden Implements,
Lawn Mowers Refrigerators,
Ice Cream Freezers,
Gasoline Stoves, Hardware, Tools, etc.
J. J. HEIDELOFF,
No. 13 SOMERSET ST. 8-15-87

CANOPIES
For Weddings, Parties, Etc.,
TO HIRE. CHARGES REASONABLE
Hugo Weigman,
20 EAST FRONT AND 22 EAST SECOND STS.

SPEER'S
GRAPE WINES,
ALSO
UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.
Used in the principal churches for communion. Excellent for Invalids, weakly persons and the aged.

Speer's Port Grape Wine,
FOUR YEARS OLD.
THIS Celebrated Wine is the pure juice of the Long Island Port Uporto Grape, raised in Speer's vineyard and left long enough to fully ripen and become partly raisined before gathering. Its Tonic and Strengthening Properties are unsurpassed. Recommended by all physicians who have used it in their families. Speer's wine has been used by the principal Hospitals and Boards of Health who have examined it. The youngest child and the weakest invalid can use it to advantage. It is particularly beneficial to the aged and debilitated and suited to the various ailments that effect old age.
It is in every respect A WINE TO BE RELIED ON.
Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice
Is the juice of the Uporto Grape, preserved in its natural fresh, sweet state as it runs from the grape by combination and sterilizing, thereby destroying the active principle of fermentation. It is perfectly pure, free from spirits, and will keep in any climate.
Speer's (Socialtic) Claret
Is held in high estimation for its richness as a pure Table Wine, and is highly recommended for dinner use.
Speer's P. J. Sherry
Is a Wine of superior character, and possesses the rich qualities of the grape from which it is made.
Speer's P. J. Brandy
IS A PURE distillation of the grape, and stands unrivaled in its country for medical purposes.
It has a peculiar flavor, similar to that of the grapes from which it is distilled.
See that the signature of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is over the cork of each bottle.
SOLD BY DRUGGISTS WHO KEEP FINE WINES.
ALFRED SPEER 6-18-7

TOBACCO, SEGARS, &c.

H. EGGERDING,
No. 17 Park Avenue,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Manufacturer of Tobacco and Segars.
C. O. D. CIGAR.
The best Seconds sold to the Trade, and made on the premises from the finest Havana Leaf.
CLEAR HAVANA SEGARS A SPECIALTY.
All representations (pre-Christmas Bunches) Fancies and Domestic Cigars. Cigarettes and Smokers Articles always in Stock.
Smokers Articles in Great Variety.
10-87

C. M. FINE,
Dealer in HAVANA & DOMESTIC
SEGARS!
No. 8 PARK AVE. (Next door to First National Bank)
PLAINFIELD, N.J.
Tobacco and Smoker's materials, of every description.
The celebrated "Old Judge" chewing tobacco, without tobacco or narcotic, and only 5 cents a plug. 4-2-tf

A. WOLFF,
Manufacturer of
CIGARS,
And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles. Store has been moved from No. 9, Front street, to 41 West Front street, where I will be pleased to receive the patronage of my friends and the public generally. 4-2-tf

CARNEY BROS., Ag'ts,
11 SOMERSET ST.
TINNERS,
PLUMBERS,
GAS FITTERS,
PARLOR STOVES,
COOK STOVES,
HEATERS.
Grates and Bricks for all kinds of Stove s can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your Tinware mending to us. The best Tinners, the best Plumbers, and the best Gas-Fitters in the section. We use and sell the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction.
Keys of All Kinds are Made Here.
Tinware Made to Order.
Ranges, Brick and
SANITARY PLUMBING.

WHATEVER form of printed matter you require we can be of service to you; whether it be

Letter Headings,
Circulars,
Programmes, Menus,
Addresses,
Memorials,
By-Laws of Societies,
Prospectuses and Reports of Financial Associations, or any other matter for Public or Private Circulation.
Everything,

WEEKLY CONSTITUTIONALIST,
DAILY PRESS
(Chautauqua Building)
PLAINFIELD, N. J.

SANITARY PLUMBING,
Brick and Portable Furnaces,
GAS FITTING,
TIN ROOFING,
Etc. Etc.
Will be pleased to do any of the above work promptly, thoroughly and workmanlike.
Kettle constantly engaged with the Plumbing, Gas Fitting and Tinning trade of New York City. Have had 20 years experience in the business. Will guarantee satisfaction in all cases. Call and be convinced.
D. W. LITTELL,
No. 5 NORTH AVE. NORTH PLAINFIELD, N. J.

BED-TIME FANCIES.

Out from the corners and over the floor
Come flocking and flocking the shadows in;
Out from the corners and over the floor
Through the valley of Dreams they stumbled and fell.

I have four black horses that flight has sent,
I call the name of my coursers Night;
And I ride away in the dusk to the land of Nod,
As I canter down to its sombre Bay.

Midnight we are off. The border of sleep
Is the valley of Dreams we must ride through.
With naked hoofs our coursers go,
Through the valley of Dreams they must ride.

The verdant plain is the Valley of Dreams,
Where all the wayward fancies go;
And the leaves grow green and the grass is fair
I hear pinions on over and over us fly.

The dream fancies recite their secrets out,
The Valley of Dreams is the land of Nod
And the white dreams shine from the nether sky
Along at the dim horizon line.

Ah! the sounds of the Valley are growing faint,
Its sights are fading on either hand;
I cross the border still and still,
And I enter the land of Nod.

RACING FOR A BRIDE.

Three Lively Railroad Races for a Farmer's Daughter.

Along the line of the Santee railroad no trainmen were better known than Billy Perkins and Jack Smith, the only passengers conductors on the road it is necessary to employ. Every man and boy along the route watched for the flashing of Billy's red lamp as the last passed east in the morning each station lounger was ready to shout "Hello, Billy," while they never missed greeting Jack in the same manner an hour or two later, when he passed in the opposite direction. In the evening when the trains resumed the gayest ticket-punchers again received the same cordial handshaking. Even the passengers were apparently all acquainted with the conductors, for as they went their rounds each traveler would have some remark to make or some sly inquiry about Bob Yocum's Sallie, which would bring color to the cheeks of the officials. To a Northern stranger it sounded ludicrous to hear the uniformed youths (neither was more than twenty-three) addressed as Captain Billy or Captain Jack, even though a native of the sandy Southern habit of adding that title to countless names.

The total length of the Santee railroad was only forty miles, but the natives regarded the conductors with that awe and admiration which country folk always feel for railroad men. Did not Billy run every day to Berkshire, the junction of the main line, and know all the prominent officials of the great Jerusalem route of which the Santee road was a branch?

No telegraph line ran along the branch, and the trains were on in the good old way upon the single track; that is, sidings were placed a few miles apart, and when a train scheduled to pass another at a given point did not find the other at the switch it simply waited until the belated train did arrive, or after an hour or two started on its journey as a small's pace, a flagman running in front.

In the morning the trains passed at a lonely siding in the woods, but in the afternoon the meeting point was directly in front of Bob Yocum's plantation, and as the farm-house, with its shady porch, stood near the railroad, the conductors were always glad to be delayed to the cool garden to wait for the time until the opposing train arrived. Sometimes one train reached the point first, sometimes the other would be in ahead. The engineers had the signals of each other well known, very often the farm would be reached half an hour ahead of time. The schedule was slow even for the old-style engines, and unless there was something unusual to detain them or the wood was very wet the crews would generally manage to spend about twenty minutes at Yocum's, tranquilly smoking or romping with Sallie, the planter's daughter. Now it was this same Sallie who caused so much disturbance in the breasts of Billy and Jack. She was a very great favorite figure by her sight, and she was the loadstone which drew them daily to the garden. Luckily for them each had as engineer as wild and reckless as the most ardent lover could desire, and when the conductors left the man at the lever to "let her go," he did let her go until some fabulous rate of speed protested at being bumped into jelly.

Only a reckless man would dare to ride one of the rattle-trap old engines over the uneven road at the rate of forty miles an hour, which speed was occasionally reached in sudden bursts. Forty miles an hour over old-style "T" rail, on rotten ties fire feet apart and joined with fish-plates is equal to sixty miles an hour on a smooth road, so far as sensation goes. To the observer the Santee railroad was hardly visible, like a great growing worm between the rails, but where the track could be seen it seemed to be laid upon the ground without any pretense of truly grading. Up hill, down hill, tilting to the right, tilting to the left, it pursued its devious way, and the shaking and creaking of trains and track were enough to alarm any one not accustomed to traveling to ripple in his seat. The engines burned wood, and when running at night resembled volcanoes in active eruption, and the reader has ever traveled behind one of these fiery machines he will remember how the sparks and pieces of live wood when the engine got into good working order. He will also have a very vivid recollection of the long and frequent stoppages when all hands heaved and shoved into the tender until it could hold no more. These were the characteristics of the line over which Billy and Jack made daily trips. Eight round wood stations on each side of Yocum's, and the trains in the afternoon were required to put forty of fuel before reaching the passing siding.

The conductors pressed their suit with the fair Sallie for many a day, but while each felt that the other had no advantage neither could make any headway. At last, the two friends decided to put matters to a test, and together they sought Bob Yocum, and explaining their desires asked him to let them Sallie choose which, if either, should be the favored suitor. Sallie with blushing cheeks gave her consent to the plan, though she felt she could be happy with either. With that keen instinct for gauging which way the wind blew that her father at once suggested that they settle the question by raising their train for the next three trips, the one getting to the switch twice ahead of the other to be the winner. The proposition was eagerly accepted by the rivals, and Sallie consented to by Sallie. All agreed upon secrecy, except that the conductors should make confidants of their engineers.

Anxiously the father and daughter watched from a point of view the next afternoon. Fully twenty minutes before schedule time the familiar rumbling of the train of Billy Perkins came to a standstill just as Jack's train came around the curve. Billy was the victor, and Sallie blushed and smiled as Jack's train started on its way.

The following day would decide it, and the morrow found the rivals again at the trysting-place, the result to be known at four o'clock, however, a steady rain set in, which, while it did not prevent the passage of the trains, made the footing of the engineers very slippery, and the chances of collision. The Railroad Record appears approvingly of the action of the conductors in refusing to consider it humane to the usual Sabbath rest to the engineers.

BED-TIME FANCIES.

Out from the corners and over the floor
Come flocking and flocking the shadows heads;
Out from the corners and over the floor
Through the Valley of Dreams they stumbled and fell.

I have four black horses that flight has sent,
I call the name of my coursers Night;
And I ride away in the dusk to the land of Nod,
As I canter down to its sombre Bay.

Midnight we are off. The border of sleep
Is the valley of Dreams we must ride through.
With naked hoofs our coursers go,
Through the valley of Dreams they must ride.

The verdant plain is the Valley of Dreams,
Where all the wayward fancies go;
And the leaves grow green and the grass is fair
I hear pinions on over and over us fly.

The dream fancies recite their secrets out,
The Valley of Dreams is the land of Nod
And the white dreams shine from the nether sky
Along at the dim horizon line.

Ah! the sounds of the Valley are growing faint,
Its sights are fading on either hand;
I cross the border still and still,
And I enter the land of nod.

RACING FOR A BRIDE.

Three Lively Railroad Races for a Farmer's Daughter.

Along the line of the Santee railroad no trainmen were better known than Billy Perkins and Jack Smith, the only passengers conductors on the road it is necessary to employ. Every man and boy along the route watched for the flashing of Billy's red lamp as the last passed east in the morning each station lounger was ready to shout "Hello, Billy," while they never missed greeting Jack in the same manner an hour or two later, when he passed in the opposite direction. In the evening when the trains resumed the gayest ticket-punchers again received the same cordial handshaking. Even the passengers were apparently all acquainted with the conductors, for as they went their rounds each traveler would have some remark to make or some sly inquiry about Bob Yocum's Sallie, which would bring color to the cheeks of the officials. To a Northern stranger it sounded ludicrous to hear the uniformed youths (neither was more than twenty-three) addressed as Captain Billy or Captain Jack, even though a native of the sandy Southern habit of adding that title to countless names.

The total length of the Santee railroad was only forty miles, but the natives regarded the conductors with that awe and admiration which country folk always feel for railroad men. Did not Billy run every day to Berkshire, the junction of the main line, and know all the prominent officials of the great Jerusalem route of which the Santee road was a branch?

No telegraph line ran along the branch, and the trains were on in the good old way upon the single track; that is, sidings were placed a few miles apart, and when a train scheduled to pass another at a given point did not find the other at the switch it simply waited until the belated train did arrive, or after an hour or two started on its journey as a small's pace, a flagman running in front.

In the morning the trains passed at a lonely siding in the woods, but in the afternoon the meeting point was directly in front of Bob Yocum's plantation, and as the farm-house, with its shady porch, stood near the railroad, the conductors were always glad to be delayed to the cool garden to wait for the time until the opposing train arrived. Sometimes one train reached the point first, sometimes the other would be in ahead. The engineers had the signals of each other well known, very often the farm would be reached half an hour ahead of time. The schedule was slow even for the old-style engines, and unless there was something unusual to detain them or the wood was very wet the crews would generally manage to spend about twenty minutes at Yocum's, tranquilly smoking or romping with Sallie, the planter's daughter. Now it was this same Sallie who caused so much disturbance in the breasts of Billy and Jack. She was a very great favorite figure by her sight, and she was the loadstone which drew them daily to the garden. Luckily for them each had as engineer as wild and reckless as the most ardent lover could desire, and when the conductors left the man at the lever to "let her go," he did let her go until some fabulous rate of speed protested at being bumped into jelly.

Only a reckless man would dare to ride one of the rattle-trap old engines over the uneven road at the rate of forty miles an hour, which speed was occasionally reached in sudden bursts. Forty miles an hour over old-style "T" rail, on rotten ties five feet apart and joined with fish-plates is equal to sixty miles an hour on a smooth road, so far as sensation goes. To the observer the Santee railroad was hardly visible, like a great growing worm between the rails, but where the track could be seen it seemed to be laid upon the ground without any pretense of truly grading. Up hill, down hill, tilting to the right, tilting to the left, it pursued its devious way, and the shaking and creaking of trains and track were enough to alarm any one not accustomed to traveling to ripple in his seat. The engines burned wood, and when running at night resembled volcanoes in active eruption, and the reader has ever traveled behind one of these fiery machines he will remember how the sparks and pieces of live wood when the engine got into good working order. He will also have a very vivid recollection of the long and frequent stoppages when all hands heaved and shoved into the tender until it could hold no more. These were the characteristics of the line over which Billy and Jack made daily trips. Eight round wood stations on each side of Yocum's, and the trains in the afternoon were required to put forty of fuel before reaching the passing siding.

The conductors pressed their suit with the fair Sallie for many a day, but while each felt that the other had no advantage neither could make any headway. At last, the two friends decided to put matters to a test, and together they sought Bob Yocum, and explaining their desires asked him to let them Sallie choose which, if either, should be the favored suitor. Sallie with blushing cheeks gave her consent to the plan, though she felt she could be happy with either. With that keen instinct for gauging which way the wind blew that her father at once suggested that they settle the question by raising their trains for the next three trips, the one getting to the switch twice ahead of the other to be the winner. The proposition was eagerly accepted by the rivals, and Sallie consented to by Sallie. All agreed upon secrecy, except that the conductors should make confidants of their engineers.

Anxiously the father and daughter watched from a point of view the next afternoon. Fully twenty minutes before schedule time the familiar rumbling of the train of Billy Perkins came to a standstill just as Jack's train came around the curve. Billy was the victor, and Sallie blushed and smiled as Jack's train started on its way.

The following day would decide it, and the morrow found the rivals again at the trysting-place, the result to be known at four o'clock, however, a steady rain set in, which, while it did not prevent the passage of the trains, made the footing of the engineers very slippery, and the chances of collision. The Railroad Record appears approvingly of the action of the conductors in refusing to consider it humane to the usual Sabbath rest to the engineers.

and his countenance cleared in an instant. When he got to the end of the run he took the engineer aside and explained something. Which it seemed a broad grin to overspread the features of that worthy. Billy was next seen in a provision store, and ere the train departed an odd-looking barrel marked "Sugar Cured" was put aboard the engine. His train made glorious time that afternoon, and when the passengers asked how the engineer managed to keep up steam Billy smiled, but said nothing. He felt no forebodings of defeat now. Only a few more miles, a dozen miles down the road, and right around the curve was Yocum's.

"Hooray, Billy said to himself. "Here he did not finish. From the car platform he saw something that made him rub his eyes in astonishment. There in Jack's train lying there so quietly on the siding, or had his senses deserted him? A wild stretch of triumph filled the waiting engine made him realize it was indeed true. His rival had won the third heat.

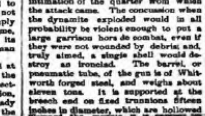
Jack, taking warning from his defeat the first day, had wisely bargained with the conductor of the train for a special supply of dry pine-knots, and these with supplementary fuel on the rainy day with a barrel of pine tar.

Billy danced at the wedding, but the sight of a bar-room filled him with grief ever since.—Chicago Journal.

NEW DYNAMITE GUN.

The Most Powerful Instrument of Destruction Yet Invented.

The Graydon dynamite gun is a wonderful engine of warfare. The gun will project 500 pounds of dynamite for a distance of three miles. The explosive contents are made up for greater safety in tiny waxen pellets and lodged in a shell. The gun is a tube which is secured by a tapering telescopic tail, and the gun is to be discharged by the expansion of compressed air at a pressure of 5,000 pounds per square inch, the impulse of which is a safer propelling agent than that of the ignition of any kind of power, because it does not operate so suddenly as to cause a danger of the premature explosion of the missile. "The use of such a terrible weapon as high explosive dynamite shall soon be the subject of much fearsome speculation," says Mr.



THE GRAYDON DYNAMITE GUN.

Graydon, who is a lieutenant in the United States navy. "The noise of the discharge being small, the projectile might be dropped into a fort or on to a ship without giving the bedged any intimation of the approach of a shell until the attack came. The concussion when the projectile exploded would be all probability be violent enough to put a large garrison hors de combat, even if they were not killed by debris and, truly aimed, a single shell would destroy an ironclad. The barrel, or pneumatic tube, of the gun is of the best worth forged steel, and weighs about eleven tons. It is supported at the breech and on fixed trunnions fifteen inches in diameter, which are hollowed to form the main air reservoirs. A movable trunnion engaged with two forged-steel arms or levers. These levers have sliding bronze and are actuated by a hydraulic plunger for the purpose of elevating or depressing the gun. The gun is closed by means of a steel screw-block with interrupted screw threads, on the navy system of breech-loading rifles.

The peculiar feature of this particular Graydon gun is that it can be loaded at any degree of elevation within its working range.

WOVEN WIRE ROPES.

A New Form of Metallic Cable for the Transmission of Power.

In view of the extensive use of rope in the form of leather belting for the transmission of power, considerable interest attaches to a new rope which has been introduced during the past year, and which is already coming into favor. The illustration shows the structure of a one-inch rope, which is claimed to be equal to an 8-inch hemp rope, and which is behind belt in its powerful transmitting capacity.

A CURIOSITY IN LINKS.

The rope is hollow, being nothing more than a spiral wound wire through and through with small wire. Actual tests of a cable of this character, weighing ten ounces to the foot and made of ordinary Bessemer wire, showed that it possessed a tensile strength of 6,000 pounds.

A Wonderful Nautic Bridge.

Dixie says that a rustic bridge has been completed at Beech Haven, Ga., which consists of different kinds of woods and vines, grown on the 50 acres of Beech Haven park. The following is a list of the woods and vines: Short leaf pine, long leaf pine, post oak, white oak, Spanish oak, water oak, red oak, black gum, sweet gum, black gum, red bay, black haw, red bud, prickly ash, chinquepin, wild plum, persimmon, wild cherry, red elm, sassafras, wahoo, soman, red elm, pig hickory, scalybark hickory, bois d'arc sugar tree, willow, beech, black alder, crab apple, wild mulberry, wild cherry, dogwood, sourwood, winter huckleberry, black huckleberry, blue huckleberry, cottonwood, buckeye, cypress, laurel beech, holly, ash, ironwood, birch, sage bush, sumach, grape vine, brier, smilax, evergreen, spruce, Vines—Grape, muscadine, bell flower, rattan, bamboo.

The Simplest Method of Resuscitating Persons Overcome by Drowning.

In the Transactions of the Medico-Chirurgical society of London, Dr. Charles gives the following excellent advice: After the patient has been placed for a moment with the head downward, to allow the escape of water from the mouth and throat, he is turned on the side and kept on the side. Immediately, except when (about fifteen times a minute) the body is rolled for a few seconds on the face again, for keeping the same side always up, the lung on that side becomes clear. Turning the body on the other side up is dangerous, because thereby the partly cleared lung is suddenly flooded with fresh from the lung which was cleared. It is better to clear one lung entirely than to have both half cleared. Each time the body is turned upon the face a little more froth and water escapes from the mouth and nostrils. If one lung is cleared it will help to escape the inflammation which results from the inspiration of water. When the upper lung is cleared in this way it is useful to raise the upper arm about the head to the fullest extent, which draws the ends of the ribs upward, since the enlargement of the upper cavity of the chest thus obtained favors the entrance of air into the lung in a most important manner. The proper way to restore breathing is by pressure upon the chest, alternately increasing the escape of water and air, and in a good instance on the blood toward the lungs. The continual use of the pocket-handkerchief is as essential to the proper performance of this operation as the use of the lancet in bleeding, since the secretions of the throat and mouth would otherwise choke up the windpipe.

STORE AND DWELLING.

Plans for a Building That is as Useful as It Is Handsome.

The cost of this store and flat building, built of brick with stone fronts, will be $5,000, with brick front $4,000, or it can be built of frame on cedar posts for $3,000.

It is of a good design and is adapted for a 33 foot lot. The store room is 22x36 feet with rear room 11x22 feet. The flat contains 8 rooms as follows:

Parlor 11x14 with a fireplace and bay window. Sitting-room 11x14 feet with a fireplace. Dining-room 12x13 feet. Kitchen 11x13. Front chamber off parlor 12x10 feet. Chamber off sitting-room, 10x10. Chamber off rear hall 12x11 feet, and bedroom off kitchen 9x10 feet. Pantry 3x8 feet, and front hall 6x16 feet. The front stairs and the floors in kitchens, pantry, dining-room, front and rear halls will be of maple. The front doors in store and in vestibule to be of 1¼ paneled red oak. The floor in vestibule to be of tile. The finish on first and second floors to be of pine.

The building to be piped for gas. The first floor to be 12 feet in clear and the second floor 9 feet 6 inches. If built of brick, the basement walls to be 18 inches, first story walls 13 inches, second-story walls 9 inches, if built of wood, outside studding 2x4 inches, 16 inches on centers, attic 12x13 inches.

FIRST FLOOR PLAN.

First floor joist 2x12, 16 inches on centers, second floor joist 2x10, 16 inches on centers. Inside studding 2x4, 16 inches on centers.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

The front bay can be built of copper, galvanized iron, wood or stone. The roof to be of gravel "composition" with a fall of ¾ of an inch to 1 foot.

ADDISON A. W. KINTE.

The Draft of Chimneys.

The form of a roof often has much to do with the draft of a chimney. The wind in both in its powerful transmitting capacity. The rope is hollow, being nothing more than a spiral wound wire through and through with small wire. Actual tests of a cable of this character, weighing ten ounces to the foot and made of ordinary Bessemer wire, showed that it possessed a tensile strength of 6,000 pounds.

A Wonderful Nautic Bridge.

Dixie says that a rustic bridge has been completed at Beech Haven, Ga., which consists of different kinds of woods and vines, grown on the 50 acres of Beech Haven park. The following is a list of the woods and vines: Short leaf pine, long leaf pine, post oak, white oak, Spanish oak, water oak, red oak, black gum, sweet gum, black gum, red bay, black haw, red bud, prickly ash, chinquepin, wild plum, persimmon, wild cherry, red elm, sassafras, wahoo, soman, red elm, pig hickory, scalybark hickory, bois d'arc sugar tree, willow, beech, black alder, crab apple, wild mulberry, wild cherry, dogwood, sourwood, winter huckleberry, black huckleberry, blue huckleberry, cottonwood, buckeye, cypress, laurel beech, holly, ash, ironwood, birch, sage bush, sumach, grape vine, brier, smilax, evergreen, spruce, Vines—Grape, muscadine, bell flower, rattan, bamboo.

The Simplest Method of Resuscitating Persons Overcome by Drowning.

In the Transactions of the Medico-Chirurgical society of London, Dr. Charles gives the following excellent advice: After the patient has been placed for a moment with the head downward, to allow the escape of water from the mouth and throat, he is turned on the side and kept on the side. Immediately, except when (about fifteen times a minute) the body is rolled for a few seconds on the face again, for keeping the same side always up, the lung on that side becomes clear. Turning the body on the other side up is dangerous, because thereby the partly cleared lung is suddenly flooded with fresh from the lung which was cleared. It is better to clear one lung entirely than to have both half cleared. Each time the body is turned upon the face a little more froth and water escapes from the mouth and nostrils. If one lung is cleared it will help to escape the inflammation which results from the inspiration of water. When the upper lung is cleared in this way it is useful to raise the upper arm about the head to the fullest extent, which draws the ends of the ribs upward, since the enlargement of the upper cavity of the chest thus obtained favors the entrance of air into the lung in a most important manner. The proper way to restore breathing is by pressure upon the chest, alternately increasing the escape of water and air, and in a good instance on the blood toward the lungs. The continual use of the pocket-handkerchief is as essential to the proper performance of this operation as the use of the lancet in bleeding, since the secretions of the throat and mouth would otherwise choke up the windpipe.

BASHFUL BRIDEGROOMS.

Brides Are Sometimes Self Possessed When Their Partners Are Panting the Whither.

Ministers declare that in nine cases out of ten brides are much more self possessed than are bridegrooms when the marriage ceremony is being performed.

A shy, modest looking little creature robed in white will stand perfectly erect, looking the minister calmly and squarely in the eye without fear or constant losing, her self poise, while the big, burly, fine-looker of a bridegroom by her side will be pale and nervous and trembling. His fingers are likely to twitch, he will move his hat from one hip to the other, and he will execute a hitch at his trouser legs or tug at a corner of his shirt.

I was called "best man" to a stalwart, middle-aged bridegroom, notes Sir his courage and feats of daring, says a writer in the Philadelphia Call, and when the time came for us to go down stairs to meet the bride and her attendants he nearly had a fit, and he looked like a walking corpse all through the ceremony. I had to keep saying "Brace up, old boy," and "Come, come, you've got to go down," to get him started at all, and at the door he was apathetic enough to catch at me and say:

"Say, Fred, how would it do to have Mary and the preacher slip in here and get married with her before we go down at all?" I can't go through it before all that crowd."

"Idiot!" I said briefly and pointedly enough to leave no doubt as to my meaning. "Mary won't come here and you will go down this instant."

He got through at last without doing or saying anything ridiculous, for which respect was much luckier than another stalwart bridegroom of my acquaintance, who had been so overjoyed that he held out one of his own fingers for the ring when the minister said: "With this ring I thee wed."

Another bridegroom I know lost his head to such a degree that when it came time for him to say: "I will," he take thee, Annie, to be my lawful wedded wife," he said in an unnaturally loud tone: "I, Sadie, take thee, Herman, to be my lawful wedded wife," and when the time came for him to introduce his bride to some of his friends who had not yet seen her he did it by saying, awkwardly: "Ah, er—Miss Carter, this is my wife, Miss Barton," calling her by her maiden name.

Few men say "very wife" easily and naturally the first time they use the words in public.

A funny case was that of a badly-rattled bridegroom who stared blankly at the minister until asked if he took "this woman to be his lawful wedded wife," when he started suddenly and hastily, and said, in the blandest manner:

"Ah! beg pardon, were you speaking to me?"

A village preacher says that he knows married a very couple at the house of the bride's parents in the presence of a large company of invited guests. The bridegroom was a big, bony, red-faced young fellow who looked as though he had been used to fare with hard fist, but he shivered and turned pale at the beginning of the ceremony, and as its close he fell into a dead faint. To the manifest annoyance of his bride, who had been as cool as a cucumber throughout the ceremony.

SPECIALIST ON SMATTERERS.

Useful Work.

We often hear it said of a dabbler in music, or in art, or in science, "She only knows enough of that thing to talk about it!" and the words imply a sneer. From one point of view it is a high attainment, as perhaps the sneer is deserved if the knowledge has been acquired for the purpose of "showing off" in conversation, though to be conversant with even the slight out of study to better than to remain totally ignorant concerning it. Besides, she who knows the latest terminology of science or art enough to talk about it prefer intelligently can hardly fail to speak up scraps of information occasionally. The very fact that a woman has cared enough for a topic to induce her to dabble herself to learn its phrases argues the possibility of her appreciating further knowledge, says Harper's Bazar.

After all, the matter resolves itself into the question: For what purpose is study, general or particular, pursued? Is it not to widen the views, to strengthen the mind, to deepen the sympathies? Cannot these objects be as well achieved by the merest tyro in any particular study? Since life cannot go to the bottom of everything, can she not be well enough educated to gain enjoyment for herself and others by taking such selected knowledge as comes to her way?

The Constitutionalist.
W. L. FORCE, A. L. FORCE
Editors and Proprietors.

NOTHING UNUSUAL.

Tuesday's issue of THE PRESS was nothing unusual, yet notice how much excludes news it contained:

How John Smith of South Plainfield sent word to his wife's relatives that he was dead, and the tangle that resulted.

The altercation between Marshal Rutledge and Commissioner Conover, and what followed.

Who the burglars were, and how they were captured by the "Two Johns"—Marsh and Koron—in a deserted house near this city.

The high-way robbery of Mrs. Bolsterle, on Washington street.

Who the executors of the estate of the late Cashier Parse are.

How two bicyclers stopped a Blue Lizzie Express and almost bleached Engineer Moynihan's hair.

And much else of intensely interesting local news, published only in these columns.

Verily THE PRESS deserves the title the people have given it—"Plainfield's only newspaper".

TAX REFORM.

Among the adopted planks in the platform of the New York Tax Reform Association is the following:

"The most direct taxation is theoretically the best, because it gives a true appreciation of taxes a conscious and direct pecuniary interest in honest and economical government."

If the people of the United States really knew the enormous amount of indirect taxation inflicted upon them by tariffs of the McKinley stamp, taxes levied under the cloak of protection, but designed to fill the volume of spendthrift expenditures and foster the greed of mercenary interests, they would be startled.

That the people are fast being educated up to the standard of truth and right, the result of the Congressional elections last November furnished conclusive evidence.

The emphatic popular repudiation of the Reed-McKinley House of Representatives, and the substitution therefor of an overwhelming Democratic majority, is a political and moral argument no man can refute.

It stands like a mighty rock against which the waves of opposition melt into puny pools.

When taxation is shorn of intrigue and assessed with equity for needed revenue, and when all public expenditures are honestly and economically administered, the prosperity and happiness of the people will be greatly and permanently advanced.

There is hope that such a glorious day is dawning.

A PLEASANT MUSICAL EVENT.

First Public Exhibition of the New First Baptist Church Organ.

A gratifying as well as gratified audience assembled Tuesday night to enjoy the organ concert in the First Baptist church. S. N. Penfield, the principal organist on this occasion, was most pleasing in the Scherzo from Symphony No. 4 (Widor), the Andante from Symphony "La Surprise" (Haydn), and his own Marche Triomphale. The Toccata in F major, by Bach, is more remarkable as a composition than for its beauty, but it was very effective in displaying the capabilities of both artist and instrument. It seemed as if Dr. Penfield was not entirely at home at a Mozart organ, for his combinations were not always satisfactory. This was noticeable in Lux's Sicilian Hymn, although on the whole it was very enjoyable and not the least difficult piece rendered. The first overture to William Tell was the least pleasing, as it was poorly rendered. The ex-cution was hurried and blurred, and the shading was poorly managed. Mr MacClymount, who is the regular organist of the church, is a young man of great promise. He displayed considerable ability which were within his grasp. His rendition of the Bach Fugue, D major, was one of the most enjoyable features of the evening. The selection from "Mignon", by Thomas, and Chopin's Polonaise Militaire, were also very well rendered. The Overture to La Mascotte by Perfici was quite amusing, although which may be due to the fact that it was his first selection.

Mrs. Emma Watson-Doty is a lyric soprano with a voice of uniformly sweet quality. Her interpretation of her solos was excellent. She was especially pleasing in Buck's "Where the Lindens Bloom", Gounod's "Jerusalem, Jerusalem" from "Elijah", and "O-me Unto Him", from "The Messiah", were well rendered, but her voice is hardly adapted to the oratorio music. John C. Dempsey was a little disappointing in his first selection, "O God, have Mercy", from "St. Paul", as his voice was a little sharp in intonation; but he did much to redeem himself in Farmer's "Remember Me, O Lord", which was beautifully sung, and which reminded one of the manner in which the oratorio of "The Messiah" in this city last year.

Although the performance was not faultless—and where can one be?—it was, on the whole very satisfactory as a whole. The audience was very appreciative, though discriminating, and all expressed themselves well pleased with the evening's entertainment. The pulpit was tastefully decorated with plants and flowers.

He Was a Church Deacon, So He Did n't Swear.

A prominent business man went home on the train from this bright city the other day. boy had forgotten to return his bunch of keys to him after a trip to the post-office. Everybody had gone out, so he began trying to pry open some of the first-floor windows he had to cast aside his usual stately dignity, borrow a ladder from a neighbor, and enter through a window on the second floor. His antics were halted gleefully by a group of small boys, who gathered upon the sidewalk and gave him an exhibition. To his sensitive soul their hilarity was something that could not be twice endured, so when he found that the door of the room was unlocked and not locked he lacked the courage required to tumble down the ladder again, and so waited a whole interminable hour for some one to come home and release him. As he was a church deacon, he did n't swear, but early next morning he began a course of memory training on the street office boy who had caused him to be locked out of his own house.

Historian Lossing at Washington Rock.

The death of Benson John Lossing, the historian, which occurred at his home near Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Wednesday, recalls the fact that he visited this section and explored Washington's old camp grounds near this city. It was in September, 1848, nearly 43 years ago, that he went all over the ground, and he describes it at length in his "Pictorial Field Book of the Revolution". Speaking of Washington's Rock, at the north of the camp ground, Lossing says:

"It is an elevation of nearly 60 feet above the general level of the undulating country, included in the segment of a circle of 3 miles, having its circumference on the Watchung mountains. A beautiful rolling plains like a sea, through which the waves were arrested in their course by the Watchung mountains, and the Dekanesse and Raritan Canal. Little villages and neat farm-houses dotted the plateau in every direction, and the steeples of Elizabethtown, Brunswick church, and those of the interesting villages of Rahway and Woodbridge, and those of Raritan and Amboy Bays with many white sails upon their bosom. Beyond were seen the blue waters of Newark bay, and the dim and hilly heights of Staten Island, while the broad Hudson, with its shipping, and the Palisades and other objects with which he is familiar, and many noticed the vicinity. He remained till midnight to enjoy the scene, and the next morning at sunrise stood upon the summit of the rock, and gazed upon the same prospect of the surrounding country."

Patch when you're dry in warm weather and drink Rock Rye. Sold only at Koenig's Rock Rye Soda Fountain.

HAMMELL FALLS AWAY.

He Pleaded a Different Stand Than He Did the Previous Saturday.

Although Hammell was wild only to spots, Saturday, and the Acmes' hits were scattered through four innings, yet the progress of the game showed that he cannot be depended on and that the Crescents' managers must engage a change pitcher, without delay. In fact had Hammell been in the game as he did Hammell did, Saturday, the cranks would have been swearing about it yet, which shows that possibly Hammell has been underrated. It was only the perfect fielding behind him that saved him from being knocked out of the box when the bats were near the batters, and it was only Jones' magnificent work behind the bat that held the Acmes on the bases when the balls were travelling through the air in all directions except over the plate.

Martin, Lufbery and Lee had nineteen chances and accepted them all. Two double plays both result-d from Martin's single, four work in the infield. It was almost a perfect game, by the Crescents. The Acmes did not play so well, and but for the base hits of Hammell's opponents in the box they would have made but a sorry showing. Brown, the new pitcher they brought for the occasion, was taken out of the box after seven innings. Lee and Hammill got through banging him in the second inning. The score:

CRESCENT LEAGUE.
	AB	R	BH	SB	SH	PO	A	E
Martin, ss	4	0	0	1	1	0	3	0
Lufbery, 2b	4	1	0	0	0	3	2	0
Jones, c	4	1	0	0	0	5	0	0
Hammell, p	4	1	1	0	0	0	2	0
Lee, m	4	1	1	0	0	0	0	1
Gregg, r.f	4	1	1	0	0	0	0	0
Bowers, 1b	4	0	1	0	0	9	0	0
Bonner, l.f	4	0	2	0	1	1	0	0
Lee, 3b	4	0	0	0	0	1	2	0
Simmes, c.f	3	0	0	1	0	1	0	0
	37	5	6	2	2	20	9	1

ACMES.
	AB	R	BH	SB	SH	PO	A	E
Rivers, c.f	4	0	1	0	1	0	1	0
Sutter, l.f	3	1	0	2	2	0	0	0
Mulford, r.f	4	0	0	1	0	1	0	0
Reiser, ss	4	0	0	1	1	2	2	0
Brown, p	3	0	0	0	0	0	2	0
Keinath, 3b	4	0	1	0	1	0	2	0
Shirley, 1b	4	0	0	1	1	7	0	0
Sullivan, c	4	0	1	0	0	5	1	0
Brown, p, r.f	4	1	1	0	0	0	2	1
	34	2	4	5	6	15	12	1

SCORE BY INNINGS.
Crescents	2	3	0	1	2	0	0	1	*	7
Base hits	3	2	1	2	1	1	0	1
Acmes	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	1		2
Base hits	0	0	0	3	1	0	1	0

Earned runs—Crescents, 2. Acmes, 1. First base on balls—Off Hammill, 4. Off Brown, 1. Two base hits—Hammell, Lee, Bowers, Bonner, Lee, Sullivan. Double plays—Martin to Melndoe 2. Flies caught—By Crescents, 9; by Acmes, 10. Time of game—1.45. Umpire—Mr. Herriman.

TWO LITTLE FIRES.

Locomotive Sparks Caused One, and Rice Let Loose the Other.

At about nine o'clock Saturday night the Plainfield fire department was called out by an alarm sent in from box 47, at the Pond Machine Tool Works. Sparks from a Jersey Central locomotive had set fire to the shingle roof of a small barn at Timothy McCarthy's, 341 West Front street, and in a short time both that structure and the small barn of Robert Brand, adjoining, were burned to the ground. The loss of Mr. McCarthy did not exceed $600, and was insured for $100. Mr. Brand's loss was not more than $200.

Those who first saw the blaze made an effort to send in an alarm from box 45, but the holder of the key to whom they applied was in a very deliberative and investigative frame of mind, and concluded that the light in the sky was only that of the setting sun, so he would n't give the key. Minutes later the other box sounded.

Neighbors of Mr. McCarthy saw the fire when it first broke out. It started on the roof. They ran to give the alarm, but were cut off by a passing coal train. The only thing saved from McCarthy's barn was the horse and cart.

At 2.30 Sunday morning dense smoke was found pouring from the cellar windows of the Northern Pacific Tea Company's store. The department was called out by box 12, and found a heap of rubbish afire in the smoking cellar. They soon had it out, with no damage done save to the stock or fixtures of the store. A cellar door and window were damaged $12 worth by the firemen breaking in.

The fire was the work of an incendiary. That was the second attempt to burn the store within a week. Rice, who was posing away in his cell, he went to the post-office, had it postmarked, solemnly received it back, and had it in exhibition in the window of the store as an imitation of the bloody fool-ing his wife had for him, and of how much he had been abused in the past. Then he printed a sign on brown paper, in rude characters, saying, "I have gon to hang myself in the woods", and pinned it on a rail fence in a conspicuous place.

All South Plainfield was speedily excited. Searching parties scoured the neighborhood for Jim Smith's body, and got mad because they couldn't find it. Then Lizzie's relatives came back, "mad clear through", at Jim's playing such a heartless, cruel, expensive joke on them. He was called him a "shiftless, worthless, lyin' cuss", and the women were ready to cry with vexation for having been such fools as to get excited over nothing, because she had been trying for a reconciliation, and here her plans were utterly frustrated.

Gradually matters quieted down, and the indignant relatives went home, after vainly trying to get Jim arrested for his heartless trick. Jim was spread about in the village that James had utterly disappeared, and the mill pond at New Market was to have been searched Saturday, when the news came from Plainfield that he had joined a gang of laborers at work in the western outskirts of that city.

ROBBED ON THE PUBLIC STREET.

A Tall Man in a Stench Hat Snatches a Woman's Purse.

Mrs. Joseph H. Bolsterle, of East Second street, was passing along Washington street, between Front and Second, at nine o'clock Saturday evening, when a tall man wearing a slouch hat grabbed her by the arm, snatched a purse containing $18 from her hand, and ran down the street and out of sight.

Mrs. Bolsterle was so frightened that as soon as she could get home she went directly to bed, and was very much restrained ever since with the nervous shock.

The incident is another proof that a woman cannot provide any greater temptation to a thief, nor any surer method of losing her money, than by carrying her purse in her hand. Occurrences similar to this are constantly happening in New York city, and women are gradually learning that pockets are wise and safe.

Jelly Ward Rowe's Son-in-law Drowned.

Prospect Lake, near Colorado Springs, was the scene of the drowning Friday night of Edward Elliott, son-in-law of Jelly Ward Rowe, and brother-in-law of Florence Howe Hall of Fanwood, well known in Plainfield society. He went to Colorado three months ago from Chicago, where he was in the stock of commission. He had recovered and intended to leave for his home Monday.

All Will Turn Out to the Jubilee Dance.

A number of Plainfield's best citizens are expected to co-operate in the plans for making the coming Emancipation Day celebration a big success.

Prof. Randolph Thorowitz was born as New York in 1850, and has been a resident of this city since the organization of the redeemed, at South Plainfield, May 1, 1861, having completed nearly thirty years of service.

She was married to Deacon A. B. Thorowitz in 1870, and has been prior to this home happy in both, just before the time for their golden wedding.

Professor Thorowitz was baptized by the Rev. Mr. Hammond, and joined the Second Baptist church of this city, of which he has been a member ever since. He was also a member of the church of Plainfield, in 1866, and was ordained deacon by the Rev. Dr. Ellis. The staff of the Masonic fraternity he has carried several years, from a newly developing organization to the present time, when it is one of the largest and most influential lodges in the county. He was also a member of the Knights of Pythias, and was a charter member of the Knights of Honor, and was prominently identified with the Odd Fellows, and has been a member of the Encampment for many years.

Professor Thorowitz is a brother of engineer Moynihan of drill engine 36 at Plainfield, and a brother-in-law of John J. Keamey of this city.

Borough Authorities Stagnate.

Borough Marshal Thomas Rutledge and Borough Street Commissioner George Conover had an altercation on the street Saturday morning, which resulted in a fight, whether Conover did n't have authority to order Rutledge to arrest him for hauling a load of gravel on the streets without a permit, and

CITY DEPARTMENT.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY OF UNION.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - - City Editor.

—The interior of St. Joseph's church is being handsomely remodeled. A $300 altar rail is to be erected.

—Harry Couch, an old and well-known citizen of Plainfield, died Monday night at the residence of Mrs. Totten, widow. With whom he had long been boarding.

—The presence of James Galligan, the professional ball player, about town all day yesterday, gave rise to a rumor that he had been signed by the Crescent management as change pitcher. Fortunately, that is not so.

—The bar-nigh people think they have a great joke on ex-Councilman Peter Remmont. Some stranger mistook his first initial as standing for the name of Ireland's patron saint, and now everybody calls him Patrick.

—Stanley Harris, Arthur Carpenter and Robert Keenan, ran from South Plainfield to Ft Infield a distance of 27.8 miles, in 26, 27, and 34 minutes, respectively. They would like to challenge all sprinters under 17 years of age.

—The Rev. Dr. T. S. Doolittle, Professor at Rutgers College, New Brunswick, delivered the baccalaureate sermon at Trinity Reformed church, Sunday. That is the evening, from the text Matthew v:6, was particularly fine. The professor is a most able divine.

—Newspapers in New York and all over the country are still copying from The Press the story of Jive James Smith's future home and of Engineer Moynihan's thrilling railroad experience, exclusive news of which was published first in those columns Monday. If you see it in The Press you'll see it in the other papers later.

—Henry Williams, druggist of Asbury Park, was convicted Friday before Justice Wright of the city of Long Branch on the charge of selling liquor contrary to the borough ordinance. He was fined $50 and costs. This is not the bustling young Asbury Park druggist, George Williams, who has a branch at Park avenue and Fourth street, this city.

—The new St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church was dedicated in Grand Brook, yesterday. It is a $20,000 structure, built of stone, in English Gothic style, and its stained-glass windows are from the most famous shops in Munich, Bavaria. Father O'Connell and his parishioners are very proud of it, for it is the handsomest house of worship in Somerset county.

—The Wood and Wheelmen will hold a five-mile handicap road race Saturday afternoon, June 27. The course will be laid between Westfield and Cranford. Three ministers will be on the scratch limit. The prizes to be contested for will be a gold medal for the best time and a gold scarf-silver medal for the first man and a scarf-silver medal for the second man. The entry fee has been fixed at 25 cents. All entries must be recorded with the Secretary before June 25.

—The Ladies' Sewer Circle, King's Daughters which to thank their friends for their very liberal response to the festival last week Thursday and Friday evenings, and to all who assisted in making the affair such a success. The circle rejoices in a net gain of $100, a large portion of which they give towards extinguishing the floating debt of Trinity church. The remainder will be judiciously expended among the poor of needy during the coming heated term.

Flowers, Music, and a Sermonet, for Little Ones.

A very pretty Children's Day service has been prepared for the Seventh-day Baptist church next Sabbath (Saturday). The church will be profusely decorated with flowers, and a beautiful floral bed has been arranged by choir-master D. E. Titsworth. The Rev. Dr. Lewis will preach a children's sermon.

Will of the late Dr. Coles.

J. Ackerman Coles, M. D., and Emilie S. Coles, son and daughter of the deceased, are by the terms of the will just filed for probate the sole legatees of the entire estate of the late Dr. Abraham Coles, of this city. All the property, which is in a large part valuable real estate, will be divided equally by these "two faithful children," as Dr. Coles endearingly terms them. They are to be their own executors.

New officers of Wetumpka Knights of Honor.

At the annual meeting of Wetumpka Lodge, K. of H., held last Thursday, the following were elected:

Past Dictator—George W. Rossman.
Dictator—W. B. Rogers.
Vice-Dictator—A. Mayhew.
Assistant Dictator—A. W. Tenbush.
Reporter—John Sylvester.
Financial Reporter—C. E. Flower.
Treasurer—F. F. Hafner.
Chaplain—Andrew Schaible.
Guardian—Andrew Schaible.
Sentinel—Amos Cook.
Trustees—Louis Brown, George McGinnis, Ed Gibbon.

Let 'Em Have a Ball, says Mr. Grant.

A young man on the baseball continent has been one of the sights on the Plainfield streets the past few days. He is a sort of modern-day troubadour, and sings and plays the combination of a clarionet. He has a somewhat feminine face and a winsome smile; his singing is good, though in a foreign tongue, and his dancing is graceful; altogether he is quite a fascinating fellow; yet police captain Grant and sergeant Lynch have kept him hustling "moving on."

"Let them have a nice ball"—says captain Grant—"if they want to give concerts."

In the term "these fellows" he included hand-organ men and Salvation Army people. "There shall be no free music, knee-drills, or praying, on the public street"—is the decree.

Children's Day on Crescent Avenue.

The following Children's Day programme has been prepared for next Sunday morning at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church:

Organ—Offertoire in C minor.....Baptiste
Invocation and Lord's Prayer.
Psalm X.....Responsive
Hymn—"Birds are singing".....Arranged
Ten Commandments and Psalm XXIII. (Unison)
Hymn—"Holy, Holy, Holy!"
Chant—"Suffer Little Children."
The Beatitudes.....Responsive
Chant—Psalm CXLVI.
Scripture Selection.
Hymn—"To the Shepherd's Fold."
Prayer.
Hymn—"I Think When I Read".....Choir
Offering for Sabbath-School Missionary Work.
Hymn—"There is a Happy Land".....
Gloria.
Benediction.
Organ—"March Triumphale".....Ardant

Mellin's Food is not only well borne by the most delicate stomach, but it will give tone to the weakest digestive organs. Dyspepsia will obtain much relief from its use—Mellin's Food cannot be digested by a specially infant anything I can say. I urge a sufferer from this distressing complaint.

—Telegraph lineman Joseph Eber, of 21 Sherman street, South Plainfield, fell from a pole Monday afternoon and fractured his arm.

A correspondent writes us that communications in any paper should be signed by the author's name. We agree with him. Communications should be signed by the author's name. Not that the name is any guarantee of truth, but it is a safeguard against libel. Editor Herald.

THE NORTH STAR.

When twilight's purple veil is furled
Beyond the western verge of day,
And silent are the flocks of sheep,
The stars come forth in bright array—
When Venus lights her lamp of love,
Upon old Cassa's tranquil breast,
Or, weary of his march through space,
Mars rests behind the mountain crest;
The sailor on the moonless sea,
The pilgrim on a trackless plain,
The herdsman panting to be free,
Turn northward and take heart again:
For there, above unnumbered heights,
All striking not alone and lone,
Unchanged amidst the changing flights,
The North Star lifts her crown of youth.

Half-suffused in the boundless blue,
Calm Sentinel of the vast upheaven,
Forever single, strong and true,
Serenely from her distant throne
She gazes down her watchman's beat.
While worlds are drifting at her feet
And mighty constellations wheel
Around her like an endless fleet;
The Northern Lights across her fling
The glory of their shooting spears,
The Morning Stars beneath her sing
The chorus of the music of the years;
And while the systems sink and rise
And plunge to reach other and
The light streams from her tranquil eyes
As steadfast as the law of God.
—James G. Clark, in Youth's Companion.

A WOMAN'S EXCUSE.

What It Was That Came Pitapatting After Her.

HE dinner dishes were done; the bread nibbled down and set to rise for the last time; baby had been fed, and then, as Martha Wadsworth entered the sitting-room, she knew she was safe from all her duties else to do. But as this reminded her of her work, she stopped fondling him, and crossing softly, rocked back and forth in the creaky rocking chair. Baby popped his thumb into his mouth, sucked it contentedly for a minute, then grew quieter and quieter. Mother rocked more and more slowly, and at last sure that he was asleep, she stood up, kissed him carefully down in the rough denim cradle. She tiptoed up the blanket and stood for a moment patting him and gently yap, ping the cradle. Baby came from the land of nod.

She glanced around her cozy kitchen with a smile of approval. To be sure, the frozen snow in the wilds of New York State was not like old Connecticut, but then it was just as pretty. "I know mother has no better fire than this, at any rate," she said, gazing musingly at the roaring blaze. "Perhaps they said a pioneer life would be so hard, but it isn't—very, and then I have Jack to myself so much, and I wouldn't do that at home," and the dimples crept around the loving mouth. But with something very like a sigh the young mother whispered to baby: "If it only wasn't quite so far away so that your grandma could see you often! But you are a big boy."

Pausing in her meditations, she listened a moment and then glanced from the winter sunshine on the floor to the little Dutch clock on the shelf—only a.m.! Why! only three o'clock and the cows coming home already! Jack said he had put their heifer in the little pasture where they would be sheltered from the wind."

She rose and went to the window, murmuring: "Perhaps a wolf has frightened them. Well, the gates are open and there's room in the barn."

Baby, roused by her exclamation, uttered a sleepy protest at being waked from his nap, but she soothed him with caressing cause; so, sitting down, she hushed him to sleep again and then went on with her knitting, saying sagely: "I need not worry, if it is anything, it won't come into the clearing by daylight, and Jack will be home before it is dark."

THE WORDS DIED ON HER LIPS.

Meanwhile the sunlight slipped quietly away from the little window, the firelight grew redder and redder, and the shadows deepened, and the early winter twilight came on. Mrs. Wadsworth rolled up her knitting and put the wool in the work basket. She waked and was growing restless, so she took him up, saying: "I'll get tea for Jack's supper to assure her 'little man' that he should have his dinner—"Yes he should have dinner at the first gathering on the window, she added: "It's cold, and he'll be terribly hungry, but the biscuits will be hot and I'll just cook up some eggs to eat with them. Now I wonder what I did with those I found this morning. Yes, I left them in the barn. Dear me, they'll get frozen. I must run right out and get them."

She put baby down hastily, hung a string of spools from the cradle top, then set it rocking, and while he energized with stanty, ineffectual clutches to grasp the swing wonder, she caught up the little red blanket, threw it over her head and started for the barn.

The trees stretched a lace-work of bare branches against the golden-tinted sky; the crescent moon was a silver thread, all tempting her to linger, but the frosty air hurried her on from the snow-trodden path to the barn. She heard Bruno's step pitapat, pitapating at her heels, and put out her hand, saying sheerily: "Nice old fellow!" but instead of coming to her as usual, he just as cold nose, he seemed to pause and draw back. Yet Martha, without looking behind her, went on and into the barn. As she neared it she again spoke to her four-footed escort: "I forgot about the cattle, Bruno, but I just as well pleased that you came. Let's hurry!"

She half paused at the door; then, with an uneasy laugh, forced herself to go on.

It was as dark as a pocket inside, but she remembered just where she had left the eggs, onto the meadow in the corner. Feeling for them her hand struck the basket and picking it up she hurried out, feeling a vague sense of danger.

She realized with a rapid footstep, for it was pretty dark and cold then she heard Bruno's steps behind her, and with him she was safe. However, she was glad to reach the house and running up the steps flung open the door and turned back with a joyful, "Come, Bruno!"

But the words died on her lips, for it was not Bruno that she saw, but a long crouching figure with fearful eyes and huge tawny sprang crowding through the fire.

Quick as flash, she scrambled to the floor and dropped the heavy bar, then sprang and slammed and bolted the massive window shutters, and turned with set teeth to meet her Bruno's newage buying and for something else. What was it that had come? Martha's imagination, so sensitively in the day-light, now should also be "mean."

Perhaps, after all, he thought, women are not all alike; at least Amanda was widely different from some of the girls he had met before and somehow she had a knack of making everybody comfortable and happy.

One afternoon Farmer Talbot came rushing to the door, and in an excited voice, called to his housekeeper:

"Mandy! Mandy! The eggs are in the clover; and there isn't a man within a mile of here! Do come and help me!"

Throwing her apron over her head, Amanda hurried down to the clover, and there in a half-grown pigs were making and havoc by rooting down the lovely patch of which the farmer had all the spring been justly proud.

To encourage the interlopers to make their escape in the little time possible, he let the bars down, and then tried to drive them to the opening, but there is nothing so obstinate and exasperating as a couple of young pigs, and they rushed squealing by the opening without as much as a glance.

Round and round went the pigs, squealing and grunting at every step, and round and round ran Farmer Talbot, puffing and wheezing in hot pursuit, with Amanda close at his heels.

At last, stopping short in the center of the field and mopping the sweat from his flushed face, he exclaimed, in a despairing voice:

"It's no use, Mandy; the pesky little devils won't go out till they get ready, and we might as well go back to the house."

"I wouldn't use sweet words," said Amanda, slyly. "Let us try once more; you go this way, and I'll go that, and we'll head off the critters."

So saying, she started in opposite directions, with the pigs squealing just ahead.

It was a laughable sight to see the pigs and their pursuers as they all rushed excitedly toward the open bars. As the animals drew near the opening, the foremost one turned as though to rush back into the field. As he did so Amanda sprang forward. If she could only seize the foremost pig and push him through the opening, she knew the other one would soon follow.

With a wild spring she swooped down upon the offender, who with a pop leaped squeal slipped cunningly from beneath her grasp, and Amanda, losing her balance, fell headlong into the arms of Farmer Talbot, her nose striking against his ample shirt-front with such force that the blood rushed from it like cruet from a broken bottle.

"Oh! oh! oh!" cried Amanda. "I reckon my nose is broken."

"Don't faint, Mandy — oh, please don't! I'm very sorry I hurt you so, but the squealing pigs have still holding her in his arms and carefully wiping the blood from her upturned face.

"I am not a-going to faint," said Amanda, with a little spirit; "but oh, I did think I could end the team came to Amanda's eyes at the thought of the injury to her poor nose.

All Farmer Talbot's sympathies were aroused, and for a few moments he failed to realize that he was a bachelor, and that this was a real woman he was holding in his arms; besides, Amanda's soft, warm cheek was very close to his own, and he so far forgot himself that he bent forward and actually planted a lingering kiss on that same warm cheek!

"IT IS SO USE, MANDY."

"John Talbot, I should think you were old enough to behave yourself," cried Amanda, in a fine injured voice, as she, after a slight struggle, freed herself from his grasp and walked indignantly into the house.

Two days passed, and Farmer Talbot journeyed to the little settlement, where Amanda sat quietly sewing.

As he looked down into her face, he perceived that the nose had grown very red, and marks of tears were still fresh on her plump cheek.

"Why, Mandy," he cried, "what on earth is the matter?"

"Matter enough," answered Amanda. "I'm going to leave."

"Going to leave? Amanda, you must be mad. Don't I pay you wages enough?"

"Yes," said Amanda, "it isn't for that I am going. The fact of the matter is I am getting to be too town talk, and I am not going to stand it; and the sooner I go from this place the better it will be for me."

Overcome with surprise, Farmer Talbot sank heavily in a chair he side his housekeeper.

"Town talk, Mandy?" he said. "I wish you would explain, for I swear I don't understand you."

"Well," said Amanda, "it's just this. You remember the day we tried to drive the pigs out of the clover-field?"

"Remember it? He guessed he did. Why, it had not left off his head five minutes for the whole two days," and a smile passed over his lips as he nodded to Amanda, who, with her eyes bent on her wrist, and cheeks as red as a peony, went on:

"Well, that gossiping old creature, Sophie Wilkins, who lives down in Buchanan's Hollow, was passing just the other side of the stone wall when I fell, and she saw—saw—"

Here Amanda stopped short, overcome with sudden modesty.

"Saw me kiss you," continued the farmer, "and I only wish I could do it all over the neighborhood. Is that it, Mandy?"

"Yes," answered Amanda, "that is just it, and she said I had been setting my cap for you ever since I came here."

"It's just like the meddlesome old cat," said Jay, Mandy, let's give her a little surprises."

Amanda looked inquiringly into his face.

"You see, Mandy," he continued, "for some weeks I have known that I was a pet sloppy without any way; and if you will marry me I'll ask the parson up to our Sunday dinner, and we'll have him splicing done right up at the same time. What do you say, Mandy, are you agreeable?"

Amanda was agreeable, and the farmer sealed the agreement with a kiss, which was heard by the cows in Burnham's Meadow.—Josephine Lovelace, in N. Y. Weekly.

THE BIGGEST OF FLYING BIRDS.

The Wandering Albatross and the South American Condor Are the Ones.

The biggest and most powerful flying birds are, I believe, the wandering albatross and the South American condor, says a writer in the Philadelphia Globe, or even with the wings expanded merely, both these great existences are capable of dispensing with occasional appearance. But feathers in such cases are very deceptive; they make their owners look of very small bulk. For example, our well-known little Englishman, the sparrow, is capable of a flight as it passes overhead with pinions made to hastily on big others pinions of the wandering albatross, while he spares from trying to wing with such a spread. Yet the sparrow in full sail is only three and a half, and I doubt if he would pluck into anything overcoming to be magnificent. But the albatross, with his wings outspread that there measure seventeen feet from tip to tip, does not average in weight more than twenty pounds, which is just exactly the poulterer's abatement for my last fat goose. Considering further the size of the condor, while he spares from trying to wing with such a spread as the albatross, in full sail is only three and a half, and I doubt if he would pluck into anything overcoming to be magnificent. But the albatross, with his wings outspread that there measure seventeen feet from tip to tip, does not average in weight more than twenty pounds, which is just exactly the poulterer's abatement for my last fat goose. Considering further the size of the condor,

FARMER TALBOT WAS FAINT.

he was a timid-hearted soul nevertheless, and

However, after Miss Amanda's departure appeared upon the scene a new and unexpected visitor, in the shape of a tall, handsome young man, who, on being ushered into the parlor, where Farmer Talbot was sitting, gave a start of surprise, and then, with a cordial grasp of the hand, exclaimed:

"Why, Talbot, old fellow, I am glad to see you! Who would have thought of finding you in this out-of-the-way place?"

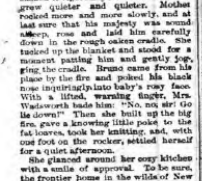
"Why, Jack Ellis, you here!" cried the farmer, in his turn. "Well, I am glad to see you, and you must stay and have a bite with me."

"Thank you, I will," said Jack, "as I came down the road, I heard the cows making a great racket. So I ran across the field, and there I saw a big tawny beast in the yard fence, showing black against the sky, and I dropped him at the first shot."

The great, glossy, tawny skin made a splendid rug for baby to play on before the fire, and it always gave him pleasure to stroke the "creeps" to see it, for, said she: "To think of my petting my hand into Bruno's mouth almost on Panther's nose! I know if I had happened to stop or scream and run he would have sprung. Good! I never see the old skin but I hear his cushioned paws pitapat, pitapatting after me!"—Gertrude Winans, in American Agriculturist.

QUITE A ROMANCE.

What the Pigs-in-the-Clover Episode Accomplished.



ARMER TALBOT sat toasting his shins before a glowing fire of logs in his cozy little sitting-room, with a smile of satisfaction on his round, ruddy face. The flames leaped and roared up the wide-mouthed chimney, sending back a cheering warmth which, although the spring was well advanced, was yet a welcome if not necessary addition to the comfort of the farmer's wise chilly apartment. He was just beginning to realize what real comfort he was enjoying for that he had found it was enjoying it to his heart's content.

The fact of the matter was that all his life, or at least as much of it as he could remember, he had been troubled with housekeepers; and not until meek and modest Amanda Brown had become an inmate of his house had he known a resting place for the sole of his foot.

One had been independent and highhanded, another was given to him the slightest authority in his own establishment.

A third had been caught carrying away sundry packages of tea, coffee and sugar in her basket to the town talk, and I am not going to stand it; and the sooner I do this place the better it will be for me."

Overcome with surprise, Farmer Talbot sank heavily in a chair he side his housekeeper.

"Town talk, Mandy?" he said. "I wish you would explain, for I swear I don't understand you."

"Well," said Amanda, "it's just this. You remember the day we tried to drive the pigs out of the clover-field?"

"Remember it? He guessed he did. Why, it had not left off his head five minutes for the whole two days," and a smile passed over his lips as he nodded to Amanda, who, with her eyes bent on her wrist, and cheeks as red as a peony, went on:

"Well, that gossiping old creature, Sophie Wilkins, who lives down in Buchanan's Hollow, was passing just the other side of the stone wall when I fell, and she saw—saw—"

Here Amanda stopped short, overcome with sudden modesty.

"Saw me kiss you," continued the farmer, "and I only wish I could do it all over the neighborhood. Is that it, Mandy?"

"Yes," answered Amanda, "that is just it, and she said I had been setting my cap for you ever since I came here."

"It's just like the meddlesome old cat," said Jay, Mandy, let's give her a little surprises."

Amanda looked inquiringly into his face.

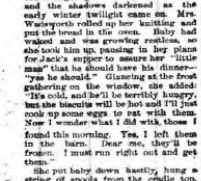
"You see, Mandy," he continued, "for some weeks I have known that I was a pet sloppy without any way; and if you will marry me I'll ask the parson up to our Sunday dinner, and we'll have him splicing done right up at the same time. What do you say, Mandy, are you agreeable?"

Amanda was agreeable, and the farmer sealed the agreement with a kiss, which was heard by the cows in Burnham's Meadow.—Josephine Lovelace, in N. Y. Weekly.

THE BIGGEST OF FLYING BIRDS.

The Wandering Albatross and the South American Condor Are the Ones.

The biggest and most powerful flying birds are, I believe, the wandering albatross and the South American condor, says a writer in the Philadelphia Globe, or even with the wings expanded merely, both these great existences are capable of dispensing with occasional appearance. But feathers in such cases are very deceptive; they make their owners look of very small bulk. For example, our well-known little Englishman, the sparrow, is capable of a flight as it passes overhead with pinions made to hastily on big others pinions of the wandering albatross, while he spares from trying to wing with such a spread as the albatross, in full sail is only three and a half, and I doubt if he would pluck into anything overcoming to be magnificent. But the albatross, with his wings outspread that there measure seventeen feet from tip to tip, does not average in weight more than twenty pounds, which is just exactly the poulterer's abatement for my last fat goose. Considering further the size of the condor,



AUNT CLARA'S DOLLY.

She Left Her as a Legacy to Her Two Orphaned Nieces.

SISTER MOLLIE and I were girls. We lived in the town of Sheldon, in middle Tennessee. Father died in the spring of 1856; mother followed him a month later; and then Mollie and I were left alone in the world. Father, however, was a minister and of course died poor. All of our possessions consisted of a small house and about an acre of ground in Sheldon, but the long period of ill health of my parents, together with the funeral expenses, had put a three hundred dollar mortgage on the property, so that we hardly say the roof that covered us was our own.

Mollie was but sixteen; I was four years her senior. Being well educated, I succeeded in getting the public school in our town, and though the pay was small we managed to live on it. Mollie I was determined should keep at her studies for a year or two more. Somehow we couldn't save a cent to pay on that mortgage, and it kept growing larger all the while. One day John Easton, the man who held it, came over. I had just returned from school. He said:

"Miss Anice, I thought I'd call and tell you I can't carry that mortgage any longer. I need the money. It was due last fall, but I thought I'd let it run as long as I could, but I must have the money the 1st of October or I shall have to foreclose, which I should mightily hate to do. Almost as hard as to part with me the last year or two that I must have it. The interest added to the mortgage will swell the amount to $400 October 1."

Now, I couldn't see for the life of me how we were ever going to pay that money. It seemed that we must lose our home, and that night I told Mollie all about it.

"Well, Anice," said she, "I'll have to quit school and go to work."

"Yes," said I, "but what work could you get by which we could save money enough to pay that mortgage by October 1? I can't see any object in your stopping your studies. We'll have to let the old home go, I guess. I'm in hopes we can rent it of the party who buys it."

Of course we had a crying spell over the prospect before us. We had been born under that roof, and it seemed as though the thought of leaving it and our friends was more than we could bear. The next evening when I came home from school I found a letter there that Mollie had received from Aunt Clara. It was from Aunt Clara in Nashville. She was the only relative we had left on earth, to my knowledge. She was my father's old maid sister, and had always lived with him. She loved us, was an old, old woman. She had visited us once or twice while father was living.

"DEAR NIECE: I am dying. Come at once and bring Anice with you. Yours lovingly,

"AUNT CLARA."

I managed to scrape money enough together to pay our way to Nashville. We found Aunt Clara in a humble cottage near the depot. She was evidently near death's door. Poor old soul! She had been left a child, it seemed, to starve, and all the money she had laid by in her youth her later years had found use for. She lived alone. She had quarreled with Aunt Dolly, an old rheumatic negress whom she had bought twenty-five years before. When I first knew her she was a younger woman Dolly had belonged to a Mrs. Bacon, with whom Aunt Clara had lived. Mrs. Bacon died suddenly and everything she had was sold at auction. Dolly had become attached to Aunt Clara, and begged so hard that she buy her that my aunt actually paid the last dollar she had in the world for her. Then she rented the cottage, and there my aunt and Dolly had lived for twenty-five years, and grown old to gether as mistress and slave. But very little Dolly knew about work, for I reckon it would have been hard to have told which was mistress in the cottage. Dolly was the public orator for the a number of years, and Dolly cooked, took care of the cottage and sold hot coffee, gingerbread and such like delicacies at the depot. Her round, black face had been a familiar sight there for years, and Dolly had been the only woman that she had ceased teaching fully ten yrs are before and Dolly had proved the power of her influence. Aunt Dolly met us at the door.

AUNT DOLLY MET US AT THE DOOR.

"Bress your souls, honeys! Is you de Miss Anice and Miss Mollie? You ain' come none too soon. She mose gone dis mornin' at 'leben o'clock, jes' settin' up and talkin' to Aunt Dolly's chocks. She took mo'directly to Aunt Clara's bedside.

"Aunt Clara," said Mollie, who lay propped up in bed, "I thank the Lord that He has permitted me to live to see you once more, though to bid you my farewell. Dolly has my will. I have sent you everything I can, unoppressed by debts, that is left from what I have been an invalid. There are some railroad shares which are worth nothing now, but in time they may be. The greatest treasure I leave you is my faithful Dolly. Be good to her and she will be to you. She has been a part of me in my old age."

The next day Aunt Clara quietly passed away. Mollie and I had seen her but two or three times. We grieved over her loss, but I could see that Mollie was in comparison with the grief of poor, affectionate Aunt Dolly. She never forgot for a moment that her mistress lay cold in the parlor. She would sit by the coffin and talk to it as though it were alive. She would tell it what she had cooked for dinner, and ask it what it would have for supper. She would tell it how many people had been to the house to see it, and how many had sent flowers. She would tell it how many times she had been to the depot to sell coffee, and how many times she had been to the post office to get the mail

The Constitutionalist,
A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.
M. L. FISHER & A. L. FISHER, Editors and Proprietors.
AT PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY.
TERMS—TWO DOLLARS A YEAR.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXIV. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, JUNE 18, 1891. No. 25.

"Support the Constitution, which is the cement of the Union, as well in its limitations as in its authorities."—MADISON.

Rates of Advertising.

Space	1 W	2 W	3 W	1 M	2 M	3 M	6 M	1 Y
1 in.
2 in.
3 in.
4 in.
5 in.
6 in.
7 in.
8 in.
9 in.
10 in.
11 in.
12 in.

All Business must be paid for.
"Local Reading" columns, 5 cts. per line.
Double rate, 50 per ct. Advance of above rates.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

JACKSON & CODDINGTON,
Counsellors-at-Law,
Commissioners of Deeds, Masters-in-Chancery, Notaries Public, Solicitors in Court of Park Streets and Second street.

W. V. STERLE,
Counsellor-at-Law,
Master and Examiner in Chancery, Supreme Court Commissioner,
Cor. Park Ave and North 24th. 4-24-3m

GEORGE W. DAY,
General Auctioneer,
Sales of Personal Property solicited. P. O. Box 185, Dunellen, N. J., or address in care of Constitutionalist. Terms reasonable.

DR. CHARLES R. THEIS,
Dentist,
20 West Front street, New York, uses local anesthetic appliances for extracting teeth without pain. Gold filling a specialty.—1y52

H. HARD,
Auctioneer,
P. O. Address, Lock Box 75, Scotch Plains, N. J. (Orders left at W. J. Cluett's grocery, Second street, or West Front street, Plainfield, N. J., will receive prompt attention.—4y282

OSCAR S. TEALE,
Architect,
245 Broadway, New York city, Rooms 16 and 18, (Lamperfort Building). Mack Building, 7 East Seventh, Plainfield, N. J.—1y282

J. E. FENSTER,
Veterinary Surgeon,
Office in A. W. Sagendorf's livery stable, near Main street and Madison avenue, Plainfield, N. J. Day and night calls promptly attended. Telephone No. 15; consultation on diseases of all domestic animals free. Residence, 72 East Fifth ave.—1y6

BUSINESS CARDS.

P. P. VAN ARSDALE,
PIANO TUNER.
All orders promptly attended to. Leave orders at Chandler's, Somerset street, Plainfield, N. J. Box 146 or left at Wilson's Music Store, No. 6 Park avenue will receive prompt attention. Residence, 31 East Fourth street, upper side street.—1y1161

JOHN CHANDLER,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Residence and Shop No. 36 East 3d St.
Jobbing promptly attended to. 4py

T. J. GILLIES,
Auctioneer & Real Estate Agent.
SALESROOM—NEAR THE RAILROAD CROSSING, PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Goods received on consignment.

TO THE PUBLIC!

We wish to inform our customers and the public generally that we have on hand the best quality of

LEHIGH COAL,
Fresh from the Mines.

It is under cover and well protected from the weather. We are prepared to deliver in small or screened and in good order promptly. We are also prepared to furnish all kinds of Seasoned Lumber and Hard Wood. Leave orders at

A. D. COOK & BRO.
Depot

Front street, opposite Madison avenue.

Coaches for Weddings, Funerals and Private Use. Light carriages of all descriptions for business.

RIDING OR LIVERY.

Careful, safe drivers for shopping calls or pleasure parties. Horses and carriages for sale or to let on liberal terms. Orders left at the office or stables will receive prompt attention.

TELEPHONE CALL, NO. 26.

Livery Stables!
Mr. D. S. ROBERTS
Has Removed to His New Building on
NORTH AVENUE,
Adjoining Force's Hotel. Mr. Roberts will be pleased to see his many friends and the public generally at his new stables. Horses to let at reasonable rates. Horses taken to board. Horses bought and sold. Prompt attention given to all orders.

Accommodation Express.
PETER RICKERT, Proprietor.
Office—Woodruff's Electric Pharmacy.
The Accommodation Express will attend to the transporting and delivering of the city delivering goods to Bagnall's and from the Depot, or from Bagnall's to the Depot, at reasonable rates. Leave orders at the above places and they will be promptly attended to. Orders left at the Electric Pharmacy will receive prompt attention.

BEAUTIFUL DESIGNS
In Furniture
GO TO
23, 25 and 27 PARK AVE.
Garret Q. Packer,

Steam Marble Granite Works.
AND
Cemetery Lettering Plots.
Large assortment of State Mantels.
Large variety of Granite Monuments

All work executed in the most artistic manner at satisfactory reasonable prices. All orders solicited and promptly attended to. C. M. FINE.
Factory, rear of N. H. Ch., PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Monuments erected in Greenwood Cemetery, N. Y.

Alex. Willett,
DEALER IN
BOOTS & SHOES,
No. 7 PARK AVENUE.
A full assortment of desirable goods direct from manufacturers, at Low Figures.

Geo. A. Moore,
(Of the late firm of Moore Bros.)
Is now the sole proprietor of the old established
No. 24 NORTH AVENUE,
Where he will continue to supply patrons with the finest brands of Fresh and Salt meats. Also all kinds of Game, Oysters, Clams in Season. Also the choicest market poultry. Anything not found here in stock furnished at short notice.

HOTELS AND SALOONS.

FORCE'S HOTEL,
NORTH AVENUE, (NEAR R. R. STATION.)
JAS. H. FORCE, Prop'r.
A FIRST-CLASS FAMILY HOTEL. Steam Heat. First-class Plumbing.
Transient guests at reasonable rates. 10-31-tf

SOMERSET HOTEL,
Corner Somerset and Emily Streets,
NORTH PLAINFIELD.
RICHARD A. BOYCE, Prop'r.
Permanent and transient board at fair rates. First-class stables and sheds attached.
Meals at all reasonable hours.

Dime Savings Institution
OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest at the rate of three (3) per cent. per annum payable semi-annually.

JOHN W. MURRAY, President,
WILLIAM WHITE, Vice "
NATHAN HARPER, "
ELIAS S. FORT, Treasurer.
4py61

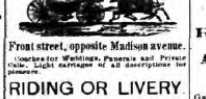
Jas. M. Dunn,
Dealer in
GROCERIES, PROVISIONS,
Vegetables, Fruits, etc.
No. 36 Park Ave.
OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.
THORBURN & CO'S GARDEN SEEDS,
BEST IN THE WORLD.
ALL GOODS DELIVERED FREE OF CHARGE.

ESTABLISHED 1836
C. E. & J. W. BROWN,
(Successors to O. F. & C. E. Brown & Co.)
Importers, Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
WALL PAPER.
321 Canal Street.
NEW YORK.
English, Tiles, Anaglypta, Hard, Leather Lined Paper Hangings, &c. Borders for Walls.

Manufacturers of Window Shades. 2-13-tf

LIVERY.

A. M. SEGUINE,
(Successor to John W. Laing.)
Laing's Hotel Stables



Front street, opposite Madison avenue.
Coaches for Weddings, Funerals and Private Use. Light carriages of all descriptions for business.

RIDING OR LIVERY.

Careful, safe drivers for shopping calls or pleasure parties. Horses and carriages for sale or to let on liberal terms. Orders left at the office or stables will receive prompt attention. Telephone call, No. 26.

Livery Stables!
Mr. D. S. ROBERTS
Has Removed to His New Building on
NORTH AVENUE,
Adjoining Force's Hotel. Mr. Roberts will be pleased to see his many friends and the public generally at his new stables. Horses to let at reasonable rates. Horses taken to board. Horses bought and sold. Prompt attention given to all orders.

Accommodation Express.
PETER RICKERT, Proprietor.
Office—Woodruff's Electric Pharmacy.
The Accommodation Express will attend to the transporting and delivering of the city delivering goods to Bagnall's and from the Depot, or from Bagnall's to the Depot, at reasonable rates. Leave orders at the above places and they will be promptly attended to. Orders left at the Electric Pharmacy will receive prompt attention.

INSURANCE.

FIRE INSURANCE
The undersigned are duly appointed agents for the
Star and Merchants
Fire Insurance Co's of the City of New York, to prepare in proper amounts and adequate solidity against loss by Fire as reliable a form of policy as those of the best companies in the city.
NATHAN HARPER

WILLIAM A. WOODRUFF,
FIRE AND LIFE
INSURANCE AGENT,
Office cor. Front St. and Park Ave.,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Real Estate for Sale & Exchange.
MONEY TO LOAN
On Approved Security.

J. C. Pope & Co.,
GENERAL AGENTS OF THE
German American Ins. Co.,
of New York.
Also represents other first-class Fire Insurance Companies. Agents of the Issues Stewards Line. Southern Ireland for sale. First and City National Bank Stock Bought and Sold. Also,

BUILDING LOTS
And Other Real Estate for sale.
OFFICE:
5 E. FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD.
JAMES C. POPE. ELIAS S. FORT

EDUCATIONAL.

Miss SCRIBNER
AND
Miss NEWTON'S
SCHOOL FOR GIRLS AND KINDERGARTEN,
17 LaGrande Avenue,
CORNER OF WASHINGTON STREET,
Will reopen WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 17, 1890.
The regular course will include Modeling, Drawing and Sewing. 9 11 tf

PAINTERS & PAINTERS' SUPPLIES.

Paints, Varnishes, Glass.
WINDOW SHADES AND FIXTURES.
WALL PAPERS!
PAPER HANGING A SPECIALTY.
A. SWALM,
No. 6 North Avenue, Plainfield.
4y52

L. B. WOOLSTON. J. P. BUCKLE
Woolston & Buckle,
PAINTERS,
Wall Papers,
PAINTER'S SUPPLIES. 36 NORTH AVENUE
4y52

MISCELLANEOUS.

LEWIS B. CODDINGTON,
[Successor to T. J. Corey.]
Furniture and Freight Express!
OFFICE—N. W. FRONT ST.
Large Covered Vans or Trucks. Goods delivered to any part of the U. S. Satisfaction guaranteed. Orders by mail promptly filled. P. O. Box 98. Piano moving a specialty. 11tf

CANOPIES
For Weddings, Parties, Etc.,
TO HIRE. CHARGES REASONABLE
Hugo Weigman,
30 EAST FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD, N. J.
4py261

A. WOLFF,
Manufacturer of
CIGARS,
And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles, has removed from No. 9, Front street, to 21 East Front street, one door east of Madison avenue. Thanks for patronage of his friends and the public generally.

CARNEY BROS., Ag'ts,
11 SOMERSET ST.
TINNERS,
PLUMBERS,
GAS FITTERS.
PARLOR STOVES,
COOK STOVES,
HEATERS.
Keys of All Kinds are Made Here.
Tinware Made to Order.
Ranges, Brick and Portable Furnaces
SANITARY PLUMBING.

TOBACCO, SEGARS, &c.

H. EGGERDING,
No. 17 Park Avenue,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Manufacturer of the Celebrated
C. O. D. CIGAR.
The best Cigar sold in the State, and made constantly from the finest Tobacco.
CLEAR HAVANA AND CLEAR LITTLE.
A large assortment of the Choicest Brands of Foreign and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobacco always on hand.
Smokers Articles in Great Variety.
1y61

C. M. FINE,
Dealer in HAVANA & DOMESTIC
—SEGARS!!—
S. 2d PARK AVE., (Rear of North SECOND ST.)
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Tobacco and Smokers' Materials,
of every description.
The celebrated "Old Judge" Smoking Tobacco. Willoughby cigarettes and cigarettes a specialty.

A. M. GRIFFEN,
18 East Front Street.
TELEPHONE CALL, 6. 11 11-tf

SPEER'S
GRAPE WINES,
ALSO
UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.
Used in the principal churches for communion. Can be ordered for families, weekly private and the sick.

Speer's Port Grape Wine,
FOUR YEARS OLD.
THIS Celebrated Wine is the pure juice of the Grape, (extract of Speer's Port Grape, refined in Speer's Sparkling Champagne Cellars, Passaic, N. J.) and is highly recommended by the faculty as a valuable tonic and stimulant.

Tonic and Strengthening Properties are also claimed for this wine. Being manufactured under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed by the principal Hospitals and Boards of Health who have examined it. The youngest child and the weakest invalid can it to advantage. It is particularly beneficial to the aged and debilitated and suited to the various ailments that affect the human family.

It is in every respect a WINE TO BE RELIED ON.

Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice
Is the juice of the Speer's Grape, preserved in its natural fresh, sweet state as it runs from the press by fumigation and electricity, thereby preventing the action of fermentation. It is perfectly pure, free from spirits, and will keep in any climate.

Speer's Sacramental Claret
Is held in high estimation for its richness as a fine Table Wine, especially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Sherry
Is a Wine of superior character, and partakes of the rich qualities of the grape from which it is made.

Speer's P. J. Brandy
IS A PURE distillation of the grape and stands unrivaled in this country for medicinal purposes.
It has a peculiar flavor, similar to that of the grape from which it is distilled.

See that the signature of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is over the cork of each bottle.

SOLD BY DRUGGISTS AND FANCY GOODS DEALERS GENERALLY. 4py52

OBSCURITY.

I have seen a poem, within the hour
Its author stealing, word by word,
In a room, secluded, secret, dim,
Where but one ray of light was shed.

I have noticed "your correspondent"
By carefully, sometimes thoughtful,
But they did not read the letter
As it hastened away the hours.

Mo! Its purity and freshness
Is not yet entirely destroyed,
To remember the great heroes
That it taught, I have not erased.

As that lily through the summer,
With surroundings coarse, could bloom,
Its petals pure and spotless,
Causing, yea, its sweet perfume,

So may lives refined and stainless
Other natures in the shade,
Battling only in the sunlight
Of the truth, as thoughts have made.

Though the song they sing may never
By the world at large be heard,
In some heart, full-worn and weary,
Good deeds' echoes will be stirred.

And the gracious, tender Father—
Loving, that unknown may be the same
As the one whose name is written
On the broad white scroll of fame,—
Clara H. Bennett, in Boston Transcript.

"AN IMPORTANT CATCH."

The Clever Ruse of Three Shrewd Swindlers.

Opposite the Bank of England and about five minutes' walk from the Mansion House, the residence of the Lord Mayor of London, there was, a few years ago, a small street, in 1879, the shop of a wealthy watch-maker.

One dreary November morning a man entered his shop whose loud dress and flashy manner impressed him very disagreeably. He looked at the swaggering fellow, sized him up in a jiffy, and topping his derbie to his head in extra careful, stepped forward and said in his sharpest tone: "Well, sir?" The fellow was not a bit abashed.

"Aw," he said, in an unmistakable low cockney voice, "ye 'ave been very highly recommended to me—friend, I want to get about a thousand pung worth of watches from you. I am going to the West Indies for a government steamer, and I want to make this little investment on me own account. Now, remember, good friend," he added, laughingly, "my name is cash—cash, ye know. So I want no fancy prices, but every thing first-class and reasonable."

"Just so," said the jeweler.

"Very well, here's a thousand pounds. Just wrap up the swag and gi' me the change, will ye?"

"You must excuse me," said the jeweler, after fumbling a little while at his safe, "but I can't change the note. Just sit down a few minutes and I'll send the boy over to the bank. Here, John, take this to the bank." And then in an undertone he added: "Just find out if the bill is good. Don't cash it; I have plenty of change here." The stranger calmly seated himself and quietly conversed with the jeweler.

In a few minutes the boy returned. The stranger calmly seated himself and quietly conversed with the jeweler.

"The note is perfectly good," he said softly to his employer. The merchant was puzzled. Was it possible that he could be mistaken? However, there was nothing else to be done. So he handed the note over and began to pack up a package of watches. He was about to inquire by what steamer the customer was going to leave, when the fellow turned and another more loudly dressed individual walked in. He looked at the first fellow, and, without minding the jeweler, who watched him narrowly, he slapped him a thundering whack on the shoulders and cried out:

"Hullo, Jack, what in goodness are you doing here?"

"Hullo, Joe! where do you come from? I bought some watches 'ere"

"The dickens you did! I am not just on the same herrand. And what did you buy watches for?"

"I am going to the West Indies."

"By the holy poker,'so am I! What steamer?"

"The Jamaica."

"Dease take it all, so am I. Well, now, me good fellow, just stay here till I'm done. I don't want to start on the same stuff you do. Just 'alp me select."

"Of course I will. 'Ow much are you going to spend?"

"Well, about a thousan' pund." The jeweler's face had become paler than ought ashake. He felt sure the coup was now coming and he doubled his watchfulness. His first fellow had played his goods, and the two fellows had soon selected another one thousand pounds sterling worth of watches. Like number one, a one thousand pound sterling note was offered in payment for number two. This time the jeweler felt sure that the note was a forgery.

"I have just told your friend," said he, "that I haven't change enough in my safe. It is surprising, but I can't imagine why such a moment I'll send the boy over to the bank with the note." Just make yourselves comfortable, gentlemen; the boy will be back in an instant." In a few minutes the boy returned, and again he mentioned:

"The note is perfectly good." The jeweler was more astonished than ever. After all he had been mistaken in these two suspicious-looking characters and his sharpness was at fault. He could scarcely believe it. His well-known shrewdness, his knowledge of human nature, needed correction. Incomprehensible! He handed the money change and package and was still conversing with the two when suddenly another loud-mouthed fellow, a burly policeman bounced in. He laid his strong hands on both men and cried: "Hallo, Hallorer, he said, "and Joe Winterbottom, I arrest you in the name of the Queen! Both of you, mind, you are under arrest, if you please. The game is up! I have plenty of help outside. So just let me put these little ornaments on your wrists, and the quicker you are about it the better all around."

The jeweler chuckled. After all he had been right, and these fellows were sharpers. He nodded his head complacently as he looked on. The fellows were remarkably good-natured, though thoroughly crestfallen. They did not offer the slightest resistance.

"Mighty hard luck, Joe," said John Hallowan, "and just when we was off for the West Indies, too." The good officer, you also's a-going to drag us through the streets like this, are ye?"

"Yes," said the complacent policeman. "Know you and your gang too well. Ye work there all the style you want, boys. I have a good mind right outside the door, and ye shall be driven to the Mansion House. And now, sir," he said, turning to the jeweler, "what have these fellows been doing, sir?"

"Bought one thousand pounds sterling worth of watches each of them, and paid me each with a one thousand pound sterling note."

"Hold on! hold on!" cried the officer, pulling out his pocket-book and hastily opening it. "Number fourteen thousand three hundred and three, ain't it? Yes, yes," nodded the officer.

"And number seventy-three thousand eight hundred and nine?"

"To be sure," chuckled the merchant.

"Both stolen from the Earl of Aberdeen. You'll remember that big burglary a few weeks ago, sir? It was the talk of all London, and then's the fellows that did it." The jeweler's eyes stared with vanity and surprise at first. He would scarce be an a witness in that celebrated case, but his sharpness had not been at fault after all.

"Well, I'll tell you what I will do, sir," continued the officer. "Just hand me those notes, and let your young man go with them, and I'll take the whole thing off his back. We shall need all this as evidence, as the barristers say, sir. And you, yourself, must come in half an hour to the Lord Mayor's office; we shall require your testimony, sir. Here's something a few cents, there is the name of the case, sir, and that's me own name and, number. Don't fail to come. This is a very important catch and will reflect credit on you, sir."

The money was handed over quickly by the policeman, the clerk with the two packages brought up the rear. The men were bundled into the cab. The policeman seated himself opposite to them, taking the watches on his lap, and all three were driven off majestically to the Mansion House. Half an hour later the jeweler presented himself full of pride at the Lord Mayor's court with the two rogues and the pretended policeman handcuffed to materialize.—Jewelers' Weekly.

SIGHTS IN EUROPE.

Places That Have Been Benefited by Fiction.

How many people realize that American tourists leave this country from twelve to twenty million sterling at least per annum? Such is the fact. Does anybody imagine that they come here to look at our buildings and scenery? Not at all. Almost nobody can fail to see that the main reason why the bulk of them visit us is to see the places made memorable by Shakespeare, Johnson, Scott and Burns, Dickens and Thackeray, George Eliot and Charlotte Bronte, Mrs. Gaskell and Black. The indebtedness of Gradgrind to romance is, therefore, by no means particularly wide in its range. But it is remembered that we, too, spend a considerable sum yearly in the same direction. Shakespeare has indirectly bestowed millions of pounds on the inhabitants of Stratford-on-Avon, which his name is associated. Not to mention Stratford-on-Avon, there is, for example, Eastbourne, a town which unites recollections of the great dramatists and of Dickens. Near Gad's Hill stands an inn on the very spot that Shakespeare doubtless had in his mind when writing that scene in Henry IV., where Falstaff meets with the "men in buckram." Round about, as everybody knows, are many buildings and districts made famous by the pen of the author of the Pickwick Club. To this neighborhood American pilgrims come in shoals, either before going or after having gone around such bits of "property" London as still remain. Scott, even while living, enriched whole districts. When "St. Ronan's Well" was published the notables of Moffat, little town honored in the romance "voted by acclamation," says Lockhart, "that the real name of Innerleithen should be, so far as possible, dropped thenceforth, and that of St. Ronan's adopted. Nor was Moffat backward in their eagerness for the scene of a romance. Nor were they less delighted by the appearance of the genius lost at all sparing in their demonstrations of gratitude. The traveller resting on the summit of the new erection there 'Abbotsford Place,' 'Waverley Row,' 'The Marmion Hotel,' or some inscription of the like nature." Such was one case in point. The interest in the works of the Northern Bard has not, it is said, by any means diminished. Abbotsford itself is still so popular a resort that the fees paid by visitors amount to about a year; and tourists go about in as great numbers as of yore, the "Lady of the Lake," "Marmion," or such like "Scotch novels" in hand looking up the places they have long pictured in imagination.—Chambers's Friday Journal.

Enthusiasm in Chicago.

"Whoop! Hooray!" yelled the Chicago man.

"What's up!" queried his companion.

"Niagara Falls are on the move in our direction. In the course of time Chicago 'll have 'em. Hooray! Whoop-oo-ooopee!"—Munsey's Weekly.

THE LATEST FADS.

Waterproof rouge is the latest invention for the toilet table.

The latest fad among equestrienses is to ride one day to the left side, the next to the right.

Among the recent novelties in silver goods is a match box with a compass imbedded in one side.

Cashmeres for the corners of rooms are now designed in wood. They are two feet high, new and inexpensive.

The fashion of giving one or two New York hostesses recently introduced is that of serving a dinner at small tables, in the form of a lunch.

One of the latest fancies of fashion has decreed carriage lamps in the shape of various flowers. There is hardly lamp, the rose lamp, the violet lamp, and so on, all very odd and very expensive.

The ladies of York, Neb., have a "guess party." The ladies send the gentlemen invitations reading: "Party in our set this evening. Guess where and come there." It is needless to say the ladies are always at home, for frequently visit a dozen houses before finding the right one.

The latest in New York is called the hot pine bath. Those who take it lie in a tank and have the tepid extract of pine poured upon them, which is wonderfully exhilarated by it. "Taken your pine this week?" is a favorite salutation in the different downtown stores.

Columbia College (Mo.) girls have an Equestrienne and Marriage club. Every time one of them has a gentleman escort to whom she is engaged she pays twenty-five cents into the treasury. When a member becomes married she pays in dollars. When a member gets married the club presents her with one hundred dollars.

A MUSICAL MELANGE.

Dr. Hans von Bulow has decided to give up public piano recitals.

Barnaby, the violinist, has pocketed twenty-five thousand dollars as the net profit of a two months' tour in England.

Ernestine says that fifty per cent. of the German audiences are asleep, sixteen per cent. of the French, and two per cent. of the English.

Miss Sanderson, an American singer, received the gold medal of the Danish order "Ingenio et Arti." Denmark after her first appearance in Copenhagen.

Mr. John W. Hutchinson, of the family of singers once so well known, recently held a reception on the occasion of his seventieth birthday at Lynn, Mass.

Among some music lately published is a Spanish dance by an Italian composer, a Polish ditty translated into French and printed in Germany and published in London, with a Boston imprint added.

Gounod, the composer of the opera Faust, has become insane, and has been placed in a private asylum. He is the grandson of the founder of the house of Rothschild, and has been living in Dresden, near which city he is now confined.

The late Harvey B. Dodsworth, the well-known New York bandmaster, left behind the music he had composed for the last thirty years. During the war, two changes in the regimental band, he thinks, and since then of the north no less than fifty bound volumes and five hundred manuscript

WHATEVER form of printed matter you require we can be of service to you; whether it be

Letter Headings,
Circulars,
Programmes, Menus,
Address,
Memorials,
By-Laws of Societies,
Prospectuses and Reports of Financial Associations, or any other matter for Public or Private Circulation.
Everything,

WEEKLY CONSTITUTIONALIST.

DAILY PRESS

(Chautauqua Building)

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

SANITARY PLUMBING,
Brick and Portable Furnaces,
GAS FITTING,
TIN ROOFING,
Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches of work in a satisfactory manner. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Having admitted myself with the Master Plumbers Association of New York City, I can guarantee all work done by me to be in accordance with the rules of the Association.

D. W. LITTELL,
No. 9 SOUTH AVE., (OPP. Plainfield, N. J.

COUNTRY FARMHOUSE.

Commodious, Substantial and Just What Many Are Looking For.

The size is 32x36 feet and it can be built of stone for $4,000, or of wood for $3,500.

This house contains 10 rooms as follows:

1st floor, 18x24 feet; sitting-room, 12 by 18 feet; dining-room, 12x20 feet; kitchen, 16x18 feet, and six chambers; two, 11x16; two, 12x16; one, 11x14, and one, 12x16. There is a store-room 6x8, wood-shed, 9x11, and front porch, 12x 36, with lower 18x11 feet.

The perspective shows a large fence built of field stones with large door through which one can enter the barn-yard or gardens.

FIRST FLOOR PLAN.

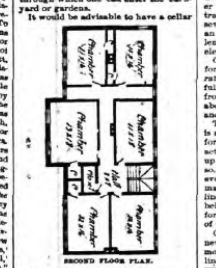
It would be advisable to have a cellar



SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

and a kitchen about 15 feet from the main house.

The finish of this house to be pine throughout, shingled roof and gables.

GEORGE A. W. KEYS.

ENGRAVING WITH FIRE.

A Delicate Surgical Apparatus Adapted to Use in the Arts.

During surgical operations it is often necessary to use a red-hot metal point for the purpose, says the Philadelphia Record, and apparatus is employed consisting of a hollow platinum tube, through which a current of air and hydrocarbon vapor passes. The platinum point is first heated in a spirit lamp, and then the vapor, ignited in the center of the tube at any desired heat, determined by the quantity of vapor used. A modified device, based upon the principle of the latter, has been introduced for engraving purposes. In this apparatus the tracing tool may be changed to suit the character of work to be done.

NEW ENGRAVING APPARATUS.

In the cut the benzine reservoir and double pipe connecting it with the tool are both shown. For industrial decoration and ornamentation on a large scale this method of engraving, to which the name of pyrogravure has been given, offers an admirable and practical means of utilizing the talent of the artist and the cleverness of the workman.

A Decidedly Peculiar House.

A peculiar stone has been discovered in Colorado. It resembles the opal, and when in its natural state is opaque. It possesses the peculiar quality of being as absorbent, and will readily drink in water, after which it becomes transparent; so perfectly so that objects placed beneath it can be distinctly seen. Its principal use is the name given to the new stone.

Carbonic Acid During Fogs.

Experiments made by a professor of University college, London, show that the high percentage of carbonic acid in the atmosphere during fogs, as stated by many, is not correct. The average of ten observations in 10,000, or more than double the normal amount for the particular locality, was found. In London and Manchester the percentage is much higher.

THE HOMING PIGEON.

Its Utility and the High Rate of Speed to Which It Attains.

The homing pigeon is the one kind of bird that has a distinctly utilitarian and scientific value in this enlightened age. During the Franco-Prussian war they were the only means of communication Paris had with the outside world when all the ingenuity of man and the ingenuity of man had failed. Since that period the French have established extensive Government lofts for the breeding and training of these truly remarkable birds. A proposition has also recently been made to supply our outgoing European steamships with pigeons for the purpose of being used at a distance of not exceeding 500 to 600 miles from New York; so, should any thing happen within this distance, almost instantaneous word could be brought to land; so far, however, the project has not taken definite shape. In the belief the "homer" somewhat resembles the English sparrow, but has not such heavy wattles, and is much smaller and more curved bill; he is not so long in the shanks, and has a finer carriage of the head. The eye is particularly large and brilliant, and the bird has an alertness and intelligence of look that is wanting in other varieties. In color they are a bright blue, with two heavy black bars across each wing, the throat and breast being of an iridescent blue and green shade. The tail feathers are generally checkered, red-checker, red, silver and white. The interest in these birds in this country is very great, and the annual races excite much attention, valuable prizes being offered for each competition, the Homing Pigeon Association also holding a show of its own every year. The club was originally established in Antwerp, and from there was imported into this country. Our Eastern homers have, however, outstripped their European rivals in the matter of speed and endurance, as our American-bred birds have demolished all former records for long distance flying. The average speed of the "homer" is given at quite a saluting point miles in 822 minutes being the best on record. The average flight for the first four hours of these homing pigeons is over 500 miles. Montgomery flew 1,051 miles, but took thirty odd days to get home, naturally much of this time he lost somewhere, delayed by storms or head-winds, and may have actually flown twice that distance, but he was never heard of from the hour he was liberated until he returned to the home loft a month after his start.—Harper's Weekly.

BEAUTY OF FORM.

The Charm of Proportions in Both Man and Woman.

Beauty of the human form is to-day exactly what it was in ancient Greece; it is the same through all the centuries, however blindfold we are to its charms and lovingly ignorance. The genius of ages is a true verdict, and those forms become safe models. Greek sculpture was wrought when the body received its highest cultivation, and was so beautiful as to be called divine, writes E. S. L. Adams in Harper's Bazar.

This sculpture should be carefully and continuously studied, as well as pictures of graceful figures. This ought to be made familiar, that one may learn why they are good, why they deserve admiration, that people faintly feel why they admire these classic models. But it must be in imagination only, else why should they have thought we fell severely into false standards of form, and positively distorted their own God-given bodies?

Searching for the highest standards of human form, we discover that beauty and harmony beauty differ essentially. It is agreed that the type of manly proportion includes a comparatively large head, wide shoulders, rather square, a torso tapering to a contracted waist, while the whole body is seven and one-half heads in height, or an additional half-head added to the length of the arms, giving a particularly elegant figure.

On the other hand, fine proportions for a woman are a small head, shoulders rather sloping and narrow, the torso full and wide at the hips, while the front line falls from the sternum to the abdomen and should show first a gentle, and then a full, outward curve.

The conventional figure of the day is at variance with this type. Every effort is made to imitate masculine characteristics, the shoulders are thrust up high and square, or made to appear so, the torso is made broader quite at everything taller heaven is done to make the waist look small. The front line is forced to take an inward curve below the bust, and the side lines to form an s-shaped angle, in the hollow of which voluminous skirts are hung.

One should study sculpture with the new knowledge of these proportions most likely to please, till shortly this outline has fastened itself upon the memory. Study also the pictures of the best artists of fashion, and small find these principles everywhere demonstrated.

The ideal of womanly proportion is in the long curve from armpit to ankle, which is as different from the beauty of a manly figure. The depression at the so-called waist line—only the asserting of two large muscles which in a beautiful woman are said to slight—would better be ignored in the clothing, for the sake of the greater beauty of the whole sweep.

It is to be understood that the long curves are made up of shorter contours, one gently melting into another. A form made up of graceful curves alone would be a weak, nerveless, insipid thing.

These proportions should be so understood, and so thoroughly appreciated, as to be always in mind, else so beautiful human form will not be recognized. The physical exercises to attain the perfection of the curves. Hand pictures showing their where they may grow into your thoughts.

LIVES BY HER WITS.

How a Shrewd Shoplifter Utilized a Tame Rat.

"There has been many extraordinary stories told about the ingenuity of thieves in the pursuance of their nefarious calling, but a case which occurred while I was at Chatham recently beats anything I ever heard," remarked a newly-arrived Englishman on a Philadelphia Inquirer man. "A lady was brought before the police court on the charge of robbing milliners' shops. She was only fourteen years of age and of very prepossessing appearance. What puzzled the magistrate was that those of the witnesses who were her take a fancy to her, or at least they would not swear to it, although after she had left a shop where she had been making a purchase articles of value were missed. When arrested nothing was found upon her. The magistrate said he could not convict the girl upon mere suspicion, and then began of cross-examining her himself in a kind, fatherly way which touched her heart, and she broke down and confessed that she was guilty and explained her methods to the astonishment and amusement of the court and spectators. It seems that she had a tame white rat which she carried about with her in a muff. She would enter a shop full of girls and women examine her himself in a kind, fatherly way which touched her heart, and she broke down and confessed that she was guilty and explained her methods to the astonishment and amusement of the court and spectators. It seems that she had a tame white rat which she carried about with her in a muff. She would enter a shop full of girls and women examine her muff

The Constitutionalist.

W. L. FORCE, A. L. FORCE
Editors and Proprietors.

CRIME AND ITS CURE.

If men would only resolve to be strictly honest and keep that obligation as a sacred living duty, how much happier this world would be!

In view of constantly transpiring events and their shocking results, an exclamation like unto the foregoing is timely and worthy of earnest thought.

Embezzlements in business trusts, frauds in the management of financial associations, and high-handed plundering by public officials, appear to be epidemic throughout the land. The newspaper record of such acts of dishonesty, ranging in figures amounts from a few hundred to hundreds of thousands of dollars, is alarming, to say the least.

It is a terrible record.

Shipwrecked characters, forfeited usefulness, fleeing from ill fated positions to foreign shores, or languishing behind prison bars, are among the fearful consequences.

And not such alone—

But pecuniary losses inflicted upon confiding victims, many of whom have to bear them, and greater still, the heartrending misery and mental torture suffered by innocent wives, children, relatives and friends—all are added to the darkened results of crime.

Why such carnival of wrong-doing?

Why the swelling tide of dishonesty?

There must be a cause for it, and we think, a few words will reflect to make the truthful answer.

GAMBLING SPECULATION, SO-TERMED BY A DESIRE TO ACQUIRE WEALTH WITHOUT HONEST LABOR IN RETURN.

That is the parent of evil, and to that source may be justly and directly traced the major portion of financial delinquencies.

What the cure?

When people are content with steady and moderate gains derived from the industrious prosecution of legitimate business, growing rich slowly but honestly, and refusing to be allured by gambling devices of any name or nature.

And when they totally withdraw countenance from corrupt political appliances of all parties, permitting no man, however presuming, to occupy official place who has the least taint of crookedness about him.

A potent remedy will be found.

TIN MINES.

No tangible information has yet been given as to the whereabouts of the wonderfully productive tin mines of America.

The consumers of tin are anxious.

Expeditions have recently started to again explore the rugged ranges of both the North and South Dakota.

Would not money so expended have been fruitful of far more practical results in a body of competent explorers instructed to find and report upon out fabulous source of tin riches.

If the mines are real, for truth's sake make public the knowledge.

If purely or mainly imaginative, let the fact be known and the enormous tin tax saddled by McKinley on the people be further analyzed.

It was placed there for a purpose, but many still cling over it for a relationship to the general public good.

Judge Hyer, of Rahway, is charged the name of his paper from the National Democrat to the Union Democrat, and will also change the size and change the form to eight pages. Success to the change.

Col. Harvey on Friday last sent his resignation to Gov. Abbett as Commissioner of Banking and Insurance, giving as his reason that he cannot give the time required by the official position. The Governor accepted the resignation reluctantly, and is not yet ready to appoint a successor.

The total value of the exports of breadstuffs from the United States during the month of May was $12 330,231. In May, 1890, the figures were $13,-684,758. For the eleven months ending May 31, 1891, the total value was $109,-956 984, and for the corresponding period in 1890, $137,505 082.

President Harrison, from appearances, will have serious trouble to keep up his fences, whether Mr. Blaine is "in it" or not. The report comes from Indianapolis that a secret conference has been held there by prominent Republicans from Ohio, Kentucky, Illinois and Michigan, opposed to his renomination, and that an effort will be made to organize those States and Indiana against him. The scheme is to nominate the friends of Gen. Alger and Gresham in the States named and to send solid Gresham delegations to the National Convention. The movement is regarded as a formidable one.

The National Farmer's Alliance has formulated a programme for business on a large scale. Its president has just issued a circular to the Alliance, simply requesting them to arrange for holding mass meetings in each Congressional District early in September. These are to be followed by co-operative tickets to give all an opportunity to attend and participate in the boom which the Alliance thus proposes to give the new People's party. There is not much for the platform to be announced the new party to the support of the farmers of New Jersey; while its views upon financial questions, we believe, will be objectionable to the great mass of them. The greatest hold will probably be in Kansas and the Northwestern States, where it will have the effect to greatly reduce the Republican vote.

A singular complication, and, evidently, one not anticipated, has resulted from the passage of the law by the recent Legislature of Kansas making eight hours a day's work. It has been ascertained that if the law is carried into effect it will require twelve hundred more employees to carry on the operations of the various State institutions, while the appropriations made by the Legislature will not permit of the employment of any more persons. The labor reformers have, in this case, rather over-reached themselves. Concerning the result will be for time to be made for keeping the institutions open or the Legislature will have to be called together in special session to provide for the emergency.

If he have you seen that women living? Joke, in Gotham? Well, what about it? That's a queer-looking organ for Brother Wine. Just see how it strikes around by the tail! It seems as if the strikers are found by chemists to be almost every one addicted to the use of the Wine of Cocoa of the New World—a delicious tonic, and a true friend to the brain fatigue and nervous prostration. Hotels have adopted their use where they are needed.

ANOTHER TIE.

Plainfield and Westfield Nestors Again Strike Scores.

On the evening of May 27, the five-men team of Pin Knights, of this city, went to Westfield and bowled two games with the Union Leagues five-men team of that place. Each won a game by the following scores: Pin Knights, 771 and 735. Union Leagues, 730 and 769. But the grand total was in Plainfield's favor—1,506 to 1,499.

Last Friday the Westfields came here and bowled on the Elkwood alleys. The same result was reached. Each won one game, and the grand total was in Plainfield's favor—1,699 to 1,670. The bowling was remarkably good—the lowest score being 773.

FIRST GAME.

PIN KNIGHTS.		CROSS LEAGUE.
Wade	182	Coburn	162
Voehl	181	Baker	190
VanHorne	181	Wilcox	159
Smith	182	Stiles	159
Kerwood	183	Seely	147
	773		769

SECOND GAME.

White	178	Cohen	169
Voehl	188	Baker	190
VanHorne	181	Wilcox	159
Neal	177	Stiles	164
Kerwood	189	Seely	179
	907		777

NEXT SATURDAY'S GAME.

The Crescents Will Have to Play Hard to Win—A Schedule of Games to Come.

The base-ball team that is to play against the Crescents of Lehigh on Saturday, is from Seton Hall College, Orange, and is probably one of the strongest teams in the State. For the past two years it has defeated both Princeton and Yale. During the present season they have won every game at home, and although they were defeated in Boston their game there was very strong. Last Saturday they defeated the Orange Athletic Club, which is composed of the best players of the old Jersey City and New York professional clubs of last year. Those who follow base-ball closely say that the Crescents will have to play hard to win.

A glance at the schedule of games to come will convince anyone that it is as interesting as it possibly can be made. The management early in April endeavored to secure a date with the Princeton University nine, but failed because of the inability of the college management to name a date before the close of the college session.

Referring to the article copied in THE PRESS from the Rahway paper, in the amount offered the Allentons, the Plainfield managers say the statement has no foundation in fact. In view of the weak game the Allentowns played here on May 30, it was not thought advisable to schedule a game with them at the time they asked for a date, which was during last February.

Following is a complete list of the games already played, and those scheduled for the remainder of the season. Cut it out and keep a record:

May 2—Caions of New Brunswick, at Plainfield, 8 to 2.
" 9—Star Athletics, of Newark, at Plainfield, 4 to 2.
" 23—Crescent Athletics, at Plainfield, 16 to 2.
" 30—Riderwoods, of Brooklyn, at Plainfield, 11 to 2.
June 6—Ammon, of New York, at Plainfield, 7 to 1.
" 13—West Ends, of Somerville, at Somerville, 2 to 0.
" 20—Seton Hall College, at Plainfield, to.....
" 27—North Side Athletics, at Plainfield, to.....
July 4—Phillipsburg, at Plainfield, ...to....
" 11—Crescent Athletics, of Brooklyn, at Plainfield, ...to....
" 18—Ridgewoods, of Plainfield, ...to....
" 25—West Ends, at Plainfield, ...to....
Aug. 1—Star Athletics, at Plainfield, ...to....
" 8—Corinthian Athletics, at Plainfield, ...to....
" 15—West Ends, at Somerville, ...to....
" 22—Westfield B. B. C., at Plainfield, ...to....
" 29—West Ends, at Plainfield, ...to....
Sept. 5—Westfield, at Westfield, ...to....
" 12—Seton Hall College, at Plainfield, ...to....
" 19—Westfield, at Plainfield, ...to....
" 26—Somerville, at Plainfield, ...to....

The Gunzlid Exploded.

The exploding of a gasoline stove at the residence of Chas. H. Wright, 343 South Second street, Thursday afternoon, caused considerable excitement, and almost a serious fire. Fortunately, Mrs. Wright, who was alone in the house at the time, Revelles, soon got the blaze that enveloped the stove extinguished, and so prevented it from reaching the wood-work.

Three Trains Daily for Graceland.

Ground will be broken in a few days for a railroad connecting Graceland, a new town on the Central Railroad midway between Fanwood and Westfield. Among those interested in the development of the property are H. F. Baldwin, General Passenger Agent of the Central Railroad, and A. A. Drake, a New York stock broker. The grounds about the proposed depot will be laid out in lawns and flower beds. All there is to the place now is a few newly-made streets, an avenue laid out in flower beds and a pond around which is a rustic summer-house and bridge. New houses are to be built, and three trains are to stop each day.

Stuck to His Post in Face of Peril.

Stephen Wenner, one of the oldest engineers on the Jersey Central service, was nearly killed Friday between Claremont and Communipaw by the connecting rod of his locomotive breaking and tearing a big hole in the bottom of the cab. The train was running fast at the time. Engineer Wenner was severely hurt about the legs, but he stuck to the post and stopped his train, which was filled with passengers. A collection was taken up on the ferry-boat by the passengers, and a handsome sum realized for the brave man, who later in the day was removed to his home. The fireman was slightly hurt by flying splinters from the cab.

Made by a Texas People's Party.

Very pretty children's day services were held at the Seventh-Day Baptist church Saturday. A young people's choir gave charming music. The voices were: Soprano, Bessie Brown; alto, Florence Smith, Mabel Mitchell, Lizzie Allis; altos, Mabel Maxson, Lulu Lewis; tenors, Frank Dawson, Harry Maxson; basses, Arthur Spicer, Ezra Stillman.

An offertory was sung by little Misses Myrtle Randolph, Bessie Randolph, Eva Lewis, Ethel Titsworth and Hattie Miller. Dr. Lewis spoke appropriately of the value of children to the church. The musical programme was very ably arranged by D. E. Titsworth. Jessie Utter was the efficient organist.

Plainfield Professorships at Alfred.

Edwin H. Lewis, son of the Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, of this city, has prepared a comprehensive and interesting pamphlet giving the course and methods of study at Alfred University, Alfred Centre, N. Y. Concerning the faculty for the coming term of '91-'92 the following appears: Chair of Social Interest are made: Edwin H. Lewis, A. M., the Wm. C. Kenyon Professorship of the Latin Language and Literature; the Rev. Alexander D. D. Professor of Church History and Homiletics; the Rev. L. C. Rogers, father of Charles Potter Rogers, of this city, the Alfred Professorship of Theology; the Rev. and Order; E. M. Tomlinson, the Wm. B. Maxson Professorship of the Greek Language and Literature; and Theodore L. Gardiner, M. D., Ph. D., the Alfred Professorship of Sanitary Chemistry and the Hebrew Language.

MISREPRESENTATION STILL CONTINUED.

A Few Rays of the Old Sunset's Crushed Glory Reappeared.

That scolding old woman the Central Times, in her issue of Wednesday last, says:

Mr. Low wishes gas per hydrant from the city for the water to be supplied by the Crescents. Gas companies charge $100 per hydrants per mile are to be used and paid for. The Water Supply Company's offer is $25 per hydrant per mile, or $50 for the whole. Mr. Low's offer will cost the city $200 per mile and that the Water Supply Company's $50.

The Water Supply Co. might cost the city $1,000 per mile. Mr. Low's price per hydrant is for the use of the water supplied also for fire purposes but also for flushing the sewers. The offer which the Times says the Water Supply Co. (made per hydrant, is for fire purposes only. The Company can add to that any figure they please per hydrant for flushing the sewers—in fact could make the price as high as to prevent any company, or even the bonded city that they have in view, building sewers in Plainfield until the Water Supply Co. bosses were "fined."

In the same issue of the Times, she says:

It must be pretty hard sometimes for the Corporation Counsel to save Mr. Low and the coalbine from legal pitfalls, in view of the manner in which they have involved him.

The way the "combine" have treated Corporation Counsel Marsh is: They not only raised his salary to a figure that was ever before paid a corporation counsel of this city, but they engaged the best to be had as assistant counsel to relieve him of some of the arduous labors that devolved upon him.

The following is another fallacy from last Wednesday's Times:

The sewerage question is in the Courts because of your (the Times') reckless haste.

The railway ordinance was passed by the Council unanimously—excepting Mr. Glinns, of course—and was approved by the Mayor. It is in the Courts, as everybody knows, because of the spite of the Times bosses who are bound to rule or ruin. That is the incentive and the reason of it all.

This is also from the Times of Wednesday last:

Suppose the Supreme Court declares that the law is constitutional, and the Water Works Company, which is now with its plant and machinery ready to begin work, suspends, continues its work, puts in the required number of hydrants and announces to the Council her readiness to begin work. It will the "Big Six" do then? The Water-Works contract does not say that "Company" is to be in existence, and the city will have the privilege of paying for two sets of hydrants for a given number of years.

The Water-Works Co.'s contract is probably invalidated long ago, but if not the Supreme Court will not declare it void. Water in our houses by now has passed entirely out of existence, having been choked to death by the same bosses that choked the life out of the sewers by the neck of the Times. As to the contract given it by the city being the property of another company, such transfer can only be consented to by consent of the party that gave the contract. Such consent, it is needless to state, was never given and never will be given unless the vicious bosses elect the majority in the next Council as they are already boasting of doing.

Founded on Captain Martin's Idea.

The annual century run of 100 miles from Newark to Philadelphia was inaugurated three years ago by twenty enthusiasts, led by Captain Frank L. C. Martin of this city, who determined to try to make the run in a day, though only six of the starters succeeded in accomplishing the run. From that time the run has grown until the affair of Saturday was the largest long distance run ever held.

The only prize offered is a silk banner to the club having the greatest number of "century" riders, but the ride is eagerly sought for as would be the most valuable prize.

For the second time the Century Wheelmen of Philadelphia have the honor of capturing the coveted pennant, sixty-three of the sixty-four men starting at Newark being registered on the official lists between the two cities. This is a good record for a single day's run for one club, and much of the credit is due to Captain Martin, who by constant care and steady pace throughout and allowed no "scorching", or racing. The second prize, also given to Philadelphia, is a Park Avenue Wheelmen, under Captain Riley, making a first-class record of forty finishers out of thirty-five starters.

The first man to finish was W. W. Evans, of the New York Athletic Club, who left the body of the run at Trenton and registered at Philadelphia at 4:30, Mr. Evans was also the first man to finish last year.

St. George's Cricket Club, at Elizabeth.

The St. George's Cricket Club of Plainfield played their first game of this season at Elizabeth, Saturday, against the Pioneer Cricket Club of that city. The game was characterized by good fielding and cordial fellowship shown for one another by the clubs, and also the unfortunate satisfaction with the umpire's decisions. Taken altogether it was a clean, gentlemanly game, and with a little more practice the Plainfield Club will be in the front rank.

The score in detail was as follows:

ST. GEORGE'S.

F. Wharton, thrown out, b. Jones	0
T. Chamberlain, run out, b.	0
J. Ogden, b. Jones	1
J. Ogden, b. Jones	0
J. Standfield, b. Jones	1
H. Standfield, b. Jones	0
N. Hendry, b. Jones	0
C. Mackintosh, b. Jones	0
C. Jolley, b. Jones	0
C. Jolley, b. Jones	0
C. Mackintosh, not out	0
Extras	2
	5

PIONEERS.

C. Clark, caught Wharton, b. Standfield	5
T. Boston, caught Jolley, b. Hendry	5
T. Jones, b. Hendry	0
W. MacNicol, b. Standfield	2
A. Dunbar, b. Standfield	2
A. Dunbar, b. Arden	17
T. K. Millin, b. Arden	0
T. Place, run out	0
J. Bird, not out	2
L. Tardley, b. Arden	0
Extras	2
	35

The Elizabeth Journal said: "The hearts of the Pioneer Club nearly failed them on Saturday, as they, with only ten men, faced the eleven men loaned on the Plainfield contingent, who appeared on the Clifton street grounds in full force. The St. George's eleven of Plainfield proved to be a lot of no mean batsmen against, but the phenomenal bowling of Mr. T. Jones, who in six overs took seven wickets, pretty well carried the game in favor of the home team, who followed and got a score of 69. Mr. Alex. Dunbar was top score man with 17 runs. After the batting innings was played the Plainfield fielders again went in to bat and put up 35 runs for five men out, proving that under more favorable circumstances they could have done better.

The second inning was as follows:

Wharton, did not bat
Chamberlain, run out	2
Arden, not out	0
Standfield, not out	0
Davis, thrown out	0
Mackintosh, b. Jones	0
Ogden, b. Jones	0
Gow, b. Boston, b. Jones	0
Hendry, did not bat
Boston, b. Standfield	0
Jolley, b. Jones	0
Leg Bye	1
Extras	2
	5

Myrtle Hyer's Cough Cure is the kind that makes root beer in five minutes.

WERE WE SCARED TO DEATH?

Sheriff's Sale Was the First of the Series of Fall Scares, in the First Instance.

It was n't the Oregonian Lagle-slinging base-ball nine that played against the West Ends at Somerville, Saturday afternoon. It was a field full of Sheriff's sale bloodhounds that played in from the field, John Harkins's strong right arm moved it down with ease—first clipping its pedigree—and then continuing it on close to the route.

There are many men of many minds as to any one particular thing, but there is one thing in Congress. Judges and experts say Taylor is no good, while a base-ball concessionaire was heard to remark that the Crescents lost because Harkins was absent.

The reason of the result is just this: the West Ends made the greatest effort that they ever put up—a well nigh perfect game; while the Crescents were scared to death at the start and up to their necks in hard luck throughout the game.

The battery work of Harkins and Kennedy was phenomenal. Only once each in the second, seventh and ninth innings, the Crescents managed to get a ball out of reach. Kennedy's back-stop work was the feature of the game, and he made two miraculous foul-fly catches that drew the plaudits of the audience insane with admiration. The only error of the West Ends up to the ninth inning, was the muff of Fred Kelly, the Lacy, Sheridan & Co. Queen's-Agent, but he dropped because it was so superlatively simple a catch. In the ninth inning, Moorhead and Heiser each made a short stop-away from the ball. The only the first was a costly error. The latter player, who fills Williams's place on third, did not prove an acquisition. He did his part at the bat, for he got a steal a base, and struck out twice. Farrell covered his position in fine shape and accepted seven chances. The Queen's-Agents comprised the cavalcade: Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Vail, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Peddle, Mr. Frank Rogers, Miss Bennett, Mr. Russell, Mr. E. M. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison, Mr. Robert Sinclair, Miss Peddle, Mr. Rollins Grant, Miss Grelves, Mr. E. Tazney, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Miller, Mr. J. Dickson, Miss Jackson and Mrs. Dr. Jobs.

A Bicyclist Injured by a Bounding Wire.

James Allen Sangston was riding along Park avenue on his bicycle after the shower last night, when he ran into an electric messenger service wire which was dangling in the air. The wire caught him under the chin and had he not applied the brake at once he would have received a sudden halt if not have cut his throat. As it was an ugly welt was raised on the chin, and the wheel of the bicycle was somewhat damaged by the tumble they had to take. A similar accident happened to Dr. Wells a short time ago.

A Chicken Thief Gets Fifteen Years.

Lewis Wall, the principal of the two thieves who stole so many hundreds of chickens in this section, and who were finally entrapped at the hut in the woods near Plainfield, was sentenced by Judge McCormick, Saturday, to fifteen years' imprisonment. He is an old offender, and has been in State Prison before, so took his sentence coolly. Augustus Ward, his pal, who is quite a young man, was sentenced to six months' confinement in Jail. The reason for dealing so lightly with Arnold, court said, was because it was evident that Arnold had been led astray by Wall and would reform.

Two Williams Break the Records.

Already twice this season have long standing records been broken by fishermen in the waters of the Magnetic Club's preserves in Lake Hopatcong, and the honor has fallen on the shoulders of members of the Club residing in this city.

The first was Mr. Wm. Williams, Jr., who caught a black bass weighing 6½ pounds, which is heavier than any ever caught before in the Club's lakes. Last week Mr. H. Bruen Williams added an 8-pound brook trout, after a long struggle. This is not only larger than the Magnetic Club had record of, but probably larger than the majority of fishermen have ever heard of.

Dr. Holmes and Dr. Coles.

Miss Emilie Coles, of Scotch Plains, daughter of the late Dr. Abraham Coles, has presented from Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes a copy of "Over the Teacups." My Dear Miss Coles:—I should represent myself for not having written to you before this, but I am sure you will excuse me. Letters and articles which gave me so much to think of that I could claim forgiveness for many omissions. I second that motion. And Dr. Holmes's whole circle of friends on both of sides of the Atlantic. One of them, a lady, who knows me and he will leave a wide blank when he goes to farewell.

The Death of Your Father puts out another light in the fatal globe. Your father was a friend. I have always considered it a great privilege to enjoy the friendship of so pure and lofty a spirit—a man who seemed to be always ready to see his native atmosphere, and to carry its influence with him. Now that you have the sad memories you have to carry with you all your life, I can only say that there was no time which I lay he could have wished for a friend than there was no time which the parent of God's children could have wished, would not have looked upon approvingly.

It is a blessed record your father has left. His memory will long be cherished as one of our truest and sweetest singers, and the most devotion of consolation to you will be that with you in bodily presence is in remembering all that he has been.

With sincerest and most affectionate regards, I am, Yours sincerely,

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

Boston, June 9, 1891.

Commencement in the Suburbs.

Very pleasant were the closing exercises of the Washingtonville public school, held at the Mary E. Wilson Memorial Chapel, last Friday evening. After the usual opening exercises conducted by the teachers to the pupils the following programme was rendered:

Piano solo	Mrs. Lowerson
Organ solo	Florence Brown
Chorus—"Let's Be Happy"	The School
Recitation—"Over at Three"	Jennie Hopkins
Recitation	"The Old School Clock"
	Harry Acker.
Chorus	"Ho, Ho, Pretty Days Are Here"
	The School.
"A Message for Ma in Heaven"	Carrie Bullis.
	[man
Recitation	The Conductor's Story"
	John Stiles, Jr.
Chorus	"Little Plaid Sun Bonnet"
	The School.
"The Giant and the Dwarf"	Willie Acker
Trio—"There's Music in the Air"	Robert and Eddie Clark and Epiram Acker.
Recitation—"Johnnie Right"	Jennie Simpson
Recitation	"Don't Do Just So Think"
	Bertie Clark.
Song—"Little Talents"	By five girls
Recitation—"Daddy Fills"	Robert Clark
Recitation	"Waiting for Something to Turn Up" Mrs. Lowerson
Song—"America"	The School
Recitation—"Barbara Frietchie"	Eddie Clark
Recitation	"Mother's Sons and Daughters"
"Eighteen Sons and Daughters"	Etta Acker
Solo	Mrs. Lowerson
Recitation	"Your Children Come Home to James Walker. Root"
Duet and chorus	"Pleasant School"
	Girls "Yankee Doodle"
Recitation	Ella Clark and Harry Acker
"Boys of 1861"	Elmer Acker
Instrumental solo	Mrs. Lowerson
Song	The School
Duet	Mrs. Bullman and Miss Georgie Spencer

[or

Remarks, by Robert Clark, School Trustee.
"Little Real Commencement" The School

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 30, 1890.

Having been a sufferer for sometime with Rheumatism, I was induced to be persuaded to use Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills. I am glad to say that after using two boxes of them I am entirely cured, and that they are so recommended. I therefore cheerfully recommend them to all suffering with Rheumatism. I therefore subscribe myself, very gratefully to Dr. Deane's Pills for my entire relief with them.

Yours truly,
JOHN F. KELLY.

News Editor Free American.

MOONSHINERS AT NETHERWOOD.

Patrolman Grant Raids an Illicit Liquor Shop in the Heights Park Woods, and Captures the Chief Offender.

Police Captain Grant made an important arrest at 3:30 Thursday afternoon. For three months the police force have been at work securing evidence against those whom they learned were selling liquor to the laborers who were engaged in laying out the streets at Netherwood Heights Park.

Thursday, on a warrant duly issued by City Judge Randolph, Mr. Grant made his first capture.

He arrested the chief offender, against whom the city has over-whelming evidence.

His name is Felix Sterpon, familiarly known as Philip. He is an Italian, and a foreman for contractor Michael Dilal, superintendent of the work in question.

Sterpon said, "Me sella no beer", which was accepted as a plea for not guilty. Unable to furnish bail he was sent to jail. Besides selling liquor without a license to the Italians, Sterpon is accused of having sold unlicensed beer to James Brenner, of Grant street. He is said to have driven a thriving illicit trade.

Quite an extensive moonshining establishment is said to have been conducted recently in Sterpon's shed. Netherwood woods, where he was caught this afternoon.

The Harrisons' Way of Keeping Cool.

Alonzo Randolph and Harrison Randolph, two brothers, colored men, kept a boat-house on the Rahway River one day. They had a fight in a Second street alley. After each had done considerable pummeling one got the other down and pulled and kicked him in his party's content. Then both went home happy.

The Umpire Helped 'Em Win.

The second game of the base-ball between the Stars of Washingtonville and the Natives of Stony Hill resulted in a victory for the Stars, ably assisted by the umpire, as the score by innings:

Natives	0	0	1	0	0	3	2	1	—2
Stars	1	2	4	1	1	1	2	0	2—14

Batteries—R. Rogers, D. Rogers; C. Smith and Dalzell. Umpire—Mr. Rogers, 14; by Compton, 3. Scorer—Felix Layatt.

Gettysburg on the Glorious Fourth.

Patriotism and pleasure in coalition will attract many of THE PRESS readers to the historic battlefield of Gettysburg, on coming Independence Day. The Reading Railroad, which recently acquired control of the only direct line to this famous spot, is preparing a new and handsome time card in connection, and the route, by way of Harrisburg, from any part of the Reading system, is a most delightful one. The rates for excursion tickets will be greatly reduced, and special tickets will be sold on July 3 and 4, good to return until July 6, particulars of which will soon be announced by the railroad company.

The Veterans Marched Through Lines of Children.

Captain William Hand and T. O. Doane, of this city, John Hand, of North Plainfield, and A. S. Titsworth, of Dunellen, were among the veterans of the Eleventh Regiment, N. J. Vols., present at its reunion in Phillipsburg Tuesday. It was an inspiring affair. As the old heroes marched through the streets the school children arranged themselves along each side and sang "America" and "Marching Through Georgia".

The men marched by the children with uncovered heads and first in silence, not the feeling within them was plainly visible from their moistened eyes. As the column moved to the court in the square the children were again marched through two lines of scholars. The scene was too inspiring to the veterans to retain their silence any longer, and they gave vent to their feelings with hearty cheers. The children sang "Red, White and Blue".

Executors of Peter Kuyk's Estate.

MELLIN'S FOOD FOR INFANTS AND INVALIDS.

Trade Mark. FOOD

CHASED HIS MOTHER WITH A KNIFE.

The Woman Afraid to Stay Home at Night, for Fear Her Son Would Kill Her.

Charles Bradford Donaldson, a ten-year-old lad whose parents live at Westfield, was captured Tuesday by detective John M. C. Marsh, who has been looking for him for some time. Young Donaldson is an incorrigible boy. He possesses a fiendish temperament, and has long been a terror to his father and mother. Recently he chased his mother out of her own yard and stoned her, so that she had to take refuge with neighbors. Later he attacked her with a big butcher knife and repeatedly tried to kill her. The old Mr. Marsh she was afraid of her life, and did n't care to stay home alone at night, for fear the boy would kill her. When the husband has been away she has had to sleep at the home of friends, and even when her husband is at home she has been in constant danger, as the lad would attack his father just as ferociously, and was equally beast in strength and devility. Some weeks ago young Donaldson burned down the back of hay. In every way he has been a terror to the town. His parents asked Mr. Marsh to arrest him, and the warrant was accordingly kept out of sight. Last evening Mr. Marsh, came across some boys who sat on a big clothes basket, holding down the cover. From the basket smothered cries issued.

"Hello, boys!"—said the detective.

"What have you in the basket?"

"Charlie Donaldson!"—they answered.

So Mr. Marsh got its prisoner in a jiffy and took him to the Elizabeth jail. The lad will be sent to the Reform School.

DYING OF POISON.

Fatal Mistake of Aged Mrs. Keen, Who Plucked a Deadly Plant for a Vegetable.

Mrs. William Keen is dying of poison at her home in Union Village. She was taken ill early last night, and for a few days ago when by mistake she plucked a number of deadly poisonous wild parsnips. Whether or not she cooked some of the fatal plant with the greens that she ate, or whether the mere handling of the poison caused the sad result, is not known, but at any rate the third day large white swollen blotches appeared on her hands and spread all over her body. The usual remedies were applied, and medical aid was given, but the woman's sufferings grew constantly worse, and now her life is despaired of.

Mrs. Keen is more than 80 years of age. Her husband was formerly principal of the Newark High School.

THE BIG ONE-DOLLAR BOTTLE
Perfect Substitute for Mother's Milk.
INVALUABLE IN CONSTIPATION AND TEETHING.
A Quickly Nutritious Food.
For DYSPEPTICS, CONSUMPTIVES, CONVALESCENTS. A PERFECT NUTRIENT IN ALL WASTING DISEASES. PREPARED FOR ALL CLIMATES. KEEPS IN ALL CLIMATES. Send for Pamphlet. Sold by all Druggists, or sent, prepaid, on receipt of price.
Dollar-Soodah Co., BOSTON, MASS.

A BIG
DRY GOODS DEP'T!
AT THE
NEWARK BEE HIVE.

THE "BEE-HIVE"
THE GREAT BUSY-BEE-FANCY-GOODS-BAZAAR.

Greatly Increased Room for this Important Branch of Our Business.

Bigger Assortments and Lower Prices than Ever.

While for samples, inclosing this slip cut from THE CONSTITUTIONALIST

Very latest Paris novelty in Bi-State wash goods in handsome patterns and latest colorings, at 25c yd.

Elegant line of Parisian Foulé serge in rich colors of purple, lilac, heliotrope, Nemache and mazarin, 46 inches wide, all wool, at 75c yd.

High class "styles" plaids and checks, in all wool and silk mixture, 42 inches wide, at only 39c yd.

52 inches "genuine Grampian wool" Scotch cheviot suitings, in plain and mixtures, very desirable for walking or traveling costume, at 95c yd.

Twenty-nine shades of silk and wool, in the most exquisite shades for street and evening wear, and for elegant tea gowns, 42 inches, at 98c yd.

Egyptian printed Mousseline suitings, in plaids and fancy floral designs, 1 yard wide, at only 25c yd.

Five Scotch ginghams, 34 inches wide, in plain plaids and stripes, at 25c yd.

Gibson percales, handsome line of patterns and colorings, a very desirable fabric for ladies, stylish wash dress, at 25c yd.

Thirteen "outing flannel", very desirable for outdoor negligee wear, at only 10c yd.

All-linen all-wool cashmere, in the leading shades of grays, tans, pearls and mode, at 48c yd.

Second line of Faille silk, in the latest shades for street or evening wear, at 79c yd.

When Millinery, so uppermost in mind, it will be policy to visit Our New Department, where the fashionable cut flowers can get up a Hat, Bonnet or Toque, for the outlay of very little money.

L. S. PLAUT & CO.,
BROAD STREET, 707 to 721,
NEWARK, N. J.
No Branch Store. 5t 7

FUR STORAGE!

Fur of every description
Taken on Storage
And Insured against all loss by Moth or Fire, at a much lower percentage than any Insurance Co.
Seal Skin Garments
To order, and must be done during the Summer months.
Alterations & Repairs
Should be done NOW, to avoid delay in the Fall.
W. H. & R. BURNETT,
17 ACADEMY STREET,
NEWARK, N. J. 1 7 mo

A FEW TRAINED AGENTS
Should be handle a New Work of a unique character.
The World's Religions.
Agents LIBERAL TERMS. A Grand Chance to Make Money.
Best Territory.
THE CHRISTIAN LITERATURE CO.
30 Bond Street, NEW YORK. 3 29 2m

The Soap that Cleans Most is Lenox.

Notice of Settlement.

Notice is hereby given that the accounts of the undersigned as executors of the last will and testament of Peter Kuyk, late of the township of Union, deceased, will be audited and settled by the Surrogate of the County of Essex, on the eighteenth day of August next.

MONROE B. LUNG,
ISAAC D. PRICE,
Executors.
Dated June 4, 1891. 6 11w2

CATARRH
CREAM BALM
Cleanses the Nasal Passages, Allays Pain and Inflammation, Heals the Sores, Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell.
HAY-FEVER
A particle is applied into each nostril and is agreeable. Price 50 cents at Druggists, by mail, registered, 60 cents. ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York. 1 23 1y

DURING WARM WEATHER,
GO TO
The Plainfield Packing House,
25 WEST FRONT STREET,
FOR
Boiled Hams,
Tongues & Corned Beef
Ready for Table Use.
OUR Bolognas & Sausages,
Are Noted for Their Excellent Quality and Flavor.
C. M. L. RICH.

HARRISON'S
"Town and Country"
READY MIXED PAINTS.
Are unsurpassed if equalled in the following respects:
They are painters' paints.
They are ready for use.
They are sold at no old-time prices, but at a reasonable one for the best paint.
They are the best paint for many years wear when properly applied.
They will cover a greater surface per gallon than any other paint.
They are made in all colors, new tints and shades, and will not fade.
They are sold in quantities to suit purchasers, from one pint to one barrel.
They are sold by the gallon at $1 50 per gallon.
They are sold by the barrel at $1 40 per gallon.
They are sold by the ton at $1 30 per gallon.
They are sold by the car load at $1 25 per gallon.
They are sold by the train load at $1 20 per gallon.
They are sold by the vessel load at $1 15 per gallon.
They are sold by the cargo at $1 10 per gallon.
They are sold by the ship load at $1 05 per gallon.
They are sold by the fleet load at $1 00 per gallon.
They are sold by the navy load at 95c per gallon.
They are sold by the world at 90c per gallon.
They are sold by the universe at 85c per gallon.
They are sold by the solar system at 80c per gallon.
They are sold by the galaxy at 75c per gallon.
They are sold by the milky way at 70c per gallon.
They are sold by the nebulæ at 65c per gallon.
They are sold by the comets at 60c per gallon.
They are sold by the meteors at 55c per gallon.
They are sold by the asteroids at 50c per gallon.
They are sold by the moon at 45c per gallon.
They are sold by the sun at 40c per gallon.
They are sold by the fixed stars at 35c per gallon.
They are sold by the planets at 30c per gallon.
They are sold by the zodiac at 25c per gallon.
They are sold by the milky way at 20c per gallon.
They are sold by the nebulæ at 15c per gallon.
They are sold by the comets at 10c per gallon.
They are sold by the meteors at 5c per gallon.
They are sold by the asteroids at 1c per gallon.
They are sold by the moon at ½c per gallon.
They are sold by the sun at ¼c per gallon.
They are sold by the fixed stars at ⅛c per gallon.
They are sold by the planets at 1-16c per gallon.
They are sold by the zodiac at 1-32c per gallon.
They are sold by the milky way at 1-64c per gallon.
They are sold by the nebulæ at 1-128c per gallon.
They are sold by the comets at 1-256c per gallon.
They are sold by the meteors at 1-512c per gallon.
They are sold by the asteroids at 1-1024c per gallon.
They are sold by the moon at 1-2048c per gallon.
They are sold by the sun at 1-4096c per gallon.
They are sold by the fixed stars at 1-8192c per gallon.
They are sold by the planets at 1-16384c per gallon.
They are sold by the zodiac at 1-32768c per gallon.
They are sold by the milky way at 1-65536c per gallon.
They are sold by the nebulæ at 1-131072c per gallon.
They are sold by the comets at 1-262144c per gallon.
They are sold by the meteors at 1-524288c per gallon.
They are sold by the asteroids at 1-1048576c per gallon.
They are sold by the moon at 1-2097152c per gallon.
They are sold by the sun at 1-4194304c per gallon.
They are sold by the fixed stars at 1-8388608c per gallon.
They are sold by the planets at 1-16777216c per gallon.
They are sold by the zodiac at 1-33554432c per gallon.
They are sold by the milky way at 1-67108864c per gallon.
They are sold by the nebulæ at 1-134217728c per gallon.
They are sold by the comets at 1-268435456c per gallon.
They are sold by the meteors at 1-536870912c per gallon.
They are sold by the asteroids at 1-1073741824c per gallon.
They are s

LAWS OF NEW JERSEY.

(BY AUTHORITY.)

CHAPTER CXLIV.

An act for the formation and government of cities.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the inhabitants of any city, town or township, not less than three thousand in number, by which terms cities, towns or townships are hereby respectively designated, may become a body politic and corporate, in law, by the name of the city, town or township, as the case may be, and a body politic and corporate, in law, by the name of the county, as the case may be, for the purposes, and subject to the powers and provisions of this act.

2. And be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of the assessor or assessors of the real estate of any city, and for the county in which said proposed borough is situate, or, if there be more than one, of the judges, next, to make out a list of the names of all persons who are residents of the proposed borough as it is and shall be bounded, and to subscribe their names to the same, and to deliver the same to the clerk of the county court in said county, upon presentation to him of the petition for the incorporation of the borough of the proposed borough, as the same appears in the assessment roll of the last assessment of the real estate of the said city, and for the county in which the said proposed borough is situate, and the boundaries of the proposed borough, as the same appear in the petition for the incorporation of the same, and said election to be held at some convenient place within the said proposed borough, to be named in the writing under his hand, which notice shall contain all such matters and things as to the bounds and boundaries or the proposed borough as it is and shall be bounded, and the name of the same, and the time of the day, and the place at which the said election is to be held, and shall be signed by the said clerk of the county court, and upon presentation to him of the petition for the incorporation

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

LAWS OF NEW JERSEY.

(BY AUTHORITY)

CHAPTER DCLXIV.

An act to amend an act entitled "An act to provide for sewage and drainage in incorporated towns and to regulate the laying out of water mains," passed April 2d, 1880, and the several supplements thereto.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the title of the act to which this is a supplement be amended to read as follows: "An act to provide for sewage or drainage, or both, in incorporated townships in which there is a public water supply."

2. And be it enacted, That section three of the said act be amended to read as follows:

3. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in any incorporated township in this state in which a supply of water for public and domestic use is furnished, or shall be hereafter given from water works, it shall be lawful for the board of commissioners of such township governing body of such township to provide for, obtain and cause to be constructed a system of sewage or drainage, or both.

6. And be it enacted, That section two of the said act be amended to read as follows:

2. And be it enacted, That it shall be lawful for the said board of township committee or other governing body of such township, when in their opinion the public good demands it, to purchase, obtain, take, or to construct, or cause or draine, or both, to be constructed from time to time in such township, such pipes or sewers as they may designate in the ordinance or ordinances which the said board of township committee or other governing body may for that purpose adopt and pass.

7. And be it enacted, That section nine of the said act be amended to read as follows:

9. And be it enacted, That the said assessment so made and certified shall be a lien upon the lots and parcels of land respectively assessed from the date of the confirmation of the report thereof, except the assessments for respective benefits which shall only become a lien as hereinafter provided, and shall be the duty of the board of township committee or other governing body of such township, in which such improvement shall have been made, to cause a copy of the report of the commissioners making such assessment, duly certified by the clerk of the county in which said township is situated, to be prepared and delivered to the collector or collector of such township, who shall enter the same in a book to be by him for that purpose provided; and said collector shall give notice for four weeks in some newspaper circulating in said township, that said report has been delivered to him, and requiring payment of the several assessments against any owners of lands and real estate for such improvement within thirty days from and after the confirmation of said report by the circuit court of said county; and in case said assessment shall remain unpaid at the expiration of thirty days from and after the first publication of said notice, the said assessment shall draw interest thereupon from and after that time, at the rate of one per cent. per month, except the assessments for prospective benefits, which shall draw interest only in the manner hereinabove provided; and the said board of township committee or other governing body of such township, shall have the same remedies and rights to enforce the payment of all such assessments as are given to enforce the collection of taxes in such township, and by like proceedings, provided, that the lowest bid for work shall have the right to make the said assessment for benefits payable by instalments as in this act and hereinbefore described, and in such case the owners of lands specially assessed may pay said assessments in such yearly payments not exceeding ten, as the township committee may direct, with interest upon the unpaid sums from the date of said commissioners' report, the interest on the whole assessment to be paid annually by the said lot owners, and such payments shall be made within three months after each interest shall become due and payment of said commissioners, and upon failure to make any of the annual payments or any instalment of interest when due, the whole of said assessment then due, the whole of said assessment shall become immediately due and shall be payable and the notice to be given by the collector, as above provided, shall be to that effect; provided, that the owners of said lands have the privilege of paying the whole of any assessment with the interest accrued.

8. And be it enacted, That section twelve of the said act be amended to read as follows:

12. And be it enacted, That it shall and may be lawful for the said board of township committee or other governing body of such township, when they shall deem it necessary for the purpose of supplying water for the extinguishment of fire, or for the use of the inhabitants of such township, and by the same resolution and rights to enforce the payment of all such assessments as are given to enforce the collection of taxes in such township, and by like proceedings, provided, that the lowest bid for work shall have the right to make the said assessment for benefits payable by instalments as in this act and hereinbefore described, and in such case the owners of lands specially assessed may pay said assessments in such yearly payments not exceeding ten, as the township committee may direct, with interest upon the unpaid sums from the date of said commissioners' report, the interest on the whole assessment to be paid annually by the said lot owners, and such payments shall be made within three months after each interest shall become due and payment of said commissioners, and upon failure to make any of the annual payments or any instalment of interest when due, the whole of said assessment then due, the whole of said assessment shall become immediately due and shall be payable and the notice to be given by the collector, as above provided, shall be to that effect; provided, that the owners of said lands have the privilege of paying the whole of any assessment with the interest accrued.

6. And be it enacted, That section twelve of the said act be amended to read as follows:

15. And be it enacted, That it shall and may be lawful for the board of township committee of the said township to direct the collector to skip to keep the sewers or drains or other works which may be constructed under the provisions of this act, to repair and scour the same, and to make, establish and enforce regulations and ordinances for the proper protection and use of the same and as to connections therewith, and they shall have the power to enter into agreements with persons, firms or corporations for the use of said sewers or drains, and for connections, as said board of township committee or other governing body of such township may impose, and to establish a price to be paid for such use and to collect the same; provided, that all moneys derived from the use of said sewers or drains shall be applied to the payment of the debt incurred in building the same and the interest thereon.

7. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act be and the same are hereby repealed and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved April 27, 1892.

CHAPTER DCLXVII.

A further supplement to the act entitled "An act to establish and regulate the state reform school for juvenile offenders," approved April 24th, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the sum of five thousand dollars is hereby appropriated to be used by the trustees of the state reform school for juvenile offenders, for establishing a manual training school, in which shall be taught the mechanic arts, wood turning and such other industrial arts and pursuits as may be determined upon by said trustees.

2. And be it enacted, That the sum of seven thousand dollars is hereby appropriated to be used by said trustees in the erection of a chapel to the end that necessary facilities may be afforded for the religious and moral instruction of the inmates of said school.

3. And be it enacted, That the appropriations hereinabove made shall be paid by the treasurer of the state, on the warrant of the comptroller, out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise specially appropriated.

4. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved April 27, 1892.

CHAPTER DCLXXIV.

A further supplement to an act entitled "An act respecting the composition of the chancellor and justices of the supreme court," approved March fourteenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-nine.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the chancellor and chief justice of the supreme court of this state shall each be entitled to receive an annual salary at the rate of ten thousand dollars, and that when the appointment of any judicial circuit or district in this state exceeds one hundred thousand inhabitants, according to the latest state or federal census, unless or to be less than the annual salary of the justice to whose appointment it may be assigned shall be increased beyond the salary allowed to him as aforesaid by the sum of dollars as will equal two per centum of such excess of population over one hundred and eighty thousand; and additional salary or compensation required by the provisions of this act to be paid to the justice assigned to any such judicial circuit or district shall be apportioned to him, according to said per centum of said excess of population as above said, by the treasurer of state, and out of the moneys of this state in the treasury of which the said justice shall be one of the justices of the supreme court and assigned to hold the courts of law and equity in said circuit or district, and shall be paid to him quarter yearly, upon the warrant of the comptroller of the treasury.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved April 27, 1892.

CHAPTER DCLXXV.

A supplement to an act entitled "An act to regulate fees," approved April fifteenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the circuit courts of the several counties of this state in this state may, in his discretion, fix the compensation of the court stenographer at an annual salary, not to exceed the sum of attendance upon the courts of the county, which shall be paid by the collector of the county as the said judge shall order.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved April 28, 1892.

CHAPTER DCLXXVII.

A supplement to an act entitled "An act for the incorporation of boroughs," approved February twenty-eighth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the provisions of an act entitled "An act for the publication of the law and chancery reports," approved February twenty-eighth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven, be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

5. And be it enacted, That said reports shall be printed by said law and chancery reporters respectively at their own expense, upon good paper to be approved by the secretary of state; and whenever a number of said reports shall be printed, the said reporters shall each deliver to the agent appointed to take the house and adjacent public grounds four hundred copies thereof, for which the treasurer shall pay to the said reporters the sum of one dollar per number and no more, and the same is hereby appropriated for the purpose.

3. And be it enacted, That section ten of the said act to which this act is a supplement be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

10. And be it enacted, That the superintendent of the state house and the adjacent public grounds shall on the receipt of said reports, after reading one copy of each, deliver over the residue to be distributed under the direction of the governor, as follows: to the governor of this state, three copies; to the secretary of the legislature, one copy; to the state librarian, one copy; to the state law library, two copies; to the department of state of the United States for the congressional library, four copies; to the governor of each state and territory in the United States, one copy; to each state library association in congress from this state, one copy; to the chancellor in this state and each judge of the supreme court, one copy; to the court of appeals, one copy; to the secretary of state, one copy; to the supreme court, clerk in chancery and attorney general, superintendent of public instruction, the state board of assessors, adjutant general and commissioners of appeals for their respective offices, each one copy; to the state geologist, register and surrogate in this state, for their respective offices, one copy; to the New Jersey historic societies and the New Jersey state library, each one copy; to the Newark library association, one copy; to each incorporated library association in the state which has a law library at the county seat of the county in which the same is located, one copy; to every library provided by the board of chosen freeholders of any county of this state at the court house of such county, one copy; the residue of said reports shall be retained by the legislature.

4. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed.

5. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved April 15, 1891.

CHAPTER DCLXXVIII.

An act to authorize the incidental expenses of the legislature of New Jersey for the session of one thousand eight hundred and ninety.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the following sums be and they are hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be paid by the treasurer of this state upon the warrant of the comptroller of the treasury, to the persons hereinafter named, for the purposes hereinafter mentioned, viz:

Item No. 1. To Samuel Dwight, for services rendered as messenger to the senate, one hundred dollars.

Item No. 2. To Joseph Hooper, for services rendered as messenger to the senate, one hundred dollars.

Item No. 3. To Augustus A. Lorse, for services rendered as messenger to the senate, one hundred dollars.

Item No. 4. To Augustus A. Lorse, for services rendered as messenger to the senate, one hundred dollars.

Item No. 5. To Augustus A. Lorse, for services rendered as messenger to the senate, one hundred dollars.

Item No. 6. To Augustus A. Lorse, for services rendered as messenger to the senate, one hundred dollars.

Item No. 7. To Frank Hoyer, for services rendered as messenger to the senate, one hundred dollars.

Item No. 8. To John L. Murphy Pub. Co., for stationery furnished senate, $1,000.

Item No. 9. To John L. Murphy Pub. Co., for stationery furnished senate, $1,000.

Item No. 10. To John L. Murphy Pub. Co., for stationery furnished senate, $1,000.

Item No. 11. To John L. Murphy Pub. Co., for stationery furnished senate, $1,000.

Item No. 12. To Samuel Dickinson, for paper, bronze, &c., furnished the senate, $1,000.

Item No. 13. To MacCrellish & Quigley, for blank-books furnished senate, $1,000.

Item No. 14. To Chas. A. Gundaker, treasurer, for bill-files furnished senate, $1,000.

Item No. 15. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the legislative assistant-secretary, $1,000.

Item No. 16. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the secretary of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 17. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the assistant-secretary of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 18. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the journal clerk of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 19. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the engrossing clerk of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 20. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the enrolling clerk of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 21. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the sergeant-at-arms of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 22. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on engrossed bills of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 23. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on enrolled bills of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 24. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on judiciary of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 25. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on finance of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 26. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on corporations of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 27. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on banks of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 28. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on insurance of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 29. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on railroads of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 30. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on municipal corporations of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 31. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on agriculture of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 32. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on education of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 33. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on public buildings of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 34. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on public health of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 35. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on fisheries of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 36. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on game of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 37. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on revision of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 38. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on printing of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 39. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on claims of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 40. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on miscellaneous matters of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 41. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on pilots of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 42. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on pensions of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 43. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on public expenditures of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 44. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on public health of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 45. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on public roads of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 46. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on railroads of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 47. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on revision of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 48. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on state prisons of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 49. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on state reform school of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 50. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on state roads of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 51. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on taxation of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 52. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on township affairs of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 53. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on unfinished business of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 54. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on water supply of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 55. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on weights and measures of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 56. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 57. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 58. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 59. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 60. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 61. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 62. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 63. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 64. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 65. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 66. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 67. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 68. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 69. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 70. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 71. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 72. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 73. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 74. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 75. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 76. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 77. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 78. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 79. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 80. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 81. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 82. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 83. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 84. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 85. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 86. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 87. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 88. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 89. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 90. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 91. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 92. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 93. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 94. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 95. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 96. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 97. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 98. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 99. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 100. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 101. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 102. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 103. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 104. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 105. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 106. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 107. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 108. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 109. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 110. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 111. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 112. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 113. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 114. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 115. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 116. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 117. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of the senate, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two and one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, $4,000.

Item No. 118. To Nash, Day & Nash, for stationery furnished the committee on woman suffrage of

CITY DEPARTMENT

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY OF UNION.

J. A. DEMAREST, City Editor.

—Liverymen Steele lost a horse on Sunday. It died after being driven to New Brunswick.

—The North Plainfield public school Commencement will take place Thursday evening of next week.

—The widow of David Squiers, of West Front street, near Madison avenue, has received a pension, the money of $500.

—To-race fire more games to be played between the ball teams of Plainfield and Somerville, but the former must win all but one of them to gain the credit of a majority of the contests.

—The Grasshopper Guard of Newark visited Fairville, Sunday, and fished Frank Buehler caught a trout and a half pound eel, Chester Hogg got first prize in a frog-shooting match, and Charles Wermuch got second.

—A lamp exploded in a bed room in the third floor of 149 West Front street at Dolgeich Fellows' night. An alarm was sounded from Box 12 and the department turned out, but the result was accounted in seven minutes. There was but slight damage.

—Elmer B Dunn, a newsboy, was delivering papers at the residence of Charles Ackerman on West Seventh street, Monday night, when, he says, a servant girl set the dog on him. The dog bit him in the leg. It is said that the dog has hill many times.

—Subscriptions to next season's private concerts of the Plainfield Choral Society, are coming in so rapidly that already two-thirds of the amount of the cost of last season's concerts was $2,200, but even that expenditure is to be increased this year.

—A reserved sidewalker Sunday morning asked the people if the heat was so great as to stop their coming to church, how would they be able to stand the heat of another week? Such a question, he said, there'd be none of that ice-cream stuff they stayed at home Sunday to eat!

—The North Plainfield Borough Committee, last evening, was much disgusted with the flickering habits and miserable quality of the gas light in their council chamber, and have ordered the gas shut off and electric light from the Edison company substituted.

—Some brutal boy struck a dog a blow on the head with a base-ball bat, on Park avenue, Monday afternoon, and left the dog bleeding at the mouth, and frenzied with pain, ran howling into a store and drew a big crowd of people who thought he was mad. His owner finally appeared and took him away.

—A street of very rough looking tinplate was received at THE PRESS office this morning. It came from Boss, the plumber of West Front street, with their certificate to the effect that it is American made. Whether the tin that was used to make the plate was mined in America, they do not say.

—A party of members of the Young Men's Christian Association will take a bicycle run to Westfield next Tuesday evening. Further information in regard to this and subsequent rides may be obtained of Charles C. Ditts, chairman of the committee on physical work, or of the association rooms.

—Wm. Hixon and John Booker, two gentlemen of color, had an argument at the corner of Second avenue and Front avenue, Friday night, and eventually came to blows. They were arrested before either had spoiled the other's beauty. Wilson appeared in the police court, Saturday and was fined $8. Booker was fined $3

—A horse belonging to Mr. Runyon, of Broadway, ran away on Park avenue Saturday afternoon. It turned up East Front street and then up another street, breaking one of the hind wheels and also breaking one shaft of the wagon to which it was attached. Mr. Runyon was thrown an electric light post and got his legs curled around it, and someone ran and caught it.

—The old established John W. Laing's Hotel, on East street, this city, was sold at public auction on Wednesday, under the direction of the F. M. Bacon and Wallace Vail Real Estate Trust. The property was purchased by Mr. H. Haven, a Newark lumber merchant, who has recently purchased other property here, for $35,000.

—Some people seem not to have understood what is meant by Flag Day. It is the anniversary of the adoption of the Stars and Stripes as the national ensign of the United States. Sunday was the 114th anniversary, but was celebrated Monday. Two private citizens in Dunn were patriotic enough to fling out the obnoxious flag. Not all of the schools displayed their flags.

—Thomas Smith of New Brunswick came to town Saturday and drank to the prosperity of the beautiful city so much that he speedily became intoxicated. Judge Godlington, before whom he was taken for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, was not long in determining what would be the greatest punishment he could inflict on Thomas. He sent him back to New Brunswick.

—Local merchants who have been criticising the action of the Plainfield banks in deciding to suspend Saturday afternoon business during the summer will inform the following from the New Brunswick Home News. "After July 1, the banks of Plainfield will close at 1 o'clock Saturdays. This is better than closing at 12 o'clock on that day, but the old practice of keeping open until three o'clock was better still for the public."

—Police captain Grant is anxious to find out who first struck the dog that caused so much excitement and drew such a crowd on Park avenue, Saturday evening. He threatens to have pounded for their cruelty various of the parties that kicked, beat and otherwise abused the animal. "The crowd acted like a lot of crazy people," he said, "and I became some one said the dog was mad treated it shamefully. It had only strayed away from its master and some one had beaten it and driven it in a frenzy of pain."

—A number of Plainfield carrier pigeons that were released at the Somerville ball grounds, Saturday, flew up on the roof tops in the vicinity and there with tears in their eyes. They were either ashamed to go home with the news or were too heavily loaded with Somerville runs. The Plainfield birds, however, left they had a duty to perform and brought the score to the office, up to the fifth inning. After that they, too, hid themselves and came into town after dark.

—Johnnie O'Hara, who is not ten years old yet, ran away from Flemington a week ago and his father searched all over the State for him without success. The mother's heart was gladdened Friday morning, however, when a dispatch was received from Officer Flanagan of this city, saying that he had captured the boy. The lad had come on at once and took him home. The boy will probably run away again, as he tried to escape from the officer by telling him that his father was dead. Hamilton said that he lived at Grant avenue.

—One of the good things that will result from the local banks taking advantage of the State law providing for Saturday half-holidays will be that notes coming due Saturday will not be payable till the following Monday.

—Children's Day was very prettily observed at the Union Village Sunday-school. The programme included recitations, special music and singing, followed by an address by the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Vanderhoff, to the children and their friends. Israel Lee, the superintendent, also made a few remarks.

—William V. Mundy, of 66 West Fifth street, janitor of the Washington school building and of the Council chamber, and his entire family, have for two or three weeks been prostrated with the grip in its very worst form. All were down at once with it, and are still very ill. A physician is in constant daily attendance. The worthy janitor has the sympathy of a host of friends.

PERSONALIA.

H. H. Millikin of Central avenue has gone to Atlantic City.

William A. Lord and family, of Netherwood, are at Moonmouth Beach for the summer.

The family of John M Clark, of Park avenue, will spend the summer at Amherst, Mass.

The family of B. O. Bowers will seek coolness and recreation at Fredericton, New Brunswick, Canada.

Mrs. Silas L. Clapp entertained the Sparrow Club at her residence, Mercer avenue, Thursday after-noon.

Prof. and Mrs. Edwin Lewis will summer in the company of Dr. Green, of Johns Hopkins University, at Avon-by-the-Sea.

The Rev. T. Logan Murphy sailed on 6 o'clock yesterday on the Red Star liner "Majestic", for a ten weeks' tour of Great Britain and the Continent.

An enjoyable afternoon tea was given at the residence of Mrs. B. A. Rogers, Jr., Tuesday, in aid of the Holy Cross Sunday-school enlargement fund.

The wife of A. V. Searing who was some years ago a prosperous and highly grocery merchant of this city, died at her home on Elm street, just before noon on Monday, after an illness of two years.

The Board of Education has appointed the Rev. E. M. Rodman, M. A., of the Steamli

CITY DEPARTMENT.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY OF UNION.

J. A. DEMAREST, - City Editor.

—Liverymen Stelle lost a horse on Saturday. It died after being driven to New Brunswick.

—The North Plainfield public school Commencement exercises will take place Thursday evening of next week.

—The widow of David Squiers, of West Front street, near Madison avenue, has received back pension money of $600.

—To-day are the most exciting games to be played between the ball teams of Plainfield and Somerville, but the former must win all but one of them to gain the credit of a majority of the series.

—The Grasshopper Guard of Newark visited Feltville, Sunday, and fished. Frank Buehler caught a two and a half pound eel, the largest caught. Everybody is a fine-shooting match, and Charles Werbisch got second.

—A lamp exploded in a bed room in the third story of the house of Mrs. Hall, on Park Place Friday night. An alarm was sounded from Box 12 and the department turned out, but the result was sounded in seven minutes. There was but slight damage.

—Elmer H. Egan, a newsboy, was delivering papers at the residence of Charles Hunting, West Front street, on Monday last when, he says, a servant girl set the dog on him. The dog bit him in the leg. It is said that the dog has bit many persons.

—Subscriptions to next season's private concerts of the Plainfield Choral Society, are coming in so rapidly that already two-thirds of the tickets are taken. The cost of last season's concerts was $2,200, but even that expenditure is to be increased this year.

—A colored minister Sunday morning asked his people if the heat was so great as to stop their coming to church, how would they be able to stand the heat of another place? He was answered: "—where there'd be none of that ice-cream stuff they stayed at home Sundays to eat!"

—The North Plainfield Borough Councilmen have at last become disgusted with the flickering habits and miserable quality of the gas-light in their council chamber, and have ordered the gas shut off and electric light from the Edison company substituted.

—Some brutal boy struck a dog a blow on the head with a base-ball bat, on Park avenue, Saturday evening, and the dog, bleeding at the mouth and nose, frenzied with pain, ran howling into a store and drew a big crowd of people who thought he was mad. His owner finally appeared and took him away.

—A sheet of very rough looking tinplate was received at THE PRESS office this morning, from Garney Bros., the plumbers of Westfield, with their certificate to the effect that it is American made. Whether the tin that was used to make the plate was mined in America, they do not state.

—A party of members of the Young Men's Christian Association will take a bicycle run to Westfield next Tuesday evening. Further information in regard to this and subsequent rides may be obtained of Charles G. Dilts, chairman of the committee on physical work, or at the association rooms.

—Wm. Wilsey and John Booker, two gentlemen of color, had an argument at the corner of Second street and Park's avenue, in this city, and at last eventually came to blows. They were arrested before either had spoiled the other's beauty. Wilsey seemed to be the more in fault and was fined $3 and costs.

—A horse belonging to Mr. Runyon, of Broadway, ran away on Park avenue Saturday afternoon. It turned up East Front street and ran into another horse, breaking one of the hind wheels and also breaking one shaft of the wagon to which it was attached. It then ran up against an electric light post during the fall and winter, carried around it and someone ran and caught it.

—The old-established John W. Laing's Hotel, on Front street, this city, was sold at public auction on Wednesday, under the direction of the F. M. Bacon and Wallace Real Estate Trust. The property was sold for $30,000 to Joseph Haven, a Newark lumber merchant, who has recently purchased other property here, for $35,000.

—Some people seem not to have understood what is meant by Flag Day. It is the anniversary of the adoption of the Stars and Stripes as the national ensign of the United States. Monday was the 104th anniversary, but was celebrated Monday. Two private citizens in town were patriotic enough to fling out the starry banner. Not all of the schools displayed their flags.

—Thomas Smith of New Brunswick came to town Saturday and drank to the prosperity of the beautiful city so often that he speedily became intoxicated. Judge Godfinton, before whom he was taken for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, was not long in determining what would be the greatest punishment he could inflict on Thomas. He sent him back to New Brunswick.

—Local merchants who have been criticising the action of the Plainfield banks in deciding to suspend Saturday afternoon business during the summer will indorse the following from the New Brunswick Home News: "After July 1, the banks of Plainfield will close at 1 o'clock Saturdays. This be better than closing at 3 o'clock on that day, but the old practice of keeping open until three o'clock was better still for the public."

—Police captain Grant is anxious to find out who first struck the dog that caused so much excitement and drew such a crowd on Park avenue, Saturday evening. He intends to have the guilty one punished for their cruelty various of the parties that kicked, beat and otherwise abused the animal. "The crowd acted like a lot of crazy people," he said—"and because some one said the dog was mad treated it shamefully. It had only strayed away from its master and ought not had beaten it and driven it into a frenzy of pain."

—A number of Plainfield carrier pigeons that were released at the Somerville ball grounds, Saturday, flew up on the roof tops in the vicinity and left there with tears in their eyes. They were either ashamed to go home with the news or were too heavily loaded with Somerville runs. The Plainfield birds, however, felt they had a duty to perform and brought the score to the office, up to the fifth inning. After that they, too, hit themselves and came into town after dark.

—Johnnie O'Hare, who is not ten years old yet, ran away from Flemington a week ago and his father searched all over the State for him without success. The uncle of a heart was gladdened Friday morning, however, when a despatch was received from Officer Flanagan of this city, saying that he had arrested the boy, that he had come on at once and took him home. The boy will probably run away again, as he tried to escape from the officer by telling him that his name was Johnnie Hamilton and that he lived at Grant avenue.

I SUFFERED from nasal inflammation in my head and throat and had a bad cough for two years. I used Ely's Cream Balm and in a few days I was entirely cured. I recommend it to all. —Mrs. Georgia E. Fuller, Rockford, Illinois.

I HAVE used Ely's Cream Balm for nasal catarrh and find it my best remedy. Recommended by a friend, I tried it and was cured in a few days. I cheerfully recommend it to any one suffering as I did. —Mrs. Mary Bowen, Rockford, Illinois.

JOB HALE'S DEATH-BED.

Those Who Heard His Dying Words Testify to the Truth Contained.

When old Mayor Job Hale was dying, on the evening of Jan. 29, 1891, his hand was guided by Lawyer Craig A. Marsh in signing his name to a will which disposed of almost one-fourth of a million of dollars in real and personal estate. Nearly a score of his relatives joined in contesting this document because it disposed of a large amount to public and charitable bequests, and because they thought that insufficient distinction was made between near and distant relatives.

Testimony was taken Friday before Master in Chancery Herbert W. Knight, in Newark, in order to determine whether the will could be admitted to probate, the contestants having asserted that the testator was dead when his hand signed the will.

The first witness was Dr. George W. Endicott whom Dr. Davis, the family physician, called in at the last moment. Dr. Endicott testified that he was called in at 9 o'clock the evening Mr. Hale died and that, observing that Mr. Hale was very weak and sinking rapidly, he left in five minutes and sought Coun'l Craig A. Marsh, who returned with him to the house. They went to Mr. Hale's bedside, and Mr. Marsh asked: "Do you know me?" Mr. Hale replied: "Yes; this is Mr. Marsh." A few remarks then passed about Mr. Hale's illness, and then Mr. Marsh asked: "Shall I attend to the drawing of your will?" Mr. Hale said: "Yes; I do." He said he wanted his brother's children to share in the estate, and upon being asked if he desired to remember anybody else he said: "Yes, I wish to leave $10,000 to my half-sister, Mrs. Gleason." He said also that he wished to leave his house in Park avenue to the Fitzhugh Public Library, together with the three houses in College place. He was asked if he wanted Mrs. Fennell to pay rent for the house she occupied, and he replied: "No, give her a deed for it." When he was asked what the number of the house was in order correctly to describe it, he answered: "I don't know." He asked if he desired to remember Mrs. Stout, Mr. Male answered: "No. She has enough, but I wish her to have the free use of the house in which she lives, and the house to go to her nephew." He mentioned for executors Job Male, Jr., J. W. Harrison, and George W. Fennell. He was asked whether the executors should have power to sell property, and he answered: "Yes." "After a year?" was the next question, and he said: "No." "After two years?" "No." "Three years?" suggested Mr. Marsh. "No. Make it five years," said Mr. Hale.

Mr. Marsh was taking notes, and he spent twenty or twenty-five minutes in drawing up the will. Dr. Endicott said, and then read it to the witnesses, who agreed that it was correct. Mr. Hale then read to Mr. Male, who in the meantime had sunk considerably. He could not be roused, and did not have strength enough to sign the document. Mr. Marsh then took his hand and guided the pen across the paper in making the signature, while the witnesses all gathered around and watched him. Mr. Hale was then dead if he recognized his signature. There was no reply. Several attempts were made to arouse him, but he died in a few minutes. He died within half an hour after the will was signed, and meanwhile he did not regain consciousness. Dr. Endicott testified that Mr. Hale was promptly read in regard to some of the questions by other persons in the room, and that Mrs. Stout and Mrs. Fennell made suggestions to the dying man in regard to the disposal of his property. The paper was read to the witnesses a second time. Mr. Marsh said the witnesses knew for themselves sign the will, as it had not been acknowledged by Mr. Male. There was present at the time Mr. and Mrs. Fennell, Mrs. Stout, Dr. Davis, Thomas D. Male, A. C. Baldwin, Mrs. Stout, Mr. John W. Harrison of Jersey City, and the witness, Dr. Endicott.

Dr. Endicott was asked by Lawyer Marsh: "Do you believe Mr. Male was of sound mind at the time the memoranda were read to him?" The doctor answered: "No—perfectly so. He was low, but perfectly rational."

In response to questions, Dr. Endicott said that Mr. Male spoke in response to the dying man in regard to the disposal of his property. The paper was read to the witnesses a second time. Mr. Marsh said the witnesses knew for themselves sign the will, as it had not been acknowledged by Mr. Male. There was present at the time Mr. and Mrs. Fennell, Mrs. Stout, Dr. Davis, Thomas D. Male, A. C. Baldwin, Mrs. Stout, Mr. John W. Harrison of Jersey City, and the witness, Dr. Endicott.

Dr. Endicott was asked by Lawyer Marsh: "Do you believe Mr. Male was of sound mind at the time the memoranda were read to him?" The doctor answered: "No—perfectly so. He was low, but perfectly rational."

In response to questions, Dr. Endicott said that Mr. Male spoke in response to the dying man in regard to the disposal of his property. The paper was read to the witnesses a second time. Mr. Marsh said the witnesses knew for themselves sign the will, as it had not been acknowledged by Mr. Male. There was present at the time Mr. and Mrs. Fennell, Mrs. Stout, Dr. Davis, Thomas D. Male, A. C. Baldwin, Mrs. Stout, Mr. John W. Harrison of Jersey City, and the witness, Dr. Endicott.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad will have a picnic at Bound Brook, Saturday, June 27, for the benefit of the Presbyterian Church of Bound Brook. Excursion tickets, good for the round trip, will be sold at the following rates: From Plainfield, Dunellen, Bound Brook, Middlesex, Somerville and Raritan, 50 cents; from Elizabeth, Rahway, Metuchen, Perth Amboy, Woodbridge and Fords, 75 cents; from Newark, Harrison, Kearny, Jersey City, Bayonne and Communipaw, $1.00. Tickets will be sold at the stations mentioned, and on the trains of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, on the day of the excursion only. Special trains will leave Plainfield at 8:30 a. m., Dunellen at 8:40 a. m., Bound Brook at 8:50 a. m., Middlesex at 9:00 a. m., Somerville at 9:10 a. m., Raritan at 9:15 a. m., Elizabeth at 8:30 a. m., Rahway at 8:40 a. m., Metuchen at 8:55 a. m., Perth Amboy at 9:05 a. m., Woodbridge at 9:15 a. m., Fords at 9:20 a. m., Newark at 8:30 a. m., Harrison at 8:40 a. m., Kearny at 8:45 a. m., Jersey City at 8:50 a. m., Bayonne at 8:55 a. m., Communipaw at 9:00 a. m. Returning, leave Bound Brook at 6:00 p. m. Tickets

HE DREW HER ON HIS SLED.

Of all the dear divinities
Whose atlas rises I've felt Before whose shrines, both frigid and Love's tinsel I have shed,
I honor first the little maid
I drew upon my sled.

That little maid who quizzed it so
Or all that pass' who had Upon such a dance—suggesting now
With look and "You may," said
Who gave each one in turn to hope
He'd draw her on his sled.

She quickly took full royally
Over Frank and Phil and Fred,
And all the rest, and Augustus,
Worship was but as trend;
Was kneel to a thousand but
Or every skipper's sled.

That little school-room was her palace;
"Who would what wouldn't she?" said
The epicenter of every eye
Was o'er that golden head,
Whose every hair drew each to sing
To draw her on his sled.

Can I forget—though years since then
Birth dead—and cease
Can I forget the day she deigned,
My deign to grace,
To let me tuck my goddess up
And draw her on my sleigh?

What though my goddess now is gray?
Though time, with stealthy tread,
Has left its tale on many sacks?
'Tis long since we were wed—
Since's still the sweet divinity
I drew upon my sled.

—Boston Globe.

A MODERN FAIRY TALE.

The Talented Young Man and the Beautiful Maiden.

Once there lived a young Man who started out to seek his fortune. His people were poor and had nothing more tangible to give him than their love and blessing, so he set out with only a pen, a blotter and a bottle of ink.

The pen was a quaint affair—steel—with a clumsy wooden handle which he himself had whittled when a lad. But there was something wonderful about this ordinary-looking pen: the Fairies had tipped the steel point with a magic substance that showed that it wrote were pure, and bright, and sparkling.

It so happened that the young Man was so lucky as to find the road to his fortune at once, for he was a man making a fine lot of money, so that he was both comfortable and happy.

Now, there lived in a beautiful young Maiden, very sweet and good, but poor—so poor, indeed, that she was obliged to work all day long at a machine, upon the keys of which her white fingers went plunkety-plunk, and let there appeared scarcely in all sincerity and order the words which the magic pen had written.

And as the Maiden sat at her work she comprehended the thoughts which were behind the words, which, alas! many of them were, and her like and dislikes fell undiscovered; and, moreover, when she had finished a letter she went to the dire confusion of the letters therein she did not substitute in its place a word of her own, as would any or one of her own coining, but went straightway to the young Man and asked him if it should be so and that.

Every body knows that a man's chirography becomes more and more beautiful as he grows older and success in life increases. Now it may have been from that reason or it may have been but why speculate—for it is a fact that the illegible words became more and more frequent ago. Mad indeed was he often brushed the blonde tresses of the Maiden as they puzzled long over some word which seemed hopelessly involved.

And since she was so often and good, and true, and fair, and withal handsome, and romantic, they fell deeply in love with one another, and they plighted their faith and their troth—also plunk machine; and he was very, very happy, and the magic pen wrote more wonderfully than ever before.

Soon his name was in every one's mouth, and his verses and stories brought him fame and fortune and fame than he had ever dared dream of. And now also he had resolved to wed, regularly known as the "top notch" that something which is called Society reached out its hand to the wealthy man, and it embraced him and petted him until he was dazzled by its flattery and intoxicated by its smiles.

And he grew half ashamed of his love for the Maiden and dissatisfied because she, poor dear thing, had given up all worldly nor wealth to bring him—nothing but her pure, beautiful self.

And he told her one day that he feared that they had been too hasty in becoming betrothed, and that he felt that he owed it to her to show her his keeping her bound to him by her promise, when she might meet some one far more worthy than he. And to all this he said that perhaps it had been all a mistake—their little castle in the air—and he felt sure that she would consider him her best friend, etc., etc.

And the Maiden looked into his face, at first with surprise, then with anguish in her beautiful gray eyes; then as he went on, her glance turn to scorn and when he had finished speaking he was quite calmly that he was right, and that it had been only a mistake which they were both to blame about, and then she shut her machine and went home.

Now the Fairies have a way of finding out things that happen among mortals which is a most ideal upkeep than our telephone or telegraph or even our messenger-boy system, and it was not many hours after that the Maiden left her work before a Fairy stole unseen into the room, and, as she took the fallen point from his pen, leaving only the blunt and rusty tip, so that when the Man took up to write his daily task the words which he wrote were no longer bright, but were very dull and dim.

All the sparkle was gone from his verses, and all the wit and life from his paragraphs, and the poor were to his fact, that the Man were sorely troubled to himself as he read them and tore them up.

Now, the maiden did not return to her work the next day because she was ill—so ill that she could not write to her assent about softly and spoke in whispers as they asked each other if she were still dangerously ill, but the doctors said that there was any hope.

And it so happened that upon the night of the third day the Man sat down quite the smallest function that had been given in society that season. But somehow the pen refused to write the flattery which he heard were like Apples of Sodom as he mentally soon heated his brain for the right words of the Maiden; and he went home sick at heart and swore that Society could keep its gilt and its glitter.

The next morning the Man, with his heart filled with the memory of his absence, went to the home of the Maiden that he might humble himself before her; but she was dead, and he was left ill, it was as though a terrible blow had fallen upon him.

But it was not the Maiden, by dint of much skill and tender nursing, was on the way to recovery, to his great wonderment and joy, and he knelt in devotion with the same sweet trust that she had ever shown, and by no word or sign did she refer to what had passed upon that fateful day.

And the Man pondered—and he was sorely puzzled, and he wrote to a very learned doctor to know if a sorrow brain fever could sometimes blot from the mind an occurrence which had happened upon the eve of that illness. And the doctor answered in letter to a friend and grumbled: "That's the way these writer-men get the name of knowing so much—they get the pointers from us and then they go and work them into their stories and people think they know it all." But he sat down and wrote to the Man that the happenings of a day or even a week immediately before certain brain complications were often blotted entirely from the memory.

And the Man read the doctor's letter he bowed his head and thanked God that the Maiden would never know.

And so they were married, and the Fairies bestowed that the Man should be refined mouth and repeated sore, gave him back the magic pen for a wedding gift, and left a bottle of ink full well after—and if you think that there could possibly be a happier wedding than the one at which you were present, I'll be self—Marie More Marsh, in Chicago Times.

GENTLE GYMNASTS.

The Means by Which Women May Become Muscular.

Weights, Instruments and the Influence of Members of the Fair Sex Who Are Devoted to Physical Culture.

Their Number.

Light gymnastics embrace the use of dumb-bells, bar-bells, Indian clubs, wands, hoops and exercises without anything in the hands, the latter including Marching, deep breathing movements, poising, stretching and equilibrium exercises. The dumb-bell is the best measure grown out of the Delsarte system, also come, says the Ladies' Home Journal, under the general terms, light gymnastics.

The beneficial results of all these are many and varied. Hardly anyone is too weak for gymnastics. Gentle massage will start the muscles and send the blood into healthy circulation, while the patient should help herself. One of the advantages of light gymnastics is that the sick and the convalescent can make what appear to be trifling efforts and by them, in time, to restore the native health. If not flexible to be practically able to make but little exertion, by what are known as deep breathing movements. Lie flat on the back, take as long and deep breaths as possible, and while the nostrils are closed slowly throw the arms up in front and then at the sides. Rest for ten minutes. Try again the same thing with a change motion of air, the latter being pure and fresh. After awhile attempt the same movements with dumb-bells safely be taken by the sick one every day several times, and the whole muscular system will be toned up. In short, if some revivifying tonic had been given, a far better one than any charged with alcohol or some liker stimulant.

From this step to the use of light apparatus in the dumb-bells is a short one. But the exercise is not often made in trying to be too muscular, and using bells of too great a weight. Attempt nothing above your strength at the start; it is even better at first to go under it than over it. Above all things be methodical and regular in these exercises. Irregularity in anything—baths, expenditures, hours—brings uncomfortable reward. Exercise must be constant and systematic to be effective.

If a beginner purchase wooden dumb-bells of a pound each in weight.

Stand with the heels together, body erect and head up. Place the bells on the shoulders and push up that in the right hand to a count of eight or twelve; then the left; then both together at the same time.

Place the bells on the chest; push the right hand bell out in front eight times, the left-hand afterward, then both.

Push the bell in the right hand out from the chest to the right, the left the same, and next both.

Put bells under the armpits. Curl them out alternately and at the same time.

With bells on the shoulders roll out as in the exercise above described.

Strike the bells quickly over the head and under the right leg; then the left leg, then again behind the back.

With the right-handed bell extended from right side at right angles with the body, strike it as if it were an anvil eight times with the bell in the left hand as a hammer. Do this in the same manner to the left and in front, holding the bell that acts in lieu of anvil on the right and left knees.

These are the simple movements. A teacher in the gymnasium will give you dozens more. But just after the movements above described. Let the corset is put on, if tried for five or ten minutes daily will be found to greatly slow thought the body and bringing a rich tint to the cheeks. Beauty is not always born with the face, but with constancy; by light gymnastic exercises and you will prove to your own satisfaction that a light step, a lithe figure, clear, good-colored skin, without the faintest hint of rouge or powder, makes the possessor handsome as well as "healthy, wealthy and wise."

Apropos of this last assertion, that a woman may be healthy without actually know more, from regular gymnastic exercise is an established truth.

The most important practical result of both light and heavy gymnastics is the fact that the mind grows in proportion to the muscle. The muscles need a will, and a strong one, to control them. The moving to exact time and to music demanded by these exercises when taken in the classes of the gymnasium has its effect on the brain, and it is as important a part of the training as the muscle. Dr. W. G. Anderson, the specialist, states that women who have not understood will power cannot compel this servant to aid them in works they undertake, and generally benefited by light gymnastic exercises; and that those women who are sensible enough to adopt this course will be found to be the stronger, the healthier sex, who expect to be known as the mothers of healthy children, and, above all, those who wish to aid in the realization of the ideal human being, whether mentally, morally or physically, are the ones to say that they would -be by gymnastic exercise.

It is a constant source of complaint that American women are not graceful. And the dancing school has been until recent years the refuge for the awkward and unbalanced-muscled young or in fact, any child who has not endowed himself exce pt by lifting a finger from the table (Fig 6). The whole secret consists in this. In the first instance you must be careful to avoid letting the two pieces, a and b, cross each other. In the second instance, on the contrary, by an imperceptible movement of the hand, you turn the knot between your fingers; the two lines of string are thus crossed at the point, X, after the manner shown in X, (Fig. 2). This crossing, very apparent on our plan, where we were forced to represent the two points by two positions, will pass unnoticed when you operate with a string of the indicated length.

THIRSTY ELEPHANTS.

How They Astonished the Man in Charge of a Railway Water Tank.

One day a train of the Pennsylvania train halted at the railway station on its way through the town. Of course there was the usual excitement when the railroad was to inspect this queer special train; and with the others the engineer and the fireman of the engine that had brought the yard left their posts for a short time to see the different menagerie cars.

Presently the water tank shed were ready to move their locomotive, they noticed that the cover of the water-tank was open. On looking in, they luckily discovered that the tank was nearly empty—although it had been full to the brim when they left it.

Such an extraordinary thing had never happened before. Naturally there was great surprise on all sides every one knew the tank was full when the men had left it; in fact some of the "hands" had seen it filled, neither was there a leak in it, and yet the tank was empty. The question was then where had the water gone?

THE ELEPHANTS HELP THEMSELVES.

Seven thirsty elephants, shut up all day and all night in a car that gave them hardly room to move, their sore bodies fairly touching one another, a paltry allowance of water to quench their thirst, and then to be left standing on the hot railroad track, the sun's rays pouring down upon the roof of the car, and with only such air as could come through the small ogiln windows! Was it any wonder, then, that, when they knew there was water was near, that they should search for it? How were they to know that it was not there for their convenience? At any rate, no sooner were the men gone than through a small window of the elephant car the dusky trunk of an elephant made its way unseen out. Another followed its example, then another, until seven trunks had felt and smuffed around, over engine, tender and coal. What they sought was not there; but they still kept moving about, and, coming to the end of the car, they, of course, soon felt all over the cover and at last managed to get the finger-like end under the edge of the cover. Then quickly and carefully it was opened, when, behold! there was what the elephants wanted—water, and plenty of it. The owner of that particular trunk took a long draught, its companions meanwhile standing on one another's backs in their anxiety to drink. One after another they filled their trunks with the cool water and poured it down their dry, parched throats.

The mystery of the empty tank was a mystery but a short time. The keeper of the elephants on visiting the car had found it half and the elephants dozed with water. A few inquiries, and the matter was explained.—St. Louis Star.

TRICK WITH STRINGS.

Puzzling, But Easy Enough When You Understand It.

A clever string trick is thus described by the St. Louis Republic. Tie together the two ends of a sufficiently long string (two yards at the least) hold the knot in your hands and spread the string on a table in such a way that the two extremities of the closed circle, which I will call X Y cross each other at right angles, and that their centers have formed two rings, M and N. Then invite one of those present to place one of his fingers on a table in the interior of the circuit, so as to prevent you from regaining possession of the string. Then, as he will place his finger in the square space, X Fig 1, believing that the paper is in the center, for he will soon realize his mistake when he sees you quickly draw the string without its being held by his finger.

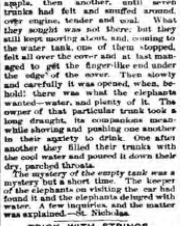

FIG. 1.

You will be asked to do the trick again, and this time you ask that the that the finger be placed so as to pass within the loop of the string. The amateur then invariably carries it in the same space, X, certain of being successful this time. You pull, and lo! His finger is held fast by the string, of which he can not rid himself except by lifting the finger from the table (Fig 6). The whole secret consists in this. In the first instance you must be careful to avoid letting the two pieces, a and b, cross each other. In the second instance, on the contrary, by an imperceptible movement of the hand, you turn the knot between your fingers; the two lines of string are thus crossed at the point, X, after the manner shown in X, (Fig. 2). This crossing, very apparent on our plan, where we were forced to represent the two points by two positions, will pass unnoticed when you operate with a string of the indicated length.

FIG. 2.

NAMES NOT MENTIONED.

A CITIZEN of Bastia, Isd., has a clock made entirely of wood, which has been an excellent timekeeper for sixty years.

THE Astaena Club of Boston is out of young men. One of the practitioners is under twenty-one, while six are under twenty-five and thirteen are under thirty.

A CELEBRATED German restaurateur, in bankruptcy proceedings, has confessed that for years he has served horse and asses' meat to his customers for mutton.

THERE are twenty-three ancient widows now drawing pensions from the government, each of whose husbands were soldiers in the revolutionary war. Three of them are 98 years old and the youngest is 91.

SOME of the Alaskan natives acquire very respectable fortunes in the fishing trade. A Nushagak fisherman, well known to pay down one thousand dollars in hard cash for blankets and trinkets for a single season.

A GOOD-NATURED colored lady, whose memory was a little hazy, died the other day near Columbus, Mo., of old age. She was her boast that "she was so old she couldn't sanity' member; but she was between ninety and one hundred and thirty-four."

A YOUNG man with small feet was the last person to leave a friend's house after a social entertainment in Lewiston, Me. The other guests thought that he would find proved to be badly matched —a No. 6 and a No. 11½. He wore the small one, and the other still awaits a claimant.

First Doctor—I had a very interesting case the other day. The diagnosis was all right, but the course of the disease was decidedly unexpected.

Second Doctor—What course did it take?

First Doctor—The patient recovered. —Texas Siftings.

Photo of Paris.

Farmer (to tramp)—What are you sitting there for? Get you to the same place yesterday.

Tramp—Can't do it, farmer. Since sitting there for I've been in the same place yesterday.

Tramp—Say, mister, throw that bone to him who waits, and I have been waiting two days for a square meal.

AUNT ABIGAIL'S WILL.

What She Bequeathed to Cousins Roger and Dick.

It was Abigail Varley's three-score-and-tenth birthday. She was a rich widow, childless, and with no nearer relations save two gentlemen cousins.

Never was cousinly attachment more beautifully illustrated, or cousinly jealousy less amiably exemplified, than in the daily walk and conversation of these two collaterals. Each one bestowed so much affection on their common relative that they had none left to waste on each other.

Both were several years younger than the lady, with a fair prospect, so regarding the course of nature, of outliving her; and how to supplant each other in her will, which she had, at last, begun seriously to talk of making, was the problem which at present engaged their attention.

On the morning in question, when Cousin Roger called to wish Cousin Abigail a kind and "many happy returns," he was not a little chagrined to find Cousin Dick there before him. However, he greeted his unusual gift, and went through his annual speech without missing a word; and seeing Tabby, the cousinly pet, perched snugly on his rival's knee, by way of not being outdone in cousinly attention, took up Pompey, the cousinly poodle, though dogs were his abomination.

"Well, Cousin Abigail, I hope your health continues good," said Cousin Roger, patting Pompey's head (and glancing suspiciously at Cousin Dick, whom he devoutly wished at Jericho.

"Not so good latterly as has been," the old lady continued, "I have been thinking seriously of sending for Mr. Parker, with a view to settling my worldly affairs without delay."

"Oh, there is no need of haste, cousin!" broke in Dick; "you have many years before you yet;" mentally adding: "What has possessed the old lady to put it off so long?"

"Well, well, I suppose there's no hurry about it," said Cousin Abigail.

"And yet," Cousin Roger ventured to hint, "it is always well to be prepared; none of us can tell the minute or the hour, you know."

"And, after all, calling in a lawyer is not so serious a matter as calling in a doctor," said Cousin Dick, facetiously.

The conversation was interrupted by the entrance of a young and beautiful girl, at whom Cousin Dick stared with surprised and unconcealed admiration.

"Pardon me, ma'am," she said, in a voice remarkably sweet and gentle "not knowing you were engaged, I came to see if you wished me, as usual, to read to you to-day."

"Presently, dear," Mrs. Varley answered in a tone that plainly hinted her visitors would not be pressed to stay if they preferred to go.

After an awkward pause the two cousins took their departure together.

"Who is that girl?" inquired Roger, as soon as they reached the street.

"Oh, my dear!" said Cousin Dick; and, stooping, he whispered something in his companion's ear, at which the latter started suddenly.

"Good heaven! the resemblance is certainly striking. But what is to be done? Do you think it will be possible, Abigail, I mean, suspects any thing?"

"Not yet, I think; but no time is to be lost. I will call on her to-night, and will for us to talk over together."

And the two hurried rapidly along.

Mrs. Varley's companion found the time hang heavy on her hands, and she had advertised for a person to fill the post of companion to her adopted lady. It was thus that Hester Darling had become an inmate of the house.

At as early an hour as was seemly on the morning following that on which we introduced them to the reader, Roger and Dick again presented themselves before Cousin Abigail.

"We have thought it our duty, cousin" — began Dick.

"Your bounden duty," put in Roger.

"As painful as it is imperative," Dick continued.

"To grab you on your guard, ma'am," Roger added.

"Against a deceitful and designing person," exclaimed Dick.

"Who is no better than she should be!" exclaimed Roger, excitedly.

"Upon my word, cousins, I do not comprehend a syllable you have uttered," said the old lady; "nor shall I be likely to if you both keep talking at once. Come, Dick, you seem least excited. What is the meaning of all this?"

"What means, may I venture to ask," said Dick, "did you take to ascertain the character of your companion? The young woman at present sheltered beneath your roof?"

"Why, none," replied the good lady. "Her young and truthful face were recommendation enough on which to give her a trial."

"We have ascertained her to be a most unprincipled character," resumed Dick, "and have deemed it proper at once to apprise you of the discovery. Should she be a friend of yours, we are prepared with abundant proofs."

And the two cousins took their leave, with an air of offended dignity.

Mrs. Varley was a lady of the strictest propriety and severest morals. Much as she disliked the two gentlemen, and friendless girl, she must be promptly freed from this foul and dreadful charge, or cross her threshold never to return.

She went directly to Hester's chamber.

"You must tell me your past history, child," said Mrs. Varley, in a determined tone, as she studied her face.

"Oh, madam, I pray you pardon me, but I can not tell you!"

"Then it has been one of shame and guilt!"

"For a time, of shame, madam," answered the young girl, with flushed cheek, "but never of guilt."

Then the old lady and Mrs. Varley to start so suddenly and stagger—half fainting to a seat at Hester's dressing-table!

"Who—whom likeness is that?" she gasped, in a scarce articulate voice, pointing to an open miniature on the table.

"My mother's," Hester answered.

"Then you are Florence Marvin's child!"

"That was, indeed, my mother's name."

"More, you are the daughter of my only brother, George Hayward, for Florence Marvin was his wife."

With a stilled cry, she who had believed herself the only living relation in the world fell on her kinswoman's neck and wept tears of mingled gladness and sorrow.

Her story, which Hester had refused to confide to a stranger, she now willingly imparted to one from whom she felt she had no longer any right to withhold it.

That her brother had married in opposition to her father's wishes and had been disowned, and, as a consequence was already known to Abigail Darling; but what Hester's spot he had selected for his home she had never learned.

The story was soon enough told.

After a few fortunate, but unhappy years—for they were spent in the close vicinity of the gold mines—her father died, and left her upon George Hayward, his only surviving relative. A succession of misfortunes too intricate for man's wit to unravel, had reduced him, at last, to the necessity of selling his effects and the unfortunate merchant despised widow sought concealment for herself and child in a change of place and name. Her husband's father, who also traffic, had discovered but the judicial murder had passed among the things irretrievably lost, and died at last—had died broken-hearted, but with one consolation: She had lived to see her son-in-law's innocence established.

"And this, my poor child, is the shame of which you spoke?"

"My life has been known no other."

Not many days after, Hester was sent to one of the first seminaries in the land, for she had been thoroughly in all small benefit of opportunities of culture hitherto beyond her reach. Her aunt and she kept their own counsel. Cousins Rogers and Dick only knew that the object of their solicitude had disappeared, and probably congratulated themselves on the success of their villainous schemes.

After a time, Mr. Parker, Cousin Abigail's lawyer, was sent for, and after that time her health improved wonderfully revived in health and spirits. At her next birthday the prospect of "many happy returns" produced any effect but a happy effect on the two expectant cousins, who began to think that, after all, the life tables might not be infallible. But her time came at last; and, within a decent period after the last event, Cousins Roger and Dick were duly summoned to attend the reading of Abigail Varley's will.

They were in good and startled at the sight of their old enemy, the strange girl.

Poor Tabby, as if seeking consolation in her bereavement, leaped upon the knee of her old friend Dick, who stroked her back pleasantly, but a little nervously. Pompey, who took things more philosophically, stretched himself out for a snooze on the floor.

Mr. Parker, drawing from his pocket the document, proceeded to read it. The introduction was long and formal. But, hark! there's something coming here.

"To my cousin, Richard Pigrim's"—

Richard looked at Roger in triumph.

"I give and bequeath"—

You could have heard both their hearts beat.

"The consideration of the natural love and affection which I have long observed between them"—

Dick looked puzzled.

"My favorite cat Tabby"—

Dick gave Tabby a furious stroke the wrong way.

"And no more of my estate."

With a fling that bestowed a most emphatic renunciation of the legacy, Tabby was sent mewing and spitting to the farthest corner of the room.

"To my cousin, Roger Smith"—

It was Roger's turn to triumph.

"In consideration of the like natural love and affection"—

Roger began to feel suspicious.

"I give and bequeath my dog Pompey, and no more of my estate."

With a snarl one of them would have sent spinning after the cat; and the fear of her who had so long kept the peace between them was all that held them before their eyes, the pent-up enmity of years found vent in an ignominious fight, in the course of which the voice of the old lawyer was almost drowned; but the words "rent and realize of my estate—mean, besides Hayward," were sufficiently audible, and Cousins Dick and Roger forgot to hear no more.—N. Y. Evening World.

A FAMOUS DUELIST.

Tales of Alex. R. McClung, Once the Terror of the Mississippi.

Thirty-five years ago the name of Alexander K. McClung was known and feared all over the State of Mississippi, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. He had come out of the Mexican war with the rank of colonel, received at the storming of Monterey, while at the head of his regiment; he had killed his man in a dozen street encounters and under the cruel code duello, and he was known as a man of dauntless courage and long-range aim. Few men of his day entered life with fairer prospects of achieving an honorable and enduring fame. In some respects he was a natural "Admirable Crichton" among men. He was possessed of a magnificent physique, and was a born soldier, poet, orator; but he died before his splendid gifts had hardly begun to germinate.

The curious lover of reminiscences, ready to broach the subject of "McClung" to old residents to hear thrilling incidents of the desperado-duelist's career, will frequently meet with a reticence in a public place, but in the stead of sending the usual formal challenge, he picked the offending party out of the fierce door. A single time after this, at another public place, McClung saw the same person kick another man out the door. Very much amused and now in a good humor, the duelist pleasantly called attention to the unconscious victim of the kick and then remarked:

"That's right, Colonel McClung," retorted the kicked kicker, "you and I know who to kick."

Tradition says he never satisfied he for change or seemed to be satisfied *with the courage of his antagonist ex*cept when, after receiving or sending a challenge, the offender chose bowie knives in a dark room. Each was to take his stand in the room, there to meet and cut till one or both were killed or satisfied. Knowing McClung to be expert with pistol, sword and knife, the challenged party remained prettily still in his corner, while the desperado, with lunging around in the dark like a madman, hacking and slashing at the air. Some were wounded after several minutes of this terrific test of the nervous system, unable to find his opponent, and others were so jealous that he himself was in mortal danger, it is said his courage for the time failed him, and the hero of a dozen desperate fights stopped short and cried out: "Where are you?" and demanded that the lights be turned up. Few were killed. When the lights were restored Colonel McClung was white as a sheet.

Upon one occasion, when a most insulting remark to a little fellow whom he could almost have carried around in his shoulder pocket was made by one another of his numerous duels, the temperate and accomplished man proved game. Walking up to his towering antagonist and shaking his fist, he said:

"Colonel McClung! I'll let you know, sir, I'm no sardine if you are a whaler!"

McClung laughingly shook hands with him on the spot and apologized.

An anecdote is related of Colonel McClung's courage or may not be true, but truth, but it is at least plausible as being in line with his well-known character. He was engaged to be married, and was in the habit of visiting a lady at Mobile whom he admired. One evening when he called he noticed that she seemed nervous and agitated. He understood why when a heavy step sounded along the hall and a rough voice was heard in the drawing-room. The lover was then followed by a gruff voice demanding admission. The fair one explained to the Colonel that they were both in imminent peril; as the gentleman on the outside was a river captain who came to town periodically and insisted much against her will on visiting her.

"Let him in!" said McClung.

"Oh, but he'll kill us!" said the poor lady.

"Never you mind about that; you let him in," said the Colonel Mississippi.

The outsider was getting furious by this time, and when the door was opened he rushed in like a mad bull.

"Now here, young man," he yelled, "I'll have you to know, and don't you forget it!"

Colonel McClung was confronted with his big antagonist easily on his own ground. Without changing his position he calmly asked the question:

"Do you know who I am, sir?"

"No, and — the difference; you clear out!"

Still, without making a movement, McClung drawled:

"Well, I am Colonel Mississippi, and my name is Alexander McClung. I'll give you ten seconds to vacate the room."

"I have time to waste, Colonel," said the Captain, as he made a bee line for the door.

Colonel McClung was found dead in his hotel at Jackson, weltering in his blood, with one of his own pistols lying by his side. No doubt existed but that he had taken his own life. The reasons generally given are the pecuniary embarrassments of the men he had aided, and disappointment in not receiving a foreign office for which he felt the Administration he had worked to place in power so far as Mississippi was concerned.

The Culture in America.

Some recent statistics show that very rapid increase is being made in vine culture in this country. There are now under vine culture in America 400,000 acres, of which about 300,000 are bearing. The estimated value of the vineyards and wine cellars is $185,000,000. In California there are 150,000 acres under vine culture, and a large proportion of the grapes produced are made into wine. Most of the grapes grown in New York state are sold for food. The total production of wine in the United States during the last year is about 40,000,000 gallons.

GOOD WOMEN FOR LAZY MEN.

By actual count 150 young women leave takeaway timber claims in Dakota and Washington during the past six months.

THERE are now 100 regularly ordained women preachers in the United States, where forty years ago there was only one.

Our woman in Monroe, Me., has made in ten months time 3,876 vests, receiving therefor $410, besides doing the housework for herself and father, and taking care of the milk of one cow.

GERTRUDE LUNDEN is the poetic name of a young woman who is said to be living for herself and two children sweeping and dusting the private apartments of homekeeping and bachelors.

In Austria women are employed to carry the mortar and brick to the building. They work from sunrise to dark, the morning till six o'clock at night with one hour at noon, and receive twenty cents a day. Most of the male bod-carriers are unmarried and bonyless.

MR. E. A. PLAGG, of West Hartford, Conn., shows a business tact that is surpassed by but few men. In addition to managing the grist mill and feed business, she has started an ice enterprise. A head has been cut on the high, has been built and filled with 2,000 tons of ice, which she proposes to sell the coming season.

AN emergeming paragraph in London advertised for several bald-headed men, to sell a new wig. Over two hundred applied at a theatrical performance, but the manager of the theater objected.

A RECENT issue of a paper published in Natal, South Africa, contained this advertisement: "Wanted—A young lady to take a comfortable home and to teaching three children. Apply to Rev. J. Ingreesey, N. B. Three eligible bachelors kept on the premises."

Railroads.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD
THE STANDARD RAILWAY OF AMERICA
PROTECTED THROUGHOUT BY THE Interlocking Switch and Signal System.

TRAINS FOR THE WEST.
On and after June 30, 1889, leave Elizabeth as follows:

8.00 A. M. FAST LINE, with Pullman Vestibuled parlor and sleeping cars, daily for Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, St. Louis and Chicago, daily, except Saturday, for Chicago and Pittsburg.

10.00 A. M. PACIFIC EXPRESS, with Pullman Vestibuled sleeping cars, dining car to Pittsburg, for Pittsburg, Crestline, Cleveland, Cincinnati and St. Louis, daily except Saturday, for Pittsburg and Chicago.

2.30 P. M. PACIFIC EXPRESS, with Pullman Vestibuled sleeping cars, dining car to Pittsburg, for Pittsburg, Crestline, Cleveland, Cincinnati and St. Louis, daily except Saturday, for Pittsburg and Chicago.

For Baltimore, Washington and Pittsburg—7.00 (Royal Blue), 9.00 A. M., 12.00 (Royal Blue), 3.30, 4.30, 7.00 (Royal Blue), 10.45 P. M.

For Philadelphia—7.00, 8.00, 7.15, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 A. M., 12.00 (Royal Blue), 1.00, 2.00, 3.30, 4.30, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00 (Royal Blue), 10.45 P. M. Sundays—7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Trenton—7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 A. M., 12.00 (Royal Blue), 1.00, 2.00, 3.30, 4.30, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00 (Royal Blue), 10.45 P. M. Sundays—7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00 A. M., 12.00, 4.30, 6.00 P. M.

For Atlantic City, 9.30 A. M., 1.30 P. M.

For Long Branch, Ocean Grove, &c.—9.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M. Sundays—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Rockaway, 9.30 A. M., 1.30 P. M.

For Bound Brook, Somerville and Flemington—8.00, 9.00, 10.00 A. M., 12.00 (Royal Blue), 1.00, 3.30, 4.30, 7.00 (Royal Blue), 10.45 P. M. Sundays—8.00, 9.00, 10.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Lambertville, Easton and Intermediate points—8.00, 9.00, 10.00 A. M., 12.00 (Royal Blue), 1.00, 3.30, 4.30, 7.00 (Royal Blue), 10.45 P. M. Sundays—8.00, 9.00, 10.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Belvidere, Manunka Chunk and Intermediate points—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Phillipsburg, Belvidere, Delaware Water Gap, Scranton, Wilkesbarre, Hazleton, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Tamaqua, Shamokin, Sunbury, Lewisburg, Upper Lehigh, Wilmesterre, Syracuse, &c. Through coach to Buffalo—8.00 A. M.

For Belvidere, Delaware Water Gap, Scranton, Reading, Harrisburg, Mauch Chunk, Pottsville, Williamsport, &c.—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Reading, Harrisburg, &c.—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Flemington, High Bridge Branch, Lehigh Valley Railroad—8.00 A. M.

For Flemington—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Manunka Chunk, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Reading, Harrisburg—8.00 A. M.

For Bethlehem, Easton, Bethlehem and Allentown—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Somerville—8.00, 9.00, 10.00 A. M., 12.00 (Royal Blue), 1.00, 3.30, 4.30, 7.00 (Royal Blue), 10.45 P. M. Sundays—8.00, 9.00, 10.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Lambertville, Easton, Belvidere, Delaware Water Gap, Scranton, Wilkesbarre, Hazleton, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Tamaqua, Shamokin, Sunbury, Lewisburg, Upper Lehigh, Wilmesterre, Syracuse, &c.—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Phillipsburg—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Belvidere, Delaware Water Gap, Scranton, Wilkesbarre, Hazleton, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, &c.—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Reading, Harrisburg, &c.—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Bethlehem, Easton, Bethlehem and Allentown—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Somerville—8.00, 9.00, 10.00 A. M., 12.00 (Royal Blue), 1.00, 3.30, 4.30, 7.00 (Royal Blue), 10.45 P. M. Sundays—8.00, 9.00, 10.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Lambertville, Easton, Belvidere, Delaware Water Gap, Scranton, Wilkesbarre, Hazleton, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Tamaqua, Shamokin, Sunbury, Lewisburg, Upper Lehigh, Wilmesterre, Syracuse, &c. Through coach to Buffalo—8.00 A. M.

For Belvidere, Delaware Water Gap, Scranton, Reading, Harrisburg, Mauch Chunk, Pottsville, Williamsport, &c.—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Reading, Harrisburg, &c.—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Bethlehem, Easton, Bethlehem and Allentown—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Somerville—8.00, 9.00, 10.00 A. M., 12.00 (Royal Blue), 1.00, 3.30, 4.30, 7.00 (Royal Blue), 10.45 P. M. Sundays—8.00, 9.00, 10.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Lambertville, Easton, Belvidere, Delaware Water Gap, Scranton, Wilkesbarre, Hazleton, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Tamaqua, Shamokin, Sunbury, Lewisburg, Upper Lehigh, Wilmesterre, Syracuse, &c.—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Phillipsburg—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Belvidere, Delaware Water Gap, Scranton, Wilkesbarre, Hazleton, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, &c.—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Reading, Harrisburg, &c.—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Bethlehem, Easton, Bethlehem and Allentown—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Somerville—8.00, 9.00, 10.00 A. M., 12.00 (Royal Blue), 1.00, 3.30, 4.30, 7.00 (Royal Blue), 10.45 P. M. Sundays—8.00, 9.00, 10.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Lambertville, Easton, Belvidere, Delaware Water Gap, Scranton, Wilkesbarre, Hazleton, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Tamaqua, Shamokin, Sunbury, Lewisburg, Upper Lehigh, Wilmesterre, Syracuse, &c. Through coach to Buffalo—8.00 A. M.

For Belvidere, Delaware Water Gap, Scranton, Reading, Harrisburg, Mauch Chunk, Pottsville, Williamsport, &c.—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Reading, Harrisburg, &c.—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Bethlehem, Easton, Bethlehem and Allentown—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Somerville—8.00, 9.00, 10.00 A. M., 12.00 (Royal Blue), 1.00, 3.30, 4.30, 7.00 (Royal Blue), 10.45 P. M. Sundays—8.00, 9.00, 10.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Lambertville, Easton, Belvidere, Delaware Water Gap, Scranton, Wilkesbarre, Hazleton, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Tamaqua, Shamokin, Sunbury, Lewisburg, Upper Lehigh, Wilmesterre, Syracuse, &c.—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Phillipsburg—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Belvidere, Delaware Water Gap, Scranton, Wilkesbarre, Hazleton, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, &c.—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Bethlehem, Allentown, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre, Scranton, Reading, Harrisburg, &c.—8.00 A. M., 4.30 P. M.

For Bethlehem, Easton,

The Constitutionalist,
A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY,
W. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE, Editors and Proprietors.
AT PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY.
TERMS.—TWO DOLLARS A YEAR.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXIV. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, JUNE 25, 1891. No. 26.

"Support the Constitution, which is the cement of the Union, as well in its limitations as in its authorities."—MADISON

Rates of Advertising.

Space	1 WEEK	2	3	1 MONTH	2	3	6	12
1 in.	$1.00	$1.50	$2.00	$3.00	$4.00	$5.00	$8.00	$12.00
2 in.	1.50	2.00	2.50	4.00	5.00	6.00	9.00	15.00
3 in.	2.00	2.50	3.00	5.00	6.00	7.00	10.00	18.00
4 in.	2.50	3.00	3.50	6.00	7.00	8.00	12.00	20.00
¼ col.	4.00	5.00	6.00	8.00	10.00	12.00	18.00	30.00
½ col.	7.00	9.00	11.00	15.00	18.00	20.00	30.00	50.00
1 col.	12.00	15.00	18.00	25.00	30.00	35.00	50.00	80.00

All Electro's must be solid metal.

Table of Everything column, 5 cts. per line.

Double Col. 30 per ct. advance of above rates.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

JACKSON & CODDINGTON,
Counsellors-at-Law,
Commissioners of Deeds, Masters in Chancery, Notaries Public, Office: Corner of Park Avenue and Second street, Plainfield.

W. V. STEELE,
Counselor-at-Law,
Master and Examiner in Chancery, Supreme Court Commissioner,
Office, PARK AND NORTH AVES. 4-51-1m

GEORGE W. DAY,
General Auctioneer,
Sales of Personal Property solicited. P. O. Box 162, Dunellen, N. J., or address me in care of Constitutionalist, Plainfield. 7-21

DR. CHARLES R. THEIS,
Dentist,
26 West Front street. A new local anesthetic administered for extracting, without pain. Gold filling a specialty.—jy27

H. HANE,
Auctioneer,
P. O. Address, Lock Box 31, Green Farms, N. J. (Green lost on T. J. Casey's second-hand store, 49 West Front street, Plainfield, N. J., will receive prompt attention.—ap25

OSCAR S. TEALE,
Architect,
247 Broadway, New York city, Rooms 31 and 32, (Importers' and Traders' Bank Building.) Residence, Plainfield, N. J.—jy25

J. H. FENTEN,
Veterinary Surgeon.
Office in A. M. Seguine's livery office, corner Main street and Somerset street, Plainfield, N. J. Day or night calls promptly attended. Telephone No. 10. Consultation on diseases of all domesticated animals. Residence, 19 East Fifth ave., Grant Place.

BUSINESS CARDS.

P. P. VanArsdale,
PIANO TUNER.
Is responsible to this town's order. Terms reasonable. Pianos and Organs for sale and to let on easy payments. P. O. Box 180 or left at William's Music Store, No. 5 Park avenue will receive prompt attention. Residence, 21 East 6th street, Another Music Store.—jy25

JOHN CHANDLER,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.,
residence and shop No. 28 East 3d St.
Jobbing promptly attended to. 4947

T. J. CILLIES,
Auctioneer & Real Estate Agent.
SALESROOM—Madison avenue, near Front St. Plainfield, N. J.
Goods received on consignment.

TO THE PUBLIC!

We wish to inform our customers and the public generally that we have on hand the best quality of

LEHIGH COAL,
Fresh from the Mines.

It is under cover and will protected from the weather. We are prepared to deliver it well screened and in good order promptly. We are also prepared to handle all kinds of Stone, Mason's Lumber and Masons' Materials at short notice.

A. D. COOK & BRO.
1m941

J. Hervey Doane,
6 PARK AVENUE.
(Formerly Clark's.)

Watches,
Clocks
And Jewelry.
Repairing neatly and promptly done.
3697

FOR
BEAUTIFUL DESIGNS
In Furniture
GO TO
23, 25 and 27 PARK AVE.
Garret Q. Packer,

Steam Marble
Granite Works.
AND
Monuments & Headstones,
Fencing for Cemetery Plots.
Large assortment of Slate Mantels.
Large variety of Granite Monuments always on hand.
All work executed in the most skillful manner at reasonable prices. All orders faithfully and promptly executed.
H. KLEINDIEL,
Front St., near S. R. Ch., PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Monuments erected in Greenwood Cemetery.

Alex. Willett,
DEALER IN
BOOTS & SHOES,
No. 7 PARK AVENUE.
A full assortment of desirable goods direct from manufacturers, at Low Figures. 3697

Geo. A. Moore,
(Of the late firm of Moore Bros.)
Is now the sole proprietor of the old established
No. 24 NORTH AVENUE,
Where he will continue to supply patrons with the finest grades of Tweed and Worsted Suits, of all kinds, Overcoats, Cloaks, Gents in Season at the lowest market prices. Anything not found in stock is kept in hand finished at short notice.

HOTELS AND SALOONS.

FORCE'S HOTEL,
NORTH AVENUE, (NEAR N. R. STATION.)
JAS. H. FORCE, Prop'r.
A FIRST-CLASS FAMILY HOTEL. Steam Heat. First-class Plumbing.
Transient guests at reasonable rates. 10-81-tf

SOMERSET HOTEL,
Corner Somerset and Emily Streets,
NORTH PLAINFIELD.
RICHARD A. BOYCE, Prop'r.
Permanent and transient board at fair rates. First-class stabling and sheds attached. Meals at all reasonable hours.

Dime Savings Institution
OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest at the rate of three (3) per cent. per annum payable semi-annually.

JOHN W. MURRAY, President,
WILLIAM WHITE, Vice "
NATHAN HARPER, "
ELIAS R. POPE, Treasurer.
4907

Jas. M. Dunn,
Dealer in
GROCERIES, PROVISIONS,
Vegetables, Fruits, etc.
No. 36 Park Ave.
OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.
THORBURN & CO'S GARDEN SEEDS.
SENT IN THE WINTER.
ALL GOODS DELIVERED FREE AS OF CHARGE.
4907

ESTABLISHED 1836
C.E. & J.W. BROWN,
[Successors to G. F. & C. E. Brown & Co.]
Importers, Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
WALL PAPER.
321 Canal Street.
NEW YORK.
English Tiles, Anaglypta, Hand, Leather Raised Flock Papers, &c. Borings for Walls.
Manufacturers of Window Shades.
2-15-1y

LIVERY.

A. M. SEGUINE,
(Successor to John W. Laing.)
Laing's Hotel Stables

Front street, opposite Madison avenue.
Coaches for Weddings, Parties and Private Calls. Light carriages of all descriptions for pleasure.
RIDING OR LIVERY.
Careful, safe drivers for shopping calls or pleasure drives. Special attention given to boarding horses by the day, week or month.—ap11y1
TELEPHONE CALL, NO. 26.

Livery Stables!
Mr. D. S. ROBERTS
Has Removed to His New Building on
NORTH AVENUE,
Adjoining Potter's Hotel. Mr. Roberts will stay his old friends and will be glad to make friends for all kinds of turn-outs at his stables, as he proposes conducting the livery business in a thoroughly up-to-date manner. Horses and Carriages to hire on reasonable terms. Prompt attention given to Orders

Accommodation Express.
PETER SICKERT, Proprietor.
Office—Vreeland's Hairdressing Parlors over The Accommodation Express will attend to the prompt carting of baggage in the city, delivering goods or baggage to and from the Depot or from place to place. Moving of Furniture, Pianos &c., with care and safety. Prompt attention given to Orders

INSURANCE.

WILLIAM A. WOODRUFF,
FIRE AND LIFE
INSURANCE AGENT,
Office cor. Front St. and Park Ave.,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Real Estate for Sale & Exchange.
MONEY TO LOAN
On Approved Security.
Mutual

J. C. Pope & Co.,
GENERAL AGENTS OF THE
German American Ins. Co.,
of New York.
Also represents other first-class Fire Insurance Companies. Agents of the Insane Steamship Line. Drafts on Ireland for sale. Post and City Notarial Seals procured. Deeds executed, &c.
OFFICE:
5 E. FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD.
JAMES C. POPE. ELIAS R. POPE

A FEW TRAINED
AGENTS
Can secure employment by addressing the
The World's Religions.
Parties. LIBERAL TERMS. Best Territory.
THE CHRISTIAN LITERATURE CO.
25 Bond Street, NEW YORK.

EDUCATIONAL.

Miss SCRIBNER
AND
Miss NEWTON'S
SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
AND KINDERGARTEN,
17 LaGrande Avenue,
CORNER OF WASHINGTON STREET,
Will reopen WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 17, 1890.
The regular courses will include Modeling, Drawing and Leaving. 9 21

PAINTERS & PAINTERS SUPPLIES

Paints, Varnishes, Glass,
WINDOW SHADES AND FIXTURES.
WALL PAPERS!
PAPER HANGING A SPECIALTY.
A. SWALM,
No. 6 North Avenue, Plainfield.
4922

L. B. WOOLSTON. J. V. BUCKLE
Woolston & Buckle,
PAINTERS,
Wall Papers,
PAINTER'S SUPPLIES. 20 NORTH AVENUE
4922

MISCELLANEOUS.

LEWIS B. CODDINGTON,
[Successor to T. J. Casey.]
Furniture and Freight Express!
OFFICE—34 W. FRONT ST.
Large Covered Vans or Trucks. Goods delivered to any part of the U. S. Satisfaction guaranteed. Charges reasonable. P. O. Box 239. Mr. Pinto moving a specialty. 1182

Fresh Garden Seeds
AND F RTILIZERS,
Farm and Garden Implements,
Lawn Mowers Refrigerators,
Ice Cream Freezers,
Gasoline Stoves, Hardware, Tools, etc.
J. J. HEIDELOFF,
No. 12 SOMERSET ST. 3-13-tf

CANOPIES
For Weddings, Parties, Etc.,
TO HIRE. CHARGES REASONABLE
Hugo Weigman,
28 EAST FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD, N. J.
MCSBE

ADRIANCE
Buckeye Mowers
AND REAPERS.
Agricultural Machinery
Depot.
Gasoline Stoves, Refrigerators,
Tinware and Plumbing.
A. M. GRIFFEN,
13 East Front Street.
TELEPHONE CALL, 6. 11 11-tf

SPEER'S
GRAPE WINES,
ALSO
UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.

Used in the principal churches for communion. Invalids, especially for families, weakly persons and the aged.

Speer's Port Grape Wine,
FOUR YEARS OLD.

THIS Celebrated Wine is the pure Juice of the Long Dorothy grape, raised in Speer's Vineyards, Passaic county, N. J., and is the favorite purely sustained before gathering. Its Tonic and Strengthening Properties are unsurpassed by any other Wine. Being produced under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed by the principal Hospitals and Boards of Health who have examined it. The youngest child and the weakest invalids use it to advantage. It is particularly recommended to the aged and debilitated and assisted to the various advanced stages of convalescence.

It is in every respect a WINE TO BE RELIED ON.

Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice

Is the purest of the Oporto Grape, preserved in its natural state, and contains all the fruit in solution by fermentation and electricity, thereby destroying the nutrient of fermentation. It is perfectly pure, free from spirits, and will keep in any climate.

Speer's (Sacrallia) Claret

Is held in high estimation for its richness as a Dry Table Wine, especially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Sherry

Is a Wine of superior character, and partakes of the nature, flavor and richness of the Sherry Wine, especially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Brandy

IS A PURE distillation of the grape, and stands unrivaled in its quality for medicinal purposes. It has a peculiar flavor unknown to that of the grapes from which it is distilled.

See that the signatures of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., are on every bottle. 6-29-1y

SOLD BY DRUGGISTS WHO KEEP PURE LIQUORS.

TOBACCO, SEGARS, &c.

H. EGGERDING,
No. 17 Park Avenue,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Manufacturer of the Celebrated
C. O. D. CIGAR.
The best cigar in the State, and made on the premises from the finest leaves.
CLEAR HAVANA HEARS A SPECIALTY.
All cigars sent to the Collector of Internal Revenue and Foreign Ports. Domestic Chairs, Cigarettes and Tobacco always on hand.
Smokers Articles in Great Variety.
6m17

C. M. FINE,
Dealer in HAVANA & DOMESTIC
—SEGARS!—
6, 38 PARK AVE., (NEAR CORNER SECOND ST.)
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Tobacco and Smoker's Materials, of every description.

"The Judge" Smoking Tobacco, with other specialties for sale at wholesale and retail. 42tf

A. WOLFF,
Manufacturer of
CIGARS,
And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles. Has removed from No. 9, W. Front street, to 62 West Front street, corner of Madison avenue, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

CARNEY BROS., Ag'ts,
11 SOMERSET ST.
TINNERS,
PLUMBERS,
GAS FITTERS.
PARLOR STOVES,
COOK STOVES,
HEATERS.
Grains and Bricks for all kinds of Stove can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your Furnace bending to us. The best Tinners, the best Plumbers, and the best Gas-fitters in the section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction.
Keys of All Kinds are Made Here.
Tinware Made to Order.
Ranges, Brick and Portable Furnaces
SANITARY PLUMBING.

WHATEVER form of printed matter you require we can be of service to you; whether it be

Letter Headings,
Circulars,
Programmes, Menus,
Addresses,
Memorials,
By-Laws of Societies,
Prospectuses and Reports of Financial Associations, or any other manner for Public or Private Circulation.
Everything.

WEEKLY CONSTITUTIONALIST.

DAILY PRESS

(Chautauqua Building)

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

SANITARY PLUMBING,
Brick and Portable Furnaces,
GAS FITTING,
TIN ROOFING,
Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in a satisfactory manner and at reasonable prices.

Having associated myself with the Messrs. Hoffman, I am now prepared to do all kinds of Plumbing, Gas and Steam Fitting in a satisfactory manner and at reasonable prices.

D. W. LITTELL,
No. 6 SOUTH AVE. (NEAR Plainfield, N. J.

WORDS.

Arrow of flame! or blow of might!
Keen sword, or weapon with no metal tried!
Thy fame, and that of all the English land,
Were poised there in a row of dead,
Who woke in life in unknown graves,
Those slumbering in forgotten ground,
Those sleeping in the sea.
Yet all were equal in the end,
And all were mingled in the night.
Till dead she fell in darkest night.

Words! lighter than the feeding down
That comes the rippled tide!
Words! deadlier in their searching power
Than the two-edged sword!
Who has not wept in proud despair
Who has not writhed in agony!
Who has not listened to the sneer
Sung by the alien Hyperborean!

Words! idle words as the tales told
Before words that stilled still Odilon,
By gentle words have shaken their power
Who has not heard the whispered word
That sent the hearts of men to hell,
Or turned the coward back to fight,
That thrilled men's souls to the highest,
Were caught from dying lips of heroes
Or from the pen of some scholar?
—March 28, P. Gilmore Deese.

DID HE DO RIGHT?

A Nice Question of Ethics for Readers to Decide.

Jerry and Pete were two industrious mechanics. They lived in a fourth ward tenement, and each had a couple of children to support. Their wives, who, albeit, were not unacquainted with a noble art frequently employed in the tenements.

Jerry and Pete were hard workers; they worked far into the night, and occasionally, if the thin blade of day had begun to break on the narrow city pavements before their labors would cease. Nobody cared what they did, so not a hard-earned pillow. Sometimes they did not toil by rule. It depended largely upon the spoils.

It was a chilly night in November that this story opens. It was after the burglary of a certain safe in the establishment of a furniture concern on the West side. On the evening in question the two burglars had had a wrangle with his accounts.

"I object to your head or tail of this," he said to the senior member of the firm, "but I know every thing is all right, so I suppose it is satisfactory. Ours has been carried over from each daily footing but where the error lies I can not find. I must look it up."

The fact was the monthly sales had been extraordinarily large, and a page of the balance had been added. The book-keeper spent an hour in again casting up both the entries and the subordinates after the establishment closed its doors for the day.

Then he went home for his supper, determined to locate the deficit if he did get a wink of sleep that night.

Book-keepers, it must be remembered, have singularly sensitive organisms, amenable to the slightest stone of any thing which reflects upon their probity or skill.

At half-past eight he returned and commenced anew his critical calculations. He worked precisely two hours, at the end of which time he suddenly slapped his forehead and exclaimed:

"Great Scott! Why haven't I looked through the safe? Can it be possible? Ten to one Weeks forgot to number them!"

He turned over the pages of the balance in his hand and, sure enough, the safe number had been left off fourteen in the upper left-hand corner was wanting. In all likelihood one page, or perhaps two, had slipped in some remote corner of the safe.

The safe was a large one, partially resting back to wall. It contained all the papers documents and several days' receipts in cash and drafts of the firm.

The book-keeper, in his efforts to unearth the lost page was obliged to betrade his entire body into the safe. Fearful lest the candle he held should ignite something from the open door, and bring out as it did in glaring relief against the black recesses of the safe, before entering he drew the door slightly to.

As he stepped in the tail of his coat probably caught on an angle of the huge rivetted hinges of the door. The massive gate swung to as if it weighed no more than a single pound and the book-keeper was a prisoner.

He heard a resonant click, that was all, and his candle went out.

There is nothing especially remarkable about the incident—tragic as it certainly must have been to the unfortunate wretch inside. Many men have been imprisoned in safes before. But this reflection would hardly soothe the agony of that horrible moment.

The book-keeper at the outset lost his presence of mind. He fought like a cagged demon, after first exerting almost superhuman strength against the four sides of the safe. He beat his body gave out, and without for an instant losing consciousness he found himself sitting in a partially upright posture unable to stir hand or foot.

At that instant, when hours seemed to have elapsed, the drunk of the safe how abnormally sensitive was almost split into fragments. A frightful monotonous clangor rent the interior of the safe.

The book-keeper used to say afterward that a second's deviation of characteristic thought and he would have gone mad.

Stronger minds in a parallel situation would have collapsed. But a weaker personality, one more accustomed to hope. Only weak individuals while in the act of drowning catch at straws. The book-keeper felt himself gradually growing faint from want of air his revivified hope led him to deliberately count the bricks in the pavement with which the interior of the safe was lined, in naive fashion, one drawn being built above another.

As may have been conjectured, the safe had been made more accurately than war was that of a drill. Although keenly distinguished from the inside, the sound was practically smothered on the outside of the vaults.

At one end of the drill was a cavity holding several pounds of the best steel panels. At its other end was a heavy, warty fist, part of the anatomy of Jerry, the burglar's partner.

Pete held the drill while his friend Jerry pounded it in.

Perhaps a dozen burglars became aware that a terrible commotion was going on within the safe. It nearly frightened them to death. They were certainly very much startled.

Jerry was for throwing up the job, but his companion rejected the suggestion with scorn as savoring of the superstitious. Pete had a large family to support, he argued. He pleaded fondly to his friend and co-laborer. The burden of his remarks was in these words:

"You make me tired with yer ghosts and hobgoblins. Don't I know my own darn fooling—see? Do blamed if it is most through, any way."

Pete stood at the door, back to work. At the first crack of the drill Jerry said:

"Pete, there's a man or something in that safe."

Both men grew as pale as ghosts at the mere mention of Pete interpolated spoiled his ears. Both men grew as pale as ghosts at the mere mention of Pete interpolated them to the drill-hole.

"Hey, in there!" he bellowed out in his loudest tones, so as to be heard on all the sidewalk. There came the faint response, very faint indeed.

"Thank God's sakes, give me air! I am locked in here. Try and locate open the door."

The two burglars did not stop to talk, but went at once to work as if their very lives depended on the speed of their labors.

Jerry, meanwhile, the unfortunate book-keeper's. In less than three minutes they had a hole somewhat smaller than the bottom end of a collar button knocked into that safe.

Then they stopped to rest, and the man inside, who had come so near to death, breathed.

It was now that the two burglars became aware of their predicament. In all probability this was a member of the firm or an employe. This fact knocked the bottom out of the night adventure sky-high, unless, when they let the man out, they gagged and bound him into silence.

But this course would have an ugly look. It might mean murder in the end, however, if he was left in the safe, the chances were he would fall back exhausted before morning and they would still be murderers and responsible for his taking off.

There were highly comforting reflections, but there was still one more powerful. What it was remains to be seen.

"Hey! is there!" cried Pete, "what's the combination of yer safe?"

"—is—79," came back in an almost sepulchral tone.

It was evidently hard work to draw breath through that hole. In exactly fifteen seconds the lock of the safe grew forth the same resonant click it had given a half-hour previously. Thanks to the advent of the burglars, it opened as lightly and airily as it had closed just thirty minutes before on the unhappy accountant.

The latter gasped once or twice, and without any assistance stepped out into the free air.

Now comes the interesting part.

He was very pale and his dress was much torn and disordered when he stepped to the floor, but the paller grew way to red flush at perceiving the two burglars.

They stood stock still as if they had seen a ghost.

Without any kind of speech or warning or any attempt at bravado the book-keeper walked straight to his desk and began to write.

Silence.

Almost simultaneously, so quick and quiet was the action, he opened a drawer, took out a pistol and covered the two burglars with a fatal precision. As he did so he uttered these words:

"Gentlemen, I would be the basest of men if I did not feel profoundly grateful for your kindness. Now, I shall always regard you as any man would regard those who have saved his life with peril to themselves. Any thing you wish of me I shall make an effort to perform. I have accumulated a little money, and with it I shall see that the best counsel are engaged for your defense. If you are convicted, why—"

Here the officers entered, having broken in the door with a crash.—N. Y. Herald.

MARINE MEALS.

Uncle Sam's Sea-Soldier Fattens Himself and Still Has a Surprise.

The meal of the merry marine, much as he would like to have it appear a simple, crude and unsatisfactory affair, nevertheless, if all accounts are to be believed, the subject of considerable study, attention and manipulation.

The quartermaster of the marine corps advertises each year for proposals for marine rations for the various posts from July 1 to the end of the following. Bids are opened in May and the contracts go to the lowest bidders. The Government specifies the quantity and quality of the rations in the bidding has hereto fore been figures, and this year the lucky bidder secured the contract for the supply of the Washington post at thirteen dollars and thirty-nine cents per one hundred rations, or a little over thirteen and one-half cents a day for a marine's feed. It is only a couple of years ago that a bid of over seventeen cents a ration was accepted by the Government.

One hundred rations must contain the following quantities: Seventy-five pounds salt pork or one hundred and twenty-five pounds fresh beef, one hundred and twelve pounds of flour, fifteen pounds beans, fifteen pounds rice, ten pounds potatoes, one and one-half pounds of tea, four pounds salt, four pounds soap, four quarts vinegar, four ounces pepper, and one and half pounds candles. Uncle Sam contracts for these rations and sends them by team with machine-like regularity, but he does not have a law that one hundred marines shall use up so much stuff in a day, whether they want it or not, and here is where the cunning and economical sea soldier gets in his most effective work. For, with great variety for controlling circumstances and a tactical capacity much superior to that required for a dress parade, he manipulates the ration until it becomes a thing of beauty and much to be enjoyed and that many times. True very seldom a man eats all the Government allows him. But what is left is saved and, provided it isn't cooked, so why not sell it? Now the oversupply for the somewhat like two hundred men at the Flushing Avenue barracks, even if they were all on hand all the time, is worth considering, and when to that are added the rations of those who are away for a little while it is worth more. So the cook or mate is calculated with that more or less nicety, and what is saved is sold to various dealers with whom acquaintance is made. The amount, create a fund. What does the marine do with it?

Well, an officer of the post is consulted by the commandant to put out his money to the best advantage in buying additional edibles to which shall lend variety, if not luxury, to the repast. The cast-iron Government ration is bounded with the limits of an epicurean variety, as a glance at the above list may reveal. With the somewhat over two hundred dollars a month put into his hands for the purpose the officer who buys the extras gets potatoes (when cheap enough), onions, fresh vegetables for the soup, more beans, more rice, more tea, more coffee, and lemonsufficient of the best aloe stew body also oatmeal, milk, prunes, and the like. The officer who buys these things has to show his receipts and have his accounts audited by a board of fellow-officers. Part of the saving from the ration goes to stock the library, buy games and provide gymnastic apparatus, and the rest is spent in various means of amusing and benefiting the men. It is beyond question that the enthusiasm with which the marine grumbles about the quantity or quality of their food are vastly in the minority.

Sentiment Something.

"Did you realize anything in that gigantic work manufacturing scheme you were interested in?"

"Yes, I realized that I was a chump."—Jewelers' Circular.

Sympathy.

Freddy—Cholly, I've got an allygoss failing in me stomach, don't y' know?

Cholly—Yes, your stomach groans when with your head, don't you know?—Chicago Tribune.

They Agreed.

She—I am your better half now.

He—Yes, you are indeed to be. You are the most expensive half.—Grip.

THE ARIZONA KICKER.

Some Kicks Worthy of an Enterprising Western Paper.

THE deadlock in the common council was broken last night by the absence of Col. Taylor. The colonel occupies the casting vote, which in the absence of the colonel decided to help break it. We want to say right here and now that if money is any more "flowing" in the council we will move to impeach the whole gang, and if we can't get 'em impeached we'll head a body of enraged citizens and clean 'em out to a man. They were elected to do public business and the public is going to insist to put up with their personal quarrels. Col. Taylor exhibited wisdom in moving down off his high horse, and we trust the lesson he received will not soon be forgotten.

THE COLONEL COULDN'T HELP BEING ABSENT.

A WORD TO THE MAYOR.—The mayor of this town hasn't the decency of a scarf over the dignity of an office. He has been drunk at least three times a week for the last month, and he would as soon pull a knife on a police as look at him

The Constitutionalist.
W. L. FORCE, A. L. FORCE
Editors and Proprietors.

THE CONTRAST.

The Democratic Administration of President Cleveland, after duly providing for all legitimate expenses of Government, meeting the liberal and judicious appropriations of the Democratic House of Congress, and faithfully accounting for the expenditure of public money in every department, went out of office leaving in the Treasury a surplus of one hundred million dollars.

SURPLUS $100,000,000.

That evidenced Democratic fidelity and prudence.

The Republican Administration of President Harrison has been in existence, with a Republican Congress at its back, a little over two years, and has not only squandered the Democratic surplus, but piled on the Treasury to the tune of nearly eight hundred thousand dollars deficit.

DEFICIENCY $800,000.

That shows Republican misrule and prodigality.

The end is not yet.

Because the extravagant obligations voted by a Republican Congress with unbiasing financial and partisan recklessness are swelling higher and higher, while the volume of revenue is fast receding.

National bankruptcy is in sight.

To avoid it, there must be an increase of bonded indebtedness, or direct taxation imposed upon the people. No other alternative appears possible.

On September 1st some forty or fifty million dollars of United States bonds fall due.

Had President Cleveland remained at the helm, the national debt to that large extent would have been promptly paid off and the interest saved.

Under Republican mismanagement those bonds must be continued in force.

It is a shameful condition of financial affairs, and for it the Republican party will be held wrongly responsible.

The credit of Government, the permanent prosperity of business, and the welfare of the general public all demand the election in 1892 of a DEMOCRATIC PRESIDENT.

LIVING BY LYING.

"The injury that can be done to the business and financial interests of a city by lying correspondents sent out by newspaper "fakirs" is illustrated in the case of Johnstown, Pa. The city has made two attempts to float a loan of $40,000. It offered 5 per cent. bond, and only one bid for $2,000 was received. Financiers said the rate of interest was too low. Then the Councils increased it to 6 per cent. and the bonds were again offered. Up to date only $12,000 have been taken.

The explanation is given by the Johnstown Tribune, which says that the lack of confidence manifested by outside investors is due to "lying correspondents" who live in Johnstown, and who, whenever there is a heavy rain, send out statements that the city is in danger of another flood.

The Newark Journal takes the opportunity of the above disclosure to pertinently remark—and it is time the truth it tells were so plainly and forcibly said—that the business communities have been injured in their interests in the same way. Sensational sheets in New York have frequently published the most outrageous misrepresentations of cities and towns in the State, sent to them by irresponsible space writers. There was no care taken to ascertain whether the statements were true. It was enough if they measured the requirements of the sensational. Denials and protests sent to the newspaper office in New York received no attention. There is a way to rebuke these unjustifiable sheets. Let New Jersey people refuse to take them".

The above, taken from the New Brunswick Times, is the truth. Plainfield has been more seriously injured in its property by the lying writings of those fake scribblers than by any other source. Right you are. Refuse to take the sheets that employ irresponsible and unprincipled correspondents.

ABBETT FOR VICE PRESIDENT.

Congressman Samuel Fowler, of the Fourth District, discussed the political situation a few days ago as follows:

"The Democracy need have no fear of New Jersey in 1892," said the Congressman. "The wise administration of Governor Abbett has strengthened the party all over the State, particularly among the farmers. Jersey has always been true to the Democracy and we think it about time her fidelity was rewarded by giving her a place on the national ticket. Leon Abbett would make a splendid Presidential candidate. He would sweep New Jersey, and his popularity with the farmers is Democratic. As Jersey is reliably Democratic, I suppose the first place on the ticket will go to a doubtful State."

The nomination in Columbus, Ohio, of Major McKinley as the Republican candidate for Governor, is the beginning of the great tariff campaign of 1892. It is the beginning of a life or death struggle of the Republican party.

An historical parallel—Napoleon I. was reelected to First Consul. He reappeared and was vociferously cheered. He formulated his old platform and resolved to do or die on it. He had his Waterloo and died in exile at St. Helena. Will not the members of Mr. McKinley, the Napoleon of tariff, supply the other side of the parable?

For the first time in the history of the Government the Treasury officials last Friday were unable to fill out the last line in the regular statement of the condition of that department. The line reads: "Net balance in the Treasury." There was, according to the books, no balance in the Treasury. In June, 1888, the surplus in the United States Treasury was $100,000,000. This had entirely disappeared, and an actual deficit of $787,108 stood confessed by the record.

There is now no doubt that the Force Bill or Lodge Congress has made it necessary for the Government to stop paying its debt for the first time since the war, and not because it reduced the taxes and relieved the taxpayers of the country, but because of extravagance, most reckless and flagrant. The people will next Fall pass upon the latest achievement of the Republican party in the taking of more money from the people than ever before and yet lowered their credit as a nation—quite as emphatically as they last time passed upon the tariff policy of that party.

Persons who have not received their bills for subscription to THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, will please call and settle the same. Those who do not receive bills will please call and settle the same. Those who have not received their bills for subscription to THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, will please call and settle the same. Those who do not receive bills will please call and settle the same. Those who have not received their bills for subscription to THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, will please call and settle the same. Those who do not receive bills will please call and settle the same.

If American tin plate could be argued into existence the Republican press would turn out several thousand tons daily.

How such a simple, trusting soul as John Wanamaker ever got to be a millionaire is as great a mystery as Mr. Harrison's "luck on the tariff question."—Indianapolis Sentinel.

Some Improved Republican papers give their readers their money's worth, by telling them that the McKinley tariff has cheapened tin. The business men who advertise their wares with these soulless McKinleyites have to tell their customers of the advance and show pitiful imitations of prices, to make cash consistency in asking advance prices. How do you like the assistance such advertising gives you? Then the Republican organs rave about the "glittering generalities" in plain industry, and wrong again, for there is none.

There is gradually an i forefully pressing itself upon the Democratic mind in this State, the truth of the old Greek adage, "that whom the gods would destroy they first make mad." When party leaders insist on putting "all their eggs in one basket," and place every stake upon a single chance, they do that which is foolish, as well as bad business, is most unwise and almost certain to lead to total wreck. The Democratic party in New Jersey, as in other States, is made up of diverse elements. Its strength in Jersey at the present time, and that in consequence there is much dissatisfaction, which is being artfully and effectively fostered by our political enemies.

There is ample time in which to correct the evil, but the first great necessity is to recognize it.—True American.

ARRESTED AND REPUDIATED.

Sheriffson Again Held to Await the Action of the Grand Jury on Two Complaints, and Sentenced by Even Those Whom he Praised.

T. W. Sheriffson, "the journalist", is having hit hands full finding bondsmen to bail him out. He was arrested twice Tuesday, for criminal libel again. Once on the complaint of President Smith of the Common Council, and once on complaint of Councilman Spar genberg. There was no bail commissioner present, so Mr. Smith is a Republican and Mr. Spangenberg is a Democrat. Councilman Johnston of Netherwood permitted himself to be used by Morrison as a bondsman.

The reason of it all is this. Some days ago Thomas Dayel caused the arrest of Sheriffson on a charge of assault and battery and assault. He said they pushed him about, hit him with a club, and after striking him a few blocks under arrest let him go. There were so many different versions of the story in circulation. Messrs. Smith and Spangenberg went to the scene of the fray Saturday evening to investigate it.

They stopped a few minutes at the saloon in front of where the trouble began, and Kelley and Gilson, and a number of people in the neighborhood. While at ex-policeman Kelly's house Inspector Morrison in the absence of Chief Kehoe, and in his place, issued warrants for the police officers whose names he made one of as an opportunity to vilify Messrs. Smith and Spangenberg, some out the saloon, where all the party had been, and repudiate his statements to his face in these words:

"The editor of the news:

We wish to say that the police do not look upon the visit of Councilmen Smith and Spangenberg to the boulevard as inciting the trouble in Sheriffson's case. We, but to the contrary. You also state that they visited the saloon of John Goff and the house of ex-policeman Nicholas Kelly to procure evidence against Mr. Sheriffson. We have neglected to state that they also visited the stores of Edward J. Harding and Herman Wilker, and other places of business for evidence against the officers that they at only did our duty. They did not remain in the saloon over two minutes and Dayel was not in the room at any time.

PATRICK KELLEY.
CHARLES GILSE.

MR. GABLE IN TOWN AGAIN.

He Says He Will Provide for the Knights at a Meeting of the Police Let Him Alone.

(From THE PRESS of June 20.)

John Gable, who is accused of sleeping with Mrs. Avery, arrived in Plainfield again to-day on the one o'clock train from New York. He says he has come to Plainfield to support his children, but he will not live with his wife.

He doesn't expect to be arrested but if he is he threatens that he will do nothing for his family and leave them paupers on the town. He says the mortgage he gave on his furniture was to secure money he used in interest as his own, and that it has since been paid off. The money was used in his family, he says, and his wife can not deny it. "There is no use to tell the story about my running away with another woman", he told a PRESS reporter. "Who can prove it?" he defiantly questioned, forgetting how many can testify that he boasted of the elopement to them, and forgetting that a picture has been made of his picture he sent in from New York showing himself and the woman in a group together.

"If they arrest me and throw me in jail," he reasoned, "they'll get nothing. If they will leave me alone I will provide for the keeping of my wife and children. If they have any more cases against me, let them come on at once. I am not afraid of it things will have a different appearance."

He further said: "Some people will turn red in the face if I'm arrested and this thing all comes out."

LATER.

Gable was arrested at 3:30 by Constable Mattice on a warrant sworn out by Mrs. Avery on complaint of his wife charging him with desertion. He was arraigned before the City Judge and given probable cause, and bail was fixed at $500. Charles Kelley went with him. He could not find a lawyer, however, so he was locked up. At 6 o'clock Mr. Kelley returned with bail. He said he would like to have his trial right away so as to get the matter over with. Gable was in the cell when the order came to release him. He had been able to get

THE RAILROAD COMPANY CHARGEABLE.

Strong Verdict of the Jury in the Case of James B. Green.

James B. Green, an uncle of Charles and Pliny Fisk of this city, was struck by a Philadelphia express train a few days ago and hurled 90 feet through the air. He was crossing the Delaware and Bound Brook branch of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad at Ewing station near Trenton, when the accident occured. Death was almost instantaneous. He was 74 years old, a prosperous farmer of that section and widely known and esteemed. His sister, the mother of the Messrs Fisk of Plainfield, is at present in London.

An inquest was held at Ewing, Friday. Nineteen witnesses were sworn. The people connected with the railroad all swore that the whistle of the engine which struck Mr Green was blown in time to give him warning. The neighbors of the vicinity testified that proper precautions was not taken by the railroad company to have prevented the accident The spot is a most dangerous one. It is absolutely impossible for anyone driving around that curve to hear a train approaching from either way.

The coroner's jury found that "James B. Green came to his death at Ewing station, but that the company are particularly censurable for not providing sufficient protection to public travel at this very dangerous crossing; and the jury, believe the company are chargeable for negligence in not having the proper signals given at this particular crossing."

It is understood that the family of the deceased will bring suit against the railroad for damages.

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES.

Two Views from Washington Rock, and a "21 Reach by Camps.

The following is the programme of the High School Commencement exercises to be held in Music Hall this evening. Overture.....Suppe
"Two Views from Washington's Rock."
"Apple Blossoms".....Martha A. Covert
"The Yankee".....Augusta L. Inskeep
Selection—"Carmen".....Bizet
"The Children's Crusade".....Hannah L. Larkin
"My Favorite Author".....Clara E. Cornell
"A Cemetery of Nations".....Fred A. Dubois
"Middle Ages".....Balcomists
"Historic Scenes in America".....
"The Study of Latin" (with Mr Hay Scott Rosed).....Edith L. Gilbert
"Public Benefactors" (with valedictory).....Alfred G. Kilmer Selection—"Ernani".....Verdi
Orchestra.
Presentation of Diplomas.
For Penmanship, offered by Mr. J. Kircher.
For Mathematics, (the late Dr. C. H. Stillman prize).....Frank Wilson
For English Composition, offered by Mr. Geo. H. Bartlett.
For U. S. History, offered by Dr. J. B. Probasco.
For Spelling, offered by Mr. E. L. Finch.
For Languages, offered by Mr. E. B. Ackerson.
Waltz—"Artist Life".....Strauss
PRESENTATION OF DIPLOMAS.
Address to the Graduates.....H. K. Marshall, LL.D
"Serenade".....Moskowski
Presentation of Diplomas to the Training Class.
March—"Elite".....Capps

The Fourth at Washington's Old Camp Ground, Middlebrook.

The Fourth of July will be given a most patriotic celebration at Washington's old camp ground on the height back of Bound Brook. Mayor W. H. Whiting will preside, national airs will be played by a brass band, "Am-rica" will be sung by a chorus of 100 voices, Rev. Dr. Hall will read the Declaration of Independence, and an oration will be delivered by the Rev. Albert Mann of St. Luke's church, Newark. Afterwards there will be a drill by Company H, Third Regt., N. G. N. J., of Somerville.

Badly Cut With a Broken Bottle.

John Kleine, assistant chef at The Alcion, met with an accident on Monday that will cause him to keep quiet for a few days under the surgeon's hands. Kleine thrust his left hand into the ice-box and onto a broken bottle with such force that the forefinger was torn from the top to within an inch of the nail. The gash between the thumb and forefinger so deep that four arteries were severed. Dr. G. W. Endicott attended the unfortunate man and pronounced the case a serious one.

The Defeat of the Crescents' Crack Wheel Team.

Messrs. Stevens A Kempshall of the Fanwood club, defeated the redoubtable Kieb & Bates, the Crescent League's gilt-edged wheel team, last Thursday.

The contest was at "reversible" or "duplicate" whist—each side after playing the cards of each fresh deal, changing the hands with their opponents and playing the same cards over again. Forty hands were played, and the totals showed that Messrs. Stevens & Kempshall had made three more points than Kieb & Bates did with the same cards.

Plainfield Amateurs Defeat Westfield Amateurs.

The Plainfield Bicycle Club ball team defeated the Westfield Athletic Club amateur team, in a seven inning game on Bicycle Club grounds, Saturday afternoon, by a score of 13 to 5. The teams were composed as follows:

BICYCLE CLUB.		WESTFIELD.
Hall	pitcher	Hall
E. Dawe	catcher	E. Love
Tilney	1st base	Wilson
Tilney—Mallard	2d base	Wilson
F. Walk	3d base	J. Love
Sandford	short stop	Sandford
H. F. Murray	left field	Taylor
Dawe	center field	Horton
W. F. Murray	right field	Dillingham

Miss Bulkley Denies Some Wide-Spread Criticisms of the Public School System.

Principal Bulkley of the Plainfield schools, assures THE PRESS that the hope expressed in these columns last Friday is well founded. THE PRESS said it "bears the impression that Miss Bulkley is not doing away with half-sessions entirely and extending the school day to four hours. It is hoped that the rumors are false."

Miss Bulkley says the rumors are false, and states that it is not a fact that young children will be kept out of the schools when advancement, are kept a full school year in each class in rotation. She says they are promoted whenever worthy as far as they are eligible to go.

Where New Jersey Wishes Shown.

New Jersey wastes a nice little sum yearly in the Legislature, and it would be well to find out under which anybody can get a charter to do anything, anywhere, provided fees and taxes are paid in New Jersey. The foreign corporations have paid the State over $400,000 a year for taxes, and, when all have been compelled to pay, the year by revenue from this source will probably reach $600,000. The last Legislature passed a law to bring them all to terms, the Governor being authorized to declare void the charters of companies that have not paid a tax for two years. Now Jersey has the good luck to get some of the big corporations that have headquarters in New York and Philadelphia, with capital accounts running as high as $25,000,000 to $50,000,000. There are twenty companies chartered in Delaware with capital stocks of $500,000 and eighteen whose capital is a round $1,000,000.—Philadelphia Ledger.

—The Salvation Army meetings at Reform Hall will be discontinued for the remainder of the week in consequence of the painting and repairs of the Hall.

The market is flooded with decorations for the Fourth of July. Most of them are of the "Made in Germany" brand. Why don't some of our enterprising citizens go into the manufacture of these articles? There is no reason why they should not be made in this country as well as in Germany. Up to the present time no one has been able to get a INDEPENDENCE DAY.

[For July 4, 1891.]

Once more behold the memorable day
That marks our forefathers' great revolt,
Once
To forbid on tyranny's oppressive sway—
A welcome to our national exhibarant.

Peace o'er our country prevails
Wide
Wafts tuneful sounds on every zephyr through the air
Prosperity and wealth united offerings bring,
Unallowed by fierce political disorders.

Let sectional animosities be buried deep,
Never more to be thought they point all Europe [illegible]
We'll make use their strife to point a moral,
And send them all they want of—beef and bread.

Hang out the flags and Stripes from house top, pole and steeple;
Let boom the cannons; raise your voices high;
Proclaim yourselves a strong united people,
And send the rocket upward to the sky.

Hail, bloss Columbia! honored at home, abroad;
A great republic binds each sister State;
Millions of freemen sing in one accord,
"Hail thee the gallant land of the free and brave."

CHARLES E. CAYLES.
29 Cedar place, North Plainfield, N. J.

COL. MOORE HAS A WORD TO SAY.

He Rebukes "a Times Taxpayer" for Accusing Ex-Councilmen Newhall, Erickson, Dunham and Marsh, Corporation Counsel Marsh and Messrs. E. H. Pope and John W. Harvey, of Being "Franchise Brokers".

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—You will confer a favor and do an act of justice by permitting this communication, space in the columns of your valuable paper, as a brief reply to the party who, signing himself "A Taxpayer" to an article headed "Franchise Brokerage" in the issue of the Times of the 17th inst.

No one can read the statement given by the Common Council of this city for a wider supply to "one Moore & Co."

A contract was entered into between the city and The Water Works Company of Plainfield", after over twenty meetings between the city represented by Councilmen Craig A. Marsh and Cornelius Dunham and Marsh. The company gave bonds for a faithful performance of its contract, with the Hon. John Kean, Jr., as security in the penal sum of $50,000. I was never a member of said company, merely having a contract with it to construct the works. The amount paid me was over $25,000—$6,000 of which was paid to the city—a suit was commenced against me to recover the amount, which the company was organized was unconstitutional.

This action affected the securities of the company to such a degree that it was found impolitic to proceed further, as the cost of construction by reason of the shrinkage in value of the same, would entail an enormous expenditure of city in the event of it purchasing the works.

The company then decided to dispose of the property to the Plainfield Water Supply Co., at a loss of over $6,000. There was no profitable "Franchise Brokerage" in that. As I am informed, E. H. Pope, Esq., the able constructing water works in this city with Hon. John Kean, Jr., Frank Bergen, Elias R. Pope, and Messrs. Hubbard, Bacon and Peck, of New York.

At the time of the purchase by the Water Supply Company, I called upon John W. Harvey, one of its directors, and Mr. Erickson, and was informed by Mr. Murray that he would not permit his company to take any steps to the disadvantage of the city.

The article "A Taxpayer" upon the intentions and purposes of the gentlemen above mentioned, seems to me entirely unwarranted and unjustifiable.

Permit me to add that in all negotiations between the Water Works Co., of Plainfield and the city's representatives, the latter have been treated with the most every concession in the interest of the city. For a confirmation of which I refer you to the contract.

The city now has a balance in the treasury from the $6,000 above mentioned so it strikes me that the insinuations of "A Taxpayer" that the Water Works Co. of Plainfield has added a mortgage upon the city, and the above named gentlemen are "Franchise Brokers", this also is the case of a person who for some reason is ashamed to attach his signature to his letter.

CHARLES K. MOORE.

Can This be True?

THE PRESS is informed that Messrs. Kien & Bates, the handsome Messrs. R. P. and G. K. Moore, of Fanwood, to a contest at straight whist for 500 points at $100 a side, withdrew the challenge after it was accepted.

Ties on the Tracks.

Some miscreant threw a lot of loose railroad ties across both the main tracks of the Central railroad in the Fanwood cut, between 8 and 9 o'clock last Friday. The engineer of a passenger train saw the obstruction in time to stop before reaching it. The ties were removed. The police have a clue, and are supposed to be some tramp just released from a term in jail for stealing coal-train transportation.

Mr. Rand Was Not on the Wrong Side of the Road.

The "other side of the story" in the case of bicyclers Nichols and Elliott, who got mixed up with a horse and vehicle driven by Frank Rand, shows that all the blame was not on the Rand direction, as it was no question of who was on the "wrong side" of the road. Mr. Rand says they unexpectedly turned in in front of him and he could not check his horse in time to prevent the accident. He paid the damages because his lawyer showed him that it would cost more to fight a suit through two or three courts.

Those Rare Fine Concerts Offered for Next Season.

Plainfield already assured of enjoying next season again the perfection of choral music by the choruses under Conductor Fitzhugh and Conductor Chapman, is to have also a series of subscription concerts of instrumental music beyond compare. The project is in the hands of H. Otis Newman and Mr. Hall, who possess the rare purse taste, better judgment or greater experience in musical matters.

Mr. Newman offers three concerts to be given in the Second Regiment Armory by the New York Philharmonic club: Eugene Weiner, Flute; John Marquardt, First Violin; Sebastian Leander, Second Violin; Frederick Hahn, Viola; Ernst Mahr, Violincello; August Kalzhof, Contrabasso; assisted during the series by the following distinguished artistes: Miss Clementine DeVere, Soprano; Miss Marion S. Weed, Contralto; Signor Italo Campanini, Tenor; Mr. Richard Hoffman, Pianist; Signor Luis Lee, Baritone; Miss Phoebe Knapp, Pianist. The latter is a pupil of Eugene Weiner and is considered the finest lady violist now living.

It is needless to say that the programmes selected will be without a blemish by a want unfilled, and as rendered by such a galaxy of instrumental and vocal talent they will be concerts unexcelled if not unequalled in this city. The subscription price for the series will be three dollars. There will be no extra charges for reserved seats. The number of subscriptions accepted after the seating capacity of the audience room is taken, and there will be no tickets sold for any one concert.

Who have you seen that Woman lately?

That woman playing organ for Mayer's Wheel and Rand Mill? Her name is Mrs. Wheeler, and Rand Mill? Her wives are found by visitors to be perfectly charming. Mrs. Wheeler is a lady of refinement and culture, and is held in large esteem by her many friends in Plainfield in years.

NORTH PLAINFIELD AND SOMERVILLE UNITE.

Philanthropic Men and Good Women of the Two Places Join Hands to Form County Charities Aid Association.

Two meetings have been held this month in North Plainfield for the formation of the County Charities Aid Association, the State Charities Aid Association—the first at the home of H. P. Reynolds, the second in the Sunday-school room of Holy Cross church. On both occasions Mrs. B. Williamson, Jr., General Secretary of the State Association, has been present, and has given most interesting accounts of the work that is being accomplished in various parts of the State. These accounts exemplify the truth of the saying that one half the world does not know how the other half lives. The average citizen becomes himself but little about the inside of jails, asylums and almshouses. Occasionally a case of abuse or neglect gets the ear, but it is soon forgotten, for what is everybody's business is nobody's business.

But here steps in the Charities Aid, with quiet investigation and discreet warning; or, if these are not enough, it invokes the power of the State, or the grand jury, pushes matters to the uttermost, and does almost all that the forms already accomplished, without noise de fuss, among State and county institutions, so far as the association has carried its work, might perhaps surprise most people.

It would appear that many of the faults of our public institutions may be attributed to ignorance and carelessness of the routine. Seldom is there intentional cruelty, and the officials in charge will generally respond to the suggestion of kindness as to improvements in methods.

The work accomplished in Union, in Hudson and in six or eight other counties, through the effort to establish a County Branch in Somerset. The following philanthropic men and good women have been named a committee on organization, to report at a meeting to be held in October: E St. John, H. B. Wells, Frank Curtis and H. P. Reynolds, of North Plainfield; the Rev. Addison Foster, D. D., Rev. Dr. Bartine and the Hon. J. J. Bergen, of Somerville.

MORRIS COUNTY HUMORISTS.

Red, White and Blue Paint for Their Persecuted Pastor's Home.

Because of indiscretions which did not look well in the conduct of a minister of the gospel, the Rev. J. Arthur Pell of the Presbyterian church at Stirling, six miles north west of Plainfield, was ordered, some weeks ago, to vacate his pulpit and his home. Now that the fire of the pastor's departure is near, the villagers are having as much sport with the clergyman and his possessions as their ingenuity could devise. Last week the pastor was in his pulpit the mischief-makers got his favorite home out of its stable, daubed it plentifully with stripes of red, white and blue paint, and left it along the main highway as a taunting-stock for the community. The people leered the thoroughfare to view the sight of the long home. He threatened his persecutors with arrest, but could find no officials to sympathize with him or to take legal action.

A BAD TRAMP'S EXPERIENCE.

He Finds the Rebuken Women Have Nerve Greater than Those of Plainfield.

John Rille is one of the most dangerous tramps ever ordered out of Plainfield by Police Captain Grant. During his recent visit to this city he knocked many a man who refused him aid, and terrified the servants at every house he visited. The police, however, got after him and succeeded in locking him up over night, and put him to work on the streets. He then very promptly left town. Hereafter John will be very careful to treat women with the greatest respect and to play becoming humility and respect when he asks for "cold grub". John had an experience yesterday. He is to be day loitering through New Jersey by ways instead of lingering in a hospital as something of a miracle. With easy nonchalance the hungry look Rille pulled the bell at the house of Captain Schaan of the Hoboken Schuetzen Corps, at No. 93 Jefferson street, Tuesday.

A large lady with a kindly smile opened the door. She heard John's story, but politely declined, to pass out cold food. Then John made a bad break. He chuckled at a diamond necklace the woman wore. He missed. The woman's arm came up to a "guard" with the quickness of a professional pugilist, and, with some mysterious way, found himself flying through the air. He alighted on his back in the street. He was shocked, but he could not think of the fact that he was not one to give up at the first fall. Assuring himself by a steady look that the person in the door was really a woman, he began to charge the fortress. The woman seized his hands, and forcing him to the ground, hammered him until he begged for mercy. Then she let him go he limped away, casting furtive glances back as if he feared pursuit.

John had made a sad mistake. Captain Schaaer's daughter, Miss Minnie, is one of the strongest women in America. She weighs 230 pounds, and has traveled all over the country giving exhibitions at gymnasiums of her wonderful strength. She has been home on a brief vacation for the past week. It was she who opened the door for John. She remarked afterwards that she enjoyed the interview and enjoyed it, but she was sorry for the tramp.

A $50,000 Company to Improve Washington Park.

Articles of incorporation of "The Washington Park Improvement Company", with a capital stock of $50,000 were filed today with the Secretary of State.

The incorporators are the following well-known residents of North Plainfield: Charles K. Moore, Edward Bartine, William W. Howland, William J. Rooms and Foster Milliken. The purposes for which the company is formed, are to buy, improve, and sell real estate.

Boys' Club Rules.

The rooms will be closed next Tuesday evening for the months of July and August, opening on the evening of September 1st. Members are requested to call for their keys. The following are the rules for the next season will be evening classes of different kinds.

The nine will play the Unions next Saturday afternoon at 3:30. Following are the players and their positions: Hall, p.; Sandford, c.; Wilson, 1b.; Bolsterle, s.; C. Sutphen, 2b; Moran, s. f.; Conway, s. s.; Schenck, 3b; Adams, p.; Sinnickson, l. f.; Winn, r. f.

The management will be in his office to receive all callers during July, from 10 to 11 a. m. and 3 to 4 p. m.

W. H. MEYER, Supt.

Let's Have a Grand Rest of Local Storyboys.

A discussion is now going on among the children in this city and North Plainfield has suggested the scheme of a grand rest and parade of every body who rides a bicycle during next year, as well as all boys and girls who own velocipedes and babies. Some say there are 800 of them.

The liverymen and carriage makers are suffering from the growth of bicycling. The latter say that they have not had a good business in months, while F. L. G. Martin of Park avenue, the agent for the "Columbia", is said to have sold $10,000 worth of bicycles during last season, and will probably do much as that already this year.

The Bicycle Club tie upon next Saturday afternoon—or Saturday morning of next week, the 4th of July—for a several races and parade, and it will probably be the most interesting event in Plainfield in years.

BONNER'S FINE CATCHING.

The Seton Hall College Team Defeated by the Crescent Leaguers.

Had the Seton Hall College team a big league other than that in the air on Saturday, the Crescents might never have won. As it was, the score for the first half of the game was 4 to 1 in favor of the visitors, and that was on account of the good work done made by Taylor, who came home all the way from first base on a wild pitched ball that was lost under the bleachers.

In the fifth inning Bonner, who made at the bat, the Seton Hall battery bunched their errors, and the Crescents made four runs, but still without a hit. In the fifth and seventh innings Bonner was compelled to let up on his speed, and Jones, Gregg, McIndoe, Bonner and Taylor made hits that netted two earned runs. Three two were then only needed, and in the Crescents placed the ball safely, but that they were hitting it is evidenced by the record of 15 hits caught by the fast field.

In the field the Crescents played a pretty clean game, the only glaring error being by Simmen, who was out of his position and made an short fly, safely caught, was; either. He had five put-outs and three assists without an error, and made two beautiful double-plays, on the same note, in the same way, in the third and sixth innings.

Bonner's exhibition of back-stop work equalled anything of the kind ever witnessed in Plainfield. In the fifth inning Jones was retired to centre field with a split inner, and Bonner took his place. The latter caught the ball in the yard, and close up behind the bat most of the time. Nothing got by him, and he accepted every chance. His throwing to second base was perfect, and in the fifth inning he assisted in putting the whole side out, and in the eighth inning, with the bases full, he got a foul fly and a strike-out that was a beauty. Wilson was the steward caterer of the visitors. The Crescents can boast of the possession of the finest two catchers in the State. The score:

CRESCENT LEAGUE.	A.B.	R.	BH.	P.O.	A.	E.
Jones, c. s.s.	4	0	0	0	5	1
Lafferty, 2b.	4	0	0	0	1	2
McIndoe, 1b.	4	0	0	0	1	0
Hammill, 3b.	3	1	0	0	0	1
Simmen, c. f.	3	0	0	0	0	1
Bonner, c.	3	0	0	0	0	0
Taylor, l. f.	4	1	0	0	0	1
Gregg, p.	4	0	0	0	0	0
	33	2	0	0	7	6

SETON HALL.	A.B.	R.	BH.	P.O.	A.	E.
O'Neill, l.f.	4	0	0	2	1	0
Wilson, 2b.	4	0	0	2	2	0
Dias, s.s.	4	0	0	1	2	0
Brady, p.	4	0	0	0	2	0
Barnard, c. 3b.	2	0	0	0	3	1
English, c.f.	3	0	0	1	0	0
Winkler, 3b. c.	3	0	0	0	1	0
Maguire, 1b.	3	0	0	9	1	0
Kelly, r.f.	3	0	0	1	0	0
	30	0	0	15	12	1

SCORE BY INNINGS.

Crescent League	0	0	1	4	1	0	0	0	0—6
Seton Hall	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0—0

Base hits—Crescents, 7; S. H., 0. Earned runs—Crescents, 2; S. H., 0. First base on balls—Crescents, 2; S. H., 3. First base on errors—Crescents, 5; S. H., 4. First base on called balls—Crescents, 2; S. H., 3. First base on balls—Crescents, 2; S. H., 3. Struck out—Crescents, 3; S. H., 4

LAWS OF NEW JERSEY.

[BY AUTHORITY.]

CHAPTER CXXXIV.

An act concerning cities of the first class in this state, and constituting municipal boards for the government of the police, fire and health departments, and defining the powers and duties of such boards, and of the mayor and other municipal officers and departments of such cities, and regulating the removal and appointment of such boards, and for other purposes therein mentioned.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in all cities of the first class in this state, the mayor, with the advice and consent of the board of aldermen, shall appoint, on or before the first Monday in May, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, and every year thereafter, in the manner prescribed by law, three persons, who shall be known as the police commissioners, who shall constitute a board for the government of the police force of such city, and shall succeed the commissioners of police of such city, whose terms of office shall be as follows: one for the term of three years; one for the term of two years, and one for the term of one year, all from the first day of May next after their appointment, and at the expiration of the time of service of each of said commissioners, his successor shall be appointed in the manner aforesaid, and shall hold his office for the term of three years from the first day of May next after his appointment, and until his successor is appointed and qualified; and in the event of the death, resignation or removal from office by the governor, for the cause hereinafter mentioned, of any of said commissioners, his successor shall be appointed in the manner aforesaid, and shall hold his office for the residue of the term of the commissioner whose place he is appointed to fill; and the said board shall be known as the board of police of the city of ——, and by that name may sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, and may have a common seal, which they may alter at pleasure, and may make and establish all such by-laws, rules and regulations for the government of the police force of such city, and for the government of the members of said board, as they may deem necessary and proper, and may alter and amend the same at pleasure; and the said board shall have power to appoint and remove at pleasure a secretary, who shall keep a record of all the proceedings of said board, and perform such other duties as said board may prescribe, and shall receive such salary as said board may determine, not exceeding the sum of —— dollars per annum, payable monthly; that the said board shall have power to appoint and remove at pleasure a chief of police, and such number of captains, sergeants, roundsmen and patrolmen as said board may deem necessary for the efficient government of the police force of such city, and to assign to duty and transfer from time to time the said chief of police, captains, sergeants, roundsmen and patrolmen, as said board may deem proper; that the said board shall have power to appoint and remove at pleasure a surgeon, who shall be a practicing physician of such city, and such other officers and employees as said board may deem necessary for the efficient government of the police force of such city, and to assign to duty and transfer from time to time such officers and employees, and the transactions of the business of said board, and the duties of all persons employed thereby, shall be conducted at such place in said city as said board may designate; that the said board shall have power to prescribe the duties of the officers and employees appointed by them, and to require bonds for the faithful performance of such duties, in such sums as said board may determine; that the said board shall have power to make such rules and regulations as they may deem necessary and proper for the government of the police force of such city, and for the government of the members of said board, and to alter and amend the same at pleasure; and that the said board shall have power to prescribe the uniform and equipments of the police force of such city, and to change the same at pleasure; and that the said board shall have power to make such rules and regulations as they may deem necessary and proper for the government of the police force of such city, and for the government of the members of said board, and to alter and amend the same at pleasure; and that the said board shall have power to prescribe the duties of the officers and members

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

THE PLAINTIFF AND HIS LAWYER.

Sir William Gordon-Cumming and Sir Edward Clarke.

The career of Sir William Gordon-Cumming has been a notable one, but it is safe to say that his suit for libel known as "the baccarat case" against the "Arthur Orton scout" will be remembered long after his previous exploits.

Gordon-Cumming is of very blue blood—the Gordons went in ancient times to Sudderieshire family, laying out their time very for the day. De Sudderieshire, Sr., had the honor to be a hog digger for a time, then enter a pork packer in the flush times and finally a lucky speculator in Minneapolis real estate. He has, in consequence, new position in society, brought his family on the foreign hour, and generally speaking has learned "French Without a Master: In Four Months." He is rumored to be turning over the leaves of one of those ponderous "albums" found in all European hotel parlors, and has father W. explaining the titles according to his lights:

THE OSTENTATIOUS AMERICAN AND THE CADDY.

"Papa, what is this—the Bo-le de Bo-do-log-ne?"

"Why, my son, means the boy with a bologna—don't you see him chews a-cotin' it?"

"And this (spelling it out)—Boo de Henri Quatre?"

"Yes, my son, that's pronounced 'Hoog'no Kot,' and means the arrest of Henry Quatre—we'll go down there an' see 'em some time."

"And this—'Louis Quatorze?'"

"Loose Kahtore—well, that's little Louis and he can't see us, so turn over to the next corner!"

Some of these little heads, and under 'em it says, "Seraphin Bulle."

Yes, there's the bully seraphine—there stone things they put on mountain graves."

"And here's a great big wine store with the words 'Chamthin' in it, and it has a sign of 'Les Sept Freres' (the seven brothers).

That—well, lemme see it—oh yes—there's the five wise apostles."

"But, papa, they aren't but seven of 'em."

"Oh, yes—well—ah—er—um—that cuts no figure. The other five's gone inside to take a drink."

The foregoing (alleged) conversation not only serves to amuse the Americans in Paris, but illustrates the peculiar pretensions to middle life experience, grappling with the language. I learned it young and then forgot most of it; now that I am resurrecting it I look on it with the same feeling I thought of in my school days. What, for instance, could be more absurd than the so called "genuine modern order," to which there is no neuter and all sexless things are divided into masculine and feminine?

My pen is feminine, but the wooden pen holder is masculine, the ink is feminine, the fork feminine; the paper and ink masculine, and so on all around the table, that being feminine. And as far as I can see there is nothing at all in the way of rational reason to guide the arrangement. What blunders we Americans must make! And if the Parisians were not the most delightful people in the world I think they would laugh at us. But they don't, and when we make a blunder they make no comment is, "Tres bien, monsieur, tres bien; vous avez la vraie Parisienne," etc., etc. It's all very well, and I take them by it sounds nice. True it is that the sun is the sun and the moon is the moon, and so is the work of art (generally) is she, and a few more things settle a trifle reasonable, for we learn the moon is she, but in the line of pronunciation what do you think of this:

"Qu'est-ce qu'est cela?" That's pronounced "Keskyah" (meaning, "What is that?"), and a new comer in Paris has to use it about a hundred times a day. Now, I have had a very strange notion about this. In the telling it does not amount to much, but I feel that if I could give the exact reference to some particular student of psychology he could make much out of it —perhaps some vile assertion, often made and oftener denied, that we never really forget that the only difference between a man with a good memory and one with a bad one is that the former has a certain arrangement in the brain by which makes any suggestion call up the related facts lying away back in the lumber room of memory.

When I began to pick up French phrases and found that all the slightest recollection of ever having heard most of them. All at once, however, on the second day, old recollections began to pop up from the most unexpected places in the obscure background of consciousness. It seemed as if some great screen had actually been rolled away from a picture room in the brain, a room I had totally forgotten that I owned, and that out of it, singly at first and then in great troops, came old sentences, and with them a perfect recollection of the circumstances under which I had first mastered them. I recalled the very day on which we had recited the particular sentence in class thirty years before, and later the occasion on which I had put the sentence to use, and it was really wonderful to notice how the old phrases had held themselves ready to come out and into their proper places, like well drilled soldiers. It was a very curious experience, but I am afraid nobody else would be tedious.

Paris is a very gay in the summer, and the Americans, of whom several thousand are then there, are the gayest of all. There is an ingrained notion that Americans are strong in England and much stronger in France—that every American who comes over has his clothes just padded with money, and is bursting with anxiety to get rid of it. Under the influence of this notion all these great screen had actually been rolled away from a picture room in the brain, a room I had totally forgotten that I owned, and that out of it, singly at first and then in great troops, came old sentences, and with them a perfect recollection of the circumstances under which I had first mastered them. I recalled the very day on which we had recited the particular sentence in class thirty years before, and later the occasion on which I had put the sentence to use, and it was really wonderful to notice how the old phrases had held themselves ready to come out and into their proper places, like well drilled soldiers. It was a very curious experience, but I am afraid nobody else would be tedious.

Paris is a very gay in the summer, and the Americans, of whom several thousand are then there, are the gayest of all. There is an ingrained notion that Americans are strong in England and much stronger in France—that every American who comes over has his clothes just padded with money, and is bursting with anxiety to get rid of it. Under the influence of this notion all these great screen had actually been rolled away from a picture room in the brain, a room I had totally forgotten that I owned, and that out of it, singly at first and then in great troops, came old sentences, and with them a perfect recollection of the circumstances under which I had first mastered them. I recalled the very day on which we had recited the particular sentence in class thirty years before, and later the occasion on which I had put the sentence to use, and it was really wonderful to notice how the old phrases had held themselves ready to come out and into their proper places, like well drilled soldiers. It was a very curious experience, but I am afraid nobody else would be tedious.

SIR EDWARD CLARKE—GOLDOF-CUMMING.

Sir Edward Clarke, Conservative member of parliament and solicitor general who ac-companied the late Sir George Jenning made such a sensation in his summing up in the celebrated libel suit brought by the army, the Prince of Wales, for outdoing the cheating of a brother officer, is fifty years old, was called to the bar in 1874, was made a queen's counsel in 1886, became a member of parliament in 1880, and was created solicitor general in 1886 upon Lord Salisbury's second accession to power.

Of course the pertinent remarks of the trial was caused by the revelations regarding the Prince of Wales and the nerves criticisms that were made of his share in the business by the newspapers. What will be the ultimate result of all this remains to be seen, but things have come to a pretty pass in the "right little, tight little island" when well dressed crowds guy the prince and ask him if he has his counters with him.

A House Built of Copper.

Brooklyn boasts at least one house that is absolutely fireproof, for, with the exception of a white wood door and back fitting, it is all of copper. Walls, ceiling and floor, moulding and door, all are of hammered copper. The owner and architect of the house, a wealthy iron manufacturer, Hethought the whole thing out himself, directed every operation, and superintended the construction and the only explanation he offers is that he wanted a house that would last and one that could not burn. And it has cost him half a million dollars.

It stands on the Brooklyn side of the Narrows, and commands a fine view of New York city and harbor, all the forts in the vicinity and much of the adjacent shores. There is nothing gloomy about the copper mansion. It simply looks odd, is a dull red color and is expected to turn to a rich green by the operation of the weather. The walls are composed entirely of large copper plates, riveted together with copper bolts and bound with iron. The cornices, trimmings, posts and railings are entirely of iron. The ceilings extend to the walls and to the steel ribs to which the plates are attached, and the general style of construction is pure "Queen Anne," two stories to the eaves, and a steep, many gabled roof in which there is an attic story.

The surroundings are not pretty now but Mr. Pulitzer thinks he will be able to the rubbish is cleared away and the shrubbery has started. He has all the usual appointments, with a broad piazza, conservatory library, tower, tall chimneys and generous finish in gold, stained glass, etc. The second floor is a beam in the house. The ceilings are supported on metal arches, and the interior framework is very light. Of course there is great difference of opinion as to the fitness of the house. Popular sentiment runs close to the opinion that the unequal expansion and contraction of the metal exposed will pull it out of shape ere long, and others maintain that the weather will soon render the air of the interior unbearable, but Mr. Pulitzer thinks he knows what he is about.

The Money Power.

It is a startling and certainly a most suggestive fact that the Rothschilds are now evangelized as one of the great powers of Europe. They own no territory and exercise no political or official authority, yet the recent action of French, English and Russian financiers amounts practically to a resuscitation of the Rothschilds as a great political power. The family or firm (for they are both) has now at its command what will be no sinews of war furnished, and therefore no war, till they are satisfied with the conditions of the contest and the prospects. It is the enthronement of cash as the arbiter of Europe.

In 1883 Oregon, Washington and Idaho contained 1,000 banks with a capital of $1,970,000; the same states now contain 200 banks with capital of more than $17,000,000. The increase of deposits has increased in like proportion.

The department of agriculture pleasantly assures us that the general crop prospect be just a little better than it was a year ago at this season, and that the area in cereals largely exceeds any previous area.

The number eight is the first cubic number, but in modern warfare it is unknown in battles. There are eight beatitudes, and eight persons constitute a set in dancing a quadrille.

Senator Call's Recollection.

After the longest senatorial struggle ever known in Florida, and one rarely equaled in any commonwealth, Wilkinson Call has been re-elected.

He was born in Logan county, Ky., Jan. 2, 1835, and moved to Louisville, Ky., in early childhood. He entered upon the practice of law, and soon became popular. He was elected in 1861, to the United States senate by the first WILKINSON CALL.

Florida legislature after the war, but was not allowed to take his seat, as the state government was not yet recognized by congress. In 1870 he was again elected, and re-elected in 1875. His third term will expire in March, 1891, and he will have then been designed by the long contest.

CHEZ LES PARISIENS.

FRENCH IDIOMS, BRITISH IDIOSYNCRASIES AND AMERICAN IDIOTS.

Notes of a Hoosier's Holiday Abroad—The "Elite" Are Those Who Scatter Money Recklessly and Thereby Demoralize the Market for Others.

[Copyright by American Press Association, 1890.]

Times Building, Paris, Feb. 4.—A private parlor in the Hotel Athenee, Paris. Par-sons: The various members of the Sudderieshire family, laying out their time very for the day. De Sudderieshire, Sr., had the honor to be a hog digger for a time, then enter a pork packer in the flush times and finally a lucky speculator in Minneapolis real estate. He has, in consequence, new position in society, brought his family on the foreign hour, and generally speaking has learned "French Without a Master: In Four Months." He is rumored to be turning over the leaves of one of those ponderous "albums" found in all European hotel parlors, and has father W. explaining the titles according to his lights:

THE OSTENTATIOUS AMERICAN AND THE CADDY.

"Papa, what is this—the Bo-le de Bo-do-log-ne?"

"Why, my son, means the boy with a bologna—don't you see him chews a-cotin' it?"

"And this (spelling it out)—Boo de Henri Quatre?"

"Yes, my son, that's pronounced 'Hoog'no Kot,' and means the arrest of Henry Quatre—we'll go down there an' see 'em some time."

"And this—'Louis Quatorze?'"

"Loose Kahtore—well, that's little Louis and he can't see us, so turn over to the next corner!"

Some of these little heads, and under 'em it says, "Seraphin Bulle."

Yes, there's the bully seraphine—there stone things they put on mountain graves."

"And here's a great big wine store with the words 'Chamthin' in it, and it has a sign of 'Les Sept Freres' (the seven brothers).

That—well, lemme see it—oh yes—there's the five wise apostles."

"But, papa, they aren't but seven of 'em."

"Oh, yes—well—ah—er—um—that cuts no figure. The other five's gone inside to take a drink."

The foregoing (alleged) conversation not only serves to amuse the Americans in Paris, but illustrates the peculiar pretensions to middle life experience, grappling with the language. I learned it young and then forgot most of it; now that I am resurrecting it I look on it with the same feeling I thought of in my school days. What, for instance, could be more absurd than the so called "genuine modern order," to which there is no neuter and all sexless things are divided into masculine and feminine?

My pen is feminine, but the wooden pen holder is masculine, the ink is feminine, the fork feminine; the paper and ink masculine, and so on all around the table, that being feminine. And as far as I can see there is nothing at all in the way of rational reason to guide the arrangement. What blunders we Americans must make! And if the Parisians were not the most delightful people in the world I think they would laugh at us. But they don't, and when we make a blunder they make no comment is, "Tres bien, monsieur, tres bien; vous avez la vraie Parisienne," etc., etc. It's all very well, and I take them by it sounds nice. True it is that the sun is the sun and the moon is the moon, and so is the work of art (generally) is she, and a few more things settle a trifle reasonable, for we learn the moon is she, but in the line of pronunciation what do you think of this:

"Qu'est-ce qu'est cela?" That's pronounced "Keskyah" (meaning, "What is that?"), and a new comer in Paris has to use it about a hundred times a day. Now, I have had a very strange notion about this. In the telling it does not amount to much, but I feel that if I could give the exact reference to some particular student of psychology he could make much out of it —perhaps some vile assertion, often made and oftener denied, that we never really forget that the only difference between a man with a good memory and one with a bad one is that the former has a certain arrangement in the brain by which makes any suggestion call up the related facts lying away back in the lumber room of memory.

When I began to pick up French phrases and found that all the slightest recollection of ever having heard most of them. All at once, however, on the second day, old recollections began to pop up from the most unexpected places in the obscure background of consciousness. It seemed as if some great screen had actually been rolled away from a picture room in the brain, a room I had totally forgotten that I owned, and that out of it, singly at first and then in great troops, came old sentences, and with them a perfect recollection of the circumstances under which I had first mastered them. I recalled the very day on which we had recited the particular sentence in class thirty years before, and later the occasion on which I had put the sentence to use, and it was really wonderful to notice how the old phrases had held themselves ready to come out and into their proper places, like well drilled soldiers. It was a very curious experience, but I am afraid nobody else would be tedious.

Paris is a very gay in the summer, and the Americans, of whom several thousand are then there, are the gayest of all. There is an ingrained notion that Americans are strong in England and much stronger in France—that every American who comes over has his clothes just padded with money, and is bursting with anxiety to get rid of it. Under the influence of this notion all these great screen had actually been rolled away from a picture room in the brain, a room I had totally forgotten that I owned, and that out of it, singly at first and then in great troops, came old sentences, and with them a perfect recollection of the circumstances under which I had first mastered them. I recalled the very day on which we had recited the particular sentence in class thirty years before, and later the occasion on which I had put the sentence to use, and it was really wonderful to notice how the old phrases had held themselves ready to come out and into their proper places, like well drilled soldiers. It was a very curious experience, but I am afraid nobody else would be tedious.

THE STRAHAHAN STATUE.

now or a bronze statue after you are dead?" Mr. Strahahan asked me. Modesty forbade, but was his modest reply. But from that time the proprietor of a fitting testimonial was always discussed. The statue of Strahahan which was tested about a year ago, agreed upon and ordered by Mr. Strahahan himself, gave the world, matchless "Annie Laurie" and the palfrey—the ancient breed between Dumfries and Glasgow—which she rode, and the bonnie Doon, and sandy down over bank and burn, through shadowy avenues and patches of sunshine, and through fairy dells and by the silvery flow of the Nith, with the songs of streams and birds mingling with the lay of Burns and the lilt of Scott, and the sweet voice of a Highland Queen. Once past the outlying habitations of Maxwelltown you will see on the right the ivy covered and picturesque ruins of Lincluden abbey, but a few moments more and you will be under the shadows of its majestic walls lies Margaret, daughter of Robert III, king of Scotland.

If you will wander but a little distance on that road leading to the left you will find yourself in the village of Kirkconnel. Here is the grave of Sir Walter Scott's "Dying Ballad," and here is the first inscription on the table tombstone was written by the author of Waverly himself. Here, overlooking the Nith, and within view of the "new brig" to the west, and the "auld brig" to the east, and the ruins of Maxwelltown, famous wherever heart songs are sung for the "Dying Ballad" and the "Bonnie Belle," equal to any that Burns himself gave the world, matchless "Annie Laurie," and the palfrey—the ancient breed between Dumfries and Glasgow —

CITY DEPARTMENT.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY OF UNION.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - City Editor.

—The United States Express Company will convey all donations for Seabright sufferers, free of cost.

—A lamp is being put on the pole above each fire alarm box, telling where a key to the same may be found.

—The Donellson Electric Light Company is now putting in the New Market by way of Prospect avenue.

—Thieves broke into the saloon of E. P. Thorn after midnight Saturday and robbed the cash drawer of $7. They got in through a cellar door in the sidewalk.

—The interior of the Congregational church is to be handsomely frescoed. Two weeks in August will be taken for the work, during that time services will be suspended.

—The residents on Sycamore avenue near in the Park are rejoicing in the glory of a day of unobstructible sidewalk which has just been laid along the west side of the street at Mercer avenue.

—Those who have expected to further clay-pigeon shooting on the Crescent League's ne-bail grou ds in the borough, will be relieved to learn that the sportsmen promise henceforth to use only bobolinos or wooden clays.

—T. H. Kellar of this city has been managing a highly successful clay-pigeon shoot at Rome, N. Y. Among those who have figured to some extent at the annual session at Rahway Friday night, George W. Cross of Westfield was chosen president.

—One of the Somerville papers unkindly speaks of the Crescent League's ball nine as "a team who don't play ball with other clubs in their own city and county, and who are imbued with the idea that it is worth 50 cents to see them play ball on each and every Saturday."

—Next Sunday, in the Baptist church at Stelton, Middlesex county, the Rev. Dr. Searles will publicly baptize the Rev. Mr. Sample, who left some time ago as pastor of the Methodist church at Rocky Hill. The reasons for Mr. Sample's change of base are not transpired.

—The Plainfield High School ranks as one of the best educational institutions in New Jersey, and it is therefore with commendable pride that THE CONSTITUTIONALIST announces that Prof. G. Kingsley, of this place, upon receiving the honor of valedictorian of his class.—Round Brook Chronicle.

—Samuel B. Wheeler, who resides on the Johnston estate, Mountain avenue, North Plainfield, on Saturday shot in the rear of his residence, a magnificent specimen of the American eagle, the measurement of six feet six inches from tip to tip of wings and weighed eight and a quarter pounds. Henry Mr. Bunch, the taxidermist, has the bird in his hands for mounting.

—A few offence is laid at the door of that shot-t unmitigated nuisance, the tramp. I am certainly told that in some parts of this county they have begun to threaten this spring by digging up and eating the seed potatoes planted by the farmers. It may truly be said of the tramp, as it has been said of the Indian, that the only good one is a dead one.—Dover Iron Era.

—Now Jersey's United States Senator, John R. McPherson, is gradually getting rid of his model farm at Belle Mead. He has sold the homestead in which he lives, with 250 acres of land and surrounded it. Wm. C. Hendricksen, a Trenton grocer, has purchased it, and he intends to occupy it as a summer home. The Senator divides his time between New York and Washington.

—The Republican papers in New York have been sporting a job lot of Like "Americus" in their front windows lately and calling it "first fruits of the McKinley bill." The New York Press possessed a very large and select display of this hardware, of which it had paid postage, but the other day a great slab of fake tin, tie d of living the lie that earned its salary, fell over and put a hole in a $200 paper of which it was proud gathered and gaped the protectionists unmercifully. All the sympathy was with the luckless "American" tin.

—One of the most delicious a society could have is that of the Plainfield Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Of late the society has been somewhat languishing, but it is to be hoped that a new interest in the organization. To that end it is hoped that all the old members and all people interested will attend the meeting of this society on Tuesday night in the hall on the second story at 12 East Front street, over the City National Bank. Officers are to be elected, and plans of work are to be discussed. It is the duty of always ready to hear complaints concerning the abuse and cruelty of children.

Foreman Robison Again Elected.

At the annual meeting of Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company of South Plains, held Monday night, the following officers were elected: Foreman, John Robison, re-elected; First Assistant Foreman, Wm. B. Noble; Second Assistant Foreman, Robert Jahn; President, L. H. Miller; Secretary, Wm. H. Lake, re-elected; Secretary, David A. Sayre, re-elected; Assistant Secretary, L. A. Goodenough. Trustees, Wm. Lake, who has been the President of the company for eight consecutive years, declined a re-election. The company was organized in 1869.

Tom Tough Again for Boatman and Jennie Wiley.

Samuel Boatman and Jennie Wiley, convicted of the manslaughter of Boatman's little child Pearl, were sentenced at Elizabeth yesterday morning each get 10 years in State Prison at hard labor.

Jennie Wiley when sentenced fell over in Assistant Prosecutor Lyon's arms, and screamed and cried all the way to her cell.

Simmonds, the Elizabeth wife beater, got one year in State Prison.

Charles Donahue, of which Reynold Weidel had who attempted to kill his mother, was sent to the Reform school.

Worn the Badge of Her Cherished Life-work to the Grave.

Funeral services over the remains of the late Lena Allen were held at Peapack Friday afternoon. A number of relatives and friends were present from Plainfield. Her pastor, the Rev. George Lavis, preached the sermon, from Jeremiah xv: 9—"Her sun is gone down while it was yet day." There was much sobbing and evidence of grief out of the ordinary. He gave a brief history and eulogy of her Christian seven and worth in the community and church. She will be sadly missed—he said—a loving daughter and a substantial Christian worker who was happiest when doing work for the Master in his vineyard.

Besides quantities of flowers given by friends, there was given by the local Union of the Christian Endeavor societies of Somerset county, of which she was vice president, a large floral piece representing the gates ajar. The Christian Endeavor society of her own church gave another piece with the motto "Forever C. E.," and the King's Daughters, of which also she was a member, gave a large cross bearing the letters I. H. N. It was one of the largest floral tributes in the history of the village. There were 70 carriages in the line. The body lay in a white casket which was upon full length, and the silent features wore a calm and sweet smile and lovely tenderness that had lured her to her last resting place in life. On the breast was a Christian Endeavor badge. The body was laid to rest on a beautiful knoll in the Peapack cemetery.

Will Be a Trial Test.

A West Front street boy only a week or two ago attained that dignity of years which parents see wont to emphasize in their boys by the substitution of knee-breeches for skirts, and by the privilege upon the youthful heir the sobriquet of "little man." The West Front street small boy rejoiced greatly in his abbreviated trousers, and set up his head and his swagger before the dazzled eyes of the neighborhood. His starring tour brought him at last to the home of two other small boys over in the Park, and there he stopped and played till the dusk was fallen and the evening shadows told him it was time to his home. So he said to his trousers called forth on their return. About thirty minutes later his fond parents rushed up to the house in the Park, breathless and excited.

"Did our Willie leave his pants here?" they gasped.

The boroughites reported that Willie had left them, and the whole party turned out and beat the woods and roadside for the missing trousers, but the fruitless search was finally given up, and the disconsolate parents returned to mourn for their heartbroken child. Willie has a new pair of knee-breeches now, and he has a cold, too.

Going to the Country? Take a bottle of Kemp's Balm Sore Throat Cure. Yes, a bad one.

WHO GETS THE MONEY?

A Kelley Lease Contest Over the Will of the Late Senator Stillman.

The taking of testimony in a contest will case involving interesting questions of law was begun before Surrogate Knight, Master in Chancery, at Newark, Tuesday.

Among the well known residents of Plainfield thirty or forty years ago was Thomas R. Stillman. He was a very wealthy man, and at his death left his widow, Susanna Stillman, the bulk of his large estate. In 1889 she died, and among her bequests were three which have brought on the present legal dispute. To the "Seventh-day Baptist church of Plainfield" she left $1,000; to the "Seventh-day Baptist church of New York city" $2,000; and to the "Seventh-day Baptist Home and Foreign Missions Society" $2,000. It transpired soon after her death that there were no churches officially bearing the titles she gave, but it was supposed that she referred to the Seventh-day Baptist Church of Christ and the First Sabbatarian Church of New York, which are, respectively, the local titles of the Plainfield and New York churches commonly designated by the popular names which she gave. There could be found no "Seventh-day Baptist Home and Foreign Missions Society." There is a Seventh-day Baptist Missionary Society, a peculiarly incorporated body, in which Plainfield and others was a member, the ladies known as the Ladies' Benevolent Society, in the Plainfield Seventh-day church. This ladies' society was a home and foreign missions society, and in its work Mrs. Stillman was greatly interested. The residuary legatees admit that Mrs. Stillman meant the Seventh-day Baptist church of New York and the Seventh-day Baptist Church of Christ, in Plain field, by her two church legacies, and that the Seventh-day Baptist Home and foreign missions society" she meant the local ladies' benevolent association. But this society, they hold, has no legal status on the estate, being merely a collection of women legally incapable of taking, as a society, a bequest. Besides, it has since been merged into another organization, and so has ceased to exist. Consequently they think that that money should go to them, instead of to any society. Friends of the Seventh-day Society claim that that society is meant. The executors under the will were the late Garmon Parse, cashier of the First National Bank, and Howard A. Emery, son. Representing the executors, Counselor Charles A. Reed applied to the Court of Chancery to have the will interpreted, and he appears for the executors in the present contest. Representing the church organizations and the woman's benevolent society claiming the legacies is Counsel to Hon. Edward Q. Keasbey, W. K. McClure appears for the residuary legatees, prominent among whom is said to be Governor Leon Abbett. If the court fail to find just what societies are meant in the will the residuary legatees will share the entire estate.

COMMENCEMENT IN THE BOROUGH.

North Plainfield Pupils and Their Farewell to School.

The programme of the Commencement exercises of the North Plainfield public school this evening, will be as follows:

PART FIRST.

Music—"Soldiers' Chorus" ..... School
Declamation—"Opinions Shrugged into Armies" ..... Ralph D. Whiting
Recitation—"King Robert's Guest" ..... Nellie Lloyd
Essay—"Modern Martyrs" ..... Margaret E. Miles
Declamation—"Kearney at Seven Pines" ..... Frank Reynolds
Music—"Out on the Deep" ..... School
Declamation—"What is a Minority?" ..... Edward H. Waring
Recitation—"Driving Home the Cows" ..... Margaret Smith
Recitation—"Tom" ..... Alice E. Loomis
Declamation—"The Incheape Rock" ..... Edgar Felton Sheppard

PART SECOND.

Music—"Oh, Hail Us, Ye Free" ..... School
Essay—"The Pocket-book" ..... Raymond V. Carpenter
Recitation—"The World's Way" ..... Elizabeth C. Hull
Recitation—"Aunt Sylvia's Letter" ..... Mary E. Bonnell
Geography ..... Aimee L. Beaty
Music—"The Palms"—School, with Cornet Accompaniment by Prof. Wm. C. Miles
Recitation—"The Tapestry Weavers" ..... Edith C. Miles
Declamation—"A Fragment from a Burial" ..... Harry L. McGee
Recitation—"A Legend" ..... Edna F. Handley

PRESENTATION OF DIPLOMAS.

James McGee.

Music—"The Scout" ..... School

No Gambling at Jersey's Fair.

The directors of the State Agricultural Society of New Jersey held their quarterly meeting at the Board of Trade rooms in Trade rooms in Newark. President Isham was in the chair, and every member was present. A number of changes in the premium list were made. Extensive improvements were ordered at the Waverly Fair Grounds. The grand stand will be extended and the entire fence and exhibit stalls will be given more room. A Chicago gambling firm offered to give $5,000 for the privilege of operating a pool and bookselling stand at the fair. The offer was unanimously rejected.

"In Pity, 'Tis If True.

(From The Detroit News.)

The editor of the Times wishes to correct a statement made and repeatedly made by the Press that this paper is "subsidized" and not under his free perpetuity editorial control, and is absolutely unfounded. The Times is owned and controlled by its publishers. His money bought and paid for it. The editorial policy is run entirely and personally responsible. The criticisms it has seen fit to make on affairs of interest to the Plainfield taxpayers are the criticisms its editor has to offer. They have not been dictated nor suggested by any one.

Father Smith Succeeds the Archbishop.

The Rev. P. E. Smyth, pastor of St. Mary's church, this city, was elected last week a trustee of Seton Hall College, in place of Archbishop Corrigan, who resigned. The Archbishop's resignation was a momentous event in the career of the college, for his Grace had been associated in the college management with all of the faculty, president and trustee for nearly a generation. In bidding it a final adieu the college says: The committee is expected to organize a movement to avert impending bankruptcy from some of the oldest companies in New York, by negotiating rates of reinsurance. Many of these companies have gone to pieces since the 1st of January. That period has been marked by losses aggregating over $5,000,000, and this is higher than the average for the corresponding season in many years past. There are about 130 fire insurance companies in New York, and the number is expected to be reduced to about 100 by the enforced loss of their income.

THE ROAD HOG MUST GO.

Local Wheelmen Formulate Victory to be Fired Against Sodden Heroes.

As H. P. Nichols and F. W. Elliott were riding their bicycles on Park avenue, the morning of June 1, they were run down by a horse driven by Frank Hand, their wheels were smashed, and they were thrown to the ground and more or less injured. As was told in The Press at the time, the wheelmen were on the right side of the road, and in running into them Hand violated not only the common sense of courtesy but the General State law, which gives to bicycles the same rights possessed by other vehicles on the public highways.

Determined to teach all road hogs a lesson, the local wheelmen insisted that suit be brought against the offending driver, who had not only refused to turn out and give the bicyclists a clear track but who had deliberately run them down.

When Hand learned that the matter had been put into the hands of Judge Codington he employed learned counsel and attempted to brazen the matter out, but the law in the matter was presented to him so forcibly that he finally had to succumb, and to-day he paid all damages and costs in full. All bicyclists are elated at their victory. They feel that the time has come when their rights must be recognized and respectfully conceded by all.

The New Bridge Over Branch Bay.

The War Department has approved plans for a bridge across Newark bay for the Jersey City, Newark and Western Railway Company. It is to have two draw openings, each 100 feet wide in the clear, and the draw spans are to be eight feet five and three quarter inches above mean high water. The former draw was only twenty-six feet originally, as was decided to the Baltimore and Ohio bridge over Arthur Kill.

THIS HAS GONE FAR ENOUGH.

Want to the Bar to Post Sin Letters.

An elderly and dignified man made a most unpleasant disturbance Sunday afternoon exceedingly. In a moment of absentmindedness he forgot that the post-office had been removed, and went into Scherb's store at the old post-office site to mail a bunch of letters. Though his views are pronounced on the subject of total abstinence he had an unpleasant time explaining matters to a party of horrified friends, ladies, who saw him come out. He said it was the greatest embarrassment and disgrace he ever had suffered.

New Officers of the Knights of Honor.

The following were elected at the last regular meeting of Easter Lodge, Knights of Honor, of this city:

Past Dictator—Jacob Stout.
Dictator—C. C. Burnett.
Vice-Dictator—Chas. T. Wehle.
Assistant Dictator—J. H. Demarest.
Reporter—H. A. Thorne.
Financial Reporter—Thomas H. Bartindale.
Treasurer—W. H. Lyon, Jr.
Chaplain—E. W. Conklin.
Guide—J. Mosemuth.
Guardian—A. W. Anderson.
Sentinel—Sylvester Marsh.
Trustees—A. Swain, Seymour Marsh, Thos. Hall.
Representative to Grand Lodge—Thos. H. Bartindale; Alternate—Seymour Marsh.

Summer Sojourners in Plainfield.

The following are the latest arrivals at Hotel Netherwood:

C. C. Southard and wife, Miss C. H. Southard, T. W. Wood, H. J. Weber, G. Aug. Hinchman, W. J. Eaton and wife, S. C. Scott and wife, H. W. Williams and wife, S. L. Schoonmaker, wife and son, G. Armstrong and wife, L. Armstrong, R. B. McCormick and wife, A. E. Gondron and wife, Mrs. E. Eldridge, Mrs. Potter and children, H. Fellmann and wife, Miss Fellmann, Henry D. Brewster and family, F. F. Robbins and wife, T. L. Pronest and family, E. J. Hussey and family, Mrs. A. J. Terry, L. Hahn, H. W. Field, Maximo Cohen, J. H. Curran.

Heavy Cannon Stop Jersey Central Trains.

For the past two days the new heavy guns at Sandy Hook have been tested by the inspectors. Some of the cannon could be heard for a long distance. All the trains on the Southern Division of the Jersey Central railway, which has its terminus at Sandy Hook, had to stop running between 9 o'clock and noon and from 2:30 to 3 in the afternoon. Many of the discharges Monday were felt for a long distance along the shore, especially at Atlantic Highlands. One of the explosions startled the steamer Monmouth as she neared her landing at the Hook and startled the passengers. Next week, it is under-stood, the 55-ton cannon, which will use 500 pounds of powder at a discharge, will be tested.

The Central to Suppress the Rods in Batteries.

A naughty boy is bad, but a naked naughty boy is worse, and it is this kind of boy that is disturbing the officials of the Central railroad. Running from the Newark Bay into the residential and small creeks wend their way, and in these creek, as Plainfielders have repeatedly seen, are numerous boys who go down to New York, the small boy is just now wont to bathe. Now, "there are a good many of him", and the bathing being done bare by the main line and the Newark branch and in full view of the passengers, a great many complaints have been made by the passengers to the conductors, and the conductors have reported the matter to their superiors. A good deal of the bathing is done on that portion of the meadows recently purchased by the company for a yard, and it is said that the local detectives will put a stop to "the nude" in bathing.

Fourth of July Sports.

The Union County Roadsters, of Elizabeth, Linden and Rahway, and the Irvington Athletic Association, are making great preparations for an elaborate set of athletic games to be given on the grounds of the Irvington Club, July 4. They promise to be the largest of the kind ever given in this part of the State. Previous to the games, there will be a 5-mile race on the Rahway river for a gold medal.

The games will consist of bicycle and running races followed by a game of base-ball between the Rahway Athletic Association and the "stars," of Newark. The bicycle events will consist of the following: One-mile club race, safety, handicap; one-mile club race, ordinary, handicap; one-mile safety, open, handicap; one-mile, ordinary, open, handicap; two-mile, open, safety, handicap; two-mile, open, ordinary, handicap. There is some gold medal to first, and silver to second, in each event.

Three-fifth mile race, open to boys fifteen years and under. Entrance fee. The running races will consist of 100-yards dash, scratch; 440-yards run, scratch; gold medal to first and silver to second. Two-mile team cross-country race, open to teams of three men each; prize, a banner. Also a 50-yards wheelbarrow race for a medal.

The management expect between 2,000 and 5,000 people will witness the games. The fine roads leading into Rahway will bring quantities of wheelmen and driving parties. Nearly all the bicycle clubs in the State have arranged club-runs to Rahway, and the place will be alive with wheelmen. The city will undoubtedly be well represented in the open bicycle races by the Plainfield Bicycle Club.

—Let all Plainfield bicyclists turn out to parade the morning of the Fourth.

I have had eleven fat jersey cows, and one fat horse, and a fine Shetland pony, and a fine Shetland colt, and a fine Shetland mare, and a fine Shetland stallion, and a fine Shetland jack, and a fine Shetland jenny, and a fine Shetland mule, and a fine Shetland hinny, and a fine Shetland zebra, and a fine Shetland hippopotamus, and a fine Shetland rhinoceros, and a fine Shetland elephant, and a fine Shetland kangaroo, and a fine Shetland giraffe, and a fine Shetland camel, and a fine Shetland dromedary, and a fine Shetland ostrich, and a fine Shetland emu, and a fine Shetland cassowary, and a fine Shetland dodo, and a fine Shetland bird of paradise, and a fine Shetland pterodactyl, and a fine Shetland megatherium, and a fine Shetland mastodon, and a fine Shetland ichthyosaurus, and a fine Shetland plesiosaurus, and a fine Shetland megalosaurus, and a fine Shetland iguanodon, and a fine Shetland hydrosaurus, and a fine Shetland dinosaurus, and a fine Shetland pachydermatous animal, and a fine Shetland Shetland, and a fine Shetland Shetland pony, and a fine Shetland Shetland colt, and a fine Shetland Shetland mare, and a fine Shetland Shetland stallion, and a fine Shetland Shetland jack, and a fine Shetland Shetland jenny, and a fine Shetland Shetland mule, and a fine Shetland Shetland hinny, and a fine Shetland Shetland zebra, and a fine Shetland Shetland hippopotamus, and a fine Shetland Shetland rhinoceros, and a fine Shetland Shetland elephant, and a fine Shetland Shetland kangaroo, and a fine Shetland Shetland giraffe, and a fine Shetland Shetland camel, and a fine Shetland Shetland dromedary, and a fine Shetland Shetland ostrich, and a fine Shetland Shetland emu, and a fine Shetland Shetland cassowary, and a fine Shetland Shetland dodo, and a fine Shetland Shetland bird of paradise, and a fine Shetland Shetland pterodactyl, and a fine Shetland Shetland megatherium, and a fine Shetland Shetland mastodon, and a fine Shetland Shetland ichthyosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland plesiosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland megalosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland iguanodon, and a fine Shetland Shetland hydrosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland dinosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland pachydermatous animal, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland pony, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland colt, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland mare, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland stallion, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland jack, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland jenny, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland mule, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland hinny, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland zebra, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland hippopotamus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland rhinoceros, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland elephant, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland kangaroo, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland giraffe, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland camel, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland dromedary, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland ostrich, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland emu, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland cassowary, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland dodo, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland bird of paradise, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland pterodactyl, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland megatherium, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland mastodon, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland ichthyosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland plesiosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland megalosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland iguanodon, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland hydrosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland dinosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland pachydermatous animal, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland pony, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland colt, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland mare, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland stallion, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland jack, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland jenny, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland mule, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland hinny, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland zebra, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland hippopotamus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland rhinoceros, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland elephant, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland kangaroo, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland giraffe, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland camel, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland dromedary, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland ostrich, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland emu, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland cassowary, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland dodo, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland bird of paradise, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland pterodactyl, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland megatherium, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland mastodon, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland ichthyosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland plesiosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland megalosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland iguanodon, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland hydrosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland dinosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland pachydermatous animal, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland pony, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland colt, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland mare, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland stallion, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland jack, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland jenny, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland mule, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland hinny, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland zebra, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland hippopotamus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland rhinoceros, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland elephant, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland kangaroo, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland giraffe, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland camel, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland dromedary, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland ostrich, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland emu, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland cassowary, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland dodo, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland bird of paradise, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland pterodactyl, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland megatherium, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland mastodon, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland ichthyosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland plesiosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland megalosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland iguanodon, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland hydrosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland dinosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland pachydermatous animal, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland pony, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland colt, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland mare, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland stallion, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland jack, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland jenny, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland mule, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland hinny, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland zebra, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland hippopotamus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland rhinoceros, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland elephant, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland kangaroo, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland giraffe, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland camel, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland dromedary, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland ostrich, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland emu, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland cassowary, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland dodo, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland bird of paradise, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland pterodactyl, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland megatherium, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland mastodon, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland ichthyosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland plesiosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland megalosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland iguanodon, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland hydrosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland dinosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland pachydermatous animal, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland pony, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland colt, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland mare, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland stallion, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland jack, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland jenny, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland mule, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland hinny, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland zebra, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland hippopotamus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland rhinoceros, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland elephant, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland kangaroo, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland giraffe, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland camel, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland dromedary, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland ostrich, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland emu, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland cassowary, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland dodo, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland bird of paradise, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland pterodactyl, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland megatherium, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland mastodon, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland ichthyosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland plesiosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland megalosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland iguanodon, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland hydrosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland dinosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland pachydermatous animal, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland pony, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland colt, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland mare, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland stallion, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland jack, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland jenny, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland mule, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland hinny, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland zebra, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland hippopotamus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland rhinoceros, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland elephant, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland kangaroo, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland giraffe, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland camel, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland dromedary, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland ostrich, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland emu, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland cassowary, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland dodo, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland bird of paradise, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland pterodactyl, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland megatherium, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland mastodon, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland ichthyosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland plesiosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland megalosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland iguanodon, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland hydrosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland dinosaurus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland pachydermatous animal, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland pony, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland colt, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland mare, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland stallion, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland jack, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland jenny, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland mule, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland hinny, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland zebra, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland hippopotamus, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland rhinoceros, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland elephant, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland kangaroo, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland giraffe, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland camel, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland dromedary, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland ostrich, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland emu, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland cassowary, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland dodo, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland bird of paradise, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland pterodactyl, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland megatherium, and a fine Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland Shetland mastodon, and

TOLD IN RHYME.

What Is Life?

What is life? Let's be told!
Will Bessie bowed down to the earth?
To look for the meaning of nobody turmoil,
Or the lasting value of the birth?
To waste for the superfluous wine
In the jeweled cup of fame?
To barter right and a good name
For the gold of an earthly estate?
Is life no more than this?
Then cattle each benevolent cry;
For my shall not awaken from the night's cold sleep—
Life—
Let us die, my friend,
Let us die.

Will, I have known people to give me money occasionally, and in this line I think actors are more generous than others. There is one lady in particular—the wife of a star actor—who never fails to give me at least fifty cents once and sometimes one dollar when she comes to the box. I never enjoy shopping except when I go with her.

"Speaking of ladies, I suppose they are worse than anybody else at keeping you waiting. The trouble with them is that they get as far as the door of a house and there they stand. Why, I have jumped up and down off my box a dozen times just because I thought my fare opened the house door she would close it again and continue her conversation. Of course in the end, as I wanted to be ready to open the carriage door for her.

"Theatres and parties who want to be taken to the stations are pretty good jobs, as the distances are almost always short and direct and there are generally several in the party. Another thing a driver has to do is to use judgment as to how he drives, according to the party inside and the occasion. Often have I had a young fellow press fifty cents into my hand when I would be driving him home from the theater with his girl, and he whisper 'Drive slow as you can, please, and go a long way.' Well, sir, perhaps those same two would drive up to the door of a house afterward, and I could tell they were married, because the fellow would pull her in the carriage and shut the door, saying: 'Good night, dear; will be home soon. I just want to look in at the Hoffman House.' Business engaged, low prices

The Constitutionalist,
A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.
W. L. FORCE & R. L. FORCE, Editors and Proprietors.
AT PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY.
TERMS—TWO DOLLARS A YEAR.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXIV. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, JULY 2, 1891. No. 27.

"Support the Constitution, which is the cement of the Union, as well in its limitations as in its authorities."—Madison.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

JACKSON & CORNELIUS,
Counsellors-at-Law,
Commissioners of Deeds, Masters-in-Chancery, Notaries Public, Solicitors of Patents, Office corner of Park avenue and Second street.—[1907

W. V. STEELE,
Counselor-at-Law,
Master and Examiner in Chancery, Supreme Court Commissioner.
Office, PARK AND NORTH AVES. 4-26-tf

GEORGE W. DAY,
General Auctioneer,
Sales of Personal Property solicited. P. O. Box 108, Dunellen, N. J., or address in care of Constitutionalist. Terms reasonable.

DR. CHARLES R. THEIS,
Dentist,
32 West Front street, A new local anesthetic application for extracting teeth without pain. Gold filling a specialty.—[1907

H. HAND,
Auctioneer,
P. O. Address, Lock Box 71, South Plainfield, N. J. Orders left at W. C. Dority's, Dunellen, and at 40 West Front street, Plainfield, N. J., will receive prompt attention.—[1907

OSCAR S. TEALE,
Architect,
247 Broadway, New York city, Rooms 38 and 39, (Long-ivory and Sun Building.) 5 East London, Plainfield, N. J.—[1907

J. H. FORSTER,
Veterinary Surgeon.
Office in W. K. Sergeant's livery stable, corner Main street and Madison avenue, Plainfield, N. J. Day or night calls promptly responded to. Telephone No. 15. Consultation on diseases of all domestic animals free. Residence, 32 East Front street, corner 8th street.—[1287

BUSINESS CARDS.

P. P. VanArsdale,
PIANO TUNER.
Is continuously in the employment of Terry & Co., manufacturers of Pianos and Organs for sale and to let. Orders left at Terry & Co.'s Wareroom, No. 38 East 3d street, or at Van's Music Store, No. 6 Park avenue will receive prompt attention. Residence, No. 3 East 3d street, corner 4th street.—[1287

JOHN CHANDLER,
[A MPSTER AND BUILDER.
Jobbing promptly attended to. 4-9-1y
RESIDENCE AND SHOP No. 36 East 3d St.

T. J. GILLIES,
Auctioneer & Real Estate Agent.
SALESROOM—Building formerly occupied by Prentiss Plainfield, N. J.
Goods received on consignment.

TO THE PUBLIC!

We wish to inform our customers and the public generally that we have on hand the best quality of

LEHIGH COAL,

Fresh From the Mines.

It is under cover and well protected from the weather. We are prepared to deliver it in well screened and is good order promptly. We are also prepared to furnish all kinds of Seasoned Lumber and Mason's Materials at short notice.

A. D. COOK & BRO.
leadvl

HOTELS AND SALOONS.

FORCE'S HOTEL,
NORTH AVENUE, (NEAR N. B. R. STATION).
JAS. H. FORCE, Prop'r.
A FIRST-CLASS FAMILY HOTEL. Steam Heat. First-class Plumbing.
Transient guests at reasonable rates. 10-31-tf

SOMERSET HOTEL,
Corner Somerset and Emily Streets,
NORTH PLAINFIELD.
RICHARD A. BOYCE, Prop'r.
Permanent and transient board at fair rates. First-class wagons and hacks attached. Meals at all reasonable hours

Dime Savings Institution
OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest, at the rate of three (3) per cent. per annum (payable semi-annually.
JOHN W. MURRAY, President.
WILLIAM WHITE, Vice Pres.
NATHAN HARPER, "
ELIAS R. POPE, Treasurer. 4-9-tf

Jas. M. Dunn,
Dealer in
GROCERIES, PROVISIONS,
Vegetables, Fruits, etc.
No. 36 Park Ave.
OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.
THORBURN & CO'S GARDEN SEEDS,
BEST IN THE WORLD.
ALL GOODS DELIVERED FREE OF CHARGE.

ESTABLISHED 1836

C. E. & J. W. BROWN,
(Successors to C. P. & C. E. Brown & Co.)
Importers, Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

WALL PAPER.

321 Canal Street,
NEW YORK.
English Tiles, Anaglypta, Hand, Leather Stamped Floor Papers, &c. Burlaps for Walls.
Manufacturers of Window Shades.

LIVERY.

A. M. SEGUINE,
(Successor to John W. Ching.)
Laing's Hotel Stables

Front street, opposite Madison avenue.
Coaches for Weddings, Parties and Private Balls. Light carriages of all descriptions for pleasure.
RIDING OR LIVERY.
Horses, safe drivers for shopping calls or pleasure drives. Special attention given to boarding horses by the day or month. 4-30-1y
TELEPHONE CALL NO 26.

Livery Stables!
Mr. D. S. ROBERTS
Has Removed to His New Building on
NORTH AVENUE,
Adjoining Force's Hotel. Mr. Roberts will always be found ready and able to accommodate the public in livery matters, and solicits a call. Horses and carriages for funerals, parties, &c., furnished at short notice. The best of horses always on hand. Prompt attention to Orders.

Accommodation Express.
PETER SICKERT, Proprietor.
Office—Van Arsdale's Restaurant, Park avenue. The Accommodation Express will attend to the delivery of packages all the city, delivering goods or packages to and from the Depot, or from place to place. Express Furniture Carriage, with care and safety. Prompt attention given to Orders.

INSURANCE.

WILLIAM A. WOODRUFF,
FIRE AND LIFE
INSURANCE AGENT,
Office cor. Front St. and Park Ave.,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Real Estate for Sale & Exchange.
MONEY TO LOAN
On Approved Security.

Steam Marble
Granite Works.
AND
Monuments & Headstones,
Fencing for Cemetery Plots.
Large assortment of Slate Mantels.
Large variety of Granite Monuments
at all sorts executed in the most skillful manner at exceedingly reasonable prices. All orders duly executed by E. HARDING,
Front St., next to M. E. Ch., PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Monuments erected in Greenwood Cemetery, N. Y

Alex. Willett,
DEALER IN
BOOTS & SHOES,
No. 7 PARK AVENUE.
A full assortment of fashionable goods direct from manufacturers, at Low Prices.

Geo. A. Moore,
(Successor to Jenny Moore Bros.)
Is now the sole proprietor of the old established
No. 16 NORTH AVENUE,
Where he will continue to supply patrons with the finest brands of Wines and Spirituous Liquors of all kinds, Cigars, Tobacco, Pipes, &c. Also, the choicest brands of Ales, Lagers and Porter. Anything not usually kept in stock furnished at short notice.

EDUCATIONAL.

Miss SCRIBNER
AND
Miss NEWTON'S
SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
AND KINDERGARTEN,
17 LaGrande Avenue.
CORNER OF WASHINGTON STREET,
Will reopen WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 17, 1890.
The regular course will include Modeling, Drawing and sewing. 9-11-tf

PAINTERS & PAINTERS' SUPPLIES.

Paints, Varnishes, Glass.
WINDOW SHADES AND FIXTURES.
WALL PAPERS!
PAPER HANGING A SPECIALTY.
A. SWART,
No. 6 North Avenue, Plainfield.
4-9-tf

L. B. WOOLSTON. J. P. BUCKLE.
Woolston & Buckle,
PAINTERS,
Wall Papers,
PAINTER'S SUPPLIES. 38 NORTH AVENUE

MISCELLANEOUS.

LEWIS B. CODDINGTON,
(Successor to T. J. Corey.)
Furniture and Freight Express!
OFFICE—38 W. FRONT ST.
Large Covered Vans or Trucks. Goods delivered in any part of the U. S. Satisfaction guaranteed. Charges reasonable. P. O. Box 898. Piano moving a specialty. 11-6-tf

Fresh Garden Seeds
AND F RTILIZERS,
Farm and Garden Implements,
Lawn Mowers Refrigerators,
Ice Cream Freezers,
Gasoline Stoves, Hardware, Tools, etc.
J. J. HEIDELOFF,
No. 12 SOMERSET ST. 8-12tf

Graves and Bricks for all kinds of Sizes always to be found here, at Jobbers' prices. Bring your Tinware needing to us. The best Tinners, the best Plumbers, and the best Gas-Fitters in the section. We use here but the very best of tin materials, and our work always gives satisfaction.

Keys of All Kinds are Made Here.

Tinware Made to Order.

Ranges, Brick and Portable Furnaces
SANITARY PLUMBING.

CANOPIES
For Weddings, Parties, Etc.,
TO HIRE. CHARGES REASONABLE.
Hugo Weigman,
30 EAST FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD, N. J.
[1287

ADRIANCE
Buckeye Mowers
AND REAPERS.
Agricultural Machinery
Depot.
Gasoline Stoves, Refrigerators,
Tinware and Plumbing.
A. M. GRIFFEN,
13 East Front Street.
TELEPHONE CALL, 6. 11-11-tf

SPEER'S
GRAPE WINES,
ALSO
UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.
Used in the principal churches for communion. Kindly call for Samples, weekly purchase and the aged

Speer's Port Grape Wine,
FOUR YEARS OLD.
THIS Celebrated Wine is the pure juice of the grand ripe Ogerto Grape, related in Speer's vineyard, and has been kept in our cellars for the requisite purity obtained before gathering. The genuine purity obtained before gathering. The genuine are guaranteed for other Wine. Now put up and produced under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed by the principal Hospitals and Boards of Health who have examined it. The greatest child and the weakest invalid can take it with safety, as it is highly nourishing to the sick and debilitated. Being a solid food it is assimilated, hence that effect the weaker are.

Tonic and Strengthening Properties
It is in every respect a WINE TO BE RELIED ON.

Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice
is the juice of the Ogerto Grape, preserved in its natural state, and contains all the nutrition from the grape by pasteurization and sterility, thereby depriving the earlier of fermentation. It is perfectly pure, free from spirits, and will keep in any climate.

Speer's (Socialitz) Claret is held in high estimation by the Hebrew as a Wine that is especially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Brandy
is a Wine of superior character, and partakes of the rich qualities of the grape from which it is made.

Speer's P. J. Sherry
IS A PURE combination of the grape, and stands unrivalled in this country for genuine excellence. It uses a pure article of Sherry, and one in fact of the grape from which it is distilled.

See fac-simile signatures of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., on each bottle and label.
SOLD BY DRUGGISTS WHO KEEP PURE CLASS WINES. 6-2-y

A FEW TRAINED
AGENTS
Wanted in Unoccupied Territory for
The World's Religions.
Liberal Terms.
Apply quickly for Choice of Best Territory.
THE CHRISTIAN LITERATURE CO.
63 Bond Street, NEW YORK.

TOBACCO, SEGARS, &c.

H. EGGERDING,
No. 17 Park Avenue,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Manufacturer of the celebrated
C. O. D. CIGAR,
The cost conscientiously the State, and made under a guarantee from the Board of Trade.
CLEAR HAVANA SEGARS A SPECIALTY.
A large assortment to the Choicest Brands for Foreign and Domestic Cigars. Cigarettes and Tobaccos always on hand.
Telephone Articles in Great Variety.

C. M. FINE,
Dealer in HAVANA & DOMEST'C
—SEGARS!—
No. 28 PARK AVE. (NEAR CORNER OF SECOND ST.)
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Tobacco and Smoker's Materials,
Of every description.
The celebrated "Old Judge" Smoking Tobacco, with other brands always constantly on hand.

A. WOLFF,
Manufacturer of
CIGARS,
And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles. Has removed from 20½ W. Front street, to 41 West Front, one door east of Madison avenue, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

CARNEY BROS., Ag'ts,
11 SOMERSET ST.
TINNERS,
PLUMBERS,
GAS FITTERS.
PARLOR STOVES,
COOK STOVES,
HEATERS.

WHATEVER form of printer matter you require we can be of service to you; whether it be

Letter Headings,
Circulars,
Programmes,
Menus,
Addresses,
Memorials,
By-Laws of Societies,
Prospectuses and Reports of Financial Associations, or any other matter for Public or Private Circulation.
Everything,

WEEKLY CONSTITUTIONALIST,

DAILY PRESS

(Chautauqua Building)

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

SANITARY PLUMBING,
Brick and Portable Furnaces,
GAS FITTING,
TIN ROOFING,
Etc. Etc.
Can promptly do any of the above work in a manner to satisfy first-class customers and most reasonable terms.
Having associated myself with the firm of Terry & Co., I am prepared to do all kinds of Plumbing and Gas-Fitting, and will guarantee satisfaction in all cases. Shop and residence, 111 East Front street. Call and see us.
D. W. LITTELL,
No. 3 NORTH AVE. (NEAR RAILROAD.) 2.

THE WOMAN OF FASHION.

She Is Wearing Violets, Violets, Spring Violets Galore.

The Fashionable Cost of the Week—Some Worth Contemplating—They Wear Them—Figures of a Masculine Description—Dressing for Foundation Skirts.

(COPYRIGHT, 1891.)

The spring violets have bloomed. You can see them, these violets, everywhere. Upon the bonnets, in the corsages and the broad pleats of the full skirts of dress skirts. They are of many shades. White violets and black violets for those who mourn, and violets for those who have attained a mitigated stage of decolleur, and violets pink, blue and purple for the gay whose dress must be fashionable and pretty unhampered by any set forms of mourning or half-mourning.

It is a harvest of color for those who are debarred from all but black, white, purple and gray, for these hues are all so fashionable that they come in as many and divers tints. A dealer making a specialty of grays exhibited thirty-seven different shades of this color in shoes, stockings, gloves and dress material. And so with the purples: ploughaux, mauves, chalins, heliotropines and China silks are exposed in bewildering variety in this one color, though, to be sure, many of these, and yet so great is the demand for the purple and lilac shades that one must select at sight, or a return to the shop will find the favorite gone.

HATS OF THE SEASON.

In the soft, unsettled mode the prices of grays and purples have gone up. A dollar or more is added to the price of suede gray shoes, gloves keep step with the mauve, purple and gray, grey goes in the watchword for manufacturers and storekeepers.

There are many inquiries for patterns after which to model the long straight skirts, open at the sides, which are the delight of modistes and the envy of home dressmakers. The best method is to obtain a perfect-fitting bodice, cut it very long and leave the side seams open. This gives the fashionable boot of the dress. The front is turned back in broad lapels and a shirred vest inserted of India silk or crepe de chine of some delicate hue.

A Worth costume, recently imported, is of brocaded salmon-pink satin upon a white grenadine ground. The coat is long and the vest is decorated with silver beads, which does it an intervals of a quarter of an inch.

The main material for reception and ball gowns is satin, almost without exception. In an assortment of five hundred samples sent to New York by Worth, Bonnet & Co. twenty-four of silk and velvet. All the rest were satin, and were designed to be trimmed with work, beads, feathers or gauzy materials.

A black satin gown for a dowager was heavily elegant with many rows of cut jet black beads, and a cream plume-like upon the left shoulder, and bunches of them decorated the skirt. High collars were in this gown, and to all the imported dresses which were able to boast of sleeves at all.

An enterprising dressmaker has invented a spring for these high-shouldered sleeves, which will keep the shoulder puffs in place, though the material be ever so heavy. The sleeves, rather than being gathered in at the arm-hole as formerly, are shirred and placed high upon the shoulders directly upon the dress material. This secures a prettier fit for both shoulders and sleeves.

As an offset to the newest bodice, a deep fall of lace, the widest the dearer can afford, is gathered upon the bottom of the basque. The lace must be of some soft make, and must be so disposed that is not full, nor yet scant. This frequently forms the only trimming for the bodice, which is plain down to the bottom of the demi-train and is slightly relieved at front and sides by narrow braiding and ribbon, or gilt trimming.

AT-HOME DRESSES.

Foundation skirts are made so that the stray glimpses which one gets of them are not such as to offend the eye. If the foundation skirt is of plain lining cambric, a double row of the dress goods is sewn around it in two broad bands, and a hem of the same is added. As the wearer lifts her drapery in crossing a street, or draws it aside in seating herself, the skirt, as it is revealed, seems as if trimmed for somebody else and not for her, and she does not look in the closet.

In many dress shades, it is possible to secure lining to match exactly, and, in this case, the foundation becomes really pretty by the addition of a few scallops of the dress goods. Silk foundation skirts are not by all odds the most desirable ones they hang more gracefully, are lighter and adapt themselves more closely to the figure, but the same effect can be done by them as so great as to debar would-be purchasers.

Glove makers are particularly accommodating this season. Recognizing the great demand for costumes that shall harmonize throughout, they have provided many more shades in kid than have ever before been offered. To still further these accommodations, all the best dealers will stitch the backs of gloves in any shade desired by the purchaser. Two makes, 9 buttons each, extra cost at half an hour's notice.

There has recently been a riding habit invented which will cause equestrians many a fall; and even in case of a throw will land them plump upon the ground without dragging them by the skirt of the riding habit.

To outward appearances the habit is as other habits are, but there is this difference: The skirt is cut on the bias in such a way that the right knee which is thrown over the pommel must carry the skirt with it as the rider slips sideways, and the entire, so portentously long skirt, is planned that the skirt in all cases gracefully follows the direction of the right knee and such a thing as being caught by the skirt is an impossibility. The inventor of this habit is also a courtier of harmony and color and advocates all black for equestrian use as being more becoming, since it is less apt to reflect the hues of the sun and appear to be many-tinted. The dull browns, greens and blues produced an optical illusion, giving the wearer as she pranced past the appearance of being clad in a habit that is second cousin to Joseph's coat of many colors.

With the new and improved ways of manufacturing dress-makers' establishments one is reminded of the "nickel-in-the-slot" machines, so perfect is the mechanism for turning out work. One has only to walk into a fashionable modiste and say: "Here are two hundred dollars, and I wish to have a dress-suit next week. Do the best you can for me with the money."

On the appointed day, home there will come a gown, gloves, slippers, bone and, perhaps, a fan all in exquisite harmony. Accompanying it will be a note containing suggestions as to the flowers to be worn, bidding concerning the opera cape or wrap, and an idea for brated snow-shoes, and is credited with a mile run in 4 minutes and 37 seconds. Another, also an Iroquois, is White Eagle, who is said to have run a hundred yards in less than 12 seconds.

A YOUNG PEOPLE'S SNOW-SHOE CLUB.

There are hurdle races also. It seems to an inexperienced person that such snow-shoes such as are worn at Montreal. These shoes are the kind we see most commonly in the United States, and are noticeable for their long "heels," which would be in the way when jumping.

Nor are the webbs men who enter in anywise inferior to their red competitors in running or jumping.

For a hundred yards on a track the amateur record is less than 18 seconds; that for a mile, 5 minutes 15 seconds. One thousand yards on track, about 3 minutes 18 seconds; with ordinary snow-shoes, 3 minutes 40½ seconds. Two miles, 9 minutes 57 9-6 seconds; with racing shoe, 11 minutes 32½ seconds. Five miles, track, 35 minutes 7 45 seconds; with ordinary snow-shoe, 39 minutes 18 seconds. In the hurdle races the long snow-shoe would naturally be at a disadvantage. As the hurdles used differ as to number and height, the real difference in time can not be so readily seen. The record for a skeleton shoe is used. One hundred yards, track, 5 hurdles 2½ feet high, 15 seconds; with snow-shoe, 5 hurdles 2½ feet high, 15 seconds. Four hundred yards, track, 16 hurdles 2½ feet high, 1 minute 2½ seconds; with snow-shoes, 8 hurdles 2½ feet high, 1 minute 25½ seconds.

In the winter of 1875 one of the longest walks ever recorded was made. A party of surveyors who were seeking a route for the Canadian Pacific railway travelled from British Columbia across the Rocky Mountains, a distance of 900 miles.

Nothing is more awkward for a beginner than learning to keep right side up on snow-shoes. It is not necessary to walk with one restricted stride. A spot for one shoe is lifted over instead of around the other. The tracks lie one in front of the other almost as in ordinary walking. By taking long steps one need never flounder in the snow as a beginner does who lets the toe of one shoe get caught under the heel of the other.—Tappan Adney, in Harper's Young People.

THE FUN OF CATCHING EELS.

The Squirmers Are Sometimes Caught in Peculiar Ways.

Parties travel along our shore, says the Lewiston Journal, setting traps for eels at the mouths of brooks above high water mark, sometimes in a box of slats, with an inconspicuous entrance. The squirmers go in and stay in till cleaning time arrives, but seldom set pots near the head of the tide. These are like lobster traps in some respects. In the end is a tunnel-shaped entrance very easy to get into. This entrance is rendered still more effective sometimes by a contraction in the shape of a stocking leg, and I have seen sharp heads driven in and clinched within to should be poles his head out the door. These traps are sunk to the bottom with a line and a buoy attached. Horse-eels are considered the best bait for cod. In the fall they pass up into rivers and ponds, sometimes in great numbers, and always in the darkest nights; then the boys are on deck with gaffs.

Their winter home is in the slimiest mud. Some bed in salt mud, others in the rivers. At Goose river is a spot where eels are always found there as soon as ice forms. Strangely enough, it is said to be a bridge. By quick work a bushel are sometimes turned out in a few minutes. Spearing is to me the most interesting method of fishing for them. An eel spear is built like Neptune's trident, with a wooden handle two feet to three feet long. With it the fisherman aspires to the river, if in tide water, at low water. In the fall a boat will do. In the winter the ice is cut in a semicircle, then with one clip the projecting tongue is cut off and pushed under. Now the pudgling begins. The spear is jabbed in the mud gently; if it meets resistance when pulled out, the fisherman rants it like lightning and shakes the wiggler off on the ice.

Very often in this vicinity, near the wharf and ships, an iron bolt, a tree nail, hoop skirt, stove funnel, bag of kittens, piece of rigging, gold watch or some other bulk will seem to be in the least affected, and, unless something like brain fever sets in, he couldn't see why "spudin" couldn't pass right on again. And he did.

I used to drop in and see him occasionally and always some little dish or dainty that Martha, my wife, would fix up.

His head seemed as clear as a bell, and he needed a right faster than even the doctor had any notion of, on the start.

He was always very thankful for all the little things that my wife sent him, more than that, he seemed to take a great liking to me. He was very religious and read his Bible almost constantly.

In six weeks from the time of his first he was out again, and in a few weeks more began work at his old job.

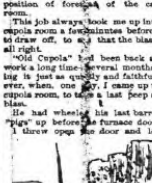
Meantime I had been promoted to the position of foreman of the boiler room.

This job always took me up into the cupola room a few minutes before time to draw off, to see that the blast was all right.

"Old Cupola" had been back at his work a long time—several months—doing is just as steady and faithful as ever, when, one day, I came up to the cupola room, to take a last peep at the blaze.

He had wheeled his last barrow of "pigs" up before the furnace door.

I threw open the door and looked



I YELLED TO THE MAN.

into the blaze. It looked a few more "pigs" of iron, before it would be ready to draw off.

As I stood around from the furnace toward "Old Cupola," it struck me that his eyes had a queer look. But my mind was thought was that it was only the effect of the white light from the open door of the blast shining squarely into his face.

"Throw a few more 'pigs' in," said I, "and then you may knock off."

He started to march down to his wheelbarrow, to pick up a "pig," but suddenly drew up as I clapped his hands to his head.

By this time I had stepped to the opposite side of the furnace, and just had it on my tongue's end to ask him what was the matter. But I never got the words out—for suddenly he gave such a yell as I never expect to hear again. Then he held up both hands, like a preacher saying the benediction, and shouted: "Hear the fifth angel sounded—" Here he seemed to forget something, and described the eight s and in a circle, as though finishing the sentence with the gesture instead of the words. Then his eyes seemed to shoot fire like the flames and sparks that leap out of the cupola. Then the blast door closed.

"Ah! Devils! Devils!" he screamed, "Dye think I'm scape the fifth angel who is how'ls the bottomless pit? Dye pit? T' Hell! Ah! It smokes like a furnace!"

As he said those last words he made a grand flourish and pointed to the open door of the blast. I caught the idea that was in his crazy brain. He thought the blast was hell and he was going to put me into it.

All this happened in about three seconds.

I looked about for something with which to defend myself. There was nothing.

It must be a single-handed struggle between man and man.

He was naturally a wiry, powerful old build, and the handling of a heavy iron "pig" had set-off and developed the muscles of his arms and shoulders. With the wickedest laugh that ever broke from human lips, he dashed at me, and I dodged my lead for an under-hold.

Then began a sprawling over my head, and for a minute he was floored. But it was only for a moment, as my impetus had carried me against the

I THREW OPEN THE DOOR AND LOOKED

"OLD CUPOLA."

A Terrible Struggle for Life with a Desperate Madman.

NEVER saw a heading in a daily paper concerning a prize fight or wrestling match, or stood upon the cupola of a blast furnace, without recognizing it the most intense excitement.

And I will tell you why.

The early years of my manhood were spent in Pittsburgh as a molder in one of the oldest stove foundries.

And happy days they were—full of hard work and honest pride in my young wife, my strong arm and my skill in throwing sand.

But that's neither here or there.

What you want to know is the story of the struggle that wellnigh ended in my being locked inside the blast.

I was on the night force then and was just approaching the foundry one evening in early fall when "Old Cupola," as we called the tall, red-headed Scotchman who tended the blast cupola, was starting up the little engine that in those days led to the cupola room, with-his wheelbarrow loaded with pig iron.

Just then a neighbor came over from a new wall that the masons had just put up, and left word that "dying" just before morning opened up, and I saw that the wall was beginning to topple.

I pulled to the man to get out of the way, but he did not hear me, on account of the whir and the next breeze rumbled the upper part of the wall pellmell upon him, as I supposed, but on reaching the spot I found that, as the had been close to the wall, most of the bricks had been blown over him.

His head seemed badly crushed, and as soon as I could, give the alarm I beat the tattoo of a score that was hitched in front of a saloon opposite the foundry, and in five minutes returned with a doctor.

They had carried "Old Cupola" into a railroad boarding house near by.

The doctor directed me to sponge the blood from the man's head.

I suppose the water revived him; at least he "came to" and I was the first man he set eyes on.

Whether or not that had anything to do with the rest of my story, I don't know. You can make the inference of that.

When the doctor had finished "patching" him up, he said that the only serious wound was across the top of the man's head, where the edge of a brick had left a long deep cut or crease; but that the brain did not seem to be in the least affected, and, unless "something like brain fever" set in, he couldn't see why "Cupola" wouldn't pull right out again. And he did.

His head seemed as clear as a bell, and he needed a right faster than even the doctor had any notion of, on the start.

He was always very thankful for all the little things that my wife sent him, more than that, he seemed to take a great liking to me. He was very religious and read his Bible almost constantly.

In six weeks from the time of his first he was out again, and in a few weeks more began work at his old job.

Meantime I had been promoted to the position of foreman of the boiler room.

This job always took me up into the cupola room a few minutes before time to draw off, to see that the blast was all right.

"Old Cupola" had been back at his work a long time—several months—doing is just as steady and faithful as ever, when, one day, I came up to the cupola room, to take a last peep at the blaze.

He had wheeled his last barrow of "pigs" up before the furnace door.

I threw open the door and looked

I YELLED TO THE MAN.

into the blaze. It looked a few more "pigs" of iron, before it would be ready to draw off.

As I stood around from the furnace toward "Old Cupola," it struck me that his eyes had a queer look. But my mind was thought was that it was only the effect of the white light from the open door of the blast shining squarely into his face.

"Throw a few more 'pigs' in," said I, "and then you may knock off."

He started to march down to his wheelbarrow, to pick up a "pig," but suddenly drew up as I clapped his hands to his head.

By this time I had stepped to the opposite side of the furnace, and just had it on my tongue's end to ask him what was the matter. But I never got the words out—for suddenly he gave such a yell as I never expect to hear again. Then he held up both hands, like a preacher saying the benediction, and shouted: "Hear the fifth angel sounded—" Here he seemed to forget something, and described the eight s and in a circle, as though finishing the sentence with the gesture instead of the words. Then his eyes seemed to shoot fire like the flames and sparks that leap out of the cupola. Then the blast door closed.

"Ah! Devils! Devils!" he screamed, "Dye think I'm scape the fifth angel who is how'ls the bottomless pit? Dye pit? T' Hell! Ah! It smokes like a furnace!"

As he said those last words he made a grand flourish and pointed to the open door of the blast. I caught the idea that was in his crazy brain. He thought the blast was hell and he was going to put me into it.

All this happened in about three seconds.

I looked about for something with which to defend myself. There was nothing.

It must be a single-handed struggle between man and man.

He was naturally a wiry, powerful old build, and the handling of a heavy iron "pig" had set-off and developed the muscles of his arms and shoulders. With the wickedest laugh that ever broke from human lips, he dashed at me, and I dodged my lead for an under-hold.

Then began a sprawling over my head, and for a minute he was floored. But it was only for a moment, as my impetus had carried me against the

I THREW OPEN THE DOOR AND LOOKED

Rates of Advertising.

Space	WEEKS. 1	2	3	MONTHS. 1	2	3	6	12
1 in.	$ .00	.00	.00	$ .00	.00	.00	.00	.00
2 in.	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00
3 in.	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00
4 in.	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00
5 in.	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00
6 in.	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00
7 in.	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00
8 in.	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00
9 in.	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00
10 in.	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00
11 in.	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00
12 in.	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00	.00

All Electric's time be sold sound.
"Little of Everything" column, 5 cts. per line.
Double col., paper 01, advance of above rates

wasemarrow and pitumneon.

He was up again and at me before I had hardly regained my feet.

"Dog! Sorcerer! Murderer!" he cried. "There's me 'scapin' me. It's my side blind is on your hand's so" my side now saw'n." This time I braced for a blow at his head, but he deftly knocked it aside and grappled me around the waist.

I had read when a boy an account by an African hunter, of his falling into the grip of an ourang-outang.

The story impressed me deeply, but I never expected to experience the awful sensations which he described.

As the long arms of the maniac gripped about me, blinding my left eye down against my side, crushing my breast and face against his own, that instant flashed across my mind.

But as the demoniac held me, eye to eye with himself—his frothing lips pressing close upon me and the lurid light of the seething, molten mass, into which he was struggling to pitch me, falling full upon his face, showed me all the devils of consuming madness that glared in his frenzied eyes. I would gladly have exchanged places with the hunter in the clutches of the infuriated man-ape. I felt the full force of the dreadful idea of hell that burned in the brain of the lunatic who wessel, in a moment, plunge me into it. He fell a bell as imagination can picture.

HIS STRENGTH SEEMED INFINITE.

I reached my right arm over his left shoulder, and, getting my hand free, I drew my knife and gripped his throat, but it did not hinder him.

Now could I trip him or impede his movements by twisting my legs about his own. His strength seemed infinite. There was but one thing to do, and that of swinging the furnace door shut with my free hand, as he would drag me closer to it and pull me in.

With his second stride his foot struck a "pig" that had spilled from the barrow and fell together to the floor, writhing, pitching and plunging like reptiles! He could have crushed me in his grasp, strangled me, beat my brains out, or killed me in a dozen ways, but he was bent on throwing me alive into the molten metal.

Just as he had freed himself from the grasp that I had developed by reaching my free arm about his neck and clutched into his mouth I gave a wild cry.

A rush of footsteps up the inclined plane told me that help was at hand.

The next moment I knew then that that sound reached my ears and that of the appearance of the men in the doorway seemed endless.

One of the lads had a lantern.

"Shut the furnace door quick!" I cried, as they rushed forward to where we were.

As they did so "Old Cupola" sprang to his feet.

But "click" went the furnace door, the combined forces of the struggle, pinioned him from behind and dragged the "Fifth Angel"—as he was ever afterward known—to his station at the mouth of the bottomless pit.

The shock resulted in brain fever, and for weeks I was unconscious or distracted.

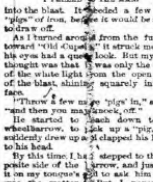
I have never fully recovered, and from that day to this I have not looked into a furnace door.

Do you wonder that I cannot endure the sight of a blast furnace, cupola or bear to read of trials of strength between man and man?—Forrest Crissey, in Chicago Graphic.

PROGRESSIVE EVOLUTION.

Nominative—Jag.

Possessive—Jig.



Objective—Jug.—Judge.

Salt as a Fertilizer.

The farmers in the vicinity of the Gambo powder mills, in Windham, Conn., are using a refuse salt which accumulates in great quantities at the mills. The salt comes from the saltpeter process, and is used in which constitutes in a process of refining which constitutes the most difficult and important feature of powder manufacture. For year 1889 tobacco was pretty scarce in the North, and its cultivation was instituted in considerable haste. At that time 800 tons of salt had accumulated at the powder mills, and it was sold to the Connecticut farmers to serve as a fertilizer for one cent a pound delivered at a wharf in Portland. It took four months to haul it. For what was considered worthless, the sum of $16,000 was realized.

Heir to Wind.

There are in the United States at the present time 500,000 persons living who are heirs to over $600,000,000 in England, Germany and Holland. One of the best lawyers in New York says that he would not give six oyster suppers to six men and take all these claims as Payment.

The Constitutionalist.

W. L. FORCE, } A. L. FORCE
Editors and Proprietors.

NATIONAL.

The anniversary of the birth of American Independence is again at hand, and it will mark the flight of one hundred and fifteen years.

That, to denizens on this continent, may appear a lengthened period of time, yet, comparatively short is it when the age of Republics in other lands is brought to mind.

To reflect upon the expanded growth of the American Republic since the Continental Congress of 1776 severed and dissolved the Transatlantic colonies are, and of right ought to be, Free and Independent States," is to mentally unravel the whole.

What is our country of to-day?

Washed by the billows of two majestic oceans, thousands of miles apart, its terrific-like limits extend from the icy regions of the North to the verdant savannahs of the South, and from where bleak East winds whistle through the pine boughs of Maine to the cactus-fringed Mexican frontier, obstreperous winds are mighty hounds and a million of freemen, protected by one flag and animated by a single destiny, divisions of a realm the largest of earth, matchless in natural grandeur, and rich beyond comment in the elements of religious, educational, material and industrial greatness.

Such is a hasty and imperfect sketch of the magnificent domain we are privileged to call "our country."

To glory in its achieved fame, and to strive for its future enduring and undimmed prosperity is human impulse, while to commemorate with high acclaim its natal day is certainly patriotic duty.

But furthermore—

In connection with an appropriate and real observance of Independence Day there remains something of more invitable value than the growth of domicile, population and money.

It is remembrance of the vital principles of human freedom the Declaration of Independence boldly ordained.

That immortal document thus salutes a listening world:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed."

Those words of patriotic valor and worth upheld the massive pillars of the American Union.

Vowing undying allegiance to their intents and preservation, will be honoring aright the Glorious Fourth of July.

Senator Wertz would make a capital successor to Gov. Abbett.

Leon Abbett will be the next United States Senator from New Jersey, big enemies to the contrary, notwithstanding.

When Cleveland was President there was no lack of money in the treasury, and no Banns or Tanners. His administration was a clean and popular one.

The Republicans of Ohio claim for their party that "its achievements have so far paralleled." This is true. No other party ever spent a Billion Dollars in two years.

Commissioner Raum has signed invalid pension certificate No. 600,000, granted for disabilities incurred during the late war. Widows' and minors' certificates have been issued to the number of 295,471; navy invalids, 11,310, and navy widows, 5,687. There have been paid, since July 1, 1861, to surviving men and widows of the war of 1812, the Mexican war and the war of the Revolution, or their widows and children, an aggregate of $72,324,000. Whatever else may be said of the Republican public, they will ever deny that it has not been liberal to those who fought its battles."

Abram D. Campbell, of Hackensack, the Bergen County Prosecutor of the Pleas, has been appointed chairman of the commission appointed by Governor Abbett "to revise, simplify, reduce and consolidate all the general statutes of the State applying and relating to villages, towns and townships which shall be in force at the time such commission shall make their final report." The other members of the commission are Jacob C. Hendrickson and George C Place. The Governor has ordered that a room in the building occupied by the Capitol in Trenton shall be fitted up for the use of the commission.

A suit came to Col. Harvey as Commissioner of Banking and Insurance has been found for Receiver Hedden, of Newark, a graduate of Rutger's college, a lawyer in good standing, and a man of independent means. In 1877 he carried the Republican Fourth Assembly district of Essex county by a large majority, which was greatly increased at his re-election the following year. He was the choice of the Democratic minority for Speaker of the Assembly, and in 1881, was nominated by Governor Ludlow as Clerk in Chancery, the nomination being unanimously and heartily confirmed by the Senate, which was then largely Republican. Under the Cleveland administration, likewise he served for a term as United States District Attorney for his district.

"The McKinley bill restricts every market, except the home market, in respect of all our products except our breadstuffs, while other countries cannot do without it and live; but, according to the Secretary of State, it does not afford a market anywhere for an additional bushel of grain or barrel of pork raised by our farmers. Its exactions in favor of a single class, the manufacturers, have incensed all countries against us, made them do what they could do to close their markets against us; it has made the seers and every other thing except sugar dearer, but it has not increased wages. It has protected the product of foreign cheap labor, but has done nothing to help foreign cheap labor itself. It has enormously increased the profits of the manufacturers, but it has added nothing to the wage-rate."—Philadelphia Telegraph, Rep.

As "AMERICAN PRODUCT" at 5,000 Reps from 10 Reps.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Can any of your readers' knowledge equal or exceed the fact of 5,000 reps from 10 reps, during the past 12 months? This has been the year's product of an amateur on East Second street. A.

A MIDNIGHT ROBBER RANSACKS HOUSES.

Mrs. Gallo, Mortimer Hibbitts and Others Among the Victims.

Mrs. John B. Gallo of Cottage place, "At any rate, I was very weak and dazed, and was powerless to cry out. It was only dimly that I saw a man breaking open and ransacking the drawers of my bureau, late Saturday night. He got nothing valuable from them, but he found the key to my trunk and stole some silver-plated spoons. He got $7 in money. He was tall and slim, wore a derby hat, had a mustache, and looked like a tramp."

At the home of James Keefe, 20 West Sixth street, next door to the home of police captain George W. Grant, the burglar crept through an unfastened parlor window and opened the front door wide to have a ready exit. Mrs. Keefe was kept awake by her baby, and heard the man walking about.

"Is that you, Jim?"—she called, and the intruder ran out without getting any booty although he had a gold watch in a pocket Mr. Keefe's watch, which was lying in full view on a mantle-piece.

John Kline lives at Liberty street, near West Sixth. His sister works at midnight and saw a man wearing a black derby hat rummaging about in a closet. She screamed, and he ran. Nothing was missing.

The family of Daniel Hibbitts, backman, 33 West Fifth street, awoke Sunday morning and found that a gold watch and money had been abstracted from the pockets of Mr. Hibbitts's garments during the night. The thief passed by a good watch.

Captain Grant thinks the robber is some worthless fellow about town.

PLAINFIELD CAPITAL IN IT.

Here's a New Scheme for Amassing the Public and Making Money.

A novel amusement scheme is about to be consummated in this country through the agency of Plainfield and Westfield capitalists, who a few days ago filed articles of incorporation with the Secretary of State at Trenton, establishing what will be known as "The American Labyrinth Company". The scheme will be the putting into practical shape of the old-time labyrinth puzzle, which Hibbitts has existed only on paper. The idea has already achieved commercial prominence in France and England, and its projectors and palentees are confident of getting fat-sum returns in this country, where such novelties are eagerly patronized.

The company will at once proceed to establish labyrinths at Long Branch, Asbury Park, Coney Island, Atlantic City, Newport, Martha's Vineyard and other pleasure resorts. Each labyrinth will be an intricate combination of puzzling passages, and will be constructed on the principles of a well filled himself bewildered by the many turns of the passages. He will pass through down which he cannot open to look back. He will suddenly come to a solid wall, and be compelled to try another angle. Convex, concave, and combined concave and convex mirrors will present queer, distorted pictures of himself as he passes through the way known as "Mysterious Cave." When he has arrived the puzzle by reaching the centre he will find a cool retreat, where refreshments are served. Then he may return by a direct exit. The company will construct portable labyrinths, to be transported about the country during the winter and exhibited at inland cities. Prizes will be offered for quickest solution of the puzzle.

GREAT GAMES FOR THE FOURTH.

The Crescent League Has Hastened Some Few Players, Bolstered the Appleton Prize, and Scheduled Two Strong Clubs for Next Saturday.

THE PRESS had good news for the people on Tuesday. The price of admission to Crescent League baseball games has been reduced from twenty-five to fifteen cents, two new players have been signed and a couple of the strongest semi-professional nines in the country will make things very warm for the Crescent players and fitfully exciting for the spectators, when on the afternoon of the 4th of July the glorious Fourth of July.

One of the new players who have been engaged, is H. H. Cory, of this city, who will play short-stop in place of Martin whose careless playing has been noticeable and most objectionable to the spectators for some time past. The other new man is Edward Hoag, of this city who was signed by the West Ends but never played on that team. Holly will be the fifth player. He is from Elizabethport where pitcher Taylor also comes from.

Both the latter may that the Crescents will have to play ball Saturday morning in order to win from the Phillipsburgs who are coming down here particularly strong to give their old comrades Taylor and Holley, and the rest of the nine, a surprise party.

If there is anything left of the Crescents in the afternoon, they will play the renowned Flushings whom they once beat last year by the close score of 4 to 2. The Flushing are now playing better ball than ever before. The centre fielder is also to be found in the ranks of the Crescents.

The Appleton prize will be played for in the afternoon also. Both the Crescent nines

CITY DEPARTMENT.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY OF UNION.

J. A. DEMAREST, - City Editor.

—The grocery stores will be closed all day on Saturday, July 4.

—E. H. Dolke of East Jersey street received a call from a brand-new boy early Sunday morning. Wife and child are doing finely.

—Michael Uhlig, the coalhacker, has just received an $8,000 contract to lay out and grade property belonging to Peter Donnell, at Roselle.

—James O'Reilley, of Thompsonburg, was found lying intoxicated on the street in this city Tuesday. Judge Codington this morning fined him $5.

—H. M. Coward, a young machinist, had a hand badly cut at Potter's Press Works Sunday night. The wound was dressed at Muhlenberg Hospital.

—A man captured by constable Matter for stealing a ride on a freight train yesterday said he had missed a passenger train and had had to jump aboard the freight. He showed a pocket and was permitted to go on.

—Among the dates selected for excursions to the seashore is that of July 29, by the Trinity Reformed church and Sunday-school. The train will be a large crowd with them and have a pleasant time.

—There was a wealthy New Yorker in Plainfield yesterday looking for a permanent home. When he heard that this city's only "modern improvement" was a town-pond, he left to look elsewhere to invest and live.

—Lally, of New Haven, isn't regarded as a great outfielder, but in a recent game he had eight put-outs and no errors at center. Meanwhile, Becker played first in for the Crescents in a game versus the Somervilles.

—As Thomas Lyness, a sewing-machine agent of this city, was getting into his wagon on Saturday afternoon at five o'clock, the horse ran away and dragged Mr. Lyness some distance until stopped by bystanders on Park avenue, West Front street.

—The members of Ambor and Jerusalem lodges, F. and A. M., of this city, have been invited to attend a communication of Bayonne Lodge, Thursday evening of this week. Grand Master Thomas W. Tilden and associate grand officers will be present.

—T. O. Doane, chief engineer of the Plainfield fire department, reports that the city has by far outgrown its present supply of fire-wells. "If we are n't going to have any hydrants—he says—we must have at least twenty-five more wells —and that pretty soon, too."

—Two more men were captured for trespassing on coal trains yesterday. They said they had paid their fare to the head brakeman. Rather than take the trouble to hunt up the brakeman to deny the report the court suspended sentence and ordered the fellows out of town.

—The man with the expert burglar's jimmy whom constable Matter arrested on a coal train on suspicion of being one of the burglars "wanted" at Phillipsburg, has been sent to the county jail for 10 days for train trespassing. He will be interviewed at the jail by Phillipsburg's chief of police.

—A St. Bernard dog owned by John R. Thompson of Dunellen avenue was poisoned a few nights ago. The dog was a fine specimen of that excellent breed, and Mr. Thompson cannot imagine why any one should want it out of the way. When the dog was a pup he paid $100 for it. He would not have taken $500 for it.

—The Woodport Hotel at Lake Hopatcong was formally opened on Saturday June 20. The Sparta band was present and discovered fine music. This new hotel is delightfully situated at the head of the Lake, and is fitted up with all the modern improvements. For particulars address, Thomas Bright, proprietor, Woodport, N. J.

—The Rev. C. B. Mitchell satisfied the curiosity of his congregation when Box 13 sounded yesterday morning by sending out a man to find out where the fire was, and announcing it from the pulpit. He also told a story about people being eager to run to a fire—a story he had told sometimes hundreds of the great fire which awaited the wicked elsewhere.

—Several of the new locomotives received lately by the Central Railroad of New Jersey are in use on the express trains from New York to Asbury Park. The neat outlay the Central makes should to for half the time spent aboard smoking cars which gentlemen can inhabit without a shiver of repugnance.—Asbury Park Daily Journal

—A little Scotch avenue girl who is just learning to read short words takes great interest in the big letters she sees in the adv-rtising columns of THE PRESS. The other evening, as her papa had just read mamma busy reading the advertisements to her, she knelt down to say her prayers. "Lord," she lisped—"make me pure!"—Then she smiled sweetly, and, with added fervor, a moment later—"Make me absolutely pure, like baking powder!"

A Disappointed Community.

It was reported, Monday, that Joseph H. Johnson and Miss Anna Myers, both of Dunellen, had been joined in the holy bonds of matrimony the previous Sunday. Their friends were much elated over the report, and everyone who possessed an article of wedding present made ready to give them a glorious serenade, and in all probabilities reap a bountiful supply of refreshments; but just as their appetites had reached a point where the report was denied, the news of which fell on the ears of the would-be serenaders like a thousand of brick

A Pleasant Evening With "Temple Builders".

The "Temple Builders", a branch organization of the Young Ladies' Mission-ary society of the Second Reformed church, gave a re-union Tuesday in the Church parlors, at which time Mrs. Lucy S. Bainbridge, of the New York mission, gave a very interesting talk on "Darkest New York."

Following a most enjoyable plain soda by W. E. MacClymont, Mrs. Bainbridge was introduced by David Lyon in a brief and appropriate speech. After Mrs. Bainbridge had finished her interesting discourse, Miss Koszpraud a piece entitled the "Wishing Boy," which was followed by reading at the words "I will lay me down and die", they were whisked by Mr. Bigelow and Mr. MacClymont, instead of being carried. During the piece a quartette, composed of L. B. Bigelow, jr., first tenor; Samuel McCutchen, second tenor; W. E. MacClymont, first bass, and B. T. Barnes, second bass, sang "Annie Laurie."

Refreshments were subsequently served, and the ladies closed a very delightful time with the young misdemeanites.

PERSONALIA.

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Peck will spend this week at the Thousand Islands.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Van Winkle returned from their wedding trip Saturday evening.

Ex-Councilman H. B. Newball and family will spend the month of July at White Pond, the Lake Shedid.

Mrs. Mellen, wife of the superintendent of the Rockaway Valley railway, is the guest of Mrs. Vandegrift.

Alfred W. Sulgrave, Rockhill, spent Sunday with his sister, Mrs. Gilbert B. Martin, 39 Somerset street, North Plainfield.

Miss Sarah Bonnell, of East Seventh street, will spend July, August and September at Circleville, Orange county, N.Y.

Edgar V. R. Sofield, wife and daughter, of Perth Amboy, spent Sunday at the home of his brother, T. A. Sofield, on West Second street.

Frank Mason, of New York, business manager of The Forest and Stream, spent Saturday and Sunday in this city as the guest of C. T. J. Keller, jr.

The family of S. P. Dunn, of East Seventh street, leave town this week for a summer among the hills of Passaic, at Newfoundland, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. G. E. See, with their son, Chester Stout See, left town yesterday for Bradley Beach, N. J., where they will remain until Sept. 1.

During the coming vacation of the Rev. W. R. Richard's, the Crescent Avenue church pulpit will be occupied by the Rev. Dr. R. S. Holmes, formerly of this city.

Mrs. Morris VanArsdale and children, of No. 5 Washington street, and Mrs. A. E. Shapin, of East Fifth street, will start Thursday for Mt. Pocono, to spend several weeks.

The Rev. A. Judson Titsworth, pastor of the Plymouth Congregational church of Riverside, Cal., is visiting his home, spending a short vacation with relatives in New Market, his native place.

That sweet soprano singer from the city of churches, Mrs. Evelyn Deverell Spicer, and her husband, were the guests yesterday of Mr. and Mrs. J. Wesley Johnson of LaGrande avenue.

The Hon. James J. Bergen, Speaker of the last Assembly, and the present presiding officer the Legislature of New Jersey ever knew, made a long social call at THE PRESS office, yesterday afternoon.

A tally-ho party, headed by Wm. R. Russell of Short Hills, stopped at The Albion for luncheon Monday afternoon on their way back from Normandie-by-the-Sea. They have been having a fine trip along the Jersey coast.

F. G. Langhorne registered at the Atlantis hotel, Asbury Park, where his wife and daughters are, shopping, a day or two ago. He wrote his name so plainly that the local newspapers publish it in the list of arrivals as F. G. Laughrone.

President Kirkner will study Thursday: "Ours are the best schools in the State, and our teachers are so valued that other places that have more money than we have keep enticing them away. That's both the why and the result of our excellent Training Class."

Mrs. William Lord Strong, formerly Miss Dorthy Wilkinson of this city, whose marriage was recently announced in these columns, will have a reception given to her by the groom's parents at sisters at their home, 122 Susquehanna avenue, Pittston, Pa., Tuesday evening, July 7.

Twice within two years Dr. H. K. Carroll has had the pleasure of addressing a graduating class of which his daughter was a member—two years ago when she completed the North Plainfield school course, and Thursday when she finished that of the Plainfield High School.

Recently registered at Asbury Park and Ocean Grove hotels are the following: Brunswick House—James and John H. Bowne, Plainfield; Pavilion—Miss C. C. Langhorne and daughters, Plainfield; LeChalier, Mrs. G. H. Brown, Miss Sarah Brown, Geo. H. Brown, Westfield.

Edgar Sheppard, a little fellow who was graduated from the North Plainfield public schools last week, is the proud possessor of a silver watch and chain given to him by his sisters May and Lizzie just before he stepped on the platform to give his oration Thursday evening.

S. Grace Dean, teacher of art and clay modelling in the public schools of this city, left has for her home at Massapequa, Conn. Miss Dean has successfully conducted this branch of education. She has certificates of ability, and his universal complacency under all the trying circumstances that fall to the lot of his professors, is in charge of that branch of Mr. Smith's winters are spent in hotel keeping on the Bahama Islands.

Among the guests at The Netherwood is A. E. Golson, of Brooklyn, with his wife and daughter Clarice. Mr. Golson was the cashier of the Sixth National Bank who disc-vered that "things" were not altogether right and made the discovery in time to catch the rascally officers and save the people's money. Mr. Golson is President of the bank now.

The grounded person on the Music Hall stage Thursday evening—even those the graduates themselves—was Miss Julia E. Bulkley, Principal of the Plainfield public schools. The graduates were her pupils and with the work of the public schools so dear to her heart she could not but be deeply grateful at the compliment their success paid to her excellent supervision of the management.

The funer-l of Fred. Brokaw, the brave young fellow who lost his life while trying to save a maid servant from drowning in the lake, took place Sunday. Throngs of people attended. Besides being a nephew of Mrs. George Smock, as already stated in these columns, he was a cousin of Mrs. Chas. H. Penfield and of Henry D. Brewster, both of this city.

Robert Gaston Smith, of 111 Broadway, Camden, son of the Gaston Smith, president of the New Brunswick public schools, at the annual session Thursday afternoon, to deliver the oration at the graduates' exercises next year. He is a friend of Franklin S Smith, of the Plainfield public schools, a d is studying at Worcester, Mass., for the Epi-copalian ministry. He has a national reputation as a writer on mechanical engineering and other topics, in the Y. M. C. A. course in this city.

Senator McPherson, of New Jersey, owns and is now away enjoying the cooling breezes of the mountain streams in Canada, the Notenhazgan, which is reputed to be alive with grassy fish. The Senator's angling outfit is of irreproachable excellence—in fact, the Senator himself believes it to be the finest in America. It is on a par with his provisions for entertainment in the last week, which for excellence everything procurable in the way of edible and potable delicacies.

William VanVoohis, formerly of this city but now one of Denver's most prominent business men, is in Plainfield for a few weeks attending to the settlement of the estate of his mother, Elizabeth VanVoorhis, who died on the 18th inst. Last week Tuesday Mr. VanVoorhis was called on to bear another sad blow by the death of his mother's mother. Mosier Willis Theirs, son of Charles R. Theirs of Somerset street and the pride of his family, is the only other heir to share in the estate.

[I gave bad colds to my mother and myself. Could not get rid of them. Tried Piso's Cure for Consumption. Relief came at once. Cured us both. Sold by druggists. 25 cents.]

THE BUSY WORLD BEFORE THEM

TWENTY-FOUR GRADUATES FINISH THE HIGH SCHOOL COURSE.

Class Composition, Oration and Valedictory by a Theme of Praise—Rosary for Nineteen Years, and Credit to the Plainfield Schools—Essays, Prizes, Diplomas —Name, Picture, and Testimonials of Science—A Happy Reception to Be Attended by the Alumni.

[FROM THE DAILY PRESS OF JUNE 30.]

GLOOM OF MOURNING triumph and a smile of happiness on their faces, twenty-four graduates from the Plainfield public schools last night received the diplomas which they long have strived for, testifying that they have completed with honor to the institution and with credit to themselves the requirements of study mapped out by the city educators.

As usual, the Commencement exercises were attended with an audience which filled Music Hall considerably beyond its seating capacity. Before the graduates on the stage was one vast sea of people. Men in evening dress, women in summer costumes of dainty fabrics, school girls in white, all eager to witness the bestowal of honors on their friends and schoolmates, were united together in one dense throng, presenting a most animated scene. The most charming feature, however, was that of the graduating class itself. The young men clad in conventional black, were manly, self-reliant fellows, and in the fire and sparkle of their eyes might be seen the light of the present moment and lofty ambition and sincere purpose for the future. The young women, in their rich white costumes, and with all their loveliness of manner, and manifest grace and purity of character, and their charm of budding womanhood, caught all hearts. For each of the twenty-four members of the class there were smiles of congratulation and words of applause. A bright heaven over their lives, and success commensurate with their present brilliant prospects !—was the heart's wish of everyone.

A floral shower rained all the evening. Others than the sky was of the blend. When the close of the exercises was reached the stage was a veritable bower; bouquets and baskets of cut flowers covered everything. Besides these tokens there were in the side rooms more substantial evidences of esteem, in numerous gifts to each graduate from his friends. Of nothing, however, amid all these pleasant honors, were the scholars more proud than the rolls of parchment proclaiming their graduation. The twenty-four to whom these cherished diplomas were presented were:

Alice J. Carroll, Hannah L. Larkin,
Margaret R. Cory, Anna B. Murphy,
Martha A. Covert, Louis G. Newman,
Fred A. Dunham, Mary E. Norcross,
Lucy V. Dunham, Mary S. Patten,
Frank H. Flannery, Augusta L. Saltzman,
Arthur F. Freeman, Frederick D. Smith,
Edith L. Gilbert, Mary F. Thompson,
Rubert G. Grant, Alfred G. Thompson,
Harriette R. Hallowar, Lucy M. Titsworth,
Amy S. Hyer, Ariadena J. VanCourt,
Alfred G. Kilmer, Howard L. Wells.

Next in value to the diplomas were held the prizes of the year, which were awarded as follows:

For Physics, offered by Edward L. Pinch, Prose Works of Oliver Wendell Holmes, in four volumes—Clyde B. Burnet for honorable mention, H. Lizzie Allis, M. Augusta Morris.

For Languages, offered by Ernest R. Ackermann, Greek, Homer's Iliad and Odyssey; Sygoud's Greek Poets—Alfred G. Kilmer, honorable mention, Grace H. Petrie. Latin, Virgil, Ward's English Poets—Hannah L. Larkin, Honorable mention in Virgil, Grace H. Petrie, Honorable mention in Latin, Mary F. Thompson.

For Penmanship, offered by Jacob Kirkner, for excellence, Bryant's Library of Poetry and Song—Hattie L. King for greatest improvement, Walter E. Fowle, Carol Sanborn.

For Mathematics, offered by Mrs. C. H. Stillman, first prize, $15 in gold—Margaret Mc-Cory, second prize, $10 in gold—Alfred G. Kilmer.

For English Composition, offered by George H. Babcock, Hudson's Handy-Volume Shakespeare—Grace Gilbert. Honorable mention, Edith L. Gilbert.

For United States History, offered by Dr. H. K. Carroll, Knight's History of the England, eight volumes—Walter R. Rittenhouse. Honorable mention, Valentine Clarke, Edgar I. Scovell, W. Francis Hyde, Clarence M. Smith, Jeanne H. Derby.

The essays of the graduates were all delivered within and of unusually excellent merit. That of Lucy M. Titsworth, "Two Views from Washington Rock", drew a contrast between the condition of the country as it was and as it is to-day. A fine expanse of country seen from that famous height back of Dunellen as it was in 1777 and as it is to-day. A fine picture was drawn of the landscape spread out at the feet of an observer standing on that commanding eminence. One saw, through the glass of a century ago, little villages where now are the cities, the farm-plains of Mooresouth, the heights of the Navesink, the Raritan river, Amboy bay New York harbor, and other landmarks which never change. All of these things were viewed by Washington as from that lookout he scanned the movements of the British. Through the glass of to-day one saw that many chances had come to the plain. Peace had succeeded war; prosperity abounded. Two hundred and seven thirty trains ran every hand. Railway trains sped across the fields. The towers of the East River bridge, the Statue of Liberty, might be seen on the horizon. Signs of a higher civilization and progress abounded. The change from 1777 was a great one. Yet permanence the changes of the century to come would be far greater.

In "Apple Blossoms", by Martha A. Covert, one had a charming glimpse of springtime. A bride's world was that seen by the blossoms on the trees, and a sweet song was that they sung, soothing weary mortals, and spreading sunshine in all hearts. Having blessed the earth with their music, they left the grand old apple trees on the wings of the wind, and were borne aloft, a ceaseless mass of white flakes, till they found a resting in the heavens. Their life here had not been idly spent, for each blossom had left behind one fruity, ripe, round apple.

In "Ballooning", Alfred G. Kilmer, a semi-humorous, semi-serious and highly interesting description of "The Yankee", paying tribute to his sterling worth while he was alive and to his memory after he was dead, as honest, hard worker, true, enterprising, plucky. He pyramided the inventor's history, a noble example of citizenship and profession.

In "The Children's Crusade", by Hannah L. Larkin, the author had a delightful theme, and she made the most of it. Her essay was a charming tribute to the young people to the memory of the children's crusade of 1212, when 50,000 children from the Mohammedan sections. The subject was a fine one, and was ably treated.

Only Prof. Kirkner knows the faithful toil he has put in by treasure by Spencer R. Cory the unexpected name of "Mother Goose" was the one brought, with which quiet modest fellow was greatly relished, to the front. The economy of the Spratt family, who, eating fat and lean respectively, licked clean the platter, was held up for a golden example. The matter of the cooking of tarts by the queen of hearts, their theft by the knave, their subsequent recovery by the king, was but a gold rendering of present-day experiences. When we have made our tarts—add the fair ambrosia—we are sure to have to go after them. Retribution, however, for the knave, and reward for the worker, were sure to come, for the king, catching the thief, "found the knave full sour", and while the knave "vowed he'd steal no more" the king and the queen shared together the recovered tarts.

The essay, "Congress of Nations" to which Fred A. Daboll directed attention was the wide semicircular plain lying between Palestine and the Euphrates. Here the cradle of the greatest nations of antiquity had lived and died and now lay buried. Their history, reconstructed from the ancient lips of sages, was a book of most absorbing one, and its treatment by the young orator was very interesting.

Among the "Historic Houses in America" told of by Marian B. Newton was such historic literary landmarks as Hawthorne's "House of Seven Gables" in Salem, where some of the old witches were tried in witchcraft days; the "Old Manse" at Concord, and the home of the hero Paul Revere, at Boston; but the Carlyle house at Alexandria, Va., was the one to which particular attention was drawn. This was in olden times a home of much social gaiety. Here Washington and Lafayette and other famous patriots were wont to meet their friends, with the Carlyles as host and hostess. Miss Sallie Fairfax, one of the belles of the old Virginia First Families day, made her debut, at which the bright young girl and the stately officer Washington danced together in the graceful minuet. The picture of the scene drawn by the essayist was a very pleasant and realistic one. To-day—she said—the house was a dismantled old ruin, with broken windows and unhinged doors. She thought Americans ought still to cherish these historic places for the memories of the men who made this the happiest country under the sun.

"The Study of Latin"—said Edith L. Gilbert, in her essay on that subject—was one continuous battle of war, war, war, and in her bold attack on the study she made sarcastic fun, which highly amused her hearers, of Cæsar's story of his wars, of Horace's odes, and of that noble Roman's admiration for himself. "The High School Record", by the same young lady, was a review of the notable happenings of the past ten years in connection with the school's history. The High School had just cause to plume itself on its graduates. Its standard was high and its light. It thought pretty well of itself, and it had good reason to. Its graduates were doing nobly in the world, and the school was fulfilling a national importance. Indeed, it had even ventured to tell the United States to adopt the golden-rod as a national flower. The motion was greeted by the honors that had been showered upon it by its sons and daughters, for the personal gifts that had been made to it, and for its scholarly attainments of all connected with it.

Washington, who made the country, and Lincoln, who preserved it, were cited as foundations for the study of history, including examples of "Public Benefactors". But one of the greatest of our philanthropists—he said—was the country's educational system, which was founded on the principles of those who came over on the Mayflower, "that knowledge and wisdom might not to be buried in the graves of our forefathers". As the exponents of that educational system, the local Board of Education had the hearty and sincere thanks of the graduating class for which he spoke. The young students would appreciate in after years even more than now the fact that the best teachers had been provided for them. To those teachers also the graduates were deeply grateful, and especially to the principal, whose many kindnesses they would ever cherish in kindliest recollection. Addressing his fellow-graduates he mentioned the relationship of their aims, plans, hopes and ambitions. He drew happy pictures of the closing year, and dwelt pleasantly on those little instances of School Girl and Boy life, remembering the class paper, written and circulated every two weeks, the poet who immortalized every noteworthy action of the class members, and the artist whose pencil had ever been ready to make famous the doings and caricature the misdoings of his fellows. Memories would ever cherish these things fondly—yet the last word of the present relations to the school-board made the pleasantest to be spoken. And so with a tinge of regret, and with inexpressible buoyant hope, he said that word—farewell.

After the presentation of awards, by Dr. Carroll, and the presentation of diplomas, by Jacob Kirkner, President of the Board of Educators, the address to the graduates was delivered, by Dr. H. K. Carroll. His address was brief, and brimful of sound advice. To the parents he said: "When you gave these graduates into the charge of our schools you were little children; we have developed with much care and patience their mental growth; and now we give them back to you, ready-equipped for the battle of life's battle. And a noble young band they are."

Just previous to the playing of the last orchestral selection on the programme President Kirkner presented to the Training Class graduates their diplomas. These graduates were:

Flora B. Petrie. Louise B. Runyon.
Lenra D. Wood.

At the conclusion of the evening's exercises, which were brought to a close by the shouting of the class cheer by the young men on the stage, the usual reception was held in the High School building, was given. The event was a very pretty social one. Dancing was prohibited because it was deemed a bad thing for the health of the girls, but the floor was the cynosure of all eyes. Refreshments were served.

Married and Sailed for Rome.

The marriage took place yesterday at 9:15 o'clock, of Miss Hulda Hordberg and Albert E. Saander, and at noon the day they sailed by the steamer Teutonic for Europe.

The bride is a native of Sweden and her wedding trip is to be to her former home in Stockholm. For the past five years she has been an inmate of the family of Charles W. McCutchen, of Washington Park. The groom is a native of Sweden by birth. He is a member of the firm of Tubin, Saander & Co., plumbers, of this city.

The ceremony took place at the home of the groom's father in Dunellen. The Rev. Mr. Martine officiated. After the wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Saander left for the steamer. They will be gone about two months. Among the guests present from this city were, Gen. Sandford Saander and family, Mrs. Hordberg, Miss Ada Addis, the manager of the bride's house, and Mrs. Addis.

NORTH PLAINFIELD GRADUATES

INTERESTING COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES BY BOROUGH STUDENTS.

Trenton Notes; Pramatic Diplomas to Nine Boys—Scholarship and Composition Prizes—Awarding the Greater School of Life Per Se to Rote—"Forward!" Their Watchword, and Constant Progress Their Purpose.

[FROM THE PRESS OF JUNE 30.]

RAGGED ROBERTson in the pursuit of knowledge, eight young women and six young men of a class of fourteen, attracted the attention in the borough last evening. They were the graduates of the North Plainfield public school for 1891.

The school had closed another of its successful years of growth and prosperity. In the morning, by exercises in the school building. These succeeded by a picnic in the grove at Green Brook, and in the evening by the graduation exercises, which were held in Music Hall, Dunellen.

The stage settings were the same as in former years. Miss C. E. Randolph was the accompanist on the piano. Principal C. E. Rote presided, and beside him on the platform were James Mellee and E. L. Bonney, of the School Trustees, together with the graduates, numbering fourteen, as follows:

Grace L. Bonny, Harry L. McGee,
Raymond V. Carpenter, Frank Haynsole,
Mary V. Hazelton, Margaret Swain,
Elizabeth C. Hall, Edgar Fenton Sheppard,
Alice L. Jones, Nellie Lorine Wheeler,
Edith C. Miles, Edward H. Warting,
Margaret M. Miles, Ralph D. Whiting.

The exercises were begun with music, "Soldier's Farewell", by the school, followed by a declamation, "Opinions Stronger Than Armies", by Ralph D. Whiting. Miss Nellie Lorine Wheeler recited "King Rodwald's Altars", admirably, and Margaret R. Miles read an essay on "Modern Martyrs", in which she showed that "Martyrs believe that martyrs belong to the past; but the present has its martyrs too, just as many as the past, though the causes for which they suffer may be less noble". Fashion, evil habits, and similar things she considered to be constantly adding to the list of modern martyrs.

Following this splendidly rendered essay was a declamation by Frank Raynolds, entitled "Kearney at Seven Pines", the valorous deeds, and death of Gen. Edward H. Warting declaimed on "What is a Minority ?", and Margaret Swain recited "Driving Home the Cows".

"Corn", was the topic of Miss Alice E. Loomis's recitation, and, like the others, she was accorded hearty applause for its admirable rendition.

Especially commendable was the manner in which Edgar F. Sheppard delivered his declamation, "The Inchcape Rock". His voice was clear and distinct, and he could be distinctly heard in all parts of the building.

"Oh, Rail Us, Ye Free!" was sung by the school, and Raymond V. Carpenter read the concluding essay for the evening on "The Pocket-book"—a well-written argument. The pocket-book—he said—is a necessity in this country, where the accumulation of money is the chief aim of so many persons, it is but natural that money should be an important factor in the hands of the city, the county, and the State legislatures; its darker side of life has been its going home empty to scenes where figure the inhuman husband, the sad-eyed wife, and the ragged children. For the sake of the pocket-book—says the writer of the essay—men have not only sacrificed time, strength and talent, which might have been the means of accomplishing great deeds, but have ruined their characters by cheating and robbery.

Two recitations followed: one by Elizabeth C. Hall, entitled "The Maid's Way", which was most acceptably rendered and brought forth loud applause; and the other by Grace L. Bonny, "Aunt Betsy's Trip to Geography". The latter was comical in the extreme, and kept the audience convulsed with laughter.

The remainder of the programme was as follows: music, "The Palms", by the school, with cornet accompaniment by Ralph D. Whiting; a recitation, "The Tapestry Weavers", by Edith C. Miles; a declamation by Harry L. McGee, entitled "A Fragment from a Battle", and a recitation by Edna V. Hazeltine "A Legend". All received their meed of encouragement by applause and flowers.

School Trustee James McGee in an extemporaneous speech stated that Dr. H. K. Carroll, the chairman of the Board, was usually present to distribute the parchments, or diplomas, to the graduates, but, much to the fact had "they were little weak handed in Plainfield", Dr. Carroll had been "loaned" to make an address at the High School Commencement at Music Hall. He considered that the clerk of the weather had failed in contract by not sending a cool evening. "But"—he said—"if we have not got the cool evening we have got the cool speakers to the school."

Mr. McGee alluded particularly to No. 9 on the programme, the essay on "The Pocket-book". The purse—he held—was not a receptacle to hoard away money in, but its contents should be ready for school interests; these interests are maintained only by the liberality of the tax-payers. He compared the school interests, in a certain degree, with an outstretched hand. The school system, however gathered around to wish their relatives and friends god-speed on their journey. The bright and the sad—the graduates and the parents launched upon the sea of future future will depend on the lessons taught them here; they are to govern and direct the affairs of the town. Let them remember how to take them best and cherish them.

In conclusion he said: Graduates, the lesson taught you in the school days now ended is "Forward!" Forward, not backward. They who serve God and do right from angels to attend them. Keep your motto —"The word 'quit' is 'Forward' along the line." Keep your motto—"Forward!"

The graduates then formed a semi-circle on the stage, and as their names were called they stepped forward and received their diplomas, amid the applause of the audience.

The medal for the graduating class was

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure.
A cream of tartar baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength.—Latest U. S. Government Food Report.

OBITUARY.

Jennie E. Clarkson.

The funeral took place on Monday at her late home, 331 Fifth avenue, New York, of Mrs. Nicholas Geoffroy, formerly Miss Jennie Clarkson of this city. She was the only child of Mr. and Mrs William E. Clarkson, for years among the best known and esteemed people of Plainfield. Mrs. Geoffroy died Saturday morning at six o'clock after almost four months of illness and suffering. Her death is a terrible blow to her parents, who have nothing to live for now; and there are hosts of dear friends of the dead young wife in this and other places who will feel the shock of her loss only a degree less severely. There was a large attendance of sorrowing people at the funeral on Monday. The interment, which was private, was made in this city Monday afternoon.

MR. KYTE IN A QUANDARY.

He Does 'nt Know Whether to Vote the Wind or Abuse for a Lot of Misapprehended Remarks.

Last Monday the Hon. Geo. Kyte, of Fanwood, ordered several loads of fine crushed stone deposited on the south side sidewalk of North avenue, in his town. The stone was delivered late in the day, but Tuesday morning when the laborers appeared on the ground ready to spread it along the walk it had in some unaccountable manner, disappeared, and was found on the south side.

It is rumored that a certain resident of Fanwood told Abner P. Downer he could use the stone on his walk, providing he would get it after his return from New York in the evening, and provided also that he (Downer) would distribute half of it on the walk in front of the residence of the gentleman who made the proposition. Both of these gentlemen live upon the north side of the avenue, where the missing stone was found. They claim, however, that owing to the storm and wind which prevailed Monday night, and the stone being so fine, it must have been blown on the bosom. Mr. Kyte is in a quandary.

HYMENEAL.

Scribner—Vail.

The wedding of Miss Helen Elma Vail, daughter of Mahlon Vail of Park avenue, to Charles Walter Scribner, Professor of Mechanical Engineering at the Iowa State Agricultural College, Ames, Iowa, took place in Grace Protestant Episcopal church Tuesday night. It was a pretty event. The services, with a choral one, the full surpliced choir of the church rendering the music. The Rev. E. M. Hodgson performed the ceremony, and the bride was given away by her father.

The costume of the bride was of white silk, with Medici collar, tulle veil, and bridal train. Among the bridesmaids were Miss Agnes Vail, sister of the bride, and Miss Mary Lee Myers, both of whom wore handsome costumes of lavender silk, trimmed with chiffon. The bride had as maids of honor carried bouquets of roses and sweet pea blossoms.

Henry R. Scribner, Professor of Greek at the Western University of Pennsylvania, Allaghany, was best man. The ushers were Dr. Ellis W. Hodges, Joseph Lawrence Myers, and Frederick Myers, of Plainfield, Arthur H. Scribner of New York, George Henderson of Philadelphia, and George Herbert Ide of Buffalo, New York.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Hyde—Emery.

At the home of the bride's parents in Titusville, Pa., Tuesday, took place the wedding of Miss Verona Emery, daughter of Mrs. Sarah Emery, to Louis E. Hyde, son of Charles Hyde, the East Front street millionaire banker. The ceremony was att-nded by the immediate relatives of the groom from this city

SOON COMES THE CRESCENTS' RUB.

Westfield Has Beaten Somerville, and Is Thirsting for Plainfield's Gore.

Westfield's fine ball team proves with pride to the record of ten straight victories, and, having defeated Somerville, is sure it will be an easy matter to give the Plainfield Crescents an humiliating drubbing.

Of the hundred or more Plainfielders who went to Westfield and saw the West boys defeat there on Saturday, in which that the umpire was the most important man on the Westfield team. His calling of strikes was greatly criticised. It was a great game anyway, whether the umpire robbed the West Ends or not. It would have made green with envy some of the fellows who used to play the ball at the recent game where Harkins pitched, to see the Westfield players bang the ball all around the lot. In one inning the Westfields made five tallies and got two two-baggers, and scored six runs. The Somervilles hit the ball too, but the Westfielders made the ball count where the flies that promised big results. With the umpire's assistance Hammill, the West field pitcher, struck out nine men, three of them in succession. Harkins struck out only two. Somerville's hits and runs were scattered. The game was practically errorless. A feature of the nonstar batting of the West boys was Hammill throwing the ball at the umpire's head and missing it. The teams played as follows:

SOMERVILLE.		WESTFIELD.
Harkins	pitcher	Hammill
Hardy	catcher	Merrill
Bessler	first base	Dixon
Farrell	second base	McAbee
Mountford	third base	Quimby
Risser	third base	Mellen
Davenport	right field	McLaughlin
Lyons	center field	Hammill
Lindy	left field	Kelson

SCORE BY INNINGS.

Westfield	0	5	0	1	2	0	0	1	x—9
Somerville	1	0	0	2	0	1	2	0	1—7

DEATHS.

NICHOLS—Entered into rest, June 30, 1891, Louise, wife of James W. Nichols, and daughter of the late Wm. H. Woodward.

A. M. RUNYON & SON,
UNDERTAKERS, EMBALMERS,
28 PARK AVENUE.
Telephone Call 21.
Residence, 49 MADISON AVENUE.
Telephone Call 37.

WANTS AND INFORMATION.

"WHO ARE YOU WRITING TO, DEAR?"

"I am answering Mrs. Pinkham's letter, that reached us at Cairo. She has told me just what to do, and I am feeling much better; besides, she has given me a list of places where her preparations are sold. I found them here in Alexandria, and have laid in a stock. My mind is easy now, so any time you wish to start, I'm ready!"

American ladies travelling abroad find the Compound invaluable. It sustains the energies in the most trying climate, and is a faithful friend whenever needed. Mrs. Pinkham's foreign correspondence is very large, and increases rapidly.

Send stamp for "Guide to Health," a beautiful illustrated book.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Is the only Positive Cure and Establishment Remedy for the Diseases and Weaknesses of Women.

It cures the worst forms of Female Complaints, that Bearing-down Feeling, Weak Back, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation, Ulceration, Irregular, Painful and Suppressed Menses, Leucorrhœa, Dizziness or Wrong, and is Invaluable to the Change of Life. It dissolves and expels Tumors from the Uterus in an early stage of development. Kidney Complaints of either sex, Nervous Prostration, Indigestion, and strengthens and invigorates the Stomach. Cures Headache, Sleeplessness, Depression, Dizziness, and Indigestion. Every time it will cure all Kidney Complaints of either sex. The Compound is the one true remedy.

Sold by druggists, or sent by mail, in form of Pills or Lozenges, on receipt of $1.00. LYDIA E. PINKHAM MED. CO., LYNN, MASS.

POETICALLY PUT!

Dr. Watts, once your best poets, said,

"Man wants but little here below,
Nor wants that little long".

If the Doctor had lived in our time and had known anything about the Clothing business, he would probably written instead,

"Man must have trousers here below
And wants them sewed up strong".

And to these words he might have added—

"He likes to have them fit him, so They'll be neither short nor long".

And then, if he had accidentally become acquainted with us and our stock of trousers, he would have turned out more poetry to the tune of something like this—

"The young, the old, and the gay gallants,
Are all well pleased with McGregor's Pants".

But, because of this poetry, you'll not to suppose the pants are poetry, for they are made of goods which are only like poetry, inasmuch that they are lasting.

Come and see us and we will endeavor to please you; and if we can't, no one can.

McGregor & Co., 850 and 852 Broad St NEWARK, N. J.

Misses A. L. & M. D. GORSLINE,
Fancy Goods, Notions, Art Needle Work, Painted Novelties, &c.,
14 WEST FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD, N. J.
STAMPING AND DESIGNING A SPECIALTY.
ARTISTIC CUTTING AND EMBROIDERY.

Lumber & Coal
LOOMIS & RICE
B'dway. 49 TELEPHONE 75 A

BERNHARD MEYER,
Successor to A. D. Thompson,
Riverside Stock Farm,
AT FINDERNE STATION,
On Central Railroad of New Jersey, will always have for sale a large assortment of Horses of all Kinds and for all Purposes. Also Mules and Fresh Cattle.
Everything warranted as represented or money refunded.

WM. C. SMITH, Superintendent.
BRANCH STABLES, No. 238 Palisade Ave., and Nos. 11 and 13 Ogden Ave., JERSEY CITY.
Have now on hand some fine Road Horses and Trotters, and closely Matched Teams

New Plainfield Has a Nine Worthy as Its Name.

Joseph Moore, foreman of Alert Hose Company, with J. E. Terrill and Charles Fisk, keep the commissary, who went to Stewart Woods to bring to Plainfield the brand-new $500 hose wagon of which Tom Pazzo has sold. They were accompanied by M. A. Higgins and J. Ervin Waters. The young gentlemen had a good time after nine, and the clanging of his bell awakened early sleepers. Such a fine wagon is a credit to the hand-colored boy dressed even Washington Street from its slumbers, and the entire department, and all of that place turned out, thin

WHEN THE TEA-KETTLE HUMS.

Hey! for the days of the silver and sedge,
Gold in the tree tops and flame in the hedge,
Each thistle and milkweed mountains a bear-cub
Or they write planets with atoms-soft ringlet
They flit and they flutter, new hues, and new
They catch in the gold-threaded locks of the
Or, weight of the nephew they waver and wan-
As light as the vapor that floats in the morn.

Hey! for the days when the odor of apples
Blows up and down the great orchard's ex-
Where the tester in the chimney the Autumn
Wind's warnings
Of rain-mottled leaderes and fog-hidden
Where the cold, clinging moisture the window
Is blurring,
The picture inside is by contrast more fair;
The mackerels hums and the kettle is purring,
Coiled close on the hearth in the red rocking chair.

Hey! for the days of the wintry-edge eclipse,
And sharpshins as sudden as June in her ripen-
Bronze in the tree-tops and gray to the
And the nights that are wind-lulled and starry and tender.
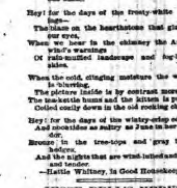
—Hattie Whitney, in Good Housekeeping.

JESSE BELL'S NERVE.

A Hard Fight and Young Bear Captured by a Doctor.



IT IS true as a friend in the newspapers that Jesse Bell is dead," said Dr. Loriner, of Fort Bidwell, No. 2 Mining Company, Northern Territory. "The best man that ever prospected a hillside and hunted lions in the mountains of Wyoming or any other wilds is dead. In the time I ever saw Jesse Bell he had just completed a journey of one hundred and twenty miles with his upper jaw and part of his nose and cheek gone, half of his scalp cut off, one foot crushed and mangled, his right arm badly lacerated and three ribs broken. The journey had taken two days and a half and two nights and a half. It began at the mouth of Horse creek, on the Green river, and ended at Fort Bridger. I was at the fort when Jesse was brought in by his partner, Arkansas Bill, and another man, a stranger. I never saw such a light as he was. No explanations were asked for or given until Jesse was placed safely in the hospital. Then the commandant said to Arkansas Bill:

"'Indians?'

"'No,' replied Bill; 'bears.'

"And then Bill told the story of one of the most terrific bear fights that any man in that region of big and fierce bears and intensely bear hunters had ever heard of. Jesse and Bill had been prospecting a hundred miles or more in the headwaters of Snake, Wind and Green rivers for some time. They found no ore to speak of and left the hunting and trapping were none of the best. They worked their way down through Hoback's Gap, Gap creek, the headwaters of Horse creek, which they followed to its mouth. There they struck grazing land of otters, built another fur animals, put up a cabin, and settled down for a few weeks' trapping. One day they set a bear trap and decided and started out to bag one or two of the shy little deer. The antelope had been turned a high bluff, and they followed the game for eight miles without being able to get a shot. The antelope finally passed around the edge of the bluff, and the two hunters began crawling along the bluff, out of sight of the antelope, with the hope of getting within range. Jesse Bell was in the lead, and as he turned a sharp corner of rock he came face to face with the big she silver-tip bear, a yearling cub and two spring cubs. They were not ten feet away, and they saw Jesse as soon as he saw them. They were in a little hollow, and the position and place there was in made it a dangerous spot either for an attack on the bears or the defense against them. Arkansas Bill was close to Jesse's side before the latter could tell Bin sense was ahead. He took in the situation at once and jumped back. Before Jesse could follow him the old bear, her fur bristling, was at the cub for him. Jesse fired and broke the bear's shoulder. Then he jumped aside, but the bear was back on him, and she caught him in the side. Both went down in a heap. The bear falling on top, at Arkansas saw that the bear closed her great jaws on Jesse's side. Her upper teeth were buried in the flesh, cracking three of the fiber gigantic stems. Fortunately her under teeth struck a heavy leather bullet pouch that Jesse carried close over his left hip and held a stump. That prevented the enormous jaws from closing together in Jesse's side, and tearing a large portion of it away. All that Jesse could do was to give the bear a tremendous kick in the stomach. At the same time Arkansas Bill fired at the bear. The ball entered back of her shoulder.

SHE MADE A GRAB FOR JESSE'S HEAD.

"The bear evidently thought the pain from the bullet was the result of Jesse's kick, for she released and caught his foot just below the ankle and crushed it with one savage bite. Not satisfied with that she took a second shot at the foot and leg and tore away the flesh at every bite, while Jesse was struggling to get his revolver out of his belt. All this time Arkansas Bill was loading his rifle, breech-loaders not yet having come to use out in that country. Jesse's struggles to turn and get his revolver around to the right wheel about again. She made a grab for Jesse's head. Bill had his gun loaded by this time, and sent a heavy bullet to the tough old bear. This top shot was not fatal, but Jesse raised partially on his feet and got his revolver in his [illegible] Like your countrymen warned and struck Jesse a blow with his gun on the head. It fell back on the ground, and Jesse, with a bullet in the brain, [illegible] dead. Arkansas Bill would have been left alone to fight the bear, but Jesse now lay so that Bill could not fire without endangering his friend. Bill skinned the bear, then moved his head. Jesse did not, but the bear's head moved in the same direction as it quickly, as Jesse lay half upon upward, and closed down on his head close to the upper jaw. In describing this situation afterward, said that he could look right down the bear's throat. But Arkansas Bill was equal to the occasion, and placing the muzzle of his rifle at the bear's ear fired. The bear sprang back. She did not take the trouble, though, to loosen her hold on Jesse's head and body, but tore away the upper jaw, part of the nose, one cheek, and a piece of the scalp nine inches long and two wide. The bear fell over against Arkansas Bill dead. Her great body carried him down with her and pinned him fast by both legs. He extricated himself with difficulty and limped to the aid of his friend, whom he found lying there in a ghastly spectacle. His jaw was hanging by a strip of flesh to his cheek. Bill tied it with his boots. While he was doing Jesse's torn scalp the yearling bear, which, with the two cubs, had been silent spectator of the fight, attempted to take it up where the old bear had been forced to leave it off. Bill made a savage rush upon the two hunters. Arkansas Bill had a lively tussle with the young grizzly and was finally compelled to kill it with his six-shooter, every chamber being emptied before the bear gave up.

A LEVELE TUSSLE WITH THE TOUGH OLD BEAR.

"Jesse waited without a groan or a word until Bill had finished the young bear and then fainted from the shock of his wounds. Having fixed them up the best he could with the means at hand, Bill took Jesse in his arms and started for camp. It was late in the afternoon, and it was important that camp should be reached before dark, for the black wolves were numerous in the hills, and both Jesse and Bill knew that they would follow their trail if darkness overtook them. Some idea of Arkansas Bill's pluck and endurance may be known that Jesse Bell was a man six feet four in his stocking feet, and made up, counting his dead bear and hunted lions in the mountains of Wyoming or any other wilds is dead. In the time I ever saw Jesse Bell he had just completed a journey of one hundred and twenty miles with his upper jaw and part of his nose and cheek gone, half of his scalp cut off, one foot crushed and mangled, his right arm badly lacerated and three ribs broken. The journey had taken two days and a half and two nights and a half. It began at the mouth of Horse creek, on the Green river, and ended at Fort Bridger. I was at the fort when Jesse was brought in by his partner, Arkansas Bill, and another man, a stranger. I never saw such a light as he was. No explanations were asked for or given until Jesse was placed safely in the hospital. Then the commandant said to Arkansas Bill:

"'Indians?'

"'No,' replied Bill; 'bears.'

"And then Bill told the story of one of the most terrific bear fights that any man in that region of big and fierce bears and intensely bear hunters had ever heard of. Jesse and Bill had been prospecting a hundred miles or more in the headwaters of Snake, Wind and Green rivers for some time. They found no ore to speak of and left the hunting and trapping were none of the best. They worked their way down through Hoback's Gap, Gap creek, the headwaters of Horse creek, which they followed to its mouth. There they struck grazing land of otters, built another fur animals, put up a cabin, and settled down for a few weeks' trapping. One day they set a bear trap and decided and started out to bag one or two of the shy little deer. The antelope had been turned a high bluff, and they followed the game for eight miles without being able to get a shot. The antelope finally passed around the edge of the bluff, and the two hunters began crawling along the bluff, out of sight of the antelope, with the hope of getting within range. Jesse Bell was in the lead, and as he turned a sharp corner of rock he came face to face with the big she silver-tip bear, a yearling cub and two spring cubs. They were not ten feet away, and they saw Jesse as soon as he saw them. They were in a little hollow, and the position and place there was in made it a dangerous spot either for an attack on the bears or the defense against them. Arkansas Bill was close to Jesse's side before the latter could tell Bin sense was ahead. He took in the situation at once and jumped back. Before Jesse could follow him the old bear, her fur bristling, was at the cub for him. Jesse fired and broke the bear's shoulder. Then he jumped aside, but the bear was back on him, and she caught him in the side. Both went down in a heap. The bear falling on top, at Arkansas saw that the bear closed her great jaws on Jesse's side. Her upper teeth were buried in the flesh, cracking three of the fiber gigantic stems. Fortunately her under teeth struck a heavy leather bullet pouch that Jesse carried close over his left hip and held a stump. That prevented the enormous jaws from closing together in Jesse's side, and tearing a large portion of it away. All that Jesse could do was to give the bear a tremendous kick in the stomach. At the same time Arkansas Bill fired at the bear. The ball entered back of her shoulder.

SHE MADE A GRAB FOR JESSE'S HEAD.

"The bear evidently thought the pain from the bullet was the result of Jesse's kick, for she released and caught his foot just below the ankle and crushed it with one savage bite. Not satisfied with that she took a second shot at the foot and leg and tore away the flesh at every bite, while Jesse was struggling to get his revolver out of his belt. All this time Arkansas Bill was loading his rifle, breech-loaders not yet having come to use out in that country. Jesse's struggles to turn and get his revolver around to the right wheel about again. She made a grab for Jesse's head. Bill had his gun loaded by this time, and sent a heavy bullet to the tough old bear. This top shot was not fatal, but Jesse raised partially on his feet and got his revolver in his

A LEVELE TUSSLE WITH THE TOUGH OLD BEAR.

A BATTLE.

A new a battle yesterday
And many lives were lost
The world will hear from them
And hear their latest cost!

Against the white the smoke was made
Which hid the foe from view
Then in the smoke by aim and chance
The bullets quickly flew.

The men shot down like sheaths of light
And pierced their mates, and made
Their blood to flow in crimson streams
And dying bite of shade.

It was an easter meal, I guess,
For those who fought and fled
No bugle called, no hunter winded,
I heard no sound of dread.

Yet in an hour the day was done
The sky o'erspread in sorrow,
Wails, moans and sighs that smelled none
The wind a dirge had borne.

Till at my very feet it lay,
All victory, with its despair,
It was a flag of truce, to say
The battle fought and won.
—Richard E. Burton, in St. Nicholas

STREET CARS IN EUROPE.

Paris Are Generally Lower Than in the United States.

"I have just had a long trip through Europe looking at their street cars, or 'tram cars,' as they are called there," said a correspondent of the New York Telegram.

"In Dublin I found the street railways under one management, called the United Dublin Tramway Company. The fare is five cents, or twenty pfennigs, for meals and twenty on top, and by a law of the Kingdom all public conveyances are taken on the Sabbath day. When the seats are full no more passengers are taken on, and there is none of the standing and crowding we have in this country. The rails of the Dublin tramways are grooved and weigh nine-ty pounds to the yard. They are not laid on ties and sleepers, but in cement on a concrete foundation and are connected with coupling rods. The pavement, both inside and outside the track, is of granite blocks on a concrete foundation. Where the pavement leaves the blocks are filled with tar and cement, making the pavement totally impervious to water. The rails are flush with the pavement and are kept in perfect repair, so that one might drive over them with a buggy and not know that he was crossing a railway track. The fare is one penny, or two cents, for any distance inside of a mile. It is a horse system, and the speed is between eight and nine miles an hour. The horses are of a very high grade, as the Government offers a gratuity on every horse coming up to requirements that makes up the difference in the prices of a good and a poor animal. In consideration of this gratuity the Government reserves the right to take the horses owned by the tramway company for cavalry service in case of war.

"In Belfast and Glasgow the systems are similar, while Edinburgh and Birmingham have very good cable systems. In London there is the Highgate Hill cable road, and all the other roads are worked by horse power. In November last a new electric road was opened in London. This road is said to have a three or center-rail system, with the cars drawn by an engine which receives the power from the central rail, and electricity is generated from stations at the end of the road. On this line there are seventeen trains of three cars each, which leave the stopping-places at intervals of three minutes. The fare is five cents. On all the roads money, and is paid at a turnstile. The speed is about twelve to fifteen miles an hour.

"Paris has electric cars run by the storage system, and it seems to work very well. One feature of the Italian roads worthy of attention is that there are two fares—a first-class fare, where the passengers sit inside, and a second-class, where the passengers stand outside. The difference in fare is two cents."

WHAT WE POSSESS AND LACK.

An English Writer Hints at Americans and Their Peculiarities.

The nervous effects of the rapidity with which news of events of world-wide new world are accentuated by influences of climate. A certain delicacy of feature, grace of movement, sustained of pose, distinguish both the mental and the physical products of the people of the United States. In England, he belongs to nervous, highly-strung, keenly-susceptible organizations. American artists are gradually losing command of lights and shades; they dispose sketches upon the canvas with the cleverness of French masters. American poets call to be superficial, says a writer in the North American Review. Their thinking rarely think a thing out; they are suggestive rather than forcible; they play with their ideas like girls with their mice; they really grapple with problems and squeeze from them their life-blood. Their literature is crowded with which are networks of dogmatic mysticism, or compounds of Puritanism with transcendental sentiment.

American humor is rarely of a rollicking kind; it is dry, not rich; fine rather than deep; subtle, but broad. It depends upon quick perceptions of analogies or upon the exaggeration of facts rather than upon a lovingly quiet sensibility. Americans have produced no plays which deserve the name, and in power of dramatic invention they are deficient. Their voices, like their laughter, are seldom rich or mellow, as though they proceeded from hidden recesses of being. Their variety of the English language is modified so as to gain time. Their utterance is rapid; they drop their voices at the end of the sentence in their hurry to reach the next; their idioms are compressed; even their spelling is clipped.

Cold, self-possessed, precocious, alert, keen-witted, Americans, seem wanting in fervor, passion, repose and expansiveness. Their life exactly the reverse of that the gift is dangerous if it dissipates powers or squanders talents. Few writers devote themselves to letters as their sole vocation with the self-devotion by which alone the highest literary work is produced. Nowhere writing is not undertaken by persons who have other occupations. Even the editor of a forms an interlude in the literary life of writers who are also verifiers, lawyers, biographers and journalists.

The Word "Jew."

"We are Jews," said the rabbi, to a New Yorker, "and the word is right as call us Jews, but some of us do not like the word, because it has been used in reproof and as a term of contempt or derision. People often seem to be saying when they say of a man, 'he is a Jew.'

In English books, as well as in German books, the word is often used in a sense of reproach. In European cities the Jews were compelled to live by themselves in the meanest quarters, and this custom has come down to the age of sneezingly. We are called Jews because our ancient country was Judea, but we are not Jews in religion, and some of us would rather be called Hebrews than Jews. But we will yet make the word Jew shine in the United States."

Reached.

Pedagogue—What do you mean by calling your lesson "dead?"

Bobbie—Please, sir, I was only coding.

Pedagogue—That's too flaky; come here, I'll have to whale you—boy.

In the Retrospect.

Bridget—Is it the fellow she's tryin' to make think she's rich that's in the parlor?

Thomas—Naw, it's the feller she's tryin' to make think she's young.—Munsey's Weekly.

Watched Mixed in Her Views.

"You may sit in the stern of the boat and watch the others row," said Charley, "and the young man he took the oars and he row."

"If you please, sir," said the boy, "I'd rather watch the young lady."—Boston Transcript.

Up What Not Speaking.

The new waiter at a Harlem restaurant approached a table where two men were dining.

"What'll you have?"

"I've got no particular choice, myself," said one of the men, addressing his companion, "but I'll leave it to you."

"Then bring us a couple of dishes of hash," said the other man.

"Hash!" exclaimed the waiter, in a tone of disgust, as he turned away. "Up what not speaking."—Harper's Weekly.

JAPANESE LAMP SHADE.

It's Very Easy and Can Be Made at a Trifling Cost.

To make this lamp shade, which is both pretty and inexpensive, take one of the cheap Japanese fans which are to be had with a square at the top. Cut out two pieces of white paper the size of the fan and tack one on each side. In covering you may use up any pieces of silk and velvet. On the front piece of paper across the middle a bit of silk or satin, and fill the corners in with velvet or plush of some shade which will harmonize. Then with a pair of fine silk scissors cut a few purple pansies painted on it (see the illustration), and the petals of a darker heliotrope. Cover the back with plain Indian silk and finish the edge with some full laces or ruchings and make about eight inches high with a hole into which the handle of the fan. Gild the woodwork if you like to put between you and the lamp. If you can not use the brush you will find a bit of tissue paper will do a pretty substitute for the painting.

PORTABLE LAMP SHADE.

Right here let me add a hint to those who have access to electric light or gas water colors. You can make a host of lovely things, such as photographs, handkerchief or glove sachets, bags, sachet and toilet sets, by using those India silks which come in an all ready to use form and are to sweet as nature makes them. The designs are really artistic. You will assuredly find something suitable, wild roses, lilies, dogwood, morning glories—almost any blossom you can think of—and they are tinted on the backgrounds. From a bit of this fashion your work, whatever it may be, will be unique and perhaps it. Always be to cut your silk so as to leave the edges as even as possible. Then as the water colors loosen up flowers and leaves, making the shadows darker and the lights brighter by a bit of color you have rendered opaque with Chinese white. If there are lines or guides or a thing conventional in the design, outline with gold, and if a scrap of plain background shows, try to arrange it so you can get a variety of "gloves," "photographs," or whatever it is to be used for. From this you may fashion many a thing of beauty which few would believe was not really and truly" hand-painted. Please remember I do not mean that you are to paint all over the design. Simply touch up lights and shadows, always following the natural coloring as it is. One more hint. One can find at an upholsterer's many a lovely remnant of some silk. These are a variety of designs, and from a yard or less you can fashion two or three dainty trifles.—American Agriculturist.

LEMONS AND EGGS.

Valuable Skin-Bleach Remedies Within Everybody's Reach.

Simple things are often of much benefit, and lemons and common table salt are two such. Rub the face and hands with Lemon juice and water without sugar, will oftentimes relieve one of a severe headache in a short time, and a half pint of lemon juice three times a day in a little water is said to be good for rheumatism. Nothing is so acceptable to a feverish person as lemonade, and for a sore throat that refuses to be quieted, I have tried the following preparation with success: Take the white of an egg, beaten stiff; then add the juice of a lemon in which two or three lumps of sugar have been dissolved and keeping the mixture at hand, take a tablespoonful at a time until relieved. A very good way of preparing lemons when they are going to be put them on to cold water letting them boil until they are soft, then squeeze the juice from them, get a good deal more than in any other way. Adding sugar to the taste, or to every half pint of juice put one pound of loaf sugar and a little water, and boil down, use for lemon is to bind a thin slice upon a sore that is troublesome at night and repeat once or twice, it will soon relieve the soreness. Then if the hands are stained from medicine or any other cause, rub them with the lemon and they will be restored by the application of lemon juice and rough salt. Lemon juice in the mouth, and stains may be removed by rubbing dry starch in at once; repeating it.—Good Housekeeping.

CASE FOR LETTERS.

One That Is Easily Made and Extremely Serviceable.

Cover two pieces of cardboard in crescent shape as shown in pattern, the width may vary from point to point, say 10½ inches, and 2 inches deep at the widest part, when finished. The front piece can be covered with green velvet and lined with pink cambric, the back piece with pink cambric on both sides. Sew together at the rounding part. Ornament with gilt braid, and with gold-sized pink silk cord straight across to the other corner, three around to the middle, sew together, and then around the front edge. Finish the corners with a pink bow, and hang by pink ribbons. Pretty and inexpensive. This is easily made and is very convenient.—Orange Judd Farmer.

LETTER CASE.

OUTWITTING A FRAUD.

How a York, Who Was Falsely Accused, Lied Out of His Difficulty.

It was Queen Elizabeth, who said that a lie is the intellectual method of meeting a difficulty." Apropos of this is the story of a man who figured in a travesty of justice in Turkey. In that country there is a law that an accused man must prove his innocence or he is declared guilty.

One day, says a contemporary, a complaint was brought before the Lord, a missionary there, and asked if it was true that he had told a lie. This was a staggerer to the missionary, and he knew would have to know the case before he could decide, although on general principles he was inclined to doubt it.

"The case is this," replied the seeker after truth: "A Turk, a stranger to me, living in Russia, accused me of buying from him one thousand sheep and not giving any pay. He took no way of proving that I did not buy and receive the sheep and the case must certainly be decided against me. I came up for trial to-day and after the charge had been made I admitted that I had bought and received the sheep (I knew was a lie) and had at the same time paid for them in full. He couldn't prove that I had not, and so was dismissed."

The Turkish thought that it over a little, and then said:

"Your case is very unfortunate, but I am satisfied, this was certainly the time.—N. Y. Continent.

If One Can Believe Phil Tobin.

Annie—Pooh! There are as good fish in the sea as ever were caught.

Tom—I don't believe it, judging from the rate great big ones were caught last season.—Boston Herald.

Common Enough.

Mrs. Brown—Mrs. Jones is a dreadful gossip.

She—The Germans have a proverb that "the wicked sing no songs."

Mrs. Brown—Well, I suppose complaint consists in having to listen.—Munsey's Weekly.

ODD BITS HERE AND THERE.

"Old Cobble Rambler" was the supposition on a postal card which recently passed through the Boston post office.

A cross building at Decatur, Mich., is sickening, and the people of the town call the village sweet nicotine sweet there.

D. F. Strange, of Lynchburg, Va., has in his possession a curiously carved violin, said to have been the property of Thomas Jefferson.

Speaking of brief names, there is Bedmin, Tennessee; Bo, Illinois; Bedmin, Kansas; Bo, a river in Holland; and the Y and a village in Sweden named A.

On the top of a dead spruce tree at Bellefonte, Pa., a robin's nest, with eggs and salamanders built an exceptionally fine nest of its own. Two hundred feet below.

The slavery-foot tower erected at Kearney, N. J., in 1846 has been born down. A man named Bunkell built it, and on a certain day sounded it with his family expecting the Lord to snatch them into Heaven.

A Philadelphia cable-car turning a street curve jolted the "bang" off the forehead of a stylish lady and her on the newspaper of a gentleman who was reading of a scalping incident somewhere west.

A club composed of married men has been started in Hannibal, Mo., to assemble objects in business married men to spend their evenings at home. They meet very frequently, almost every evening, at a drug store and sit around talking about the pleasures which married men miss by spending much of their leisure outside of their own house holds.

THE UNITED KINGDOM.

It is proposed to build an open-air theater at the Crystal palace, London, with a seating capacity for five thousand people.

The consumption of tea in the United Kingdom during 1890 reached the unprecedently high figure of 4.65 pounds per head.

Nearly half of the kerosene consumed in Great Britain comes from the United States, three-eighths from Russia, and one-eighth from Scotland.

In England the old four-posted bedstead is the pride of the nation, but the new patent bedstead is fast becoming universal. The English beds are the largest beds in the world.

Throughout the whole of British India 106,838,337 males and 111,332,927 females, or 217,171,264 persons in all, are annually unable to vote for writs and are under no instructions of any kind, more than one-tenth of the males and about one-ninth of the females belonging to Bombay.

At a recent meeting of the Geological society, London, a nugget of the largest gold nugget yet found in western Australia, known as the "Little Hero," weighing 230 ounces troy, was exhibited. It was found at Shaw's Fall, 200 miles from Roebuene and 80 from Nullagine, at a depth of 8 feet from the surface, found by Mr. Harry Page Woodward, F. G. S.

The bank of England was established in 1694, and is older than any of the institutions of the class in any other of the great nations. It was not the first of the important financial houses, however. The bank of Venice was created in 1101, that of Genoa in 1407, that of Amsterdam in 1619 and that of Rotterdam in 1635. In 1609 the bank of France was established.

EXPERIMENTAL SCIENCE.

Two English chemists have concluded from experiments that phosphoric acid may be produced by ozonized water.

It is a minute the lowest sound your ear can catch has been made by 606 vibrations, while the highest tone reached you after making 9,236,000 vibrations.

A new process for turning coal without smoke has recently been discovered. It consists in sprinkling water containing a solution of saltpeter on the top of the coal, and the result there is no smoke and the glow is as intense as ever.

Experiment has proved that, if a delicate piece of lace be placed between an ear and a watch, and a drop of ammonia be let fall on the lace to bind a thin slice upon a sore that it true because at night and repeat once or twice, it will soon relieve the soreness. Then if the hands are stained from medicine or any other cause, rub them with the lemon and they will be restored by the application of lemon juice and rough salt. Lemon juice in the mouth, and stains may be removed by rubbing dry starch in at once; repeating it.—Good Housekeeping.

TRICKS OF TRADES.

Natural Explanation of an Unusual Way of Treating a Lady's Hand.

"Here, you get out of this! Don't let me catch you in this store again!" A little feminine shriek followed this rough ordination. It turned, when a New York Herald pencil man pressed and beheld a beautiful and fashionably dressed young lady in the clutches of a tailor made man. He had torn open a little bundle which he had just received by express and found that it contained her money into her hand, and with considerable roughness was hurrying her to the door. The head of the young woman was a picture. She looked like an angry queen. Her eyes were half aflame and half drowned in tears. The magnificent tooth showed through the reddest kind of lips, and her clear complexion was like marble touched with the fine scarlet of flowers.

I was tempted to interfere, but having heard tales of Englishmen and other strange things in these great bazaars, and knowing the man besides to be a gentleman, I refrained. Then the cause of drama was taking place in one of the most fashionable stores in the city—a whitehall ngt hall.

"Do I know that lady?" said the floor walker, with a laugh. "I should say I do! She is a very grand lady, indeed. My dear sir, she is one of the tricks of the trade. That bewitching lady in Paris silks is probably an imported bunnet is a salesgirl in the store of our enterprising neighbor on the next block. She gets more money than we, but the same downs here disguised as a customer, knows all the humbugs about us blind, and proceeded to prize a number of our goods in which our enterprising neighbor so-people is not modest selling. That is so as to give him a tip how to mark his goods. In short, she is a spy, and as we could not permitted to hang spies in this warfare of trade all we can do is to escort them to the ticket House and let them go. Now that this young lady has been discovered her occupation in this particular line of usefulness is gone, but our neighbor will have another rigged up in less than no time. Eternal vigilance is the price of mild goods. Then in

"But do all the big stores keep these spies, so you call them?" I asked.

"Well," said the ungallant floor walker, with a sly wink and smile, "they all of them do but ourselves."

A Chance for Thought.

Europe has eleven million soldiers, hundreds of millions of money, and the people are taxed hundreds of millions of dollars for armament. And yet no question of the day is of more interest in Europe during the last fifty years which is the condition of the poor. Most have settled in two minutes at a cost of three dollars.

Evidently.

Curnie—Brown had two shoots in the wind when I saw him yesterday after noon.

Banks—Then he evidently succeeded in his morning's work. He was trying to raise the wind when I saw him.—Mumsey's Weekly.

Railroads.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.
THE STANDARD RAIL-WAY OF AMERICA
Perfect Safeguards by the Interlocking System and Block Signals.

TRAINS FOR THE WEST.
On and after Oct. 26, 1890, trains leave Elmira [illegible] as follows:

8 30 A. M. Fast Line, with Pullman Vestibule Parlor and Sleeping cars for Pittsburg, Harrisburg, Columbus, Cleveland, and St. Louis. Dining car from Elmira to Pittsburg.
7 30 P. M. Western Express, with Pullman Vestibule Sleeping cars for Pittsburg, Chicago, Cleveland and Toledo.
8 45 P. M. Fast Express, with Pullman Vestibule Sleeping cars, daily for Pittsburg, Columbus, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Louisville, Chicago and St. Louis.
For Erie, Jamestown, Washington and the South—1 00 A. M. (through car to Erie), 7 30 A. M. (connects at Corning with 1 00 P. M. from Elmira), 1 00 P. M. (connects at Corning with 8 30 A. M. from Elmira), 5 00 P. M. (connects at Corning with 12 10 P. M. from Elmira), 8 00 P. M. (through car to Erie). Sundays—7 47 and 9 20 P. M.

ADAMANTINE GIFT.

Lv. P. M. (Through day coach, week-days. For Pittsburg—8 30 A. M., 2 45 P. M. Ar. P. M. Week-days.
For Washington

The Constitutionalist,
A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY,
W. L. PRICE & A. L. PRICE, Editors and Proprietors.
AT PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY.
TERMS—TWO DOLLARS A YEAR.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXIV. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, JULY 9, 1891. No. 28.

"Support the Constitution, which is the cement of the Union, as well in its limitations as in its authorities."—Hamilton.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

JACKSON & CODDINGTON.
Counsellors-at-Law,
Commissioners of Deeds, Notaries Public, Solicitors in Chancery, Examiners in Chancery.
Office, corner of Park avenue and Second street.

W. T. ——
Counselor-at-Law.
Master and Examiner in Chancery, Supreme Court Commissioner, etc.
Cor. PARK AND NORTH AVES. 4-30-3m

GEORGE W. DAY.
General Auctioneer,
Sales of Personal Property solicited. P. O. Box 152, Dunellen, N. J., or address in care of CONSTITUTIONALIST, Plainfield, N. J.

DR. CHARLES R. THEIS,
Dentist,
20 West Front street. A new local anesthesia applied for extracting teeth without pain. Gold filling a specialty.—jy25

H. BAND,
Auctioneer,
P. O. Address, Look Box 71, South Plainfield, N. J. Orders left at C. J. Carey's second-hand store, 46 West Front street, Plainfield, N. J., will receive prompt attention.—ap30

OSCAR R. THEIS,
Architect,
247 Broadway, New York city. Rooms 32 and 33. (Importers' and Traders' Bank Building.) Residence, Plainfield, N. J.—jan17

J. S. FORSTER,
Veterinary Surgeon.
Office in S. N. Sagendorf's livery office, corner Main street and Madison avenue, Plainfield, N. J. Day and night calls promptly attended. Telephone No. 36. Consultation free. Horses will receive personal attention. Residence, 71 East Fifth st., corner Plain street.—ap16-3m

JOHN CHANDLER,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
RESIDENCE AND SHOP No. 36 East 3d St.
Jobbing promptly attended to. apay

T. J. GILLIES,
Auctioneer & Real Estate Agent.
SALESROOM—Madison Avenue, near Fire House, Plainfield, N. J.
Goods received on consignment.

TO THE PUBLIC!

We wish to inform our customers and the public generally that we have on hand the best quality of

LEHIGH COAL,
Fresh from the Mines.

It is under cover and well protected from the weather. We are prepared to deliver it well screened and in good order promptly. We are also prepared to furnish all kinds of Lumber, Plaster and Masons' Materials at short notice.

A. D. COOK & BRO.
landly

J. Hervey Doane,
6 PARK AVENUE.
[Formerly Clerk's.]

Watches,
Clocks
And Jewelry.
Repairing neatly and promptly done.

FOR
BEAUTIFUL DESIGNS
In Furniture
GO TO
23, 25 and 27 PARK AVE.
Garret Q. Packer,

SANITARY PLUMBING,
Brick and Portable Furnaces,
GAS FITTING,
TIN ROOFING,
Etc. Etc.
I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class manner and workmanlike manner.
Having associated myself with the Master Plumbers Association of New York City, I employ none but first-class mechanics and pay the top notch. I believe in every one running his own business; I all I ask of mine.
D. W. LITTELL,
No. 8 SOUTH AVE. opp. Plainfield, N. J.

Alex. Willett,
DEALER IN
BOOTS & SHOES,
No. 7 PARK AVENUE.
A full assortment of desirable goods direct from manufacturers, at low figures. ap2tf

Geo. A. Moore,
[Of the late firm of Moore Bros.]
is now the sole proprietor of the old established
DRUG STORE
NO. 16 NORTH AVENUE,
where he will continue to supply patrons with the finest articles of Fruit and Soda Water, Pure Drugs and Medicines, Cigars, Tobacco and all kinds of Confectionery. Special attention paid to the accurate compounding of Physicians' Prescriptions. Orders by mail or telephone promptly attended to. 4-16-tf

HOTELS AND SALOONS.

FORCE'S HOTEL,
NORTH AVENUE, [NEAR D. L. & W. STATION.]
JAS. H. FORCE, Prop'r.
A FIRST-CLASS FAMILY HOTEL. Steam Heat. First-class Plumbing.
Transient guests at reasonable rates. 10-21-tf

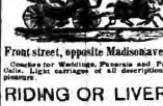
SOMERSET HOTEL,
Corner Somerset and Emily Streets,
NORTH PLAINFIELD.
RICHARD A. BOYCE, Prop'r.
Permanent and transient board at reasonable rates. First-class stables and sheds attended. Meals at all reasonable hours. 7-11-tf

Dime Savings Institution
OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest at the rate of three (3) per cent. per annum payable semi-annually
JOHN W. MURRAY, President,
WILLIAM WHITE, Vice "
NATHAN HARPER, "
ELIAS R. POPE, Treasurer.
a2tf

Jas. M. Dunn,
Dealer in
GROCERIES, PROVISIONS,
Vegetables, Fruits, etc.
No. 36 Park Ave.
OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.
THORBURN & CO'S GARDEN SEEDS,
BEST IN THE WORLD.
ALL GOODS DELIVERED FREE OF CHARGE.
a4tf

ESTABLISHED 1836
C. E. & J. W. BROWN,
(Successors to G. F. & C. E. Brown & Co.)
Importers, Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
WALL PAPER.
321 Canal Street,
NEW YORK.
English Tiles, Anaglypta, Hand, Leather Relief Flock Papers, &c. Burlaps for Walls.
Manufacturers of Window Shades. 8-15-tf

LIVERY.

A. M. SEGUINE,
(Successor to John W. Laing.)
Laing's Hotel Stables


Front street, opposite Madison avenue.
Coaches for Weddings, Parties and Private Calls. Light carriages of all descriptions for pleasure.

RIDING OR LIVERY.
Careful, safe drivers for shopping calls or business offices. Special attention given to boarding horses by the day, week or month.—oct15-ly
TELEPHONE CALL, NO. 36.

Livery Stables!
Mr. D. S. ROBERTS
Has Removed to His New Building on
NORTH AVENUE,
adjoining Force's Hotel Mr. Roberts will always be found at the stables and able to attend to those desiring of turn-outs for a short time, and hopes for a liberal share of public patronage. Mr. Thornley's coaches are at the service of those who may desire.

Accommodation Express.
PETER RICKERT, Proprietor.
Office—Vanderbeck's Mail Store, Park avenue.
The Accommodation Express will attend to the prompt delivery in any part of the city, delivering goods or Baggage to and from the Depot, or from place to place. Orders left at Vanderbeck's Mail Store, or at the residence of the Proprietor, Front street, will receive Prompt attention. Leaving orders a guarantee of promptness and satisfaction.

INSURANCE.

WILLIAM A. WOODRUFF,
FIRE AND LIFE
INSURANCE AGENT,
Office cor. Front St. and Park Ave.,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Real Estate for Sale & Exchange.
MONEY TO LOAN
On Approved Security.
ap2tf

J. C. Pope & Co.,
GENERAL AGENTS OF THE
German American Ins. Co.,
of New York.
Also represents other first-class Fire insurance Companies. Agents of the Ocean Steamship Line. Drafts on Ireland for sale. First and City National Bank Stock Bought and Sold. Also
BUILDING LOTS
And Other Real Estate for sale.
OFFICE:
6 E. FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD.
JAMES G. POPE. ELIAS R. POPE

A FEW TRAINED
AGENTS
wanted in Plainfield and vicinity to introduce our
The World's Religions.
Agents LIBERAL TERMS. A rare chance.
Best Territory.
THE CHRISTIAN LITERATURE CO.
20 Astor House, NEW YORK.

EDUCATIONAL.

Miss SCRIBNER
AND
Miss NEWTON'S
SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
AND KINDERGARTEN,
17 LaGrande Avenue,
CORNER OF WASHINGTON STREET.
Will reopen WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 16, 1891.
The regular course will include Modeling, Drawing and Cooking. 7-11-tf

PAINTERS & PAINTERS' SUPPLIES.

Paints, Varnishes, Glass,
WINDOW SHADES AND FIXTURES.
WALL PAPERS!
PAPER HANGING A SPECIALTY.
A. SWALM,
No. 6 North Avenue, Plainfield.
a2tf

L. S. WOOLSTON. J. S. BUCKLE
Woolston & Buckle,
PAINTERS,
Wall Papers,
PAINTER'S SUPPLIES. 26 NORTH AVENUE
a2tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

LEWIS B. CODDINGTON,
[Successor to T. J. Oliver.]
Furniture and Freight Express!
OFFICE—24 W. FRONT ST.
Large Covered Vans or Trucks. Goods delivered to any part of the U. S. Satisfaction guaranteed. Charges moderate. P. O. Box 186. Steam Piano moving a specialty. 11tf

Fresh Garden Seeds
AND F RTILIZERS,
Farm and Garden Implements,
Lawn Mowers Refrigerators,
Ice Cream Freezers,
Gasoline Stoves, Hardware, Tools, etc.
J. J. HEIDELOFF,
No. 13 SOMERSET ST. 8-13-tf

CANOPIES
For Weddings, Parties, Etc.,
TO HIRE. CHARGES REASONABLE
Hugo Weigman,
20 EAST FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD, N. J. mc18tf

ADRIANCE
Buckeye Mowers
AND REAPERS.
Agricultural Machinery
Depot.
Gasoline Stoves, Refrigerators,
Tinware and Plumbing.
A. M. GRIFFEN,
13 East Front Street.
TELEPHONE CALL 6. 11 11-tf

SPEER'S
GRAPE WINES,
ALSO
UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.

Speer's Port Grape Wine,
FOUR YEARS OLD.
THIS Celebrated Wine is the pure juice, of the finest vineyards, and left long until very aged and becomes partly effervescent, thereby rendering it invaluable.
Tonic and Strengthening Properties are guaranteed by all users of this Wine, being produced under the supervision of one practical Wine Maker, who carefully manufactures each grape of Concord, Hartford Prolific, Ives Seedling and Delaware. Health who have examined it. The youngest and the weakest invalid can use it to advantage. It is particularly beneficial to the aged and debilitated and adapted to the various ailments that affect the female system.
It is in every respect a WINE TO BE RELIED ON.
Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice
is the juice of the grape in its purest state, preserved in its natural fresh, sweet state as it runs from the press by the use of Salicylic Acid, entirely free from fermentation, and without the aid of fermentation. It is a delicious fruity pure, free from spirits, and will keep in any climate.
Speer's Sacramental Claret
is made and selected for the Communion, as a Dry Table Wine, especially suited for Sacramental uses.
Speer's P. J. Sherry is a Wine of medium dry character, produced from the choicest grapes grown in this section. It is pure.
Speer's P. J. Brandy
IS A PURE distillation of the grape, and stands unrivaled for medicinal purposes and family use. It has a peculiar flavor, similar to that of the celebrated Cognac Brandies.
See that the signature of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is on every bottle and cork.
SOLD BY DRUGGISTS WHO KEEP FIRST-CLASS WINES.

TOBACCO, SEGARS, &c.

H. EGGERDING,
No. 17 Park Avenue,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Manufacturer of the Celebrated
C. O. D. CIGAR.
Tax exempt cigars in the State, and made entire premises from the finest Havana.
CLEAR HAVANA SEGARS A SPECIALTY.
A large assortment always on hand of Foreign and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobacco, always on hand.
Smokers Articles in Great Variety.
Trial! Trial!

C. M. FINE,
Dealer in HAVANA & DOMEST'C
SEGARS!—
6 PARK AVE., (first entrance from 2nd st.)
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Tobacco and Smoker's Materials,
Of every description.
Thoroughbred "Old Judge" Smoking Tobacco, without the poison and nicotine, always on hand

A. WOLFF,
Manufacturer of
CIGARS,
And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, Snuff, Pipes, Cigarettes, &c. Especial attention paid to Mail Orders. 21 West Front street, one door west of Madison avenue, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally. 4-4-tf

CARNEY BROS., Ag'ts,
11 SOMERSET ST.
TINNERS,
PLUMBERS,
GAS FITTERS.
PARLOR STOVES.
COOK STOVES,
HEATERS.
Grates and Bricks for all kinds of Stove s can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your Tinware mending to us. The best Tinners, the best Plumbers, and the best Gas-fitters in the section. We can lead but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction.
Keys of All Kinds are Made Here.
Tinware Made to Order.
Ranges, Brick and
Portable Furnaces
SANITARY PLUMBING.

SHE IS MINE.

There's a sparkle in her eye
That's a sufficient cure for me,
If they chint so for them try—
Not me.

There's a blush upon her cheek,
Like the peach flow'r's tincture, she
Like red without by the sky—
Not me.

She has roses in her hair,
Now I was not there,
Nay, did I ever dare?
Is she mine?

Or can it all be a dream,
Idle poet's empty theme?
Put in words that sound like rhyme?
Impudence!

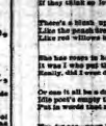
No; for sure upon her hand
Glows the golden band
Fidgee work, understand—
Like a vine.

And a perfect fellicity
Fits upon it. The affair
Does look mighty like it.
Don't it now?
She is mine,
Although Church is Money's worship.

MR. BOWSER.

He Averts a Great Danger in His Household.

Mrs. Bowser and Mrs. Fletcher Then for Mrs. B.'s Enlightenment—She Again Proves Herself a Friend Indeed—The Worm May Turn at Last.



WHAT'S the matter and what have you got there?" queried Mrs. Bowser, as he came home after the usual time, and being loaded down with a heavy package and looking warm.

"Don't ask it me any questions now" he replied, as he dropped his hat and squirmed out of his overcoat.

"Is anything wrong—are you sick?" she anxiously demanded.

"Don't say a word—not a word, and don't bother me for ten minutes! I hope I'm able to avert the danger!"

She turned pale and fell upon the sofa, and he hurriedly broke the string securing the package and laid the three quart bottles which comprised its contents and rushed upstairs, down the back stairs, down into the basement and up again. A strange, disagreeable odor followed him as he hustled around, and by the time he had returned to the sitting room Mrs. Bowser had recovered sufficiently to ask:

"Mr. Bowser, what on earth are you doing, and what in the name of goodness is that stuff?"

"What have I been doing? Saving our lives, Mrs. Bowser—saving the life of every one under this roof!"

"But I—I didn't know our lives were in danger."

"Of course not. If the house was on fire from top to bottom and the firemen pitching our furniture out of the windows, you might possibly realize the fact, but it has never struck you that there is silently lurks in every room in this house."

"How you talk, Mr. Bowser!" she sneered. "What has been the danger hanging over us?"

"Mistress, Mrs. Bowser!" he whispered, as he sat down and wiped his heated face; "Microbes and bacteria—millions of 'em!"

"It can't be!" she replied.

"Can't it! You've lived in New York two weeks, then you go as far as Broadway ones, and you think you know all about it! I knew, of course, but having so many other things to do the idea one slipped my mind until to-day."

"But what causes that terrible odor?"

"Nothing terrible about it, as I see. On the contrary, I rather like it. It is the odor of disinfectants, Mrs. Bowser —the odor of something which has no doubt saved our lives."

"How?"

"By killing off the microbes and bacteria, which would soon have infested our systems and produced terrible illness, if not death."

"Well, I suppose you know best," she said, as she opened a window to let a yard or two of the carbolic smell dodge out.

"Certainly I do, certainly. All husbands do. Mrs. Bowser, let me draw your attention to the fact that I am now the master of this house, and that hereafter I shall be consulted in all matters pertaining to its welfare. Do you understand?"

A MICROBE.

"Yes, Mr. Bowser."

"Then I will proceed. I have been reading up on the microbe question, and I find that the air is filled with stinging moisture flying for miles from the bleating sheep, and when boats are torn out of the davits, and iron bitts and ventilators are stamped from their fastenings like pipestems, he has no misgiving as to the ability of the ship to weather the gale or the fiercest hurricane that can blow.

Give him an open sea, without haze, or fog, or snow, and the biggest wind nor wave can alarm him. He knows very well, as all who are experienced in such matters do, that the modern steamers of the great Atlantic lines are so carefully constructed, and of such strength, that the foundering of one of them through stress of weather alone is well nigh inconceivable.

But when a fog descends, then it is that his face and manner change, and he who has been the most cheerful and gayest of men suddenly becomes the most anxious and taciturn. His seat at the head of the table is then empty, and for him and you will not find him; as in fair weather, diverting groups of girls inclined up in observance of the lively promenade deck, but pacing the bridge and puffing a cigar which apparently has not been allowed to go out since it was lighted as the big ship backed from her wharf into the North river.

Whenever and wherever it occurs, fog is a source of danger from which neither prudence nor skill can guarantee immunity; and whether the ship is slowed down or going at full speed, there is cause for fear while that gray blindness baffles the eyes. With plenty of searoom the danger is least, and it increases near land, especially where the coast is wild and broken, like that of Ireland and Wales, and where there are many vessels as well as rocks to be passed.—Scribner.

IT Will Answer All Purposes.

Foreman—Madame Sara Bernhardt is to be here next week and I want to know if you could get a cut of her picture so that we can give her a big send-off.

Editor—No use of going to so much trouble. You can use that patent medicine ad—the one that says: "Before taking."—Judge.

An Unfair Attack.

Miss Daisey—Won't you take a chair, Mr. Jones?

Mr. Jones—Thank you. It makes me feel young to sit here and swing my feet.

Young Rival—I should think you'd have to feel young to swing those feet. —Harper's Bazar.

In the Park.

Daddy (referring to rider)—I—see—that our young friend Bobbington could attain to the saddle.

Miss Snapp—Why, from his way of riding, I should think you'd say that he still continued to bounce out of Hi-Texas fifty-ers.

He Got Tired.

Rudyard—Is the train running on time to-day?

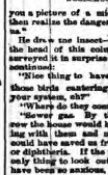
Crusty Officer (who has answered that same question ninety-nine times in the last ten minutes)—No, sir; she's running on the rails.—Light.

Couldn't Wait.

"Mr. Sharpset," inquired an attentive hostess, "how in the world do you manage to eat that hot soup without burning yourself?"

Madam," was the pathetic reply, "I am burning myself."—Judge.

REVISITING THE BATTLEFIELD.



"Funny my handwriting!"

"Yes and I was thinking how you must have expanded since the war. Why, I see you stood behind during the whole battle, and it covered you well, then."—Life.

Serious Action.

A—The battery, Hogginsyer, has begun to wear glasses.

B—He is compelled to wear them.

A—Why so?

"His leaves of bread have got to be so small that he can't do such fine work without magnifying glasses. They are too small to be detected by the naked eye."

Not to Be Fooled.

Proprietor of boarding-house—That's our last importation—a fine Austrian eagle, healthy, intelligent—only he can't talk. Try a fowl. Fowl and Austrian eagle! Why, it's entirely too much like cannibalism.

son why I haven't known it for forty years."

"But this is medical science, isn't it?" she softly protested.

"And suppose it is! Do you suppose I'm going shedding around all these years with nothing but a recipe for making soft soap in my head?"

She was silent, and after striding up and down the room a few times he halted before her and continued:

"A life isn't worth much to know these things, of course, but I'll be accounted a pretty backward sort of a man to member of a scientific club if I didn't know all about microbes and bacteria."

"Then that picture of a bacteria looks like a lobster," she persisted.

"Lobster! Looks like a lobster, does it? Very well, Mrs. Bowser, this discussion will end right here. It is bad enough that you haven't the necessary knowledge to appreciate it."

"But don't you—"

"Hover you mind, Mrs. Bowser! Let it drop right here. Is supper ready?"

The odor rose so strong in the dining-room that the latter tasted of it, and after supper the cook called Mrs. Bowser into the kitchen to say:

"Is it going to be like this all the time?"

"No, no. Mr. Bowser had to kill off the microbes and bacteria, you see."

"What's them?"

"I'll have him come out and explain."

"No need of it, ma'am, for my trouble is all made up, and I'm going. A man who'll drag dead fishes into his own house would cheat a poor girl out of her wages at the end of a month. Microbes and bacteria, eh? I'm believe it! Let him show them to me up in the zoological gardens!"

When Mrs. Bowser told Mr. Bowser what had occurred he bristled up, got red in the face, and exclaimed:

"I see how it is; couldn't carry your point with me, and so you went out and upset the girl! Mrs. Bowser, you are treading on dangerous ground—very dangerous. A husband may be a hero, but if that hero is stepped on too often he turns!"—M. Quad, in N. Y. World.

STANCH AND TRUE.

Modern Steamships Have No Fear of Storms, However Violent.

It is not when the seas come pounding over the bows that the captain's heart lightens, even when it is necessary to keep the passengers below, and the spray is carried as high as the forefoot, the confidence in his ship is unabated. His spirits do not fall with the barometer, though the clouds hang low, and the air is filled with stinging moisture flying for miles from the bleating sheep, and when boats are torn out of the davits, and iron bitts and ventilators are stamped from their fastenings like pipestems, he has no misgiving as to the ability of the ship to weather the gale or the fiercest hurricane that can blow.

Give him an open sea, without haze, or fog, or snow, and the biggest wind nor wave can alarm him. He knows very well, as all who are experienced in such matters do, that the modern steamers of the great Atlantic lines are so carefully constructed, and of such strength, that the foundering of one of them through stress of weather alone is well nigh inconceivable.

But when a fog descends, then it is that his face and manner change, and he who has been the most cheerful and gayest of men suddenly becomes the most anxious and taciturn. His seat at the head of the table is then empty, and for him and you will not find him; as in fair weather, diverting groups of girls incline up in observance of the lively promenade deck, but pacing the bridge and puffing a cigar which apparently has not been allowed to go out since it was lighted as the big ship backed from her wharf into the North river.

Whenever and wherever it occurs, fog is a source of danger from which neither prudence nor skill can guarantee immunity; and whether the ship is slowed down or going at full speed, there is cause for fear while that gray blindness baffles the eyes. With plenty of searoom the danger is least, and it increases near land, especially where the coast is wild and broken, like that of Ireland and Wales, and where there are many vessels as well as rocks to be passed.—Scribner.

IT Will Answer All Purposes.

Foreman—Madame Sara Bernhardt is to be here next week and I want to know if you could get a cut of her picture so that we can give her a big send-off.

Editor—No use of going to so much trouble. You can use that patent medicine ad—the one that says: "Before taking."—Judge.

An Unfair Attack.

Miss Daisey—Won't you take a chair, Mr. Jones?

Mr. Jones—Thank you. It makes me feel young to sit here and swing my feet.

Young Rival—I should think you'd have to feel young to swing those feet. —Harper's Bazar.

In the Park.

Daddy (referring to rider)—I—see—that our young friend Bobbington could attain to the saddle.

Miss Snapp—Why, from his way of riding, I should think you'd say that he still continued to bounce out of Hi-Texas fifty-ers.

He Got Tired.

Rudyard—Is the train running on time to-day?

Crusty Officer (who has answered that same question ninety-nine times in the last ten minutes)—No, sir; she's running on the rails.—Light.

Couldn't Wait.

"Mr. Sharpset," inquired an attentive hostess, "how in the world do you manage to eat that hot soup without burning yourself?"

Madam," was the pathetic reply, "I am burning myself."—Judge.

REVISITING THE BATTLEFIELD.

"Funny my handwriting!"

"Yes and I was thinking how you must have expanded since the war. Why, I see you stood behind during the whole battle, and it covered you well, then."—Life.

Serious Action.

A—The battery, Hogginsyer, has begun to wear glasses.

B—He is compelled to wear them.

A—Why so?

"His leaves of bread have got to be so small that he can't do such fine work without magnifying glasses. They are too small to be detected by the naked eye."

Not to Be Fooled.

Proprietor of boarding-house—That's our last importation—a fine Austrian eagle, healthy, intelligent—only he can't talk. Try a fowl. Fowl and Austrian eagle! Why, it's entirely too much like cannibalism.

Letter Headings,
Circulars,
Programmes, Menus,
Addresses,
Memorials,
By-Laws of Societies,
Prospectuses and Reports of Financial Associations, or any other matter for Pub lic or Private Circulation.
Everything,
WHATEVER form of printed matter you require we can be of service to you; whether it be
WEEKLY CONSTITUTIONALIST,
DAILY PRESS
(Chautauqua" Building),
PLAINFIELD, N. J.

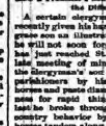
AN OBJECT LESSON.

How a Preacher's Dull Wife Made to See the Difference.

A certain clergyman of Missouri has recently given his harum-scarum, scapegrace wife an illustrated lecture which he will not soon forget, and the story has just reached St. Louis through a third hearing of mouths. It happens the clergyman's son shocked the good parishioners by his display of fast manners in the classroom, and his fondness for rapid things generally. At last, however, though all the clergyman's friends called upon the father and asked that he put some sort of curb on the son's headlong driving. That evening the minister remonstrated with the young fellow upon his follies, and finished that he display no more leaden teams. The son heard the lecture with patience, and then asked:

"Well, father, what is the difference between driving horses alongside and one before the other? I fail to see the point."

"My son," said the clergyman, "there are a great many points in life you fail to see as yet. But as to this one, the difference is one of grave significance. Suppose, at my next service, I should



A GESTURE LIKE THIS.

Nobody would object to it. In fact, our parishioners would only see in it an ordinary demonstration of a stage-wait. On the other hand, what if I should put one hand before the driver and use—

A GESTURE LIKE THAT.

How long do you suppose I would remain the rector of this parish? See the difference?"—St. Louis Republic.

Her Father's Daughter.

Rebecca—Ah! father, he gave me a beautiful engagement ring.

Isaacstein—And vat did yo' do with it, Rebecca?

Rebecca—I put it in the window, father.

Isaacstein—Ah! Rebecca, you will make some mant an excellent wife.—Jury.

Deathless Devotion.

Kind Father—My dear, if you want a good husband, marry Mr. Goodheart. He really and truly loves you.

Daughter—Are you sure of that, pa? Kind Father—Yes, indeed. I've been borrowing money of him for six months and he still keeps coming. — N. Y. Weekly.

Professional Spitefulness.

Mollie—I felt I played that scene remarkably well to-night. My enthusiasm completely carried me away. I became so absorbed that the audience disappeared.

Bertelle (interrupting)—Yes; I noticed them, dear.—Judge.

The Difference Didn't Count.

Pretty Girl (to salesman)—I want to buy a hammock strong enough to hold up three.

Salesman—Sorry, miss, but our hammocks will only hold up two.

Pretty Girl (unsatisfactingly)—Well, no matter, I'll take one.—Boston Herald.

A Wise Precaution.

Dicky (an eighteen-year-old man of the world)—Let me take you to the next dance, now did?

Nelly (seventeen-year-old debutante)—Go and ask your mamma, Dicky. I don't want to take you into the fuss I set without her permission.—Munsey's Weekly.

Put to the Best Use.

Mr. Fussy (engaging board)—Ah! I see you have a piano. Do I have the use of that?

Mrs. Frankie—Why, certainly.

Mr. Fussy—Well, then, please let me have the key and I'll lock it up.—Judge.

The Last Resort.

"I don't know what's become of that boy. He can't speak English. He can't spell. He—"

"Don't worry. He'll be able to write dialect stories when he grows up."—Puck.

A Good Definition.

"What is the meaning of the word clockwarm?" asked the teacher. "Johnny Cumee, you may answer."

"Water in bakeovens when it loans warm and lon't."—Harper's Bazar.

Warranted to Last.

Se—You love me now, and you'll be faithful to me, last, you did?

She—Yes, dear, our engagement shall never end.—Munsey's Weekly.

No Hesitation.

Little City Boy—Don't you wish you was Mrs. Brownson?

Mamma—Why?

Little City Boy—She don't have to live in a flat. She's got a whole house to herself and she can have just as many children as she wants.—Good News.

A Question and Not a Theory.

She—You are not one of those who are opposed to matrimony under all circumstances, are you?

He—No, indeed. I wouldn't object in the least to being a widower, for instance.—Judge.

Embarrassment.

Police Captain—Why have you brought this shaver here?

Officer—He's an abandoned youth, P. C.—So young and already depraved!

C.—No; his parents seem to have deserved him.—Light.

Insinuated He Was a Donkey.

Lady (to clerk)—This tea smells peculiar. Doesn't it taste like hay?

Clerk—I really can't say; never having tasted hay.

Lady—I wasn't certain about that.—Texas Siftings.

A Hopeful Case.

Harry—School! School! Freddy Jones is learning to play the violin!

Mamma—Why don't you let him learn?

Harry—I did let him first and he didn't do nothing.

THE CROSS MOTHER.

A Victim of Weariness of Mind and Body, and Sometimes of Both.

At no time in her busy days is an intelligent mother so apt to feel the arms and close the eyes of maternal justice as when she is cross—simply and undoubtedly cross. This weariness is chiefly marked by stigma—weariness of mind and body, and sometimes of soul. With the nerves and weary body, she can not endure the constant demands made upon her, and ill-temper follows. Then follow bitter feelings and keen loving attentions with her irritable hasty words. Happily speaking, no mother has any right to get so tired. She can not afford it. It takes too much of her life, and too much out of her children's life. Such a condition can more frequently be prevented than is generally believed.

The careless or shallow woman says: "I was overworked. It made me cross," and she considers that admission the end of the circle woven together and nicely lined inside by the softest of silk secreted from glands in the head. The nerves are increased in size and length as the larve grow. The little larva never learns its use, and forgets how as it advances. Instances are known where the case has been carried in this way up a fifteen-foot wall and fastened in the upper corner. Some such secluded place as this is chosen in which to rest through the winter. Early in the spring it changes to a pupa, and then soon emerges into a tiny moth.

Clothing and articles specially attacked by these moths will not be damaged if frequently used through the summer season. Those not in daily use, as wool, should be thoroughly shaken and brushed and then aired in the sunlight at least a few minutes before putting away. If this treatment is through the articles may be packed in large paper sacks tightly tied or in very tight wooden or tin boxes or trunks. However, if there is danger, camphor placed in with the articles will probably be found more preventive. This should never be used, though, with seal skin, as it causes the fur to change color and become injured. The simplest and one of much needless expense in obtaining cedar chests and many worthless powders that are said to drive away the moth.

COMMON CLOTHES MOTH.

Articles found to contain the pest at work should be thoroughly treated with benzine. Should the lining of a carriage top be attacked, a weak solution of corrosive sublimate will be useful. Make just strong enough not to leave a white mark on a black feather.—G. G. Davis, in Farm, Field and Stockman.

CHINA MENU TABLETS.

Charming Novelties to Be Laid at Each Guest's Plate at the Table.

For those who paint on china we give the two accompanying designs for a couple of dozen of menu tablets to be used daily, one to be laid at each head of the table. If there are only a few courses, a man always likes to know what he is going to have, and it will put him into a good humor at once if he sees his favorite dishes are forthcoming.

Take either design you like, and paint both of them on the backs of any of the shops where they sell artists' supplies you can purchase little white porcelain plaques, either of the oblong square shape, on which the colors are ground, or the regulation oval-shaped palette, and we give a design for each shape. The circle has painted in pistachio flesh color, outlined with sepia, and the ribbon may be either pink or blue, also outlined with sepia. The heavy scallop border has a very rich effect if carefully done. It is best to take a peacock's feather and copy it exactly. The rose is crimson, with the red petals dropping from it.—N. Y. Tribune.

Before Mental Labor.

A person should abstain from food for several hours before undertaking any intellectual exercise. Perhaps little is the only way to insure a clear and forcible action of the brain. With food in the stomach, digestion will be imperfect and the divided attention of the system will detract from the powers of the brain. Brother never ate a day supper when he was going to deliver a lecture in the evening.—Dr. J. H. Kellogg.

Know What We Are Coming.

Mr. Tiptop—Do you see a great linguist, you would probably enjoy the French comedy by the French company at the theater. Will you accept me as an escort?

Miss Westend—Eh!—I am not feeling very well this afternoon. I do not understand French, I suppose, Mr. Tiptop?

"Dear me, no. I don't know a word of it."

"Oh! Thank you, Mr. Tiptop, I will accompany you with pleasure."—Good News.

A Libel on the Sea.

He—First, a woman wants a husband. She—Yes.

He—Then she wants him to get rich.

She—Yes.

He—Then she has but one wish left, and that is for him to die.

She—Oh, no; she has still another wish.

He—What is it?

She—She wants another husband.—Munsey's Weekly.

Friends and Actors.

Mr. Outside—Do the wife, who is driving some chickens out of the yard)—Well, I don't see why a woman can't throw a stone. You don't seem to come within forty feet of one of those hens.

Mrs. Outside—I dropped my sewing in order to help drive them out, and I think, instead of standing here criticising, you might go in and thread a few needles all of the fine ones.—N. Y. Weekly.

(Soliloquy time) "There, my good, old friend, I've decidedly my opinion of you. Now I'll go and tell you so."

Rates of Advertising.

Space	1 WEEK	2 WEEKS	3 WEEKS	1 MONTH	2 MONTHS	3 MONTHS	6 MONTHS	1 YEAR
1 inch	$ 1 00	$ 1 50	$ 2 00	$ 3 00	$ 5 00	$ 7 00	$ 10 00	$ 15 00
2 inches	1 50	2 50	3 50	5 00	8 00	11 00	15 00	25 00
3 inches	2 00	3 50	5 00	7 00	11 00	15 00	20 00	35 00
4 inches	2 50	4 50	6 50	9 00	14 00	19 00	25 00	45 00
5 inches	3 00	5 50	8 00	11 00	17 00	23 00	30 00	55 00
6 inches	3 50	6 50	9 50	13 00	20 00	27 00	35 00	65 00
7 inches	4 00	7 50	11 00	15 00	23 00	31 00	40 00	75 00
8 inches	4 50	8 50	12 50	17 00	26 00	35 00	45 00	85 00
9 inches	5 00	9 50	14 00	19 00	29 00	39 00	50 00	95 00
10 inches	5 50	10 50	15 50	21 00	32 00	43 00	55 00	105 00
11 inches	6 00	11 50	17 00	23 00	35 00	47 00	60 00	115 00
12 inches	6 50	12 50	18 50	25 00	38 00	51 00	65 00	125 00

All Electro's must be solid metal.
"Little of Everything" column, 5 cts. per line.
Double rates, 50 per ct. advance of above rates.

THE CLOTHES MOTH.

One of the Most Common and Destructive of Household Pests.

This is one of the most common and widely-distributed household pests that we have. It is cosmopolitan, having been carried all over the world in clothing. There are three different species known to injure clothing, furs and feathers. The most common one of these is represented, greatly enlarged.

Along in May and June the little moth comes flitting about through our wardrobes and into chests and drawers where we would think it impossible for any insect to get so large. She can be found some desirable article of clothing, and penetrated deep into the dark recesses amongst the folds, and deposits some fifty or more eggs, from which issue the little white, soft-bodied caterpillars (to) that do the injury. As they feed on the garment they build cases around them, as in (e), from little fragments of the cloth woven together and nicely lined inside by the softest of silk secreted from glands in the head. The cases are increased in size and length as the larvæ grow. The little larva never learns its use, and forgets how as it advances. Instances are known where the case has been carried in this way up a fifteen-foot wall and fastened in the upper corner. Some such secluded place as this is chosen in which to rest through the winter. Early in the spring it changes to a pupa, and then soon emerges into a tiny moth.

Clothing and articles specially attacked by these moths will not be damaged if frequently used through the summer season. This is one of the best. It should be thoroughly shaken and brushed and then aired in the sunlight at least a few minutes before putting away. If this treatment is through the articles may be packed in large paper sacks tightly tied or in very tight wooden or tin boxes or trunks. However, if there is danger, camphor placed in with the articles will probably be found more preventive. This should never be used, though, with seal skin, as it causes the fur to change color and become injured. The simplest and one of much needless expense in obtaining cedar chests and many worthless powders that are said to drive away the moth.

COMMON CLOTHES MOTH.

Articles found to contain the pest at work should be thoroughly treated with benzine. Should the lining of a carriage top be attacked, a weak solution of corrosive sublimate will be useful. Make just strong enough not to leave a white mark on a black feather.—G. G. Davis, in Farm, Field and Stockman.

CHINA MENU TABLETS.

Charming Novelties to Be Laid at Each Guest's Plate at the Table.

For those who paint on china

The Constitutionalist.

W. L. FORCE, A. L. FORCE
Editors and Proprietors

THE SPIRIT OF '76.

The American Revolution was waged for a definite purpose. Striving to secure for all time the priceless blessings of popular freedom, through the establishment of a government by the people and for the people, nerved its patriotic originators and prosecutors to battle onward against the most formidable difficulties.

Throughout that memorable contest, from the opening musketry fire at Lexington to the closing triumph at Yorktown, patriotism was the animating cause of action.

Washington was its exemplar.

Independence now enjoyed by so many millions of American people was born of Patriotism.

Does the glorious spirit of '76 exist at our core?

Some may query—Why such a farfetched question? Has not enlightened education advanced beyond precedent? Have not modern improvements overlooked the order of things and made the new eclipse the old?

We freely admit the rapid strides of progress, and the mental and material achievements of the age, but deplore intensely the many time and circumstances can alter the character and value of sound principles.

Men may change, but principles never.

Patriotism is precisely the same virtue it was a century ago, and the importance of giving it practical effect is no less essential to the public weal now than it was then.

Patriotism is the love of country, and country means all the people, not a favored few.

Revive the spirit of '76 and the present era of political duplicity and unnecessary greenback would measurably terminate.

The thirteen original States have increased in number to forty-four. Would that official integrity had kept pace with the growth of sovereign stars!

A PILGRIM'S PROTEST.

He Has Some Sharp Things to Say About the Presbyterians.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Does the Jersey Central railway company intend to remove those freight-sheds and tracks and standing cars this summer? There is such popular disgust that the special attention does not appear to have been given to the numerously-signed petitions sent early this year to the present meeting with a lively hope that they would be pleased to remove these nuisances before now. It has been rumored that private suggestions were made to members of the "Junior Circle Combine" (which is supposed to own Plainfield socially, politically, and otherwise), that if the adjoining premises could be bought and donated to the railway company their lordships will make the desired improvements. The value or cost of this property to anybody and for it sold to be $30,000. This looks amazingly like a proposition that the people of Plainfield shall pay cash for all they get, and be grateful. Not seriously, it is all too absurd and mean. It is not at all essential that the Rushmore property be included, nor that property on Park avenue be bought and given to this modest corporation. They own ample space between for a handsome passenger station and platform with a neat part, and wide approaches for carriages, electric railway cars and pedestrians. If the Jersey Central people want to do the Rushmore property they may do so no doubt, at reasonable cost after removing the freight tracks, either by purchase, or exchange for undeveloped property owned by the land and improvement company. We shall not mourn if those old freight sheds are taken down to accommodate and beautify ornament that choice spot—which some of the railway officials are supposed to be booming. This community of 16,000 people furnishing the amount of business that justifies a demand for a first-class convenient, modern freight depot, situated on the business side of the railway, sans from our present station. The standing cars, wagons and trucks will not obstruct pedestrians nor carriages, while going to and from the trains, as they now do frequently. The time comes when patience ceases to be a virtue, and many are becoming convinced that the thing Plainfield and North Plainfield needs most is a new railway outlet. Insuring cordial and prompt co-operation in things essential to promote our welfare, and securing cheaper freight rates and more and cheaper passenger rates to New York city and elsewhere. It is becoming a conviction that we shall continue to suffer more and more, until released from the railway monopoly which this disregards reasonably requests. PILGRIM.

$250 Prize a Pair.

The members of the Emerald Benevolent Association wish to return through THE PRESS their sincere thanks to their many friends for co-operating with them and making their recent fair, held in P. A. B. Hall, a financial success. The amount raised, after paying all expenses, was $530.

Not Nine, But Reynolds.

It transpires that the fellow who assaulted Mr. and Mrs. Louis Zitren because they would n't sell tobacco to him on their doorstep, is a man named Reynolds. The name first given to the police was Daniel Niles, but that was a mistake. Mr. Niles is a Potter Press Works employe, and a most highly esteemed citizen. Reynolds, the real culprit, has gone to Worcester, Mass., to escape arrest and punishment.

Rode Before Brown Himself.

Considerable excitement was caused Sunday noon over the reported suicide of an employe of the Scott Printing Machine Works. The man had had a quarrel with his wife, and to frighten her he ran out of the house towards the brook and threw in a log that made a heavy splash, as though he had jumped into the water. The wife and children and their neighbors were much alarmed, and searched for the body. Presently the man came forth from his place of hiding and relieved the people of their fright.

And Yet They Call Them "Savages."

There have been two of the New York papers that never get a Plainfield news item correct except when it is copied from THE PRESS. Even as to Prince Lucien Campbell's name, and the fact that he is a son of Hon. Wm. Walter Phelps, and that nothing had happened to Maurice Dousset at all. The dead were, however, stole the Page Boy paper's item and published it as fact.

I HAVE had occasion to use Piso's Cure for Consumption for Coughs and Colds, and find it to be a most excellent medicine. It has never failed to give me prompt relief.—Mrs. ANNIE HAWLEY, Chicago, Ill., Feb. 10, 1895.

THE PASTOR HAD A GUN.

And Mike Jodnes Tested How Assailed Him Do Not Them to Flight.

The trouble which the Rev. Arthur Cumbler Dill, ex-pastor of the Presbyterian church at Stirling, in the mountains just back of North Plainfield, has been having for with a number of his flock, came to the members of his flock, has reached the climax.

The young man are charged with "maltreating a citizen on the highway," and the complainant is the Rev. Dr. Dill.

It is alleged by Mr. Dill that he returned to his home on the hillside last Saturday night, and was mounted at the gate by five young men, who presented revolvers and ordered him to halt. Mr. Dill was armed, and he promptly drew his revolver.

"I have you covered"—he said to the young men.—"Molest me any further and I shall shoot."

He then opened the gate, and, keeping the young men covered with his revolver, walked backward to the front door of his house, and there he stopped and awaited the would-be assailants, and as he opened the front door one of them called out and said a conference was desired. He told them to go away or he would shoot. As they fled they made use of a volley of oaths and called him vile names. In conclusion one of them exclaimed:

"We will give you ten days to get out of this place."

Yesterday a Morristown constable was in the city looking for Mike Jodnes, who is a son of Justice Moffett, and Will Moffett, the justice's nephew. Will Moffett lives at Basking Ridge. The constable left word at the house that he had a warrant for their arrest and that if they desired things to go smoothly it would be advisable for them to appear before the local Justice at Morristown to-morrow.

The young men's conduct was more than the clergyman could stand, and he went to Morristown and entered complaints against the young men whom he had recognized. He did not go before Justice Moffett, but before Justice Hedden, a member of the Stirling Presbyterian church and two of the offenders are relatives of the Justice. It is claimed that the Moffett boys have been instrumental in bringing about most of the slanders against Mr. Dill.

A few weeks ago printed notices appeared on all available points in the village. One even found its way upon the front of the railroad station. The notices stated that $500 reward would be paid for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons, male or female, who painted red, white and blue the horse belonging to Mr. Arthur Cumbler Dill. They were signed "Marry Me".

The notices caused considerable indignation, and were torn down wherever discovered.

Another attempt was made to throw scandal on the clergyman, from the fact that he resided with Miss Catherine Boyle, a lady who is said to have made a free gift of her home and publicly declared that she had provided for him in her will.

Miss Boyle is a woman bent with years, and her aged sister lives with her. She announced her gift to Mr. Dill two weeks ago, when a reception was held at the home by his friends. Resolutions were adopted by those who attended the reception stating that the pastor had endeared himself to the people in the past six months more than ever before by his heroic Christian life; and that they do tried to put on record in it lasting way to his unswerving fidelity, loyalty to Christ, and to the faith once delivered to the Saints," fearless courage, purity of thought and life, and his manliness under all trying circumstances, and his generous loving kindness. A great work and great good they said—had been done in the past six weeks.

The reception evidently gave offense to Mr. Dill's enemies, and when they heard that he attended the picnic of the Stirling Presbyterian Sunday night they laylin wait for him on his return.

The trouble, which appears to have come to a head by the ejectment's vigorous action, is said to have originated in a spat with more or less bitterness for about a year and a half.

Stirling is situated on the line of the Morris and Essex railway, and stands in the midst of beautiful hills. A large portion of the people work in the silk mills just over the state line, and, under circumstances, and his generous loving kindness. A great work and great good they said—had been done in the past six weeks.

The reception evidently gave offense to Mr. Dill's enemies, and when they heard that he attended the picnic of the Stirling Presbyterian Sunday night they laylin wait for him on his return.

The trouble, which appears to have come to a head by the ejectment's vigorous action, is said to have originated in a spat with more or less bitterness for about a year and a half.

Stirling is situated on the line of the Morris and Essex railway, and stands in the midst of beautiful hills. A large portion of the people work in the silk mills just over the state line, and, under ordinary circumstances, would be entitled to the guile by free young men, who presented revolvers and ordered him to halt. Mr. Dill was armed, and he promptly drew his revolver.

"I have you covered"—he said to the young men.—"Molest me any further and I shall shoot."

He then opened the gate, and, keeping the young men covered with his revolver, walked backward to the front door of his house, and there he stopped and awaited the would-be assailants, and as he opened the front door one of them called out and said a conference was desired. He told them to go away or he would shoot. As they fled they made use of a volley of oaths and called him vile names. In conclusion one of them exclaimed:

"We will give you ten days to get out of this place."

Yesterday a Morristown constable was in the city looking for Mike Jodnes, who is a son of Justice Moffett, and Will Moffett, the justice's nephew. Will Moffett lives at Basking Ridge. The constable left word at the house that he had a warrant for their arrest and that if they desired things to go smoothly it would be advisable for them to appear before the local Justice at Morristown to-morrow.

The young men's conduct was more than the clergyman could stand, and he went to Morristown and entered complaints against the young men whom he had recognized. He did not go before Justice Moffett, but before Justice Hedden, a member of the Stirling Presbyterian church and two of the offenders are relatives of the Justice. It is claimed that the Moffett boys have been instrumental in bringing about most of the slanders against Mr. Dill.

A few weeks ago printed notices appeared on all available points in the village. One even found its way upon the front of the railroad station. The notices stated that $500 reward would be paid for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons, male or female, who painted red, white and blue the horse belonging to Mr. Arthur Cumbler Dill. They were signed "Marry Me".

The notices caused considerable indignation, and were torn down wherever discovered.

Another attempt was made to throw scandal on the clergyman, from the fact that he resided with Miss Catherine Boyle, a lady who is said to have made a free gift of her home and publicly declared that she had provided for him in her will.

Miss Boyle is a woman bent with years, and her aged sister lives with her. She announced her gift to Mr. Dill two weeks ago, when a reception was held at the home by his friends. Resolutions were adopted by those who attended the reception stating that the pastor had endeared himself to the people in the past six months more than ever before by his heroic Christian life; and that they do tried to put on record in it lasting way to his unswerving fidelity, loyalty to Christ, and to the faith once delivered to the Saints," fearless courage, purity of thought and life, and his manliness under all trying

CITY DEPARTMENT.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY OF UNION.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - City Editor.

—Louis Spring has been made a special borough marshal.

—The borough has accepted as a public street the Bedford avenue extension into North Plainfield.

—Thomas Crosley, borough magistrate and police justice, collected $21 in fines during the month of June.

—A bright little dog residing on Franklin place took a big lighted fire-cracker in his mouth, Saturday, and started to walk away with it. Interment private.

—One patriotic church sexton Clark Mundy of Trinity—helped to usher in the glorious Fourth by ringing the great church bell vigorously at daybreak.

—A bicycle ridden by a young man of L'Grande avenue was smashed all over and wrecked by a horse on Monday and the young man was considerably cut and bruised.

—Two or three young women in this city raised $12 for the Trehune fresh-air fund last week and concealed their identity by signing merely "Plainfield" in pencilling it in.

—In our advertising columns a notice is issued by the Township Committee of the Township of Fanwood to bicyclers and [illegible] regarding riding bicycles on sidewalks.

—The crowd at the North avenue railway station Saturday morning was a dog struck by a train and thrown under the wheels and out again without being injured at all.

—It costs money to assault a policeman. One of the fellows who assaulted constable Hall during the fight at Camp picnic at Evona was captured Monday and was fined $35.

—A woman fainted on the winding railway road on the top of the mountain at Netherwood, Saturday. Her male companion caught her in time to prevent a terrible fall down that giddy height.

—Some of Plainfield's young Napoleons of finance have been raising spending money by coaxing valuable dogs out of their owners' yards, capturing them, and restoring them on receipt of reward.

—A very neatly arranged and well executed trick was that planned and carried out by the borough boys who rang the Holy Cross church bell. During the week they connected the clapper with a private rope of their own.

—In THE PRESS of Monday there were 54 different items of local happenings, all fresh and bright, and in addition there were only 33, some of which were very, very dull, and many of which were stolen from THE PRESS of last week.

—A vicious dog belonging to William A. Woodruff, of East 2d street, attacked Alfred J. Everett, an employe of I. D. TenEyck, Saturday morning, and bit him so severely that a physician was required to dress the wounds.

—A hole as big as a hat was burned in a roof on Cottage place, Saturday. A bucket of water put out the flame. This was the only fire of the Fourth reported. But the firemen were all ready equipped, alert for the call, for 36 hours.

—Brooklyn is to have superior rapid transit by the trolley system. The State board of railway commissioners have granted consent to use the trolley through the streets after a long and bitter fight by a handful of obstructionists.

—Street Commissioner Meeker is getting a great deal of praise—and he deserves every bit of it—for the excellent work he has done in the perfecting of North avenue at Netherwood and Cemetery avenue leading to Hillside.

—The firemen are getting ready to bid their old bell good-bye. They grew very fond of it during the long period of service, and it was with some regret that they rang it for the last time July Fourth. It will soon be sold and taken away.

—The seventy-first street drawbridge that Saturday was the "one hundred and sixteenth anniversary of the Declaration of Independence." It isn't often that paper go to save a couple of evenings' use, but it scored a beat this time, sure.

—Pioneer Council, No. 58, Jr. O. U. A. M., presented an American flag to the South Second street public school Saturday. The delegates from Plainfield present at the exercises were Gilbert S. Martin, C. G. Davis, R. Connolly and Jamie Connolly.

—John Brown, of South Second street, who has been locked up at Elizabeth several days, awaiting the action of the grand jury on the charge of house-breaking, was released by Justice Nash Tuesday, a bond having been given for his appearance when wanted.

—A number of North Plainfielders camped out on Rene Allen's farm at Gilletts, along the Passaic river, Saturday, and had a gorgeous clambake. They were assisted with music by a Greek who manufactures musical instruments out of the red clay on the farm.

—Warren engine house and the borough lockup are now lighted by electricity. The new light is not nearly as good as the old gas light, but it is an improvement, because it does n't flicker. Anew opposition lighting company stands to be needed, for the present people who had the job have n't been overpaid.

—Lizzie Courtney, a colored damsel, had Amaranda Jennie Peterson, like to be of dinch to death in a fight, Saturday. On charge of assault Lizzie said Jennie pushed her down and gave her an old-fashioned whipping with the palm of her hand. Peterson, according to the hair-wrenching testimony, fined Jennie $1 50, and told her she must confine her spankings to her own children.

—George Moore's white pony "Bull", that has pulled one of its owner's market wagons about the streets of Plainfield for the past dozen years, is dead. The horse was well-known to all the people of Market, Perth Amboy and other places where he had been driven. His pure white mane and tail were conspicuous to all. He was found dead in his stall yesterday morning, but the cause is unknown.

—Perfect weather favored the observance of the Fourth. The storm of Friday night cleared the air, and the sun smiled from a clear sky on shining streets, while a steady breeze from the southwest made life delightfully pleasant. It was just the day for people to take out-doors without discomfort, and evidences of enjoyment were abundant all day long. The houses were adorned, with flags and bunting, and the powder was bursting, from midnight of the 3d to midnight of the Fourth.

—The borough acted the admirable part of furnishing amusement by ballad for every preparation to fight fire at a moment's notice, during the Fourth. The cost was $68, which all the councilmen but Mr. Mershon thought a good investment for the amount of procession below. Mr. Mershon showed himself a useless and unqualified objector, and said so at Friday evening's session. Mr. Mershon is Foreman Fairchild's pleasant name similar to those of engineer Dunne on this side of the brook, and of course they were assailed.

PERSONALIA.

Miss Mabel Force is visiting her uncle, Charles Dunn, at Philadelphia.

James E. Arrowsmith is ailing with an Grant avenue, ears at Taunton, Mass.

Howard B Spencer and Will L. Spencer, of New York, spent Sunday in Plainfield.

The Misses Hutchinson of Jersey City are visiting Miss Verdon of North Plainfield.

Miss Louise Olsson, of New York, is visiting Mrs. J. H. Bolsterle, of East Second street.

Mrs. G H Burgess of Plainfield is in court arrival at Hotel Columbia, Asbury Park.

The Misses Mabel and Nate Smith are spending a vacation at Oyster Bay and Glen Cove.

F. H. Martin and family, of East Fifth street, have gone to Sullivan, N. Y., for the summer.

The Rev. Joshua Kimber, of New York, conducted the services at Holy Cross church Sunday.

Mrs. J. G. Musgrave, of Mercer avenue, will spend the summer months at Mt. Pocono, Pa.

Isaac Harris, formerly a Plainfielder, but now of Philadelphia, is visiting relatives in town.

Charles Stites of New York visited Elijah Stites of Chatham street, North Plainfield, Sunday.

Miss S. G. Keeney, of First place, will spend July and August at Pine Brook, Orange county, N. Y.

The Messrs. Raymond, of Central avenue, arrived home after their European trip, Sunday morning.

Mr. W. Queen, wife, and child, of Plainfield, are registered at Hotel La Pierre, Ocean Grove.

Mrs. J. Petrie and family, of East Sixth street, are visiting friends at Elmsford for the next few weeks.

Joseph B. Yerkes and child, of this city, are among the recent arrivals at the Columbia, Asbury Park.

Mrs. B. A. Hegeman, Jr., of Myrtle avenue, left Thursday for Mt. Pocono, where she will spend the summer.

A ten-pound boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Rogers, at their home, 59 Madison avenue, Tuesday morning.

Councilman Daniel S. Roberts is so ill that he was unable to attend the meeting of the common council Monday night.

H. W. Beebe, of the Plainfield Bicycle club, won the 440-yard run at Somerville, Saturday. The time was 1 min. 13 sec.

The Rev. Robert Lowry, of this city, conducted services morning and evening at the Bergen Point Baptist church, Sunday.

Charles Powlison, of Grandview avenue, is at home for a summer vacation. He sails for Europe, July 11, on the Arizona.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Sofield, of Perth Amboy, spent the Fourth of July at the home of their son, T. A. Sofield, 68 West Second street.

Mrs. James A. Spencer and Miss Eveline Jones, of New York, and Miss Henrietta Driggs, of Asbury Park, were the guests of Alfred B. mell, of Manning avenue, Sunday.

Richard R. Davis, formerly of this city, but now of New York, was in town among friends Sunday. He is an old member of Zephyr Hook and Ladder Company.

As the old fire bell was ringing in the "Glorious Fourth", Saturday morning, Mrs. Frank B. Force presented her husband. the driver of Alert's $500 hose wagon, with a little girl.

Dr Frank S. Wells sailed on the steamship "Britannic", yesterday for Europe. He will join his brother Dr. Herbert Wells when he lands, mount a machine and do the continent on two wheels

Samuel Gibson, a member of the First Church of Christ of this city, and a well-known character, is said to have died yesterday at a farm near Plainfield where he has been living for some time past.

Mrs. D. L. Doane is at Highland Park for the month of July. She is accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Sargeant of Brooklyn, her daughter, Mrs. S. P. Craig, and Sargeant-daughter, Beatrice Craig.

William C Ayers of this city, the versatile agent of the Central New Jersey Land Improvement company, has, on account of poor health, resigned his position and retired from active business.

Among the latest arrivals at Asbury Park are James Bowman and wife and John H. Bowman, from Plainfield, at the Brunswick, and E. Josephine Compton, Mary D., and H. C. Compton, also of this city, at the Magnolia.

Architect A. L. C. Marsh, of this city, designer of the Y. M. C. A. building and the residences of Dr. T. S. Davis, John M. Crane, Dr. J. H. Cooley, and many others, is hanging out his own shingle at 90 Nassau street, New York.

Miss Florence V Hurlburt, daughter of J. S. Hurlburt of Emily street, is spending the week at Riverside Park, and will spend the remainder of the summer in the Adirondacks, in the vicinity of the Thousand Islands, and at other resorts.

The Netherwood dance, Saturday night, was one of the most brilliant affairs in the history of the hotel. The details and arrangements were entirely under the personal direction of Mrs. Frank E. Hilliard, and she is the gold recipient of the evening's success.

Lieut. Seymour Marsh, of Putnam avenue, Henry G. Drake, of North avenue, Captain Isaac Insley, of Woodbridge, and Lieut. Applegate of Company K, New York Seventy-first Regiment, of the 28th Brig'd N. J Volu., met in Plainfield Tuesday to arrange for a reunion of the regiment's survivors in this city in August.

T. Ang Hitchman, the well-known summer resort correspondent of the New York World and Home Journal, the Richfield Springs News, St. Augustine Evening Record, Long Island News, and the Plainfield PRESS, is a guest at The Netherwood, where he has his hands full every evening chaperoning the young married couples and the broods of maidens in dark corners.

Senator Evan Williams, of Nevada, has presented to Dr. Charles Bullman, of this city, a massive berry spoon with carved handle and solid bowl, made from pure Comstock bullion just as it came from the mines. The gift is a souvenir of a recent visit of inspection made by Dr. Bullman and a party of friends, to the lands and waters of the Inyo Canal company in California.

The Misses Lillian and Mary Fritts and Messrs. Andrew Fritts and John Crawford, having returned from their extensive bicycle trip through central and northern New Jersey, are now planning a trip to the Delaware Water Gap and Port Jervis, and so on back home through northern New Jersey, a trip in all of 400 miles. This they expect to undertake during the latter part of the month.

Chauncey B. Ripley, LL. D., of Westfield, has been taking a prominent part in literature lately. His commencement oration delivered at Rutgers college was published in full-and widely circulated. The Week, New York University's magnificent annual, was dedicated to the honored doctor, and the frontispiece was a fine steel engraving giving his portrait. A sketch of Dr. Ripley's career also adorned the book. And now the University of Pennsylvania has conferred the degree of Prof. John Morton Pomeroy, LL. D., late Dean of the Law Faculty of the New York University, written by the Rutgers honoured [illegible]

James Allen Sampson is spending three weeks at Greensboro, Md.

Postmaster Thos. H. Whiteley and wife, of Roberts, Pa., have returned home after a visit of a few days and a week's stay at their uncle, F. M. Whiteley, of this borough.

The resolutions of condolence to the widow, and respect and esteem of the deceased, passed by the board of directors of the First National Bank upon the death of Cashier Carman Parsons, have been beautifully engrossed by William M. Smith for presentation to Mrs. Parsons.

Seven Plainfield stepchildren enjoyed a run to Asbury Park S-turday. They registered at the Mansion House, where they signed themselves as follows: Captain Frank L. C Martin, Lieutenant Geo. Mahon, Lieut. Ed. V. Fennell, A. L. C. Marsh, W. Lee Simmons, Geo. W. Mackrow and A. T. Ehrlich.

Frank Spencer, son of Lieut. L. C. Spencer of Wa-hingtonville, and nephew of collector H. Newton Spencer of the borough, died at New York Tuesday, in his twenty-eighth year of his age. Funeral services will be held in New York Friday morning, and interment will be made in this city Friday afternoon.

ONE GAME EACH AGAIN.

The Crescent League's Players and their Friends, Blue Flushings, Divide the Honors of the Day.

The last said about Saturday morning's game as played by the Crescent League's team, the better for their reputation. Taylor was in the box, but, as usual, Grogg and Lee were inexcusable and costly. Bonner had a finger hurt early in the game, and Jones took his place behind the bat. The score:

CRESCENT LEAGUE.

	AB	R	BH	SB	LB	SO	PO	A
Heller, lb	4	2	1	1	1	0	14	0
Daily, 2b	4	0	1	2	1	4	1	1
Lockwood, c. f	4	0	1	0	0	1	1	0
Williams, 3b	4	0	1	1	1	2	0	1
Hamill, s. s	4	0	1	1	1	2	1	5
O'Rourke, c	4	0	0	0	0	0	5	1
Keegan, l. f., c. f	3	1	0	0	0	2	3	0
Bonner, c	3	0	0	0	0	2	3	0
Ridley, c. f., lb	3	1	2	0	1	0	2	0
Taylor, p	3	0	0	0	0	0	0	3
	36	4	7	5	5	13	30	11

FLUSHINGS.

	AB	R	BH	SB	LB	SO	PO	A
Heller, lb	4	2	1	1	1	0	14	0
Daily, 2b	4	0	1	2	1	4	1	1
Lockwood, c. f	4	0	1	0	0	1	1	0
Williams, 3b	4	0	1	1	1	2	0	1
Hamill, s. s	4	0	1	1	1	2	1	5
O'Rourke, c	4	0	0	0	0	0	5	1
Keegan, l. f., c. f	3	1	0	0	0	2	3	0
Bonner, c	3	0	0	0	0	2	3	0
Ridley, c. f., lb	3	1	2	0	1	0	2	0
Taylor, p	3	0	0	0	0	0	0	3
	36	4	7	5	5	13	30	11

Crescent League ..... 0 0 1 0 1 0 0 1 0—3
Base hits ..... 0 0 1 0 2 0 2 1 1—7
Flushings ..... 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 2 1—4
Base hits ..... 0 0 0 1 2 0 2 1 1—7

Earned runs—Flushings, 2. Two-base hits—Heller (2). First base on errors—Crescents, 5; Flushings, 4. Base on balls—Crescents, 3; Flushings 5. Double play—Daily, Hamill and McGinley. Passed balls—Bonner (2). Wild pitch—Taylor. Time of game—2.25. Umpire—Mr. Bertram.

The afternoon game had a number of circus features, and the spectators laughed more than they cheered. The opposing players passed jokes back and forth, the umpire acting as a sort of middle-man. The clown of the afternoon was the visitors' pitcher, who said some highly good natured things. The one thing that was n't funny for the Flushings was the way their left-fielder fumbled the ball and helped to lose the game. "He'll never play for us again", they said. The Crescents' battery came in for considerable praise for their clean and steady work. The score:

CRESCENT LEAGUE.

	AB	R	BH	SB	LB	SO	PO	A
Jones, c	4	2	0	2	0	1	7	1
Lafferty, 2b	4	0	0	0	0	1	2	3
McLindo, lb	4	0	1	1	0	14	0	0
Hamill, s. s	4	0	1	1	0	1	4	2
Cory, s. s	4	0	0	0	0	1	1	0
Lee, lb	4	0	2	1	0	1	6	1
Grogg, c. f	4	0	1	0	0	1	1	0
Gregg, r. f	4	1	0	0	0	0	0	0
Heller, p	4	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Taylor, r. f., c. f	3	1	2	1	1	0	0	0
	35	4	7	5	1	6	24	11

FLUSHINGS.

	AB	R	BH	SB	LB	SO	PO	A
Heffer, lb	4	0	0	1	2	0	11	0
Base hits—McLindo, Hamill, Holly, Taylor, Lee (2), Williams, Daily (2). Left on bases—Crescents, 4; Flushings, 7. Base on balls—Crescents, 3; Flushings, 1. Struck out—Crescents, 5; Flushings, 4. Double play — Shannon to Heffer. Passed balls—Jones, Williams, O'Rourke (3). Flies for base hits—Crescents, 1; Flushings, 2. Umpire—Mr. Berriman. Time of game—1.55.

A STREET RAILWAY SURE.

If Plainfield Can't Have an Electric Road She'll Get Horse Cars, and Down Will Come the Electric Light Poles.

The Plainfield Street Railway Co., is pushing to the industry of the hotel. The details and arrangements were entirely under the personal direction of Mrs. Frank E. Hilliard, and she is the gold recipient of the evening's success.

Lieut. Seymour Marsh, of Putnam avenue, Henry G. Drake, of North avenue, Captain Isaac Insley, of Woodbridge, and Lieut. Applegate of Company K, New York Seventy-first Regiment, of the 28th Brig'd N. J Volu., met in Plainfield Tuesday to arrange for a reunion of the regiment's survivors in this city in August.

T. Ang Hitchman, the well-known summer resort correspondent of the New York World and Home Journal, the Richfield Springs News, St. Augustine Evening Record, Long Island News, and the Plainfield PRESS, is a guest at The Netherwood, where he has his hands full every evening chaperoning the young married couples and the broods of maidens in dark corners.

Senator Evan Williams, of Nevada, has presented to Dr. Charles Bullman, of this city, a massive berry spoon with carved handle and solid bowl, made from pure Comstock bullion just as it came from the mines. The gift is a souvenir of a recent visit of inspection made by Dr. Bullman and a party of friends, to the lands and waters of the Inyo Canal company in California.

The Misses Lillian and Mary Fritts and Messrs. Andrew Fritts and John Crawford, having returned from their extensive bicycle trip through central and northern New Jersey, are now planning a trip to the Delaware Water Gap and Port Jervis, and so on back home through northern New Jersey, a trip in all of 400 miles. This they expect to undertake during the latter part of the month.

Chauncey B. Ripley, LL. D., of Westfield, has been taking a prominent part in literature lately. His commencement oration delivered at Rutgers college was published in full-and widely circulated. The Week, New York University's magnificent annual, was dedicated to the honored doctor, and the frontispiece was a fine steel engraving giving his portrait. A sketch of Dr. Ripley's career also adorned the book. And now the University of Pennsylvania has conferred the degree of Prof. John Morton Pomeroy, LL. D., late Dean of the Law Faculty of the New York University, written by the Rutgers honoured [illegible]

ENGINEER DUNHAM OF PLAINFIELD.

New Rule Is Either a New York City Out of the Red Ink Mire.

As has already been told in THE PRESS, the city of Dunkirk, N. Y., is about to issue the streets with bolts, and the city engineer, F. A. Dunham, of this city, well known as the engineer of the celebrated high-way of Union county, the finest highways of Union county, the finest visiting those places in the west most noted for their use of brick for paving, with a view to obtaining the best possible result for Dunkirk. Bids for the brick work will be advertised next week, and contractors will be on the lookout, as a large sum of money is to be expended on the work will be under Mr. Dunham's specifications and superintendence. Mr. Dunham has just returned for a short visit to his city, leaving his wife and Dunkirk affairs temporarily in the hands of one of his capable assistants, Mr. Bacer.

Dunkirk's Evening Observer is jubilant over Mr. Dunham's work. Among other things it says:

"The city engineer, Mr. Dunham, is hard at work getting the specifications for paving Central avenue and other streets in proper condition, to give to contractors who wish to submit proposals for doing the work.

"They are very complete, and there will be no fear as to the durability of the pavement done under their requirements.

"Mr. Dunham expects to have them ready within a very short time, so that the council will not have to wait for them any delay. There is a strong desire on the part of all our citizens to see this important work under progress, and the engineer is losing no time in getting ready to start it. It will be the commencement of a system of improvement that will rapidly make Dunkirk one of the best paved city in the country, and lift us out of the mud and filth of the past. It will be an important day in the history of our city when the first brick is laid. We want to pave our streets with brick shall be successful in its settled commencement.

"The day is evidently now near at hand, and we will be ready for it. It cannot come any too soon for the good of our city.

"By invitation from the common council, the property owners met at the council room, for the purpose of giving their views as to what should be the width of the paved portion of the streets. After an examination of the maps, and their explanation by city engineer Dunham, it was unanimously voted to make the width from curb to curb. Every day now adds to the completion of the necessary work for inviting proposals. The specifications are in the hands of the printer, and it is safe to assert that for completeness in every detail, neatness and correctness of language, they are as near perfect as anyone could desire; and the city engineer has shown his ability and familiarity with the work of street construction to the satisfaction of citizens and council. Members of the latter have very reason for being perfectly satisfied with the way in which the mayor, the committee on streets, and the city engineer have pushed this important work forward. They have realized the great importance which this work is to be to the city, and have wasted no time in getting it in shape for practical business. It is unnecessary to dwell upon the benefits which these improvements will be to this city. For years we have looked in despair upon the ugly, horrid mud of our streets during several months in each season, and business of all kinds has greatly suffered therefrom. But a new era, a new departure, has commenced; and the dawn of a new system, in compliance with the will and the majority of the people, now rises in the heavenly bright, and causes the future to be filled with glowing anticipations for the prosperity of our city."

SNUBBING STONE-MAN SMALLEY.

Because of Alleged Importance He Loses a Borough Job.

A. I. Smalley is not to be permitted to furnish any more crushed stone for the borough of North Plainfield, this year. The borough council settled that matter Friday night. Some weeks before, they had accepted Mr. Smalley's bid because it was the lowest presented. In the proposition as accepted he had offered to furnish the stone "at the council's pleasure". That pleasure was that being peculiarly bright, and causes the future to be filled with glowing anticipations for the prosperity of our city."

SNUBBING STONE-MAN SMALLEY.

Because of Alleged Importance He Loses a Borough Job.

A. I. Smalley is not to be permitted to furnish any more crushed stone for the borough of North Plainfield, this year. The borough council settled that matter Friday night. Some weeks before, they had accepted Mr. Smalley's bid because it was the lowest presented. In the proposition as accepted he had offered to furnish the stone "at the council's pleasure". That pleasure was that being peculiarly bright, and causes the future to be filled with glowing anticipations for the prosperity of our city."

Now it is hoped that the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, who were elected by the people to represent the people, and not the corporations, will not waver in their duties and allow the present monopolists to lighten their grasp on the citizens of Plainfield.

A LEGITIMATE CRITTER.

MR. AND MRS. FLETCHER HURT.

And Her Sister, Miss Lizzie Laing, of This City, Cut and Bruised.

A runaway accident at Long Branch, Saturday afternoon, resulted in painful injury to G orge M. Fletcher and his wife, the daughter of Mrs. Sarah A. Laing of West Fourth street, this city. They were staying at the Laing villa in Elberon, Asbury Park. The afternoon of the Fourth of July they drove to Long Branch, accompanied by Miss Laing, Fletcher's sister, and Mr. Wack, who also were guests of the West End Hotel.

Near the grand iron pier the team became frightened at a passing train. The horses ran on the sidewalk, and the carriage was overturned. The four occupants were hurled out. Mr. Fletcher had his face bruised and his head cut. His wife received a bad cut on the head. Miss Laing and Mr. Wacks were cut and bruised.

Came to Plainfield to Escape Death.

Thomas Beatty, of 609 Grand street, New York city, has been hiding out in the woods in the southern outskirts of the city, the past few days, crying that people were after him with guns. Captain Grant and Officer Lyon, who were looking for him in a field near Sherman and Grant avenues, said that a gang of men were hunting him. He could hear their knives clashing in the air. The captain judged that he was suffering from the effects of a long spree. He locked him up for medical treatment.

The Boat That Was by Kitty Pilot.

The people who went to the Plainfield Canoe Club's regatta at Crescent Park, had a great time. The races, which were very interesting, were as follows:

Single canoes, first prize, Philip Jenny's "Blanche Warwick" first; time 5:47; John Chesbro's "John C" second; Foster's "Dynamite" third; time 5:48. Double canoes, first prize (time 5:48); "Dynamite" second; "John C" third.

Second race, First heat—Quinn's "Kitty Pilot" first; time 5:45; J. W. Johnson's "Mischief" second; time 5:50. Second heat—"Kitty Pilot" first; time 5:45; "Mischief" second; time 5:50.

A fine exhibition of speeding was given by O. T. Wartig's "Copeland" and Robert Fairbairn's "Submarine". Even better racing is expected for next Saturday.

Worried Over Bowling Matters.

The Union Leagues of Westfield again failed to defeat the Crescent Leagues of Plainfield, on the Crescents' alleys, Wednesday evening, June 24, and again tied them on the games played. The Westfield Leader is impatient, under the circumstances, to rise to the occasion, and to remark something as follows:

"Once here, then and brethren, you can tell Uncle Crescent to keep his cool head. Whence these all this dodging, first on one side of the line and then on the other? People will be after saying soon, as some of the Somerville gentlemen are said to be saying in reference to the ball game, that the games were all settled before they were played; and then you know, and never do we when it comes to a showing, any sort between Plainfield and Westfield. In the language of the immortal Wellington, 'up, guards, and at them!' and to the Waterloo for the Crescents, or somebody immediately follow."

From my knowledge of the value of Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills, derived as well from my own experience as from that of others, I can confidently recommend them as a safe and reliable remedy for indigestion and dyspepsia. I have watched their use in my family for years, and have found them to be all that is claimed for them. Rev. G. VAN BASTYNOND, Jersey City.

WHO'S "IS LEWIS"?

The Old Question Revived Yesterday.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I note in the last issue of the Times, an article [illegible] from the Engineering News, with [illegible]

This article was evidently written by the same person, or else he copied almost verbatim from the article that appeared in your columns, when the Water-Works company was first organized.

The article is, of course, of no importance, but it is amusing to see how he has written by Mr. Hering (who charges $2,000 a month for his services) or some other engineer who wants the job suggested in the article.

In 1869, as we all know, the Plainfield Common Council granted a franchise to Charles K. Hopkins and his associates under the title of The Water-Works Company of Plainfield.

Mr. Moore, who is a thorough business man, and financing, arrived at the conclusion that water-works could be established in Plainfield, and he made to pay good interest on the large capital necessary to accomplish the work.

He procured this franchise as above stated, and had the works well under way with a fair prospect of completing them in the time limit fixed by the franchise, when some of our citizens of the Rip Van Winkle order, said to themselves: "Ha! ha! my boy! What are you up to? We guess we will look into this water-works business a little now that we have shown them again. We will go to the old digest that contains have been gathering dust for the last twenty years, and see if we have not tucked away there a little key to the situation. Oh, yes; here it is. Now we will see if we cannot utilize this document and catch this boy. We will have the people want water as well as gas and electric lights. What can we do to squash this fellow? Ah! I have it. We have started quick for he is getting ahead fast."

Evidently after acquainting themselves with the situation, they saw that Mr. Moore would have to resolve on a greater proposition of bonds from investors.

Then the article states that the conditions above referred to appeared in the Plainfield organ, and same were copied into the New York press, which of course gave a black eye to the bonds. But the above statements concerning Mr. Moore puzzled overcame all obstacles.

At this time they thought that other stringent methods must be adopted, when the Hon. Lewis Leigh came forward on the scene. This proved to be the last straw that broke the camel's back. Mr. Moore had to surrender, and the Rip Van Winkles, obtained full control of the property and partially completed works.

Who is this volunteer, Mr. Lewis?

Where did he come from?

What interest has he in personally in the water question of Plainfield?

Was he merely brought forward as a tool?

Perhaps some who are more familiar with the inside facts could answer the above questions for the enlightment of the readers of the PRESS and the public in general. I was informed about six months ago that a high city official, when asked about this Mr. Lewis, by one of the Councilmen, said:

"If the Council will allow Mr. Pope to proceed with his water-works, you will not hear anything more from Mr. Lewis."

From the article above referred to one would infer that more Israel Lewises will be forthcoming in case the Council should get the franchise to Mr. Lewis.

Fortunately, as I understand it, Mr. Low has not got to go to the public with his bonds in order to raise funds to complete the works, if he should see fit to refuse; for it is understood from good authority that he has ample means in his control to do what would be required of him in Plainfield, if he has been slighted.

Now it is hoped that the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, who were elected by the people to represent the people, and not the corporations, will not waver in their duties and allow the present monopolists to lighten their grasp on the citizens of Plainfield.

A LEGITIMATE CRITTER.

MR. AND MRS. FLETCHER HURT.

And Her Sister, Miss Lizzie Laing, of This City, Cut and Bruised.

A runaway accident at Long Branch, Saturday afternoon, resulted in painful injury to G orge M. Fletcher and his wife, the daughter of Mrs. Sarah A. Laing of West Fourth street, this city. They were staying at the Laing villa in Elberon, Asbury Park. The afternoon of the Fourth of July they drove to Long Branch, accompanied by Miss Laing, Fletcher's sister, and Mr. Wack, who also were guests of the West End Hotel.

Near the grand iron pier the team became frightened at a passing train. The horses ran on the sidewalk, and the carriage was overturned. The four occupants were hurled out. Mr. Fletcher had his face bruised and his head cut. His wife received a bad cut on the head. Miss Laing and Mr. Wacks were cut and bruised.

Came to Plainfield to Escape Death.

Thomas Beatty, of 609 Grand street, New York city, has been hiding out in the woods in the southern outskirts of the city, the past few days, crying that people were after him with guns. Captain Grant and Officer Lyon, who were looking for him in a field near Sherman and Grant grove, said that a gang of men were hunting him. He could hear their knives clashing in the air. The captain judged that he was suffering from the effects of a long spree. He locked him up for medical treatment.

The Boat That Was by Kitty Pilot.

The people who went to the Plainfield Canoe Club's regatta at Crescent Park, had a great time. The races, which were very interesting, were as follows:

Single canoes, first prize, Philip Jenny's "Blanche Warwick" first; time 5:47; John Chesbro's "John C" second; Foster's "Dynamite" third; time 5:48. Double canoes, first prize (time 5:48); "Dynamite" second; "John C" third.

Second race, First heat—Quinn's "Kitty Pilot" first; time 5:45; J. W. Johnson's "Mischief" second; time 5:50. Second heat—"Kitty Pilot" first; time 5:45; "Mischief" second; time 5:50.

A fine exhibition of speeding was given by O. T. Wartig's "Copeland" and Robert Fairbairn's "Submarine". Even better racing is expected for next Saturday.

Worried Over Bowling Matters.

The Union Leagues of Westfield again failed to defeat the Crescent Leagues of Plainfield, on the Crescents' alleys, Wednesday evening, June 24, and again tied them on the games played. The Westfield Leader is impatient, under the circumstances, to rise to the occasion, and to remark something as follows:

"Once here, then and brethren, you can tell Uncle Crescent to keep his cool head. Whence these all this dodging, first on one side of the line and then on the other? People will be after saying soon, as some of the Somerville gentlemen are said to be saying in reference to the ball game, that the games were all settled before they were played; and then you know, and never do we when it comes to a showing, any sort between Plainfield and Westfield. In the language of the immortal Wellington, 'up, guards, and at them!' and to the Waterloo for the Crescents, or somebody immediately follow."

From my knowledge of the value of Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills, derived as well from my own experience as from that of others, I can confidently recommend them as a safe and reliable remedy for indigestion and dyspepsia. I have watched their use in my family for years, and have found them to be all that is claimed for them. Rev. G. VAN BASTYNOND, Jersey City.

A POEM FOR THE FOURTH.

"We Hail the Banner of the Day."

BY THE LATE ABRAHAM COLES, OF SCOTCH PLAINS.

We hail the return of the day of the birth,
Fair Columbia!—washed by the waves of the main,
Whose sons from the farthest dominions of Earth
Hasten to Freedom, and pay their devotion.
Whose inner fastness in fight, safety secure for the right,
Struck down their fierce foemen or put them to flight,
Through the long lapse of ages, that as there might be
An asylum for all in the Land of the Free.
Behold from each zone under heaven they come!
And heathliest nations, that once far outshone them,
Now paled by thy lustre, lie prostrate and dumb,
And render due homage, and no more disown them.
All the isles for thee wait, while that early and late,
Not a wind ever blows but wafts hither rich freight,
And the swift sailing ships, that bring over the sea
The oppressed of all lands to the Land of the Free.
As entrenched I look down the long vista of years,
And behold thine existence to ages extended—
What a scene, O my country, of wonder appears!
How kindling the prospect, surpassing and splendid!
Each lone mountain and glen, and waste
Is converted with cities, and swarming with men,
And tumultuous Art working marvels for then
To lift higher thy greatness, thou Land of the Free.
From our borders expel all oppression and wrong,
Oh Thou, who didst plant us and make us a nation!
In the strength of Thy arm make us evermore strong;
On our actions inscribe Praise, on our walls write Salvation;
May Thyself be our light, from Thy heavenly height,
Ever flashing new splendors and cheering our sight—
That united and happy we ever may be
To the end of all time, still the land of the Free!

NETHERWOOD HEIGHTS PARK.

An Ideal Home in New Jersey's Most Charming Suburb.

Not one of the many hundreds who have visited Netherwood Heights Park since THE PRESS first brought it to the attention of the public, but has been greatly surprised and intensely delighted. Its charming natural scenery, beautifully terraced and crowned with sturdy oaks and elms, has a most entrancing effect, and the broad and sweeping driveways are artistically laid out by Andrew J. Gavett, winding around the rising banks and skirting the deep ravines, combine in an enchanting picturesqueness that cannot be excelled anywhere.

All this, however, must be seen to be realized; and when you have seen it once you will go again and again. It has become one of the "sights" of Plainfield, and every day one may meet most of the private carriages of the city driving through the Park. The roads though new are remarkably fine, as the owner, C. V. Sidell of New York, placed no limit of expenditure upon the contractor who has had charge of the work. The good judgment of his liberality is already proved. The real estate dealers who have the property in hand, say that every day they receive inquiries as to prices of lots in the Park, and prospective buyers who visit it are more than satisfied in every way.

Charles C. McBride, editor of the Elizabeth Journal, when on his way home from his office, on the afternoon of last day, visited the Park and its surroundings neighborhood. This is the way he spoke of it editorially in his paper, the next day.

In the vicinity of Hotel Netherwood, not far from the county roads, property is being laid out in both small and large parcels at a grand rate. Roads of macadam are being concrete laid down, and the supply of water is being supplied to the houses add all modern conveniences are supplied. From the elevation in that locality, the views of which both are visible, and the whole of the States of Liberty and part of Staten Island can be had. And this is but one of many places that will be built up in Union county.

All the beautiful plots in the Park are being sold under certain restrictions that will maintain the high character of the spot as a charming place of residence forever. The erection of only houses of a first-class character will be permitted. The intended electric railway will probably come within 300 yards of the main entrances.

THE STOVE EXPLODED.

And Mrs. Addis Nearly Lost Her Life and Mr. Addis His Home.

The explosion of a kerosene stove at the home of William Addis, Orange street, Monday, caused nearly a loss of life as well as great destruction to property. Mrs. Addis had turned down the wicks of the stove and was about to blow out the flame when the explosion occurred. The burning oil was scattered in all directions, and in an instant Mrs Addis's garments and the interior of the room were ablaze. William Jr., was at hand, and saved his mother's life by smothering with his coat the flames that enveloped her. Her clothes were ruined, and the carpet and one of the furniture were destroyed before the fire was all extinguished.

SUCCESS ALREADY ASSURED.

Three Philharmonic Concerts for Plainfield Next Season.

Mr. Newman reports that the subscriptions to the New York Philharmonic concerts in Plainfield next season are coming in so generously that he has been warranted in completing the arrangements.

Mlle. DeVere

HE WORRIED ABOUT IT.

"The czar's boat will give out in ten million years more."

And he worried about it.

"It will give out then, if it doesn't before."

And he worried about it.

"It would surely give out, so the scientists said

To all scientifical books that he read,

And the whole mighty universe they would be for facin'

And he worried about it.

"And some day the earth will fall into the sun."

And he worried about it.

"Just as sure, and as straight, as if shot from a gun."

And he worried about it.

"When all creation is embodied in her straps

Just picture," he said, "what a fearful collapse!

It will come in a few million ages, perhaps"—

And he worried about it.

"The earth will become such townsfull for the race,

And he worried about it;

"When we'll jay-walk and dodge fellows on both for pure space."

And he worried about it;

"The earth will be crowded so much, witness Count Sims,

That there'll be no room for one's tongue to stick out,

And no room for one's thoughts to wander about,"

And he worried about it.

"The Gulf stream will starve, and New England will be horrified"

And he worried about it;

"That was ever the object of Southernmost Florida,

And he worried about it.

"The ice crop will be knocked into small smithereens

And snowdrifts block up our mowing machines,

And we'll lose our the crops of potatoes and beans."

And he worried about it.

"And in less than ten thousand years, there's no doubt,

And he worried about it,

"Our supply of ice and coal will give out,"

And he worried about it.

"Just then the Ice Age will return cold and severe,

Frozen men will stalked stiff with arms out like sticks,

As if calmly honouring a general thaw,"

And he worried about it.

His wife took to washing a dollar a day

To distract worry about it.

His daughter added the rude grocer to pay

He didn't worry about it.

While he who beat her tireless rub-a-dub-dub

On the washboard drum'd in her old wooden tub,

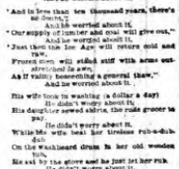
He sat by the stove and he just let her rub

He didn't worry about it.

—S. W. Foss, in Yankee Blade.

HIS SECOND WIFE.

How Dr. Brinsley's Bride Settled Their Difficulties.



R. BRINSLEY was the sort of a man you could love if you loved him; otherwise you would probably dislike him, for he was very peculiar, everybody said so. His wife had loved him, and to her he had seemed the most perfect of men. He united her and she sailed him, and they had been very happy. But, it was now three long years since poor Becky had been resting in sure hope, and the doctor's friends had decided that he needed some one to keep house for him.

After much pondering he had been particularly introduced to Miss Delia Swain. What a name! thought the doctor, but as he looked at her he saw that she was fair, gentle, healthy and twenty-five. For a moment enthusiastic selfishness he had proposed to her, and in a moment of enthusiastic devotion she had accepted him.

They were married. Everybody said: "Oh, how much nicer she was than that other woman!" She was very popular with everybody, but she was not at all popular with the doctor.

To him "that other woman" was still all the world and the brightness thereof.

Delia had married "from a sense of duty," so deserved to be punished; but it seemed to her that her punishment was greater than she deserved. She would not have wished that her husband should forget the wife of his youth, but she had expected that he would have some regard for the woman whom he had invited to preside over his household. She had hoped to make him comfortable. "to do her duty by him," as she expressed it. But of that duty she had performed in the most admirable manner; never had the doctor's house been so clean; never had his shirt bosoms shone with such lustre, nor his heart which beat behind them she had been unable to engage.

SHE SOON PAST A VERY SMALL COTTAGE.

At the end of six months of such a life the doctor noticed that Delia looked pale and ailing.

"You need a little more fresh air," he prescribed, "and I shall take you out as often as I can."

Not without some inward fear, but stirred in her very best, Delia sat in the hungry horse while the doctor drove. It was a balmy spring afternoon nature looked so fresh, so bright, so happy, that a little of this happiness breathed itself into Delia's heart. The doctor soon also have perceived the beneficial influences, for never before had he been so kind, so attentive to her, so talkative. She smiled several times, twice she absolutely laughed. She sat a little nearer to him, felt more interested, and she was beginning to feel quite comfortable, when, as luck would have it, they came to a little cottage, so very small that Delia said: "Oh, look! I wonder how people can live in a thing a bit of a house."

The doctor's brow grew dark.

"In such a house as this," he said, in his most solemn manner, "in just such a house as this my wife and I lived in the greatest happiness when we were first married."

Had Delia been suddenly shifted from India's coral strand to Greenland's icy mountains the shock could hardly have been greater.

"His wife!" she thought: "then, if she is his wife, what am I?" All that evening she sat silently sewing and answering the doctor's remarks with a primness of dignity that surprised him.

Delia did not sleep much that night. "I must leave him," she declared, at last. "I will not live with him unless I am really his wife. I can not."

Leave him; but how? Where could she go? A few hours afterward that question was answered. She received a letter postmarked "Denver, Col." It was from "Mrs. Cornelius Brinsley," on the sheet of her letter Delia's face brightened.

MRS. BRINSLEY CAME FORWARD.

"It is just what I wanted," she said to herself. "I will go to Denver."

One evening when the doctor came home Delia met him at the door and said: "Alfonso has gone, sir. She had to go a long way off, and she said she would write me, will you."

"All right," answered the doctor. "Gone to her mother," he explained to himself. "I suppose there is some sort of a fandango going on there."

His mode of thought very comfortable. But what the doctor really liked was to be hindered. He enjoyed watching the mild shadow of disapproval stealing over Delia's face. If she had frankly and bridely expressed her opinions, these labels he kept carefully, he might have fallen in love with her; but Delia always remained the same, gentle and still less cold. As the days passed the doctor began to miss his housekeeper. "Why does she not write? Cold-blooded creature!"

The cold-blooded creature wrote. Her letter was dated from Denver. It said:

"DEAR SIR: I thought you would be happier without me, so I came here. I am visiting Cousin Mamie. With best wishes for your happiness, I remain, sincerely,

"DELIA BRINSLEY."

"A pretty letter," said the doctor to his dog Dep, "or Who could have supposed she had spirit enough for that? I guess! Gone to Denver, by Jove!"

The doctor laughed; he blessed himself; he read the letter again and again; during he was on his way to Colorado.

One morning there came a tremendous ring at the door. It was a tremendous ring; she heard it all over her, and turned pale.

"Bound to get in," said Mamie, as she hurried to the door.

"Is Mrs. Brinsley in?" asked a big voice.

Mrs. Brinsley was in. She came forward smiling, very much frightened. "Cornelius!" she said, but she held out her hand as she was glad to see the doctor; she presented him to Cousin Mamie. They sat down

The Constitutionalist,
A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.
W. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE, Editors and Proprietors.
AT PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY.
TERMS—TWO DOLLARS A YEAR.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXIV. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, JULY 16, 1891. No. 29.

"Support the Constitution, which is the cement of the Union, we will in its limitations as in its authorities."—MADISON.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

JACKSON & CODDINGTON,
Counsellors-at-Law,
Commissioners of Deeds, Masters-in-Chancery, Notaries Public, Office corner of Park street and Front street.

W. V. STRELB,
Counsellor-at-Law,
Master and Examiner in Chancery, Supreme Court Commissioner,
NORTH PLAINFIELD.

GEORGE W. DAY,
General Auctioneer,
Sales of Personal Property solicited. P. O. Box 338, Dunellen, N. J., or address in care of Constitutionalist, Terms reasonable.

DR. CHARLES E. THRIFT,
Dentist,
30 West Front street. A new local anesthetic application for extracting teeth without pain. Gold filling a specialty.—1y6d

H. HAND,
Auctioneer,
P. O. Address, Lock Box 71, South Plainfield, N. J. Residence, N. J. Land Co.'s second and third, 42 West Front street, Plainfield, N. J., will receive prompt attention.—1y33

O. OGDEN TRAIN,
Architect,
141 Broadway, New York city, Rooms 29 and 30, (Limperner and Train Building.) Residence, Plainfield, N. J.—1y6d

J. H. FENSTER,
Veterinary Surgeon.
Office for the present at Livery Stables, corner Main street and Madison avenue, Plainfield, N. J. Day or night by postal, P. O. Box 552 or call at Wilson's Store, No. 8 Park avenue will receive prompt attention. Residence, 21 East Front street, corner Main street.—1y1967

BUSINESS CARDS.

P. P. VAN ARSDALE,
PIANO TUNER.
All orders promptly attended to. Terms reasonable. Residence, Plainfield, N. J. Orders may be left at Constitutionalist office. Satisfaction guaranteed. Will be in Plainfield on the first Monday of each month. Orders may be left at Wilson's Store, No. 8 Park avenue will receive prompt attention. Residence, 21 East Front street, corner Main street.—1y1967

JOHN CHANDLER,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Residence and Shop No. 36 East 2d St.
Jobbing promptly attended to. 6y47

T. J. GILLIES,
Auctioneer & Real Estate Agent.
SALESROOM—Madison avenue, near Front St., PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Goods received on consignment.

TO THE PUBLIC!

We wish to inform our customers and the public generally that we have on hand the best quality of
LEHIGH COAL,
Fresh from the Mines.
We are prepared to deliver it in good order screened and in good order promptly. We are also prepared to furnish all kinds of Seasoned Lumber and Mason's Materials at short notice.
A. D. COOK & BRO.
1849

J. Hervey Doane,
6 PARK AVENUE,
[Formerly Clark's.]
Watches,
Clocks
And Jewelry.
Repairing neatly and promptly done.

FOR BEAUTIFUL DESIGNS
GO TO
23, 25 and 27 PARK AVE.
Garret Q. Packer,

SANITARY PLUMBING,
Brick and Portable Furnaces,
GAS FITTING,
TIN ROOFING,
Etc., Etc.
I am prepared to do any of the above branches in a workmanlike manner, and at reasonable estimates.
Having associated myself with the Master Plumbers' Association of New York City, I can guarantee best workmanship, materials and prices for work. I believe in every man running his own business. All I ask, satisfy all concerned.
D. W. LITTELL,
No. 8 NORTH AVE. Opposite Plainfield, N. J.

Alex. Willett,
DEALER IN
BOOTS & SHOES,
No. 1 PARK AVENUE.
A full assortment of desirable goods direct from manufacturers, at Low Prices. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Geo. A. Moore,
(Of the late firm of Moore Bros.)
is now the sole proprietor of the old established market at
NO. 14 NORTH AVENUE,
where he will continue to supply patrons with the finest grades of Fresh and Salt Meats, of all kinds, Oysters, Clams, Game in season, etc. The utmost neatness, promptness and courtesy will be strictly observed at this popular place. 6y47

HOTELS AND SALOONS.

FORCE'S HOTEL,
NORTH AVENUE, [NEAR E. R. STATION.]
JAS. M. FORCE, Prop'r.
A FIRST-CLASS FAMILY HOTEL. Passon Host. Firstclass Plumbing.
Transient guests at reasonable rates. 10-31-tf

SOMERSET HOTEL,
Corner Somerset and Emily Streets,
NORTH PLAINFIELD.
RICHARD A. SOYCE, Prop't.
Permanent and transient board at fair rates. First-class table and stools attached. Meals at all reasonable hours.

Dime Savings Institution
OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest at the rate of three (3) per cent. per annum payable semi-annually.
JOHN W. MURRAY, President.
WILLIAM WHITE, Vice "
NATHAN HARRIS, "
ELIAS R. POPE, Treasurer.
1867.

Jas. M. Dunn,
Dealer in
GROCERIES, PROVISIONS,
Vegetables, Fruits, etc.
No. 36 Park Ave.
OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.
THORBURN & CO'S GARDEN SEEDS,
BEST IN THE WORLD.
ALL GOOD OF DELIVERED FREE OF CHARGE.
6y6d

ESTABLISHED 1836
C.E. & J.W. BROWN,
[Successors to C. F. & C. E. Brown & Co.]
Importers, Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
WALL PAPER.
321 Canal Street,
NEW YORK.
English Tiles, Anaglypta, Hand, Leather Raised Flock Papers, &c. Borders for Walls.
Manufacturers of Window Shades.
6y52

LIVERY.

A. M. SEGUINE,
(Successor to John W. Laing.)
Laing's Hotel Stables

Front street, opposite Madison avenue.
Close hacks for Weddings, Parties and Private Calls. Light carriages of all descriptions for pleasure.
RIDING OR LIVERY.
Careful, safe drivers for shopping calls or pleasure drives. Horses taken at livery or boarding by the day, week or month.—oct19y1
TELEPHONE CALL, NO. 26.

Accommodation Express.
PETER RICKERT, Proprietor.
Office—Vanderhoef's Hardware Store, Park avenue. The Accommodation Express will attend to the general carrying business of the city, delivering goods or baggage to and from the Depot, or from place to place. Horses and Carts for Pleasure or Business can be had at reasonable rates. All orders promptly attended to. Leave orders at the office or address by mail. Prompt attendance to Orders.

INSURANCE.

WILLIAM A. WOODRUFF,
FIRE AND LIFE
INSURANCE AGENT,
Office cor. Front St. and Park Ave.,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Real Estate for Sale & Exchange.
MONEY TO LOAN
On Approved Security.
1y6

J. C. Pope & Co.,
GENERAL AGENTS OF THE
German American Ins. Co.,
of New York.
Also represents other first-class Fire Insurance Companies. Agents of the Home Mutual Building Association, Dunellen, Scotland for sale. Stock in the National Bank Stock Bought and Sold. Also,
BUILDING LOTS
And Other Real Estate for sale.
OFFICE:
6 E. FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD.
JAMES C. POPE, ELIAS R. POPE

A FEW TRAINED
AGENTS
Can secure permanent positions with the old and reliable house of
The World's Religions.
Agents Wanted. LIBERAL TERMS. A FINE, Attractive, Salable Book. Best Territory. Address, THE CHRISTIAN LITERATURE CO. 30 Rose Street, NEW YORK.

EDUCATIONAL.

Miss SCRIBNER
AND
Miss NEWTON'S
SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
AND KINDERGARTEN,
17 LaGrange Avenue,
CORNER OF WASHINGTON STREET,
Will reopen WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 17, 1890.
The regular course will include Modeling, Drawing and Sewing.

PAINTERS & PAINTERS' SUPPLIES

Paints, Varnishes, Glass.
WINDOW SHADES AND FIXTURES.
WALL PAPERS!
PAPER HANGING A SPECIALTY.
A. SWLM,
No. 6 North Avenue, Plainfield.
1y33

L. E. WOOLSTON. J. F. BUCKLE
Woolston & Buckle,
PAINTERS,
Wall Papers,
PAINTER'S SUPPLIES. 20 NORTH AVENUE
apr30tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

LEWIS B. CODDINGTON,
[Successor to T. J. Corey.]
Furniture and Freight Express!
OFFICE—34 W. FRONT ST.
Large Covered Vans or Trucks. Goods delivered to all parts of the country. Furniture packed, removed, Charges reasonable. P. O. Box 228, 6y5 Piano moving a specialty. 7y26d

Fresh Garden Seeds
AND F RTILIZERS,
Farm and Garden Implements,
Lawn Mowers Refrigerators,
Ice Cream Freezers,
Gasoline Stoves, Hardware, Tools, etc.
J. J. HEIDELOFF,
No. 13 SOMERSET ST. 6-12-tf

CANOPIES
For Weddings, Parties, Etc.,
TO HIRE. CHARGES REASONABLE
Hugo Weigman,
20 EAST FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD, N. J.
MESSRS.

ADRIANCE
Buckeye Mowers
AND REAPERS, Agricultural Machinery
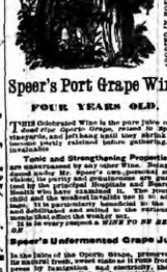
Depot.
Gasoline Stoves, Refrigerators,
Tinware and Plumbing.
A. H. GRIFFEN,
13 East Front Street.
TELEPHONE CALL, 4. 12 11-tf

SPEER'S
GRAPE WINES,
ALSO
UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.
Used in the principal churches for communion. Excellent for females, weekly persons and the aged.



Speer's Port Grape Wine,
FOUR YEARS OLD.
THIS Celebrated Wine is the pure juice of the grape, and is highly recommended by the faculty as a stimulant, and for being kept until they shrink and become old, rendering it perfectly harmless. It is invaluable.
Tonic and Strengthening Properties are guaranteed by any other Wine. Being prescribed by physicians in their own personal experience, for purity and genuineness are guaranteed by those who have used it in their families. The National Bank Stock Bought and Sold. Also, Real Estate bought and sold. Also, Money to Loan on bond and mortgage. Interest collected and remitted to the owners without delay. Rents collected. Taxes paid. All business entrusted to my care will be faithfully and promptly attended to. It is in every respect a WINE TO BE BELIED OF.
Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice
Is the latter of the Speer's Grape, prepared in the manner that sweet cider is from fresh fruit by fermentation and sterilizing, thereby keeping the juice unfermented and pure. It is perfectly pure, free from spirits, and will keep for any length of time.
Speer's Sacramental Claret
Is held in high estimation for its richness as a wine. Many families, especially suited for dinner use.
Speer's P. J. Sherry
Is a Wine of superior character, and purchased at a much less price than the Sherry from Spain. It is made from the
Speer's P. J. Brandy
Is a pure distillation of the grape, and stands unrivalled in the purity and delicacy of its flavor. Recommended by physicians for family use.
MANUFACTURED BY ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., in the rear of the store.
SOLD BY DRUGGISTS AND FIRST-CLASS GRAND WINE DEALERS. 6y6-7

TOBACCO, SEGARS, &c.

H. EGGERDING,
No. 17 Park Avenue,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Manufacturer of the Celebrated
C. O. D. CIGAR.
The best Domestic in the State, and made entirely from the finest and purest
CLEAR HAVANA SEGARS A SPECIALTY.
All Segars not bearing the Internal Revenue Stamp and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobaccos Always on hand.
Smokers Articles in Great Variety.
7y27

C. M. FINE,
Dealer in HAVANA & DOMESTIC
—SEGARS!—
6-28 PARK AVE., [NEAR CORNER OF SECOND ST.]
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Tobacco and Smoker's Materials,
a Fancy Assortment.
The celebrated "Old Judge" Smoking Tobacco, with other popular brands of Tobacco and Cigars always on hand. 6y47

A. WOLFF,
Manufacturer of
CIGARS,
And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles. Also, agent for the Celebrated "Old Judge" Cigarettes. Will be pleased to see his friends and the public generally. 4y3

CARNEY BROS., Ag'ts,
11 SOMERSET ST.
TINNERS,
PLUMBERS,
GAS FITTERS.
PARLOR STOVES,
COOK STOVES,
HEATERS.
Grates and Bricks for all kinds of Stove can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your Tinware mending to us. The best Tinners, the best Plumbers, and the best Gas-Fitters in the section. We can note that the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction.
Keys of All Kinds are Made Here.
Tinware Made to Order.
Ranges, Brick and Portable Furnaces
SANITARY PLUMBING.

WHATEVER form of printed matter you require we can be of service to you; whether it be

Letter Headings,
Circulars,
Programmes, Menus,
Addresses,
Memorials,
By-Laws of Societies,
Prospectuses and Reports of Financial Associations, or any other matter for Public or Private Circulation.
Everything,

WEEKLY CONSTITUTIONALIST.

DAILY: PRESS

(Chautauqua" Building).

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

THE TRUNDLE-BED VALLEY.

I know a little valley, in among the mountains,
A wonderful for Nature's peace and green and fountains,
All scattered down the valleys, are all trimmed and neat
A crib for Nature's child, that was, to nestle in and eat.

I love to watch the sweetest sunset with the fly's asleep
And the tiniest brook is the blackest that ever was upon its knee.
When the little heart is heavy for my heart are heavy, too,
And I shed a tear for every tear that ever runs my trundle-bed.

For the day necessitates are the nightmares, as I down through its sweetest valley, the trundle-bed.
The sun shines like a beam of light in the heavens, As it shines so warm as' bliss's where my little valley lies.
That I don't mind any candle was I seek my trundle-bed.

Mother Nature' lover her child's as the good of soul has spotted Upon its forehead, but quite over par thy trundle-bed.
As' give her fearful penalties no excuse for being over,
She gives such a lazy glitter with the coldness blood as she.

So, we's I'm torn an' tired, do my weary bones
Up the grassy-sitter valley to my little trundle-bed.
Mother Nature' hands her boss down, and she tucks me in,
That I rise and tackle bravery all the way I have to go!

—N. W. Post, in Yankee Blade.

A NOVEL DEFENSE.

How a Frightened Girl Saved the China Bowl.

"Yes, it was a rather a novel defense, and the strangest of using it as such.

Alice Weston lived in a big old-fashioned country house, built when farms five or six miles distant from any other habitation. Her father and mother, being old-fashioned folk, always retired to bed at nine o'clock; her brother and his wife did the same, and Alice thought it the most dreary thing about the place.

On this particular night Alice was sitting before the half-burned embers of the parlor fire, after all the rest had retired, leisurely combing out her long black hair, and dreaming, as maidens will, of anything and everything.

The room was lighted by a lamp dark-burned, illuminated now and again by transient flashes of light from a load of wood piled on the very top of the grate, which now and again sent up spears of white flame to play upon the warm, and wonder curtains, and the dark tablecloth, and the crimson wall paper.

Everything glowed red in the room save one small white mound in the corner beside a wide sofa, and Alice knew that to be Baby Weston's little cradle, where he generally spent his days taking and usually passed his nights in mother pressed her small household accessions.

Then, Alice was now, of course, sleeping upstairs, and the cradle was empty.

When Alice had dreamed to her heart's content, and was preparing to leave the room, it suddenly occurred to her to gather up the dying embers of coals into the shovel and carry them up to her own bedroom stove, as the night was chilly.

She proceeded to do so, and raised the sulphurous pyramid to the shovel.

As she elevated the shovel a light flame burnt all over the top of the pile, and for an instant the whole room was illuminated by it.

In that instant Alice, looking by chance into the cradle, thought she saw a second white object in the corner. She lowered the shovel as that the fumes might play on the object, and looked more carefully.

Assuredly there was something white beside the mound—nothing merely was there a few minutes ago!

Alice's heart, which was as timid as that of a hare, began to beat very fast. What could it be? Had they forgotten to take the baby up to bed, and had he fallen out of the cradle?

SHE RAISED THE SULPHUROUS PYRAMID

All of one, she saw, or thought she saw, the cradle move.

Scarcely waiting to reason, only conscious of a horrified conviction that Master Baby had been overlooked, and had consequently overturned by way of revenge, Alice shovel in hand, went over to the corner, and stooped to examine the mysterious white object.

She found a man's face. His eyes staring up in mute terror, his countenance ghastly and bloodless, the rough black hair white garnished chief, chin and lips fairly bristling—his agreeable image glared up at the fiery shovel, and he threw his arms upon him, and at the wrathful woman with the long, flowing hair, his open, toothless mouth in a frantic but dumb appeal for mercy.

As for Alice, she was so far from thinking of

The Constitutionalist,
W. L. FORCE, A. L. FORCE
Editors and Proprietors.

POPULAR RIGHTS.

The equal rights of all the people and an equal opportunity for all prosper in their respective vocations, and unmolested by any mercenary power, political or monied, to possess and enjoy the results of their industry and upright living, is the corner stone of free government.

Upon that foundation the Constitution of the United States was reared, and in its defense, against encroachments numerous and unprincipled, the party of Democracy has ever stood guard.

Such fidelity to popular rights links the same Democracy with the brightest of honor, and discloses the reason why as a partisan organization it has outlived so many antagonists.

The Democratic party never faltered in allegiance to the greatest good of the greatest number, and in a calm and unbroken line of people have, through sunshine or storm, rallied around its banner as the only political emblem of hope and safety.

That banner remains unfurled and well so.

Because perils dire and many threaten the permanent welfare of the people. Popular rights are still jeopardized by various organizations.

Combined monopolists, with craving greed, are abroad in the land seeking what and whom they may devour; while pernicious class legislation demands that the many toiling many to enrich the privileged few.

In the future as in the past, the party of Jefferson and Jackson will be found fearlessly battling for the rights of the people.

What the Jersey Farmer Read On.

The Macedonian cry with which the agriculturists of New Jersey implored the Legislature was with the expectation that the Legislature would come to their aid and begin an agrarian millennium by the passage of laws, at the time culled forth from the State newspapers an admonition which was not calculated to soothe the feelings of the distraught graziers. The idea of making "farming pay" by the enactment of a few passing laws, and the expectation in the agriculturist breast that the multiplication of statutes upon the statute books of State of New Jersey would make old Mother Earth yield up bigger crops and raise the price of farm products, to say nothing of relieving the burden of the country, was a trifle too much, and the editorial fraternity, with a frankness that seems to have excited some of the grangers to profane utterance, felt it to be their duty to abandon speculation on questions of finance, traffic and social economic problems, and pitch in and till their ground, bringing to the task the most improved machinery and the greatest intelligence, and then they would have no need to petition for legislation.

The State Board of Agriculture, responsive to the needs and wants of the farmer, devoted a deal of its time last year to a study of the conditions of which the State grangers complained. The eighteenth annual report, which the to of use just bound, bears ample evidence of the time bestowed upon the subject in which the agriculturists have so long discussed. It is an agreeable fact that the members of this body, after exhausting the question, conquer large, for the views held by the newspapers. There seems to be little the matter with the land of New Jersey. The soil is well adapted to diversified agriculture, and its farms are advantageously located that everything is to the advantage of the cultivator. Even the climate seems to be with the farmer himself.

It may as well be concede—remarks the Newark Evening News—and conceded at once—that the Legislature can do little should bring the railroad and other transportation companies to book as soon as it can be shown that the people of this State are the victims of excessive freight charges. The state is gridironed with rails and zoned with canals. The public, which has given the right of way to transportation, should be treated fairly. It will be seen that the Jersey farmer, with the two greatest cities of the country on either side of him, with a great shipping centres two hours' time from his granaries, with exceptional facilities for high-class products for the markets, enjoys advantages which the husbandmen of no other state can claim. What other conditions, then, besides the possible discrimination in freight charges, are necessary to render the status of the Jersey farmer a matter of solicitude? The report of the State board shows the trouble. Too much labor is intelligently exerted upon too large farms. That's the meat of the report of the State board. Fewer acres more intelligently cultivated, says the Commissioner, with a more perfect system of marketing, and the condition of the Jersey farmer would change for the better. Exactly; but when his attention is paid to the cultivation of fruits, vegetables and dairy products for the 5,000,000 people at his door does the Jersey farmer reap the rewards which are his due.

Now that the steam engine brings the most distant farms of the West into quick communication with the markets of the country, the Western granger is an active competitor with the husbandmen of the East. New ideas are in vogue, more scientific methods are employed and larger machinery used in farm work than ever before. The Jersey farmer, feeling secure in the shape of the protection the market at his door, has plodded along in the old rut, and that has been and is his trouble.

New Jersey's Public Schools.

A census bulletin on education, prepared by a special agent, gives the preliminary showing of public school enrollment from the records of those States not shown in previous bulletins: Alabama, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey and Tennessee. Private and parochial school enrollment, still subject to revision, is also given because so fully presented. The combined business for the whole country shows an aggregate enrollment of public school for 1890 of 9,951,698, and for 1890 a public school enrollment of 13,592,721, an apparent gain of enrollment in public schools of 36 24 per cent. The gain of population, meantime, was 23.86 per cent. New Jersey and Idaho have an apparent gain of school enrollment slightly less than the gain in population. In New Jersey the per cent. of gain in population from 1880 to 1890 is 27.34, while the per cent. of gain in the public school enrollment is 14.05.

Great Sale for Plainfield Merchants.

At a regular meeting of the Plainfield Bicycle club, held Monday night, a committee was appointed to arrange for a grand road-race, open to all Plainfielders, over the county road, to take place early in September.

Three medals will be given. Particulars will be announced in these columns later.

I HAVE a full assortment of tobacco pouches, pipes and cigars, which I offer at reasonable prices. My stock of Kinnikinick is always fresh and of the best quality. Call and see me at my store, 14 Park place, Plainfield, N. J.
CHARLES A. REED.

Dr. Miles' Nervine
Dr. Miles' Nervine is a positive cure for Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Nervous Headache, Nervous Prostration, Nervous Dizziness, Fits, Nervous Neuralgia, St. Vitus' Dance, Hysteria, Backache, Nervous Chills, Nervous Irritability, Mental Depression, Loss of Memory, Impotency, Wakefulness, Seminal Emissions, Spermatorrhœa, Impaired Vision, Pain in the Back, Lassitude, all Female Complaints, Loss of Sexual Power, Premature Old Age, Epilepsy, Paralysis, Sexual Exhaustion, Impaired Nutrition, Nervous Debility, Impaired Memory, Impaired Hearing, Impaired Speech, Impaired Sight, Impaired Taste, Impaired Smell, Impaired Touch, Impaired Feeling, Impaired Thought, Impaired Will, Impaired Judgment, Impaired Reason, Impaired Conscience, Impaired Soul, Impaired Spirit, Impaired Life, Impaired Death, Impaired Resurrection, Impaired Eternity, Impaired Heaven, Impaired Hell, Impaired Purgatory, Impaired Limbo, Impaired Nirvana, Impaired Transmigration, Impaired Reincarnation, Impaired Metempsychosis, Impaired Pantheism, Impaired Polytheism, Impaired Monotheism, Impaired Atheism, Impaired Agnosticism, Impaired Infidelity, Impaired Skepticism, Impaired Doubt, Impaired Faith, Impaired Hope, Impaired Charity, Impaired Love, Impaired Mercy, Impaired Justice, Impaired Truth, Impaired Wisdom, Impaired Knowledge, Impaired Understanding

CITY DEPARTMENT.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY OF UNION.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - City Editor.

—Elizabeth's tax rate has been fixed at $2.50 for the coming year.

—The Westfield baseball team will play the Cubai Giants next Saturday.

—There will be a grand promenade concert at Hotel Nettenwood, Thursday evening, the 16th inst.

—McLaughlin was too slow for the Crescents, last year—this year he's too fast for the West Ends.

—The excursion of the Crescent Avenue Sunday-school, on Saturday, is said to be the largest that ever left Plainfield.

—The members—whoever they are—of the "Ike's Nebbishes" will hold a banquet over that in—are to have a summer meeting at Avon-by-the-Sea, Friday.

—John Brooks, of Brandreth, has been granted two more patents—one for an inking machine for printing presses, and one for a cylinder printing press.

—It is claimed that Webster Henry, a Lehigh Valley passenger engineer, recently made 47 miles from South Plainfield to Easton, a distance of 46 miles, in 50 minutes.

—It is whispered that the Jersey Central railway is considering the advisability of building a railroad from Flemington to Quakertown in order to catch the peach trade.

—It is now charged that Daniel Miles was implicated in the assault of Louis Zirnn, who would not open his store on Saturday, his Jewish Sabbath. The police are looking for Miles, but say he has skipped.

—Mr. and Mrs. Jorgen Lursen, of South avenue, Netherwood, have the sympathy of the community in the sad burden death of their infant daughter, Gudrund Elizabeth, which occurred Sunday morning.

—The Plainfield Bicycle Club have called the following clubs to ride for this month: July 15, to Cranford; July 18, to Springfield; July 22, through the Orranges; July 25, to Westfield; July 29, to Roselle.

—Chief engineer Axtell, of the Elizabeth fire department, drove to Plainfield Sunday with the new horse, harness and wagon presented to him by the citizens, and spent the afternoon with the Plainfield firemen.

—Once more is THE PRESS called on to make this announcement: The mail which on Sunday is payable on Monday, and a note now falling due on Saturday (if made after April 1) is also payable on the following Monday.

—Mary Anna Custer, age 23 died at the home of her mother, Sarah Green, 169 East 8th street, Tuesday. Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon, at 2:30 at the house, and at 3 at the M. E. Ohio Baptist church.

—Read the communication in another column about trolley street-railways, from Dr. Hunt. Every one should write him as a citizen with those who for purely personal reasons are trying to stop the construction in this city of so great a benefit.

—Visitors to the temperance town of Asbury Park are amused by this sign in a window near the station:

FIZZ!
(nonalcoholic)
5 Cents Per Glass.
Perfect Substitute for Beer!

—The old complaint against Thomas Dowd, for intoxication and foul language, was dismissed by Judge Stillman, this morning, on motion of corporation counsel Marsh and under two new complaints, on the same charges promptly issued, Dowd was fined $100 and in default of trial next Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

—Mr. Stine, the owner of the house whose front steps fell and caused injury to Mrs. Taylor and Mr. Shelling, says he has never been asked to pay damages of any sort or any doctors' bill. He does not know what they are talking about, he says, in throwing out of his refusal to do something he has never been asked to do.

Death of Mrs. Pound.

Rebecca, widow of David Laing Pound, died at her home on Central avenue on Monday in the sixty-seventh year of her age. She leaves three sons, Walter, Henry and Samuel, and a daughter, Mrs. Louis Dunn.

PERSONALIA.

P. L. Conde of this city is registered at the Surf House, Asbury Park.

Mrs. C. C. Hunt and daughters, and Miss Marguerite Burnett, of this city, are recent arrivals at the Ocean House, Ocean Grove.

George T. Rogers, of 99 Rockview avenue, will leave early to-day for a two-weeks' visit to Chatham, Barnstable county, Mass.

Master Jack Dumont's all right. His many friends and admirers will be glad to hear that he's got his eyes open again, and their sight is not injured.

Dr. T. S. Davis and family left New York last night for Boston and a short trip to the White Mountains, after which they will spend a month at Lake Placid in the Adirondacks.

Mrs. George F. Merchant, of 110 East Front street, with her daughter Nellie will leave town Friday for a period of rustication at Sparta, among the hills of Sussex county.

A Boston paper devotes over a column on its first page to a description of Arbor Vitæ Lodge, the elegant country residence of T. O. Bullock, whose wife was Miss Sutton of this city.

Mr and Mrs. F. C. Harder, fashionable society people of Plainfield, will be welcomed by the social set at the Coleman. They are but recent arrivals.—Asbury Park Daily Journal.

Robert G. Smith of 111 Broadway, left for Maine to-day. He will rough it along the coast, preparatory to resuming his studies in the fall. He has successfully passed the examinations for Harvard, and will enter the Junior class.

Mrs. J. P. Homan, Miss Nettie Homan, George Homan, Miss Mary Bradshaw and Miss Belle Bradshaw, of this city, and their friend Samuel Clark of New York, registered at the Grand Opera House, Asbury Park, to-day for a two-weeks' outing.

The Fanwood Club will entertain a company of their friends at the Club house, Saturday, from two until ten p. m. There will be bowling, lawn tennis, croquet, dancing and other amusements. Supper will be served from five to eight. In case of rain, indoor amusements will prevail.

John L. Holly, of this city, and Lieut. Oliver D. Bridgman, of The Netherwood, are members of a detachment from Troop A, First Dragoons, National Guard, New York's noted company of amateur cavalrymen, who will leave for Washington to-night, as the guests of Cavalry Troop B, National Guard of the District of Columbia.

Miss Frankie Phillips, the well-known music teacher, gave her class a reception at the house of Abrah Gray, Jr., on Friday last, Friday evening. The entertainment consisted of some choice music, progressive games, refreshments, etc. The following members were present: Daughter of the manner in which the musical selections were rendered, selected great credit on the teacher.

Miss Butler, of East Front street, has returned from Europe.

Lieutenant D. S. Roberts has gone to Mt. Pocono for a two-weeks' sojourn.

Miss Clarendine Tabbs is at the summer school of methods, Asbury Park.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Gayle, of 116 Watson street, are away on a trip through Virginia.

Postmaster R. B. Pope and wife spent Sunday at the Gramercy House, Asbury Park.

Herbert Coon, of East Second street, spent Sunday in Philadelphia, visiting friends.

The Rev. Dr. J. L. Hurlbut made a flying visit to his home in this city Tuesday evening.

The Rev. P. F. Smyth is among the recent arrivals at the Mansion House, Asbury Park.

B. O. Bowen and family have returned from Fredericton, New Brunswick, Canada.

Charles Powlison, of Grandview avenue, sailed for Europe Friday on the "Fernandia."

Mrs. E. E. Anthony and her two daughters are spending a few days at Newburgh on the Hudson.

Edwin Hunt'aman, or Providence, R. I., is visiting his brother, R. F. S. Hunt'aman, of Bay street.

The Misses Petrie of this city are making a tour of Saratoga, the Thousand Islands, Montreal, etc.

The Rev. Theodore J. Holcombe, of New York, conducted the services at Holy Cross church, Sunday.

Miss Annie F. Mulford, daughter of M. Mulford of Broadway, is visiting friends in Hunterdon county.

The Rev. Dr. John J. H. Parks, of Scotch Plains, is spending his vacation at the Marine Villa, Asbury Park.

J. F. McDonald has been attending the grocers' convention at Asbury Park. He was registered at the West End Hotel.

C. J. Fisk and family, of West Seventh street, are registered at the Equinox House, Manchester, Vt., for the summer.

J. H Simonton, cashier of the Union Mutual Life Insurance Company, was the guest over Sunday of ex-Councilman D. P. T. Wilbur.

James Lancey, of Putnam avenue, Secretary of the Newark Steel Company, is in Bermuda. He will spend his vacation at South West Harbor, Me.

The hosts of friends of Otto Areas will be glad to hear that he is improving greatly, every day, at Reichenhall, amid the mountains of Bavaria.

Station agent Pinnington, at Westfield, who was so popular among commuters, has resigned after years of service. His successor is a Mr. Wenzel.

J. Howard Leggett and Miss Carrie Fisher and two sisters, of this city, were among those who registered at the Norman House, Ocean Grove, last week.

At a meeting of the Mercury Horseman Club of Elizabeth, last Thursday evening, W. E. Cum of this city was elected chairman, and G. H. Rockfellow of Sea city, treasurer.

Willett Millspaugh, one of Manager Armstrong's clerks at the Plainfield Pharmacy, is at his post again after a two weeks' vacation on the Hudson and in Hunterdon county.

Bishop John H. Vincent, formerly of this city, was to address the Christian Endeavor convention at Minneapolis last week, but his voice gave out, and he has returned to Chicago.

A. M. Powell of East Sixth street will present a paper on "Constitutional Prohibition, Better and Wiser," before the tenth national temperance convention at Saratoga Springs, July 15.

Mrs. George W. Crossman, of 8 East Twentieth street, New York, is at The Netherwood. The first of August Mrs. Crossman will go to Arverne-by-the-Sea, where she will remain during that month.

The Rev. and Mrs. A. B. Hunt, Miss Grace Johnson and Master Bertie Johnson, have gone to Charlotte, Vt., a most charming spot on beautiful Lake Champlain, for their summer vacation and will be absent until the first of September.

J. Frank Hubbard, of Plainfield, director of the Union county board of free holders, enjoys the distinction of having spent twenty-four hours in the bowl. There is only one residence in New Jersey who beats this term of office-holding. That man lives in Bergen county.

The Rev. and Mrs. A. B. Hunt, Miss Grace Johnson and Master Bertie Johnson, have gone to Charlotte, Vt., a most charming spot on beautiful Lake Champlain, for their summer vacation and will be absent until the first of September.

Tappen seems to be making no effort to find his faithless consort. "Since she has gone"—he says—"let her stay away."

THE WORKS WOULD N'T WORK.

The Water Supply Company Fails Where Contractor Rosen Succeeded.

Tuesday was to have been a great day in the history of the Plainfield Water Supply company. Its five-million gallon pumping engine was to be started and all its five-hundred thousand gallon standpipe was to be filled. A number of the company's particular friends, including a representative of THE PRESS, were invited to be present.

Ex-Congressman John Rean, jr., with Frank Bergen, the contractor, and others were at the works in the morning to personally superintend the preliminaries. Together with assistant engineer L. L. Tribus they climbed to the top of the stand-pipe to look the thing over. While there they were caught in the shower which arose suddenly, and drenched to the skin. Mr. Plainfield Friday will see water enough for one day and went back to Elizabeth on the 1:03 train, leaving Mr. Bergen, who is staying at The Netherwood, to entertain those invited to the exhibition.

About four o'clock the guests commenced to arrive and were soon followed by a large crowd, expecting to see the large Worthington engines running smoothly and the water gradually rising in the stand-pipe. But they were doomed to disappointment.

A line on the stand-pipe indicated that there was about nine feet of water then in it. Mr. Davis, who set the pumps, was on hand, but the engines refused to work, they were not running. He replied that the Worthington people made pumps to run the engines by steam, and that the fuel in the stand-pipe was all he had been able to raise from the wells. One year ago last May, as the files of THE PRESS show, Mr. Rosen had contracted to water Plainfield with wells in fifteen minutes, and under the personal observation of Rudolph Hering maintained a constant flow for seven consecutive days of over 7,000,000 gallons per day, without lowering the source below ground. In his test Mr. Rosen used but one pump and one engine. Had they been of greater capacity more water would, undoubtedly, have been raised.

Upon an inspection of the Water Supply Company's plant yesterday by an hydraulic engineer, the pumps were pronounced as being perfectly set and running smoothly. The fault, so far as the pumps were condemned no fault could be found. But when a faucet was opened in the engine room no water appeared, in the pipes of the last of these being nine feet of water in the stand-pipe. It was a mystery to those present why the water did not flow from the faucet as there is no check valve between the fire plugs. The Hydraulic Tube Well Construction company was hastily sought to solve the mystery. But before the expert's arrival, Mr. Davis positively said: "Too much air can't get a vacuum." He was then engaged by Mr. Bergen's chief engineer to bring the engines to a standstill, and to-day will be on hand to start the machinery in motion once more.

ELOPED WITH HER PASTOR.

MRS. TAPPER DESERTS ONE GEORGE WASHINGTON FOR ANOTHER.

Escaped He Was a Clergyman, She Sec. Comer Easily Gained the Story Farmer's Confidence, and When One of His Two Wives Returned from England to Send Him Up He Took Unconsolation.

Tappen's Consort and Shipmate.

[From THE PRESS of July 8.]

A bit romantic in its origin, unusual in the quiet southern outskirts of this city, over the reported elopement of the Rev. George Washington Comer, a local preacher, with Mrs. George Washington Tappen, the buxom wife of a sturdy Park avenue farmer.

Tappen's place is situated on said Comer-bell's chalk-bones, just beyond the line of Union county, in Middlesex. Comer, who occupies pulpits at Stelton, Metuchen, Amboy, New Brunswick, South Plainfield, and other places, on call, boarded with the Tappens a year or more. Tappen had great respect for "the cloth", and placed the fullest confidence in the clergyman.

Of late, however, considerable gossip has been afloat concerning the relations of the Rev. George and the farmer's wife to no one. Mr. Moore then requested the assistant to take the wrench and open the valve himself. As Mr. Moore could get no water in no other way and was entirely without it. The man replied, "Mr. Kyte will be up on the next train." The gentlemen thereupon decided to wait for Mr. Kyte's arrival, which they did for two trains. As no Mr. Kyte appeared they again went to the assistant and Mr. Moore told him to open the valve of the pump. The man replied that Mr. Kyte had the key to the closet where the wrench was, but he supposed he could get spring the door open. This he did and handed Mr. Moore the coveted wrench.

Mr. Moore then turned on the water and went out to dine with a friend on Quality Hill. After dinner, while on the lawn with the ladies, Mr. Kyte came up the Hill and excitedly informed Mr. Moore, threatening him with arrest and stating that his man told him that he (Mr. Moore) had broken into the Company's building and stolen the wrench. Mr. Moore endeavored to explain but without avail—Mr. Kyte insisting that he would secure a warrant that night, although nearly eight o'clock. Mr. Moore was in a quandary. Just then the gentleman who was with him in the afternoon and a witness to the facts mentioned, approached on the scene and agreed to accompany him to Plainfield. Arriving here at 8:30 they hurried to Justice Nash's office where Mr. Kyte found that a warrant for assault, although nearly eight o'clock. Mr. Moore was in a quandary. Just then the gentleman who was with him in the afternoon and a witness to the facts mentioned, approached on the scene and agreed to accompany him to Plainfield. Arriving here at 8:30 they hurried to Justice Nash's office where Mr. Kyte found that a warrant for assault, breaking and entering the valve house, and stealing the chrom bolt, had been threatened with arrest so appeared to prevent it. He demanded an immediate examination, which, of course, was granted.

After hearing the evidence of Mr. Kyte's assistant, and also that of Mr. Moore and the other Fanwood gentleman, Judge Nash remarked that the evidence was not fleeting but the preponderance was on the side of the defendant, whom he promptly permitted to depart. It is gratifying to learn that all the parties concerned returned to Fanwood on the same train at 9:26, after Mr. Kyte had to his credit the brother-in-law's complimentary Mr. Moore's friend in the presence of the court, for his promptness in assisting everybody out of a seeming misunderstanding.

WE'D GROW LIKE A WESTERN CITY.

Here's a Man Who Has Seen Its Beautiful and Wooded Top to Have an Electric Railway Pass Its Property.

To the Editor of the Plainfield Statesman:

Being an old resident and present property holder in beautiful Yonkers, in my excuse for troubling you with this communication, I have been reading with great interest the various articles you have printed in reference to electric propulsion on the streets of Yonkers—and as I have spent a fair share of my summer time for many months here in Spokane, and having ridden on electric roads in Kansas City, Denver, Salt Lake City, Seattle and Tacoma, I feel competent to form some opinion upon this question.

We have here a double-track electric line, trolley system (enough to say the word here) and as a consequence we have no feasible electric system of propulsion without the trolley) of five miles to a standpipe, which has been in daily operation nearly two years. This road has given the most complete satisfaction in every respect. It is not noisy, except so far as a gong is used, which is a needful noise—but no extra noise, due to being propelled by electricity. Indeed, the cars make less noise than horse-cars, as being smoother on a track and not the cause of the inconsiderable noise that horses make being shoed.

Another great advantage is that the heaviest snow storm does not retard the cars. The two winters the electric cars have been running here have been noted for the severe storms. On one occasion we had two feet of snow on the level—which, of course, stopped the horse cars completely for several days, while the electric cars lost a trip, but got the safe, comfortable rides in nicely-heated coaches, and the passengers were spared the pain of seeing poor horses in the cold and storm, and the driver, also, warm, and make one feel half-ashamed to ride.

We are now putting in some twenty-five miles of electric railway, of which seven miles have been just completed. I took a ride yesterday on the new road, and propulsion by electricity is a power, and the ease with which it is applied, moving almost noiselessly, smoothly and swiftly through our crowded business thoroughfares out into the suburbs.

The cars are comfortable and simply for the ride, and more particularly Sundays and holidays. It is the poor man's carriage, and the rich man's, too.

Our city engineer, Mr. Rudolph is electric propulsion is the over-head wire, and that is really only a sentimental one, as it is not the wire that does the work—but telegraph, telephone and electric light wires being over the sidewalks and requiring heavy, cumbersome poles. And the electric railway company will gradually become educated to electric cars, and that is but a temporary objection. I have property on Riverside avenue, Yonkers, and would be willing, if it were necessary, to subscribe to a bogus to have electric cars on that avenue, if on as good a system as we have here in Spokane, because I am satisfied the value of my property would amply pay me.

With a perfect system of electric cars in Yonkers, I believe with its system of sewerage, its pure water, great beauty, and nearness to New York, that Yonkers would have a growth like some of our Western cities, and double in population in a few years.

Now no one can afford to live in the outskirts of a city, because of the cost of carriage, and there is a very large portion of the people of New York city who would do not want to be bothered with horses, the care, etc., and to Yonkers people would flock, and the value of property would be quadrupled in a few years.

Yonkers has a good start, and I believe it will be a great mistake if the citizens do not encourage the introduction of electric railways. Yonkers is the natural suburb of New York, and will be the home of many of the wealthy men of the city. Yonkers is the natural suburb of New York, and will be the home of many of the wealthy men of the city.

THE PASTOR'S PAINTED PONY.

It Is Claimed that His Own Friends Did the Blushing, to Arouse Sympathy in His Favor—Thursday's Arrest Threatened, if He Did Not Leave Town.

SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.

STERLING, N. J., July 14.—This usually quiet village is getting to be a notorious little town, and the cause of it all is the pastor of the Presbyterian church, the Rev. Mr. Dill.

When he first came to Stirling everybody liked him. A great many said that he had great ways, that they thought would be equal to have them as he got acquainted. Instead of getting over them, however, he has grown worse, and is now looked upon by many as the scapegoat of the best families in the neighborhood, and as they would not support him any longer he had to get out of the church. He has now formed a clique around and is making all the trouble he can.

Some two or three weeks ago, some unknown persons painted his horse red, his white and black, which was a very unkind trick if anyone did it to get even with the pastor; but the thing has been worked upon by a detective, and through his aid it was found that some of Dill's own friends did it, in order that he would gain his pity from the better class of people, who are opposed to him.

What the detective says is as follows: "I have been working upon this case for some time and have found that things took very much as I suspected. Mr. Dill's party did the painting. My reasons are that in the first place the paint that was used was taken from the kitchen of Dill's horse-sheds, where Dill is boarding, and another thing is that there was not enough paint on the horse to harm a colt, let alone a horse; and how was it that the gentlemen of the house where Mr. Dill boards know just where to go to find the horse, which was taken about a mile from the house, and in the dark, when at this time of the year no one has anything to call them there? When Mr. Compton started out to look for the horse he went right to the door facing him, so I have been told."

This statement has been verified in many instances, and we know the facts about the alleged assault.

One day last week Mr. Dill issued warrants for the arrest of Frank Moffett and William Moffett, the former of Stirling and the latter of Basking Ridge, for stopping him on the highway, as was told in a recent issue of THE PRESS. The very next day he repented of his act and tried to stop the arrests, but the boys were too much for him and went and gave themselves up to Justice Anderson, and were arrested for perjury, and ex-sheriff Cox, of Morristown, drove over and took Mr. Dill to Morristown, where he spent the night in jail, and acquaintances, a Mrs. King, going his bail.

The Moffett boys are not going to let the thing drop where it is, but are going to push the thing for all it is worth, as he has used their names in connection with a number of things, such as painting his horse and stealing the church bell, and the immediate cause of all the trouble. They have engaged Senator Worts as their counsel, and have a number of witnesses to be present with them as witnesses to vindicate themselves on all charges. In less than two weeks—it is threatened—there will be not a church member left in the town. The arrest unless he leaves the place. The charges will be for slander on different persons in the town.

His only followers now are laughed at as a class of people that if anyone who was well dressed and could talk glibly should tell them the moon was green they would believe it was so. They are not the brightest and best people in town, and are not such as are gifted with an overabundance of wisdom. He has also had up an old lady by the name of Boyle, living on the hill above Stirling, so that she has given her property to him, and is supported by a number that he is going to marry her.

It is reported about that the Presbytery have threatened that unless he does differently they will depose him from his office authority, as for the last five years, wherever he has preached, he has made just such trouble as this. His previous charges have been Hackettstown and Allegood, the people had almost to drag him out of the place.

The new pastor, the Rev. Mr. Labelle, came here Sunday, and is very much liked by every one who heard him preach. He will move out to Stirling in a short time. He is about 50 years of age, and is a sociable, entertaining, and from all appearances is well adapted to his calling.

SPAR.

A Country Club for Cranford.

Several sport-loving gentlemen of Cranford have combined to form a country club for the season. Fifty members are enrolled. A membership of at least fifty, it is said, is assured. A handsome residence in the heart of the town will be the club's headquarters.

Races at the Driving Park.

The racing at the Park avenues driving track Saturday resulted as follows:

Trotting—First heat, Fisher & Decker's "Dynamite" first, in 2:42½. Philip Jenner's "Blanche Warwick" second. M. Quinn's "Kitty Pilot" third. Second heat—Dynamite" first, Blanche Warwick" second, "Kitty Pilot" second. Second race—First heat: Woodhouse Farm "Mazeppa" first, in 2:46½. A. D. Thompson's "Jessie Bell" second. Second heat—"Mazeppa" first, in 2:52. A. D. Thompson's bronco second.

Two of the Woodbrook Farm colts gave a fine trotting exhibition.

Burned by Plainfield Real Estate.

The homestead, Hazelwood, owned by Messrs. Kanouse & Moller, of Dover, was disabled last Saturday off Nolan's Point, Lake Hopatcong, by the breaking of some of the timbers in the fender part of the boat, by the force of the waves, which at the time were very rough. Mrs. H. P. Frothingham, formerly Miss Bodine of this city, happened to be on board, and was quickly at her wit's end. Hastily pulling launch, the "Crescent", with Mrs. McKeown, her guest, and notwithstanding the rough water, succeeded in towing the disabled Volunteer. After the exercise of considerable skill in navigation to prevent collision the ladies were transferred from the fender to the pleasure boat and towed her gallantly to Schafer's dock, two and a half-miles distant.

The Remembers the Poor Newspaper Man.

The Dover Index says that it received on Monday with the compliments of Mrs. H. P. Frothingham, of Crescent Lodge, Lake Hopatcong, the finest peach of 1891 to pass that probably ever came to Dover—one weighing six pounds when it was caught, and the scales showed five pounds. They were from a catch of 27 cases made last Saturday by Mayor H. P. Frothingham, instructed to which were to be packed, ranging in weight from five to six pounds, and segregating for this four the superb total of 25 pounds, or an average of 5½ pounds each. They were packed in ice and lodged in the office of exhibition at the Hotel Brevilla awakened a great deal of admiration. The genial Mayor of Mt. Arlington is fully entitled to the credit of having produced the largest peach of the season, and the evidence of his skill is not an idle report, as his catches are constantly to be seen. Mrs. Frothingham was a visitor to Dover on Saturday.

John Lewis has gone into the business of raising pigeons for squabs. He has a fine lot of pigeons, and has fitted up a large house for their accommodation. He has also a number of pens in which he will fatten the squabs for the market. He has been in the business for some time, and has been very successful.

THE FIRST OF THE SEASON.

Fashionable Ladies Give a Charming Progressive Euchre Party.

Hotel Kenilworth, July 11.—The initial subscription progressive euchre party was given last evening, in the grand parlor of the hotel. A score of charming ladies and well mounted, and eight gentlemen entered the parlor and seated themselves at the tables provided for the occasion. The beautiful prizes were on exhibition previous to the game.

To Mrs. Williams belongs the credit for the exquisite taste displayed in their selection. It was a unique assemblage and thoroughly enjoyable. Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Crossman, Mrs. Bales and Mrs. Schafer, suggested the affair, and under their auspices the arrangement it was brought to a most successful conclusion. The following were the winners:

Mrs. Scott, Royal Worcester salad bowl; Mrs. Eaton, cut-glass pitcher; Mrs. Jordan, silver-bon-bon spoon; Mrs. Sidney, photo case; Mrs. Bennet, umbrella; Igor Bennet, glass decanter and wine glasses; Harry Martin, dressing case; Frank E. Miller, consolation prize, decorated china cuspidore. The event closed at 11. A vote of thanks was tendered to the fair management, after which the participants adjourned to a light luncheon, provided by proprietor Miller, in Parlor B.

J. A. H.

Burglars in the Borough.

Burglars broke into the store of R. W. Rice & Co. through a rear window Friday night and got $3 and some cents out of the cash box.

Supporting the Kitchen Garden.

At the regular monthly business meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, last week, it was decided by unanimous vote to change the date of the annual entertainment for the kitchen garden to the third Monday in September.

The following contributions to the Kitchen Gardne were generously given and thankfully received:

Crescent Avenue Sunday-school	$25.00
Seventh-day Baptist Sunday-school	9.00
Second Baptist Sunday-school	5.00
Methodist Sunday-school	5.00
Congregational Sunday-school	5.00
Mrs. Dr. Hunt	1.00

Mrs. Laura Talmage.....$5.00
Mr. J. W. Yates.....5.00
Mr. J. Conrt.....1.00
Mr. Isaac W. Randolph.....1.00
Mr. J. W. Middleton.....1.00
Mr. H. Y. Stillman.....1.00

The Burial Start at Five Fourteen Trains.

In Tax Payers' meeting on Thursday, was told the story of how Mrs. George V. Tunison's pet dog attacked his mistress. The following is a list of real estate in North Plainfield have been recently recorded in Somerset county:

Margaret E. McLaughlin to William Demarest, $1,000.
Mary Hunter and others to Kate A. Perrine, $1,000.
Kate A. Perrine and others to Lister S. Bowling, $2,000.
Eachelor Thompson and others to the Plainfield Building and Loan Association, $2,000.
George W. DeMoss to Hiram H. Woodruff, $4,250.

A Plainfield Woman at Its Head.

The executive committee of the New Jersey Women's Christian Temperance Union met in Ocean Grove, ye terday, and accepted the proposed plans for the new building to be erected on the State Fair grounds. The building will be used by the White Ribbon Army chiefly. Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson of this city, Mrs. E. A. Mizle of Middletown, Mrs. J. Somerset of Gloucester, and Mrs. E. G. Greenman of Bounton were appointed members of the building committee.

Thirsty They Saw Ghosts.

Two well-known Plainfielders, walking along the Park avenue highway just before the dawn, on a night last week, were astonished at the sudden appearance of two ghostly white forms in the roadway before them. The mysterious visitors disappeared, and waved their arms, groaned, and vanished into thin air as suddenly as they had come. The two men were almost paralyzed with the astonishment through the night and for awhile afterwards, and how they succeeded in getting home is a mystery. Before the ghosts appeared the two men had been refreshing themselves

FOR FAIR SUMMER.

Fine Frocks and Hats That Are Offered to View.

At a Coaching Breakfast—The Fashions of Boucher and Watteau—Gay Scenes at the Races—Dresses for Summer Resorts.

[COPYRIGHT, 1891.]

The smell of cloves is warm in the air and there is a sound of the droning bees. The wild roses show pink under the cliffs and the Palisades are all in full bloom and green on the beach, and if one must talk of things to wear it should at least be of pink roses. This is a world of splendor displayed in the huge blossoms whenever the fashionable women come out into the sunshine. They bloom bigger and brighter than ever parasols did before them, and they dazzle the eyes with the same means of lace, the same deep ruffles and the same startling picturesqueness of color one finds in the summer hats and gowns.

At a coaching breakfast just out of town on Wednesday the parasols were a study. There was one in a pale brown-ish cream chiffon that was composed of one deep full flounce, with a mass of crinkled shirring at the top and a huge bow of guipure ribbon of the same shade decked with small appliqué of black, also falling from the back to front over the open crown which was draped with embroidered black chiffon.

A black lace costume perhaps indicated nothing in particular but black lace popularity. Its shoulder spaniels were fan-shaped and the narrow black velvet ribbons which started from the stock and ran across the bosom, holding the fulness in front, are pictured in the illustration. The fine Chantilly was of the most delicate pattern and was used again for the bonnet, which, like the one previously mentioned, was tied with white cross-cut satin strings. The transparent parasol which offered little relief to the tall, cadaverous-skinned woman beneath it, repeated for the third time the beautiful design of the lace, with its deep flounce and its shirred gauze top made over thin bunting cloth.

TE SUMMER GIRL

There was a hat of white fancy crinoline trimmed with a ruche of fine white lace, caught down with gold pins. On the brim in front lay yellow roses. There were several smart hats of black straw with fancy brims and smartly arranged bows of white and white chiffon wings. There is no need to say there was bonnet after bonnet in the fashionable mixture of black and white.

ELLEN OSBORN.

Well Trayed.

She—And John has married Miss Splahion. Well, he certainly didn't marry her for her beauty.

He—No, he married her for her money, but he didn't get that, either. It's all gone.

She—How foolish she must be.

He—Not at all. It's womanlike. If you were to get married to-morrow you would think you were being married for your beauty instead of—or instead of your beauty and intellect combined.—N. Y. Press.

Educational Item.

A gentleman who was visiting one of the public schools in a Texas town, asked a bright-looking boy:

"What profit is there in ancient history?"

"About fifty cents, I reckon," was the reply.

"What!"

"Well, the teacher makes us buy the books, and we have to pay a dollar. I think he gets them for fifty cents, according to my calculation."—Texas Siftings.

Let Him Prove Easy.

"Well, did you get the money from Short?"

"No," answered the collector, "but he looks like a real pleasanter than I expected."

"Pleasant! What do you mean?"

"Why, he was standing there to have a nice thick rug on the floor, so that when he threw me downstairs I fell on the rug and didn't break a bone, as he intended."—Philadelphia Times.

Two Applications of One Rule.

A certain gentleman whose chin is greater than his generosity said to a friend: "If you didn't smoke such fine cigars, you could live in a brown stone house!"

"Do you live in a brown stone house?" said the friend.

"Yes, I do."

"Well, if you didn't live in a brown stone house you could smoke as fine cigars as the rest of us."

Up to the Times.

Father (indignantly)—How does it happen, sir, that you have such a miserable report this term?

Small Son (born under the shadow of Bunker Hill Monument)—I guess it's because you ain't a school director any more.—Good News.

The Editor Engaged.

Office Boy—Man downstairs wit a bill, sir.

Country Editor—Tell him I'm out.

"Dat's wot I told 'im, sir, an' he said he would wait a bit 'cos he 'ad a big pair o' shears in your pocket."

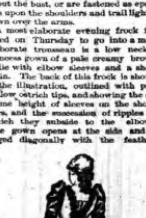
"I'm—Tell him I'm busy clipping compons."—Good News.

On a Cash Basis.

Country Editor—Mr. Squash, I can't take your subscription out in garden truck any more.

Farmer Squash—All right, Mr. Editor. I'm jest goin' to-day to sell it to you at the sug'ar market price!—Judge.

ROMANCE IN TINCUP ALLEY.



BEAUTY FROM BEHIND.

from the waist line to the feet. It is a very effective one.

There have been some very smart frocks at the races. I remember two or three particularly at the suburban Derby which were made of the soft all-wool fabrics, with a sprinkling of indistinct flowers and a garniture of black silk frock had clusters of roses and leaves scattered on its front breadth, and there was a very pretty dress whose fabric was of the finest of silk grenadine. A second black silk frock was trimmed with steel embroidery, all steel, and there was a white cloth, made of flowers in steel, as if embroidered in shape or closely inlaid. A showy silk of green and black, covered with moss rosebuds, was worn with a black satin bonnet, and a black silk was made of satin. This, by the way, will be, the story goes, an extremely popular new material.

A pale pink delaine figured in black was worn by a handsome brunette who drove up in a tandy-trap, and looked wonderfully becoming. With it she wore a hat with trim of black crinoline straw and flowers was composed chiefly of pink roses.

A cornflower blue challis had worth record of description. It had a plain skirt with deep flounce sewn right about it, this flounce being edged with lace at top and bottom. The bodice was cut with a Swiss belt edged with lace and with lace-trimmed sleeves over the shoulders. Under this was displayed a blouse of fine, white muslin with double frills of lace down the front and full sleeves with cuffs turned back upon the arms. The flat hat with quaintly curved brim of white chip had for trimming a large bow of lace falling from the back to front over the open crown which was draped with embroidered white chiffon.

A black lace costume perhaps indicated nothing in particular but black lace popularity. Its shoulder spaniels were fan-shaped and the narrow black velvet ribbons which started from the stock and ran across the bosom, holding the fulness in front, are pictured in the illustration. The fine Chantilly was of the most delicate pattern and was used again for the bonnet, which, like the one previously mentioned, was tied with white cross-cut satin strings. The transparent parasol which offered little relief to the tall, cadaverous-skinned woman beneath it, repeated for the third time the beautiful design of the lace, with its deep flounce and its shirred gauze top made over thin bunting cloth.

TE SUMMER GIRL

There was a hat of white fancy crinoline trimmed with a ruche of fine white lace, caught down with gold pins. On the brim in front lay yellow roses. There were several smart hats of black straw with fancy brims and smartly arranged bows of white and white chiffon wings. There is no need to say there was bonnet after bonnet in the fashionable mixture of black and white.

ELLEN OSBORN.

OF LACE AND RIBBONS.

twelve hours or thereabouts since the announcement of her engagement to one of the cadets of the season.

One is inclined to smile with more or less contempt at the news of the betrothing of the Watteau and Boucher fashions in June, when the old-fashioned shapes are in bloom. One sees him across my paper while I write, and on it are two pointed, gray-green buds and three of the flowers that used to border mother's garden under the peach trees. My pinks split down at the side in the good old way to which they always split, and the petals have still their irregular crimson circle. Just what they have to do I'm sure I can't say when Watteau and Boucher, but while I lift them and smell them it seems very natural to think of women transferred in flowery fabrics with powdered hair and coquettish patches making eternal picnic on the green—and Agnes lift them and shake together their long-legged, fringed pinks and almost hear the tippety tip of buckled shoes and the minuet's stately measure. The shop-girls may not delight with Rose-garlanded fabrics and wherever one walks the women who walk with one are sprinkled with flowers and rucked with lace from head to heel. Clearly we are journeying towards the empire of the sleeping train, and pity us we cannot to-day reach our destination, for if the rose petals fall and the sweet pea buds and the pinks of the old gardens how can we ever, though we put on the panniers, bring back the spirit of Fragonard's fair lady, or, what is more, a bustling life of ours, those artificially graceful days?

Yellow shot with crimson is a summer color we love, and we incline almost equally to gray with sky blue, navy blue with scarlet, and white or mauve with pale green. A young girl at a summer luncheon wore a pretty frock for that day of pale leaf green crepe de Chine figured with white meadow flowers. The trim scarf waist of the bodice had a yoke run with narrow white ribbons, giving an effect, as shown in the illustration, like that of drawwork. A border of the same ribbon finished the skirt at the bottom and made the dainty cuffs, while the collar and girdle were of green velvet of a deeper shade than the body of the gown.

There is also a fragile beauty about the fan for many weeks past, because now begins the dance music in the summer ballrooms. The prim ostrich feather

The Constitutionalist,
A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY,
W. L. FINNEY & A. L. FINNEY, Editors and Proprietors.
AT PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY.
TERMS—TWO DOLLARS A YEAR.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXIV. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, JULY 23, 1891. No. 30.

"Support the Constitution, which is the cement of the Union, as well in its limitations as in its authorities."—Madison.

Rates of Advertising.

Space	1 Week	1 Month
1 in.	$1.00	$3.00
2 in.	1.75	5.00
3 in.	2.50	7.00
4 in.	3.25	9.00
5 in.	4.00	11.00
6 in.	4.75	13.00
7 in.	5.50	15.00
8 in.	6.25	17.00
9 in.	7.00	19.00
10 in.	7.75	21.00
11 in.	8.50	23.00
12 in.	9.25	25.00
13 in.	10.00	27.00
14 in.	10.75	29.00
15 in.	11.50	31.00
16 in.	12.25	33.00
17 in.	13.00	35.00
18 in.	13.75	37.00
19 in.	14.50	39.00
20 in.	15.25	41.00
21 in.	16.00	43.00
22 in.	16.75	45.00
23 in.	17.50	47.00
24 in.	18.25	49.00
25 in.	19.00	51.00
26 in.	19.75	53.00
27 in.	20.50	55.00
28 in.	21.25	57.00
29 in.	22.00	59.00
30 in.	22.75	61.00

All Editorials must be sold cents.
"Little of Everything" column, 5 cts. per line.
Double rate, 50 per cent. advance of above rates.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

JACKSON & CODDINGTON,
Counsellors-at-Law,
Commissioners of Deeds, Masters in Chancery, Notaries Public, and Solicitors of Patents for Inventions and Designs. Office, corner of Park Avenue and Second street.—1y27

W. V. STEELE,
Counsellor-at-Law,
Master and Examiner in Chancery, Supreme Court Commissioner, etc.
Cor. Park and North Aves. 4-34-1m

GEORGE W. DAY,
General Auctioneer,
Sales of Personal Property solicited. P. O. Box 138, Dunellen, N. J., or at Store in Bank of Commerce building. Terms reasonable.

DR. CHARLES R. TREIB,
Dentist,
30 West Front street. A most careful anesthesia application for extracting teeth without pain. Gold filling a specialty.—jy31

H. HARD,
Auctioneer,
P. O. Address, Lock Box 31, Bonnie Plains, N. J. Orders left at C. D. Carey's Second-hand store, 60 West Front street, Plainfield, N. J., will receive prompt attention.—m1yr

OSCAR S. TEALE,
Architect,
247 Broadway, New York city, Rooms 37 and 38. Office hours, 9 to 4. (Appel Building.) Residence, Cleveland, N. J.—jy30

J. E. FERSTER,
Veterinary Surgeon,
Office in A. M. Seguine's livery stable, corner Main and Laing streets, Plainfield. Calls left at office or night calls promptly attended. Telephone No. 36. Residence on corner of 4th and Liberty streets. Residence, 21 East Fifth street.—jy16-1y

BUSINESS CARDS.

P. P. VanArsdale,
PIANO TUNER.
Instruments put in thorough order. Temperate and durable. Pianos and organs for sale and to let; strictly by special. P. O. Box 169 or left at Wilcox's Grocery, Park avenue, will receive prompt attention. Residence, 21 East Fifth street, corner Dia street.—jy16

ESTABLISHED 1836
JOHN CHANDLER,
CARPETER AND BUILDER.
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Residence and Shop No. 36 East 2d St.
Jobbing promptly attended to. jy27

T. J. CILLIES,
Auctioneer & Real Estate Agent.
SALESROOM—Machine Shop on the Dock (Front Street), Plainfield, N. J.
Goods received on consignment.

TO THE PUBLIC!
We wish to inform our customers and the public generally that we have on hand the best quality of
LEHIGH COAL,
Fresh from the Mines.
It is under cover and well protected from the weather. We are prepared to deliver it well screened and in good order promptly. We are also prepared to furnish all kinds of Seasoned Lumber and Masons' Materials at short notice.
A. D. COOK & BRO.
Depot.

J. Hervey Doane,
6 PARK AVENUE.
(Formerly Clerk's.)
Watches,
Clocks
And Jewelry.
Repairing neatly and promptly done.

FOR
BEAUTIFUL DESIGNS
In Furniture
GO TO
23, 25 and 27 PARK AVE.
Garret Q. Packer.

SANITARY PLUMBING,
Brick and Portable Furnaces,
GAS FITTING,
TIN ROOFING,
Etc. Etc.
I am prepared to do any of the above branches in a satisfactory manner, and workmanship guaranteed.
Having associated myself with the Master Plumbers' Association of New York City, I am prepared to put in sanitary apparatus and do work accordingly. I believe in every man running his own business. I will mind mine and let others.
D. W. LITTELL,
No. 8 North Ave. (Opp. Plainfield N. J.)

Alex. Willett,
DEALER IN
BOOTS & SHOES.
No. 7 PARK AVENUE.
A full assortment of fashionable goods direct from manufacturers, at low figures.

Geo. A. Moore,
(Of the late firm of Moore Bros.)
is now the sole proprietor of the old established market at
No. 24 NORTH AVENUE.
Where he will continue to supply patrons with the best quality of Fresh and Salted Meats, Poultry, Game, Sausage, Lard, Oysters, Fish, Vegetables, etc., etc. Orders left at the above market prices, delivery and quality kept in stock. Southdown or native lambs a specialty.

HOTELS AND SALOONS.

FORCE'S HOTEL,
NORTH AVENUE, (NEAR D. L. & W. STATION.)
JAS. H. FORCE, Prop'r.
A FIRST-CLASS FAMILY HOTEL. Steam Heat. Finest Cuisine. Plumbing.
Transient guests at reasonable rates. 10-31-1y

SOMERSET HOTEL,
Corner Somerset and Emily Streets,
NORTH PLAINFIELD.
RICHARD A. BOYCE, Prop'r.
Permanent and transient board at fair rates. First-class stables and sheds attached.
Meals at all reasonable hours.

Dime Savings Institution
OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest at the rate of three (3) per cent. per annum payable semi-annually.
JOHN W. MURRAY, President.
WILLIAM WHITE, Vice "
RAYMOND HARPER, "
ELIAS R. POPE, Treasurer. 4m1

Jas. M. Dunn,
Dealer in
GROCERIES, PROVISIONS,
Vegetables, Fruits, etc.
No. 36 Park Ave.
OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.
THORBURN & CO'S GARDEN SEEDS,
SENT IN THE WORLD.
ALL GOODS DELIVERED FREE OF CHARGE. 1y27

ESTABLISHED 1836
C. E. & J. W. BROWN,
[Successors to C. P. & C. E. Brown & Co.]
Importers, Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
WALL PAPER.
321 Canal Street,
NEW YORK.
English Tiles, Anaglypta, Hand, Leather Stained Flock Papers, &c. Burlaps for Walls.
Manufacturers of Window Shades. 3-13-1y

LIVERY.
A. M. SEGUINE,
(Successor to John W. Laing.)
Laing's Hotel Stables

Front street, opposite Madison avenue.
Coaches for Weddings, Parties and Private Calls. Light carriages of all descriptions for pleasure.
RIDING OR LIVERY.
Carefal, safe drivers for shopping calls or pleasure drives. Special attention given to boarding horses by the day, week or month.—oct13-1y
TELEPHONE CALL NO. 16.

Livery Stables!
Mr. D. S. ROBERTS
Has Removed to His New Building on
NORTH AVENUE,
Adjoining Force's Hotel. Mr. Roberts will always be in attendance and able to give satisfaction to all kinds of turn-outs at short notice, and hopes by strict attention to business and good horses to receive a continuance of public favors. Mr. Roberts' old and favorable reputation as a driver of Funeral Horses and Hacks is a guarantee of his ability to suit customers in this respect. Hearse and Carriage also will be furnished at reasonable rates. Prompt attention given to Orders. 4-34-1m

Accommodation Express.
PETER RICKERT, Proprietor
(Successor to Mr. Vanderveer's Omnibus Line.)
The Accommodation Express will attend to the passengers carrying baggage of Mr. Vanderveer's goods or Baggage to, and from the Depot, or from place to place. Horses and Furniture Piano also will be carefully handled. Prompt attention given to Orders.

INSURANCE.
WILLIAM A. WOODRUFF,
FIRE AND LIFE
INSURANCE AGENT,
Office cor. Front St. and Park Ave.,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Real Estate for Sale & Exchange.
MONEY TO LOAN
On Approved Security.

J. C. Pope & Co.,
GENERAL AGENTS OF THE
German American Ins. Co.,
of New York.
Also representing other first-class Fire Insurance Companies. Agents of the Issues Steamship Line. Drafts on Ireland for sale. Foreign and Domestic Exchange bought and sold. Also, National Bank Stock Bought and Sold.
BUILDING LOTS
And Other Real Estate for sale.
OFFICE:
6 E. FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD.
JAMES C. POPE. ELIAS R. POPE

A FEW TRAINED
AGENTS
Can secure employment with
The World's Religions.
Address at once for
LIBERAL TERMS.
A rare chance. Best Territory.
THE CHRISTIAN LITERATURE CO.
30 Bond Street, NEW YORK.

EDUCATIONAL.

Miss SCRIBNER
AND
Miss NEWTON'S
SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
AND KINDERGARTEN,
17 LaGrande Avenue,
CORNER "OF WASHINGTON STREET.
Will reopen WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 21, 1890.
The regular course will include Modeling, Drawing and Sewing. 9 21 1y

PAINTERS & PAINTERS' SUPPLIES.

Paints, Varnishes, Glass,
WINDOW SHADES AND FIXTURES.
WALL PAPERS!
PAPER HANGING A SPECIALTY.
A. SWALM,
No. 6 North Avenue, Plainfield.
ADDS

L. B. WOOLSON, J. P. BUCKLE
Woolston & Buckle,
PAINTERS,
Wall Papers,
PAINTERS' SUPPLIES. 28 NORTH AVENUE
au30tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

LEWIS B. CODDINGTON,
[Successor to T. J. Carey.]
Furniture and Freight Express!
OFFICE—24 W. FRONT ST.
Large Covered Vans or Trucks. Goods delivered to any part of the U. S. Satisfaction guaranteed. Telephone Connection. P. O. Box 238. Piano moving a specialty. 12m1

Fresh Garden Seeds
AND F RTILIZERS,
Farm and Garden Implements,
Lawn Mowers Refrigerators,
Ice Cream Freezers,
Gasoline Stoves, Hardware, Tools, etc.
J. J. HEIDELOFF,
No. 19 SOMERSET ST. 8-15-1y

CANOPIES
For Weddings, Parties, Etc.,
TO HIRE. CHARGES REASONABLE
Hugo Weigman,
29 EAST FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD, N. J. may 28 1891

ADRIANCE
Buckeye Mowers
AND REAPERS.
Agricultural Machinery
Depot.
Gasoline Stoves, Refrigerators,
Tinware and Plumbing.
A. H. GRIFFIN,
13 East Front Street.
TELEPHONE CALL, 6. 11 11-47

SPEER'S
GRAPE WINES,
ALSO
UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.
Used in the principal churches for communion. Excellent for females, weekly persons and the aged.

Speer's Port Grape Wine,
FOUR YEARS OLD.
THIS Celebrated Wine is the pure juice of the grape, fermented in open casks, ripened in their vineyards, and left long until they attain and become perfectly mellow and delicious. Its invaluable
Tonic and Strengthening Properties are unsurpassed by any other Wine. Being pronounced under U. S. Government supervision, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed. Used by the principal Clergymen and Doctors of Health who have examined it. The youngest child and the weakest invalid can use it to advantage. It is particularly beneficial to the aged and debilitated. Being entirely free from acid it does not affect the stomach. Speer's WINE TO BE RELIED UPON.
Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice
Is the juice of the Concord Grape, preserved in its natural state, sweet state as it runs from the press. Recommended by physicians for its medicinal qualities. Invaluable in all cases requiring the use of fermentation. It is a PURE distillation of the grape, and will be kept in any climate.
Speer's Declaration Claret
Is of high estimation for its richness as a Table Wine, especially adapted for dinner use.
Speer's P. J. Sherry
Is a Wine of the highest character, and a favorite of the most fastidious of the people from which it is named.
Speer's P. J. Brandy
IS A PURE distillation of the grape, and stands unrivalled in this country for medicinal purposes. Recommended by physicians and used in the principal hospitals of the country.
Sold by Druggists and Wine Keep Every Where.
LAKE WINERY.

TOBACCO, SEGARS, &c.

H. EGGERDING,
No. 17 Park Avenue,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Manufacturer of the Celebrated
C. O. D. CIGAR.
The best Cigar in the State, and made on the Premises. Also manufacturer of CUBAN HAVANA SEGARS A SPECIALTY.
Also agent for some of the Choicest Brands of Foreign and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobaccos always on hand.
Smokers Articles in Great Variety. 1y27

C. M. FINE,
Dealer in HAVANA & DOMEST'C
—SEGARS!—
No. 8 PARK AVE., (NEAR CORNER OF SECOND ST.)
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Tobacco and Smoker's Materials, of every description.
The celebrated "Old Judge" Smoking Tobacco, with other popular brands constantly on hand. 4-6m1

A. WOLFF,
Manufacturer of
CIGARS.
A full assortment of all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles, that can be found in the city. Also agent for the Old Judge Pipes, one door east of Madison avenue, and sells the patronage of its friends and the public generally. 4 1 93

CARNEY BROS., Ag'ts,
11 SOMERSET ST.
TINNERS,
PLUMBERS,
GAS FITTERS.
PARLOR STOVES,
COOK STOVES,
HEATERS.
Grates and Bricks for all kinds of Stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your Tinware mending to us. The best Tinners, the best Plumbers, and the best Gas-fitters in the section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction.
Keys of All Kinds are Made Here.
Tinware Made to Order.
Ranges, Brick and
Portable Furnaces
SANITARY PLUMBING.

WHATEVER form of printed matter you require we can be of service to you; whether it be

Letter Headings.
Circulars,
Programmes, Menus,
Addresses,
Memorials,
By-Laws of Societies,
Prospectuses and Reports of Financial Associations, or any other matter for Public or Private Circulation.
Everything.

WEEKLY CONSTITUTIONALIST.

DAILY PRESS

(Chautauqua Building).

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

MY LITTLE SON.

I have a son, a little son, with happy, loving
The color of the soft, brown cloth, drums, drum
A mouth that's made for kisses, and a nature
Where every thought God ever sent from His
And, oh! that I might always keep my baby
Just like this!
He gathers busy bees for nestling, or too tall for mother's kiss—
A little man, all bustling boy, with very broken
And always wonder for the things that lie beyond his reach.
But, little son, I know full well that some time you will teach
Your father things—perhaps a father, and guess for some
A man—perhaps a father, and guess for some not there
But mothers' hearts are prison cells, and we do
Your mother's heart.
And so, perhaps, in future years I'll have my baby boy
Just like this!
—Edith Vernon Mann, in Ladies' Home Journal.

A MODERN PIRATE.

An Amusing Adventure with a London Bus Driver.

HE beauty about the following recital is that it is strictly true, although developments have wouldn't believe it.

I do not intend to mention any of the localities in the affair don where the action of the piece took place, because I am not at all sure whether my conduct in the affair may not have placed me within reach of the law, and as I am at present about the only newspaper man in London who has not been in jail, I want to remain unique.

I may say in explanation to those who do not know London that there are two great bus companies in the metropolis—the London Road Car Co., which is the newest, and the London General Omnibus Co., which is the oldest. Besides these regular vehicles there are a number of private buses. Now, as there is supposed to be a law regulating fare buses, the private bus seems to be able to charge what it likes—and it does.

Fares in London are a well known quantity and the man who takes a bus doesn't look very closely at the outside of it except to see where it is going. These private buses, which are generally known as pirates, fix themselves up in such a way as to deceive the eye even of a man who is looking for them. For instance: Where the London General Omnibus Company has the sign "London General Omnibus Company," the pirate bus, which runs to the post office, will have in exactly the same place the words "London General Post," and then in small letters—"Post office," which name is calculated to deceive the very elect.

By mistake I got on to one of these pirate buses the other day, and until I came near the street at which I intended to get off I did not recognize the fact. On the contrary, I got on both inside and out, and I took the last seat that was vacant on top. Just before coming to my street the conductor mounted the top of the bus for fares. I tendered him a penny, which was the correct fare.

"Twopence, please," said the conductor.

"I got on at Whatyoucallit circus," I said.

"I know you did," was the answer; "the fare is twopence."

"Nonsense," I answered, "the fare is a penny from Whatyoucallit circus down to Blank street."

"Yes, perhaps that is so," replied the conductor blandly, "but this is a private bus and the fare is twopence."

"Then I won't pay it," I said. At the word "private bus," every man on top of the omnibus looked up and saw that he was in for it.

"You will have to pay it," answered the conductor, "or I'll summon you."

At this point the man who sat beside me shoved a penny into my hand and whispered: "For Heaven's sake, pay him, but go up this side street and make him follow you. He'll follow you and call a policeman, then after a little parley you can get off."

"TWOPENCE, PLEASE," SAID THE CONDUCTOR.

I didn't take the penny, but I twigged what was up and so I said: "All right, I'll pay and I'll walk on to my street."

With that I pushed my way past the conductor, walked down the steps and jumped off. He promptly stopped the bus, followed down the steps and came after me. I walked up a side street, while he took his eye up and down for a policeman.

"Look here," he said, "you have to pay that penny or give me your name and address."

"I will do neither one nor the other," I answered.

With that he ran across the street to where a policeman was standing, and then both of them came towards me. I stopped. We were now out of sight of the bus, for the street took here after it left the main thoroughfare.

"What's the trouble?" said the policeman.

"I'M SORRY TO THIS," I answered. "I got on at Whatyoucallit circus, and the fare is a penny from Blank street, and I have only come half the distance and he wants to charge double fare."

"It is a private bus," said the conductor.

"Or a pirate."

"Pirate or not," cried the conductor, "my fare's twopence, and I want his name and address."

"Well," said the policeman, blandly, "I think you had better pay it. You don't want to be late for your tea after your week before the magistrate about that, and the man had to pay his fare and the costs, too."

"Of course he had," said the conductor. "It'll cost him £2."

"Very well," I answered, "if that is the policeman's decision, then it is all right. I have paid you one penny already, and here is another," and I gave the policeman to see that it is paid. "Now I shall walk on to my street, and have made all this fuss, have paid twopence for the conductor's trouble, which is more than he deserves."

"Thank you," said the policeman, and the conductor muttering that all the world was in a conspiracy against him he was bound to have it, started back on a trot for his bus while I followed him.

When we reached the main thoroughfare the bus was down in London town. The driver of the private bus said:

"Where 'ave you been, 'Arry?" he asked, with a sneering emphasis, "up at 'Ampstead 'Eath with the 'Arriers? Is 'orse winnin'? Where's your bloomin' 'orse? I would like to know?"

Where were they, indeed? The conductor was struck dumb with amazement. The bus was empty inside and out. The law required the driver to drive right to his post and he doesn't leave it. The policeman on the beat had been in earnest confab with us over the penny and the driver had seen

"I THINK YOU HAD BETTER PAY IT."

his fares scattered to the four winds of London, meaning on other buses and disappearing in the crowd while he was utterly helpless.

"Why didn't you stop 'em?" asked the conductor weakly.

"Why didn't I stop 'em! Why didn't I stop 'em! Where 'ave you been, I'd like to know—squabbling over a penny? Where 'ave you been? Been 'aving a lark?"

This cutting sarcasm was too much for the conductor and he sadly mounted the steps of the pirate while the driver lashed his horses in rage and heaved on empty down the street.—Luke Sharp, in Detroit Free Press.

THE WOMAN OF FASHION.

She Is Dressing in a Costume Not Unlike a Country Bride's.

Fashion Writers Not Always the Best Dressed—What Gimp Can Do to Preserve the Correct Time—Dress Seen at a Recent Wedding.

(COPYRIGHT, 1891.)

Just fancy this dress appearing in the daytime on the streets of New York. It was worn, not by a country bride, but by a literary woman who affects much style and manner in dress, and who has good taste when she writes fashion articles for other people to follow.

The dress in question was all of gray, and the wearer was clad in that hue literally from tip to toe. Her gown was of pale gray cashmere with large puffed sleeves, a Louis Quatorze coat and a demitrain with a thick ruching around the bottom of it. The cuffs were covered with silver braid, laid on so closely that it looked like a deep band of silver. The collar was treated likewise. The vest was done in silver, tracing and silver threads were at the hand of the skirt ruching.

PLAIN BUT EFFECTIVE.

White kid gloves, long topped and stitched with black, were upon the hands; a very fine trimmed hat, with narrow strips of gray ribbons were worn, and, for a hat, there was a large flat gray sailor with black and white pompons. A tall handled parasol was carried and from the belt there hung a chain of some silver ornaments, for use and beauty.

The whole get-up was very pretty and becoming to the brunette who wore it. And it was not in bad taste either, for one sees so many of these dresses that their lightness and brightness have come to receive the sanction of fashion.

Another gown that walked alongside this gray one was equally stylish and yet altogether different. It was of navy blue lady's cloth and, like the other, had full sleeves and a coat cut after the fashion of one of Louis Quatorze. The skirt was trained, and stiffened by a thick ruching. Over the sleeves, which were tight fitting at the wrist, was turned a pair of white corduroy cuffs, almost deep enough to reach the elbow. A medici collar stood upright almost to the top of the ears and a little of the corduroy was wrought in the top of the ruching of the skirt in a mysterious way which permitted it merely to peep forth.

This was very stylish and not open in the most remote way to the criticism of being loud.

At the Cannon-Thompson wedding, one of the family wore a beautiful dress of heliotrope and gold. The gown was a cunning combination of heliotrope satin and chiffon, with threads of gold run through the chiffon. Since every gown must have cuffs this wedding gown was supplied with them in outline.

Gold cord was used to trace flowers upon the sleeves and double tracing of the cord indicated the top of the cuff. There were gold epaulettes and collar and a conventional design in gold was wrought upon the front of the basque. The bonnet was entirely of pansies and gold bullet lace. Pansy colored velvet strings were fastened closely under each ear by means of pansy blossoms with diamond centers.

IN THE MIDST OF FASHION.

Fashion editors have advanced in the march of fashion until they have come to sightgowns and dressy corsages. On the other hand are those with a care for their home which is edged with lace and on these occasions is worn with a lace ruffling, as the newer name fashion. Fashions may be arbitrary in all else, but not in the matter of fine underwear.

THE RAJAH'S TREASURE.

An Interesting Story of a Soldier's Grandfather.

[Written for The Pepper.]

THE shades of evening were falling on the turbulent and fifty-mile waters of the river Hooghly, famous for the bark of jackals in the jungle which lined the banks, the shrill cries of nocturnal birds as they winged their flight over the muddy stream, added to the boom of distant tom-toms which were heard from the City of Palaces, combined to produce a series of sounds that grated harshly upon the ear of a stranger.

A myriad of lights shone from the native boats, as they darted hither and thither between the shipping and the shore.

On one noble ship, the quarter-deck and rails were festooned with clusters of gayly colored lanterns, while beneath the "after" awning two long tables groaned beneath the weight of the most luxurious and delicate viands of the east.

A grand dinner party of the vessel, assisted by several native caterers, completed the arrangements for the banquet the captain managed in his honor, and he walked toward the gangway. He was just in time to greet a party of ladies and gentlemen who had come in the head boat on the starboard side.

It was a motley procession that poured over the rail.

There was the European merchant in conventional evening dress, accompanied by wife and daughters arrayed in the richest attire.

Then came the Hindoo banker, stately in his magnificent robes and turban, glittering with costly gems. Next followed the Mohammedan, perhaps a little less gaudily dressed than his predecessor, yet presenting a fine appearance, while the Parsee in his long conical, bishop-shaped hat, flowing cloak of figured satin, and white silken trousers, came next to the feast in honor to the American captain.

Each guest was followed by his own servants, whose duty it was to watch his master, and his alone. To a novice the arrangements of the feast would have seemed very strange, but in this land of caste it excited no comment. Each guest took their allotted places at the festal board, while before the group of Hindoos were laid materials that had never been touched by the hands of their own kind, and the contents of the various dishes were wholly of the vegetable kingdom, as the rajah had specified by contact with the hand of either Mussulman or Christian.

"There is no use in my telling you that no Hindoo benefactor, he preferred to work his way to India and call in the aid of his own balance of wealth, which the native princes had conferred upon him, and which had been set aside awaiting the captain's order—and it was to obtain this that we were making the journey.

"When I saw the royal reception awarded my companion by the rajah's household my heart sank within me for shame at the remembrance of how ill he had been treated by the lowminded Englishmen on board our vessel.

"The amount of money which my European companion received I do not think proper to tell, but I was aware of it as much as many of my respected guests, as it touches upon the dark days of India which you all so well remember.

"The Capt. Sahib need have no fear of wounding the feelings of his servants," remarked one of the friend present.

"Soon I will tell you," went on the captain, "for it is an interesting story. I was a poor orphan lad in my own country, and was forced to turn to the sea as a means of livelihood. Slowly, very slowly, I rose and up the ladder of my chosen profession until I reached the position of chief officer, and in such capacity I have visited these shores many times.

"It was on one voyage when I had become almost disconcerted and begun to feel that I was a fool to stay on land as a mate that something most singular happened to me. On leaving Boston with a cargo of ice for Bombay the captain informed me that we had aboard among our men a woman whom he had allowed to work her passage to Calcutta, remarking at the same time: 'He is one, I think, who has been behind the bars for debt, and would rather do things as easy for him as the discipline of the ship will allow.'

"Captain, if I may say so," broke in a military-looking gentleman who was seated on the speaker's right hand, "do not continue."

"But, colonel, our friends are anxious for the story," was the reply, which, however, we heard only by a few present. Then added: "At the first opportunity, I will tell you, colonel, and a long talk with the man who had taken this means to reach his home in the east, that was in a true sense a man I saw at a glance, and was much interested in that part of his history which he was first to relate to me.

"I shielded him from the hardships of a sailor's life as much as lay in my power, and tried to find a berth suited to fill an easier position brought to such a strait and sad too by circumstances over which he had no control. The seamen, however, did not take kindly to their more delicate shipmate, and I was afraid that, many days during the passage, when down in the cabin, he succeeded in making his miserable existence more miserable by his complaints.

"One night when about a week at sail from the mouth of the river Hooghly, I was startled by the cry of 'Man overboard!' and hurrying to the rail of the vessel, I looked over the side, and saw the form of some poor unfortunate being swept past.

"'Hard down your helm! Back your main topsail! Lower away the boat!' I shouted in quick succession, for in this record of the man whom I thought I recognized that one, hasty glance to be my protege.

"A few strokes and I had reached him, and found that I was not mistaken. But imagine my surprise when I heard him call in a clearly tone 'Do not pull me, Mr Graves, I am a good swimmer,' but look out for that villain who tried to murder me, he is somewhere astern.' And with that the brave fellow struck out boldly for the vessel which had now rounded to, and I was horrified for an instant at the meaning of his words flashed into my mind, but seeing a human head coming in the surface astern of the boat I was recalled to the situation and reaching forth, grasped the unknown by the hair of the head and with a powerful effort threw him upon the deck, keeping him down at arm's length as best I could.

"In a few moments though it seemed hours the boat reached us, we were taken on board, and imagine my joy to find my friend safe and sound, and my enemy our captive. When we reached Boston the captain was at the expense of sending the latter to the penitentiary for the term of two years, and you will not be surprised that the first order I received from my friend would be made as to double fare.

"After that, I was rewarded pretty well for my services, and returned to sea to earn, lived with and in the cabin. Upon arriving at Calcutta, the singular character whom we had brought from America approached the skipper, and said: 'Captain, I wish you would let Mr. Boleyn, the chief mate, take a two weeks' run with us into the country, and I will give you my word that he shall return to you with full pay for his time, and the money for my passage, for now that I am in India, I am by no means a pauper.'

"The captain at first demurred, but as length consented, and he and we at once started for the hilly region. I will not tell you the exact locality for which we were bound, suffice it to know that it was not far from the famous city of Lucknow.

"When well upon the road, my friend revealed to me almost wonderful tales—a story that would rival any told in the Arabian Nights. My companion had been a captain in a company of foot during the Sepoy rebellion and it had been his good fortune to rescue from the hands of his fiendly-intentioned followers the person of the wife and infant son of a most powerful rajah. Although the husband was in the field, with many followers, against the British, the captain secreted his gentle captive and her charge and kept them in seclusion until the storm of war was passed—for he feared their fate if allowed to fall into the possession of his own countrymen.

"ALLOW ME TO, PRESENT TO YOU MY FRIEND AND BENEFACTOR."

"When, however, the native princes came to their senses, and took the oath of allegiance to the English crown and through the magnanimity of the governor-general soldiers were retained in his own province, my companion then hastened to deliver up to the great potentate his charge, which the rajah had mourned as dead.

"When the chief heard the story of his consort, who had been cared for and protected by the noble foreigner, he wept tears of joy, and poured out his bounds and he lavished fabulous wealth upon the preserver of his child and wife.

"A very small portion of the treasure allotted to the soldier he took at that time and realizing the position in the army proceeded to America, where, unfortunately, he entered into speculations which ended in the loss of the most of that with which Epurchs had the vessel, and now, ladies and gentlemen, allow me to present to you my friend and benefactor, Col. Robert Fraser, whom you will no longer (addressing the man on his right), add tell me if I have done wrong in naming my ship as I did."

After an instant's profound silence loud calls were heard for the colonel, who, rising to his feet, remarked with emotion:

"Kind friends, did you know what this gentleman did for me when he thought I was but a poor outcast on the world you would consider I was only paying a debt of honor when I had the stowed upon him some portion of the rajah's treasure."

MARLTON DOWNING.

An Expensive Item.

Springins (joyfully)—Prof. Atkinson, the great economist, has invented an article that will prevent the cooking one-half. The heat is supplied by an ordinary kerosene lamp.

Mrs. Springins—I guess he hasn't figured up the cost of lamp chimneys.—N. Y. Weekly.

Thoroughly Scientific.

Bartender—Seems to me you are pouring out a pretty big drink for that dime, sir.

Old Codger—Yes, sir, because the weather is cold. I want to get warm, and you know it is a well ascertained scientific fact that one gallon of whisky does not make a summer.—Good News.

Couldn't Help Herself.

Watts—So she refused you, did she? Dumley—Didn't refuse me, but said she'd be a sister to me. That made me mad, and now she's got to be one to me.

Watts—I don't see why.

Dumley—I proposed to her sister and was accepted.—Boston Herald.

A Straight Tip.

"Is your sister in the house, Miss Dorothy?"

"Yes, she is; and if you're coming often you'd better get ready and propose, 'cause I've noticed with all the others when it goes on so long it never comes to a wedding."

A Sweeping Statement.

"Kin I git a job of the street-cleaning gang?" asked a weary wanderer of the city official.

"Sorry for you," said that individual, "but we're full up. We've got all the ladies of the 400 over from Europe."—Light.

Mitigating Circumstances.

Harold Harrington—Did I not see you talking with Downtown yesterday? Don't you know he is in town?

Cholly Cholmondeley—Ya'as. But it don't agwee with him. He has failed three times.—Jewelers' Circular.

Historical Information.

"Who are these Orleanists who are always kicking up a row in Paris?" asked a somewhat green Yankee of the brave fellow struck out boldly for the vessel which had now rounded to, and I was horrified for an instant at the meaning of his words flashed into my mind, but seeing a human head coming in the surface astern of the boat I was recalled to the situation and reaching forth, grasped the unknown by the hair of the head and with a powerful effort threw him upon the deck, keeping him down at arm's length as best I could.

"In a few moments though it seemed hours the boat reached us, we were taken on board, and imagine my joy to find my friend safe and sound, and my enemy our captive. When we reached Boston the captain was at the expense of sending the latter to the penitentiary for the term of two years, and you will not be surprised that the first order I received from my friend would be made as to double fare.

"After that, I was rewarded pretty well for my services, and returned to sea to earn, lived with and in the cabin. Upon arriving at Calcutta, the singular character whom we had brought from America approached the skipper, and said: 'Captain, I wish you would let Mr. Boleyn, the chief mate, take a two weeks' run with us into the country, and I will give you my word that he shall return to you with full pay for his time, and the money for my passage to, for now that I am in India, I am by no means a pauper.'

"The captain at first demurred, but at length consented, and he and we at once started for the hilly region. I will not tell you the exact locality for which we were bound, suffice it to know that it was not far from the famous city of Lucknow.

"When well upon the road, my friend revealed to me almost wonderful tales—a story that would rival any told in the Arabian Nights. My companion had been a captain in a company of foot during the Sepoy rebellion and it had been his good fortune to rescue from the hands of his fiendly-intentioned followers the person of the wife and infant son of a most powerful rajah. Although the husband was in the field, with many followers, against the British, the captain secreted his gentle captive and her charge and kept them in seclusion until the storm of war was passed—for he feared their fate if allowed to fall into the possession of his own countrymen.

"ALLOW ME TO, PRESENT TO YOU MY FRIEND AND BENEFACTOR."

"When, however, the native princes came to their senses, and took the oath of allegiance to the English crown and through the magnanimity of the governor-general soldiers were retained in his own province, my companion then hastened to deliver up to the great potentate his charge, which the rajah had mourned as dead.

"When the chief heard the story of his consort, who had been cared for and protected by the noble foreigner, he wept tears of joy, and poured out his bounds and he lavished fabulous wealth upon the preserver of his child and wife.

"A very small portion of the treasure allotted to the soldier he took at that time and realizing the position in the army proceeded to America, where, unfortunately, he entered into speculations which ended in the loss of the most of that with which Epurchs had the vessel, and now, ladies and gentlemen, allow me to present to you my friend and benefactor, Col. Robert Fraser, whom you will no longer (addressing the man on his right), add tell me if I have done wrong in naming my ship as I did."

After an instant's profound silence loud calls were heard for the colonel, who, rising to his feet, remarked with emotion:

"Kind friends, did you know what this gentleman did for me when he thought I was but a poor outcast on the world you would consider I was only paying a debt of honor when I had the stowed upon him some portion of the rajah's treasure."

MARLTON DOWNING.

An Expensive Item.

Springins (joyfully)—Prof. Atkinson, the great economist, has invented an article that will prevent the cooking one-half. The heat is supplied by an ordinary kerosene lamp.

Mrs. Springins—I guess he hasn't figured up the cost of lamp chimneys.—N. Y. Weekly.

Thoroughly Scientific.

Bartender—Seems to me you are pouring out a pretty big drink for that dime, sir.

Old Codger—Yes, sir, because the weather is cold. I want to get warm, and you know it is a well ascertained scientific fact that one gallon does not make a summer.—Good News.

Couldn't Help Herself.

Watts—So she refused you, did she?

Dumley—Didn't refuse me, but said she'd be a sister to me. That made me mad, and now she's got to be one to me.

Watts—I don't see why.

Dumley—I proposed to her sister and was accepted.—Boston Herald.

A Straight Tip.

"Is your sister in the house, Miss Dorothy?"

"Yes, she is; and if you're coming often you'd better get ready and propose, 'cause I've noticed with all the others when it goes on so long it never comes to a wedding."

A Sweeping Statement.

"Kin I git a job of the street-cleaning gang?" asked a weary wanderer of the city official.

"Sorry for you," said that individual, "but we're full up. We've got all the ladies of the 400 over from Europe."—Light.

Mitigating Circumstances.

Harold Harrington—Did I not see you talking with Downtown yesterday? Don't you know he is in town?

Cholly Cholmondeley—Ya'as. But it don't agwee with him. He has failed three times.—Jewelers' Circular.

Historical Information.

"Who are these Orleanists who are always kicking up a row in Paris?" asked a somewhat green Yankee of the brave fellow struck out boldly for the vessel which had now rounded

The Constitutionalist.
W. L. FORCE, Editor. A. L. FORCE Associate Editor.

OHIO DEMOCRACY.

The Democrats of Ohio are fully alive to the issues of the day. At their enthusiastic Convention held in Cleveland last week they uttered no uncertain sound, but boldly championed the cause of the people against every species of oppression. Among the stirring resolutions adopted were the following:

"We are opposed to all class legislation and believe in a tariff levied for the sole purpose of producing a revenue sufficient to defray the legitimate expenses of the Government, economically administered. We accept the issue tendered to us by the Republican party on the subject of the tariff as represented by the so-called McKinley tariff act, confident that the verdict of the people of Ohio will be overwhelming against the iniquitous policy of so-called protection, championed by the Republican party in the interest of favored classes against the masses.

We denounce the de-monetization of silver in 1873 by the party then in power as an iniquitous alienation of the money standard in the interest of creditors, and against debtors, taxpayers and producers, and which, by shutting off one of the sources of supply of gold and money, operates continually to increase the value of gold, depress prices, hamper trade and distribute wealth unjustly; and we demand the reinstatement of the constitutional standard of both gold and silver, with full equal right of each to free and unlimited coinage.

We denounce the Republican Billion-Dollar Congress, which by extravagant expenditures and reckless use of the National Treasury left there by a Democratic Administration a deficit, and which substituted despotic rule for free discussion in the House of Representatives; and we congratulate the people on the defeat of the odious Force bill demanded by a Republican President and championed by the Republican party for the purpose of perpetuating its rule by means of the centralizing powers of the Government, destroying free elections and placing the ballot-box in the hands of unscrupulous Federal tools in order, as declared by Speaker Reed, to register the voters, supervise the elections, count the ballots and declare the results."

Governor Campbell was re-nominated, and being called before the Convention, in an able and eloquent speech reviewed the wisdom of Democratic State legislation, and then passing to National affairs justly scathed McKinley Tariffism after this fashion:

"Pre-eminently also was the public to cast into the Ohio abyss high character and conspicuous career but emphatic tone of hostility of that legislative stand for that pernicious tariff measure which was rejected at the polls last year by the people of the entire country; a measure identified with his name, saturated with his ideas and wrought by his hands; a measure designed, as has been well said, in the interest of monopoly, by monopoly, for monopoly; a measure which aims at bringing about the worse of all centralizations—the centralization of wealth; a measure destructive results; a measure which has forced the farmer of Ohio to sell his wool in some instances as low as 20 cents a pound, and that, too, in a market where he pays more than three hundred per cent on many articles which are but insufficiently sweetened with the blessings of home-produced sugar; a measure which forces from the labor of the country $14,000,000 each year for the benefit of unexpended wealth, owned by capitalists who live in England, and prospective in its plate w. rks to be played by labor imported from Wales; a measure which, as it came from the hand of its author, did not, in the opinion of a prominent Republican, open a market for another pound of pork or another bushel of flour; a measure which could not be forced down the throat of a resistant Senate until equalized with the old Democratic doctrine of reciprocity—a doctrine which, finally, imbedded in the bill in spite of Republican fears, is the great Ohio Protectionist.

"In his remark in spirit of acceptance this author champion of higher protection said: 'We follow the tariff teachings of Washington, of Hamilton, of Clay and Webster, of Lincoln and Garfield.' Let me see how wide of the mark this statement is.

"The tariff of to-day is at the rate of 57½ per cent; the tariff of Washington was 7½ per cent. The protection advocated by Clay was for the benefit of 'infant' industries; the tariff to-day increases protection upon industries which have been solidified for more than ninety years; the policy of Garfield, if I dare to quote his own words, 'that kind of protection which leads to ultimate free trade.'"

AT LAST! AT LAST!

Monday Evening is the Time Set for the Granting of the Franchises for Water and Ice Works in the City of Plainfield.

A special meeting of the Common Council of the City of Plainfield will be called for next Monday evening.

That meeting will be solely for the purpose of granting franchises to the Plainfield Aqueduct company and the Plainfield Sewerage company, for the construction, maintenance and operation of a system of water supply and a system of sewers in this city.

The laws of New Jersey are such that the State Board of Health is omnipotent in the matter of sewerage systems in any town or city. No system but such as the Board thinks is proper for the location and perfect in its every detail, can be operated anywhere in this State.

The members of the New Jersey Board of Health, it is understood, entirely indorse the system proposed by the Plainfield Sewerage company, as just the thing for this city.

Their Hartmas is a Resignation.

In Plainfield, as in other places, female public school teachers who get married are not permitted to remain teachers. The following shows that the matter is viewed in other places just as it is here.

The Trenton school board struggled last week with a question which the Elizabeth board of education adopted about a year ago. It was to the effect that the committee on rules be requested to formulate and present to the board a rule to the effect that the marriage of a female teacher shall act as the resignation of such teacher from her position in the public schools. The board has an unwritten law to this effect, but thought it wise that it should embodied in the form adopted in the city of this board. The report was adopted. Later a member introduced an amendment to the rule for female teachers who marry, which was laid over with the rules. This does not include the present women teachers who are married.

Dyspepsia.
CAMDEN, June 11, 1888.
I have found in Dr. Deane's Pills a remarkable remedy for dyspepsia, having from an experience of four months in their use, found relief from the first dose. In my own case all that I dared to hope for in the way of relief from the distressing and intolerable ills of dyspepsia I have realized in full measure.
EVAN SLYER,
Pastor Reformed Church.

A BIG JUMP IN VALUES.

Property Taken on Upward Climb, the Tax Map Commissioners Record.

The complete schedule of property valuations and tax rates, as fixed by the Union county board of equalization, is as follows:

Plainfield	$ 9,000,000
Elizabeth	20,000,000
Rahway	3,000,000
Westfield	1,500,000
Cranford	1,000,000
Roselle	1,000,000
Linden	1,000,000
Roselle Park	1,000,000
Summit	1,000,000
Elizabethport	1,000,000
Union	1,000,000
Total	$41,500,000

The tax rate is $1.50 on the $100.

GAY OLD BIRDS.

Thomas Powers and Patrick Gaffney Locked Up in Separate Cells Overnight.

James Powers, who gets his living drawing 75 cents a week from the city and other small sums from charitable people, was a prisoner in Judge Codington's court this morning, charged with having stolen $70 from his friend Peter Garrity.

Jimmy is a short, somewhat weakened old man, with a fringe of gray whiskers under his chin, a ball in his step, a cane in his hand, and an old-time wide-collared long coat buttoned stylishly about his form.

Peter has giddy side whiskers, bushy eyebrows, and a very bad spluttering stutter in his voice. As well as his stutter would let him, he told about the robbery.

It was this way: Garrity went to Powers's home, July 7, to get a pair of trousers altered. Powers is the only tailor of a tailor. While Powers was playing the needle, Garrity went out to buy a pint of rum. During that absence the form of $70 was taken from the pocket of the trousers, and though Garrity searched the room, looked under the bed, and up the chimney flue, he couldn't find the money. Powers then trumped him with his cane and drove him out.

The suspicion that Powers had the money was verified in Garrity's mind by the fact that Powers had gone out on a charge he took a number of "girls" out driving during the week following the robbery.

One of those "girls" was Katy Moncton, a big, strapping, Amazonian damsel of at least forty summers. Another was Mrs. Mary Stiles, an eight-months-old grass widow, who lives up in the mountains in the hope that she will some day get a big pension for the loss of her son, who was killed in the war.

Powers had never visited Mrs. Stiles before, but that he had a soft eye cast to her was very evident. In company with Katy Moncton, who acted as chaperone, a colored man, as coachman, he drove up to Mrs. Stiles's place and took her out for a lark. Powers was in an exuberant state of mind, and very free with the use of his newly-acquired wealth. He suggested to Mrs. Stiles that he would make a fine husband for her, but she avoided the lay other direct consent or refusal to this gallant proposal. Powers asked her to fly with him to Washington, where he would get her a position somewhere, but she then they could go to Minnesota, a fairy-land which he had once visited, and live happy and content. Mrs. Stiles, who is a very practical-minded woman, let all this go by, and who has evidently been used to better days, simpered gushingly and said "Go 'way, Jimmie!" and snuggled up closer to his side in the carriage.

The quartette had a big day of it. They bought two dozen bottles of beer in the 4th Plainfield, to take along with them. This was for the women to drink. At Somerville and Raritan they refilled and re-refilled the flasks of rum that Jimmie had purchased at 35 Cottage place. At Dunellen and Somerville they indulged in such luxuries as ham "sandidges", and at the "city" hotel at Raritan they devoured the "specialty" of the house, fried oysters in pail. The court figured up that Powers spent about $40 altogether. Then after this there were other drinking trips, big incidental expenses connected with the sarsaparilla and ginger ale were drunk. Besides these outlays Powers had freely given money to Mrs. Stiles, Katy Moncton, and another giddy, gushing girl of sixty winters, Mary Luke, likewise a town charge, so that some of money he gave to the women ranged from $2 to $5. When he last parted with Mrs. Stiles—"Hannie" he affectionately called her—he gave her $10 and said: "I'll give you a big bunch of it"—meaning money. He said he had "lots" of greenbacks.

The last witness against Powers was Patrick Gaffney, who had boarding-house premises and found two $5 bills wrapped up separately in bits of paper and hid under the carpet.

Powers insisted on being heard in his own defence, but he made a sorry mess of it, and contradicted himself over and over again. The substance of his story was that the money which he had been so free in spending had been given to him—in small amounts which segregated quite a large sum—by admirers in Albany, by parish priest, by Councilman Gallup, who had said it was hard to live on only 75 cents a week from the city, by Mr. Rosbrook, who had given him money in the presence of Mr. Gaffney, by Mr. Reab-brown, who had given him money when he knew only as "the major". Powers said that he could n't tell one denomination of bill from another, because he did n't know how much he had had in a lump; it was, however, the savings of a long time. His knowledge of geography was limited, for he said he was born in State since his visit to Minnesota, eleven years ago, yet he had made a trip to his sister's home in Albany early this month. He didn't know Albany was the capital of State. He thought that like New York city it was in New Jersey.

Judge Codington deemed the evidence sufficient to hold Powers for the action of the grand jury. Jimmie said he could raise the $250 bail required.

Katy Moncton, on examination, was originally the wife of Garrity, but after securing a separation from her husband she was married to Frank Moncton and now bears his name.

HER FIRST ARREST.

A Gray-haired Little Woman Overcome by Prosperity and Beer.

Ann Brown, a spry-stepping little mite of a poverty-stricken gray-haired woman, in a dingy black alpaca dress, and with rags and tatters on her feet and head, came forth from a cell in the police station on Tuesday, in response to an official summons, and was arraigned before the court for judgment. "It's pretty tough"—she said, fanning herself with a grimy handkerchief—"to spend a night in the station-house."

She had never before been arrested, but she was so intoxicated Monday night that she was arrested with a pair of twins, Annie Wright, having forgotten her real title. Her native home—she said, in a shrill, piping voice—was in Newark, but she had been living in Scotch Plains. She had been a widow seventeen years, and it was pretty hard to get along. Her only living son was in Texas. She had been a non-tee months ago of typhoid fever. He had worked in the Singer factory. Monday she went to a North Plainfield boarding-house to do some tossing. She had been working a week in Scotch Plains. The day was very hot, and she had drunk some beer to keep her from fainting in many months. It had gone to her head, and disorderly conduct and arrest followed.

Disorderly conduct and arrest followed, that same beer. Then she was locked up in the station-house. Early that morning Colie Conklin's house in Woodside, Scotch Plains, was broken into by burglars, and the goods taken by Justice Whitehead. Some of the goods had been pawned in Plainfield, and the pawnbroker had handed the second again. So he fixed a chair from his counter out of the window and

THE SINKING OF LAKE HOPATCONG.

Nothing Unusual in the Recession of the Water But to Let It Sink Lower.

The Daily Gazette of Saturday prints the following extraordinary statement about New Jersey's Lake George, sent to their journals undoubtedly by writers who think more of the fame they receive for their writings than for the truth—a visitor of that beautiful and healthful resort sends to The Press a few truthful lines about it.

[SPECIALLY TO THE PRESS.]

LAKE HOPATCONG, July 20.—The season at Lake Hopatcong thus far has not been up to the usual standard for eagerly, in consequence of the scarcity of guests at the hotels and cottages; but better times are looked for in August and the fall season. Many say that their rooms are all engaged for next month.

There are but few camping parties here at present, where in past years there were dozens of them on the shores of the lake. In fact, the season at the Lake thus far has been a dull one. Next month, however, the visitor may depend upon more life and enjoyment, as the lake is so beautiful which, with its magnificent sheet of water, beautiful drives, handsome residences and hotels, cool, bracing air, etc., has no equal in the State. A feature of enjoyment to the guests is the almost daily arrival of excursion parties from various parts of the State. It is in this connection that the Central railway management has done much to build up and make popular the Lake Hopatcong. At Nolan's Point, which is at the centre of the Lake, the company have laid out elegant and commodious picnic grounds, which are located at the cheapest rates for parties to use and the best of order maintained. The ride up the mountain from High Bridge, over the Central, is one of picturesque beauty, and the officials of the road are courteous and obliging. During the past week there were four excursion parties. On Friday that of the Morris and Essex road, which brought 72 loaded cars, numbering some 3,500 excursionists, which is claimed to be the largest excursion party ever visiting the Lake. On Saturday it stated that all this vast amount of humanity was safely started homeward, after their day of unalloyed enjoyment, without an accident or unpleasant feature, it certainly reflects credit on the management of the railroad. The coming week will bring an excursion of the "Polish" from various places every day.

Every year brings additional new steam and naptha launches and sailing vessels on the Lake. There are now over twenty of the former and two side-wheel steamers, some of which make regular trips about the Lake. There are two frequent trips between the yachts, and great interest is manifested in them by owners and guests. The last one was between the Commodore Moores and "Millie", of "The Moorings", against six competitors. On Saturday a number of members of the Trenton Canoe Club arrived, and were encamped on Nolan's land, so we expect soon to see canoe racing.

The water in the Lake is low, as it usually is at this season of the year. The sensational writings of would-be "journalists" to New York papers about the water being lower than ever before known, and that the bottom of the Lake has fallen out, because of a supposed subterranean passage, is all clear rot. The fact is, the Lake company are obliged to draw off about an inch and a half of water each day for the purpose of filling the levels of the canal, and to keep the water-wheels going; the Lake has a heavy raine to fill up the springs which supply the water, the Lake has gradually gone down some three feet, and will go down some three feet more, or four feet lower than it is now to be as low as it "ever has been within the recollection of the oldest inhabitant". Why do people write such rot as has recently appeared in the World about Lake Hopatcong? The steamboats make their regular trips, the water-wheels work, and there is a depth of water enough in the Lake to drown many regiments of such "journalists".

Fish are now about fishing. I must confess the fishing is good, but the catches are scarce. The only explanation that can be given for this is the fact that the Lake abounds in small fish of the herring species, and where there is such a quantity of natural bait it would seem that the game fish have enough to eat without attempting to bite at herring with a hook or barbed steel in its mouth. One thing is sure, there is a plenty of black bass, pickerel and perch in the Lake, and big ones, too, if we may judge by occasional and phenomenal catches, when the wind is right and the fish are in a biting humor. Last Monday Dr. Decker landed on Crescent a black bass, weighing eight and a half pounds. This is the largest caught this season, although others have been taken weighing within an ounce of nine pounds. The fishing is liable to improve any day. It is only the patient angler who deserves success, and he is generally the one who gets it. There is fine lizard fishing in the Lake than one would suppose. This is mostly due to the fear of arrest and prosecution at the hands of Fish Com. Warden H. P. Frothingham, who watches the Lake pretty closely.

While lazily fishing one day last week, a beautiful and swift snake hissed passed my boat. Glancing up, I saw the form of A. G. Canfield on a bright flag at the bow of the boat. The name brought to my remembrance the editor of the Herring-ville county and my life-long friend, in whose memory the launch has been named, and while thinking how sad was the sudden death of the editor, I decided the perpetuation of his name as above narrated evidenced that he still lived in the memory of his friends.

I am now in active competition and health, we advise a visit to Lake Hopatcong.

Churchill Paid the Fine.

Matthew Kropf said that he had never before been so rested when presented before Judge Codington on Tuesday on the charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

"You are accused of having been intoxicated"—said the court.—"How do you plead?"

"Yes, sir"—responded Kropf—"up on Second street."

The case stood again how he pleaded, he insisted "Up on Second street." He finally understood what was wanted, and said he was guilty.

"Two dollars"—said the court. "All right"—he answered, and paid the money.

Stop the Runaway Horse.

What shall be done with the young lads who so recklessly shoot their air guns in the public streets? And cannot something be done with the greater culprits—the careless drivers who persist in their work with dangerous weapons?

Monday night a brother and sister were playing in front of their home, No. 1 Clinton on Broadway. Suddenly a rifle ball whizzed past his ear and struck the young woman. Fortunately it was expended ball and from the force of the Grands avenue. She had her hand raised to the side of her face when the ball struck her, and if she had not done so it would have gone into her head and glanced off.

The shooter is known, and so are numbers of other careless and reckless young men who are in the habit of firing guns, and permit them to be exhibited and a menace to their neighbors.

"Think, gentle reader, think!" Drink Root Beer made from Knapp's Root Beer Extract. Sold by druggists. 25 cents.

SAVED THE HORSES AND WAGONS.

Only Small Buildings Burned on Saturday Night's Fire.

A barn situated on West Fourth street, near Liberty, owned by John Flynn of Scotch Plains, and rented by Superintendent John Kelly, was discovered by Mrs. Kelly about half past o'clock Saturday night.

The origin of the fire is unknown. The theory of incendiarism is entertained. Fire chief engineer Dunn says that a freshman would have run great risk in starting the blaze, for he would have had to climb over a fence, pass through a wire fence, and then two high board fences before he could escape and back again to the street. That the fire originated in the hayrow the chief is certain.

The alarm was sounded from Box 24, after the blaze had gained headway enough to burn through the roof. The firemen worked under difficulties. The hook and ladder truck broke down on arrival, engine No. 2 was temporarily crippled by the breaking of two valves and had to be taken back to the house for repairs, and the horses of the department were out without levee, and the horse drawing the new Alert hook-wagon had a stroke on and refused to work. Consequently some delay was caused in getting a stream of water, but this stream was used so effectively that all but Patrick Dolan's house, only six feet from the hot blaze, was merely scorched a little, and the fire itself was drowned out in time to save a few upright timbers from destruction. The loss on the building is about $800; insured for half that amount. Grain and hay to the amount of $100, owned by Kelly, was consumed. All of Patrick Dolan's sheds and horses were saved, including the horse, harness and wagon of milkman Moore, who was joint tenant with Kelly.

SOMERVILLE BREAKS THE AGREEMENT.

The West End Runners Say They Can't Play Next Wednesday Because Their Battery is Engaged Elsewhere.

[Per.on THE PRESS of July 20.]

It was announced in these columns Saturday, that the game between the Somerville and West End ball clubs and the West Ends of Somerville, which was postponed from that day on account of the rain, would take place on Wednesday next. This announcement was official. The managers of the teams had agreed to that date, as their contract made last Saturday provided for. But on the day after THE PRESS was issued, the Somerville managers proceeded to repeal out of it.

The contract particularly states that if any of the games arranged should be prevented by reason of rain, then that game shall be played on the next following week day that both clubs are open, at the same place and hour. After agreeing to that, said that they found they could not have the services of their battery—Hadden and Kennedy—on Wednesday, and asked the game postponed until Wednesday, Aug. 5. The Crescent League managers replied that they could not accede to Somerville's denial—on that day. The result of all this was, that the game was fixed for next Saturday.

There is no doubt that the crowd will be big enough, but there are many who think the change from Wednesday is a mistake. Everybody who will go to Somerville on Wednesday, and besides those there are a lot of men in business in this city and their clerks who never get away on Saturday but can on Wednesday. There is a big crowd of Westfielders, too, who would come here on a Wednesday to see Plainfield and Somerville battle, but can on Saturday they patronize their own club.

JOHN KEAN THE OCTOPUS.

Wrangling for all the Township Along the Line.

It is reported that the Plainfield Water Supply Company, in which ex-Congressman John Kean, jr., Lawyer Frank B. Lee, E. R. Pope and J. M. Murray of Elizabeth are interested, have purchased the Elizabeth Lake Hopatcong property in the World about Lake Hopatcong? The steamboats make their regular trips, the water-wheels work, and there is a depth of water enough in the Lake to drown many regiments of such "journalists".

Plainfield is now about fishing. I must confess the fishing is good, but the catches are scarce. The only explanation that can be given for this is the fact that the Lake abounds in small fish of the herring species, and where there is such a quantity of natural bait it would seem that the game fish have enough to eat without attempting to bite at herring with a hook or barbed steel in its mouth. One thing is sure, there is a plenty of black bass, pickerel and perch in the Lake, and big ones, too, if we may judge by occasional and phenomenal catches, when the wind is right and the fish are in a biting humor. Last Monday Dr. Decker landed on Crescent a black bass, weighing eight and a half pounds. This is the largest caught this season, although others have been taken weighing within an ounce of nine pounds. The fishing is liable to improve any day. It is only the patient angler who deserves success, and he is generally the one who gets it. There is fine lizard fishing in the Lake than one would suppose. This is mostly due to the fear of arrest and prosecution at the hands of Fish Com. Warden H. P. Frothingham, who watches the Lake pretty closely.

While lazily fishing one day last week, a beautiful and swift snake hissed passed my boat. Glancing up, I saw the form of A. G. Canfield on a bright flag at the bow of the boat. The name brought to my remembrance the editor of the Herring-ville county and my life-long friend, in whose memory the launch has been named, and while thinking how sad was the sudden death of the editor, I decided the perpetuation of his name as above narrated evidenced that he still lived in the memory of his friends.

I am now in active competition and health, we advise a visit to Lake Hopatcong.

Churchill Paid the Fine.

Matthew Kropf said that he had never before been so rested when presented before Judge Codington on Tuesday on the charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

"You are accused of having been intoxicated"—said the court.—"How do you plead?"

"Yes, sir"—responded Kropf—"up on Second street."

The case stood again how he pleaded, he insisted "Up on Second street." He finally understood what was wanted, and said he was guilty.

"Two dollars"—said the court. "All right"—he answered, and paid the money.

Stop the Runaway Horse.

What shall be done with the young lads who so recklessly shoot their air guns in the public streets? And cannot something be done with the greater culprits—the careless drivers who persist in their work with dangerous weapons?

Monday night a brother and sister were playing in front of their home, No. 1 Clinton on Broadway. Suddenly a rifle ball whizzed past his ear and struck the young woman. Fortunately it was a spent ball and from the force of the Grands avenue. She had her hand raised to the side of her face when the ball struck her, and if she had not done so it would have gone into her head and glanced off.

The shooter is known, and so are numbers of other careless and reckless young men who are in the habit of firing guns, and permit them to be exhibited and a menace to their neighbors.

"Think, gentle reader, think!" Drink Root Beer made from Knapp's Root Beer Extract. Sold by druggists. 25 cents.

THE LOCAL POOL TOURNAMENT.

Games Yesterday and Ten for Possession With Arrest Hanging Over Several Contestants.

Fifty-five games had been played in the Cleveland League pool tournament up to noon yesterday, and the standing was as that time as given below. At half many more than one-quarter of the total games have been played, it is too early to form any estimate.

Lyman, the "scratch man," is holding his own wonderfully well against heavy odds. If he wins under the circumstances it will be remarkable. He has to give 15 points to Green who has won every game he has played. Lyman also gives Teel and Charles Van Winkle each 10, and they are playing a very strong game. The record.

PLAYERS.	GIVES.	WON.	LOST.
Charles Lyman	15	7	1
C. A. Reed	20	6	2
H. Van Emburgh	20	5	2
C. R. Theile	20	5	2
Edward Emerson	15	5	3
G. H. Mason	20	5	4
C. F. Hazard	15	4	3
C. Teel	15	3	2
H. W. Emerson	15	3	3
Charles Van Winkle	10	3	3
T. Kidder	15	2	3
C. A. Wright	15	2	4
F. M. Slater	15	1	2
J. J. Keasbey	15	1	2
C. A. Wrisley	15	1	3
F. Green	15	1	4
C. Hazelhurst	0	0	2
C. Leggett	0	0	2
C. F. Nightingale	0	0	3
B. Jackson	0	0	3

MAN AGAINST MANY.

A Hero of Broadway Summons the Neighborhood to the Scene, and Bravely Bares a Throat of Many Runners Out of Noses and Bones.

A well-known young man of Broadway, has recently immortalized his name and proved himself a hero in this way:

A residence on Ninth street had been selected by a number of notables as a good location for a most desirable place in which to enjoy the gay festivities of a summer vacation. In consequence of this conclusion a commodious nest was erected with a large window of the latest and to this home flocked a throng of busy bunzers. Now this young man bursted with a desire to invest himself with glory by defeating the innocent hornets alone in a hand to hand conflict.

A few evenings ago he appeared at the rendezvous of the hunters, armed with a long pole and attended by several diminutive followers who were brought along, no doubt to divert the attacks of the angry insects from their leader and receive them themselves. After warning a few of the people in the neighborhood of the coming massacre, the gallant youth, with a calmness which indicated that he was prepared to die if necessary, secured some rags to the pole and saturated them with kerosene. Then applying a match he touched the insect nest and before the unsuspecting hornets, wrapt in slumber, could escape, their dwelling was doused with oil and many of their representatives had departed this life. The few who were left were treated to alternate immersions of fire and water. And then the young hero nearly all in the young man and his contingents departed for home with the thanks of the household and with happy hearts.

IN JOHN KEAN'S GRIP.

Local Methods Repeated Elsewhere.

The same methods of controlling Cranford that were used in subjugating Plainfield are now charged against John Kean, jr., and his water-works minions. The World of to-days: "The stockholders of the Union Water Company, of Cranford, have issued circulars and adopted by-laws and a corporate seal. The directors will hold office until the next annual meeting, which will be held on the second Monday of next May. Appended are the names of the directors: B. F. Ham, ex-congressman John Kean, jr., Sylvester Dahll, Frank Berger, Sylvester Dahll jr., ex-assemblyman Foster M. Voorhees and James Macuire. The board, will meet in a few days and elect a president, secretary and treasurer. It is reported that the opponents of the Water Company will fight the company in the courts on the ground of alleged illegality in the organization proceedings." The fight in Cranford is the same over which the waterworks fight was made in this city—that of resurrecting a concern supposed to be dead and buried as a firm company sought to make improvements for the public good.

A Noble Woman Who Found Happiness in Charity. Gone to Rest.

Mrs. M. C. Rice, the wife of ex-Mayor M. C. Rice of Jacksonville, Fla., one of the best known and most influential residents of that city, died between 5 and 6 o'clock Monday afternoon, July 13.

Mrs. Rice has many warm friends in this city, who will learn of her death with sincere sorrow. Some of Plainfield's residents are also connections of hers by marriage, and Mrs. Theodore Hardy is a namesake of her daughter's.

Mrs. Rice has for a long time been a sufferer from heart disease, and her death, following soon after a quick change for the worse, was unexpected.

She was a native of New York city, and at that place was married to Captain Rice in 1876, since which period she has been a resident of Jacksonville. She was a noble woman, esteemed and loved by a wide circle of friends; a consistent Christian of a generous disposition, finding happiness in alleviating suffering by tender ministrations at the bedside of pangs of poverty by gentle acts of true charity.

By her presence she made home all that that word implies and now, in the loneliness of her absence from it, her husband will find the sympathy of his many friends ever where.

All of the Employes Were Present.

All of the employes of the Potter Printing Press Works attended the funeral services Monday afternoon, over the remains of the late Richard Hopeney, who was killed by the cars on Friday last. The pall-bearers were William Wyckoff, John Taylor, Edward Fiske, James Sullivan, Joseph Wahl and William Smith. The Rev. Cornelius Schenck conducted the services, and the remains were interred in the Methodist cemetery. The body presented a very natural and peaceful appearance as it lay in the coffin. A slight wound on the forehead was the only visible mark of the terrible accident which caused his death.

Turned Too short.

Three young men of Dunellen started for a drive, Monday, behind a spanking pony of not the kindest disposition. Albert Stryker, considering himself the best driver in the company, took possession of the reins and ignoring the advice of his timid companions going in the same direction tried to pass him. The pony started on a run, but rather than be beaten Mr. Stryker made a short turn into another street. The wagon was upset, and its occupants were thrown out. Fortunately no one was hurt. The trio were obliged to hoof it home and send back for the wagon to the nearest repair shop.

A Contemporary's Verdict.

[From The Elizabeth Journal.]

The Plainfield Press says "baseball is a specialty in Plainfield." Very good. It also says that it correspondingly dislikes competition between Plainfield and Plainfield is "Plainfield has one newspaper, and it is a good one." Plainfield hasn't any, Verily, the Press is a great paper.

Black Blood and Bad Booze.

That Combination Rather Proved Too Much for Peaceful Residents and They Rise to the Occasion and Free Themselves From the Nuisance.

At one time during Saturday's heat it seemed as though the people of Plainfield would have to go to bed on Saturday night, and the great factor at the bottom of it all, was bad rum.

The heat was shrewdy, and that prevented the negroes from working at their usual outdoor occupations, so they began early in the afternoon to drink and continued to drink until late at night. In the shades of darkness did their shameful and intoxicated no dition from public view. A little before eight o'clock they entered the Park Hotel. Here they caused such a disturbance that they were put out into the street, and the proprietor was obliged for good order's sake to close his bar-room for the night. This seemed to have a bad effect upon their quarrelsome dispositions and they fought among themselves until a large crowd of whites as well as blacks gathered at the scene, and were mingled in the affair.

A white man by the name of Winfield DeMott walked in among the colored participants and inquired the cause of the disturbance. As an answer, he was struck down by a blow from a big colored man by the name of Stevens. This brutal assault rendered him unconscious and for nearly five minutes he lay as if dead. Then all around until constable Warden appeared and dispersed the crowd. Many disfigured face still bears the marks of the fight. A warrant was issued for the arrest of Saunders, Stevens and Henry. While the disgraceful fracas was in progress the floor of a new man stands at the desk formerly occupied by Sampson Jessings.—Texas Siftings.

Chance to Save Money.

Agent—I can't understand, sir, that you are about to build a new house, and should like to sell you a book on architecture.

Mr. Suburb—Don't want it.

Agent—It may save you a lot of money, sir. May I inquire what sort of a house you intend to erect?

Mr. S.—I have accepted a plan for $5,000 house.

Agent (triumphantly)—Well, sir, this book shows you how to build a $5,000 house for only $4,000.—N. Y. Weekly.

Recipients of Sunshine.

George—I say, Jack, 'change me a five, won't you?

Jack—I haven't more than enough for lunch and car fare in my pocket. Fact is, I don't carry money loose in my pockets as a rule. I put it in the bank and pay by check.

"I don't care to bother with checks; always carry money in my pocketbook and I never miss a cent."

"Y—e—s, but you are not married."—N. Y. Weekly.

—A wealthy widower of this city has become so fascinated with a handsome young colored girl that he has set her up in handsome apartments in public. The young woman, however, is modest and good, and the man's attentions are very distasteful to her.

When baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she was Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

DEAD LETTERS.

How They Are Advertised and Finally Disposed of.

Letters that are misdirected or only partially addressed are handed over to a lady operator who has acquired skill by long practice, and is familiar with the names of the streets, villages and hamlet in the civilized world, knows all the streets and apparently has a directory of the United States published in this country and in Europe.

She knows that William Jones lives on a certain street in Chicago and on a letter to him at that street and number, and that correspondent in Chicago or Los Angeles instead of San Francisco, she knows the letter belongs to William and also knows where he resides without opening the letter and sends it along.

If a thick-headed correspondent addresses a letter to James Smith, White Knoll, Tex., the lady to whom this letter finally comes knows at a glance that there is no such place in Texas, and that the writer meant it for James Smith, White Mound, Tex. Sometimes a letter comes for John Brown or John Brown on it and nothing more, except the postmark of Brownsville, town way down in southern California.

Experience has taught the woman that when letters are sent to Chicago for some other town in the same section of the country, and as a John T. Brown lives there, and as Chicago is a certain street in San Francisco, the letter is sent to him.—Philadelphia Times

Not Caught Yet.

Jake Silverstone and Sam Goldsticker are two clerks in the employment of Moss Schaumburg; the Austin merchant prince. A few days ago Silverstone remarked to a friend that he, Jake, had risen very much in the estimation of his employer Schaumburg.

"Yat makes Mister Schaumburg have a petter opinion of you den he had before?" asked the friend.

"Vell, dot odder clerk, Ike Goldsticker, was caught by Milister Schaumburg stealing money from the safe. Dot bodply has ever caught me in dot trick."—Texas Siftings.

He Got It On.

Mr. Saphead (himself)—Here's a good thing. I'll read it again, so I can remember it. Let me see. Where is it? Ah, here it is. Now, I suppose he has often been called a rascal, but he thinks Heaven no one ever called him a fool." Great Scott! I've got that off on the De Beantze's to-night.

Mr. Saphead got dinner at the De Beantze's. "Ah, by the way, Miss De Beantze, do you know I'm like Gen. Butler in one thing?"

Miss De Beantze—Yes, I've noticed you squint a little.—Good News.

Not the Kind Wanted.

Agent—I have a book on fertility. Is there much likelihood of these diamonds being lost or stolen?

Jeweler—That question of the setting, madame, has so carefully been attended to that it is next to impossible to lose the stones. Can I show you?

Angelina Hanfatte—Then they are hardly what I want; good day.—Jeweler's Circular.

On Time.

Herr Schmidth is an absent-minded music teacher. One of his pupils asked him:

"At what o'clock do you want me to come to your house to-morrow to take my lesson?"

"O, vell choost come vun you gets here, I'll put ze vatch on ze table for I choost vant to be sure to be on time."

Donnie and the Girls.

"Well, Donnie," said the father, "you've had the girls all to see you and you had a real time!"

"Yes, papa," said the boy, "but it was a terrible disease, she was so awful. I thought I would never get over it. Sure I was sick fifteen days after I got well, sir."—Harper's Young People.

Very Good Wind Indeed.

Bibbins—Good wind had last night playing ball. You heard how nicely I went home from the lodge last night?

Sappington—Yes, and you were going to surprise your wife.

"Well, she was asleep."—Light.

Not Enough.

Mrs. Jones—Mary, Mary, what George call on you to-day?

Mary—Yes, ma'am. He called and left a card. Shook up I guess he was sick.

ROVER'S WISDOM.

How He Cooled His Dinner After a Great Deal of Trouble.

Rover's dinner was very hot. When Jamie brought it for him he found it into his pan and set it on the grass to cool. Rover barked while she did it.

Rover had often thought it strange that his drinker should always be hot when it was poured into his pan. It did not stay hot. It got cool when it had been in the pan a little while, and then it was all right. He thought about it each day, while he dozed by the fire, and every body said he was asleep, but he never could find out the reason.

ROVER.

He looked at the smoke coming out of the pan, and watched it blow away over the house. Then he lay down and barked at his dinner. He knew that so long as the smoke came out, the dinner would hurt his mouth if he tried to eat it. And sometimes he wondered what was the reason of that.

There was snow all over the grass. When Jamie set out the pan, she put it upon the snow, and so that it would cool faster. Rover knew that the snow was not pleasant to lie on, because it was cold.

When Rover had looked at his dinner, and at the smoke, and at the snow awhile, and thought how strange some things are, he got up and stood beside the pan.

First he tried to pull the scraps of meat out on the snow, but they hurt his mouth, and he barked again. Then he pushed them off with his nose, pushed the snow over the edges of the pan until he had covered his dinner with snow, and then he knew it could eat it.

So his thoughts by the fire had done him some good. Was he not a wise dog?—Harper's Young People.

SLOW COACHES BEST.

Why Aunt Hannah Prefers Waiting to a Quick Railroad Journey.

The great, roaring, blazing, steaming trains of engine and cars which pant and slip over the iron roads that net all lands, are still to the negroes who dwell deep in the black belt a source of constant wonderment. The swinging carriage, the almost silent stepping of bare feet along plastation paths is with them the approved method of locomotion.

But to this town-bred darky an experience on the cars is a magnificent delight. Oftentimes some country negro or some old "mammy" who has been taken out of cold before-the-war ways is overpersuaded by curiosity to take passage for a short round trip on the train. Marvellous accounts on their return will these old people give. Aunt Hannah is one of them.

"I say! My soul! Ef I git off this thing and I fewer git on again, I says I says de settlin' ain't 'fo' de 'Gin' loud enough fer her make dis rosarin' critter hear de words and turn her at right. Ef I don't git off dis hyar lamphin' an' talkin', Hannah was prayin'. Hannah can't laugh when she's in trouble. Hannah can't laugh when she's toted ter destruction! Hannah can't talk foolishness when she's in terrible danger drivin' towards de jaws of death."

Another negro woman who was recounting her many narrow escapes from temptation to take her life in her hands by trusting herself to the steel-clasped arms of a railroad train said to her friend on her constant prudence:

"No, sir! No, sir! I don't make 'em ways. I don't. I is no ways given to ridin' high off de groun'? Time enough ter ride 'bove de ground when de Lawd sets me down wid sin an' alide on de golden street. When I am on d

CITY DEPARTMENT.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - City Editor.

—It was amusing to see Shaw's clear weather flag all day long of Saturday, trying to impose upon the people.

—The Board of Freeholders has decided to misnaidenize the bridge which is now planked, on Broadway beyond Ninth street.

—The Young People's League of the First Baptist church, contemplate taking an excursion to Boynton Beach in the near future.

—A precocious katydid made itself heard in town last week. That presages frost by the first of September, if the old people are right.

—Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Bailey, of 86 Duer street, received a morning call from a nine-pound cherub of boy Sunday. Mother and son are doing nicely.

—William T. Kirk, representing Mellier Bros., has been awarded the contracts for the new bridge over Cedar brook on Broadway avenue, and the proposed alterations of the Park avenue bridge.

—The Union county court-house is to be thoroughly renovated before next Fall. In the main rooms the floor is to be put in, and all the old windows and window frames are to be replaced with new material.

—The Elizabeth Wheelmen will take a run to Dunellen Saturday night. The run of the Plainfield Bicycle Club's, Saturday, will be to Rhode Island, Bailey and Bliss-ben. The present beautiful moonlight nights insure a large attendance on all runs.

—The Union county board of registration as just appointed is composed of Edwin C. Woodruff and Mayor Chamberlain, of Rahway, Republicans, and ex-Senator Edward L. Livingston, of Plainfield, and Judge Wiley, of Elizabeth, Democrats.

—The officers of Easter Lodge, Knights of Honor, were installed on Monday evening last by Deputy Dickerson, S. S. Flower, and his staff. A very enjoyable time was experienced by all present at the services and the entertainment following.

—Chief Grant received a dispatch from Round Brook, Friday morning, requesting him to have Sergeant Lynch and the rest of his men keep a sharp look out for three tramps with a lot of knives and revolvers for sale. Some Round Brook hardware store has probably been raided.

—Shaw's New Market road last Saturday. Mr. Kuenlin's horse took fright, and sandi-ly jumped to one side. The king-bolt of the wagon broke allowing the front wheels to roll out. The hind axle was thrown violently to the ground but not badly hurt. He caught the horse himself.

—At the special meeting of the Common Council next Monday evening, the Corporation Counsel will probably be requested to take some steps towards compelling the Central R. R. of New Jersey company to put back in proper condition again, the str ets through which their pipes have been laid.

—Three men on a fast-moving coal train escaped their fingers decisively at officer Mattox Sunday, as they whizzed past him in this city. Mr. Mattox promptly boarded the next train, overhauled the trespassers, at Roselle, and landed one of them in the jail at Elizabeth. The two others escaped.

—The Young Men's Christian Association of Rahway has secured Charles B. Brown to deliver an address on "Northfield" to the young men of Rahway, next Sunday afternoon. A large number of the Plainfield Bible delegates to the recent Bible conference at Northfield, will accompany Mr. Brown, on this occasion.

—A correspondent sends this: "What's the difference between Plainfield and Philadelphia? Why, Plainfield has one newspaper—THE PRESS—and Philadelphia has n't any." This calls to mind the statement that "To put a first-class paper man on a Philadelphia newspaper is like inviting a good musician to prove his skill on the jew's-harp."

—A lot of men are digging 25,000 a year in salaries, stood around the Water Supply Company's works, Tuesday, guessing why they could n't get water. John Kean and his associates have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in pockets, and would have had a stand-pipe full of water many weeks ago, if Contractor Moore had been retained to complete the job.

—The next excursion for Plainfield to Asbury Park will be that of the Trinity Reformed church and Sunday-school on Wednesday next. To put it through properly indications it will be a large one. The committee will do all in their power to make it pleasant for all who go. The returns for the excursion will be held the evening, leaving the Park at 7 o'clock. Tickets only $1.25. Children, 90 cents.

—Lawyer Wm. A. Coddington, of this city, has been retained by Vittorio Perlini, of Bound Brook, to bring suit against the Merchants and the Hartford insurance companies for $1,500, the amount claimed by Perlini for loss by fire of June 11, last, of his entire stock contained in his grocery store on Bound Brook. Mr. Coddington has to-day taken several affidavits of reputable Bound Brook citizens, substantiating the claim.

—Boynton Beach, the old favorite of Plainfield picnic parties, now offers increased attractions. The new bath-house, with a shooting gallery, bait and tackle is provided. The bathing is unsurpassed. Naptha launches are running constantly to take visitors to and from the Beach, and many other pleasures of the place, together with information concerning the running of trains, are given in the advertisement in another column of this issue.

—As already announced in these columns, a grand promenade concert will be given at The Netherwood, Thursday evening, the 30th inst., for the benefit of Grace's Episcopal church. The subscription list has already passed the liberal sum of $100, and is rapidly receiving twice that. The orchestra will be at home for the occasion. The programme of choice selections to be rendered, will be issued in a few days. Dancing will conclude the evening.

—A disgraceful tongue fight took place Saturday night between two women living on Manson place, at the west end of town. It was caused by one of the combatants saying something about the other one's husband, which so enraged her that she called the other bad names and kept cursing her fully an hour, awakening the other neighbors out of their slumbers. Some of them tried to have the noise stopped, but their efforts were of no avail. Gradually the quarrel died out, and the disputants dispersed.

The Great Metropolis Outdone at Last.

[From The New York Times.]

The Plainfield Music Hall, the only theatre in the place, has been losing money for its stockholders ever since it was built. This summer it is to be remodeled and its management is to be put in the hands of James Alfred Demarest, manager of The Daily Press and of Frank Willette Ransom, editor of The Weekly Times.

[From The New York Dramatic Mirror.]

The new managers of Plainfield Music Hall, Demarest and Ransom, are renovating the place, booking only gilt-edged companies and handling generally for next season. At a meeting of directors, recently, economy was voted for before the house

PERSONALIA.

Mrs. H. T. Smith and son are staying at Sewaukeka Island.

Mrs. E. J. Waring and family of Myrtle avenue, are at Mt. Pocono, Pa.

Mrs. U. R. Crane and children are at the Revere Cottage, Ocean Grove.

J. C. Vannatta, of Bodine Palms is at the Penimore House, Asbury Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McCarthy are at Strasbourg Cottage, Atlantic Highlands.

George P. Dupee and family, have left for Cascade Lake House, Casselerville, N. Y.

Miss Bella Booth, of Newburgh, is visiting Miss DePorest, of West Second street.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Day, of Madison avenue, have gone to North Edgecomb, Maine.

Charles Matthews and wife, of Grove street, left Friday for Hotel Easterah-ll in the Catskills.

Emma Florence Angleman, of 33 Madison avenue, is visiting friends in Hunterdon county.

J. A. Hubbard is rapidly recovering from his recent illness and will be out in a day or two.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Bigelow and daughter, of Cowdrell avenue, are at "The Alpha", Ocean Grove.

The Rev. W. E. Honeyman, of Somerset street, is at Woodvine cottage, Asbury, N. Y.

Foreman Buckman of the Central Times has gone to Pennsylvania for a two weeks' vacation.

Mrs. Louis R. Ross and Miss Ross will spend a month in the Berkshire hills. They left Saturday.

The Governor of Alabama dined with Col. John F. Wilson, of North Plainfield, Tuesday evening.

The Rev. Merriweather Brodnax of New York, conducted the services at Holy Cross church Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Baynon, of 29 La Grande avenue, left Saturday for Shelfield, Mass., for a month.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Canfield, of 35 West Fifth street, have returned from a two weeks' trip up the Hudson.

Fred and George Smith, sons of Councilman Smith, are visiting their grandparents at Hartwick, N. Y.

Miss Marlowe Gilbert, of Hartsburg, Pa., is visiting her cousins, the Misses Miller, of 345 West Third street.

Horace Huff, head salesman for Garret G. Palmer, is on a two weeks' vacation to Chicago and other western cities.

Mrs. Herbert Welch, formerly Miss Addie McGee of North Plainfield, with her little daughter, is visiting her parents.

Miss May Thompson charmingly entertained a pleasant party of friends Tuesday evening, at her home on Rockview Terrace.

Miss C. A. Bagot, of Brooklyn, accompanied by her nephew, Master Leslie Belcher, is a guest of relatives in North Plainfield.

The Rev. L. C. Sheip, of Philadelphia, spent the Sabbath in Plainfield, as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Templin, 49 North avenue.

Dr. E. W. Hedges will preside at the organ of the Park Avenue Baptist church, during the absence of Miss Alice Coard who is in Bound City, Md.

Charles C. Burnet, of the Crescent League, accompanied by his family, are stopping for the sixth season at the Second House, Asbury Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Halstead Compton and daughters have closed their home at Ryona and are boarding for the season at the "Magnolia," Asbury Park.

Mrs. Grace Sneider, of Westfield, and her cousin, Mrs. Cora B. Loppa, of Newark, have just returned by the steamer "New York" from a trip to Albany, where they visited the capitol and other points of interest.

The Rev. Hobart Clark of the Unitarian church, will be absent from his pulpit for the next four weeks. He will spend his vacation at Andover, Mass. Next Sunday W. J. Leonard will speak to the Unitarians.

Mrs. R. J. Fitzgerald, jr., and daughter, Anna, of 117th street, New York, are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Fitzgerald, of Somerset place. They say they cannot get along without the Press.

Mr. Fitzgerald is highly of Plainfield's beautiful homes.

The mother of John J. and Andrew V. Kenney and of Mrs. John Rafferty, of this city, died at the home of her son Cornelius Daynone, suddenly, of heart disease, Sunday. She was found dead in bed. Funeral services will be held at Bound Brook on Thursday morning.

William W. Warnock, formerly of this city, and Miss Mamie Furman were married Monday at the home of the bride, Englewood, by the Rev. Mr. Lewis, pastor of the Leconia M. E. church. Mr. and Mrs. Warnock will reside in Englewood, where the groom has purchased a long established business.

The fair that THE PRESS has already told about, which was held at The Netherwood and netted $104 for the benefit of Miss Cecelia McNamara, a worthy young Bound Brook girl, was in charge of the following little Misses: Lucy Promest, Grace Brewster, Georgie Crossman, Jennie Hartwey, Jessie Bodine and Daisy Cornell.

John Halberton, the author of "Helen's Babies", has written and will soon publish a story book of Chautauqua life, with the prominent people of the Chautauqua movement introduced out in detail. Bishop Vincent, his son George, Miss Kate Kimball, and other Plainfielders and ex-Plainfielders will be among the characters portrayed.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Bardasch and daughter, of Galveston, are at 5 LaGrande avenue. Mr. Bardasch, who brings his family annually during summer, is a great admirer of this part of the country and has naught but praise to say of Plainfield and the Central railroad except when the latter has to do with the raise for a pretty widow, refuses to budge.

The Rev. Dr. Lewis has taken a cottage on Webb avenue, Ocean Grove, for the summer, where he will be able to complete his extended literary work in quiet, beyond interruption from countless callers. The entire family will be at home on next Sunday morning. Arrangements have been made for the supply of Dr. Lewis's pulpit here, until that time.

In many of the Sunday papers of July 26 will appear a charming sketch, "Watchtompka", written by George Percy Tagart, of North Plainfield, for the literary department of the United Press. Mr. Tagart is grouped among such stars as Joseph Howard, jr., John T. Arnold, Jos Kose, Margaret Hamm, Felix Orton, Alexander Duval and Ernest Delancey Pierson in the furnishing of first-class newspaper "specials" to the United Press.

Daniel Bushnell, father of John Bushnell of Central avenue, and Frank Bushnell, of East Second street, died on Sunday July 13 aged eighty-three years. He was born in New York and became a resident of Pittsburgh in 1813. His death occurred in that city where he was one of its best known business men and had been a ruling elder of the Third Presbyterian church for forty-two years. He was one of the pioneers of the oil business in Pennsylvania and as early as 1844 took the first tow of barges loaded with coal down the Ohio river. In 1861 he gave up the coal trade and went into that of business. He leaves a large fortune. Five other children besides the Messrs. Bushnell of this city, survive him.

—The fair recently held at Hotel Netherwood for the relief of a poor blind woman netted $104.

On the Asbury Park hotel register appear the following names of Plainfielders recently registered: Grand Central—Geo. Hosmer, Mrs. J. F. and Miss Hettie Hosmer, Mrs. Thomas and Miss Mary Bradshaw, Mrs. I. W. Vaughorn, Miss Louise Vaughorn, J. Harvey Doane, Eva C., M. R., and F. C. Doane, Chas. Lyman. Lenox—Mrs. Edwin R. Dunlap, Lizzie M. Daniel, Edwin M. Daniel, jr., Mrs. Albert B. Beers, Albert G. Beers, Miss Genevieve Daniel, Miss Rose, Miss Kittie Rose, Miss Coleman—Jas. K. Osborne, Miss Pamela Franklin. Gramercy—Mrs. I. M. French. Columbia—The Rev. Dr. J. P. Taylor.

THE CHIEF HELD UP THE TRAINS

And Thrash the Steamers Had to Pump Their Water Next a Mile, the Fire Never Gained an Inch.

Night of July 15 an incendiary set fire to a barn in the rear of the property on West Front street just beyond Plainfield avenue, formerly occupied by ex-Councilman Clark. In it was stored a quantity of furniture from the old house that has been torn down to make room for the cutting of a street through the property and the erection thereon of a number of smaller dwellings. There was also a lot of mahogany doors and some frames and window sashes, etc. Everything but a few door and window casings was saved by the prompt arrival of the firemen and their untiring efforts. After they got water the fire did not gain an inch.

Box 43 was pulled about 9:15 o'clock. Somebody pulled at the same time a box near by, but so perfect is the system there was no interference. As soon as one box is pulled all the others are "thrown out" until that box finishes its work. No 3 steamer was not so quiet that one arrived ahead of Chief Doane who jumped into a carriage at Park and North avenues and started for the fire before the alarm had repeated itself the third time. No. 1 steamer was also very quickly on the spot.

The incendiary had started the fire in the corner where the two buildings were. Besides of straw were stored. The barn was entirely consumed, but as soon as hose could be stretched to water, the flames were under control and adjacent sheds were saved. The loss was $600.

No. 2 was compelled to take water through Front street hose driver tried to follow the direction of 317 smart Alecks who knew just how the vehicle ought to be handled. Some of these same men here caught it in the mud later in the evening. They got in the way of the firemen with their persons and their advice, and were stepped on or knocked down.

Died on Her Sixteenth Birthday Anniversary.

Seventh-day Baptists of this city will grieve to learn of the death of Miss Susie Davis, a charming young girl, just budding into womanhood, and only daughter of the Rev. D. H., and Sarah G. Davis, who recently came to this city to visit William B. Rogers, of Central avenue, and other relatives and friends, while resting from their long and arduous missionary labors in China, where they have charge of the Seventh-day headquarters at Shanghai. The death of Miss Susie occurred at the home of her grandfather, David C. Gardiner, near Hile, N. Y., on July 4, her sixteenth birthday anniversary.

Susie was born in Verona, N. Y., July 4, 1875. A little more than six months ago she received baptism at the hands of her father at the same time that several of the Chinese girls from the school were baptized.

The return of this family to this country at this time was in part that Susie might have the advantage of school life and training and the full enjoyment of a Christian civilization and under unmixed Christian influences, with a view to a more efficient and useful life among the people of China, where she had already come to possess a yearning love. But, after being in this country scarcely six weeks, and just after she went from the Western Association and the Commencement exercises at Alfred to the home of her grandfather, for needed rest, she took to her bed and fell into a rapid decline. The parents, who are pastor of the Seventh-day Baptist church of Plainfield, and North western Association to labor awhile among the churches there in the interests of missions, but before they reached the father's house the precious life had departed.

The funeral was attended in the church at Nile, July 19, at 10 A. M., by the Rev. L. A. Platts, editor of The Sabbath Recorder, assisted by the Rev. D. H. Davis, of Alfred, and the remains were laid to rest in the family grounds, in the beautiful Mount Hope Cemetery, near the village of Friendship.

Not Intoxicated, But Ill.

Mrs. Martin Stevens says that it is a falsehood that she slept a few hours in the station house, as was stated in the Democrat and Press, and that the fact that she is in delicate health, and under the care of Dr. Hedges. She is subject to fainting spells, and that day she went to Dr. Hedges' office to get a prescription for medicine. After leaving there she turned the corner of Peace street, intending to go home and on Somerset street avenue, when she was suddenly taken ill, and fell fainting to the sidewalk. When picked up, by a policeman who did not know her, on account of the fact that she is intoxicated, she was taken to the station house, where she remained about ten minutes, and after recovering was sent home by the police authorities. Mrs. Stevens was not intoxicated but ill. Mrs. Stevens has the reputation of being a respectable, sober, hard-working woman. She has lived in Plainfield more than twenty years, and during that time has never been intoxicated, she says, and never arrested. She is described as rather above the average size, being the wife and mother of 15 children, four of whom are living.

Two of Them Are Plainfielders

Forty of the fifty-one candidates who were examined by the New Jersey Board of Examiners of Horseshoeing, at Trenton last week were successful and were granted licenses to practice in the State. Among the success appliants for licenses were Charles Van Horn Hedges, brother of Dr. E. W. Hedges of East Front street, and Edward C. Hancock, who for some time has been with Dr. C. M. Field of Somerset street. Hancock is already an experienced physician, but owing to the strict regulations governing such matters in New Jersey, his license, which was good in Pennsylvania and throughout Europe, was valueless here until he passed the State examination.

They Had Fine Fishes and Drummers.

Unity Division, Uniformed Rank, Knights of Pythias, of Elizabeth, under command of Capt. Edward Capitol Osborn and Lieutenant Gerrard Osborn and Sir Knight Herald Wm. Parks, visited this city, Thursday, and were received and entertained by Crescent Division of Plainfield.

Unity Division was accompanied by its own drum and fife corps, and Plainfield will return the visit by a similar outing to it play, "What is Love?"

Enthusiastic meetings are now on for the tournament and gathering of the tribes of the Knights of Pythias, which is to be held in Plainfield on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. Plainfield is large cities and leading fraternal organizations, and wherever the Knights of Pythias are found, there is Castle Hall.

—The next Plainfield excursion to the shore is that of the Trinity Reformed church on Wednesday, July 29. The train will leave at 9 a. m.

A CHASE AFTER CHASE'S CLERK.

Wallace Williams Indicted a Money Order in His Name.

Post-Office Inspector Beavers arrested in New York, July 15, Wallace Williams, on a charge of forging the indorsement to a money order for $20.83 on Nov. 10 last. The prisoner was brought before United States Commissioner Shields, where he was confronted by the complainant, E. F. M. Chase, of "Edgewood", North Plainfield.

Chase said that in October last he was the treasurer of the New York Soap Company. Williams was bookkeeper. The Company failed. Chase then opened an office in the Broadway Bank building and employed Williams as a clerk, allowing him to open his letters and transact the office business. In addition to forging Chase's name to the money order already mentioned, also forged a check which he cashed at the bank.

The postoffice inspectors have been trying to find Williams for several months. They learned that he was in the habit of receiving a remittance from abroad at Elizabeth, Morgan & Co's office every six months. They watched for him there, but failed to see him. Then they discovered that he was boarding at No. 326 West Twenty-fifth street, New York. The proprietor, however, told them that Williams simply took his meals at the house and roomed on Eighth avenue. Beavers failed to find the place, and returning saw a man who answered Williams's description. He arrested him.

Williams said he would have an interesting story to tell when the proper time arrived. He was held in $3,000 bail for the Grand Jury and was sent to Ludlow street Jail.

HIS BODY TORN TO PIECES.

Richard Hapenny Deliberately Steps in Front of a Flying Express.

Richard Hapenny, a resident of West Second street, met with a horrible death on the Jersey Central railway tracks near Elizabeth at 10:15 Saturday morning. The old man was picking coal along the fourth track. He had his back to engine 346, which was backing down from drawing near on the third track. The train, which is due here at 10:04, was running at high speed to make up for lost time. When it was but ten feet away Hapenny deliberately walked over to the third track, seemingly unconscious and at any rate heedless of the fact that a train was right at his back. The locomotive hurled him headlong through the air, killing him instantly. His skull was frightfully crushed, and his body was otherwise horribly mutilated, portions of the remains being scattered all along the track.

The unfortunate was father of Philip Hapenny and father in-law of Edward Campbell of Park avenue. He leaves a wife. His age was about 65. He had for many years been in the foundry of the Potter Press Works.

Race Reading the Dream Book Again.

The Elizabeth Journal says:

"Those who have gone to Plainfield, from this vicinity, in the cars, on bicycles, or by other conveyances, cannot help but be failed to notice the fact that this side of that city, the stand-pipe which has been erected by the Plainfield Water Supply Company, for the purpose of supplying the Plainfield Water Supply Company, for the purpose of supplying the Plainfield Water Supply Company, for the purpose of supplying

A DUDE'S OWED TO HIS TAILOR.

O, my once beloved tailor! Will you listen to my woe?
Will you, while I moan and warble, not remember how we were?
Think of when we were together—when my order first you took—
How you humbly bowed, delighted to count me on your book.

Think of when you, scarcely trusted me, praised my figure and appeal;
How you strained your nerve to show me all the goods upon your shelf;
How you begged me to allow you to array me in your best;
How you gazed with admiration when before your glass I dressed.

Think of when you used to greet me with a smile of welcome sweet;
How you held your door open for my pass ings to the street;
Think of all your kind attentions and of hop you trembled, too,
When I was going to offend me, sent your bill long after due.

O, you stony-hearted tailor! Can you think of all that's passed—
All the friendship and affection and respect—
Can you think of how I suffer in a last year's suit, clothes?
And refuse to make another—till my small ac counts is paid?

Hast thou not a thrill of pity when I'm with a sudden sneeze
And discern your awful presence coming, com ing—fill my seat?

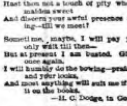
Sometime, maybe, I will pay you—if you don't only wait till then—
But at present I am busted. Give me credit once again.
I will humble me the bowing—praise your figure and your looks,
And most smiling will suit me if you'll charge it on the books.

—H. C. Dodge, in Goodall's Sun.

MR. AND MRS. BOWSER.

The Cry Is Still for "System" in the Household.

Another of Her "Tricks" Upon Her Long Suffering Husband—The Missing Garments—Mr. Bowser as a Fireside Remedy for Tender Troubles.



"I'D LIKE to get my hands on the chap who made this shirt!" exclaimed Mr. Bowser the other morning as he shoved away from the breakfast table.

"Anything wrong?" queried Mrs. Bowser.

Anything wrong? Would I complain if there wasn't something wrong? Does any husband ever complain until the last straw breaks the camel's back? It's all bunches and bunches and bundles!"

"But it was only yesterday you were saying what an elegant fit this last one was."

"Never said anything of the sort! Fact is I never had a shirt which fitted me within forty rods, and never expect to have, and it's the same with collars."

"There is surely nothing wrong this morning," she said, as she made a closer examination. "Let me get you another collar."

"It would only be the same. I suppose it's my fate to go through life with a shirt all bunched up between my shoulders and a collar sawing my ears off. I suppose there are wives who pay some little attention to their husband's comforts, but—"

"Mr. Bowser, you ordered those shirts yourself!" she interrupted.

"Certainly."

"You were satisfied with them?"

"Yes."

"They set perfectly lovely?"

"Well?"

"Then what have I to do with it?"

"Mrs. Bowser," he calmly observed, as he drew his chair nearer the favorite pose, "there are such things as button-holes in shirts, there are bands and yokes and plaits, and when you go to the bureau folded in an intelligent manner, it should be pulled and crumpled and spoiled. A wifely wife looks out for these things. A wife who doesn't care much for her husband's comfort doesn't concern herself about such trifles. Good morning, Mrs. Bowser!"

He hadn't been gone half an hour when Mrs. Bowser was looking high and low for his nightshirt. It couldn't be found. It had disappeared from the face of the earth, leaving not even a button behind. When he came up to lunch she said:

"I'D LIKE TO GET MY HANDS ON THE CHAP WHO MADE THIS SHIRT."

"Mr. Bowser, I can't find your night-shirt."

"I presume not!" he calmly replied. "Some hotel-thief here at the table d'hote, and the nightshirt don't get mixed up with the potatoes down cellar!"

"But I don't believe you took it off this morning. You put your dayshirt on over it, and that's where you had such trouble."

"Mrs. Bowser, if you wish to infer that I'm an idiot, just speak right out in plain language!" roared Mr. Bowser across the table.

"But you'll do such a thing."

"So the flunkeys river might run into Lake Erie! It's far more likely that you carried that shirt up to the garret or down cellar. I shouldn't be surprised to find the girl using it for a dust rag in the kitchen."

"Mr. Bowser, you've got that shirt on! I know it! I'll dare you to remove your collar!" she exclaimed.

"I have said that this house had no system, and I've simply replied me from the table. "To prove that I am right I will take off my collar and unbutton the band of my shirt. Now, then, are you satisfied that it is owing to your want of attention—"

"You've got it on!" she interrupted, as she pulled at the band of his nightshirt.

"It can't be!"

"But here it is! You s.ge.at to take it off!"

Mr. Bowser turned pale and walked off upstairs. Ten minutes later he came down and said:

"Mrs. Bowser, don't ever play another such trick on me!"

"Why, what had I to do with it?" she asked.

"Never you mind about that, but don't attempt anything more of the kind! I have already stood for more than most husbands would!"

FEASTING AT VASSAR.

How the Girls Made Merry Under Difficulties.

In the Old "Rooftree Days"—The "Carrier Pation"—System a la Hairpin" and "Apples a la Robe de Chambre"—A Serious Want.

(COPYRIGHT, 1891.)

I am most pained to understand why any editor should wish me to write an article about midnight feasts at Vassar. No husband, who finds fault with his wife when it is possible to avoid it, and he is always willing to suffer and endure. But, Mrs. Bowser, I feel it my duty to sit down and have a long talk with you, and speak to you very plainly. We must have a system here or it will be better for you to go back to your mother. You can get your trains out of here a day for Detroit, Mrs. Bowser—four trains a day—and your mother would meet you at Niles depot there. Socks! Yes! I see them now! but where were they last night, Mrs. Bowser?—M. Quad, in the Detroit Free Press.

FEASTING AT VASSAR.

How the Girls Made Merry Under Difficulties.

In the Old "Rooftree Days"—The "Carrier Pation"—System a la Hairpin" and "Apples a la Robe de Chambre"—A Serious Want.

(COPYRIGHT, 1891.)

I am most pained to understand why any editor should wish me to write an article about midnight feasts at Vassar. No husband, who finds fault with his wife when it is possible to avoid it, and he is always willing to suffer and endure. But, Mrs. Bowser, I feel it my duty to sit down and have a long talk with you, and speak to you very plainly. We must have a system here or it will be better for you to go back to your mother. You can get your trains out of here a day for Detroit, Mrs. Bowser—four trains a day—and your mother would meet you at Niles depot there. Socks! Yes! I see them now! but where were they last night, Mrs. Bowser?—M. Quad, in the Detroit Free Press.

Now, I have been virtuously and obediently frivolous so long I am sure I shall run that way for the disobediently serious for a paragraph.

Life at Vassar isn't all high jinks. The good times we have are remembered, but they are but a comparatively small feature of a girl's life in college. A few hours a week we would cover the playtime of the most giddy. We did not at college, like some of the young men, drink ourselves into a stupor or shoot pistols at policemen, or club baseball umpires. We did not dress fatally or frown on Sunday or wear pale and struggling. We did not haze the freshmen in any way that could prove a hardship. The freshmen at Vassar took room in fitting up the college. I don't know whether they are lastly inferior or not, but I think it must be, for I have seen several of the bootjacks, which are relayed very fairly at commencement.

As I was saying, in the old days the rules were strict and the police were pryo-dyl. Even as late as my coming, in 1887, the spy system was kept up, and of course we had great sport in eluding our watchers. Whenever any girl got a box of good things from home, she at once planned a "spread." Spreads were always at night. We were decorous, respectable and dull, under the protection and with the approval of the police. The other kind was secret, mysterious, and much more alluring without their knowledge. An invitation might be in the form of a card with a rude drawing on the one side and a menu on the other, or a little note like this:

A MIDNIGHT BANQUET.

MISS ——— requests the pleasure of your company at midnight.

To which the invariable answer was: Miss ——— accepts with pleasure. Or, contrariwise, regrets, etc.

Then, the carefully concealed behind books in the bookcases, or else where about the room. Extra supplies were brought in from the stores in the building surreptitiously, one at a time, a jar of olives to-day, a bag of sweetmeats to-morrow, until all had been secured.

When the evening came, endless vigilance was necessary to keep the coast clear in reaching the room, and then closing were being over transoms and keyholes to hide light and noises, and to listen for whispers.

Chafing dishes a favorite dish. One of my schoolmates was on a card, at the top of which was sketched an oyster stew. The invitation said we were to "chafe" them. There was no trouble over the getting of cooking. Our way to the kitchen was by the fire escape, down through the scullery and fry it by the gas jet, the other was to make a new, and the third was to get a fire in the coal stove. A supper was spoken of, and planned. One girl kept a hen, another a pig, another a cow, and all were to unite to hold over their heads. Then, other girls were to furnish the salad and the dessert. The way it was to be got and put up. It was a day when all the "Cut it Enough Treat Menu Pickles and Cake Home Made Jelly Cider"

each other, to be honorable and stolid. Without harming our health—indeed, with actual benefit to it—we probably found a better average in all our studies than any men's college in the country could show, and we have been conspicuously proved by one famous comparison with Harvard. Please remember I am writing this when you read this, and believes that our innocent jollity was only the piquant sauce of a serious life and worthy of respect.

MARY E. Y.

Shrewd Mrs. Jones.

Jones started out fishing and hauled, sure enough, a big catch.

"Now," said he to the dealer, "I'll stand here and you throw me the fish, so that I may be sure they don't count them; see?" and he chuckled softly.

He got home and his wife admired his catch and his cunning as well. Next day the doctor called, saw what was the matter at once and prescribed. Just as the family were in the dining room the doctor looked up and saw the cloak over the transom, where it had been put to hide the light. She turned from the fallsize sight to cast an awful look backward at the student; but she never told.

LAYING IN STORES.

All these feasts ought to attest the domestic genius of the educated woman. Did you know that the students have a kitchen now? They have; entirely owing to Miss Goodell, the lady principal, who has fitted up at her own expense a big kitchen with gas stoves and sinks and all sorts of conveniences which the students are free to use to play housekeeper in. The restful abolition of the corridor police system, together with the kitchen and the liberty of purchasing at the colleges store—all liberty that was only extended first to the professors, then to the seniors and finally to all classes—have taken much of the romance out of the evening spreads, but have enabled them to be much more elaborate and appetizing. Oysters are cut out of a jar with a hat pin and eaten with one eye on the door, and oyster stew and coffee over a gas jet, are not luxurious properties, after all.

One of the early menus was "apples a la robe de chambre, home-spun taffy and cider." Later ones are much more elaborate and confections include sponge cakes and—don't laugh, please—two kinds of ice cream. A taste for ice cream is the most conspicuous thing in a taste for such shard drinks as was found in the boys' club rooms at Harvard.

Here is a newer bill of fare:

Oysters on the half shell.
Bouillon.
Chicken croquettes.
Pressed chicken.
Olives, pulp.
Chicken salad.
Banana cream.
Lemon ice.
Cake.
Coffee.

Now, I hope there will be no more made of my exploits as a fisherman."

"Indeed," said his wife, "I am sure you are the most successful fisherman in the country. You are the first man I ever heard of who could go fishing in fresh water and catch sea fish."—Washington Post.

Played on the Dative.

"Thomas Brown used to be a frivolous sort," said Mr. Spellbind, as he read from a paper.

"Why so?"

"I read in the paper that after a fire that took out the roof of the dwelling he and his wife moved into the attic, and he used to come down and go to bed like sensible men, instead of romping about like children."—Texas Siftings.

A Short Discussion.

Irate Individual—What did you mean by selling Smith that I had been in jail?

Calm Individual—I did not tell Smith you had been in jail. I simply said you had to be in bail.

Irate Individual (relenting down)—I beg your pardon. I must have misunderstood you.—Boston Transcript.

Plausible.

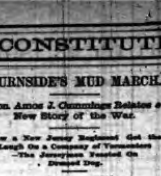
Friend—So you've decided to blow out your head do you? Have you left a letter behind?

Suicide—Yes; I have written a letter to the coroner.—Fun.

BURNSIDE'S MUD MARCH.

Hon. Amos J. Cummings Relates a New Story of the War.

How a New Jersey Regiment Got the Length On a Commander of Two Army Corps.

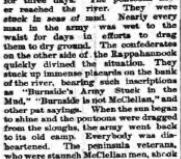


(COPYRIGHT, 1891.)

VERY old soldier of the Army of the Potomac remembers Burnside's mud march. It began on January 20, 1863.

This was forty days after his defeat at Fredericksburg. In an effort to retrieve it, he followed the example of Charles XII. and opened a winter campaign. He tried to strike the Rappahannock some miles above Fredericksburg, cross the river on pontoons and reach Lee's rear. It began to rain on the evening of the 20th and it rained incessantly for three days. The pontoons never reached the river. They were stuck in the mud. A nearly every man in the army was wet to the waist for days in efforts to drag them to dry ground. The confederates on the other side of the Rappahannock quickly divined the situation. They stuck up placards on the farther bank of the river, bearing such inscriptions as "Burnside's Army Stuck in the Mud," "Burnside is not McClellan," and other pat sayings. When the sun began to shine and the pontoons were dragged from the sloughs, the army went back to its old camp. Everybody was disheartened. This peninsula veterans, and McClellan men, shook their heads mournfully, saying: "I told you how it would be." In such a case such a pitch that there was a spirit of mutiny in some of the regiments. Hundreds of deserters left the army every day, and the army had no confidence in its commander until Joe Hooker succeeded Burnside.

I was sergeant in Company C of the Twenty-sixth New Jersey volunteers at this time. The New Jersey regiment was part of the Second brigade. This brigade had won a brilliant reputation on the Peninsula and at Antietam. It was known in the army of the Potomac as the Vermont brigade.



It was composed, with the exception of the Jersey regiment, of Vermont troops. They were tall, ungainly Yankees. They dragged their words out and grew a peculiar nasal twang. Their feet were so big that the Johnnies compared them to old-fashioned pistols. A Mississippian once said that they were so big that whenever he killed a Vermont Yankee he had to go up and shove him over before he would tumble. I saw some captured North Carolinians there so far as Mr. Webb knows, once moving. This, I may add, is how numerous kinds of fishes spend the winter. It long as they can. I perfectly still there is no waste of animal tissue, and they do not need food. For a long time a task of the beginning of winter, then place a small piece of wood in the tank; the frog will get upon it, and with his paws will suck the sight up, and never so much as move until the spring, when he will get ready for spring; he will then begin to jump about and look for something to eat.

But this is not a case of hibernation that I know has been related to me by Dr. Ferguson, the pathologist of New York Hospital. A cask of the gar-pike belonging to the hospital museum a carp of a particular description had been placed in it. The cask was filled with water where the fish was kept was frozen through, and the fish embedded in it. The care-taker took the fish out of the vessel and placed it on top of an ice-house. He forgot all about them. The cylinder of ice remained where it was put for a couple of months, till one day the ice-man came to take it down to the place where the fish was stored. Then the carp-pike of his cask, then was surprised to notice a fish wiggling in a puddle of water. The carp had come to life in imprisonment, passed the period of hibernation and resumed his old activity.—Harper's Young People.

The Use of a Pastrip.

A "periwig" is described by an old authority as "a long curled wig with flaxen locks to cover the head. We should call this "pole-look." It hung over the back of the wearer's coat, and was tied at the end by a bright ribbon.—Harper's Young People.

Editing Himself Right.

"Jamie," said papa, "won't you have a little piece of this chicken?"

"No, thank you," said Mamie.

"What! no chicken?"

"Oh, I like the chicken, but I don't want any little piece."—Harper's Young People.

Properly Shocked.

At night of the cantor oil bottle Willie had disappeared.

Mamma gently coaxed his mother, "and take your medicine, like a little man."

"You ought to be ashamed," answered a muffled voice under the bounge, "to talk like a prize fighter."—Chicago Tribune.

Assisted by Constitution.

Philanthropist—Don't you find it hard work to carry those loads of mortar into the building?

Hod Carrier (cheerfully)—No, sah; it do be a soft snap. While I'se gwine down me load helps me fashion, an' while I'm comin' up, sure there's ozzits' to carry.—Judge.

Owned the Old Man.

Father (threateningly)—I've a great mind to thrash you.

Little Son—Take a man of you size. Take me.

Father trembles at the thought, and she down.—Detroit Free Press.

Cause for Alarm.

Young Mother—Do you notice how quiet the baby is now?

Old Bachelor—It is indeed—Jury.

Warranted.

Fair Customer—That bicycle I bought of my little boy only three weeks ago has given out entirely.

Dealer—Yaarss. You remember I warranted it to go fast.—Good News.

Cause for Alarm.

Young Mother—What's the matter now?

Physician—We've got the itch.

Well, run the rumors all the office town.—Good News.

Not Enough.

Mrs. Rooks (to visitor)—Yes, Mrs. Billtops, my son Jack has been in hard luck for fun. He's out four months' hard labor since he started in business.

Mrs. Billtops—Dear me! What was the trouble? Did he get into bad company?

Mrs. Rooks—No; he started in with only $5,000.—Judge.

Not Enough Out, Not Enough.

Maud (to her escort)—Well, I hope Pinkey didn't get you to write a prescription for me. He gave me a recipe, and I've been trying for months to get all to the same place.

Escort—Have you tried Hood's Sarsaparilla?—Jury.

Not Enough.

Visitor—Well, Johnny, I suppose you are delighted to have your father home again?

Johnny—Yes, but in a confidential sort of way I could tell that I'm glad.—Jury.

Not Enough.

Mrs. Brown (to her husband)—Why, Mr. Brown, you've been drinking! Why, you're drunk! You've been drinking! Why, you're drunk! You've been drinking! Why, you're drunk! You

The Constitutionalist,
A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY,
W. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE, Editors and Proprietors.
AT PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY.
TERMS—TWO DOLLARS A YEAR.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXIV. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, JULY 30, 1891. No. 31.

"Support the Constitution, which is the cement of the Union, as well in its limitations as in its authorities."—Madison.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

JACKSON & CODDINGTON,
Counsellors-at-Law,
Commissioners of Deeds, Masters in Chancery, Notaries Public, &c. Office, corner of Park avenue and Second street.—p0ct

W. V. STEELE,
Counselor-at-Law,
Master and Examiner in Chancery, Supreme Court Commissioner.
Office, PARK AND NORTH AVES. 4-30-3m

GEORGE W. DAY,
General Auctioneer,
Sales of Personal Property solicited. P. O. Box 188, Dunellen, N. J., or address at care of Constitutionalist, Times examiner.

DR. CHARLES R. THEIS,
Dentist,
20 West Front street, Plainfield, has had aesthetic application for extracting teeth without pain. Gold filling a specialty.—p-ly

H. HAND,
Auctioneer,
P. O. Address, Lock Box 21, Scotch Plains, N. J. Orders left at N. J. Carpet's residence, corner of West Front street, Plainfield, N. J., will receive prompt attention.—1y0ct

OSCAR S. TEALE,
Architect,
247 Broadway, New York City. Rooms 32 and 33. (Importers' and Traders' Bank Building.) Residence, Plainfield, N. J.—p0ct

J. R. TRESTER,
Veterinary Surgeon.
Office in A. M. Segeine's livery stable, near Main street and Madison avenue, Plainfield, N. J. Day or night calls promptly attended to. Orders left at No. 15, Grandinetti's confectionery, 23 East Front street, or Mrs. Hunt's, 23 East Fifth street, will receive prompt attention.—1y0ct

BUSINESS CARDS.

P. P. VAN ARSDALE,
PIANO TUNER.
In the country parts of Somerset, Middlesex and Union counties. Pianos and Organs for sale. Terms reasonable. Orders by mail, P. O. Box 246 or left at Wilson's Store Store, No. 2 Park avenue will receive prompt attention. Residence, 23 East Fifth street. Some Hill street.—6y12ly

JOHN CHANDLER,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Residence and Shop No. 36 East 2d St.
Jobbing promptly attended to. apay

T. J. GILLIES,
Auctioneer & Real Estate Agent.
SALESROOM—Madison Avenue, near Front St.
Plainfield, N. J.
Goods received for consignment.

TO THE PUBLIC!

We wish to inform our customers and the public generally that we have on hand the best quality of

LEHIGH COAL,
Fresh from the Mines.

It is under cover and well protected from the weather. We are prepared to deliver it in any screened and in good order promptly. We are now prepared to furnish all kinds of Seasoned Lumber and Masons' Materials at short notice.

A. D. COOK & BRO.
1mply

J. Hervey Doane,
6 PARK AVENUE,
(Formerly Clark's.)
Watches,
Clocks
And Jewelry.
Repairing neatly and promptly done.
-6ly

FOR
BEAUTIFUL DESIGNS
In Furniture
GO TO
23, 25 and 27 PARK AVE.

Garret Q. Packer,
SANITARY PLUMBING,
Brick and Portable Furnaces,
GAS FITTING,
TIN ROOFING,
Etc., Etc.
I am prepared to do any of the above branches in a strictly first-class, skillful and workmanlike manner.
Having associated myself with the Master Plumbers Association of New York City, I offer you more than ever before satisfaction and reasonable charges. Orders left at my residence, 15 Second street, will receive prompt attention.
D. W. LITTELL.
No. 9 NORTH AVE. opposite Plainfield N. J.

Alex. Willett,
DEALER IN
BOOTS & SHOES.
No. 7 PARK AVENUE.
A full assortment of fashionable goods always on hand manufactured, at Low Prices. apay

Geo. A. Moore,
(Of the late firm of Moore Bros.)
In new store on the corner of Front and Madison avenues, and established on
NO. 14 NORTH AVENUE,
Where he will continue to supply patrons with the finest groceries of Fruits and Soft Drinks. Fruits of all kinds, Syrups, Cigars, Tobacco in Smoking and Chewing, Canned goods, Condiments and Spices, Pickles, Sauces, Jellies, Preserves, Jams, Nuts, Candies, Confectionery kept in first class order. Canned Goods a specialty. 1-30-1y

HOTELS AND SALOONS.

FORCE'S HOTEL,
NORTH AVENUE, (Near R. R. Station.)
JAS. M. FORCE, Prop'r.
A FIRST-CLASS FAMILY HOTEL. Steam Heat. Fireplaces throughout.
Transient guests at reasonable rates. 10-31-tf

SOMERSET HOTEL,
Corner Somerset and Emily Streets,
NORTH PLAINFIELD.
RICHARD A. BOYCE, Prop'r.
Permanent and transient board at fair rates. First-class cuisine and choice liquors.
Meals at all reasonable hours.

Dime Savings Institution
OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest at the rate of three (3) per cent. per annum payable semi-annually.
JOHN W. MURRAY, Presidents,
WILLIAM WHITE, Vice
NATHAN HARRIS, Sec.
ELIAS S. POPE, Treasurer.

Jas. M. Dunn,
Dealer in
GROCERIES, PROVISIONS,
Vegetables, Fruits, etc.
No. 36 Park Ave.
OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.
THORBURN & CO'S GARDEN SEEDS,
KEPT IN THE WORLD.
ALL GOODS DELIVERED FREE OF CHARGE.

ESTABLISHED 1836
C.E. & J.W. BROWN,
(Successors to G. F. & C. E. Brown & Co.)
Importers, Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
WALL PAPER.
321 Canal Street,
NEW YORK.
English Tiles, Anaglypta, Rand, Leather Lined Flock Papers, &c. Burlaps for Walls.
Manufacturers of Window Shades.
3-15-1y

LIVERY.

A. M. SEGUINE,
(Successor to John W. Laing.)
Laing's Hotel Stables

Front street, opposite Madison avenue.
Coaches for Weddings, Funerals and Private Calls. Light carriages of all Descriptions for pleasure.

Livery Stables!
Mr. D. S. ROBERTS
Has Removed to His New Building on
NORTH AVENUE,
Adjoining Force's Hotel. Mr. Roberts will always be found ready and able to answer demands for all kinds of first-class livery rigs, and spares no pains or expense to please customers. Thoroughness and care is his motto.
Accommodation Express.
PETER RICKERT, Proprietor.
Office—Vandebeck's Stables, Parkhurst's Tea Accommodation Express will attend to all orders for general carrying business of the city, delivering goods at Depot, or from the Depot, or from place to place. Moving of Furniture, Pianos, &c., with Greatest Safety. Trunks taken to and from to Depot.

INSURANCE.

WILLIAM A. WOODRUFF,
FIRE AND LIFE
INSURANCE AGENT,
Office cor. Front St. and Park Ave.,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Real Estate for Sale & Exchange.
MONEY TO LOAN
On Approved Security.
-6ly

J. C. Pope & Co.,
GENERAL AGENTS OF THE
German American Ins. Co.,
of New York.
Also Represents other first-class Fire assurance Companies. Agents of the Home Mutual Building Line. Dunellen Ireland for sale. First and City National Bank Stock Bought and Sold. Also
BUILDING LOTS
And Other Real Estate for sale.
OFFICE:
6 E. FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD.
JAMES O. POPE. ELIAS S. POPE

A FEW TRAINED
AGENTS
Can find steady employment and liberal wages by addressing
The World's Religions,
Specialty. LIBERAL TERMS. Apply at once.
Territory, Address Best Territory.
THE CHRISTIAN LITERATURE CO.
23 Rand Street, Chicago, Illinois.

EDUCATIONAL.

Miss SCRIBNER
AND
Miss NEWTON'S
SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
AND KINDERGARTEN,
17 LaGrande Avenue,
CORNER OF WASHINGTON STREET,
PLAINFIELD.
All Appointments of the Choicest. Number of Foreign and Domestic Pupils. Opportunities Advantageous. Terms Always on hand.
Gregory's Articles in Great Variety.
Paper.

C. M. FINE,
Dealer in HAVANA & DOMEST'C
—SEGARS!—
No. 5 PARK AVE., (REAR OF NORTH SIDE GROUNDS)
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Tobacco and Smokers' Materials, of every description.
The celebrated "Old Judge" Smoking Tobacco, Whether cut or crimp, for sale wholesale and retail by me.

PAINTERS & PAINTERS' SUPPLIES.

Paints, Varnishes, Glass,
WINDOW SHADES AND FIXTURES.
WALL PAPERS!
PAPER HANGING A SPECIALTY.
A. SWALM,
No. 6 North Avenue, Plainfield.
-6ly

I. B. WOOLSTON, J. P. BUCKLE
Woolston & Buckle,
PAINTERS,
Wall Papers,
PAINTER'S SUPPLIES. 38 NORTH AVENUE
-6ly

MISCELLANEOUS.

LEWIS B. CODDINGTON,
(Successor to T. J. Carey.)
Furniture and Freight Express!
OFFICE—36 W. FRONT ST.
Large Covered Vans or Trucks. Goods delivered to any part of the U. S. Satisfaction guaranteed. Charges reasonable. P. O. Box 688. Piano moving a specialty. 12ma

Fresh Garden Seeds
AND F RTILIZERS,
Farm and Garden Implements,
Lawn Mowers Refrigerators,
Ice Cream Freezers,
Gasolene Stoves, Hardware, Tools, etc.
J. J. HEIDELOFF,
No. 13 SOMERSET ST. 8-15-6t

CANOPIES
For Weddings, Parties, Etc.,
TO HIRE. CHARGES REASONABLE.
Hugo Weigman,
29 EAST FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD, N. J.
-6ly

ADRIANCE
Buckeye Mowers
AND REAPERS.
Agricultural Machinery Depot.
Gasolene Stoves, Refrigerators,
Tinware and Plumbing.
A. H. GRIFFEN,
13 East Front Street.
TELEPHONE CALL, 6. 11 11-tf

SPEER'S
GRAPE WINES,
ALSO
UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.
Used in the principal churches for communion use. Excellent for tonsion, weakly persons and the aged.

Speer's Port Grape Wine,
FOUR YEARS OLD.
THIS Celebrated Wine is the pure juice of the Dunell Vine Concord Grape, raised in Speer's vineyards, Passaic county, N. J., and is made from ripe partly raisined before gathering. Its analysis:
Tonic and Strengthening Properties
are recommended by all other Wines. Being prescribed under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, he purity and genuineness are guaranteed, used by the principal Hospitals and Boards of Health who have examined it. The youngest child and the weakest invalids can it to advantage. It is pronounced by all who have used it, and mentioned, and added to the various ailments it has cured.
It is in short Nature's WINE TO BE HEALED OF.
Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice
is the juice of the Concord Grape, prepared in the most careful manner, perfect sight as it runs from the press by evaporation and immediately, hermetically sealed, can be kept in any climate for any necessary time, free from spirits, and will keep any length of time.
Speer's Sacramental Wine
is used in many communions for the Holy Sacrament, and is pronounced by all who have used it as the best they have ever used. Send for circulars, testimonials, &c.
Speer's P. J. Sherry is a pure wine of the grape, and should be used by all who require a wine for medicinal purposes. It has a peculiar flavor, and is highly recommended by physicians.
See that the signature of JOSEPH SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is on every bottle you buy.
FOR SALE BY DRUGGISTS AND WINE DEALERS.
CASH WINE.

TOBACCO, SEGARS, &c.

H. EGGERDING,
No. 17 Park Avenue,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Manufacturer of the Celebrated
C. O. D. CIGAR.
The best Connecticut in the State, and made entirely from the finest tobacco.
CLARA HAVANA, REGALIA & SPECIALTIES.
All Appointments of the Choicest. Number of Foreign and Domestic Cigars. Cigarettes and Tobacco always on hand.
Gregory's Articles in Great Variety.
Paper.

A. WOLFF,
Manufacturer of
CIGARS,
and dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles, has removed from 34 W. Front street, to 44 West Front, one door east of Madison avenue, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

CARNEY BROS., Ag'ts,
11 SOMERSET ST.
TINNERS,
PLUMBERS,
GAS FITTERS.
PARLOR STOVES,
COOK STOVES,
HEATERS.
Grates and Bricks for all kinds of Stov s can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your Tinware mending to us. The best Tinners, the best Plumbers, and the best Gas fitters in the section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction.
Keys of All Kinds are Made Here.
Tinware Made to Order.
Ranges, Brick and
Portable Furnaces
SANITARY PLUMBING.

OUR MODERN AMAZON.

I'm trying on my winter dress;
With wistful eyes I view it,
I shall count some brilliant conquests before
The summer sun has gone.

Here's a white chest and a lily-skinned toe,
And a pompon! (See there!)
They'll make my eyes look darker yet,
As I look my prettiest there.

At the ball to-night I shall be
Most regally arrayed;
My fancy's wind and weather.

And here's a rosebud with that gay,
Then Dick's entrance will be made.
I, like an admiral, shall win
The proudest prize of all my travel

And at the close, all tipped with gold,
A trembling slave shall stoop—
A vassal to my beauty!
Lost in some waltzing group.

Short, short, short—the dress must have hugs
The load with gorgeous hue,
I shall come sailing back to town
All laden with the spoils!

A JOKE THAT KICKED.

It Explains the Coolness Between Jones and Smith.

PERHAPS if you have been down to the Stelton station, on First street, lately, you may have noticed that there is a coolness between Smith and Jones, who were once very good friends. This is all on account of a joke which Smith played, which proved badly indeed.

Jones is a jocular sort of a fellow, who is full of fun and has never been suspected of being a humorist. This is what makes his conduct on the Jones joke all the more remarkable. People had got to look on Smith as a sober-minded person, upon whom a joke might be played with impunity. Jones is now of a different opinion.

It all fell out in this way. Smith and Jones and Brown and Robinson were walking together up Fleet street in the dusk of the evening. It was the day of a great race or a big prize fight or some large sporting event of national importance, and Fleet street was crowded. People were standing in front of the sporting newspaper offices eager to see the latest bulletins, and Fleet street was a kind of a jam from Ludgate circus up to the Law courts.

Jones and Brown were walking arm in arm and Smith and Robinson came up behind. Now Smith knew that Jones and Brown were ahead of him and so did Robinson, for that matter, but neither Robinson nor Brown has very much to do with this story. As Jones and Brown walked on ahead together, Jones said:

"Do you know what Smith's great terror is?"

"No," said Brown.

"He is afraid of being carroted."

"Afraid of being carroted!" exclaimed Brown. "Why, I thought carroting has been garroted in London for years."

"Oh, I know that, but he was a boy at the time of the great garroting excitement in London and ever since he has been afraid that he will be garroted some night and robbed."

"It seems to me," replied Brown, "that I do remember hearing him speak of that;" although, to tell the truth, Brown remembered nothing of the sort, but he was a diplomatic man and disliked to say the right thing to anybody he was talking with.

"Now," said Jones, as if struck suddenly with a brilliant idea, "I am going to carrote him. I am going to garrote him right here on Fleet street."

"I wouldn't try it," replied the other, "not in a crowded street like this."

"Just the place for it," said Jones. "I'll escape through the crowd in less than half a second, and the very fact that there is a crowd will make Smith think that he has been taken in and done for."

"I wouldn't do anything like that if I were you," said Brown, cautiously, but Jones took him at the arm and drew him into one of the courts that enter Fleet street, where they waited until Smith and Robinson had passed them. Then he stepped out, and going quickly and quietly up behind Smith threw his left arm suddenly around his neck, almost choking him off. Smith began to bulge out and then gave a quick twist and got to the side of Jones, his watch was gone. All this occupied but a second and Jones bolted down Fleet street. The thing was over so suddenly that even Robinson did not recognize who had done it nor did he realize what had happened, and Smith. He only saw that Smith was pale and gasping and when he recovered breath he asked:

HE THREW HIS ARM AROUND SMITH'S NECK.

"My God! I have been garroted. I knew it would come some day." Then he looked down at the dangling watch chain, and, seeing the gutta-percha, he always wears there still in its place, he added: "Garroted without the loss of half me the watch chain, anyhow."

"Well," said Robinson, "let's lose no time in getting to the police station."

"Oh, it's no use," replied Smith, dolefully; "he had his chance."

So for the joke it was a tremendous success, and even then Smith did not realize that his watch was not gone. The joke, in fact, was not discovered for some all through. If it had not been for a tall, sinewy man who stood head and shoulders above the crowd and who was coming up Fleet street some little distance from where the occurrence took place, it is all, strongly suspected the act and bounced himself up.

When Jones came dashing down the street to escape up a court the tall man sang out in his big and natural voice to Jones's left hand:

"You scoundrel!" he cried. "I've got you. You needn't struggle. I'll throw you on your back in a moment if a moment if you try to escape."

"Escape, indeed!" cried Jones, "you fellow's a joke."

"Yes, it's a joke you'll explain to the judge, my fine fellow. Here, some police, help me!"

"Hang your policemen," cried Jones, struggling to get away. "I'll throw you down in the gutter, who merely shook him like his pulse on a toy terrier. Then Jones and Robinson came up.

When Smith and Robinson turned back and saw Jones in the hands of the tall fellow, comin as the first moment thought Jones had captured the garroter.

"You've got him," said Smith.

"Yes, I have," answered the tall man, "I saw him do it. Just go through his pockets before some of his pals get away with your watch."

Then Smith, although he is not very quick at noticing the point, saw how things stood. He put his hand into his own pocket and felt that his watch was still there. While his hand was in his pocket he slipped the watch from the chain, left the chain in the place and put the watch in his trousers pocket. By this time a policeman had arrived on the scene, and pushing the crowd of

"What's all this?"

"It's garrotting," said the tall man. The policeman looked rather amazed. It seemed to him a remarkable thing that garrotting should be attempted in crowded Fleet street. The very disheveled appearance of Jones and his frantic efforts to escape, however, convinced the policeman that something was indeed wrong.

"Have, Smith," cried Jones, impatiently, "you know very well that this was only a joke. Tell this overgrown fool that that was the case. Tell the police."

Smith did not answer, but those who have always thought Smith quite a humorist in his corpulent body were surprised when they knew what he did. He quietly pulled the watch chain out of his pocket and looked sadly in a woebegone manner at its empty end.

"I suppose," he said quietly to the policeman, "there is no use in going through the fellow's pockets to see if my watch is there."

"HERE, SMITH!" CRIED JONES, IMPATIENTLY.

"I'll see," said the policeman, and at once he went through the pockets of Jones in a manner which showed that he knew his business.

"It isn't on him, sir," said the policeman.

"Oh, I say, Smith," appealed Jones, "don't let this go any further. Can't you satisfy him? Good gracious, just look at the crowd."

"He seems to know my name," said Smith sadly to the policeman, "it's Smith."

"And your address, sir?" asked the policeman.

"The Metropolitan club, Fleet street."

"Thank you," said the policeman as he noted it down, and then Smith turned and walked with Robinson back to the club, while Jones and the tall man, followed by a tremendous crowd, went along Fleet street.

Before the end of the story of the joke has been reached, but most of the members who have heretofore suffered from Jones' banter thought it served him just about right. Of course it all came right and that in a couple of hours, for a reconciliation was made at the club to the police station and explained everything satisfactorily, especially as the deputation was headed by Smith himself who apologized profusely to Jones because, in the excitement of the moment he had not recognized him.

This explains the coolness between Smith and Jones, which seems to indicate that Jones did not take Smith's apology in the spirit in which it was tendered.—Lake Sharp, in Detroit Free Press.

Liner Case.

Proprietor of Store (sternly to woman caught shoplifting)—Madam, unless you have friends to go—sent for you, it will be my duty to—

Woman—Friends, is it? I'll have ye understand, sir, my husband owns half a dozen big brick buildin's and—

Proprietor (to the policeman)—What are you hanging round here for? Don't you know a case of kleptomania when you see it?—Chicago Tribune.

New the New Bonnet.

Mrs. Billson—So, you met Mrs. de Fashion on the street? I'm so glad. They say she is wearing a new bonnet this season. Did you see it?

Mr. B.—Y-e-s, I noticed it.

Mrs. B.—That's splendid. How was it trimmed?

Mr. B.—Well, it had a cowcatcher in front, a tailboard behind, a few patches on top, and a job-lot of assorted ribbons all round. You can easily make one like it.—N. Y. Weekly.

Economy.

Cousin Jack (of New York)—I understand, cousin, you intend moving to New York? Is there any work in it?

Cousin Maud (of Chicago)—Well, you see, nearly all our relatives live in New York and mean to come to the world's fair, and papa thought it would be much better to live in New York and visit Chicago during the fair year.—Judge.

TEMPTATION AND FALL.

THE TEMPTATION.

THE FALL.

—Golden Days.

The Lesson of Niagara.

He (bridegroom at Niagara)—Wonderful! How awe-inspiring! No wonder bridal couples want to see Niagara falls.

She (bride)—Yes, they illustrate the awful drop from courtship to marriage—why don't you give me your scarf?—Money's Weekly.

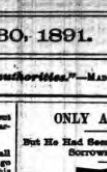
Appearances Are Deceptive.

Mr. Newsman Hatten (to visitor from out of town)—Yonder goes one of our best men—he's a millionaire two times.

Mr. H. Lone—Shut! Never would have thought it from the way he's dressed. He looks like a fiend.—Puck.

ONLY A TRAMP.

But He Had Seen Many Joys and Sorrows in Life.



THE Southern Pacific express was pulling through the hot Arizona desert, between Yuma and Tucson. The heat was intense. When the talkative San Francisco commercial traveler had collapsed in a sweltering heap on his seat. To the tired passengers Yuma and Tucson seemed interminably long. Suddenly the brakeman entered, bringing with him a cloud of black smoke and alkali dust. With one hand he shut the door, while with the other he dragged a heap of rags into the car. "Here you pore sneaking a ride, were you. Walk you be a tough nut, sure enough. Got anything 'ter say for yerself?"

The figure within the tatters straightened itself up, wiped the alkali dust from its eyes, prepared to speak, then pointed to the lavwater tap and sank back to the floor exhausted.

"The poor critter's 'bout done up," said the man from Texas; "where's my flask?"

"Where'd you get the poor cuss?" asked the Frisco drummer, wiping his perspiring brow.

"Found him on the 'brake-beam, when we stopped at the water tank," said the brakeman.

"Great heavens! you don't mean to say that man's been riding under this car," ejaculated the drummer. "Oh, Lord! and I've been sitting here smelling about the heat, and the mean deserves of fate. Poor cuss."

The tramp had regained his breath, and the tender-hearted Texan assisted him to a seat.

He was a man of middle-age, with a stubble beard and a great scar running diagonally across his forehead, from the left eye to the right jaw. His clothes, or tatters, denoted him a tramp of the first water.

"Western tramp at that," said the Texan, privately, as he asked the question.

"Had nothin' for thirty-six hours."

"Starvation," remarked the Texan, "a stranger's at yer door."

"Yer all white," said the tramp a half-hour later, as he pulled a match out of his pocket and used it for a toothpick.

"Gentlemen, you'd hardly think I owned a name by my looks, would yer? But I do—and a good one at that. George Caldwell is my title. Thirty years ago I used to say that handle came to me from Lord Baltimore, the proprietor. Perhaps, but I never says it myself."

"That's a pretty tough wipe you've got thar, partner," remarked the Texan, respectfully eyeing the scar across the tramp's forehead. "Be thar an Injun story thar?"

"Naw."

"That scrape never come from an Injun; et come from a Greaser, and his beans have been picked long ago by the buzzards."

"Nobody b'lieves my story. Would you like to know why I'm wearing rags and ridin' on a rod?"

"In the year '80 I was a young man studyin' law in Boston, with as good prospects ahead as any man could ask afore him. I had just come in for five thousand by the death of an uncle, the last of kin. One evening, at a social hop, I met Mary—don't matter about her other names—and—well, there was a case of love from the word go. She was a rich man's daughter; my wealth didn't go for much 'gainst the governor's but then I had prospects.

"Things went on as slick as possible for a time, when my health failed, and the doctors ordered rest and change. The gold fever struck me, and I made up my mind one day to dig for a fortune in Californey, and get my health in the bargain. 'Course Mary cried, and I give up the trip twice, but finally got started.

"THE POOR CRITTER'S 'BOUT DONE UP."

"Well, I reached the diggings, finally, and located a claim at Gold Hill, and in six months laid away quite a pile. I wasn't much on the shovel, and I didn't hev the red nose I has now.

"One day a letter come tellin' me the governor had dropped all he owned in the line of three ships. This didn't bother me much. 'Bout three months skipped by, and another come which made me sick. It said Mary will find it of love and tear stains, and 'said that the man who had saved the governor from ruin plus his wealth had to marry her. She objected, of course, and the said man come to see her mother, and the new lover waited, wistful like.

"I was fer goin' home, but Mary said no, it 'd spoil my future.

"Well, the end come at last. She married him. The news deaded at first, for I couldn't get a through my head. Then I left the diggings for nowhere, and ended up—well, I finally joined a party of scouts, and wandered over the western country fightin' Injins.

"Two years later I was one of a party of ten prospectin' in the Wasatch mountains, in Utah. We had settled for camp one evening in a natural cave and had finished supper, when we heard a howl like the valley and over about two miles to the stage-coach road. Then we run out to see what the noise meant.

"I was standin' on a rock lookin' at the valley underneath, when I saw the stagecoach way up on the trail, runnin' like mad. Then I see why it was comin' and see it, for at was somethin' to see in them days. We squinted through the glasses and see the Injins on their ponies after the coach. Then we knew they couldn't see. Suddenly one of the boys said it an excited way: 'Boys, they're goin' to be attacked; see them forms dodgin' in an out round that bluff?' 'Sure enough,' said the whole crowd, 'and how are we goin' to warn them?' We stood that bewildered until we saw a quick story; then we all made a break together for the trail.

"Of course I was on hoss to get there, and we found the women huddled against the cliff, the driver and two guards dead, and the passengers fit'n'. They'd been attacked by Mohve, a Mormon half-breed, and the fight had been hot and heavy. Some of the women had been killed and followed the trail in pursuit. Then we went to work, buried the dead, and said we'd start after the Injins in the morning. Then I went to the driver, who was dying, and said he'd like to do anything for the women. He looked at me a moment and then said:

"'Capt. Watson handed over party, and he knew every nook in the range.

"'TIL bet my cook," said the captain, "that they've gone over to Bone's head canyon, and we can't find them then we'll look in at the cave on the western slope.

"We didn't see Lynks' suspicions at the canyon, and after a hard pull reached the cave. We were climbing along the top of it, when the capt'n suddenly whispered a halt, and we all laid low. From a starry sight, and the heats had run across a body in the turf where smoke was comin' out in thin wisps. This was the skylight of the cave, fifty feet below in the bluff.

"The women said that was fifty in the party, we 'lowed they were mistaken. After some parley the capt'n hit on a plan which might work. The were ten 'o us, mine was to stay on the hard while the chimney was being choked, while one, which was me, was to crawl down to the entrance 'o the cave, and when the signal sound out I was to skip in and grab the women.

"I TRIED TO HIT HIM WITH MY REVOLVER."

"The plan worked. I was all safe behind a rock at the entrance when four or five of the gang came out wi' their hands to their eyes, coughin'. The boys on top began firin', and when the whole crowd come out it in a hurry. Took me about two seconds to get inside the cave. The smoke I saw sided me, but I crawled to what I could hear a woman coughin'. Didn't take me long to get her out. She weighed 'bout a ton of me, half dead, and I was tollin' up the side of the bluff, when all o' a sudden we run right agin a big Mexican. He grunted somethin' in Mexican and fell for us. His left arm ached the moment then we closed. I had to hit him with the butt end of my revolver, but a downward stroke of his arm knocked it flyin'. Then I reached for my bowie, and, while doing so, got this wipe across the face. I was about blinded, but I got in a lunge on him, which fixed him. I lost my head then, and the boys found me lying right on the Greaser. The woman was gone, no one had seen her, and I fainted away. It was Mary. I never told the boys. Her husband married her away' back there I found out, and I'm a man of few lips to here. He didn't suffer more'n I thinkin' 'bout a week, my nine owners, and I'd taken him dead. I've been down on my luck ever since, and I'm a business tripe.

"All the money I had hoarded up went mine, and the only thing I've been on my feet since, but not for long at a time. Look again me. I this the life, though. But patience can do almost anything, and the little boy in the picture made a playmate and a friend of the animal which she so quietly bore him.

DOLLY'S TEA PARTY.

But that is because he found the wolf when it was very, very young—the tiniest sort of a cub, in fact.

The mother had been killed, and the boy discovered the helpless little creature all alone in the forest. He took it home with him and watched it and fed it, and even petted it. The wolf grew larger every day, and the boy began to teach it little tricks, which it learned as naturally as a dog would have done.

It carried a basket in its mouth, it learned to carry the baby with its paw, it "died" and "came to life" upon command.

But behind the little mountain house where the boy lived there was a great, dark forest. One day the tame wolf broke away from the house and ran, and although the boy called it and hunted it day after day, it never came back.

Nature was strongest, after all.—N. Y. World.

Both the Hopes Were Crushed.

A new pupil came into a Cincinnati school the other day, and there being no desk for him, the teacher told him to "sit on the front seat for the present." He was given some slight attention during the day, but when school was dismissed, still clung to his seat. Well, Harry," said the teacher, "are you not going home?" "Yes, ma'am," the boy said, "but I'm waiting for the present. I want to take it home." The teacher laughed, but attempted no explanation, and Harry walked sadly out, realizing that life is full of delusive hopes, and things are seldom what they seem.

Almost Bursting with Talent.

Great Architect—Good morning, Mr. Suburb. Think of building—another house?

Mr. Suburb—No; I called to inquire if you could draw a plan for me as a student in your office. With the right training he'll be a fine architect some day.

"Has he shown any marked talent for architecture?"

"Talent! He's overflowing with architectural talent. I wish you could see the housecap he put up for me last week."

"Humph! What is there remarkable about it?"

"He designed it for a BIG hencoop and it's cost $150."—Good News.

What They Gave Him.

"Well, didn't they give you a chance for dinner at the house where you went when Uncle Jeff was explaining how he had been once wrongfully accused, tarred and feathered and driven out of a neighboring state.

Uncle Jeff (with patched recollection) "Dey 'fused to 'commodate me. Dey sotch me in de back yard 'fore I got to de fence, and what dey gib me was ordinary nuff 'cept a leetle extra cotton in de ridge bone ob a razor-back hog."—Texas Siftings.

Mr. Hunter—"Mr. Miss Sun, I haven't had a relation in the United States." Herold (who had little Geography)—"Indeed! I must smile you told me had your overcoat!"

Rates of Advertising.

Space	1 W	2 W	3 W	1 M	2 M	3 M	6 M	1 Y
1 in.	$1.00	$1.50	$2.00	$3.00	$5.00	$7.00	$10.00	$15.00
2 in.	1.50	2.00	3.00	5.00	7.00	10.00	15.00	25.00
3 in.	2.00	3.00	4.00	7.00	10.00	15.00	25.00	40.00
4 in.	3.00	4.00	5.00	10.00	15.00	20.00	30.00	50.00
5 in.	4.00	5.00	6.00	12.00	20.00	30.00	40.00	60.00
6 in.	5.00	6.00	7.00	15.00	25.00	35.00	50.00	75.00
7 in.	6.00	7.00	8.00	18.00	30.00	40.00	60.00	90.00
8 in.	7.00	8.00	9.00	20.00	35.00	45.00	70.00	100.00

All Electro's must be solid round.
"Lists of Everything" column, 5 cts. per line.
Double rate, 50 per ct. advance of above rates.

DOLLY'S TEA PARTY.
Everyone Present Had Lots of Fun, Except Poor Dip.

Dip was a crow with a great as black and shiny as coat could be. He was not hatched in the top of a tall hemlock tree, as he should have been, but under a big Brahma hen. The egg, which Ben had found in a nest in the woods, had been given to little Dolly for a keepsake. But Dolly had slyly tucked it under the old hen's wing to hatch. And it did.

The mother hen knew that the little, black, scrawny thing, with such a big head, did not belong to her brood of dainty chicks. She pecked Zip so sorely that Dolly took him, away and brought him up by hand. Zip grew very fast.

He liked the best food to eat, and the warmest corner in the kitchen. He used to watch Towser's bowl, and when any meat was given down for him he would pounce upon the little dog's back. Seizing his ears in his big, sharp beak, he pinched them, so that poor old Towser would run howling away. Then naughty Zip would eat the meat.

Dolly had no brothers or sisters small enough to play dolls with her, so Zip was made to do duty for both. He would sit very solemn upon the top of the old spinning wheel in the attic, with a red comb tied about his black head. With a critical eye he watched Dolly dress and undress her children, all the while disobeying and asking Zip's advice, to which he would respond very promptly in crow language.

One day Dolly made a tea party. She only invited Towser and Zip and the dolls. She put on bits of bread and butter for Towser, herself and the dolls, but for Zip—what do you think? Corn —just bright yellow corn! And to make him a little Dolly put it in a wide-mouthed bottle.

Zip could see it, but Dolly thought his head too big to go in. Zip danced about the bottle, pecking at it with ruffled feathers, and croaking angrily. Then, to Dolly's sadness, he plunged his head deep into the corn.

DOLLY'S TEA PARTY.

But it would not come out, and in a moment Zip was hopping about the attic with the bottle on his head.

Dolly tried to catch him, but he was too spry for her, and after the fifth time he ran, at the side of the attic stairway, breaking the bottle and scattering the corn all over the house.

Zip did not stop to preen his tumbled plumage, but with feathers all awry ran under the bed and began to eat some of the corn before any more tricks could ens, in Our Little Ones.

STORY OF A WOLF.

When a Cub He Was Tame But Later On Left the Settlement.

You wouldn't suppose that a wolf could be trained to obey a master, would you? But patience can do almost anything, and the little boy in the picture made a playmate and a friend of the animal which also so quietly bore him.

But that is because he found the wolf when it was very, very young—the tiniest sort of a cub, in fact.

The mother had been killed, and the boy discovered the helpless little creature all alone in the forest. He took it home with him and watched it and fed it, and even petted it. The wolf grew larger every day, and the boy began to teach it little tricks, which it learned as naturally as a dog would have done.

It carried a basket in its mouth, it learned to carry the baby with its paw, it "died" and "came to life" upon command.

But behind the little mountain house where the boy lived there was a great, dark forest. One day the tame wolf broke away from the house and ran, and although the boy called it and hunted it day after day, it never came back.

Nature was strongest, after all.—N. Y. World.

Cutting Remark.

Her Sister's Beau—Now that you're engaged—I am told that your cat has added her quota to the feline race, Mabel. How is it?

Little Mabel—No; she hasn't, either; but she's got kittens. She hasn't put on her best yet, but she will just as soon as she gets well.—Puck.

Helped Over the Hard Place.

"Suggins is engaged to Maude Pottletop. I am glad of it, too, because I think she is the kind of a girl to help a man along."

"Yes," he indeed. "They say he never would have proposed if she hadn't helped him over the hard part of it."—Harper's Bazar.

Wanted to Give Him Dyspepsia.

"Pshaw, I don't think this apple dumpling is quite done, Mrs. Smith," said Mr. Jones, as he laughed the little wife. "Ain't I going to that way on purpose. You've been going out of town of late that I thought I might keep you in."—Munsey's Weekly.

The Retort Courteous.

Fair Patient—But, doctor, I suffer so much with my eyes.

Doctor (who is becoming testy at this, his fifteenth call)—You'd suffer much more without them, madam.—Harvard Lampoon.

A Slander Refuted.

Goodman—Baddeng, I am sorry to hear that you sometimes drink too much.

Baddenly—Quite a mistake. On the contrary, I can never get enough.—Munsey's Weekly.

Why He Laughed.

Professor (to student.)—What are you laughing at?

Student—At your appearance.

Professor—Do you laugh over every little incident that you chance to see?—Texas Siftings.

Still in the Midst.

Soker—I wonder how was the man who first invented whisky. I'm sure he is forgotten in the dim and distant past.

De Tanque—Yes, but his spirit still lives.—Munsey's Weekly.

Not Allowed.

First Socialist—Jess are becoming united and haughty. Beware the fate of Marat!

Second Socialist—That fate can never

The Constitutionalist.

W. L. FORCE, Editor. A. L. FORCE, Business and Proprietors.

BOGUS PROTECTION.

When the catalogue of deceptions is fully made up, at the least will stand "protective Tariffs," so called.

Our precious tariff law rests for the alleged protection of home industry, a duty of two cents per pound on pig lead.

American pig lead sells in Montreal, Canada, at $3.60 to $3.75 p r cwt., while the price of the same article in New York is $4.40 to $4.45.

The beauty of home protection for you, making Americans pay more for an American product than Canadians.

How charming!

American consumers must pay a large additional price over and above that charged foreigners, in order that the privileged few may extort fraudulent bounty and grow rich at the expense of the plundered, not protected, many.

The same process applies to scores of other articles covered by high tariff taxed articles which are actually and profitably sold abroad cheaper than in this country.

The less we have of such protection the better off will we be.

The day is rapidly approaching when the people of the United States, the honest and industrious masses, will clearly discern how they have been humbugged and wronged by the necessary cry of "protection to home industry," and then good-by and forever to all such class legislation as the McKinley bill represents.

Protection from home cormorants will be the order of that day.

OFFICIAL PLUNDER.

There is not a State or Municipality in the whole American Uni. n that has been more politically corrupt than Pennsylvania and Philadelphia. Fortunately for the people, the high-handed system of public pe fidy has indeed a sufficient number of right-minded Republicans to join forces with the Democrats last year in the election of an honest man for Governor.

His name is Robert E. Pattison.

The recent financial transactions in Philadelphia connected with the City Treasurership and certain Banks disclose an appalling amount of official rottenness, and investigations so far carried on has evidently failed to reach all bottom facts.

Sworn testimony before a Councilmanic Committee relative to the doings of the late City Treasurer showed positively that official averaging to the extent of thousands of dollars was given sundry newspapers, and paid for at full current rates, but with the express exaction, that forty per cent. should be returned to the advertiser.

Such frauds will make by the papers.

The proposition is that he would not report the illegal action of the bank if its demands were met, and such collusion with crime on the part of a Cabinet officer is unbearable to honest citizens.

ponder!

It is a stigma upon the intensely Republican City of Philadelphia and only a single specimen.

The ex-Treasurer justly occupies a felon's cell.

How many participants in public plunder still breathe the air of freedom and brazenly pose as hon rable and reputable citizens?

ORGANIZE!

NORTH PLAINFIELD, N. J., } JULY 27, 1891.

TO THE CONSTITUTIONALIST:

It seems not amiss at the present time for the Democratic party of New Jersey to be up and about for the cause which is of so vital importance to the future of constitutional liberty in the United States, and add the voice of our State to the general chorus for a return of the Democracy to government control, which now seems to pervade the political atmosphere. Such success can be accomplished only by hard and earnest work; and who should and could more appropriately advocate the continuance and advancement of political freedom; the propagation of Democratic principles and ideas; and to appeal to the young men of our community to organize, and to demonstrate to them the danger of centralization which threatens constitutional life by partisan legislation, Force Bills, McKinley Bills and others of like ilk, than the paper that has at its fore the name CONSTITUTIONALIST; contributing little in its construction yet conveying much to the citizens of our common country in its full meaning. No false feeling of modesty should be allowed to impress its aberrating and lethargic influence upon the spirit of Democracy. It must be remembered that men and things change, and to succeed it must first be deserved. In Plainfield and North Plainfield where are our politico-social clubs to bring the young men out; they who are the life of a cause, a party, living exponents of the vital issues of the present, to acquaint them with the truth of pure government, as expounded by the ever-living and immortal founder of Democracy, Thomas Jefferson, and demonstrate anew the ability of the Democratic party to battle now as ever for the rights of the people, for the right against a class, a clique or a section, as when it fought and so nobly won victory over the centralizing schemes of Alexander Hamilton and his party Federalists. While other States are to be before in organization of clubs for the inculcation of Democratic doctrines among the young men, who are or will soon slip themselves with either political party, New Jersey is silent; nothing is heard from within her borders, either favorable or unfavorable, as to the manner of prosecution of the main issues now paramount for the preservation of our institutions. The contest now begun to end in 1892, no man can predict with any degree of certainty its termination, and no effort should be spared or left undone to influence the result, considering that old party lines are to be fought over again; and to-day and now seems the time to begin should success be achieved and triumph be ours, for delay of even a day or an hour, may be the turn that leads to inevitable defeat.

If there are Democratic assemblies in the city, in operation, their silence is only equalled by their lack of energy.

It may be said there is no Young Democratic; so also Ohio, Iowa and Wisconsin solicit and solicity Republican until the tide of Democratic success swept aside that claim. How soon will New Jersey enter the category of doubtful States, if the present condition are allowed to exist? Then why should not the subject of organization be brought prominently before the party. Why not through the system of clubs interest the young men, and by education show the necessity to be derived from the adoption of Democratic tenets? Who can then withstand or misunderstand the motives of conscientious and disinterested work for State and National prosperity, which is and has been the basis on the subject, the prime mover, and the very essence of the Democratic cause.

JEFFERSONIAN.

BOGUS PROTECTION.

Through the compliments of Miss Rolle M. Phillips, of "Kenmore Cottage," Lake Hopatcong, we are invited to participate in the pleasures of the Third Annual Carnival at the beautiful lake on the evening of Saturday, Aug. 8. The illuminated boats will assemble at Mr. Phillips' cottage, "Kenmore." No doubt but that the affair will be a grand one.

The following new reading of an old rhyme may prove interesting to the Ohio farmers at present:

Hark! hark! the dog barks!
He won't wag at the gate!
We used to wag for our flavors,
But that was free trade days.
They put a tariff on one day,
The carpet mills ran low;
And why? the dealers have ceased to pay
Ask Bill McK. of O.

—American Carpet and Upholstery Trade Journal.

The first six months of the year under the McKinley bill shows that pig metal production in the United States has fallen off 1,860 000 tons, or 25 per cent. The decrease in Pennsylvania has been 636,000 tons. The production of Bessemer steel ingots in the same time has fallen off 21 per cent., and of Bessemer steel rails 27 per cent. If there had been an increase in the same proportion how the McKinley Bill would have been glorified! As it is the protectionists have little to talk in whispers.—Pittsburg Post.

How is it that whenever some more amazing piece of rascality than usual turns up on the Republican side, such, for instance, as the Keystone bank, the "all-fire" Bardsley and Mr. Wanamaker's connection therewith, that the Democratic press, if it be occupied to silent about it, whereas they never can be too loud in their denunciation of the Hudson county frauds! By the way, these same organs omit to notice that the Democratic majority secured to the perpetrators of those frauds by Democratic Judges and Democratic jurymen. The ways of the Republican organs are not equal.

Putting aside all the evidence in the case Mr. Wanamaker's admission with regard to his connection with the Keystone bank are enough to discredit the Administration which retains him in the Cabinet. His confession that he indorsed pay for the overissued stock in his possession upon a threat of reporting the bank to the Comptroller is sufficiently damaging in itself. The presumption is that he would not report the illegal action of the bank if its demands were met, and such collusion with crime on the part of a Cabinet officer is unbearable to honest citizens.

Wha

ponder!

It is a stigma upon the intensely Republican City of Philadelphia and only a single specimen.

The ex-Treasurer justly occupies a felon's cell.

How many participants in public plunder still breathe the air of freedom and brazenly pose as hon rable and reputable citizens?

ATTACKED BY A STATE BUREAU.

New Jersey Building and Loan Associations Calling Unfriendly.

The advance sheets of the State Bureau of Statistics, which have been received within the last few days, contain an assault upon the underlying principle of building and loan association that will probably stir up the promoters of organizations of that class in this city and elsewhere. The argument is that the manner of selling money pursued by them is usurious and that the only attraction they present is the opportunity they afford to men of limited means to secure homes on the installment plan. Building and loan associations have become a considerable factor—probably the most considerable factor—in building up the waste places in New Jersey. They number 264 in the State, and their growth in Hudson, Passaic, and Bergen counties has been phenomenal. They purchased last all the time it began preparing its annual book reports from 262 of the 264 are tabulated. Their net assets reached $22,466,800, an average of nearly $100,000 for each. The total resources foot up $23,404,281. Of the number 126 associations borrowed $1,556,962 in the year and repaid $1,278,689. The average annual receipts of 199 associations that reported the figures were $93,376. The average current expenses were $284, of which $264 went for payment of salaried officials.

Of the total resources the associations have $21,329,044 on bond and mortgage, while over $500,000 of cash was left on hand at the close of their respective fiscal years. From a calculation based on the returns from 90 per cent of the associations it is estimated that not less that 3,000 houses have been erected within the past year with their aid.

George S. Duryee, the State Commissioner of Banks and Insurance, has sent to the Legislature a report showing the condition of the New Jersey State banks at the close of business July 6. There are 23 of them. Their total resources are $9,273,873.27. The Trenton Banking Company makes the largest showing with $2,251,783.27; the State Banking Company, with $1,139,034. The Second, First, and Fifth are only other State banks in the State with resources of over $500,000.—the Long Branch Banking Company, $635,135, and the Monmouth County Bank, $530,405. The People's Bank of Sea Isle City, with $19,676.70 of resources, is the smallest in the list.

A $5,000 improvement at a cost of $1,000.

Councilman Spangenberg of the Big 6, Tuesday succeeded in getting another contribution of $600 from the Fire Department company of the Central railroad, towards the cost of the fine road between Cranford and Roselle park. Nothing would station west, that has been so thoroughly and faultlessly carried out by Street Commissioner Meeker.

This road is one of the many to which the Plainfield people can now point with pride, and for which the Big 6 alone are entitled to the credit. It was due, but through the efforts of Councilman Spangenberg and Commissioner Meeker, the Central railroad was persuaded to subscribe $2,000, and the Land Improvement company $2,500.

Scotch Plains Tax.

A base-ball game between teams from Scotch Plains and Nickel Plate, Saturday, resulted in the following score:

Scotch Plains. 1 2 0 0 4 0 2 1 0—9
Nickelwood.....0 0 1 0 0 3 1 0 0—5

Batteries—Scotch Plains, Mosher and Hotel Nickelwood; Miller and Robinson for Scotch Plains.

Sprains.

CORNELIA, Ohio 11, 1888.
I have found Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil very beneficial for Sprains. Quick relief and permanent cure followed its use. I have found it valuable in many other ways, and have used it for years. I have found it equally good for man and beast. I have used it in my family for Croup and Colds, and it has never failed to relieve promptly. I am never without it. Yours truly, D. VAN BUREN, Postmaster.

PAPER HANGER AGAINST MILLIONAIRE.

The Chief Bridge Work on the Road. Just Among Some Men in the Employ of Mr. Vanderbilt, but Contemplates that Order After Indictment to the Assessment of Mr. Hyde's Contract.

A. D. Van Selver, who is by occupation a paper hanger, and Charles Hyde, who is by profession a "President of Banks," are both residents of Fanwood, a village which may ultimately involve several other parties, besides the city of Plainfield, and the Central railroad of New Jersey. Just now, Vanderver and Hyde have the floor all to themselves.

Mr. Hyde started a gang of workmen building the abutments for a bridge to span Green Brook at its intersection with Sandford avenue. Mr. Vanselver, claiming that Sandford avenue where it turns into Fanwood is a lot bought by him, and was never properly made a public street still that he owns the land under the highway in this locality, and that Hyde, Chancellor, and upon his statement of the case, the Chancellor signed an order stopping Mr. Hyde from doing any more work on the portion of the road above referred to, and directing him to appear on Monday last and show cause why an injunction should not be granted.

Mr. Hyde claimed that the street had been dedicated to the public before Van Selver got his deed, and that Van Selver had conveyed all his rights in the land to Induced him (Hyde) to expend a large sum of money in grading, etc. He also showed that the bridge was to be built by Union and Somerset counties.

The Chancellor heard the arguments of counsel on Monday, and decided in Mr. Hyde's favor. He dissolved the rule and setting aside the first order with costs. The preliminary injunction is therefore denied, but the main case will go on perhaps for years to come. W. V. Hoagland represents Mr. Van Selver, and Craig A. Marsh represents Mr. Hyde.

THE BROWNS IN JERSEY AGAIN.

A PRESS Reporter is the First Plainfielder to Set Eyes on Them Since They Stole Away From the City.

During Christmas eve, Dec. 24, 1889, the firm of "I. Brown & Bro.," moved out through the back door of the premises they occupied on North avenue as clothing merchants. With them also disappeared all the stock in the place with the exception of a few hats and a stuffed Santa Claus left in the show windows to divert suspicion.

Another creditors left behind were Samuel Dreier for $1,000, the gaslight company, $40, and Joseph Stolmak, $84, borrowed money. The store the Browns occupied was a successor to now the back room of Force's Hotel. They boxed the goods and shipped them out of the city during Christmas eve. They then had two lights and a whole day to travel away, before their flight was discovered. They were never caught and their creditors are still waiting.

The latter will be surprised to hear that the Browns are back in the State again. A Press reporter saw one of them on the Central railroad train at Elizabeth, recently, and traveled with him to New York. When addressed as "Mr Brown" he appeared white as a sheet, but smiled. He was addressed with, "I guess you don't know me." He scolds his head affirmatively and smiled more sickly. Probably he had supposed that him-self and the circumstances of his departure from Plainfield had been long since forgotten, and he therefore ventured into the State again.

CONVICTED AND FINED.

Bat Pangborn In-n't Bulldozed, and Will Carry the Case Higher.

The case of Thomas Rutledge, borough marshal, against Wm. N. Pangborn, reached a hearing before Justice Crosley on Tuesday evening, audthe result was that Pangborn was convicted of drunkenness and disorderly conduct and was fined $20.

Pangborn insists that he was n't intoxicated, but was peaceably talking to a friend on Harmony street when Rutledge approached and ordered him to go home and he refused to obey the order. The reason Rutledge arrested him was because he refused to permit the officer to set his dog on him.

Rutledge asserts that Pangborn was under the influence of liquor and was behaving in a very improper manner. He says that Pangborn told him he'd have to behave himself and that he'd better go home and sober up when Pangborn began to curse him, dared him to arrest him, and defied his authority.

Pangborn says he will get a writ of certiorari and carry the case into the Supreme Court.

Judge Crosley told a Press reporter yesterday that he felt that he had only done his duty in the matter. Several witnesses appeared—he said—for both sides. The evidence was conflicting, but I weighed it very carefully, and the preponderance seemed to be in favor of Rutledge and the borough: so under the evidence conviction was the only possible result. Some have claimed that Pangborn's arrest was a piece of spite work on Rutledge's part because Pangborn ran against him at the last election, but there was nothing in the evidence to prove such a charge.

Rebuilding the Big Bridge.

The Jersey Central railway company is engaged on the work of rebuilding the big bridge which crosses Newark Bay. Over five thousand piles are to be driven. The work necessitates the use of one track on a portion of the bridge, and the enemies of great care. The company has a large force of special watchmen and signal men employed.

Wedding Adventure in India.

An officer in the British army recently befall a British officer in India. He was mounted on a fleet mule, and was passing through a wild jungle, bearing his fiancé, when the animal turned, bit off her leg and then fled again. The male accompanying party pursued the mule as she had deposited the officer on the ground. He succeeded after cut vigorously five or six times, as if to see that the legs were all right, she started after the mule, overtook it, and walking upon with fury in her eyes, and vengeance in the stroke of her arm. The race was over in a few moments, and the officer found that he had exasperated a valentine enough. He was soon united, and the bride and bridegroom, with the bridesmaid, left for their home in the jungle, and then, before the sun had risen so violently that he was a fit subject for the sunstroke, the bridesmaid returned to his master and gave utterance to a "bow-wow" of triumph.

Why He Preferred the Beach.

A gentleman heard a young visitor in his office talk his own name, aged six.

"Which would you rather be—a mounted policeman or a mounted policeman?" he asked.

"A mounted policeman, of course," said the boy.

"Why?" asked the other.

"Cause, if the policemen some I could get away quick."

Something Like It.

Teacher—"Now, little girl, Good Morning, Tilton," is a sentence that has been written a book, in a sentence that has been written a book, in a sentence that has been written a book, in

CITY DEPARTMENT.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY OF UNION.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - City Editor.

—A South Plainfield man with a crumpled horn joined issue with a Lehigh Valley locomotive, a day or two ago, and now she is crumpled all over.

—As had already been announced in these columns the striking of the hours 12 noon and 9 p. m. on the fire gong was begun yesterday by the agency of a clock-work attachment.

—An impressionable man who has seen the pictures of the Prince of Wales with which a Tory clothier has decorated our fences, has started a subscription to get H. R. H. a bath-tub and shave.

—Supt. Talman of the Newark Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, whose conduct is under examination by the executive committee, is not the Rev. Mr. Talman so well-known here, but his father.

—The annual promenade concert and reception at the Hotel Netherwood will be held next Thursday evening. There will be an increased orchestra for the occasion. The concert will begin at 8:30; dancing at 10.

—The fellow who red-peppered the ball-room floor of Plainfield's Casino can't be credited even with originality in ruffianism. He ought to be pumbed with a dose of his own medicine.—Joe Howard, jr., in New York Recorder.

—Councilman Ackerman called Monday night's Council proceedings "farcical," at which Councilman Hetfield retorted that the gentleman did n't know what he was talking about. This was the only breeze that enlivened the session.

—Plainfield racquetists seem fated to suffer postponements, this season. That of the Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school found the weather frowning on its hopes; and that of the A. A. had to be postponed till Tuesday of next week.

—A number of Plainfielders are going on an excursion to Chautauqua Lake in connection with the annual C. L. S. C. Chautauqua assembly, Aug. 3. They will have the privilege of returning by way of Niagara Falls, without extra charge.

—The New York Telegram says that pitcher O'Neil, formerly of the Westfield team, will likely sign a contract to play with the New Yorks. O'Neil is now pitching for the Gothamites here and here against the Crescents, next Saturday.

—A dispatch received this morning from Norwich, by T. E. Keller, says that three games have been arranged for August 4 and 5, already over a dozen have signified their intention of accompanying the Plainfield team on its trip.

—Plainfield Council, Royal Arcanum, and Mayflower Lodge, Knights of Honor, have each voted to vacate their lodge rooms in the Elkwood building, and a committee from both lodges are now inspecting other rooms preparatory to removal.

—A young lad of West Fifth street, on two recent occasions has fired a bullet through his window, to the terror of his neighborhood. Once a lady happened to be in the room where the bullet struck, and she narrowly escaped injury. It does seem as if it was time for the law to treat the boy with a gun.

—The Unions of Grant avenue will play a game of base-ball against the Chameleons, at 2:30 next Saturday afternoon, on the Chathams' grounds in North Plainfield. On August 8 the Unions will play the Roberts, of Pond Machine Tool Works, and on August 15 will play the Junior Cuban Giants.

—A chance that may only come once in a lifetime to any of the good women of Plainfield, is offered at Gaskill's for a few days. Odds and ends of regular stock in class ware and porcelain, table and bedroom sets in fine china with a piece or two missing, and other lots of goods not slightly damaged as not to be noticeable, will be sold at most any price you name.

—The Young People's League of the First Baptist church will begin its regular meeting this evening at 8 o'clock in the Sunday-school rooms. A very enjoyable time is expected, and it is hoped that all the members will there be present. Everybody is cordially invited to participate in the services. The leader will be Robert Love, and the topic "Christ the Only Way".

—Marshal Rutledge has been doing some more high-handed things in the borough—if all reports are true. The latest is, that he became a man whom he had arrested for fast driving was released with a reprimand by Justice Crosley, he censured the court and said to the released prisoner that he might go home; hired; wherefore you can drive as fast as you please; you can drive to hell and gone, and it won't interfere"—or words to that effect.

—Louis Sprigg, of Howard street, North Plainfield, who has been appointed special marshal, has been well recommended as a faithful watchman, and has already received considerable encouragement and patronage, and intends to begin patrolling through a portion of Washington Park this week Saturday night. Mr. Sprigg has been in the employ of Christian Scheppin as a packer for a period of seventeen years, and is highly recommended by that firm for honesty, sobriety and faithfulness to his duty. He is a veteran of the late war.

He Can Smile While Wives is Well at Sea.

The Rev. Dr. E. F. Ketcham has been spending a few days at Ocean Grove. A few days ago he, with Mrs. Dr. Lowell and the Rev. C. S. Mitchell, enjoyed a fine yachting trip at Bay Head. Dr. Ketcham is an experienced yachtsman, so much so that he owns a yacht called "Emma B", lying off Ocean Grove, gave him the helm the other day and the reverend gentleman guided the white wings as successfully as the oarsman himself.

Central Railway Improvements.

The Central railway intends making some much needed improvements between Elizabeth and New York, and has already begun the erection of a new stone station on the north side of the tracks at Commonpaw, and a wooden one near the Point of Rocks, Bergen Hill. A temporary station has been built at Bergen Point, and the old one will soon be torn down and a variety building of stone will then take its place.

The Dalrville Ball Team Beats the "Arlingtons" of Berkley Heights.

An interesting game of base-ball was played at Stirling, the former pasturage of the Rev. Arthur Cushing Dill, Saturday afternoon. A Press correspondent writes that the game was played from the "Actives" of Berkley Heights, to the Stirling team, through the successful efforts of a man named John Kelly who claimed he could umpire:

"When the Berkley Heights' boys saw how they were being robbed, they started in to bat out a victory in spite of the umpire. They would have succeeded had not the Dalrville team refused to play any longer because of a little ten-minute shower."

The batteries were: Actives—Crane, R. Rogers, D. Rogers; Stirlings—Hamerlin, Goodwin. Rogers and Hamerlin each struck out 7. The score by innings:

Stirlings	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0—0
Actives	0	0	0	1	0	1	0	1	0—3

I was troubled with sick headache for two years. Ayer's Pills cured me.—Mrs. Mary Hall, Lowell, Mass.

PERSONALIA.

J. W. Murray, jr., and family, have gone to East Boothby, Me.

A. W. Sperry is registered among the new arrivals at Ocean Grove.

S. G. Simpson and daughters are at the Simpson House, Monroe, Penn.

A. W. Waldron, jr., wife and son, are at Moscow, Penn.

The Rev. T. Logan Murphy was in Florence, Italy, yesterday.

George C. Mahon and family are at "The Lilliagard", Ocean Grove.

The Rev. W. R. Richards will spend his vacation at Litchfield, Conn.

John Mantz and Joseph Pike are among the Plainfielders at Asbury Park.

Miss Jennie Abbott, of this city, is stopping at the Alpha Hotel, Ocean Grove.

F. W Quereau, wife and child, of this city, are re-interred at Hotel LaPierre, Ocean Grove.

Miss Charlotte Burnett, of New York, is the guest of Miss Helen Warman of Grove street.

Israel C. Pierson and family, of Broadway, have gone to the Fabyan House, in the White Mountains.

Miss Julia Acly, of New York, spent Sunday with Mrs. Mason W. Tyler, of Seventh street.

The family of C. E. Brooks are summering at Maplewood Cottage, Maplewood, New Hampshire.

Mrs. Wm. White, of North Plainfield, has been stopping a few days at the National, Ocean Grove.

Mr and Mrs. N. C. Duns and family are guests at Force's Hotel. Mrs. Dunn is a daughter of Mrs. Force.

Miss J. Louise Pangborn of this city is among those recently registered at the St. Cloud House, Asbury Park.

Recent arrivals at the Gramercy House, Asbury Park, include E. R. Pope and wife and J. F. Hubbard and wife.

Miss Julia Finley, of East Third street, is spending a few days with her cousin, Miss Maggie Connolly, of Bayonne.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hartzmyer, of Washington Park, are at the Mountain Summit House, Tannersville, N. Y.

At the Marlborough, Bar Harbor, have arrived Mrs. A. F. Dox and Mr. and Mrs. George Wharton Edwards, of this city.

News comes from the west of the death of Abbie Sutton, who once lived in Plainfield, and who is known by many old residents.

Mr. and Mrs. Lancey of Plainfield, N. J., are named by the Bar Harbor Tourist as among the guests at the Stanley House.

The names of A. F. Shanson and Miss Shanson, of Ninth street, appear on the list of recent arrivals at the West End, Bar Harbor.

At Chautauqua, Thursday, Miss Kate Kimball, of this city, spoke on "Chautauqua Work in the West", mentioning prison work especially.

The Revs. E. M. Rodman and Edmund Embery of this city participated in the recent consecration of the new St. Paul's church at Bound Brook.

Miss Jennie Laing, who was injured in a runaway accident at Long Branch, three weeks ago, has fully recovered, and is home again in this city.

John Brooks, of Broadway, has been granted two patents on mechanism for cutting or perforating variable lengths of paper web for printing presses.

Miss Emma Hart and Miss A. G. Nelson, of Central avenue, are at the Edge Moor, Ocean Grove, and Miss S. L. Wood and Miss Roesp, are also there for the summer.

Mrs. Abraham Hooley and children, of Central avenue, are spending a few weeks at North Asbury. Mrs. Hooley is accompanied by her sister, Miss Le. Baker, of Elizabeth.

Recent arrivals at Asbury Park include the following from this city: Fenimore—A. E. Stover, C. Stover, Mrs. Fenimore, Miss Fish and wife. Ocean House—C. C. Burnett.

Noah T. Pike, of Savannah, now on a visit here, was a guest of Lieut. Aliens of the U. S. steamer Chester at Asbury. On a two days' trip last week to Newport and the government supply stations on the Sound.

Recent arrivals at Asbury Park include the following from this city: The Windsor House—N. Yarrier, Madame Gotti, Emma Gotti; the Leroy—J. E. Pucci; the Brunswick—A. M. French; the Portland—Mrs. Sarah Laing.

The Hon. Wm. C. Kelly, of Plainfield, was among the one-day visitors on Wednesday. Mr. Kelly has given up the idea of spending time in Florida, and says there will be a big crop.—Asbury Park Daily Journal.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Swaim and daughter, of Brooklyn, spent Saturday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Swaim, of West Front street. Mr. Swaim has charge of the music in the Rosa Street Methodist church, Brooklyn.

Mrs. Sarah Bradshaw, of 92 Duer street, is the owner of a large and thrifty night-blooming cereus plant. Saturday evening there were 17 buds in bloom, and last night it contained seven. Many friends and neighbors viewed the beautiful sight.

The recent issue of the Bar Harbor Tourist appears a poem entitled "Bar Harbor", written by the Hon. Wm. M. Marins and dedicated to his friend Dr. Ketcham. The Hon. Wm. Wardell, Bond "Emma B", lying off Ocean Grove, gave him the helm the other day and the reverend gentleman guided the white wings as successfully as the oarsman himself.

TO PAINT THE TOWN BLACK.

Great Preparations for the Coming Grand Gipsies Ball.

The town will be given over to the colored people next week Thursday, and in the words of one of their own number "Plainfield will be painted black". The Emancipation Day celebration will attract a large number of visitors. There will begin to arrive the day before. The orator of the day, the Rev. W. C. Jason, of Orange, N. J., will come to town Wednesday evening and will be entertained at the home of Wm. E. Johnson, the president of the managing committee and the originator of the idea, Sir Manning Havens. The first attraction of the celebration will be ball game between two colored teams—one from Washington, the other country, the other made up of players from Plainfield and from the celebrated Gorhams—on the Crescent League grounds, at 10:30 in the morning. The game will be managed by Mr. Johnson.

At noon dinner will be served, and at 2 p. m. the parade will start. At the head of the procession will be Grand Marshal Hall, Senator Sewell, Mayor Gilbert, the Common Councilmen, the president of the day, Mr. Johnson, and the orator of the day, the Rev. W. Jason, all in carriages, the Grand Marshall, Wm. Douglass, and his aides, the visiting colored organizations, all citizens desiring of falling into line, either in carriages or afoot, and two or three brass bands. The parade will be about an hour and a half long. At its conclusion a mass meeting will be held at the Crescent, where Mayor Gilbert will give an address of welcome and the Rev. Mr. Jason will deliver an oration. At 8 p. m. another baseball game between the Washington and Plainfield colored clubs will be played. In the evening at 8 o'clock, at the Crescent, the Rev. Mr. Jason will again deliver an oration, and at the close of his address a colored ball will be held. The costumes will be gorgeous, and the affair a brilliant one. There will be a band of music at the ball games. The public is requested to decorate the houses along the line of march, which will be announced later. The committee need $150 to complete the funds. Subscriptions may be sent to Mr. Johnson.

NEW YORK'S VIEW OF IT.

Young John Knox Wants Set Only Elizabeth and Cranford, but Plainfield.†

[From The New York Recorder.]

Through the agency of the Democrats in the Plainfield (N. J.) Common Council, J. W. Low of Kingston, N. Y., was awarded last night a franchise to build and operate in Plainfield a system of water-works. The fight for a water franchise in that city is a factional one. Charles E. Moore and a company of capitalists were given a franchise only a year ago, but they failed to complete the work. Moore's brother-in-law, John Knox, jr., of Elizabeth, who was backing Moore financially, deserted him at the last moment and left the young engineer to shift for himself. Moore made a brave struggle to stem the tide of financial difficulties that beset him, but he was at length forced to surrender the franchise to the Plainfield Water Supply Company, an old corporation holding a water franchise granted before Plainfield's charter was given in 1872. With Moore's franchise in its possession and its own franchise of 1869 at its back, the Water Supply Company began to construct its works in that city.

They are now nearly completed, and the company claims an exclusive privilege to the field. The Democrats, who have a majority in the Common Council, have questioned this exclusive privilege claimed, and last night they bade defiance to the courts and awarded another franchise to Low. The Republicans in their midsavors to protect Moore's old company, bitterly contested the Democrats' action, but they were overpowered. The matter will probably be taken into the courts for a final adjustment, beyond doubt.

LIVELY CHASE AFTER A BURGLAR.

Mr. Tidman, His Boy and a Revolver Pull to Stop a Thief.

Superintendent F. C. Tidman, of the Schuyler Electric Light Company at Elizabeth, and formerly an electrician in this city, had an exciting adventure, Monday night, with a burglar, which he sought to trying to enter through a window in the kitchen of his residence.

Mr. Tidman was awakened by a noise, while he ran back to his bedroom for a revolver. The thief struck the dog a blow with a stick, and then fled across the vacant lot pursued by Mr. Tidman and his eight-year-old son, who had also heard the fleeing burglar, but none of them seemed to take effect. The fellow scaled a fence and fled through the woods, and appeared in the darkness. The firing aroused the whole neighborhood.

The people living in the vicinity are now investing in shotguns, as this is the third attempted burglary on that street within a week.

Bound Brook Convictions.

The old charges that have been hanging fire over Thomas Dowd, several weeks past, received a hearing before Justice Codington and a jury Tuesday afternoon. The first charge was of using profane, vile and indecent language. The jury promptly acquitted him. The other charge was of intoxication. The city had three witnesses; the defendant seven or eight. After hearing the evidence, Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh said that he would not insist on a conviction, and Dowd was released.

A Big Real Estate Trade.

Charles H. Hand, the owner of the "Elkwood" building on West Second street, exchanged it yesterday for Crescent cottage, on Bigelow avenue and Fourth street. The appraised value of the "Elkwood" building was $40,000. The Crescent property cost about $30,000.

Mr. Hand intends to put the rink building in thorough repair and offer it for rent at reasonable rates by the day or week. He has let the old building in Plainfield where large balls, fairs, reunions, etc., can be held. Every entertainment given there has made money. It is to be regretted that the building is not managed by the public to maintain the building for such purposes, or the city must go without the pleasures of such large gatherings.

Good Luck Doesn't Always Follow the Horse Shoe.

Councilman Hetfield's little mare has been bruising her foot with a horse shoe, and the legal member of the Big 6 thinks she will go through life hereafter without a drop of ill luck falling on her. He was the guest of a prominent Democratic official residing in this city picked up a horse shoe the day she arrived in Asbury Park this summer, and before night she had cut her foot on the sharp edges and torn out of her baby's dress. No more horse shoes for her.

Mr. Hetfield gentleman's pretty mare was branded in unusual. She was being shod and stood with one of her front feet in the blacksmith's lap. Something startled her and she kicked a shoe which was in use during the Revolutionary war and which, according to family tradition, was frequently appropriated and used by the British officers in their occupation of this section at that time.

Success is the envy of the weak hearted. They seek to pull down the strong. Success is the reward of the brave hearted. Those who have it deserve it. Those who seek it deserve it. Those who have it not, but deserve it, will find it in Hood's Sarsaparilla. Try it.

FROM PLAINFIELD TO NORWICH.

A Large Delegation Will Undoubtedly Go With the Crescent League's Team.

The Crescent League team that visits Plainfield, N. J., will be played against on the Crescent grounds, Norwich, on August 4 and 5. The Crescents are one of the strongest clubs in the state of New York and are pushing up a great game this season. If they come to Norwich they will have a hard struggle to win, although the games may be expected.

The above from the Norwich, Conn., Record, foreshadows an enjoyable excursion for the Crescent League members, their team and their friends, and there is every reason for the assertion that "a large delegation of Plainfield" will go from here.

Ezra Tom Keller has the project in charge, and that is full assurance of its success in every detail. There'll be the fine sail up the Sound, the pleasant trips to Norwich and Mystic, the exciting struggle of the Connecticut professionals again Captain Lafferty's young giants, and a hundred other new scenes and enjoyments.

All this, Mr. Keller tells The Press, he will be able to place within the reach of everybody at a cost of $12. This amount will cover all expenses of the three days —fare and stateroom down and back on the boat, meals, car fares and hotel bills. Certainly there will be a large delegation.

LADIES DAY ON THE ROAD.

Nineteen Young Women of This City Give the Town of Westfield a Great Treat.

Thursday was the first of a proposed series of ladies' days on the road. Under command of Captain Lillie Fritts, an eighteen young women cyclers of Plainfield swung into line and after wheeling to Westfield, delighted its inhabitants— young and old, pale and sallow—with a graceful parade through the streets.

One old inhabitant, who rushed forward to work the pump when the ladies stopped for water, said: "Young just look splendid ma'am! The men don't look like nothing side of what young ladies do." And the latter also seemed themselves afterwards, that he was a perfect gentleman.

Those who were in the ride Thursday are given below. When a regular day for each week is fixed upon, no doubt the number who participate will be greatly increased.

Lillie Fritts,
Jessie Carter,	Eleanor Demarest,
Mary Fritts,	Florence Abbott,
May Kirkner,	Miss Maltby,
Ethel Holmes,	Miss Hubbard,
Jennie Vanwinkle,	Miss Smith,
Lou Patton,	Lizzie Ailis,
Mabel French,	Mamie Crouch,
Mabel Maxson,	Annie Bosco,
Maud Lowrie,	Laura Baker.

WATER-WORKS AND SEWERAGE.

Mr. Low Gets Gas Franchise, and Will Get the Other.

At a conference of the Plainfield Councilmen held just previous to the special meeting, Monday night, it was decided to fill the pump when the conference pending, because of its existing flaws. When the meeting was held the water-works ordinance was first taken up, but some confusion arose, and those who had intended to vote for it voted against it, thinking it was the sewerage ordinance. The vote was reconsidered, however, and the ordinance was adopted by the vote of 6 to 5.

The vote was:

Ayes—Councilmen Gallup, Hetfield, Moffett, Roberts, Smith and Spangenberg.

Noes—Councilmen Ackerman, Gitsa, Jordon, Rushmore and Sea.

The ordinance grants a franchise to J. M. Low and his associates to construct and operate water-works in Plainfield. The franchise is to be known as the Plainfield Aqueduct Company.

The sewerage ordinance, granting to the Newark Bay Company a franchise to construct and operate sewers, was unanimously killed. A substitute ordinance, being the original one in a perfected form, will be introduced later.

The Bear Babies.

The Newark Bee Hive sights all the big folks this week, and pays exclusive attention to the little people. No parent reader of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, however, will blame them for it, this we know.

There Been Issues of That.

TRY Hood's Sarsaparilla upon Thursday to doubt the robbery reported by the proprietor of 43 North avenue. The place is robbed too often. The tenant the time a blow with a stick, and then fled across the vacant lot pursued by the citizens and in his night-shirt. He fired three shots at the fleeing burglar, but none of them seemed to take effect. The fellow scaled a fence and fled through the woods, and appeared in the darkness. The firing aroused the whole neighborhood.

The people living in the vicinity are now investing in shotguns, as this is the third attempted burglary on that street within a week.

Bound Brook Convictions.

The old charges that have been hanging fire over Thomas Dowd, several weeks past, received a hearing before Justice Codington and a jury Tuesday afternoon. The first charge was of using profane, vile and indecent language. The jury promptly acquitted him. The other charge was of intoxication. The city had three witnesses; the defendant seven or eight. After hearing the evidence, Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh said that he would not insist on a conviction, and Dowd was released.

A Big Real Estate Trade.

Charles H. Hand, the owner of the "Elkwood" building on West Second street, exchanged it yesterday for Crescent cottage, on Bigelow avenue and Fourth street. The appraised value of the "Elkwood" building was $40,000. The Crescent property cost about the same.

Mr. Hand intends to put the rink building in thorough repair and offer it for rent at reasonable rates by the day or week. He has let the old building in Plainfield where large balls, fairs, reunions, etc., can be held. Every entertainment given there has made money. It is to be regretted that the building is not managed by the public to maintain the building for such purposes, or the city must go without the pleasures of such large gatherings.

Good Luck Doesn't Always Follow the Horse Shoe.

Councilman Hetfield's little mare has been bruising her foot with a horse shoe, and the legal member of the Big 6 thinks she will go through life hereafter without a drop of ill luck falling on her. He was the guest of a prominent Democratic official residing in this city picked up a horse shoe the day she arrived in Asbury Park this summer, and before night she had cut her foot on the sharp edges and torn out of her baby's dress. No more horse shoes for her.

Mr. Hetfield gentleman's pretty mare was branded in unusual. She was being shod and stood with one of her front feet in the blacksmith's lap. Something startled her and she kicked a shoe which was in use during the Revolutionary war and which, according to family tradition, was frequently appropriated and used by the British officers in their occupation of this section at that time.

Success is the envy of the weak hearted. They seek to pull down the strong. Success is the reward of the brave hearted. Those who have it deserve it. Those who seek it deserve it. Those who have it not, but deserve it, will find it in Hood's Sarsaparilla. Try it.

ORGANIZED SNEAK THIEVES.

The Police Get a Clue to Their Identity.

A band of sneak thieves who are hogs as their tools is said to be operating in this city.

July 23 a lad who was pumping water for the family of W. W. Knickerbocker, at 100 West Front street, stole a dollar bill and a dime from the purse of a servant girl, while he was supposed to be up in the tank room seeing if the tank was filled.

A warrant was issued for his arrest, but meanwhile, not thinking that the theft had been discovered, he returned to Mr. Knickerbocker's home and when charged with his guilt confessed.

He was promised immunity from punishment if he would return the stolen property, which he did.

The police regret that such a promise was made, as through the lad they hoped to secure the conviction of the gang whose thieving efforts is spreading through boys in just the way that success'ed at Mr. Knickerbocker's. They think, however, that the boy has struck close that will lead to the arrest of the gang.

A DASTARD'S DEED.

Whoever Put Pepper on the Ball Room Floor Will Get Scant Punishment When Caught.

At the recent hop at the Casino, some dastardly miscreant sprinkled a quantity of red pepper on the ball room floor of the Union County Country Club. The officers of the club are investigating all clues likely to disclose the identity of the person responsible for the trick, and will deal heavily with him. The casino had been prettily decorated for the occasion, and prominent society people from Plainfield, Rahway, New York and Brooklyn were present. When the dancing began no one noticed the presence of the cayenne pepper, but the tripping of feet and the swaying of skirts soon raised a dust that was simply overpowering in the heated and crowded ball room. Coughing and sneezing became so general and so violent that a hasty adjournment of those present was taken to another room, while servants with damp sawdust and brushes swept out the ball room.

NOT GOING TO STEAL CRANFORD RIVER.

John Knox Will Deliver Plainfield Water to the Township.

The Elizabeth Herald says in an article written or dictated by one of the John Knox high waymen, that it is not the object of the Elizabeth scheme in Cranford to steal its river, and that it is not the purpose of the water company there that has dug up an old charter, to use the river at all.

The article continues: "It is intended to build mains and distributing pipes from the works of the Plainfield Water Supply company, through Fanwood and Westfield, and also in the township of Cranford, and not touch the Rahway river.

"The supply of the Plainfield Water company is obtained by means of driven wells, located along the line of the Central railroad, about one-quarter of a mile east of the Netherwood station. The supply is sufficient for the city of Plainfield, and the capacity of the works is such that it is claimed more than 400,000 gallons of water can be pumped daily from the wells.

"An analysis of this water has shown it to be of remarkable purity, and the supply, competent experts have determined, to be almost inexhaustable. It is a part of the surplus supply that the new company proposes to furnish to the people who patronize them."

TO SUPPRESS CONCERT SALOONS.

City Councilmen Promise to Divorce Bar Rooms from Musical Performances and Other Recent Innovations.

At the special meeting of the Plainfield Common Council Monday night, a motion was made that the Corporation Counsel be instructed to draft an ordinance for the purpose of suppressing the recent invasion of concert saloons in Plainfield. Under the terms of the proposed ordinance musical performances in bar rooms, or in apartments adjoining the place where liquor is sold, will be prohibited.

Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh denied that he had ever refused to listen to appeals against the evil.

Another Base-Ball Struggle Between Plainfield and Somerville.

Messrs. White of this city and Carton of Somerville are arranging a series of games between colored ball teams of the two places. The first game will be played on August 8, in this city, on the Crescent League grounds. The Somerville team is in Somerville playing the third game with the West Ends. The Plainfield battery is to be Kline and Nelson.

The Last there in the Old Hill.

Cleveland's "Big City Show", as his Consolidated Minstrels are called, will appear before the public at Music Hall, next week Monday evening. The house will then be closed for probably a month, during which time it is to be refurnished, its stage improved, and the interior renovated in many particulars. The new management is booking a list of attractions for next season that will establish most of New York's greatest successes.

Rs Wants a $100,000 From James L. Athboy.

Lawyer Charles J. Foshall, of Jersey City, who was recently a defendant in a libel suit brought by Alfred E. Alfred Purdy Vreeenburgh, Secretary of the American Kennel Club, and was acquitted, has assumed the aggressive. He wants damages for the prosecution which the malicious prosecution. His suit is against James Louis Anthony of Nethorwood, August Belmont, and five others, and he asks from each the sum of $100,000.

The Death of Mrs. Keaney.

Further particulars of the death of Mrs. Mary Keaney—mother of John J., and Mrs. Thomas Brophy—who died on Saturday, of this city—which was mentioned in these columns at the time of the sad occurrence, are given below.

Sunday, July 19, at 6 o'clock she went from her home in Bound Brook to Pamrapo, accompanied by her granddaughter, Miss Mary Brophy, and her grandson, David. She retired Sunday night in good spirits. The little girl awoke Monday morning about 6:30 and saw some flies on her grandmother's face. She brushed them off so as not to disturb her slumber, when she touched her face and found it cold in death, the woman having died from heart disease during the night.

Mrs. Keaney was a native of Ireland, but for the past two years has resided with her son-in-law, Thomas Brophy, of Bound Brook. Previous to living there her home was for 40 years at Mills Rosen, where she lost her husband. She was 71 years of age, and leaves four sons and two daughters.

Funeral services were held in St. Joseph's church Tuesday morning, the Rev. R. C. Ondorff officiating. Interment was made in Plainfield.

John have you noted that woman lately? John, in confidence! What woman? Why, Jane is planning syrups for August. When Jane finds that Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood and gives strength, she will be glad to recommend it to her friends in the State. The property is marked Lot on Llewellyn Park it is one of the Boys.

NETHERWOOD NOTES.

Weather Notes, Society Parties, and Bunches Bells.

The past week has been crowded with pleasant events. The hotel is well filled, and everything is being done to please each guest. Music lends the pleasure during the week:

On July 20, Miss Jennie C. Bauny gave a little party to celebrate her birthday. The following little darlings constituted the party: The Misses Dunlap Jones, Amy Leidner, Amelia Rohde, Daisy Pearsall, Grace Leidner, Georgie Cummins and Gladys Balch. Master Weston Williams was the only young prince present.

The donkey party was thoroughly enjoyed by the little maidens. Miss Amelia Robins won the first prize, after which a gorgeous birthday cake was placed upon the table, containing a ring. The entertainment at this point of the festivities was immense. Miss Gracie Brewster carved off the magic ring, and the happy acclamations of her young friends. It was a joyous event, and marked one her golden years in the sweet life of the fair young recipient.

The second progressive euchre party of the season was held in the grand parlor of the hotel Wednesday evening. A generous subscrip ion list afforded Mrs. F. F. Robins and Mrs H. D Brewster an opportunity to display their exquisite taste in purchasing a number of beautiful prizes for the occasion. Sixteen tables were placed in the parlor, and at 9 o'clock the player assembled around them, when the game was opened by the manipulation of H. D. Brewster. It was a gay and happy throng, and a marked success; "nuff sed" will do for the rest. The prizes were: Mrs. Col. Martin, first prize, gold-lined silver salad spoon and fork; second prize, Mrs. G. B. Bridgman, white leather carriage, silver mounted; third prize, Mrs. W. E. McCrady, bonbonieres Dresden china; fourth prize, cut glass celery dish, Mrs. C. D. Ogden. Harry Martin, first prize, Gladstone bag; second prize, A. D. Brewster, order for Dunlap silk hat; third, W. J. Eaton, seal leather silver mounted wallet; fourth, Dr. Martin, silver tongue fork. The consolation prizes, two handsome gilt traveling clocks, were won by Messrs. Williams and Gondran. At 10:30 the affair closed, after which Mrs. Ogden, in a neat little speech, thanked Mrs. Robins and Mrs. Brewster on behalf of the guests.

On Thursday evening one of our fair young lady guests, Miss Macy, transformed handkerchiefs into fantastic dolls, and with thread attachments from the chandelier in the parlor evolved them to execute dances that brought forth peals of laughter and applause from the guests present. J. A. H.

IT IS AN ENTICING SPORT.

Plainfield Men of All Professions Own to the Delight of Fishing.

"Why do you fish?" is a question often asked by friends of the angler, and frequently the person of whom it is asked is puzzled to make a reasonable answer. Of course, the pleasures of getting out on the river or rambling through the forest and along the will hills are much enjoyed, and the angler will dwell on the healthfulness of the recreation, and will not hesitate to say that its love of nature is the secret that sends him forth in search of the wily trout or vigorous black bass. To breathe the fresh air of the hills and woods, to wander among the leaves of the rugged mountains, through which invariably the trout rivers make their way, is undoubtedly no small factor in calling out the angler, but it cannot be denied by any thoughtful and truth-telling fisherman that there is something in playing a lively fish upon the end of a pliant whip-like rod that would lead him to the nearest stream whether nature had blessed its surroundings or not.

To sympathetic women the idea of the quivering fish when brought to gaff is one of cruelty. They do not believe the statement that the fish suffers nothing. They think that fish's actions are due simply to the larger quantity of oxygen that he gets in the open air. They say the sport is cruel, but they don't mind eating the fruits of the alleged cruelty, and these days are becoming quite reconciled to the fun of fishing, so that they deign to handle a rod themselves, and are becoming as expert in the management of a fly that the men expert in the art will have to look well to save their laurels.

There is undoubtedly a certain charm about angling that cannot well be expressed in words, and at all events the love of fishing grows rapidly upon the devotee. Once having started out on the road to piscatorial conquest, the fisherman rarely turns back, and the deeper the woods are penetrated and the larger the trout are found, the more anxious is the angler to get after them.

Representatives of professional and business life have made fishing a matter of record in their callings are numbered by scores on the list of those who delight to fish and hunt. Pistmeisters who love the sport are many. The watchmaker, the dryggods clerk, the machinist, the dentist, the physician, the learned counselor at law, even the staid City Engineer, have all felt disciples of rare old Izaak Walton. Many a Plainfielder can call to mind at once a score of friends who spend their vacations in search of the lucky denizen of the deep. Even the busy newspaper man, when he gets a chance, takes his rod and hies him to the fishing banks or to the mountain brook, whose streams lure the game beauties.

THE BIG 6 AGAINST JOHN KEAN.

"The Public Avails the Result with Great Interest."

The following, dated Friday, is from the New York Times:

A secret meeting of the "Big Six" of the Plainfield Common Council will be the result in important public measures, is to be held at the home of Charles E. Moore this evening. Mr. Moore is the contractor to whom was awarded by the Plainfield Common Council of last year, a franchise for the construction and operation of water works in Plainfield. He was opposed by John J. Kean, jr., of Elizabeth, from completing his contract, and Mr. Kean himself got control of the works and is pushing them to completion.

Mr. Kean owns the only gravity boasts of his control of the city of Elizabeth, is seeking to secure a similar monopolistic grip on Plainfield, Cranford, Westfield and Cranford through wholesale water works, sewerage, and other enterprises which have for their foundation the bonding of the townships affected. Mr. Moore and the "Big Six" have determined, it is said, on a plan to fight and defeat his machinations. At to-night's secret meeting their scheme is to be matured. It is to be put into practical shape. The public awaits the result with great interest.

AFTER THE WATER SUPPLY PEOPLE.

They Must Put Turn-up Streets Into Their Original Condition.

On motion Counsel Harold Moore, of this city, Counsel for the Water Supply Company of Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh to draw up an ordinance compelling parties who tear up the streets to lay pipes or other purposes to put the streets in as good condition as good as they were originally, under penalty of arrest and fine. The proposed ordinance has been drawn up by the solicitor of the Water Supply Company.

There isn't any "good as new" to Hood's Sarsaparilla. It makes the impure blood pure and rich and gives new life and vitality to every part of the body.

POETICALLY PUT.

Dr. Watts one of our best poets, said,

"Tan wants but little here below,
Nor wants that little long".

If the Doctor had lived in our time and had known anything about the Clothing business he would probably written instead,

"Man must have trousers here below
And wants them sewed up strong"

And to these words he might have added—

"I'm likes to have them fit him, so
They'll be neither short nor long".

And then if he had accidentally become acquainted with us and our stock of trousers, he would have turned out more poetry to the tune of something like this—

"The young, the old, and the gay gallants,
Are all well pleased with McGregor's Pants".

But, because of this poetry, you're not to suppose the pants are poetry, for they are made of goods which are only like poetry, inasmuch that they are lasting.

Come and see us, and we will endeavor to please you; and if we can't, no one can.

McGregor & Co., 850 and 852 Broad St NEWARK, N. J.

Misses A. L. & M. D. GORSLINE,
Fancy Goods, Notions, Art Needle Work, Painted Novelties, &c.,
14 WEST FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD, N. J.
STAMPING AND DESIGNING A SPECIALTY.
ARTISTIC OUTLINING AND EMBROIDERY.

Lumber & Coal
Loomis & Rice
Bdway. 49 TELEPHONE 75 A

BERNHARD MEYER,
Successor to A. D. Thompson.

Riverside Stock Farm,
AT FINDERNE STATION,
On Central Railroad 2 New Jersey, will always have for sale a large assortment of Horses of all Kinds and for all Purposes. Also Mules and Fresh Cattle.
Everything warranted as represented or money refunded.
WM. C. SMITH, Superintendent.
BRANCH STABLES, No. 358 Palisade Ave., and Nos. 11 and 13 Ogden Ave., JERSEY CITY.
Have now on hand some fine Road Horses and Trotters, and closely Matched Teams.

BOYNTON BEACH!
Finest Picnic Grove in the State.
A picnic Grove on the N. J. Jersey Coast, on line of the Shortest R. R. to Sea. Only 1½ hours from New York.
BATHING,
Boating—and Fishing. Merry-Go-Round
Agassiz Association. For PICNIC RATES, FOR EXCURSIONS apply to H. H. M. of N. J.

SHERIFF'S SALE.—In Chancery of New Jersey, between John H. Hinchliffe, Complainant, and Elizabeth Ann Hinchliffe, et al., Defendants. Fi. fa. for sale of mortgaged premises. By virtue of the above-stated writ of fieri facias to me directed, I shall expose for sale by public vendue or outcry, at the Court House, in the city of Jersey City, on WEDNESDAY, THE TWELFTH DAY OF AUGUST, A. D. 1891, at two o'clock in the afternoon of said day, all that certain lot or parcel of land and premises hereinafter particularly described, situate, lying and being in the City of Jersey City, in the County of Hudson and State of New Jersey.

Beginning at a point in the northeasterly line of Liberty street, twenty-six feet eight inches southeasterly from the southeasterly line of Fifth street, said point of beginning being also the southwesterly corner of the lot of land now or formerly owned by Mary Ann Gilbert; thence southeasterly along said line of Liberty street twenty-six feet eight inches to the southwesterly corner of lot sold to and now owned by William Hinchliffe; thence northeasterly at right angles to Liberty street one hundred and eight and one-half feet to the southeasterly corner of lot sold to and now owned by William Hinchliffe; thence northwesterly parallel with Liberty street twenty-six feet eight inches to the southeasterly corner of lot now or formerly owned by Mary Ann Gilbert; thence southwesterly along said Gilbert's lot one hundred and eight and one-half feet to the place of beginning.

Being the same property which was conveyed by Sarah Jane Hinchliffe, widow, to Elizabeth Ann Hinchliffe, party

A FLIRTATION.

I've been flirting today with a lady
In the car—she sat right over the way—
And the neighbors are gossiping, maybe;
But I don't care a bit what they say.

She's a dear little curly-headed beauty,
With eyes that are dazzling and sweet;
Her hair has pink pinch, powder and puff,
And her shoes—maybe showed me his feet.

He glanced at me, pleasantly smiling,
As though saying, "Is she not a female,"
Then he hopped on the window inspiring
And fabricated his case over there.

He threw me a kiss for a greeting;
He showed me the lace on his dress;
Hist, ah! after awhile we'll be meeting!
The time came for intermen, I guess.

Then I waved him good-by—oh, the sadness!
And smiled to show him the ways,
And he looked, of all hatties, the maddest,
When the street-car came and took him away.

But sometimes he will peep thro' the curtain
And hold the lace edges apart,
So I'll watch every day, for I'm certain
That baby has broken my heart!
—Kate Masterson, in Once a Week.

A NEEDY OUTSIDER.

And the Pathetic Story He Told the Reporters.

THERE was enthusiasm at the Nocturnal club at three o'clock in the morning. The city reporters who had been dropping in since midnight were reinforced by telegraph editors—the country editions of the big dailies were already rushed in light for the sounding stones to the Nocturnal stereotypers. The cheery and urbane African—naturally called Delmonico by the habitues of the down-town club—found his time crowded in serving bottled beer, sandwiches or boiled eggs to the groups around the tables.

To a large group in the back room Fetterson related how he had once missed the last car at the distant extremity of West Philadelphia, and, failing to find a cab west of Broad street, had walked fifty blocks after midnight, and had still succeeded in getting his report in the second edition, and thus making a "beat on the town."

The newspaper-men needed no comment. Fetterson had brought in at one o'clock.

I neglected to mention Fetterson's penchant for queer company. It is quite right that reporters know policemen, are on chatting terms with night cabmen, and have large acquaintance with pugilists and even with "crooks." But Fetterson picks up the most remarkable and out-of-the-way—not to speak of out-at-elbows—specimens of mankind, craft in distress on the sea of humanity. The shoddy outsider was his latest delightful.

It is enough to say of this destitute acquaintance of Fetterson's that he was a ragged man needing a shave. In daylight, in the country, you would have observed him to be a tramp. He had sat in our group in silence. When he opened his mouth to discourse, it was natural to believe he should have a prompt and somewhat curious hearing.

"Speaking of walking," he said, "I have walked a lot in my time. Mostly, though, I've rode—on freight cars. The longest straight tramp I ever made was from Harrisburg to Philadelphia once when the trains weren't running. The cold weather was not particularly pleasant. But what do you think of a woman—no tramp woman, either—starting from Pittsburgh to walk to Philadelphia?"

"Oh, there is a so-called actress who recently walked from San Francisco to New York," put in Sopsmith.

"Yes, but she took her time, and had all the necessaries of life on the way. She walked and advertised herself. I'm the woman I speak of walked in order to get there. She walked because she hadn't the money to ride. Her name is Mrs. Hubbard, and her husband was with her to be sure. He was a pal of mine. You see it was a hard winter, years ago, and work was so scarce in Pittsburgh that the husband had to remain a little until the wife had begun to starve. He had some education, and had been an office clerk. At that time he'd be couldn't have stood manual labor. Still he tried to get it, for he was willing to do anything to keep a lining to his skin. If you've never been in his predicament you can't realize how it is and you won't believe it possible. But I've known more than one man to starve because he couldn't get work and wouldn't beg public charity. Starvation was the prospect of this young fellow and his wife. So they decided to leave Pittsburgh and escape to Philadelphia, where they thought it would be easier for the husband to get work.

THE "NEEDY OUTSIDER" SPOKE.

"That how we got started—the husband asked.

"Why, was a plucky girl and had known hardship, although she was fruit to look at.

"Which, she replied.

"And two days later, they started."

The outsider paused, and lighted a forbidding-looking pipe.

When he began his narrative he spoke in a lower tone. The recollections that he called up seemed to choke him within, although he was calm enough of exterior.

"I won't describe the experiences of my pal on that trip. It was his first tramp. He knew nothing of the art of vagabondage, and of course had to beg. That was tough, although he got used to it and to many tricks in the trade. They got in the habit of where they ate when and where they could. It cut him to the heart to see his wife in such hunger and privation. But her spirits kept up better than his—or, at least they seemed to. She was presented of having started upon such a trip. But he kept that to himself.

"Of all days in the year to go in to the cold, the hunger and she weariness, it was to collapse all at once. It happened on the outskirts of Harrisburg in the evening of a cold, dull day they were trudging along on the railroad, then keeping on the westbound track so they could face approaching trains and get out of the track in time to avoid being run down.

"Well I stopped on the town ahead," the husband said; 'we can get warm in the station, and you shall have supper if we have to knock at every door in the town.'

"And she wife said:

"'Oh, we'll manage for I feel, Harry; as if—as if I couldn't—go any far—Harry, where are you?'

"She fell heavily on the track. When she made picked her up she was unconscious. Clasping her in his arms he saw that she had fixed his eyes on the lights of the town ahead and moved forward.

"But before he reached the town he found it was a dead body he was carrying.

"You see she had kept up till the very last moment in the hope of reaching the town before death.

"What the man did, how he felt when he discovered that her struggle was over to bear there in the solitude upon the mountains, with the town in sight at the foot of the slope in the gathering night, I can leave to the vivid imagination of your newspaper men. For four hours he mourned over her body by the side of the track, and then in the twilight dug a grave and covered her up for the darkness.

"Then my pal took the body in his arms and carried it down the slope to the track at that point passed through what they call a cut, and the hills rise on both sides of it. He left his predictions against pauper burial, my pal had, and he shrunk from going to the town and asking the aid of the law. He didn't need a doctor's certificate to tell him that life had gone forever from her fragile body. He knew that she had died of cold and exhaustion.

"As he turned the base of the hill to begin to descend it, he saw in the cloud-ed moonlight a deserted railroad tool-house by the track. In front of it lay a broken, rusty spade. He shouldered this and proceeded up the mountain.

"It was a long walk and he had to stop more than once to rest, but he got to the top at last. There was a little clearing in the woods here, where some one had camped. The ruins of a shanty still remained.

"My pal laid down the body of her who had been his wife, with the dead face turned toward the sky, which was becoming to be cleared of its clouds. Then he began to dig.

"It was a longer job than he had expected it to be, for my pal was tired and weak. But the grave was made at last, upon the very summit of the mountain.

"He lifted the body of the brave girl, he kissed the cold lips, and he took his coat and wrapped it carefully about the head, so that the face would be protected from the earth. He stooped and laid the body in the shallow grave, and he knelt down there and prayed.

"He filled the grave up with earth with the broken spade that he had used in digging it. All these things required a long time. He didn't observe how the night was passing, nor that the sky became clear and the stars shone and the moon crossed the zenith and began to descend in the west. He didn't notice that the stars began to pale. But he worked on until he had finished.

And then he stopped and prayed again.

"When he arose his face was toward the east; and over the distant hilltops he saw the purple of the dawn."

The outsider ceased to speak.

"What then?"

"That's all. My pal walked down the mountain, jumped upon the first freight train that passed, and has been a wanderer on the face of the earth ever since."

There were various opinions expressed of this narrative. All agreed that the needy outsider, as we left the club at sunrise:

"Will you tell me who your pal was—the man who buried his wife on the mountain top?"

There was contemptuous pity in the outsider's look as it dwelt for a moment upon me before he replied: "The man in my mirror."

And then he condescended to borrow a quarter from me.—E. N. Stephens, in Philadelphia Press.

PUSSY'S MISFORTUNE.

How she Started Her Fur on the Feather Route to Fortune.

This cat's name is Pansy. Do you think this an odd name for a cat?

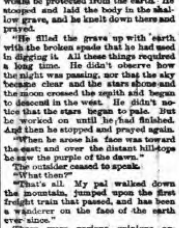
Her mistress is a young girl called Anna. When Anna was a mite of a thing, just learning to use her feet, she started off in the garden path one day, her mamma, through a crack in the back walk of a former had forced its way. Baby Anna saw it; she picked it with a crow of delight. It was a pansy, and her mother told her so then and often, and she gives the name to what she likes very much. Her best doll was always Pansy, and when that cat came as a little round ball of a kitten she was Pansy, too. Anna says her cat's face looks like the flowers and maybe it is shaped a little that way.

Pansy has become a large cat, as you see.

Pansy has been taught to do many things. The master of the house is a grave lawyer, but he is not above playing with a cat. He has taught Pansy to stretch herself at full length on the carpet and then roll over at his word.

When the family sit around the evening lamp which stands on a big centre-table Pansy sometimes jumps on the table and walks across, her warm fur shining in the light. Then perhaps she takes a leap and seats herself on the master's shoulder as he reads his paper.

Here let me tell you a joke which



THE BURNED PAW.

Anna likes to get off on older people. She fooled me with it:

"Anna," I said she, "say 'the cat, the cat,' and not the kitten."

Of course I said "the cat, the cat, and not the kitten."

"That is not right," says my little lady.

Then I tried it "every which way," "the cat, the cat, and not the kitten," until I do believe I had put the emphasis on every one of the words. It took me a long time to find out that the right way was this: "The cat, the cat," and leave off the rest. Then Miss Anna told me I must not say "and not the kitten."

In the house where Pansy lives there is a beautiful wood fireplace. Pansy has learned to keep away from the fire, or sit up and look at it. Just now as she roasted her paw on the brass fender, it was to collapse all at once. It happened on the occasion mentioned, on the evening of a cold, dull day they were trudging along on the railroad, then keeping on the westbound track so they could face approaching trains and get out of the track in time to avoid being run down.

"Well stopped on the town ahead," the husband said; "we can get warm in the station, and you shall have supper if we have to knock at every door in the town."

"And she wife said:

"'Oh, we'll manage for I feel, Harry; as if—as if I couldn't—go any far—Harry, where are you?'

"She fell heavily on the track. When she made picked her up she was unconscious. Clasping her in his arms he saw that she had fixed his eyes on the lights of the town ahead and moved forward.

"But before he reached the town he found it was a dead body he was carrying.

"You see she had kept up till the very last moment in the hope of reaching the town before death.

"What the man did, how he felt when he discovered that her struggle was over to bear there in the solitude upon the mountains, with the town in sight at the foot of the slope in the gathering night, I can leave to the vivid imagination of your newspaper men. For four hours he mourned over her body by the side of the track, and then in the twilight dug a grave and covered her up for the darkness.

"Then my pal took the body in his arms and carried it down the slope to the track at that point passed through what they call a cut, and the hills rise on both sides of it. He left his predictions against pauper burial, my pal had, and he shrunk from going to the town and asking the aid of the law. He didn't need a doctor's certificate to tell him that life had gone forever from her fragile body. He knew that she had died of cold and exhaustion.

"As he turned the base of the hill to begin to descend it, he saw in the cloud-ed moonlight a deserted railroad tool-house by the track. In front of it lay a broken, rusty spade. He shouldered this and proceeded up the mountain.

"It was a long walk and he had to stop more than once to rest, but he got to the top at last. There was a little clearing in the woods here, where some one had camped. The ruins of a shanty still remained.

"My pal laid down the body of her who had been his wife, with the dead face turned toward the sky, which was becoming to be cleared of its clouds. Then he began to dig.

"It was a longer job than he had expected it to be, for my pal was tired and weak. But the grave was made at last, upon the very summit of the mountain.

"He lifted the body of the brave girl, he kissed the cold lips, and he took his coat and wrapped it carefully about the head, so that the face would be protected from the earth. He stooped and laid the body in the shallow grave, and he knelt down there and prayed.

"He filled the grave up with earth with the broken spade that he had used in digging it. All these things required a long time. He didn't observe how the night was passing, nor that the sky became clear and the stars shone and the moon crossed the zenith and began to descend in the west. He didn't notice that the stars began to pale. But he worked on until he had finished.

And then he stopped and prayed again.

"When he arose his face was toward the east; and over the distant hilltops he saw the purple of the dawn."

The outsider ceased to speak.

"What then?"

"That's all. My pal walked down the mountain, jumped upon the first freight train that passed, and has been a wanderer on the face of the earth ever since."

There were various opinions expressed of this narrative. All agreed that the needy outsider, as we left the club at sunrise:

"Will you tell me who your pal was—the man who buried his wife on the mountain top?"

There was contemptuous pity in the outsider's look as it dwelt for a moment upon me before he replied: "The man in my mirror."

And then he condescended to borrow a quarter from me.—E. N. Stephens, in Philadelphia Press.

PUSSY'S MISFORTUNE.

How she Started Her Fur on the Feather Route to Fortune.

This cat's name is Pansy. Do you think this an odd name for a cat?

Her mistress is a young girl called Anna. When Anna was a mite of a thing, just learning to use her feet, she started off in the garden path one day, her mamma, through a crack in the back walk of a former had forced its way. Baby Anna saw it; she picked it with a crow of delight. It was a pansy, and her mother told her so then and often, and she gives the name to what she likes very much. Her best doll was always Pansy, and when that cat came as a little round ball of a kitten she was Pansy, too. Anna says her cat's face looks like the flowers and maybe it is shaped a little that way.

Pansy has become a large cat, as you see.

Pansy has been taught to do many things. The master of the house is a grave lawyer, but he is not above playing with a cat. He has taught Pansy to stretch herself at full length on the carpet and then roll over at his word.

When the family sit around the evening lamp which stands on a big centre-table Pansy sometimes jumps on the table and walks across, her warm fur shining in the light. Then perhaps she takes a leap and seats herself on the master's shoulder as he reads his paper.

Here let me tell you a joke which

THE BURNED PAW.

Anna likes to get off on older people. She fooled me with it:

"Anna," I said she, "say 'the cat, the cat,' and not the kitten."

Of course I said "the cat, the cat, and not the kitten."

"That is not right," says my little lady.

Then I tried it "every which way," "the cat, the cat, and not the kitten," until I do believe I had put the emphasis on every one of the words. It took me a long time to find out that the right way was this: "The cat, the cat," and leave off the rest. Then Miss Anna told me I must not say "and not the kitten."

In the house where Pansy lives there is a beautiful wood fireplace. Pansy has learned to keep away from the fire, or sit up and look at it. Just now as she roasted her paw on the brass fender, it was to collapse all at once. It happened on the occasion mentioned, on the evening of a cold, dull day they were trudging along on the railroad, then keeping on the westbound track so they could face approaching trains and get out of the track in time to avoid being run down.

"Well stopped on the town ahead," the husband said; "we can get warm in the station, and you shall have supper if we have to knock at every door in the town."

"And she wife said:

"'Oh, we'll manage for I feel, Harry; as if—as if I couldn't—go any far—Harry, where are you?'

"She fell heavily on the track. When she made picked her up she was unconscious. Clasping her in his arms he saw that she had fixed his eyes on the lights of the town ahead and moved forward.

"But before he reached the town he found it was a dead body he was carrying.

"You see she had kept up till the very last moment in the hope of reaching the town before death.

"What the man did, how he felt when he discovered that her struggle was over to bear there in the solitude upon the mountains, with the town in sight at the foot of the slope in the gathering night, I can leave to the vivid imagination of your newspaper men. For

THE WOMAN OF FASHION.

The Very Latest Styles in Hats, Gowns, Etc.

How to Dress as the Queen of Fashion Won't Spell—The Proper "Get Up" for an Afternoon Tea.

[COPYRIGHT, 1891.]

You are going to the theaters this summer, and you want a hat that will not be spoiled just as soon as the music touches it. Or you want something yourself in the way of feathers upon it, for as everyone who has been to the country knows, there are always very dismal looking affairs after a little exposure to sea air, fog and mist.

A very useful style of hat is the large straw, or indeed any fancy straw, because it is already partly trimmed and requires but little to make it become really a thing of beauty. The open work straws are the same, requiring only a fancy bow or a gay wreath of flowers to make them as ornamental as a heavily-trimmed, plain straw hat.

For your seashore hat you will find that one of the fancy straws with a broad brim, looped up at the back, is becoming, comfortable and dressy. Catch the brim at the back with a bow of cornflower blue ribbon, tying a large bow of the same ribbon right on the front of the crown, letting the loops and ends stand upright in a little to be sure that they stay in shape, and stick a goldenrod plus somewhere in the bow, around the edge of the brim run a light wreath of corn flowers in various shades of blue. This finishes a pretty hat in the brim, and there is nothing about the hat, flowers, or trimmings that can stare more than once to rest, but to get to the top at last. There was a little clearing in the woods here, where some one had camped. The ruins of a shanty still remained.

Another way to trim a hat for the seashore is to catch it up at the back with a great bow of white ribbon. The bow must be taken in beading the lace to see that it is not rendered too stiff, or it will fall to fall in the graceful folds which are the beauty and the glory of these lace capes. A great amount of beads upon them also renders the hats quite liable to tear because of their weight, and, altogether, the general effect is not as pretty as when the pansy figures are simply indicated by dots here and there of shining jets or a few jewels.

That was the origin of long skirts as a question that one hears so frequently asked. Only a year ago, or at most two years ago, skirts were rather short, being permitted scarcely to reach the ground. And now there is even it to a foot in length. How did it happen? How did it come about?

Well, it happened in just this way. Dame Fashion is not such an uncommonly quiet dame as is popularly supposed, and when she decides to make a change she generally has some very real and very logical reason for it. When the short skirts were worn the basques, it will be remembered, were in ribbon arranged in the form of a rosette makes a pretty additional trimming.

JUST FOR EVENING.

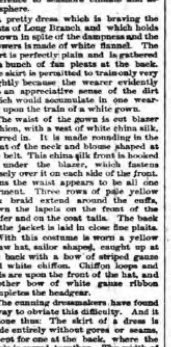
Seaside clothing while not more expensive than other dress material, requires a little more attention, because the sea mists are so destructive to the texture of feathers and laces, that one may look very shabby and badly dressed, even with a really elegant suit-case outfit, if one has not taken the precaution to choose the outfit with special reference to seashore climate and atmosphere.

A pretty dress which is braving the mists of Long Branch and which holds its own in spite of the dampness and the showers is made of white flannel. The skirt is perfectly plain and is gathered in a narrow belt of the same at the back. The skirt is prevented to train only very slightly because the wearer evidently has an appreciative sense of the dirt which would accumulate in one wearing upon the train of a white gown.

The waist of the gown is cut blazer fashion, with a vest of white china silk, flannel. It is made to button to the front of the neck and blouse shaped at the belt. This china silk front is hooked in under the blazer, and buttons closely over it on each side of the front. Thus the waist appears to be all one garment. The sleeves of the puffed silk braid extend around the cuffs, down the lapels on the front of the blazer and on the tails. The back of the jacket is laid in close fine plaits.

With this costume is worn a yellow straw hat, with a high crown and a flat brim, with a bow of striped gauze and white chiffon. Chiffon loops and ends are set on the left side of the hat, and another bow of white gauze ribbon completes the headgear.

The manufacturers of shoelaces have found a way to obviate this difficulty. And it is done thus: The skirt of a dress is made entirely without gores or seams, except for one at the back, where the pieces are sewed together. The width of the goods is used for the length of the skirt. This can only be done in materials of very wide width, such as cloth, tweed and woolens. And again, the style is only possible for slender, well molded figures. For those who have large hips and are stout, it is out of the question. But, for at least half of the women who wear the demi-train, this style of skirt making is possible. And the most casual observer can see how it simplifies the dress. A model of the



THE SUMMER GIRLS' TRAVELING DRESS.

The modiste has only to cut off the material the length she desires it—which is the width around of the skirt —and sew the two breadths of cloth, and another bow of white gauze ribbon sewed up the one seam, it is all ready to be draped plain in front and full gored at the back. An ordinary seamstress can easily make such a skirt in the shortest time, but a modiste who has been charging ten dollars upward to make a skirt can now do one for half the regular price.

The cape is the only thing one sees as a shoulder covering for a woman. The sensible, cozy, comfortable cape, may be used for tennis, yachting, boating or mountain expeditions. But on all occasions, when a woman wants to "look nice," she must wear her cape, with its Medici collar, bordered with jets and fringed with jet, and finished off with light-fitting beads.

Lace is greatly used. It is almost indispensable to many of the peplum wearing lace upon all dark garments, and those who have a quantity of the real article in the family have by this time discovered that it is possible to turn dress which shall be as modish as the best in lace can make it.

If the dress is of silk the woman of taste can use it in edge some stitches which she makes into a bolero, or it can be gathered around the edge of the armholes, which are beginning to come in style again, or it may be used down each side of the front of the bodice, and form such a graceful finish to the gowns and dresses.

A flounce of lace looks very pretty served around the neck at the base of the high standing collar. If so desired, the edge of the lace may be cut in such a way that it will fall over the collar, and where the sleeves are fastened on to the shoulder making the seam allow a flounce of the same, and giving the effect of a much more elegant appearance than the seam would have if left plain. The flounces which are used around the lower edge of the bodices are just as much in the mode as the cape, but it makes them. Right, too, twelve, and even twice the number of inches, are seen in the dress of the lady in fashion, which border the bottom of basques.

If a woman is possessed of very small means she can make a dog full of lace, stiffen it with beads and jets, and rubber it handsomely upon a fur Medici collar which may be bought for the purpose. This makes a beautiful cape, and is the summer girl's ideal for an afternoon wrap to be taken on, or off, as will, without being sufficiently burdensome in weight to be uncomfortable nor yet light enough to look like an affectation.

Care must be taken in beading the lace to see that it is not rendered too stiff, or it will fall to fall in the graceful folds which are the beauty and the glory of these lace capes. A great amount of beads upon them also renders the hats quite liable to tear because of their weight, and, altogether, the general effect is not as pretty as when the pansy figures are simply indicated by dots here and there of shining jets or a few jewels.

That was the origin of long skirts as a question that one hears so frequently asked. Only a year ago, or at most two years ago, skirts were rather short, being permitted scarcely to reach the ground. And now there is even it to a foot in length. How did it happen? How did it come about?

Well, it happened in just this way. Dame Fashion is not such an uncommonly quiet dame as is popularly supposed, and when she decides to make a change she generally has some very real and very logical reason for it. When the short skirts were worn the basques, it will be remembered, were extremely abbreviated. They were cut off almost at the hips, and the short skirts looked very well with them. But just as soon as the basques began to lengthen the skirts began to lengthen also, because the effect of a long basque and a short skirt was most unbecoming, making a woman look stout, short and dumpy, depriving her of every atom of grace and style which the slight over have possessed. So, as the basques grew longer, it became more and more imperative to make the skirts longer also, and that is the way they came to their present fashion of extreme length.

RATHER LARGE, BUT STYLISH.

A Satisfactory Criterion.

Brer Rook—Who dat man I pass yonder lookin' so mad, Brer Simyun?

Brer Simyun—Hit's a feller named Dalgrowth, which he's mad 'cause he wouldn't let him fit' cents. When de sheriff sole de mansion out, 'de de Dalgrowth did't fetch but seven hundred dollars, an' dat's my opinion of us now."—Harper's Bazar.

"CIGARETTIQUETTE."

A speedy and painless mode of executing our criminals.—Judge.

A Guilty Conscience.

Tiff Johnson went out fishing again one day last week. He had a line hand fixed up, but upon arriving at the creek he discovered that he had lost it, so he borrowed a line from Bill Jones, a satisfied-looking negro who was picking his teeth. Tiff asked:

"Did you pick up anything in the road?"

"No, sah. I didn't pick up nuffin'. Couldn't a dog hab found it, and eat it up?"—Texas Siftings.

Argumentating.

"They tell me you and your wife have separated. How came it to pass?"

"To please others."

"Please others?"

"Yes, I married just to please others, and in a month or two everybody said we wouldn't live together very long. So I left her. And now I've pleased the folks to fulfill their prophecies."—Boston Transcript.

Things That Take Time.

Buncombe—Dewyer, you've had that newspaper two hours; aren't you nearly through with it?

Blankenstein—Not yet. I've read the Caddy divorce case, the Bowery double murder, the police circle scandal and the Jamaica Plains poisoning. I've only to read the foreign news, the domestic political and financial articles. Give it to you in five minutes.—Puck.

"The Lay of the Last Minstrel."

Primus—Briggs has been courting as fierce. Why don't he ask her if she is old enough to be his mother, but she married his rival.

Secundus—Yes, I know; and yet Briggs sent them an epithalamium he wrote and set to music.

Primus—Very generous. Was it sung at the wedding?

Secundus—No. The tune was "Old Hundred."—Life.

Doing Time for Time.

Prison-Visitor — And what brought you here, my poor man?

Convict—Why, I was doing time for murder.

Convict—That ain't it, bum. I was turned over to the waterside on account that I couldn't account for my judge.

A Delay in the Proceedings.

Mrs. Stinson (to little Willie Stinson, who has been taking in the ball game)—So that's where you've been, Willie, is it? You just wait until your father gets home to-night, and he will give you a good trouncing!

Willie (soothingly)—He won't be home to-night. He's dead for the last inning.—Harper's Bazar.

Educational Item.

Teacher—What are the names of the seven days of the week?

Boy—Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday—

"That's only six days. You have missed one. When does your mother go to church?

"When pa buys her a new hat."—Texas Siftings.

Positive Proof.

Returned Traveler—Did you believe my statement that I reached the north pole?

Scientist—Not without further proof.

Explorer—Well, here is positive proof. This block of wood is a part of the north pole. I cut it off with my hatchet and brought home.—Wesner's Weekly.

AT A ROPE'S END.

How His Nimrod Brought Charlie to Bottle Up Affairs.

"May I go to bathing, mamma?" asked Charlie, at ten and his mother walked with Alma, aged.

"Why, no, dear; not this afternoon. I do not care to bathe and you could not go in the water alone."

So Charlie, who was a wise little boy as had learned to do the best of things, began to play in the sand.

Pretty soon, however, his attention was attracted by a little boy who was having a splendid time in the surf. He was not a stranger, either, for he was the little fellow had the whole ocean to himself and he was splashing about in grand style. Charlie could not understand it at all. Why would he be in danger, if another little boy could go in with safety?

"Mamma," he said at last, "that little boy is lots littler than I am, and he is in all alone. See! there is a great big wave coming, and I should think his mamma would be afraid that he would be washed away."

But the little fellow's mother did not seem to be in the least worried. She sat quietly on the beach, and watched her boy tumbling about in the water, at though he was not in the slightest danger.

In a minute more. Charlie understood the reason. On came the big wave, tumbling and tossing but before it reached the little bather, whom Charlie watched very anxiously, he gave him suddenly skip backward. In another instant, he was laying high up on the beach. Then Charlie noticed that there was a small rope tied to a belt about the waist, by which his mother had pulled him in.

"O, mamma!" he cried, "that is a very wise plan—such a very wise plan indeed! Don't you think that you would let me go in, in such a very safety way? Will you not please to ask the lifeguard?"

Mamma was so much pleased with the "safety way" of bathing that Charlie got his wish right over have possessed. Newsall, Henry B. ..... 18 E 7th st
Nelson, Edward ..... 1 Park row
Norton, Jr., Thos B. ..... Rockview ave
Plainfield Gaslight Co. ..... 42 East Fourth st
Plainfield Electric Light Co. ..... 24 Park ave
Plainfield Seat Co. ..... 2d and Washington sts
Spicer, Charles—Chief's office ..... 3 Park ave
Potts Station ..... Park ave and R R
Potter, Cyl ..... 7th and Division sts
Prospect, Jr., Wm ..... 41 Front st
Prospect, Dr J B ..... 41 Front st
Prospect, Jr., Wm ..... Central ave
Pope & Co. J. C. ..... 6 East Front st
Pitts, Thomas ..... 138 Central ave
Point Rock Tool Co. ..... Somerset and Front sts
Pierson Hardware Co. ..... 42 W Front st
Randolph, Henry G. ..... 20 Broadway
Rogers, Jr., Wm ..... 20 Broadway
Roberts, D S ..... 17 North avenue
Scotchbow, Geo W ..... Park and North ave.
Simonds, A S & Son ..... 6 Park row
Sawyer, A H & Son ..... 46 Madison ave
Sanborn, Mrs Edward ..... 24 Front st
Sawyer, Mrs J ..... Cor. Mercer & Spruce sts
Smith, H. G. ..... 6th st
Stevens, Chas W ..... 6th st
Sim, H. W. & Co. ..... 7th cor. Emily and Dover sts
Sayre, Jr., Wm ..... Front st
Rogers, D W ..... Front st
Rogers, S P Jr ..... 16 Westerveldt ave
Sewell, Lemuel W ..... Front st. nr. Somerset
Segrue, G. J ..... 66 Front street.
Shaw, R J ..... Front st. opp. Park ave.
Smith, A S ..... Prospect ave. nr. Front st.
Smith, W F ..... Refreshers av., North-wood
Smith, Jr., Wm ..... 2d st. nr. Somerset
Smith, Jas A ..... 12 W Front st
Scott, Walter A Co. ..... South ave
Stelle, Irving G ..... Stirling st., Westfield
Stelle, Irving G ..... Ninth st
Stelle, Irving G ..... 16 E 4th st
Thompson, A. D ..... 20-21 No 7th av
Talmadge, Henry P (Rev) ..... Nathe-Wood.
Thompson, A S & Son ..... 6 Park row
Tilsworth, Jos H ..... 28 W. 7th st.
Tomlinson, Dr T S ..... La Grande ave & Roby
Tyler & Saunders ..... 7th st & Park ave
Tracy, S Evarts ..... 8th and Division sts
Tracy, Jr., Wm ..... 27 and 29 Somerset st
Tweedy, C. S. ..... 11 Crescent avenue
Townsend, Samuel ..... 20 Rockview av
Tuttle, Jr., Wm ..... 27 and 29 Somerset st
Telegraph Office ..... Plainfield station
Tuttle, Jr., Wm ..... 78 Front st
United States Express Co. ..... 3 North ave
Union Co Country Club ..... Cor 7th st & Arlington
Van Horn, Jr., Wm ..... 27 and 29 Somerset st
Wellman, C. ..... West Seventh street
Wilson, Jr., Wm ..... 27 and 29 Liberty st
Western Union Telegraph Company ..... 2d st
Watchers, J ..... W 8th st., near Grand ave
Wilson, Jr., Wm ..... 27 and 29 Somerset st
Woodford, Jay station ..... Westfield, N J
Wotherspoon, G G ..... 154 E Front st

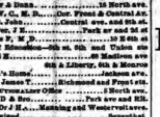
TELEPHONE TOLL RATES.

FOR FIVE MINUTES CONVERSATION.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY

Asbury Park, N J 60
Asbury, N J 60
Atlantic City 1 00
Bayonne, N J 60
Bayside N Y 60
Bay View, N J 60
Bayville N Y 60
Bloomfield, N J 60
Bloomingdale N J 60
Boonton, N J 60
Brooklyn N Y 60
Bridgeton, N J 60
Burlington, N J 60
Camden, N J 60
Cedarville N J 60
Cranford, N J 60
Dover N J 60
Dunellen, N J 60
Eatontown N J 60
Elizabeth, N J 60
Flemington N J 60
Freehold N J 60
Hackensack N J 60
Hightstown N J 60
Hoboken N J 60
Irvington N J 60
Jersey City N J 60
Lakewood N J 60
Lambertville N J 60
Lincoln N J 60
Long Branch N J 60
Madison N J 60
Manasquan N J 60
Matawan N J 60
Middletown N J 60
Monmouth Beach N J 60
Montclair N J 60
Morristown N J 60
Mount Holly N J 60
Newark N J 60
New Brunswick N J 60
Newton N J 60
Orange N J 60
Passaic N J 60
Paterson N J 60
Perth Amboy N J 60
Phillipsburg N J 60
Princeton N J 60
Rahway N J 60
Red Bank N J 60
Rockaway N J 60
Rutherford N J 60
Salem N J 60
South Amboy N J 60
South Orange N J 60
Staten Island N Y 60
Summit N J 60
Tom's River N J 60
Trenton N J 60
Vineland N J 60
Weehawken N J 60
Westfield N J 60
Woodbridge N J 60
Woodbury N J 60
Yorkville N Y 60

TWENTY
Years experience in the business.
CROONDYKE'S, 5 doors above Pennsylvania



ALBERT HEDDEN,
Livery and Boarding Stables
FOURTH STREET,

PRINCESS DIDO'S RING.

A Story Connecting with the Founding of the City of Carthage.

You remember the story of Dido, the princess of Phoenicia, and founder of Carthage. After the death of her father and the murder of her husband she set out for some place where she could settle on the coast of Africa. There a great was made to her of as much land as could be covered by a bull's hide, and by cutting the hide into very thin strips she made it surround a large area. On this territory she built the city of Carthage.

This tradition is probably founded upon a very small basis of fact, but that there is something in it any little girl can prove for herself by making of a small sheet of paper a ring large enough to go over her body. Take, for example, a piece of paper as large as the page on which this is printed, and cut it with two continuous cuts, as shown in the diagram above. You will be surprised to find how large a ring you can cut in so small a piece of paper. Of course you must use fine sharp scissors, and cut with great care, or you will spoil the ring. After you have made the ring you will have more fun in trying to put it back again into the form of a sheet of paper.—Harper's Young People.

Feminine Poser.

Mrs. Peverly—Do you think this hat matches my hair?

Mr. Peverly—Well, if it don't, it is easy enough for you to buy some other hair.—Texas Siftings.

Too Late.

"Remember, my son, it's never too late to mend."

"Yes, it is. Look at these pants."—Judge.

Railroads.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD
THE STANDARD RAILWAY OF AMERICA
PROMINENT THROUGHOUT BY THE Luxurious Passenger Service and Magnificent Equipment.

TRAINS FOR THE WEST.

On and after Sunday, Oct. 26, 1890, trains leave Elizabeth as follows:

8.30 A. M. FAST LINE, with Pullman Vestibuled Parlor and Sleeping Cars for Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Chicago and St. Louis, daily.

9.00 P. M. WESTERN EXPRESS, with Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Cars, daily, for Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Chicago, Columbus, Indianapolis and St. Louis.

11.30 A. M. PACIFIC EXPRESS, with Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping cars, daily, for Pittsburg, Chicago, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Louisville, St. Louis and Columbus.

For Baltimore, Washington and the South—1 2 (Dining), 3 (Dining), 4 (Dining), 5 (Dining), 6 (Dining), 7 (Dining), 8 (Dining), 9 (Dining), 10 (Dining), 11 (Dining), 12 (Dining), 13 (Dining), 14 (Dining), 15 (Dining), 16 (Dining), 17 (Dining), 18 (Dining), 19 (Dining), 20 (Dining), 21 (Dining), 22 (Dining), 23 (Dining), 24 (Dining), 25 (Dining), 26 (Dining), 27 (Dining), 28 (Dining), 29 (Dining), 30 (Dining), 31 (Dining), 32 (Dining), 33 (Dining), 34 (Dining), 35 (Dining), 36 (Dining), 37 (Dining), 38 (Dining), 39 (Dining), 40 (Dining), 41 (Dining), 42 (Dining), 43 (Dining), 44 (Dining), 45 (Dining), 46 (Dining), 47 (Dining), 48 (Dining), 49 (Dining), 50 (Dining), 51 (Dining), 52 (Dining), 53 (Dining), 54 (Dining), 55 (Dining), 56 (Dining), 57 (Dining), 58 (Dining), 59 (Dining), 60 (Dining), 61 (Dining), 62 (Dining), 63 (Dining), 64 (Dining), 65 (Dining), 66 (Dining), 67 (Dining), 68 (Dining), 69 (Dining), 70 (Dining), 71 (Dining), 72 (Dining), 73 (Dining), 74 (Dining), 75 (Dining), 76 (Dining), 77 (Dining), 78 (Dining), 79 (Dining), 80 (Dining), 81 (Dining), 82 (Dining), 83 (Dining), 84 (Dining), 85 (Dining), 86 (Dining), 87 (Dining), 88 (Dining), 89 (Dining), 90 (Dining), 91 (Dining), 92 (Dining), 93 (Dining), 94 (Dining), 95 (Dining), 96 (Dining), 97 (Dining), 98 (Dining), 99 (Dining), 100 (Dining), 101 (Dining), 102 (Dining), 103 (Dining), 104 (Dining), 105 (Dining), 106 (Dining), 107 (Dining), 108 (Dining), 109 (Dining), 110 (Dining), 111 (Dining), 112 (Dining), 113 (Dining), 114 (Dining), 115 (Dining), 116 (Dining), 117 (Dining), 118 (Dining), 119 (Dining), 120 (Dining), 121 (Dining), 122 (Dining), 123 (Dining), 124 (Dining), 125 (Dining), 126 (Dining), 127 (Dining), 128 (Dining), 129 (Dining), 130 (Dining), 131 (Dining), 132 (Dining), 133 (Dining), 134 (Dining), 135 (Dining), 136 (Dining), 137 (Dining), 138 (Dining), 139 (Dining), 140 (Dining), 141 (Dining), 142 (Dining), 143 (Dining), 144 (Dining), 145 (Dining), 146 (Dining), 147 (Dining), 148 (Dining), 149 (Dining), 150 (Dining), 151 (Dining),

The Constitutionalist,
A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.
W. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE, Editors and Proprietors.
AT PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY.
TERMS—TWO DOLLARS A YEAR.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXIV. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, AUGUST 6, 1891. No. 32.

"Support the Constitution, which is the cement of the Union, as well in its limitations as in its authorities."—MADISON.

Rates of Advertising

Spaces	1 week	2 weeks	3 weeks	1 month	2 months	3 months	6 months	1 year
1 in.	$1.00	$1.50	$2.00	$3.00	$5.00	$7.00	$10.00	$15.00
2 in.	1.50	2.00	2.50	5.00	7.00	9.00	15.00	25.00
3 in.	2.00	2.50	3.00	7.00	9.00	12.00	20.00	35.00
4 in.	2.50	3.00	3.50	9.00	12.00	15.00	25.00	45.00
5 in.	3.00	3.50	4.00	11.00	15.00	18.00	30.00	55.00
6 in.	3.50	4.00	4.50	13.00	18.00	21.00	35.00	65.00
7 in.	4.00	4.50	5.00	15.00	21.00	24.00	40.00	75.00
8 in.	4.50	5.00	5.50	17.00	24.00	27.00	45.00	85.00
9 in.	5.00	5.50	6.00	19.00	27.00	30.00	50.00	95.00
10 in.	5.50	6.00	6.50	21.00	30.00	33.00	55.00	105.00
11 in.	6.00	6.50	7.00	23.00	33.00	36.00	60.00	115.00
12 in.	6.50	7.00	7.50	25.00	36.00	39.00	65.00	125.00

All Electro's must be solid mind.

"Lists of Everything" column, 5 cts. per line.

Double cols. prices or, advanced of above rates

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

JACKSON & CODDINGTON.
Counsellors-at-Law,
Commissioners of Deeds, Masters in Chancery, Notaries Public. Offices corner of Park avenue and Second street. —1m87

GEORGE W. DAY,
General Auctioneer,
Sales of Personal Property solicited. P. O. Box 125, Dunellen, N. J., attended to in case of Non-RESIDENTIALS. Terms reasonable.

DR. CHARLES H. THROP,
Dentist,
30 West Front street. A new local anesthetic application for extracting teeth without pain. Gold filling a specialty.—jy31

H. HARD,
Auctioneer,
P. O. Address, Lock Box 71, Scotch Plains, N. J. Orders left at P. J. Carey's, Second-hand store, 16 West Front street, Plainfield, N. J., will receive prompt attention.—ap12

CHARLES TRALL,
Architect,
147 Broadway, New York city. Rooms 18 and 20. Carpenters and Traders' Bank Building.) Residence, Plainfield, N. J.—1y

BUSINESS CARDS.

P. P. VAN ARSDALE,
PIANO TUNER,
is systematic parts and prompt order. Temperament, Pianos and Organs for sale and to-let, wholesale or retail. P. O. Box 156 or left at Wilson's Shoe Store, No. 5 Park avenue will receive prompt attention. Residence, 91 East Front street, corner High street.—ap1y2

JOHN CHANDLER,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
residence and Shop No. 36 East 3d St.
Jobbing promptly attended to. apl7

T. J. GILLIES,
Auctioneer & Real Estate Agent.
SALESROOM—MEETING-HOUSE SQUARE; PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Goods received on consignment.

WM. B. RANDOLPH,
(Successor to R. S. Maynard,) PRACTICAL BARBER
AND Artistic Hair Dresser,
No. 26 PARK AVENUE,
Ladies' and Children's Hair Cutting done at their residence. Shaving, Shampooing, etc., satisfactorily performed. 1191

TO THE PUBLIC!

We wish to inform our customers and the public generally that we have on hand the best quality of

LEHIGH COAL,

Fresh from the Mines.

It is sold clear and well protected from the weather. We are prepared to deliver it well screened and in good order promptly. We are also prepared to furnish all kinds of Somerset Lumber and Masons' Materials at short notice.

A. D. COOK & BRO.
Office
Front street, opposite Madison avenue.

Coaches for Weddings, Parties & Visit Private Calls. Light carriages of all descriptions for pleasure.

RIDING OR LIVERY.

Careful, safe drivers for shopping calls or pleasure drives. Special attention given to carrying scores by the day, week or month.—oct13y1
TELEPHONE CALL, No. 26.

J. Hervey Doane,
6 PARK AVENUE,
(Formerly Clark's).

Watches,
Clocks
And Jewelry.

Repairing neatly and promptly done. 1891

FOR
BEAUTIFUL DESIGNS
In Furniture
GO TO
23, 25 and 27 PARK AVE.
Garret Q. Packer,

SANITARY PLUMBING,
Brick and Portable Furnaces,
GAS FITTING,
TIN ROOFING,
Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in a skillful and careful manner, and work reasonable.

Having associated myself with the Master Plumbers Association of New York City, I employ none but skilled mechanics and those on my own. I believe in every man getting his own business! I set close and sell cheap.

D. W. LITTELL,
No. 2 NORTH AVE. opposite Plainfield, N. J.

GEORGE A. MOORE,
(Of the late firm of Moore Bros.)
is now the sole proprietor of the old stand, 1stand No. 14 NORTH AVENUE,
Where he will continue to supply patrons with the finest grades of Fresh and Salt Meats;
Pick of all kinds, Oysters, Game, Game by season, all kinds of Vegetables in season.
Anything not usually kept in stock, furnished at short notice. 1y

HOTELS AND SALOONS.

FORCE'S HOTEL,
NORTH AVENUE, (NEAR N. B. S. STATION.)
JAS. M. FORCE, Prop'r.
A FIRST-CLASS FAMILY HOTEL. Steam Heat. First-class Plumbing.
Transient guests at reasonable rates. 10-31-87

SOMERSET HOTEL,
Corner Somerset and Emily Streets,
NORTH PLAINFIELD.
RICHARD A. ROYCE, Prop'r.
Permanent and transient board at fair rates First class stables and sheds attached. Meals at all reasonable hours

Dime Savings Institution
OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest at the rate of three (3) per cent. per annum payable semi-annually

JOHN W. MURRAY, President,
WILLIAM WHITE, Vice "
NATHAN HARPER, "
ELIAS R. POPE, Treasurer.
1891

BUSINESS CARDS.

Jas. M. Dunn,
Dealer in
GROCERIES, PROVISIONS,
Vegetables, Fruits, etc.
No. 36 Park Ave.
OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.
THORBURN & CO'S GARDEN SEEDS,
BEST IN THE WORLD,
ALL GOODS DELIVERED FREE OF CHARGE.
1891

JOHN CHANDLER,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
residence and Shop No. 36 East 3d St.
Jobbing promptly attended to. apl7

ESTABLISHED 1836
C.E. & J.W. BROWN,
(Successors to G. P. & C. E. Brown & Co.)
Importers, Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
WALL PAPER.
321 Canal Street,
NEW YORK.
English Tiles, Arraspins, Hand, Leather Raised Flock Papers, &c. Borings for Walls.

Manufacturers of Window Shades.
3-15-87

LIVERY.

A. M. SEGUINE,
(Successor to John W. Laing.)
Laing's Hotel Stables
Front street, opposite Madison avenue.

Coaches for Weddings, Parties & Visit Private Calls. Light carriages of all descriptions for pleasure.

RIDING OR LIVERY.

Careful, safe drivers for shopping calls or pleasure drives. Special attention given to carrying scores by the day, week or month.—oct13y1
TELEPHONE CALL, No. 26.

J. Hervey Doane,
6 PARK AVENUE,
(Formerly Clark's).

Watches,
Clocks
And Jewelry.

Repairing neatly and promptly done. 1891

FOR
BEAUTIFUL DESIGNS
In Furniture
GO TO
23, 25 and 27 PARK AVE.
Garret Q. Packer,

SANITARY PLUMBING,
Brick and Portable Furnaces,
GAS FITTING,
TIN ROOFING,
Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in a skillful and careful manner, and work reasonable.

Having associated myself with the Master Plumbers Association of New York City, I employ none but skilled mechanics and those on my own. I believe in every man getting his own business! I set close and sell cheap.

D. W. LITTELL,
No. 2 NORTH AVE. opposite Plainfield, N. J.

Fresh Garden Seeds
AND FERTILIZERS,
Farm and Garden Implements,
Lawn Mowers, Refrigerators,
Ice Cream Freezers,
Gasoline Stoves,
Hardware, Tools, etc.
J. J. HEIDELOFF,
No. 18 SOMERSET ST. 3-19-87

EDUCATIONAL.

NEW JERSEY
State Normal & Model Schools,
TRENTON, N. J.
Fall Term Will Commence MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 14.
The Normal School gives a thorough professional training for teaching; the Model prepares for business, the drawing-room or college. Total expenses, including Tuition, Books, &c., for the Normal, $164 to $186 per year; at the Model, $100 per year. Pupils limited to one class and boarded by steam. Diamond prizes elegantly furnished, provided with books, &c.
For further particulars address
JAS. M. GREEN, Principal,
Trenton, N. J.
1y36

Miss SCRIBNER
AND
Miss NEWTON'S
SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
AND KINDERGARTEN,
17 Lafayette Avenue.
CORNER OF WASHINGTON STREET,
Will reopen WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 17, 1890.
The regular course will include Modeling, Drawing and Sewing. 9 23-12

PAINTERS & PAPERHANGERS SUPPLIES

Paints, Varnishes, Glass.
WINDOW SHADES AND FIXTURES.
WALL PAPERS!
PAPER HANGING A SPECIALTY.
A. SWALM,
No. 6 North Avenue, Plainfield.
1y28

L. B. WOOLSTON, J. P. BUCKLE
Woolston & Buckle,
PAINTERS,
Wall Papers,
PAINTER'S SUPPLIES, 38 NORTH AVENUE
1y37

MISCELLANEOUS.

LEWIS B. CODDINGTON,
(Successor to T. J. Carey.)
Furniture and Freight Express!
OFFICE—38 W. FRONT ST.
Large Covered Vans or Trucks. Goods delivered to any part of the U. S. Satisfaction guaranteed. Charges Reasonable. P. O. Box 338. Pianos moving a specialty. 1180

CANOPIES
For Weddings, Parties, Etc.,
TO HIRE. CHARGES REASONABLE
Hugo Weigman,
20 EAST FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD, N. J.
1y37

ADRIANCE
Buckeye Mowers
AND REAPERS, Agricultural Machinery
Depot.
Gasoline Stoves, Refrigerators,
Tinware and Plumbing.
A. M. GRIFFEN,
13 East Front Street.
TELEPHONE CALL, 6. 11-11-87

SPEER'S
GRAPE WINES,
ALSO
UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.
Used in the principal churches for communion. Excellent for females, weekly persons and the aged

Speer's Port Grape Wine,
FOUR YEARS OLD.
THIS Celebrated Wine is the pure juice of the finest ripe Oporto Grape, raised in Speer's vineyard and left to ripen on the vines until fully matured, when carefully selected before gathering. Its invaluable
Tonic and Strengthening Properties are warmly recommended by our eminent Physicians. Acceptable to the weakest invalids and to all advanced in the years of age. Prized and Endorsed and enlisted to the various ailments that affect the aged.
It is in every respect a WINE TO BE RELIED ON.
Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice
is the juice of the Oporto Grape, preserved in its natural state, without the use of Brandy or any spirits whatever, free from spirits, and will keep in any climate.
Speer's Socialtic Claret
is kept in high estimation for its richness as a Table Wine, and strengthening qualities for the aged.
Speer's P. J. Sherry is a Wine of superior character, and excellent for all such qualities of Sherry Wine.
Speer's P. J. Brandy
is a PURE distillation of the grape, and stands unrivalled in this country for its fine flavor and medicinal qualities.
It has a peculiar flavor, similar to that of the finest imported Cognac Brandy.
SOLD BY DRUGGISTS WHO KEEP FINE LIQUORS, AND BY SPEER'S WINE DEPOT,
PASSAIC, N. J.
1y

TOBACCO, SEGARS, &c.

H. EGGERDING,
No. 17 Park Avenue,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Manufacturer of the Celebrated
C. O. D. CIGAR.
The most fashionable in the State, and made on the premises from the finest Havanas.
CLEAR HAVANA BRIAR A SPECIALTY.
A large assortment of the Choicest Brands of Foreign and Domestic Cigars. Cigarettes and Tobaccos always on hand.
Smokers Articles in Great Variety.
1y37

C. M. FINE,
Dealer in HAVANA & DOMEST
—SEGARS!—
10 SPARE AVE., (NEXT DOOR TO SECOND ST.)
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Tobacco and Smoker's Materials, of every description.
The celebrated "Old Judge" Smoking Tobacco, with other popular brands always on hand. 43nd

A. WOLFF,
Manufacturer of
CIGARS,
And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles, has removed from No. 9 Front street, to 41 West Front, one door east of Madison avenue, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally. 41 3m

CARNEY BROS., Ag'ts,
7 WEST FRONT ST.
TINNERS,
PLUMBERS,
GAS FITTERS.
PARLOR STOVES,
COOK STOVES,
HEATERS.

Grates and Bricks for all kinds of Stove can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your Tinware mending to us. The best Tinners, the best Plumbers, and the best Gas-fitters in the section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction.

Keys of All Kinds are Made Here.

Tinware Made to Order.

Ranges, Brick and Portable Furnaces
SANITARY PLUMBING.

WHATEVER form of printed matter you require we can be of service to you; whether it be

Letter Headings,
Circulars,
Programmes, Menus,
Addresses,
Memorials,
By-Laws of Societies,
Prospectuses and Reports of Financial Associations, or any other matter for Public or Private Circulation.
Everything,

at the office of the

WEEKLY CONSTITUTIONALIST.

DAILY PRESS

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

THE LONG-HANDLED GOURD.

Oh! well I remember the spring 'neath the hemlock tree,
How, bubbling with coolness, its waters it sent forth;
And the old oaken bucket, where hung that the long-handled gourd.

That first out of my childhood, the long-handled gourd.

That gourd was the host of a dozen my mother Had raised on a vine, at the back of the yard, And she scraped it, and boiled it, and scraped it, and turned it,
Till 'twas smooth as a filbert, and almost as hard.

And, when it was steamed, she went down to the spring with the gourd,
And there driving up a large nail in the wall, Was hung the gourd on it, and for years it remained there,
A joy to the family and a blessing to all.

Ah! well I remember how I'd eagerly seize it, When, hurking with thirst, I would rush in the house,
And, sipping it full of cold water, would drink it As with a pleasure that no other vessel can bring.

The nectar the gods used to sip was not bitter, And no control or wish, by a sybarite poet's plain polite, could excel it, could speak it of nothing
The water I drank from that long-hallowed gourd.

And the poet who wrote of "The Old Oaken Bucket,"
And the pleasure a drink from its depths used to bring,
Would have known a much nicer place to be memory,
Had he drank from the long-handled gourd at the spring.

—Cooper Cringle, in Detroit Free Press.

HUNTED WITH A MULE.

The Spirited Steed of a Chicago Man in Arkansas.

How He Startled the Chase Only Under Protest, and Never Would Run With the Old Hounds Till Their Story—Then He Leads the Field.

THEODORE WINDE, a Chicago young man who has made a good deal of money on the board of trade without being known as a regular member, used to go down to Arkansas every fall for a few weeks' hunting. He had quite a circle of friends among the people in the Ozark country, and whatever they could do for his entertainment was done with a promptness and freedom that made the gift doubly welcome. They were great fellows to hunt foxes, and chose clear, moonlight nights for the choicest of the sport. He had gone with them on a good many other chases, but had never yet followed the hounds after night, and expressed a wish to do so. The family at which he had been stopping had a good horse that had given him an excellent mount on the daylight runs, but in the way of spirited he did not care to ride it on a night chase, so a neighbor offered to exchange with him, giving a mule instead. All the young men in the country-side hold him the mule was a famous hunter, and that it would follow the hounds through fire and water, and all he had to do was to keep on it. But on the evening of the meet, when they gathered at the edge of the wood, he remonstrated against the mule's cruel way of playing a joke on the city young man.

"That mule stoost there by the fence with his head down, his halter loose and nothing to keep him from running and jumping off after a deer at that time of preparation," says Mr. Winde. "I thought it was a joke, but got down from the spirited horse and got ready to mount the mule, thinking if they wanted a little fun with me they might have it. They had never yet followed the hounds after night, and expressed a wish to do so. The family at which I

The Constitutionalist.

W. L. FORCE. A. L. FORCE.
Editors and Proprietors.

ATTENTION! DEMOCRATS!!

We heartily endorse and commend to favorable and immediate action the appeal of our North Pinkfield correspondent, as published in last week's issue, for a more general and efficient organization of Democrats throughout New Jersey. His remarks were seasonable and well expressed.

The Presidential and Congressional elections of next year will involve the preservation or overthrow of popular rights. The very liberties of the people will be at stake, because it clearly appears that the aim and intent of the Republican party leaders is to establish in this country, through class legislation and administration, an Oligarchy, the conferring of special wealth and power upon pampered favorites at the expense and to the detriment of the toiling masses.

Such a system of government is diametrically opposed to the letter and spirit of the National Constitution, and now as ever, is determined antagonist is the party of Democracy.

Democracy is for the equal rights and interests of all the people.

Oligarchy is for class privileges, the arbitrary rule of the privileged.

Between these two the line of battle is distinctly drawn and must be fought.

Democrats—

Come together without delay and form local organizations for counsel and conquest. Rally with enthusiasm! Aught for the triumph of the freedom saving and pocket protecting principles of the Democratic party, whose illustrious founder, Jefferson, the author of the Declaration of Independence, gilded the page of patriotic history as follows:—"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unamenable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

ANOTHER PROTECTION GEM.

Mr. McKinley when advocating his tariff measure in Congress said:

"We have four mills which can be at once adapted to making tin-plate. More than a dozen leading tin-plate mills are capable in the amount of thirty, forty, or fifty mills, say that, if this duty is put up in plain fact, they will at once embark in the manufactory."

The increased duty on tin-plate was fixed to suit interested parties, but the "at once" part of the promise has not as yet appear to have been fulfilled.

Tin plate can no doubt in course of time be made to some extent in this country, but the consumer sees at present no sign of active American consumers, who are the rank and file of the people, have heretofore paid, is protimated.

Monopolists will doubtless grow rich out of the infant tin plate industry, and like other species of protection, the protected infant the older he grows more unruly will be he for an increased supply of government pap—higher duty.

The tariff is a tax, and that a fact which McKinley and his allies cannot rule out.

An interesting incident comes to light.

A St. Louis tin plate experimenter has been impudently begging for permission to engage white tin-plate workers and import them for his own use in violation of the Contract Labor Law.

There you have another side-show of foster protection.

Foreign labor is all pauper labor, according to the lexicon of the high protectionists.

An alleged reason for raising the tariff on tin-plate was to encourage American labor as against foreign.

Will the importation of Welshmen accomplish that worthy end?

Solve the problem for yourselves Worshipmen of America!

Quay and Dudley have stepped down and out of the National Republican Committee. It is now said this leaves the Committee solid for Blaine.

The Treasury will this year pay out about $15,000,000 in order that the people may have "free" sugar. But so it goes—with the deceased surplus.

The other day Collector Erhardt of the New York Custom House resigned, and Senator Fassett was appointed Collector by the President. It was after that the Platt machine men were again in the saddle.

Governor Campbell, of Ohio, used to be a Republican; so did ex-Governor Boies, of Iowa; so did ex-Governor Gray, of Indiana; so did ex-Governor Palmer, of Illinois; so did John P. Andrew, Josiah Quincy, George Frederick Williams and Henry Lee, of Massachusetts. These instances are symptomatic of a remarkable revolution in politics. He is blind who sees no meaning in it. The inquiry is at least worth making why such leaders had all one way in this kind of business.—Boston Herald.

The Philadelphia Record says: Mr. W. H. Vaughan, of Omaha, is big with a new pension scheme. He proposes that the Government shall issue $400,000,000 in bonds, and with the proceeds of their sale pension all the slaves. He advises the negroes to make it a condition of their support of political parties that the money shall be voted for the purpose mentioned. He received letters from prominent Republicans indorsing his proposition. The underlying idea is that former slaves should be compensated for the work which they did for their masters before the war. It does not seem to matter to Mr. Vaughan that those who got the benefit of slave labor would contribute but a small proportion of the back pay.

Bumble Bees by the Mile.

The removal of the big cupola from the Stein building at the corner of Park avenue and Front street left quite a large portion of the roof unprotected. The timbers were to have been on hand Thursday for the cupola apex over, but the rain got ahead of them, and though heavy canvas was spread over the gap the torrents of rain that fell found their way into the interior of the building and caused considerable damage. The lodge rooms of the Jr. O. U. A. M., and other societies in the building, and the law offices and library of Judge Robert Dunn, were more or less drenched. Trifling damage was done in the Central Passenger car on the first floor. The gentlemen who were engaged in the work of removing the cupola have volunteered to cover the entire loss, though the deluge was not through any fault of theirs.

A SEWER FRANCHISE FOR LOW.

In Spite of Determined Opposition, Such Progress Reigns.

The project of granting to J. M. Low and his associates a franchise to construct and operate sewers in Plainfield was unexpectedly assisted towards a successful culmination by the City Common Council Monday night.

Before taking any new steps in the matter, the Council wiped out all former legislation, and at the request of Mr. Low rescinded the action they had taken in the old application to build sewers. The Council had on June 5 accepted a contract, but that contract had never yet been signed. The contemplated new investment by voting by till that contract.

Then Mr. Hetfield presented a new proposition, in which all the good features of the old were retained, but which was even more favorable to the city than the old one. Among the improvements was a material reduction of rates to persons.

When the contract and specifications embodying Mr. Low's plans had been read, Mr. Hetfield moved that they be accepted and the Mayor and Clerk be instructed to execute the contract. The motion was carried.

Ayes—Councilmen Gallup, Hetfield, Moffett, Roberts, Smith, Spangenberg—6.

Noes—Councilmen Ackerman, Gins, Johnston, Rushmore, Sec—5.

Before voting, Mr. Ackerman read a carefully-prepared speech opposing the project and counseling his fellow-councilmen not to be led by Mr. Low's deep advice by voting in favor of the scheme. He held that the execution of the work would result in injury to the city, and he urged that the interests of the people should be voted away. He proposed a system of sewers of the city's ownership, to be built gradually, rather than a monopolist private construction. The whole matter ought—he considered—to be submitted to an election by the people. The proposed contract had many defects, among them was that it did not provide for supervision of the work of construction by an engineer employed to look after the city's interests.

Mr. Rushmore protested that the action being taken was too hasty. He insisted that the contract needed cautious consideration and careful inspection before adoption.

No further argument was made.

Mr. Hetfield presented an ordinance granting to J. M. Low and his associates (to be known as the Plainfield Sewerage company) a franchise for the construction and operation of the proposed sewers. Mr. Ackerman tried to get the ordinance referred to the law and ordinance committee, but was unsuccessful. The ordinance was then read, and placed on its first and second readings and ordered engrossed and advertised preparatory to third reading and final passage. The vote was:

Ayes—Councilmen Gallup, Hetfield, Moffett, Roberts, Smith, Spangenberg—6.

Noes—Councilmen Ackerman, Gins, Johnston, Rushmore, Sec—5.

AFTER SUNDAY LIQUOR SELLERS.

Mayor Gilbert Has a Plan for Stopping Illicit Sales.

Mayor Gilbert has entered on a crusade against violators of the Sunday-observance ordinances. In a message to the Council Monday he said that he had excellent reason to believe that several licensed liquor dealers in this city had the habit of violating the law and selling drinks Sundays. Inasmuch as it was difficult to obtain evidence against such sworn to, he recommended that the Council compel all licensees to keep their blinds and screens open from 12 p. m. Saturday to 6 a. m. Monday, so that all people on the street might have a full and unobstructed view of the interior of all bar rooms during those hours. This—he thought—would be a hard-and-fast way of telling if bar rooms closed, and no one—he argued—could possibly object except anti-Sunday-selling violators of the law. He recommended forfeiture of license as the penalty for not keeping one's bar room open to public view Sundays.

The message was referred to the law and ordinance committee, with the un-mixed instruction to incorporate the suggestions into an ordinance.

NO MUSIC WITH DRINKS.

Nor Any Dancing, Boxing, Wrestling, or Other Amusement, In Bar Rooms.

Councilman Hetfield presented to the City Common Council Monday an ordinance prohibiting music, dancing, boxing, wrestling, and other exhibitions or amusements from being given in rooms where liquors are sold, or in rooms adjoining. The ordinance was referred to the committee on laws and ordinances, with the instruction to get the opinion of the Corporation Counsel as to its legality.

Game Season.

The woodcock season closed July 31. The birds have been very scarce on account of the dry season. Sportsmen predict fine fall shooting. The upland plover (golden-winged August 15. Reed birds are also scarce this season. The open season for squirrels commences Sept. 15.

Got the Lowest Berzelia Figure.

The result of the city's shopping tour for ales is that the Street Commissioner is to have one to-day (Tuesday) at the Assessor one to cost $110. Mr. Spangenberg, of the special committee appointed to look for bargains, reports that these two-horse hack-tops are not what the safes are worth considerably more.

The Governor Promises to Aid a Local Artist's Undertaking.

John Mersereau, a Dunellen artist who has gained some fame, of late, through the exhibition of his paintings, had an interview with Governor Abbett Monday. He made known to the Governor his intention of painting a panorama of the "Battle of Antietam", and sought his assistance in securing from the legislature, Gov. Abbett assured Mr. Mersereau that he would use his influence to aid him in his great undertaking.

A Question for "Our Bishop".

(From The New York Sun.)

Bishop Vincent is the author and founder of the Chautauqua educational movement, and a literary impropriety committed by him is more shocking than if it came from some ordinary ignoramus. On Friday, at Chautauqua, he urged the assembled farmers to study American history and literature, the Bishop spoke of "a lot of foreign rascals in our midst" and said it would be interesting to know what he means by it. What is our midst, and how do the rascals get into it?

It's true that the Bishop's short cuttons in other respects are more consistent with correct principles and with logic.

Thank You, says the Council.

At Monday's meeting the City Council unanimously adopted a vote of thanks to the Central New Jersey Land Improvement company for its generous donation of $1,000 and to the Central New Jersey Land Improvement company for the liberal contribution of $1,500, to be devoted to the further improvement of North avenue at Netherwood.

A vote of thanks was also passed by the Council to the Netherwood Sponsors, *for his zeal and public spirit in se*curing the contributions for the city. Mr. Spangenberg said that he was grateful for the vote of thanks, but that he felt that he had merely done his duty in the matter.

It's a dandy drink of this modern time, is Root Beer made from Knapp's Root Beer Extract.

NEITHER TEAM WON.

The Crescent League Ball Players Tie the First Game at Norwich.

SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.

NORWICH, Aug. 4.—The first game between the Crescent League ball team and the Norwich professional league nine, resulted in a tie at the end of the ninth inning.

The score was 8 to 8 when darkness prevented further playing. Each team made nine hits. Taylor was very wild. The Plainfield boys arrived in fine condition and are much encouraged by the game. They feel sure of winning at Willimantic to-morrow.

HOLY CROSS CHOIR IN CAMP.

(SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.)

MERWIN'S POINT, Conn., Aug. 4.—The Holy Cross church choir arrived safely at Camp Dupee at 8:30 a. m. yesterday, although they were weakened, but which was even more favorable to the city than the old one. Among the improvements was a material reduction of rates to persons.

When the contract and specifications embodying Mr. Low's plans had been read, Mr. Hetfield moved that they be accepted and the Mayor and Clerk be instructed to execute the contract. The motion was carried.

Ayes—Councilmen Gallup, Hetfield, Moffett, Roberts, Smith, Spangenberg—6.

Noes—Councilmen Ackerman, Gins, Johnston, Rushmore, Sec—5.

Before voting, Mr. Ackerman read a carefully-prepared speech opposing the project and counseling his fellow-councilmen not to be led by Mr. Low's deep advice by voting in favor of the scheme. He held that the execution of the work would result in injury to the city, and he urged that the interests of the people should be voted away. He proposed a system of sewers of the city's ownership, to be built gradually, rather than a monopolist private construction. The whole matter ought—he considered—to be submitted to an election by the people. The proposed contract had many defects, among them was that it did not provide for supervision of the work of construction by an engineer employed to look after the city's interests.

Mr. Rushmore protested that the action being taken was too hasty. He insisted that the contract needed cautious consideration and careful inspection before adoption.

No further argument was made.

Mr. Hetfield presented an ordinance granting to J. M. Low and his associates (to be known as the Plainfield Sewerage company) a franchise for the construction and operation of the proposed sewers. Mr. Ackerman tried to get the ordinance referred to the law and ordinance committee, but was unsuccessful. The ordinance was then read, and placed on its first and second readings and ordered engrossed and advertised preparatory to third reading and final passage. The vote was:

Ayes—Councilmen Gallup, Hetfield, Moffett, Roberts, Smith, Spangenberg—6.

Noes—Councilmen Ackerman, Gins, Johnston, Rushmore, Sec—5.

AFTER SUNDAY LIQUOR SELLERS.

Mayor Gilbert Has a Plan for Stopping Illicit Sales.

Mayor Gilbert has entered on a crusade against violators of the Sunday-observance ordinances. In a message to the Council Monday he said that he had excellent reason to believe that several licensed liquor dealers in this city had the habit of violating the law and selling drinks Sundays. Inasmuch as it was difficult to obtain evidence against such sworn to, he recommended that the Council compel all licensees to keep their blinds and screens open from 12 p. m. Saturday to 6 a. m. Monday, so that all people on the street might have a full and unobstructed view of the interior of all bar rooms during those hours. This—he thought—would be a hard-and-fast way of telling if bar rooms closed, and no one—he argued—could possibly object except anti-Sunday-selling violators of the law. He recommended forfeiture of license as the penalty for not keeping one's bar room open to public view Sundays.

The message was referred to the law and ordinance committee, with the un-mixed instruction to incorporate the suggestions into an ordinance.

NO MUSIC WITH DRINKS.

Nor Any Dancing, Boxing, Wrestling, or Other Amusement, In Bar Rooms.

Councilman Hetfield presented to the City Common Council Monday an ordinance prohibiting music, dancing, boxing, wrestling, and other exhibitions or amusements from being given in rooms where liquors are sold, or in rooms adjoining. The ordinance was referred to the committee on laws and ordinances, with the instruction to get the opinion of the Corporation Counsel as to its legality.

Game Season.

The woodcock season closed July 31. The birds have been very scarce on account of the dry season. Sportsmen predict fine fall shooting. The upland plover (golden-winged August 15. Reed birds are also scarce this season. The open season for squirrels commences Sept. 15.

Got the Lowest Berzelia Figure.

The result of the city's shopping tour for ales is that the Street Commissioner is to have one to-day (Tuesday) at the Assessor one to cost $110. Mr. Spangenberg, of the special committee appointed to look for bargains, reports that these two-horse hack-tops are not what the safes are worth considerably more.

The Governor Promises to Aid a Local Artist's Undertaking.

John Mersereau, a Dunellen artist who has gained some fame, of late, through the exhibition of his paintings, had an interview with Governor Abbett Monday. He made known to the Governor his intention of painting a panorama of the "Battle of Antietam", and sought his assistance in securing from the legislature, Gov. Abbett assured Mr. Mersereau that he would use his influence to aid him in his great undertaking.

A Question for "Our Bishop".

(From The New York Sun.)

Bishop Vincent is the author and founder of the Chautauqua educational movement, and a literary impropriety committed by him is more shocking than if it came from some ordinary ignoramus. On Friday, at Chautauqua, he urged the assembled farmers to study American history and literature, the Bishop spoke of "a lot of foreign rascals in our midst" and said it would be interesting to know what he means by it. What is our midst, and how do the rascals get into it?

It's true that the Bishop's short cuttons in other respects are more consistent with correct principles and with logic.

Thank You, says the Council.

At Monday's meeting the City Council unanimously adopted a vote of thanks to the Central New Jersey Land Improvement company for its generous donation of $1,000 and to the Central New Jersey Land Improvement company for the liberal contribution of $1,500, to be devoted to the further improvement of North avenue at Netherwood.

A vote of thanks was also passed by the Council to the Netherwood Sponsors, *for his zeal and public spirit in se*curing the contributions for the city. Mr. Spangenberg said that he was grateful for the vote of thanks, but that he felt that he had merely done his duty in the matter.

It's a dandy drink of this modern time, is Root Beer made from Knapp's Root Beer Extract.

WASHINGTON ROCK.

How on the Giant Rock, backed by the wood, The crowned the hostile red emperor fled, Lost by Cornwallis on the plains below, Rolling their murderous, while concealed by wood.

What a vast prospect was before his eyes, Where now fair plains and pleasant towns arise!

Yonder's the gray of Staten Island Sound, And here the Raritan low winding flows.

And Prudent's not a dozen leagues, you'll think.

Over there the towers of Brooklyn bridge as well.

Yonder stands Liberty enlightening all; And there's the gusty ridge of Navesink.

Here varied are the scenes which spread below.

Where Washington since stood and watched the foe.

EDWARD S. CHEAKES.

GOSSIP ABOUT THE GUESTS.

Pencil Portraits of Some of the People Who Make the Season Attractive at Hotel Netherwood.

The unfavorable accounts lodged belle of the Netherwood, this week, is Miss Claire Fairchild of New York; and it is a question yet whether in fast summers a young woman handsomer in face and figure, more graceful in her moods and ways, has crossed the hotel.

Mrs. Oliver Bridgman still holds undisputed sway over the affections of one of the most popular young women at Hotel Netherwood. No grand fete or simple social gathering in connection with the Netherwood, this season, is complete without vivacious Miss Bridgman's presence. She was up at daylight Sunday, but thereby hangs another story.

Mr. Bridgman is the son of the ex-Bayside minister who used to wear a gown in the Madison avenue church, and resigned his pulpit when he resigned his belief in a future place of torment. He's now a Unitarian gentleman in Switzerland now, and the young man went off with the boys to Washington, three weeks ago. Sunday morning at the beginning of July a party arrived in Plainfield at 6:15 o'clock, contained Lieut. Bridgman and some more of Troop A, New York's swell cavalry organization. Two were

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST. AUGUST 6, 1891.

CITY DEPARTMENT.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY OF ESSEX.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - City Editor.

—The tide of the Warren mission excursion to Asbury Park is August 28.

—The City Common Council will meet August 18 to fix the tax rate for the common year.

—Nine cars filled with people constituted the Trinity excursion to Asbury Park Tuesday.

—The excavating for the Methodist chapel on Park place, near Somerset street, was begun Monday.

—George Rogers, of Pence and Second streets, had a finger crushed Monday. He may have to lose it also—finger.

—Rent is now due, and the weekly newspaper published in the State of New Jersey to-day—THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

—Asbury Park's policemen did not interfere with the lively "go-aheads" of the ladies were long clothes.—New York Recorder.

—The North Side Gun club will have a shoot and an old fashioned clam bake on Mountain avenue, Saturday, at one o'clock.—

—Two runaway accidents occurred in town Saturday afternoon. No one was injured, but a buggy and a butcher's wagon were smashed.

—The Harkinstown Messenger's scarer is almost as stupid as some in this city. He credits Plainfield with only two strikes out in last Saturday's game, when Roberts struck out twice himself, and Captoneil once.

—The soldier has a stanch friend in U. S. Senator John R. McPherson. Recently, though that gentleman's latter session, several applicants for pensions in this vicinity have had their claims allowed and granted.

—Edward I. Vroom, of 39 Madison avenue, was doing some work at Mr. McDonald's, 60 East Front street, Tuesday, when a piece of scrap from the scrap and hit him on the calf of the leg. Dr. Long cauterized the wound.

—There are 64,391 post-offices in the United States, an increase of 3,000 over the last year. Nobody objects to the multiplication of these offices any more than one would to the increase of schoolhouses and churches.

—A number of West Seventh street residents have taken time by the forelock and have made all connections and plumbing arrangements ready to have water from the Water Supply Company's pipes turned into their houses.

—The Westfield Leader says that for the town of Mountainville, on Rahway avenue, is an "unworthy insinuation", and it thinks that McLaughlinville is a "derogatory appellation." So it is going to invent a name for Mountainville.

—The Reading, Jersey Central and Pennsylvania railways are considering a movement to abolish mileage books. All passengers will be charged the same uniform rate of two cents a mile, instead of discriminating in favor of the mileage-book man.

—A farm of about sixty acres between Hightsville and Iselin has been sold to a Hebrew syndicate in New York. About 100 men will be put to work clearing the land prior to laying and grading streets. The intention is to start a Hebrew settlement.

—The Water Supply Company will turn the water into its pipes in a day or two. A few hydrants are being erected at far distant points especially for the Company's own use. Through them the air is blown out of the pipes and the water can then enter.

—Someone stole a horse and carriage from hackman Smalley's barn at Fanwood Monday night and after driving the horse till it was nearly used up left it standing unsheltered in the road near Scotch Plains, where its owner found it this morning.

—The New Jersey crop reports make a favorable showing. There are some serious drawbacks here and there, but on the whole the State has been favored this year with a fine season, and the farmers will have good reason to observe Thanksgiving Day.

—Senator Henry Winton, editor and owner of the Bergen County Democrat, recently purchased a fine new power press from the Scott Press works of this city, similar to one in use in the Press office. THE PRESS congratulates editor Winton on the successful growth of his office and paper.

—The St. Mary's church people and the residents of the neighborhood are striving to have restored a street lamp that used to shed light along Liberty street and Seventh avenue. The suffering for some reason taken away some time ago, and cannot very well be replaced now because the appropriation is exhausted.

—The various peach basket factories throughout the country are taxed to their utmost by hard to keep up with the demand; but they are unable to do it. There has seldom been such a loud cry for baskets, and prices are high. The yield of peaches in good old Hunterdon county is expected to reach over 2,000,000 baskets.

—Thursday's rain-storm proved again to the people of the neighborhood of Liberty and Scotch Plain streets the great need of a better sewer system. The small sewers they have are by far inadequate to carry off the water, and cellars yesterday were badly flooded. The sufferers would appreciate aid from the City Council.

—Those many and severe showers of late have cost contractors Doud & Sons considerable time and money. What is the probable danger or not along any of the streets which they have dressed or through which they had water piped, special watchmen have been engaged day and night, lights have been kept burning and an extra force otherwise employed to at once repair any washouts.

—A writer in Our Dumb Animals says that whenever a horse driven by himself has balked he has got out of his carriage and gone to its forefoot, lifted it from the ground and struck the shoe with a stone. He has never failed to start a horse in that very simple way, and he has on several occasions had balky horses which had exhausted the patience of all former owners.

—The Bound Brook Chronicle says: "Plainfield has been insulted. An editorial writer of the New York Recorder, last Sunday, in reviewing the most outrageous proceeding on the floor of a Plainfield ball-room, spoke of the quarrel only as a country village. It is possible that this writer has formed the kind of base-ball they play in Plainfield and judged of the size of the place accordingly.

After trying many remedies, I tried Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, and was relieved at once. I feel that it saved my life. I cannot say too much in its favor. I am willing to answer any letter of inquiry.—Mrs. Mary Hoffman, Bridgeport, Conn.

PERSONALIA.

A. B. Dunlap has returned from his fishing tour.

Mr. and Mrs. Craig A. Marsh sailed Wednesday for Europe.

Dr. and Mrs. Dudley S. Miller are at the St. Cloud, Asbury Park.

John H. Dunn and family, of LaGrande avenue, have gone to Moosow.

J. P. Lains and family have gone to Mt. Clemens, Mich., for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. James L. Love are enjoying rural life at Smartswood, N. J.

Mrs. B. A. Begeman, jr., of Myrtle avenue, has returned from Mt. Pocono.

Chauncey Cobb, jr, of North Plainfield, has gone to visit friends at Martinsville.

Mr. and Mrs. Seely Edsall will spend the present month at Hemlerson Harbor, N. Y.

S. R. Struthers and family will spend the coming two weeks at West Falmouth, Mass.

Prof. E. H. Lewis has been chosen editor of the Alfred Centre University paper.

O. T. Waring and family, of Park avenue, are at the Marion House, Lake George.

Waller Scott of this city has been granted a patent on an oscillating cylinder press.

A charming little daughter has arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dodds, 33 Vine street.

The Rev. C. L. Goodrich is at Waterville, N. H., where he will spend the month of August.

John W. Murray and family are at the Marion House, Lake George, for the month of August.

Mrs. Wm. M. Rugeon and T. Albert Rogers are registered at the Grand Central, Asbury Park.

Mrs. Amelia L. Sandford and family will spend the balance of the season at Watch Hill, R. I.

Miss Lucy Johnston, of Newark, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Whitlock, of 73 West Fifth street.

G. B. Corwin and family are spending the summer at Wilbertson-by-the-Sea, Spring Lake beach.

The Rev. Hiram H. Cole, of Tacoma, Wash., conducted the services at Holy Cross church, Sunday.

Benj. Reynolds, of Jackson avenue, returned last night from a pleasant vacation at Westerly, R. I.

Miss Condon and Miss Mullen, of Milford, Mass., are visiting Mrs. Eugene Shaw, of Grant avenue.

T. A. Vanderbilt has so far recovered as to be brought back to his home in this city, yet he is still very ill.

Mrs. Thomas E. Warman and Miss Bertha Warman, of Liberty street, returned Saturday from Mt. Pocono.

A baby boy arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Staats, West Second street, Friday morning. This is their second child.

Miss Jennie VanWinkle of Madison avenue, is visiting friends at Round Lake, Saratoga, and Lake George, for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Garret Q. Packer and family have left town Wednesday for Newport, Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket.

The Rev. Cornelius Schenck, wife, and boy, are at Ocean Grove. They will stay at the Sheldon House for the month of August.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Lloyd and family, of Dover street, left town Tuesday for Cornwall, N. Y. They will stay at the Glen Ridge House.

Miss Belle Brandnaw has returned to Plainfield after a two weeks' vacation at Asbury Park, where she has been staying at the Grand Central Hotel.

Mrs. Wilson Fisk, assisted by Miss Marion, Mrs. C. F. Sullivan, and Miss Southard, served tea, Saturday afternoon, at the Hill-side Tennis Club.

Hattie True Weston, formerly of this city and a sister of the wife of Counselor McLean Ingersoll, died at her home, 224 Adelphi street, Bro klyn, Monday.

Ex-Postmaster Wallace Vail has been confined to his home for several days on account of illness. His many friends will be glad to hear he is now convalescent.

Architect B. Fossate has just returned from the funeral of his mother at Auburn, N. Y. She was 75 years of age and the wife of Dr. B. Fossate late of that city.

Because of the illness of Mrs. Miller, the musicale that was being arranged under her supervision for Thursday evening at the Park Netherwood, is postponed.

The family of Joseph E. Morse, Engineer of the Tide Water Oil company, left their home on Franklin place, Tuesday, for a few weeks' stay at Oriskany Falls, Oneida county, N. Y.

Mrs. J. M. Shepherd and son, of 23 Emily street, and Miss Maggie Allis, sister of Mrs. Shepherd, will spend the month of August at Annandale, in the hills of Hunterdon.

The Wheel, a weekly paper devoted to the interests of cycling, will soon publish a map of the Union county road system, prepared by County Engineer F. A. Denham, of this city.

Mrs. Susie L. Wood, daughter of Justice John J. Wood of Somerville, and Rahway, is spending her vacation with her uncle, William H. Ludlow, of Jackson avenue, North Plainfield.

A Somerville paper says that Mrs. Harry Dickson, of Plainfield, who has been in ill health for some time, is staying with her parents in Somerville, in hopes of recovering her health.

Miss Josephine Stallman, of Asbury Park and Ocean Grove hotels include the following from Plainfield: Coleman—J. H. Manning. Grand Central—W. S. Carpenter. Metropolitan—Miss Yates, Miss L. Martine.

Little Helen Kempshall, the older daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eaton McLean Kempshall, of Fanwood, and granddaughter of the Rev. Dr. Kempshall, of Elizabeth, is convalescent from a dangerous illness.

The leading article in the July number of the Wheelmen's Magazine is an intensely interesting story, vividly told and artistically illustrated, from the pen of William H. Sherwood, M. A. and C. E., of North Plainfield. The title is: "A survey in a diving suit."

Mrs. Sarah Doane, mother of Chief Engineer T. O. Doane, her sister Mrs. Elizabeth Sargent, of Brooklyn, and Mrs. Sarah Mrs. S. F. Craig of West Fourth street, all returned home Thursday from Highlstown, N. J., where Doane, although quite ill, stood the journey well.

Miss May Tomlinson of LaGrande avenue, Miss Lulu Clawson of West Second street, Miss Jennie Utter of Sixth street, Miss Clara Williams of Madison avenue, and the Misses Lena and Cora Tomlinson of West Sixth street, started Monday for Westerly, R. I., to visit friends and relatives.

THE PRESS made no mistake when it said in Saturday that all who listened to the Rev. C. H. Pool, at the Trinity Reformed church, Sunday, would be spiritually refreshed. He delivered two grand sermons and the people were so well pleased with him that the supply committee secured him for Sunday, the 16th instant.

Mrs. Hannah A. Ayers, relict of James O. Ayers, died at her home, corner of Broadway and Sixth street, Sunday morning at 4:30 o'clock. She had been ailing for some time from the stroke of paralysis she experienced a few weeks ago, as told in these columns. She was a sister of Mrs. Edmund Hall, of this city, and of Mrs. Stephen G. Hall, of Somerville.

J. J. H. Pollion, wife, and family, have gone to Spring Lake, N. J.

Seymour G. Smith, President of the Common Council, is spending the month of August at Hartwick, N. Y.

Among the July guests at Richfield Springs have been Mrs. John Gray Foster, J. P. Munn and J. A. Stelford, all of this city.

The Misses Kittie and Della O'Connor, of Harrison street, North Plainfield, are visiting relatives at Cold Springs, Long Island.

J. Burt Emerson, one of the prominent merchants of Haywarden, Iowa, is visiting at the home of his mother on Central avenue.

Major J. Howard Ackerman, one of New Providence's most influential citizens, was in Plainfield Tuesday, calling on friends.

Simon Oley, father of Charles W. Oley, formerly principal of the Dunellen public school, died at this home, Honeoye Falls, N. Y., July 22.

W. E. Hinkson, of the Central pharmacy, is again at his post after a week's vacation, part of which was spent at the home of his parents, Chester, Pa.

Miss Louise M. Leggett, sister of J. Howard Leggett, manager of the Central pharmacy, has returned to her home, Princeton, after a pleasant visit here of one week.

The Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis has recently been making an especial study of the influence of Greek, Roman and Arabic thought upon Christianity. Some results of this study he has published in papers recently read before the American Society of Church History. Dr. Lewis is now engaged in the preparation of a book on the same general subject.

Thomas E. H. Curtis, whose family are away for the Summer, spent M nday night with John M. Crane, another lonely grasswidower. Mr. Curtis is building a handsome home on West Eighth street next to Mr. Runkle's. He is Treasurer of the Colorado Coal and Iron Company, and Vice President and Secretary of the Colorado & Aspen railroad.

In The Century Magazine for August George Wharton Edwards of this city gives an illustrated humorous description of "Camp Dupee" which is the first of a short series of "thumb-ball sketches". In St. Nicholas for August Mr. Edwards publishes a frontispiece "Puck and Fairies", which is an excellent example of dainty work for old and young alike.

Counselor Craig A. Marsh and wife sailed on the steamship Friesland, of the Red Star line, for Antwerp, Saturday, p. m. A number of prominent people from Plainfield and Fanwood gathered on the dock just before the hour for sailing and overwhelmed them with wishes for a happy voyage. The travelers were much affected by the evidences of esteem betokened on them by their friends.

The Misses Sarah and Harriet Manning of this city have returned from Maine, where they have just fulfilled a number of concert engagements that were very successful. So satisfactory were they that re-engagements were made to come again in October and give seven concerts in all of the principal cities in the State, including Portland, Augusta and Lewiston. The largest buildings have been secured for them—the building in Portland alone seating three thousand people at an admission price of $1.50. The Misses Manning will be paid large salaries for each of the concerts, by the societies who have engaged them.

Miss Anna W. Tickner has just returned from a month's sojourn in New England, where she has been visiting her uncle, Judge Tickner, of Lawrence. Miss Tickner is the youngest daughter of the late George Tickner of Keene, N. H., a practising lawyer of that city, and a graduate of Dartmouth College. Miss Tickner was a cousin of the well-known publisher of that name, of Boston, Mass., and also of Prof. George Tickner. Miss Tickner was the founder of the Boston Public Library, the author of a "History of Spanish Literature", and for several years professor of belles-lettres at Harvard University, Cambridge. Miss Anna Tickner and her sister, Miss Clara Tickner, reside with their mother, Mrs. Fay, of this city, and both are teachers in the public schools.

All the Way on Their Wheels From Brooklyn.

A party of Long Island wheelmen, consisting of F. S. Rogers, F. D. Moody, P. Topping, E. F. Beecher, H. W. Pierce, C. F. Lipman, W. W. Meuller, E. M. Tayler, and F. E. Pearce, rode out from Brooklyn, one day last week, and were guests at the Hotel Netherwood.

A Plainfielder Helped Ashore.

H. E. Gyle, treasurer of the Trinity Sunday-school, one of the party of gentlemen on Tuesday's excursion, got out beyond his depth in the surf that day, and was assisted ashore by the bathing master. Mr. Gyle had had the water more glad of anyone's companionship than of the professional swimmer's at just that moment.

Miss Mary Howe to Wed.

It will be news not only to her many friends in Plainfield but to a great many people in the musical world in this city that Miss Mary Howe, the soprano, and William Lavin, the tenor, are soon to be married.

The news of the engagement leaked out yesterday, and, of course, came from a friend, who told it in strict confidence to somebody else, who in himself told it in confidence to somebody else.

Miss Howe is a blonde and is very handsome. She comes originally from Brattleboro, Vt., but for a number of years has lived and under Miss. Marchant's tuition abroad. Her first appearance here took place last November at the Musurgia concert.

She afterward appeared as soloist at the Metropolitan Musical Society's concert, and sang once or twice during the season at the Sunday concerts at the Lenox Lyceum, New York.

Mr. Lavin has appeared at many concerts here and vicinity, and recently members that Miss Howe sang at The Casino, Thursday evening, Jan. 15.

An Adventurous Pioneer Dead.

Edward Sherwood, an old settler W. Leonard, of this city, have engaged in an undertaking which will stamp them as not only young men of pluck and push but enterprising men of business kind of material that makes successful men.

They spent their leisure time during the early spring, after the hours of study, in preparing for that in which to take a summer trip. They laid the keel and built the entire boat. It does not contain a nail or screw that was not driven home by their own hands. Even the painting and launching was done by them. Then they stocked it with a tent, a supply of provisions, cooking utensils, and blankets for their comfort on the trip, which they began July 25. They launched the craft at Bound Brook, in the Raritan, which they descended till they reached Bartlan bay. Then they crossed to Staten Island where they went into camp for two or three days, after which they rowed across the Kill Van Kull to Bergen Point, passed the Passaic river Saturday night, and are now on their way up the Passaic to the Rockaway river, by which they will proceed to Lake Hopatcong where they will go into camp and settle down to fishing.

The trip of these daring young men is not without peril. The water sometimes runs very high and rough, and they had to cross a whirlpool in the Kill Van Kull from the stroke of paralysis she experienced a few weeks ago, as told in these columns. She was a sister of Mrs. Edmund Hall, of this city, and of Mrs. Stephen G. Hall, of Somerville.

LAYS OF NETHERWOOD.

BRILLIANT SUBSCRIPTION CONCERT AT HOTEL NETHERWOOD.

Three Hundred Guests Enjoy the Festivities Presented—Full Programme of the Fine Musical Rendered by a Talented Company—An August Reminder and Other Sunday Events.

HOTEL NETHERWOOD,
NETHERWOOD, N. J.,
July 30, 1891.

OFF FOR A WEEK OF PLEASURE.

Holy Cross Choir Start for Their Annual Summer Camp.

Nearly all the members of the Holy Cross church choir left on the 7:31 train Monday night for Morse's Point, Conn., where the week will be spent in the very best sort of a good time. Neither paines nor expense has been spared to make their trip a grand success, and "Camp Dupee" will be one of the best appointed and most thoroughly equipped camps on the Connecticut shore. The party is expected to reach the Point this afternoon and to be firmly established in their new quarters to-night. Merwin's Point is situated on the shore of Long Island Sound, about seven miles southwest from New Haven, and two miles from Woodmont, the nearest post-office. The whole camp is under the management of choir master William H. Miner, who will be assisted in the ordering of things in camp by organist Israel Jones. The shortness of the notice of the start for sailing and overwhelmed them with wishes for a happy voyage. The travelers were much affected by the evidences of esteem betokened on them by their friends.

The Misses Sarah and Harriet Manning of this city have returned from Maine, where they have just fulfilled a number of concert-engagements that were very successful. So satisfactory were they that re-engagements were made to come again in October and give seven concerts in all of the principal cities in the State, including Portland, Augusta and Lewiston. The largest buildings have been secured for them—the building in Portland alone seating three thousand people at an admission price of $1.50. The Misses Manning will be paid large salaries for each of the concerts, by the societies who have engaged them.

Miss Anna W. Tickner has just returned from a month's sojourn in New England, where she has been visiting her uncle, Judge Tickner, of Lawrence. Miss Tickner is the youngest daughter of the late George Tickner of Keene, N. H., a practising lawyer of that city, and a graduate of Dartmouth College. Miss Tickner was a cousin of the well-known publisher of that name, of Boston, Mass., and also of Prof. George Tickner. Miss Tickner was the founder of the Boston Public Library, the author of a "History of Spanish Literature", and for several years professor of belles-lettres at Harvard University, Cambridge. Miss Anna Tickner and her sister, Miss Clara Tickner, reside with their mother, Mrs. Fay, of this city, and both are teachers in the public schools.

All the Way on Their Wheels From Brooklyn.

A party of Long Island wheelmen, consisting of F. S. Rogers, F. D. Moody, P. Topping, E. F. Beecher, H. W. Pierce, C. F. Lipman, W. W. Meuller, E. M. Tayler, and F. E. Pearce, rode out from Brooklyn, one day last week, and were guests at the Hotel Netherwood.

A Plainfielder Helped Ashore.

H. E. Gyle, treasurer of the Trinity Sunday-school, one of the party of gentlemen on Tuesday's excursion, got out beyond his depth in the surf that day, and was assisted ashore by the bathing master. Mr. Gyle had had the water more glad of anyone's companionship than of the professional swimmer's at just that moment.

Miss Mary Howe to Wed.

It will be news not only to her many friends in Plainfield but to a great many people in the musical world in this city that Miss Mary Howe, the soprano, and William Lavin, the tenor, are soon to be married.

The news of the engagement leaked out yesterday, and, of course, came from a friend, who told it in strict confidence to somebody else, who in himself told it in confidence to somebody else.

Miss Howe is a blonde and is very handsome. She comes originally from Brattleboro, Vt., but for a number of years has lived and under Miss. Marchant's tuition abroad. Her first appearance here took place last November at the Musurgia concert.

She afterward appeared as soloist at the Metropolitan Musical Society's concert, and sang once or twice during the season at the Sunday concerts at the Lenox Lyceum, New York.

Mr. Lavin has appeared at many concerts here and vicinity, and recently members that Miss Howe sang at The Casino, Thursday evening, Jan. 15.

An Adventurous Pioneer Dead.

Edward Sherwood, an old settler W. Leonard, of this city, have engaged in an undertaking which will stamp them as not only young men of pluck and push but enterprising men of business kind of material that makes successful men.

They spent their leisure time during the early spring, after the hours of study, in preparing for that in which to take a summer trip. They laid the keel and built the entire boat. It does not contain a nail or screw that was not driven home by their own hands. Even the painting and launching was done by them. Then they stocked it with a tent, a supply of provisions, cooking utensils, and blankets for their comfort on the trip, which they began July 25. They launched the craft at Bound Brook, in the Raritan, which they descended till they reached Bartlan bay. Then they crossed to Staten Island where they went into camp for two or three days, after which they rowed across the Kill Van Kull to Bergen Point, passed the Passaic river Saturday night, and are now on their way up the Passaic to the Rockaway river, by which they will proceed to Lake Hopatcong where they will go into camp and settle down to fishing.

The trip of these daring young men is not without peril. The water sometimes runs very high and rough, and they had to cross a whirlpool in the Kill Van Kull from the stroke of paralysis she experienced a few weeks ago, as told in these columns. She was a sister of Mrs. Edmund Hall, of this city, and of Mrs. Stephen G. Hall, of Somerville.

LAYS OF NETHERWOOD.

BRILLIANT SUBSCRIPTION CONCERT AT HOTEL NETHERWOOD.

Three Hundred Guests Enjoy the Festivities Presented—Full Programme of the Fine Musical Rendered by a Talented Company—An August Reminder and Other Sunday Events.

HOTEL NETHERWOOD,
NETHERWOOD, N. J.,
July 30, 1891.

OFF FOR A WEEK OF PLEASURE.

Holy Cross Choir start for Their Annual Summer Camp.

Nearly all the members of the Holy Cross church choir left on the 7:31 train Monday night for Morse's Point, Conn., where the week will be spent in the very best sort of a good time. Neither paines nor expense has been spared to make their trip a grand success, and "Camp Dupee" will be one of the best appointed and most thoroughly equipped camps on the Connecticut shore. The party is expected to reach the Point this afternoon and to be firmly established in their new quarters to-night. Merwin's Point is situated on the shore of Long Island Sound, about seven miles southwest from New Haven, and two miles from Woodmont, the nearest post-office. The whole camp is under the management of choir master William H. Miner, who will be assisted in the ordering of things in camp by organist Israel Jones. The shortness of the notice of the start for sailing and what started on the trip were William Hardy, George Westervelt, Charles Mackey, Bertram Tallmy, Edward Beck, William Holmes, William Tallamy, Herbert Schutt, Edward Waring, Frank Perry, Arthur Smith, Arthur Murphy, Arthur Ford, Orville Waring, Louis Tallamy, Robert Tarrill, Bertie Lloyd and Charlie Turrill.

BROKE INTO THE BANK VAULT.

Professional Safe-Breakers Come Within Reach of $40,000 of the City National's Funds.

After working all day of Tuesday and till 1 o'clock next morning, safe-openers succeeded in cutting a hole in one of the City National bank's vaults big enough to get their hands in. They then threw the bolts back and opened the door. There was $40,000 in cash within their grasp, but they did n't get a cent of it. They even left their tools behind them.

The trouble, damage and expense was all brought about by a single ten-cent piece. When the vault door was slammed shut Monday evening, the little dime was jarred down behind one of the bolts. Yesterday morning it was found to be impossible to open the door, and expert safe-openers were sent for. They brought for the purpose a large collection of the most complicated and costly tools, made of the finest steel. But it took until after midnight to get inside of the vault.

It was a very expensive casualty for the bank, but it proved that there is by no safer place in the world for one's funds than in the City National's vaults.

NARROWLY ESCAPED DEATH.

A Lightning Rod Falls from a Roof and Cuts Open a Workman's Head.

H. M. Clark, of 60 Grandview avenue, foreman for Jeremiah Manning, & Son, met with quite a painful accident, and had a narrow escape from sudden death at about 3 p. m. Saturday. He was assisting workmen for A. M. Griffin in raising a lightning rod ladder to the roof of the residence of Louis Myers, on Front street. As the top of the ladder reached the eaves of the building, it struck a loose section of the lightning rod that was projecting, causing it to fall. Mr. Clark in trying to dodge it struck his head against the side of the building, knocking his hat off, and sending his head forward as the rod struck him. The blow was a glancing one, but the scalp was torn open, and Mr. Clark was rendered unconscious for a moment. He received prompt and kind attention from Mr. and Mrs. Myers, and was subsequently taken to Dr. Carman's, where the wound was dressed. Had the point of the rod struck a square blow penetration of the skull and instant death must have resulted.

The Third Railway Death in the Family.

Wesley Levers, the Elizabethport brakeman who was mangled by the cars at Bound Brook, Monday night, died at Muhlenberg Hospital in the afternoon. He was the third member of his family to meet with death by a railway accident. A fourth had both legs cut off below the knees, but survived the injury, and is now working as a flagman at the Elizabethport station.

The Fate of Wesley Levers.

The Elizabeth Journal gives the following account of the accident which cost Wesley Levers, of Elizabeth, his life:

Levers was one of the crew of conductor John Lang's freight train, and the accident which resulted in his death took place at about 9 o'clock in the morning. He was operating on a brake, and the brake broke, causing him to fall under the cars.

One of his legs was cut off, and the other mangled. His body also was contused and bruised. He was still conscious when picked up, and was taken to the Muhlenberg Hospital at Plainfield. His brother and other members of his family were notified and reached his bedside some time before he expired. He was conscious before his death.

Levers came to Plainfield to his late home Monday evening in charge of undertaker August F. Schmidt, who is arranging for the funeral service.

Levers was twenty-one years of age, and an estimable young man, held in high regard by the railway officials and all acquainted with him. He was unmarried, and was a member of Court Advance, Ancient Order of Foresters.

The family moved in recent years from Rahway. The sad members have been well known as railway men, and two others, brothers of Wesley, were killed by the cars. An older brother had both legs cut off by the cars some years ago, and is now a resident of this city.

The grief of the family over this new affliction is intense, and the home on Fulton street is the scene of the most gloomy sorrow.

—The Water Supply Company have now more than ten miles of pipe laid and in perfect condition, ready to have the water from their big stand-pipe turned on.

The surrounding country likewise is to be fed. Hydrants have been placed at Scotch Plains, Fanwood, Westfield, Mountainville, Grant avenue, Terrill road, Woodland avenue, Plainfield avenue, Somerset street, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Watchung avenue, Grove street, Central avenue, Second street, Front street, Liberty street, Seventh avenue, Sixth avenue, Fifth avenue, Fourth avenue, Third avenue, Second

MIDSUMMER STYLES.

This Is a Season When Women Look Interesting.

They Wear Neat Hats and Flower Bow-nodes and Blossom-Covered Hats and Hip Flounces and Pasture-Ons Dames at the Races.

[COPYRIGHT, 1891.]

I like to go about this summer because people look so interesting. That is a very different thing, as you know, from saying they look beautiful. In fact, they don't look beautiful, because hip flounces and small ruffles are not commonly becoming; but the flower bonnets, and the shot silks and the blossom-covered hats and the parasols and the parasols are certainly interesting.

May I say I went to the races yesterday? Didn't I? and I really behaved very well. When I didn't look at the horses I looked at the women, and they seemed to be wearing either peach-blossom or yellow muslins with pale blue velvet trimmings. Their hats were circled with rich ruchings of lace or satin or chiffon with high algrettes and tufts of feathers.

Near me there sat a slim, dark individual, who smiled and exerted herself to be pleasant to everybody who spoke to her. Her dress was a silvery gray trimmed with wild roses cut out in velvet and with garlands of embroidered foliage. The bodice was rather a curious one, with suspenders of artificial flowers, forming a V in front and behind. The sleeves and the broad flounces about the skirt were of black lace, and the hat which completed a very pretty toilet was of gray straw, with rose wreaths and green leaves. I have told you about the toilet, and yet it was not the toilet that especially interested me. The dark, slim woman had said or observed her amiability in spite of it, but when a businesslike blonde who was flock, cool and starched and waved it and stood on her feet and got excited, the little brunette in gray and rose color turned about in her place four ten seconds, and said something that sounded suspiciously like "I hate you." The blonde smiled.

The frock the artist has sketched for you was worn by a woman with eyes like a Jersey calf's; that is to say, handsomer than the average run of eyes. Its fabric was a shot silk of buff yellow, with a hint of green. Large twigs with small brown cones were printed upon it, but the feature of the dress was its lavish use of velvet ribbon to trim the bodice. Five ribbons were wide, and they wore of a deep brown; they crossed upon the back, coming over the shoulders and under the arms and joining company between the shoulder blades in a great bow. There was more velvet at the waist, and it, too, had knotted, matching the upper knots and ends. This flowered dress opened behind over an under dress of brown silk, and in the light pleatings. It was worn with wrinkled muslin sleeves and with a brown muslin hat trimmed with the velvet, brown velvet and yellow feathers.

MIDSUMMER MILLINERY.

It makes one feel as if midsummer were really approaching to see what an amount there is of muslin yellow. It flaunts everywhere in flowers and in ribbons; it is, even in the modest adjustment of a finish, upon a large lot of horsehair lace. The hat was white but its ribbons were of corn yellow and very wide; they were edged with gold embroidery.

I noted it again in a dress of soft snake-colored muslin, made up over a foundation of silk of the same tone. The muslin had pale yellow and deep crimson nasturtiums printed upon it, their flaming tones toned down by their spend white-like leaves. The dress was tucked, and between the tucks ran rows of yellow moire ribbon, of lighter tint than the print. The front of the overskirt had a broad flounce of the pale coffee-colored lace that is the latest mania and is called Marie-Amelie; this was shirred over five plaitings of yellow muslin, and was almost to the narrow watered ribbons that gathered the front and tied in small bows, in imitation of a peasant bodice, in the middle of the corsage. The wearer of this muslin wore also a deep, corn-yellow straw hat, turned up behind in front with yellow feathers. A twisted garland of nasturtiums was set about the crown, and the brim was faced with lace under a parasol of corn-yellow muslin, shirred and edged with a flounce of the soft-colored lace and reflected in a handle of gold and enamel.

This morning I have been watching shepherds' tennis players; not for the tennis, for the practice games are not thrilling, but for the joy of the light young figures and the pretty faces and the gay colors and fluttering ribbons. Some of the girls were flowered costumes cut on the cross and literally folded about the figure over a deep yoke of lace. Others wore bodices gathered from neck to waist with the flimsy fabric frilling out around the hips, and with wide ribbons fastened about the arm to cross in front and at the back and to lie in a big bow with long ends that fluttered in the breeze and were tremendously in the way.

One slim brown girl wore pink holland, laid in narrow plaits from waist to feet, and having a soft, unstarched holland shirt with pink and white striped frills.

Dresses of state and ceremony are wonderfully tabbed and laced and embroidered. I do not tell you of half a dozen that passed me within as many minutes. Twenty-third street swept bright, breezy afternoon. There came a green and white muslin, trimmed with pale green and white net ribbons. There followed it a pink canvas frock striped with pale blue velvet ribbons and worn with a hat in gold lace straw with blue velvet bows.

After this approached a simple gown of gray diagonal cloth with smart coat fastening with three buttons over a waistcoat of white drill. The small straw hat was trimmed with gray ribbons and white wings.

Hard after it walked a pearl-colored foulard dress striped with peacock blue, and this was accompanied by a black grenadine embroidered with small pink and green flowers and worn over a silk of the same color. The corsage was laced behind and fulled head. Now fold a handkerchief and draw it over and around the head, thus arranged in a point in front, and the transformation is complete.

A TENNIS DRESS.

THE OLD WOMAN.

Fly across the room and thumb a very indicrous expression like a mumbling pantomime is obtained.

Try it on a friend and see if the little one does not crow with delight and insist on its frequent repetition.—N. Y. Herald.

Almost Long Enough.

The prince of Wales is a direct descendant of King Alfred, being the thirty-third great-grandson; thus the English throne has remained in the same family for over one thousand years.

Amazing Ina.

Ethel—Bosbod I'm sure that Charlie doesn't love me any more.

Maud—What makes you think so?

Ethel—Why, we haven't had a quarrel for four or five days.—Kearney's Weekly.

Only Possible.

Mamma—Can you pretend to think of me often while he is away?

Ethel—Did he really? I had no idea he was going to be away at all.—Chicago Saturday Evening Herald.

Evidently Conclusive.

Dumbbell—Miss Gumbell looked at me deprecatingly. Do you suppose she—

Hunnish—What did she do that for?

Dumbell (sadly)—I suppose she didn't want to see me.—Puck.

READY FOR NEWPORT.

Polo Players in Readiness for the Next Meeting.

The Newport Course to Come Off Next Month—Something About the Personnel of the Players—Notes of the Event.

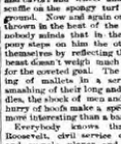
[COPYRIGHT, 1891.]

Now that the preliminary heats are settled at Roslevelt, Westchester, Rockaway Beach and other country club centers, the polo players of the entire country are in readiness for the great struggle of games to be played in Newport on the grounds of the Westchester Polo club between the 17th and the 25th of next month. One of these contests will decide the possession of the Newport cups for the year of 1891, an event of special interest, as it is played without handicap and will be won by the strongest team in America.

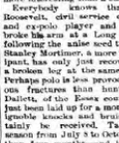
If there is any misinformed individual who really thinks that the rich young men of the country are going to the dogs for lack of courage and physical vigor he ought to see a few polo games. It would do him good. Polo is the rich man's game. A poor man can't stand the expense of the bonnets and the traveling. The heirs of many millions meet and cavort and wheel and plunge and scuffle on the spongy turf of the Polo ground. Now and again one of them is thrown in the heat of the turmoil, but nobody minds that in the least. If a pony steps on him the others console themselves by reflecting that the little beast doesn't weigh much and pros on for the coveted goal. The quick swinging of mallets in a scrimmage, the shouting of their long and tender handles, the shock of men and ponies and hurry of hoofs make a spectacle rather more interesting than a baseball match.

Everybody knows that Theodore Roosevelt, civil service commissioner and cupolo player and fox hunter, broke his arm at a Long Island race following the sailor seed trail, and that Stanley Mortimer, a more recent participant, has only just recovered from a broken leg at the same rough sport. Perhaps polo is less provocative of serious fractures than hunting. Dalzell, of the Essex county club, has just been laid up for a month, but more ignoble knocks and bruises must certainly be received. Take the long season from July 3 to October 18—more than four months—and in the almost continuous games of the different series a very large number of minor accidents are expected as a matter of course. A resurrection of the old fashion of rally in the games at the Meadow Brook club's grounds when two out of the eight players, Mr. Cowden and Mr. Beeckman, were down almost at the same moment. But, however much these accidents might frighten the timid, the polo players will probably live longer than dry goods clerks, besides enjoying themselves much better while they do live.

AT THE RACES.



W. BUTTERFORD ON "WHITE WINGS."



T. HITCHCOCK, JR., ON "CHEERIO."

Polo playing is a very exclusive sport. The onlookers are always comparatively few and subscribers to the American Polo association includes 15 clubs, probably all that exist in the country. How many individual members this may represent is hard to say, some of the clubs being much larger than others, but it is certain that the number of active players is far below 500. They are much less than the five hundred. Fat and elderly gentlemen can follow the hounds with a reasonable degree of circumspection, but they have no business in the polo field. So the number of players is few, but they make up for that fact by the display of a surprising amount of energy.

Of all the players Foxhall Keene, or "Foxy," as he is called, stands all over as a "gentleman jockey" in steeple chases, and is known on the race track as the owner of Tremont and other crack horses. Keene is light and athletic in build, a perfect devil on horseback for laring and an adept at the device of the umpire—"no fence" they call him in polo—with as much vigor as big Capt. Sloane, of the Meadow Brook. He is handicapped at ten goals in playing match games.

Keene belongs to the Rockaway polo club, which is perhaps as strong an organization as any in the country. He is ably supported by John F. Cowden, handicapped at eight goals, Jack Cheever and Willy Buckhout, with L. J. Rourke, J. S. Stevens, A. C. Tower and W. La Montagne as clever players of second class.

The Winchester club is distinctly inferior to the Rockaways. Its crack player is Capt. Sloane, both of the Knickerbocker stock. A young player of the Winchesters who is showing in remarkable form this year is Mr. C. P. Bates. Theodore A. Havemeyer, Jr., son of the great sugar trust magnate, is another crack player, and L. C. Potter usually makes with these teams of four who play well together.

Capt. Sloane, of the Gotham brooks, is another crack, officially handicapped at six goals. Capt. August Belmont had two—one went in for politics, and the other for sport. Both are very good players, and Perry Belmont, Jr., was active both in political campaigns and on the turf. T. Hitchcock, handicapped at eight goals, is another of the Meadowbrook team. O. W. Bird, a director, of the national association, and Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., second third, and R. D. Winthrop the fourth. Playing without handicaps the Rockaway team, captained by Keene and Cowden, is probably the best in the country. Two other experts about New York are P. P. Pitcairn, of Keene's team, and Payne Whitney, Jr.,

The Constitutionalist,
A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.
W. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE, Editors and Proprietors.
AT PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY.
TERMS—TWO DOLLARS & YEAR:

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXIV. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, AUGUST 18, 1891. No. 33.

"Support the Constitution, which is the cement of the Union, as well in its limitations as in its authorities."—MADISON.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

JACKSON & CODDINGTON,
Counsellors-at-Law,
Commissioners of Deeds, Masters-in-Chancery, Notaries Public, Offices corner of Park avenue and Second street.

GEORGE W. DAY,
General Auctioneer,
Sales of Personal Property solicited. P. O. Box 155, Dunellen, N. J., or address in care of Constitutionalist. Terms reasonable.

DR. CHARLES E. THEIS,
Dentist,
32 West Front street. A new and painless application for extracting teeth without pain. Gold filling a specialty.—1m51

H. HAND,
Auctioneer,
P. O. Address, Lock Box 71, Scotch Plains, N. J. Orders may be left at Dr. Turrell's, opposite Post Office, West Front street, Plainfield, N. J., will receive prompt attention.—1m51

OSCAR S. TEALE,
Architect,
147 Broadway, New York city, Rooms 19 and 20, (Importers' and Traders' Bank Building.) Residence, Plainfield, N. J.—jm51

BUSINESS CARDS.

P. P. VAN ARSDALE,
PIANO TUNER,
Instruments put in thorough order. Terms reasonable. Pianos and Organs for sale and to let, or rent by month. P. O. Box 139 or leave at Wilson's Music Store, No. 6 North Avenue, Plainfield. Mail P. O. connected, corner 9th street.—27y1877

JOHN CHANDLER,
JAPANNER AND BUILDER.
Plainfield, N. J.
Residence Addison, No. 26 East 3d St.
Painting promptly attended to. apr4y

T. J. GILLIES,
Auctioneer & Real Estate Agent.
SALESROOM—Madison Avenue, near Front (181 Madison Av.)
Goods received on consignment.

WM. B. RANDOLPH,
(Successor to H. B. Maynard.)
PRACTICAL BARBER
AND Artistic Hair Dresser,
No. 20 PARK AVENUE,
Ladies' and Children's Hair-Cutting done at their residence if desired. Shampooing, &c., satisfactorily performed (17y1

TO THE PUBLIC!

We wish to inform our customers and the public generally that we have on hand the best quality of

LEHIGH COAL,
Fresh from the Mines.

It is under cover and well protected from the weather. We are prepared to deliver it well screened and in good order promptly. We are also prepared to furnish all kinds of Seasoned Lumber and Mason' Materials at short Notice.

A. D. COOK & BRO.
1m51

J. Hervey Doane,
6 PARK AVENUE.
[Formerly Clerk's.]
Watches,
Clocks
And Jewelry.
Repairing neatly and promptly done. 42tf

FOR
BEAUTIFUL DESIGNS
In Furniture
GO TO
23, 25 and 27 PARK AVE.
Garret Q. Packer,
SANITARY PLUMBING,
Brick and Portable Furnaces,
GAS FITTING,
TIN ROOFING,
Etc., Etc.
I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class, sanitary and workmanlike manner.
Having associated myself with the Master Plumbers Association of New York City, I can now make but first-class mechanics and non-union men. I will not knowingly employ the latter. Estimates will cause cheerfully given.
D. W. LITTELL,
No. 8 NORTH AVE. corner Plainfield, N. J.

GEORGE A. MOORE,
(Of the late firm of Moore Bros.)
Is now the sole proprietor of the old stand (tobacconist stacked at
NO. 14 NORTH AVENUE,
Where he will continue to supply patrons with the finest goods in the Fresh and Salt Meats,
Fish of all kinds, Oysters, Clams, Game in season, etc. Also Lowney's Boston Cream Candies.
Anything not usually kept in stock, furnished on short notice. 4m51

HOTELS AND SALOONS.

FORCE'S HOTEL,
NORTH AVENUE, (NEAR D. L. & W. STATION.)
JAS. H. FORCE, Prop'r.
A FIRST-CLASS FAMILY HOTEL. Steam Heat. First-class Plumbing.
Transient guests at reasonable rates. 10-31-tf

SOMERSET HOTEL,
Corner Somerset and Daily Streets,
SOMERVILLE, N. J.
RICHARD A. SOYER, Prop'r.
Permanent and transient board at fair rates. First-class cuisine and table always cool. Meals at all reasonable hours.

Dime Savings Institution
OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest at the rate of three (3) per cent. per annum payable semi-annually.
JOHN W. MURRAY, President.
WILLIAM WHITE, Vice "
NATHAN BARKER, "
ELIAS B. POPE, Treasurer. ap51

Jas. M. Dunn,
Dealer in
GROCERIES, PROVISIONS,
Vegetables, Fruits, etc.
No. 36 Park Ave.
OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.
THORBURN & CO'S GARDEN SEEDS, SENT IN THE WORLD.
ALL GOODS DELIVERED FREE OF CHARGE.
1m51

L. S. WOOLSTON. J. F. BUCKLE
Woolston & Buckle,
PAINTERS,
Wall Papers,
PAINTERS' SUPPLIES. 30 NORTH AVENUE
ap51

MISCELLANEOUS

LEWIS B. CODDINGTON,
(Successor to T. J. Carey.)
Furniture and Freight Express!
OFFICE—34 W. FRONT ST.
Large Covered Vans or Trucks. Goods delivered to any part of the U. S. Satisfaction guaranteed. Charges reasonable. P. O. Box 276. Piano moving a specialty. 1195

CANOPIES
For Weddings, Parties, Etc.,
TO HIRE. CHARGES REASONABLE
Hugo Weigman,
20 EAST FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD, N. J. m1365

ADRIANCE
Buckeye Mowers
AND REAPERS, Agricultural Machinery
Depot.
Gasoline Stoves, Refrigerators,
Tinware and Plumbing.
A. M. GRIFFEN,
13 East Front Street.
TELEPHONE CALL, 6. 11-13-tf

SPEER'S
GRAPE WINES,
ALSO
UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.
Used in the principal churches for communion. Excellent for families, weakly persons and the aged.

Speer's Port Grape Wine,
FOUR YEARS OLD.
THIS Celebrated Wine is the pure juice of the Cloud ripe Catawba Grape, grown in Speer's vineyards, and left long until very shrunk and thoroughly matured. Highly recommended for invalids.
Tonic and Strengthening Properties are unsurpassed by any other Wine. Being pure, and entirely free from Brandy or other spirits, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed by the Faculty, Hospitals and Boards of Health who have examined it. The youngest child and the most delicate female can take it with safety. It is particularly beneficial to the aged and debilitated and suited to the various ailments that affect the weak sex.
SPEER'S WINES ARE TO BE RELIED ON in every instance.
Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice
Is the Juice of the Catawba Grape, preserved in its natural fresh, sweet state as it runs from the press. It contains all the medicinal properties of the fruit, including the nutritious matter and fermentation. It is highly recommended by Physicians, Hospitals and Boards of Health, and is particularly beneficial to the aged and debilitated and suited to the various ailments that affect the weak sex.
Speer's Extra Dry Catawba Wine
Is a Wine of superior character, and partakes of the rich qualities of the Grape from which it is made. Speer's P. J. Brandy
Is a PURE distillation of the grape, and stands unrivalled in this country for medicinal purposes. It has a peculiar delicacy of flavor, arising from the fine grapes from which it is distilled.
For sale by leading druggists of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., or at the cost of such dealers.
SOLD BY GROCERS WHO KEEP FIRST CLASS WINES. 6-6-y

Livery Stables!
Mr. D. S. ROBERTS
Has Removed to His New Building on
NORTH AVENUE,
Adjoining Force's Hotel. Mr. Roberts will always be found ready and able to answer demands for all kinds of turn-outs in the livery, and whether one or a dozen are needed at a few hours' notice. Mr. Theodore Anderson to manage specially. 4y

Accommodation Express.
PETER RICKERT, Proprietor.
Office—Vanderbeek's Stables, Parkavenue
The Accommodation Express will attend to the passengers carrying business of the city, delivering goods of Baggage to and from the Depot, or from place to place. Moving of Furniture, Pianos, &c., with care is carefully Promptly attended to. 1m51 Orders

INSURANCE.

WILLIAM A. WOODRUFF,
FIRE AND LIFE
INSURANCE AGENT,
Office cor. Front St. and Park Ave.,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Real Estate for Sale & Exchange.
MONEY TO LOAN
On Approved Security.
1m51

J. C. Pope & Co.,
GENERAL AGENTS OF THE
German American Ins. Co.,
of New York.
Also represent other first-class Fire assurance Companies. Agents of the Home Mutual Life Ins. Co. Dratton Ireland for Sale. First and City National Bank Stock Bought and Sold. Also,
BUILDING LOTS
And Other Real Estate for sale.
OFFICE:
6 E. FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD.
JAMES C. POPE. ELIAS B. POPE

Fresh Garden Seeds
AND FERTILIZERS,
Farm and Garden Implements,
Lawn Mowers Refrigerators,
Ice Cream Freezers,
Gasoline Stoves. Hardware, Tools, etc.
J. J. HEIDELOFF,
No. 19 Somerset St. 6-15-tf

EDUCATIONAL.

NEW JERSEY
State Normal & Model Schools,
TRENTON, N. J.
Fall Term Will Commence MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 14.
The Normal School gives a thorough professional education, including the Model preparatory for business, the drawing-room or college. Total expenses, including board, for the year in the Normal, $156 to $160 per year; at the Model, $200 per year. Building for young men and young women. Instruction elegantly furnished, provided with baths, &c.
For further particulars address
JAS. M. GREEN, President,
Trenton, N. J.
7 29 1w

Miss SCRIBNER
AND
Miss NEWTON'S
SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
AND KINDERGARTEN,
17 LaGrande Avenue.
CORNER OF WASHINGTON STREET,
Will reopen WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 17, 1890.
The regular course will include Modelling, Drawing and Sewing. 7 11 tf

PAINTERS & PAINTERS' SUPPLIES

Paints, Varnishes, Glass.
WINDOW SHADES AND FIXTURES.
WALL PAPERS!
PAPER HANGING A SPECIALTY.
A. SWALM,
No. 6 North Avenue, Plainfield.
m1365

Grates and Bricks for all Kinds of Stove s can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your Tinware mending to us. The best Tinners, the best Plumbers, and the best Gas fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction.

Keys of All Kinds are Made Here.

Tinware Made to Order.

Ranges, Brick and
Portable Furnaces
SANITARY PLUMBING.

TOBACCO, SEGARS, &c.

H. EGGERDING,
No. 17 Park Avenue,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Manufacturer of the Celebrated
C. O. D. CIGAR.
The most delicate cut in the State, and made entirely from the choicest tobacco.
CUBA HAVANA SEGARS A SPECIALTY.
A Representative of the Choicest Brands of Foreign and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobaccos always on hand.
Smokers Articles in Great Variety.
1m51

C. M. FINE,
Dealer in HAVANA & DOMEST'C
—SEGARS!—
No. 18 PARK AVE., (NEXT DOOR TO RECORD ST.)
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Tobaccos and Snuffs in all materials, of every description.
The renowned "Old Judge" Smoking Tobacco, with other corporations and specialties always on hand. 4m52

A. WOLFF,
Manufacturer of
CIGARS,
And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles, has removed from No. 9 West Front street to No. 7 West Front, one door east of Madison avenue, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally. 4 2 m3

CARNEY BROS., Ag'ts,
7 WEST FRONT ST.
TINNERS,
PLUMBERS,
GAS FITTERS.
PARLOR STOVES,
COOK STOVES,
HEATERS.

Repairing Done Promptly.

FOR TIME.

Oh! for time, and time's delight,
To check the world's fresh flight;
To find the evening's cool, hush'd hour,
To watch the grass of flowers and leaves,
To see the sun's last rays,
To hear the chimes that nature weaves
In the still woods.

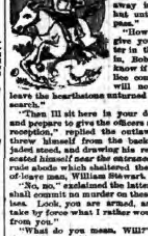
Oh! for time for thoughtful food
For the good even's quietude,
For the sense of a lasting deed,
Or act not that is just or true;
Oh! for time to do good deeds,
Wherever easy to the mood,
Or this close earth with flowers and shrubs,
No other day shall dawn.

Oh! for time, in the rose and the rose,
The beauty of earth and sky to trace,
And the sweetness of human love,
To retain the still and passing thing,
To catch the tone of the voice,
And store our hand as we go along;
That we may not lose the way.

—J. A. Kennedy, in Leslie's Weekly.

CAPTURED AN OUTLAW.

While Carrying Glad News to a Ticket-of-Leave Man.



"I'LL GIVE THE OFFICERS A WARM RECEPTION."

H, WILL, the bloods have got Bob Fletcher, the bushranger, this time, and unless you can stow me away in your cart I'm done for," they pass."

"How can I give you shelter in the cabin, when they know if the police come they will not search it?"

"I'll sit here in your doorway and prepare to give the officers a warm reception," replied the outlaw as he blew himself from the back of his jaded steed, and drawing his revolvers seated himself near the entrance to the cabin and awaited the arrival of the ticket-of-leave man, William Stewart.

"No, no," exclaimed the latter; "you shall commit no murder on these premises. Look, you are armed, and may take by force what I rather would keep from you."

"What do you mean, Will?" asked the robber quickly.

"I mean," replied the other, thoughtfully, "that Black Duke, the fleetest horse between sea coast and Hell's Gate, is feeding in the shed back of the hut. Your weapons are loaded, you are a desperate man, and, mark me, I prevent you if you see fit to take the animal!"

"By heavens, Will, I understand you," exclaimed the bushranger, as he grasped the hand of the ticket-of-leave man; "and believe me, the time will come when you will have occasion to thank God that you extended a hand to help," and the outlaw dashed the reveles of his spurs into the horse's side and rode rapidly away.

Scarcely had the hoof-beat of Black Duke died away than a cloud of dust arose from the direction of the metropolis, out of which soon appeared a company of mounted police. Dashing up to the hut the leader called:

"Ah, Stewart, where is that rascal, Fletcher? Important, I say; for there is his horse that we have chased these ten miles."

"Yes, pleasant, that is the bushranger's horse, but the man has gone."

"Which way? Where? How?"

"He forced the Duke from his section and rode away on his back, sir."

"That!" exclaimed the officer; "did the villain steal your horse?" Why did you not shoot him dead?"

"Because I was unarmed."

"A likely story," returned the lieutenant, angrily. "But we must go after him. Here, you have insulted me, and mind that you do not let the ticket-of-leave man out of your sight. And you," continued the chief of police, "you think yourself lucky if you do not see the inside of the hulks again for this piece of work."

The lieutenant was destined, however, to be unsuccessful, and returned to the sheep-herder's hut empty-handed.

"If I did not think that you were a square man, Stewart," he remarked, as he threw himself from his horse, "I should suspect it my duty to take you back to Melbourne."

"Lieutenant," answered Stewart, "I can readily see why it is my conduct looks strange to you; but if you yourself were forced to live here alone in these wilds, you would think twice before you made a mortal enemy of a bushranger."

"Well, well, perhaps I should," replied the officer; "but get us something to eat and we'll say no more about it."

Some six months after the escape of Bob Fletcher we were born again, but this time he is surrounded by a dozen or more members of his former band. Yet all the items which are noted by the camp-fire do not belong to robbery; two, at least, are jealous, and one is exceedingly lovely. The latter is seated side by side on a trunk, while about them are scattered shoes and stockings, with their contents of wearing apparel and toilet articles.

Near them, lying on the ground, are the two men whom we were born again, but this time he is surrounded by a dozen or more members of his former band. Yet all the items which are noted by the camp-fire do not belong to robbery; two, at least, are jealous, and one is exceedingly lovely. The latter is seated side by side on a trunk, while about them are scattered shoes and stockings, with their contents of wearing apparel and toilet articles.

Near them, lying on the ground, are the two men whom we were born again.

"Ladies," began Fletcher, as he approached the two women, "I am sorry to trouble you, but I must take a look into the trunk."

"Oh, sir," answered the younger of the two, "it does contain a lawyer; a treasure of countless value, not only to your poor, but also to the one for whose life has, alas, been all too sad."

The maiden took from her neck a golden chain, to which was suspended a key, and handed both to the bandit.

As the top were a few articles of feminine clothing, which the bushranger removed with somewhat more delicacy than might have been expected in one of his stamp.

Suddenly he started, rose almost to his feet, then with a quick, hurried look from his attendant's grasp, while he exclaimed in a hoarse voice:

"Go follow your comrades and tell them to stop all further search for our protection," he who disobeys dies by my hand. Go!"

Then turning to his two frightened captives who stood near, the outlaw continued:

"Women, come hither and tell me whose likeness is that," and the bandit pointed to a large photograph of a fine-looking youngman.

"It is the picture of him whom you are this night to despoil of his deserved treasure, proof of the innocence of a crime of which he was charged, but which he labored three many years."

"The same, I say!" exclaimed the bushranger.

"It is written in his own hand on the back of the picture."

As the robber turned the outlaw he read: "Yours, with unchanging love, William Stewart."

For a moment the outlaw remained silent, gazing at the signature, then he returned the likeness to its place in the trunk, and to his disguise he said in a voice hearty with emotion:

"Ladies, I beg you will forgive me for the heartaches you have received from me and my band. To the original of that picture I owe my life. A friend of his, or one who could best speak his name, shall ever find safety and kindly treatment at the hands of Bob Fletcher, the bushranger."

"WHOSE LIKENESS IS THAT?"

Before the fair women could recover from their surprise their captor had drawn the keen blade of his knife across the bonds which had secured their fellow-prisoners, and in a voice that rang from time to time in ordered his band to replace every article as they had found it, and load all again into the wagon from which they had been taken.

Though much surprised, the robbers did not dare to question the order of their chief, but obeyed in sullen silence.

As the sun began to gild the tree tops a heavy covered wagon, drawn by two yoke of oxen, halted before the cabin of William Stewart, the ticket-of-leave man.

The sturdy driver was just coiling up the long lash of his whip when he was joined by those who were traveling in his company, two ladies and three men. One of the latter was mounted on a horse whose glossy hair was black as midnight. As the elder drew rein he called in a cheery voice:

"Oh, Will Stewart! Come, I've brought you back the Duke that you so kindly loaned me some months since."

While the outlaw was speaking he had dismounted and assisted one of the ladies to do likewise. It was the younger and handsomer of the two, and as her delicate foot touched the ground she raised her veil, and turning said in a low voice:

"William! have you forgotten me?"

For a moment the ex-convict and the brave girl stood, lost to all the world, when their bliss was broken in upon by heavy hoof-beats hurrying toward them. Looking up the party descried a body of police.

"Ah, Will, you see," coolly remarked Fletcher, "you see they are after me."

"But there is the Duke, mount Mount him and escape," said Stewart.

"No, no, my friend," exclaimed the bushranger. "It must come sooner or later. I will meet my fate like a man."

And drawing his weapons from his belt he dropped them to the ground. Then folding his arms across his chest he walked forward to meet the officers.

It was a singular group that breakfasted that morning at the hut of the ticket-of-leave man, for during his men to secure their prisoner, the lieutenant hurried toward the sheep-herder, exclaiming gayly:

"Good news, friend Stewart, good news! We have just received word from Melbourne that you were innocent of the crime for which you were transported."

"Ah, lieutenant, you are a tardy bearer of such news. This lady has enlightened you, and captured a lawless ranger into the bargain."—Boston Globe.

A Woman's Heart.

Myers—Do you think Angie loves me? Tomson—Well, I'll tell you how you can find out. You go across the room and begin to flirt with Miss Purple-blom. If Angie gets mad and looks daggers at you, you might as well hang up your saddle-bags all on the surface; but if she appears as calm as a June morning and smiles like an angel, her heart is yours. Try it and I'll watch.—Life.

A New Feature.

Summer Boarder—How is this? You advertised that your place contained the most novel attraction in the country. You have nothing here but a grove of trees—nothing but charred stumps.

Landlord Grabbem—Yes, sir—yes, sir—most novel attraction ever offered. Here's where the great forest fire was.—Good News.

New the Fashion Plate.

Mother—I am sure that if your husband saw that beautiful fashion plate that came with the last magazine he would get you one of those charming costumes right off.

Daughter—He did—see—it.

"Did he? What did he say?"

"He said 'What lovely faces!'"—N. Y. Weekly.

A Total Loss.

Hotel Clerk—You know the artist that was in 640 and killed himself. I'm afraid we shall have to charge up his bill to profit and loss.

Proprietor—Why, didn't he leave a lot of pictures?

Hotel Clerk—Yes; but they were not framed.—Judge.

A Philanthropist in Boston.

Mrs. Beacon Streete—Had we better invite the Finsons? Mr. Finson's father was in trade, you know.

Miss Minerva—But trade of a most refined character, you know. He dealt in nothing but spectacles.—Indianapolis Journal.

Taking It Literally.

Garson—Take effect?

Mr. Jaggers—What's that?

Garson—Ze regulaire course dinner.

Mr. Jaggers—Well, I want nothin' course. I'm in York for a time, and I want the finest you got.—Judge.

Not to Be Trusted.

Wife—I met an angel for Dr. Killman. You said some one recommended him highly.

Sick Husband—I don't want him, dearest. The man who recommended him is an undertaker.—Jury.

Just in His Line.

"Say, 'Rastus, what's this I hear about your wantin' t' be nominated for the legislature. What you goin' t' do of you get there?"

"Oh 'pointed on one dem w'ite washin' committees."—Puck.

It All Depends.

Rowse de Rood—I thought Miss Upham-Upham was very particular. I should think you would wear a dress suit to call on her.

Upton Downe—You wouldn't if you saw the suit.—Puck.

Very Dressy.

Minks—This bank building doesn't seem at all cold, and yet most of the stone was quarried here.

Jinks—Good many drafts here, you know.—Good News.

"Use name, I say!" sis named" exclaimed the bushranger.

Economical.

Mrs. Hicks—My husband was awfully close this morning, but I'll get even with him.

Mrs. Dix—How?

Mrs. Hicks—I'll put a mustard plaster on him to-night.—Munsey's Weekly.

A Sad Fellow.

Bankrupt (to his wife)—Well, it's no use! I'm ruined.

His Wife—Is it as bad as that?

"Yes; all is gone but honor, and there isn't much of that left."—Puck.

ELLA DIETZ CLYMER.

Actress, Poet and Advocate of Woman's Privileges.

A Lady Who Attracts Considerable Attention—Her Personality and Popularity—The Opinions of Others—Her Views on the Advanced Thinker.

In the ranks of advanced woman thinkers and reformers, there is no person more brilliant, more typical, and more apt type of the popular woman of the day than that of Ella Dietz Clymer—actress, poet, philanthropist, advocate of woman's privileges and rights, and withal a womanly woman in dress and deportment.

In appearance, says the New York Sun, Mrs. Clymer has a beauty which is picturesque quaintness of attire enhances. Wonderfully expressive brown eyes look out from beneath a low brow, on which fair wavy hair rests lightly. In the soft, dull lavender and gray gowns she affects, with the silver chatelaine at the waist and lace at the wrists, she looks as if she might have stepped from some antique picture.

In personality she has the dignity and graciousness of the grande dame of the old régime. There is nothing masculine or aggressive, never raising the tone of the clear voice that rings through the shrill chatter of women's gatherings, she forms a happy contrast to the poseuse, dictatorial type so prevalent among the leaders of the woman movement. She is said to be the best parliamentarian of any woman, and could have seen her marshaling the excited factions of Somali in array understand the rules governed her actions.

One of the secrets of Mrs. Clymer's success as a reformer is perhaps that, unlike her predecessors, she does not affect the brusqueness of masculinity demanding consideration and attention, but rather, with that subtle feminine sense of woman, appeals most potently to her hearers. Her first efforts in this direction were devoted to the uplifting of the dramatic profession, which she envisaged with serious mind deficiency of constitution prevented her from fulfilling its exactions. According to her theories the stage should be subsidized by the government and made available to the masses, to whom it must stand in the relation of teacher of ethics rather than as an amusement, and the calling of the actor should be considered as second to that of the priest. Religion should espouse the cause of the stage, and the actor should be consulted in the salvation of the people from intemperance and vice. Of course women could have dreamed anything so poetical. As Pauline, Rosalind, Juliet and Portia recite she was accustomed in her poetical and imaginative characterizations, and when failing strength made acting impossible she began to turn attention to writing. Her books were all published in London during her residence abroad, and are not as well known here as among English critics. Among the most important are "The Triumph of Love," "The Triumph of Time" and "The Triumph of Life."

ELLA DIETZ CLYMER.

Mrs. Clymer's club life began with the inception of Sorosis, of whose first executive committee she and Phoebe Cary were members, the same incorporation she was instrumental. She has been ever an active and capable member of the club, was its president for two years, and is now the vice president. Very rarely does anyone hear from her any of the radical doctrines promulgated by the aggressive agitators for woman's equality, but when some one said to her she had left the "Cause" not one of those masculine reformers, I hope," she answered very decidedly but intelligibly:

"I am a reformer to some extent, though I hope that the consequences have not ceased to be womanly. My life has chiefly been devoted to literary and artistic pursuits, but I am in close sympathy with some of the reform movements. I have always believed since I have been old enough to think that woman should take her share of responsibility in helping govern her country, and I think woman's broader sphere of usefulness to-day is the result of the agitation caused by the noble pioneer women who claimed the right of every woman to help frame the laws under which she lives. I cannot see how this country can ever attain the standard which our forefathers raised up for us unless woman's influence shall be brought to bear in some way upon the political life of the nation. I am not a believer in the 'new woman' as my own, woman needs to be recognized as part of the organized force in political life. My temperament being artistic, my active energies have been expended in the direction of art and literature; but I love my country, and will not be think of many problems that are to-day affecting its welfare, and I hold decided opinions as to most of them."

A Curious Calculation.

One concern at Waterville, Me., made 18,000,000 yards of cotton goods last year, and a Maine newspaper figures that the cloth would make a tent that would cover every man, woman and child the people of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts comfortably and still make a tent for each family in the center. In that ring the 54,000 horses of Maine could be exhibited at one time without crowding.

How It Happened.

Penscratch—I had two jokes in the Howler this week.

Friend—You needn't think anyone read them!

"There's where you are wrong; everybody read them. The printer put them in upside down."—Jury.

A Blessed Hope.

He (affianced to the widow)—How embarrassing it must be when we die, to meet your first husband!

The Widow—Possibly, my dear, you and the assisted dead will abide in different regions. That is my hope.—Munsey's Weekly.

The Old Habit Clung.

"Chollie can't get over his old dry goods habits now that he's in real estate."

"What has he done now?"

"Sold a man a house the other day and asked him if he wanted it sent."—Judge.

Ill-Equipped.

Mrs. Hicks—My husband was awfully close this morning, but I'll get even with him.

Mrs. Dix—How?

Mrs. Hicks—I'll put a mustard plaster on him to-night.—Munsey's Weekly.

A Sad Fellow.

Bankrupt (to his wife)—Well, it's no use! I'm ruined.

His Wife—Is it as bad as that?

"Yes; all is gone but honor, and there isn't much of that left."—Puck.

ABOUT CAMPING OUT.

How It Is Done and How It Ought to Be Done.

The Fat Man's Idea of Camp Comfort—Too Much Bromo—Hints of Camp Cookery—Test Life as a Medicine—Weapons in Camp.

(COPYRIGHT, 1891.)

"Yes," said the fat man at about eleven p. m., when the fire and the flickering shadows in the dark depths of the woods set fantasy and the sense of the grotesque to work, "camping is as communicative as no other influence can. "Yes, this is a very comfortable camp indeed, but it isn't as comfortable as my ideal camp would be, by a long chalk."

"Tell us about your ideal camp, Frank," said a sleepy voice near the fire.

"Well," said Frank, with all a fat man's deliberation, "in the first place the tent would be very large, much larger than this for instance. Any pleasant place would do to pitch it in, near to a good grocery the better. It would have mattresses of corn husks, back is sore now from lying on the ground last night."

"That's because you were too lazy to pick enough hemlock boughs," I said.

"My ideal camp," went on the fat man, paying no heed to the interruption, "would have a piano—"

"A piano!"

"A piano and a hammock, or two or three hammocks, if necessary. Then there would be a telephone to communicate with the grocery and the office—"

"And the brewery," I interrupted again.

"And the rest of the world. I would take my wife and babies into camp with me, and I'd have a camp cook of never more or go back to town until cold weather."

That was many years ago, but I don't believe the fat man has ever yet attained his ideal. Indeed, when he finally got a wife and baby he gave up camping altogether, which shows how wrong it is to exploit by one man in this life. More recently I saw at the canoe exhibition in New York city a little collection labeled "A Veteran's Camp Outfit," which consisted of a tiny cance, a blanket, a saddle and a sheath knife. This shows how ideals will differ.

Of course, circumstances alter cases. If the camper wants to stay in one place and rest and grow fat, he can convey to that spot considerable luggage and keep it there. I do not see the possibility, if not the desirability, of that. But if one would taste the joys of an ever-changing experience, camping in a different spot every night, he must go light loads. I have learned from a good bit of country with two or three companions, carrying my share of the camp outfit on my back, and enjoyed it immensely. A few pounds additional weight would change enjoyment into disgust. Better take this to mean that a highway of some river, load one's few belongings in a light boat and set out on a grand, strange adventures. Who knows where we shall camp to-morrow night, and who cares?

Young fellows bragging it really do not need a tent at all. I have spent some portions of more than one rainy day and night in boat drawn up on shore and tipped over, the edge to leeward propped up on a stick; and when the night is fair how could one ask a better bed than the bottom of his boat, with the star-dotted coverlid of the sky over him?

An adequate outfit for any camping scheme with reign of surprises is to include a tent, which may be made of very light cloth. Steven's tent, which he carried across Dakota on his bicycle-circling bicycle, was made of waterproof cloth and weighed only a few ounces. There should be camping with a water tight box, a frying pan and a pail to boil coffee. A set of two or three pails of slightly differing sizes, in which will "nest" into each other, is very convenient. A jackknife is a necessity; a fork a forgivable luxury; a forked twig cut from a tree will usually answer. The blankets need be large and well woven, but not necessarily heavy. Old-fashioned Indian "pollo" blankets are the best. I have used one which I filled up to make one side of an improvised tent, and which formed a heavy duty rain. To guard against dampness all such a time the foot should, of course, be pitched upon a slight rise of ground.

The camp cook proposes enormous hunger. A fish or game in season may be a standby, but on a long cruise some supplies must be carried. These contain nowadays almost all that is needed. I have seen a Boston professor dancing frantically about with a can of baked beans in one hand and a can of brown bread in the other and recollect simply insisting that there was no more need of women. All the same, women well in camp as men, having proportionately received notions and a general dislike to the wholesome amount of dirt, saliva and germs to be met with everywhere, and then they always have pins and needles.

Some campers never bother with flour, but carry with them an immense amount of hardtack and pick berries for dietetic variety. Flour prepared so as to be self-raising is handy enough to have in the tent. Used in combination with the berries it contains the promise and potency of a pie cake. If there is a cow anywhere about which can be milked in an absent-minded moment, bread and milk make a practical combination; and as cows feed on the farthest fringe of civilization and browse in the edges of the wilderness they become occasionally attainable that might be supposed. A great variety of viands may be prepared in the frying pan, but almost any kind of meat, usually fried with any kind of meal, is very tasty, is much better broiled before the fire on a forked stick. There is no objection to carrying for the purpose a little gridiron; it does not weigh much. Tin cups for drinking should have handles.

Patent telescoping cups are often recommended, but if the gentle reader ever tries to drink hot coffee out of one and first burns his fingers and next allows the thing to collapse and spill the coffee over his knee he will appreciate the force of the suggestion that they be severely let alone.

Coffee is the camper's breakfast stanchy. Soaked, although this beverage is, of course, utterly unjustifiable under ordinary conditions, it seems to make itself fit for the camp life, and except for the confirmed tea topers. Anything with alcohol in it may be taken if desired, but should always be carefully poured out upon the ground, not in the river. It might kill the fish.

And, anyway, all alcohol! I knew a very brave and good man once who was going camping—and intrusted to a favorite assistant the responsibility of ordering the provisions. Next morning, a few hours before the start, the grocer came him up on the telephone.

"Hello! Hello!" he said; "got stray there, Central, you fool! Hello, Jones! Is that grocery order of yours all right?"

"Yes," came back Jones' voice through the hurrying and buzzing of the 'phone. "It's all right."

"But," said the grocer, "aren't you afraid you've got down too much beer for a camping party? I looked about the store a number of persons were within earshot—"too much—ah—breath," you know; too much breath!"

"No," said Jones; "that's all right; we've lots of it, and—"

And when the big order of goods you supposed in camp beneath there was an enormous wicker-guarded demijohn of whisky and no bread at all, which shows that even righteous campers are not proof against the machinations of the ungodly.

The end of summer and early fall is the great camping-out time all over the states. Whether a person is in Maine or the Adirondacks or among the Minnesota lakes or in the Rocky mountains the last days of August are also bad camping weather. The days are still warm enough for loafing, the nights sufficiently cool to make sleep perfect and blankets a luxury. Earlier in the season the mosquitoes will be making one up at four a. m., which makes our days too long in the land. Earlier than this, too, there will be found in most places some few or many inquisitive mosquitoes or others of their kind to furnish the summer music. Until after the autumnal equinox, the tent should face the west, so as to admit the evening and shut out the morning light.

I believe it to be a fact that no properly constituted person ever caught cold by sleeping in a tent in ordinary summer weather. I have seen invalids in the last stages of consumption carried into the pine woods almost on their beds as a last resort. Sometimes they died—they would die anyhow, but in any case—often they dwarfed the miraculous by getting well. It is a specific for nervous disorders, nervousness, worry, anxiety, lung trouble, hay fever. Henry Ward Beecher went into the heart of the White mountains for a time, and came nearly every summer in order to breathe without pain.

The camping out habit is purely American as nearly as I can make out. People are said to do it on the Thames between Oxford and London, but I have looked for tents all the way and seen only two. American or not, it is a good thing, and ought to be taught in order to grow with the growth of the nation as a corrective of their unnatural conditions.

OWEN LANGDON.

An Ignoramus.

Mr. Blinkers—I understand, sir, that you have a daughter who is engaged, and I feel that on account of my daughter's youth their contemplated marriage should be suspended.

Mr. Levelhead—What? My son talking about marrying? Why, he's a mere infant. Just graduated from Yetorah's Camp Outfit," which consisted of a tiny cance, a blanket, a saddle and a sheath knife. This shows how ideals will differ.

Of course, circumstances alter cases. If the camper wants to stay in one place and rest and grow fat, he can convey to that spot considerable luggage and keep it there. I do not see the possibility, if not the desirability, of that. But if one would taste the joys of an ever-changing experience, camping in a different spot every night, he must go light loads. I have learned from a good bit of country with two or three companions, carrying my share of the camp outfit on my back, and enjoyed it immensely. A few pounds additional weight would change enjoyment into disgust. Better take this to mean that a highway of some river, load one's few belongings in a light boat and set out on a grand, strange adventures. Who knows where we shall camp to-morrow night, and who cares?

Young fellows bragging it really do not need a tent at all. I have spent some portions of more than one rainy day and night in boat drawn up on shore and tipped over, the edge to leeward propped up on a stick; and when the night is fair how could one ask a better bed than the bottom of his boat, with the star-dotted coverlid of the sky over him?

An adequate outfit for any camping scheme with reign of surprises is to include a tent, which may be made of very light cloth. Steven's tent, which he carried across Dakota on his bicycle-circling bicycle, was made of waterproof cloth and weighed only a few ounces. There should be camping with a water tight box, a frying pan and a pail to boil coffee. A set of two or three pails of slightly differing sizes, in which will "nest" into each other, is very convenient. A jackknife is a necessity; a fork a forgivable luxury; a forked twig cut from a tree will usually answer. The blankets need be large and well woven, but not necessarily heavy. Old-fashioned Indian "pollo" blankets are the best. I have used one which I filled up to make one side of an improvised tent, and which formed a heavy duty rain. To guard against dampness all such a time the foot should, of course, be pitched upon a slight rise of ground.

The camp cook proposes enormous hunger. A fish or game in season may be a standby, but on a long cruise some supplies must be carried. These contain nowadays almost all that is needed. I have seen a Boston professor dancing frantically about with a can of baked beans in one hand and a can of brown bread in the other and recollect simply insisting that there was no more need of women. All the same, women well in camp as men, having proportionately received notions and a general dislike to the wholesome amount of dirt, saliva and germs to be met with everywhere, and then they always have pins and needles.

Some campers never bother with flour, but carry with them an immense amount of hardtack and pick berries for dietetic variety. Flour prepared so as to be self-raising is handy enough to have in the tent. Used in combination with the berries it contains the promise and potency of a pie cake. If there is a cow anywhere about which can be milked in an absent-minded moment, bread and milk make a practical combination; and as cows feed on the farthest fringe of civilization and browse in the edges of the wilderness they become occasionally attainable that might be supposed. A great variety of viands may be prepared in the frying pan, but almost any kind of meat, usually fried

The Constitutional

W. L. FORCE, A. L. FORCE
Editors and Proprietors.

VICIOUS LEGISLATION.

All laws enacted for the special emolument of private interests at the public expense are deceitful of honest principle and flagrantly unjust in their effects.

It matters not under what captivating garb such laws are paraded with trumpet flourish, deceptive marks them for its curse, and the people, with the exception of mercenary favorites, must consequently suffer.

No amount of political sophistry can thrust aside the stubborn fact that taxation is necessarily burdensome, and to be just it must have justifiable cause for exaction, and bleed through equity with its collection, falling like the rain upon all interests alike.

That is the only sound doctrine.

Anyhow, we care not what its title, founded other than upon equal and exact justice is alien to popular rights, and cannot to be accepted from if the statute book.

A prominent example of such vicious legislation is that prescribed by the N. Y. World:

THE TIN PLATE TAX.

The assertion that tin plate cannot be manufactured in this country is probably true, though it is not yet demonstrated in a commercial sense. It is, however, true that the American manufacturer can put steel cannot off and to sell the steel basis of a tin plate for as little as the tinned articles themselves can be produced in Wales. It is altogether probable that this task in aid of the speaking of tin plate will find a home market, not for farm products as Protectionists promise, but for steel-sheet makers who have always had abundant protection.

What is the tax mean? A large part of the peach crop is canned. At present and for some years to come the tin-plate of which the cans are made must be imported. Before July 1st of the present year each imported tin plate was taxed 1 cent; now it is taxed 2 2 10 cents. If peaches are worth to the farmer who does his own canning half a cent each, whether he has yet paid fifty peaches, or their equivalent in tax, he will this year pay 110. At this enormous tax a reason to keep up the price of sheet steel and not at all for the public welfare, as that while tin-plate may be eventually produced in this country, it will be at a great cost to people, who will never make out of it one cent of profit but who this year, it is estimated, will pay nearly $10,000,000, chiefly in aid of the steel makers.

THE COAL BARONS AND THEIR TRUST.

A Correspondent Reiterates the Charges of Their Bad Treatment All Around.

To the EDITOR OF THE CONSTITUTION: The Plainfield correspondent to the New York Times represents our local combination as righteously indignant, that any outside combination should dare to come in and compete with them in supplying coal to the dwellers in this wicked city—still more, that one "not to the manor born."

That a stranger in a strange city should actually dare to sell by half a cent per competition, wrest from this King the ripe plum of supplying our School Board with all their coal at a saving of $1,000 to the already over-burdened tax-payers!

What an outrage!—and has not the "Coal Trust" or combine a right to be indignant, especially as No. 1 was, only last year, by arrangement, secured "the plum", and now No. 2 and all behind him are out in the cold. Indignation is not the word! For has not the "Coal Trust" a first mortgage on the city and all the inhabitants thereof? Are there not a dozenor so in "the Trust", and where are the rest to "go round" unless they shall pay tribute? Again—it is actually claimed—that the Lehigh Valley Company are charging their coal to the road of the Old Lehigh at South Plainfield at prices which, with a drayage of 2 to 3 miles, can be laid down in our city at from 60 to 80 cents a ton less than the ordinary retail price here of our dealers, vide the school contract. What another outrage! and now the only relief from this new competition is an injunction or boycott against the Lehigh railroad company prohibiting them from transporting any coal seeking a market here.

For what is the use of a "Trust" that does not protect?

M.

NEW HOMES AT NETHERWOOD.

The Land Between Front Street and the Station to be Developed.

An important sale of considerable property at Netherwood also just been consummated through the agency of J. T. Vall. It consists of that tract of land extending from Leland avenue to Johnston avenue and from Midway avenue to North, being the 19 acres immediately in front of the railway station, on the north side of the tracks. The land will at once be cut up into building lots, which will variously front on Leland, Netherwood, Johnston, Jackson, North and Midway avenues. The locality will be immediately built up into a handsome suburban town. The nominal purchaser is Wm. H. Moffett, of Brooklyn, but it is understood that he is acting for settlement purposes, and whose ultimate plan is to build up the entire section from the station to Front street.

An Old Robbery Recalled.

About four years ago a country postoffice at Round Brook was robbed, and it was believed that one of the thieves, named "Winky" Conover, was drowned in the Raritan while trying to swim it. Some months later the legs of a man were found in the Raritan at the Five Mile Lock. An inquest was held on the legs and they were declared to be those of "Winky" Conover and so buried. Last Saturday constable John Long, of New Brunswick, who at Cedry Island and came across a man there who said he was one of the party who robbed the Round Brook postoffice, and that his partner was not drowned at that time at all, but escaped afterward. Constable Long says the man now mentioned "Winky" Conover in connection with the robbery. The reason he did not arrest the man is because the confession was made outside of his county and State, and he felt very doubtful about getting the Coney Island authorities to hold the man for him.

The Water-Works Problem in the Borough.

The borough of North Plainfield is to be afflicted with a water-works problem similar to that which has caused so much turmoil in Plainfield. J. M. Low has already applied for a franchise to construct and operate works, and at the coming meeting of the Board of Water and Light Water Supply people will announce their intention of laying pipes to supply borough households. The entire matter will be referred, for a time, to the appropriate committee, to wrestle with.

John have you seen that woman lately? John, in embarrassed? What woman? That woman playing organs for Hymen's Wives. Oh, yes; I've seen her often enough and read about it; the wives are bound by chemistry to be the best in the world. The Boards of Health in large cities said "Let the wives of the police alone and their men where wives are needed."

AT REST WITH HIS FATHERS.

Impressive Funeral services Over the Remains of T. A. Tredaway.

Five minutes after the midday hour, Tuesday, the big organ in old Trinity church, New York, began in slow measure the first notes of a funeral anthem. From the left of the church 1 a procession moved slowly down the aisle to the rear of the church. The folding doors leading to the little reception-room for the dead opened, and four young men came out bearing a coffin.

The deep tones of the organ were stilled. With measured pace the minister led the way up the aisle, reading aloud the first passages of the Episcopal burial service. The pall-bearers followed. From out the rear pews deeply-veiled women and cauliflowered men joined in the procession to the chancel. The black coffin was placed in front of the railing, and the minister ceased his reading. Again the deep-toned organ inflated. Catching the funeral strain, six white-surpliced boys raised their voices in an anthem for the dead.

There was a long pomp, no parade, in this midday funeral at old Trinity Tuesday. Only a few mourners; only a few sweet white flowers on the coffin. So Thomas A. Tredaway was buried was that of a man whose ancestors had been as notable years ago as old Trinity itself.

Immediately back of the brown-stone monument to Capt. James Lawrence an old gray stone had been moved away and an opening left for the coffin. On the Lawrence monument this phrase catches the eye: "His bravery in action was equaled only by his modesty in triumph." On the stone moved away from the opening of the vault was inscribed VanZandt." Theodosius Avery VanZandt, b. 1st—fifth of his line, was soon to rest with his forefathers.

In the north street were Theodosius Van Zandt, who died last Sunday at his home in this city. He was sixty-seven years old. Only last May he celebrated with a large party the golden reception of Mr. Van Zandt's eldest son, Edward. The family now consists of Mrs. Dudlon, of Plainfield, a daughter by Mrs. Van Zandt's first wife; Mrs. H. L. Montague, of Orange, another daughter; Ernest, a son; and the unmarried daughters, Lulu, Elsie, Jennie and Gracie.

The vault now s'eut to be filled has been the last resting place of the Van Zandts since the old Knick rbocker days. It is in the south of the lower entrance to the church. It is the only vault besides that of David Coulant and L. Clarson within the iron railing that divides the southern graveyard from the little stone-flagged piazza leading to the church doors.

The people who attended the funeral Tuesday were many. Many all the churches and neighboring towns. Thaddeus Van Zandt had lived in Plainfield since boyhood. His father, William VanZandt, was born in New York and left a large comfortable fortune. The property, consisting of real estate, was situated chiefly in Brooklyn and Staten Island.

The funeral services Tuesday were conducted by the Rev. Dr. E. M. Rodman, who had been the dead man's pastor. The family vault, inside which the pall-bearers, and in consequence the body was not placed in it Tuesday. The body will be kept in the church a day or two until the vault is made ready. The last niche in it will then be filled, and old Trinity churchyard will receive no more of the Van Zandts.

KILLED BY THE HEAT.

William Allen Falls Victim to a Sunstroke.

William Allen, of 154 Somerset street, was helping the family of Henry Rupert move to the new house in the borough, on Tuesday afternoon, when he felt himself being overcome by the heat, and went into the shade of Eugene Hoerster's barn to lie down and recover. He rapidly grew worse, however, and a physician was sent for. Dr. Carman did all in his power for the sufferer, but in two hours Allen was dead, and his body was removed to the home of his father, John Allen.

The deceased was about thirty years of age. Some time ago his wife was killed by falling down the stone steps of a cellar and cutting open her head against the fragments of an earthen vessel she had been carrying.

William Allen was the joint possessor, with his sister Ella and his brother Ivenson, of a large tract of land on which the Crescent League ball grounds are situated, besides property in New York city, in which, it is said, he has squeshed to them by their grandparents.

Four Defeats, So Far.

The record of the games between Plainfield and Somerville is:

1896.
Sept. 12—Somerville, 2; Plainfield, 1.
Sept. 26—Somerville, 7; Plainfield, 6.
Oct. 4—Somerville, 6; Plainfield, 6.
1895.
June 13—Somerville, 11; Plainfield, 2.
July 25—Somerville, 10; Plainfield, 2.
August 1—Somerville, 6; Plainfield, 7.

An Alarm of Fire in the Borough.

North Plainfield had an alarm of fire Tuesday night. Warren Engine bell was rung furiously at about 9:30, and the department promptly responded. Their services, however, were not needed. A curtain in the house adjoining the electric light work, on Race street, had caught fire, but people in the house put it out before the flames from spreading. The house was occupied by a colored family.

More Errors Than Assists.

The "White Caps" defeated the Pond Machine company's "Juniors", Saturday afternoon 8, in a rather poor game of ball, the score of 21 to 13. It was generally on the victor's grounds, Madison avenue beyond Ninth street.

The game was best for the Juniors before the rain, but after it they were outfield. In fact both sides played a very yellow fielding game, but the Juniors were the worst offenders. The losers made a grand rally at the bat in the ninth inning, and added nine runs to their score, but it was too late.

The pitching honors fell for the White Caps, and Hickey for the Juniors, deserve mention. Simmonds and Cathcart led in the batting. Many of the fanners present in the land darkness, and a bonfire and kerosene street-lamps have caused to fill and light them. The burglars and chicken-thieves are taking advantage of the circumstance.

Another Council of Reclusion Who Are Not Reclusive.

William G. Holben Council, No. 55, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, was instituted Monday evening at Dunellen, with fifty-seven charter members. A large number were present from neighboring councils along the line of the Central railway.

William G. Holben Council, of Newark, was also well represented and assisted in organizing the new council. The following officers were installed for the ensuing quarter:

Junior Past Councilor—Howard Bird.
Councilor—P. M. Long.
Vice Councilor—John Lowrie.
Warden—P. Herrick.
Conductor—Stephen Taylor.
Sentinels—A. Herrick and John Kinney.
Trustees—Allen Dunham, Frank Covey and Ed. Bennett.

After the installation the newly made officers took charge of their respective positions, and finished up the work for the evening. Not the least important among the order of closing exercises was a bountiful collation, served by the ladies of the Reclusion Auxiliary. An enjoyable time was had by the members of the council and the company adjourned with many a hand shake and wishing much success to the new Reclusion.

ODE TO THE LOST CAUSE. IN WESTFIELD.

(For The Press.)

Many hold a sacred memory
It seems to grief and sorrow,
It pined in puny life away,
A blank for the morrow.

And when it was beyond a doubt,
The borough's soul is gone,
It said, "Dear friends, I will put My death off till September."

"Because the Jubilee will be away."
The people need bespeaking,
A new excitement shall be had—
Suppose all this was shamming!

But when September comes, alas!
And fear disturbs its rest,
That blatin' lamb I fear will prove
No good for west or sunrise.

Deep in a hole—an ugly hole,
O'ercome with grief and sorrow,
That lamb, poor lamb, was blatin' bomb.
Will find its only home.

A PROFESSIONAL PLAYER BEAT THEM.

But the St. George Cricketers of Plainfield Played a Game to be Proud of.

The St. George's Cricket Club, of this city, played a strong game Saturday against the Cosmopolitans of New York on the grounds of the latter at Clifton, S. I. The Cosmopolitans put their regular league team, including their professional at the head of it, in the field to play in league games—against the St. George's.

Notwithstanding all the handicap the Plainfield men made a good stand. A sticky batting pitch and the ball of 14 runs Hendry taking 4 wickets and Stansfield 2.

Then Capt. Jack up, coupled up with the professional McCarthy, and between them saved the game for the Cosmopolitans. Ardern and Stansfield took the bowling honors on the side of the St. George's. The full score:

ST. GEORGE'S.

F. Wharton, c. Covey, b. Flannery	4
Stansfield, run out	0
J. Ogden, b. Myers	1
J. Ardern, b. Myers	18
Hendry, c. Flannery, b. Myers	4
F. Lewis, c. Jackson, b. Myers	0
W. Hartley, b. Covey	0
R. J. Neal, b. Myers	0
J. P. Thompson, c. and b. Myers	3
J. E. Schofield, c. Flannery, b. Covey	2
T. M. Reed, not out	0
Extras	3
	51

COSMOPOLITANS.

E. Walker, b. Hendry	0
H. Hedley, c. and b. Stansfield	0
J. Covey, b. Hendry	1
Col. W. A. Jebb, b. Hendry	1
W. Cooke, c. Neal, b. Stansfield	1
Jerome Flannery, c. Ogden, b. Hendry	3
M. McCarthy, b. Ardern	46
W. H. Jackson, b. Hendry	0
W. G. Hedley, c. and b. Wharton's	0
G. H. Cooper, b. Hendry	0
D. G. Scott-Brown, not out	0
Extras	7
	59

NEWS OF THE NETHERWOOD.

A Belle Who Takes Another—Mr. Whitney's Remarkable Watch—A Barrier Beauty Who Confesses an Ideal—The Return of a Popular Family—Other Gossip of the Hotel.

If The Press dared it would like to mention a certain young gentleman of Netherwood by name, and tell him that his fiancee this morning drank two orange-phosphates in succession. This would be a warning to him never to ask her to "have a baby-ride"—whether it was an ice, a bird, or a small bottle.

One of the features of the season is a ten-thousand-dollar watch belonging to one of the guests. It is on exhibition every evening and all day Sundays after 10 o'clock a. m. It is claimed by its owner to be the most magnificent watch on earth. A Jersey City banker said it would be offered in trade for a safety bicycle, as its owner had been advised to ride a machine and reduce his obesity. The rumor is denied.

Mrs. Fred Van Zandt need yield to none among the young married women. She is very pretty, with a delightful figure, and very graceful. In every movement, no t winning in speech, and gowned to perfection. In pure white from throat to toe, the other evening, she was the observed of all observers at the subject of women's envy. No wonder she was imprisoned in a far corner of the porch all the evening with her husband on guard.

Among the latest arrivals at the hotel are Major and Mrs. T. H. Cullen and daughters. They are regular guests of the Netherwood each season, and favorites with all. The welcome accorded them upon their return was flatterly and sincere. Miss Hattie Cullen has a young up to be a very pretty and fascinating woman.

Of all the pretty belles and lassies of the hotel, none attracts as much attention and admiration as Miss Bonner, daughter of Col. and Mrs. William McMichael. It seems as if it had stepped out of a brilliantly colored picture.

The Fresh Air Fund subscription started by George W. Crossman, now amounts to nearly $600.

A subscription list was started last evening for a lobster party to be held Monday night. Already the number of subscribers is large, and will probably reach sixty.

The Sunday evening concerts of Gressop's orchestra—the programmes of which are published in each Saturday's Press—are greatly appreciated by the guests, and the people of Netherwood and this city.

The latest arrivals include: Major and Mrs. T. H. Cullen, Miss Adele Cullen, Miss Hattie Cullen, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Haines and family, Chas. B. Brush, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Reiset, W. M. Small wood, Mr. and Mrs. William McDonald and family, A. G. Carson, F. F. Proctor, J. H. Ottley, from New York; J. V. Doup, from East Orange; A. Conson, Jr., from Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. F. Bell, from Bristol, Pa.; W. H. Shelton, Wm. C. Luthrop, Montague Douglas, Richard Hopkins, Thomas Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Russel, from Short Hills; Miss L. M. Pelton, from Warwick; Miss Hale, from London, Eng.

Dunellen until in Darkness.

The electric lights of Dunellen burned but one night. Since then the borough has been in the land darkness, and lamp and kerosene street-lamps have ceased to fill and light them. The burglars and chicken-thieves are taking advantage of the circumstance.

OBITUARY.

Jennie Clarkson.

(From The Christian Inquirer.)

On June 27, at the age of twenty-seven, after a most painful illness of fifteen weeks, she passed to the brighter June of eternal joy, Miss Geoffrey was the wife of Sheldon Geoffrey, and the daughter of William B. Clarkson, for many years a resident of Plainfield, N. J., and widely known as a merchant in this city. In the beautiful Plainfield home nearly all the years of our dear one were passed. Here she was reared with every advantage for intellectual and spiritual culture. What ever wealth and affection could do for her was done. Endowed with a buoyant temperament and a cheerful disposition she was the center of social life. Music, painting and languages were her delight and she was always ambitious for high attainments in these. Her travels abroad afforded her opportunities for observation and the gathering of useful information. Her reading was confined to our purest and best literature. Her active spare apartments at the Sherwood showed the delicacy and refinement of her tastes. Here was a nature that attracted others, and inspired confidence. She was a friend to friends, and too noble to make enemies. It one of the highest triumphs of this life is quiet submission to God's will then our dear one was rich indeed. For the severest sufferings were beyond all language to describe and yet was never one syllable of murmur heard, but there was a resignation, a patience, a faith that equal to her daily duties. It is not possible to define the beauty of a true life or the charm of such a character as hers. The outline of the sketch was attractive in form, was intellectually bright—was winning in manner—these qualities will be remembered. But the transcendent beauty, the strength of soul, the highest reach of character were seen in the quiet, uncomplaining sufferer, in the heroism displayed in the daily struggle. Special grace was given in the repeated, piteous moan which still clings to memory and which sent a protrating thrill of pain to loving hearts that would have quickly shared the suffering, but there was never a note of complaint in it or a look of impatience to accompany its utterance. In the hour by death of this noble young wife and this loving daughter we can be consoled only by the assurance that the purpose of her life has been wrought out and the enamored spirit is exul ant in the presence of God. Mystery still lingers to try us, but faith sees a grander culture, purer associations and sweeter joys for the sainted one. No words can express the sense of bereavement felt by husband and parents. Mrs. Geoffrey's untimely death is mourned by a wide circle of friends. The funeral rites were observed at the Sherwood, Fifth avenue and Forty-fourth street, where she lived, and the burial was at Plainfield, N. J.

THE CHOIR AT NAUGATUCK.

Conductor Miner and His Holy Cross Singers Given Some Connecticut People a Sunday Treat.

(SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.)

NAUGATUCK, Conn., Aug. 18.—Holy Cross church choir, organized here Saturday evening from Camp Dupee, Merwin's Point, Conn., and were quartered with the parishioners of St. Michael's church. Saturday night a rehearsal was held in the Sunday-school building adjoining the church, and the choir were introduced to the Rev. Lyman W. Ellsworth, rector of St. Michael's.

Yesterday morning the choir reported for rehearsal at 9 o'clock, and at 10:30 o'clock service began. Conductor Miner had everything under his control, and it would be offered in trade for a safety bicycle, as its owner had been advised to ride a machine and reduce his obesity. The rumor is denied.

Mrs. Fred Van Zandt need yield to none among the young married women. She is very pretty, with a delightful figure, and very graceful. In every movement, no t winning in speech, and gowned to perfection. In pure white from throat to toe, the other evening, she was the observed of all observers at the subject of women's envy. No wonder she was imprisoned in a far corner of the porch all the evening with her husband on guard.

Among the latest arrivals at the hotel are Major and Mrs. T. H. Cullen and daughters. They are regular guests of the Netherwood each season, and favorites with all. The welcome accorded them upon their return was flatterly and sincere. Miss Hattie Cullen has a young up to be a very pretty and fascinating woman.

Of all the pretty belles and lassies of the hotel, none attracts as much attention and admiration as Miss Bonner, daughter of Col. and Mrs. William McMichael. It seems as if it had stepped out of a brilliantly colored picture.

The Fresh Air Fund subscription started by George W. Crossman, now amounts to nearly $600.

A subscription list was started last evening for a lobster party to be held Monday night. Already the number of subscribers is large, and will probably reach sixty.

The Sunday evening concerts of Gressop's orchestra—the programmes of which are published in each Saturday's Press—are greatly appreciated by the guests, and the people of Netherwood and this city.

The latest arrivals include: Major and Mrs. T. H. Cullen, Miss Adele Cullen, Miss Hattie Cullen, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Haines and family, Chas. B. Brush, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Reiset, W. M. Small wood, Mr. and Mrs. William McDonald and family, A. G. Carson, F. F. Proctor, J. H. Ottley, from New York; J. V. Doup, from East Orange; A. Conson, Jr., from Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. F. Bell, from Bristol, Pa.; W. H. Shelton, Wm. C. Luthrop, Montague Douglas, Richard Hopkins, Thomas Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Russel, from Short Hills; Miss L. M. Pelton, from Warwick; Miss Hale, from London, Eng.

SHE THINKS SHE KNOWS HIM.

The Missus Rubbyard Chase a Thief, but He Holds the Poor Man in Their Force While He Empties Their Pockets.

(From The Purse of Aug. 10.)

A burglar entered the home of Isaac S. Giddis, of Dunellen, yesterday morning, between 3 and 4 o'clock. While at work ransacking the bureau, he was discovered.

Mr. Giddis supposing it to be his son, asked: "What are you doing?" Then the robber darted from the room, and Mr. Giddis followed. The pursued, however, escaped through the front door that he had left open, and when Mr. Giddis had succeeded in getting down stairs, the man was fast disappearing.

He took $11 which he found in Mrs. Giddis's dress pocket, and would undoubtedly have secured more had he not been for the timely discovery of his presence.

He next appeared at the home of John Hubbard, where he gained entrance, entered the Misses Hubbard's room, and while searching their dresses was discovered by Miss Susie Hubbard. The girl screamed, and her mother, hearing her, who added her screams to the uproar. The thief ran out of the room, carrying the dresses on his arm.

The brave young women sprang from their bed and followed, reaching the door almost as soon as he but it was closed in their faces and locked on the inside. Before it he had emptied the pockets of the dresses. He did n't get much, however.

Miss Hubbard has a suspicion who he is.

—Gazelle Engine house has been draped in mourning for 30 days, because of the death of ex-fireman Clarkson R. Hope.

—The Elizabeth Journal says: "The choir of men and boys of the Church of the Holy Cross, Plainfield, is enjoying an outing in a camp at Merwin's Point, Conn. The Plainfield Daily Press had a happy thought when it arranged for a daily telegraph message from the camp, thus keeping a large circle of friends in pleasant communication with the party. The choir, arrayed in surplices, rendered the music in St. Michael's church, Naugatuck, last Sunday morning, and delighted and astonished the natives of the Nutmeg State by its excellent work."

Baseball Notes.

The Crescent League game at Somerville this afternoon between the Plainfield and Somerville clubs will be called at 3:30 o'clock. Carbonell will be pitcher for Plainfield, and Fairchild for Somerville.

The Crescents will play a game with the Somerville team on the latter's grounds, Saturday afternoon, and will be accompanied by a large number of rooters. The Somerville team is a strong one, and will be hard to defeat.

The Crescents will play a game with the Somerville team on the latter's grounds, Saturday afternoon, and will be accompanied by a large number of rooters. The Somerville team is a strong one, and will be hard to defeat.

The Crescents will play a game with the Somerville team on the latter's grounds, Saturday afternoon, and will be accompanied by a large number of rooters. The Somerville team is a strong one, and will be hard to defeat.

THE FIRST IN TWO YEARS.

Plainfield Ninety-six Last Night Wins Game from Somerville.

Out of six baseball games played against the West Ends of Somerville during the past two years, Plainfield has but one victory Saturday. The game was most interesting one. The score was 7 to 6.

So unexpected was the victory that but few in the last stop in Harkinsville, and it was not surprising that such a comparative few went from Plainfield to see the West Ends lose.

The condition the Crescents were in evidenced the good that their Connecticut trip had done to them. Save Tom Keller had infused into the team a great deal of vim and vigor, and the months of his training were so apparent that the management stood him to sit on the players' bench and coach from there, and put the game along the line which had been adopted so successfully in the down-East games.

The consequence was that the men who went East with only seven points, and the rift of the old idea that Harkins was a treadmill against when they were powerless. McIndoe was the only Crescent who played up, and he was so completely ashamed of himself that when his turn came again he met with a tremendous wreck the first ball pitched to him and sent it sailing over the fence for an easy home run.

It had been said before the game that Hammill is a giant-killer, and that he would speedily be knocked out of the box was predicted. Neither statement was verified. Hammill pitched well, and Harkins was up to his old game. The wholesale manner in which Harkins sets his men in the record of 4 hits by the Crescents and 10 by the West Ends, the latter having stolen 7 bases and 2 runs from the bats of the West Ends. The Cre cents were batting the ball tremendously, and only poor judgment on the part of the batsmen down their number of hits to so low a figure.

After the game the Somerville people plaintively that if Kennedy had caught the game the result would have been different. As it was, he was got in condition to play, but one of the players' boards and coached the West End team. Tom Keller prote ted against Kennedy being permitted to sit on the bench while he was incapacitated; and pointed to the fact that Kennedy had no right to be there, authorizing him to take that stand. At this the genial sports man was called all sorts of names and threats were made, in the heat and sweeter joy for it subsided one. No words can express the sense of bereavement felt by husband and parents. Mrs. Geoffrey's untimely death is mourned by a wide circle of friends. The funeral rites were observed at the Sherwood, Fifth avenue and Forty-fourth street, where she lived, and the burial was at Plainfield, N. J.

THE CHOIR AT NAUGATUCK.

Conductor Miner and His Holy Cross Singers Given Some Connecticut People a Sunday Treat.

(SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.)

NAUGATUCK, Conn., Aug. 18.—Holy Cross church choir, organized here Saturday evening from Camp Dupee, Merwin's Point, Conn., and were quartered with the parishioners of St. Michael's church. Saturday night a rehearsal was held in the Sunday-school building adjoining the church, and the choir were introduced to the Rev. Lyman W. Ellsworth, rector of St. Michael's.

Yesterday morning the choir reported for rehearsal at 9 o'clock, and at 10:30 o'clock service began. Conductor Miner had everything under his control, and it would be offered in trade for a safety bicycle, as its owner had been advised to ride a machine and reduce his obesity. The rumor is denied.

Mrs. Fred Van Zandt need yield to none among the young married women. She is very pretty, with a delightful figure, and very graceful. In every movement, no t winning in speech, and gowned to perfection. In pure white from throat to toe, the other evening, she was the observed of all observers at the subject of women's envy. No wonder she was imprisoned in a far corner of the porch all the evening with her husband on guard.

Among the latest arrivals at the hotel are Major and Mrs. T. H. Cullen and daughters. They are regular guests of the Netherwood each season, and favorites with all. The welcome accorded them upon their return was flatterly and sincere. Miss Hattie Cullen has a young up to be a very pretty and fascinating woman.

Of all the pretty belles and lassies of the hotel, none attracts as much attention and admiration as Miss Bonner, daughter of Col. and Mrs. William McMichael. It seems as if it had stepped out of a brilliantly colored picture.

The Fresh Air Fund subscription started by George W. Crossman, now amounts to nearly $600.

A subscription list was started last evening for a lobster party to be held Monday night. Already the number of subscribers is large, and will probably reach sixty.

The Sunday evening concerts of Gressop's orchestra—the programmes of which are published in each Saturday's Press—are greatly appreciated by the guests, and the people of Netherwood and this city.

The latest arrivals include: Major and Mrs. T. H. Cullen, Miss Adele Cullen, Miss Hattie Cullen, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Haines and family, Chas. B. Brush, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Reiset, W. M. Small wood, Mr. and Mrs. William McDonald and family, A. G. Carson, F. F. Proctor, J. H. Ottley, from New York; J. V. Doup, from East Orange; A. Conson, Jr., from Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. F. Bell, from Bristol, Pa.; W. H. Shelton, Wm. C. Luthrop, Montague Douglas, Richard Hopkins, Thomas Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Russel, from Short Hills; Miss L. M. Pelton, from Warwick; Miss Hale, from London, Eng.

There are so few of the rabbit ladies now in Washington that the remaining ones seriously have enemy enough to perform their social rounds. The Blaine family are away. Mrs. Vice President Morton's lovely household long since transported itself to Rhinebeck and thence to Europe; Mrs. Wanamaker and her daughter have also gone to Europe; Mrs. Proctor is in Vermont; Mrs. Wilmerding, Mr. Tracy's daughter, is going to get married; Mrs. Noble is going to Bluefield Springs; Mrs. Attorney General Miller will go for awhile to Cape May, as its mistress of Mrs. Harrison, and Mrs. Jerry Rusk, like the good and sensible housewife that she is, is going to her beautiful rural home at Viroqua, Wis., to put up her fall preserves and apple-butter. Mrs. Rusk takes a great deal more interest in her old home at Viroqua than she does in her husband's fight with Emperor William and President Carnot as to whether the Americus hog shall be received at court abroad. Mrs. Rusk cares nothing about the hog, except as he appears every fall in her sausage machines or pickle barrels. Her charming daughter saves even less. She gets her amiable father on his agricultural facts, and tells him that she and her mother can make better butter at home and prefers her recipes for it than can his wisest of experts in the department of agriculture.

Miss Mary Edith Rusk, as the Oshkosh Herald, is the only living daughter of the secretary. While governor of Wisconsin, and ever since, he has been living at Madison, another daughter died. Miss Rusk is the light of her mother's household. She is a busy twenty, of pretty figure, cleanly molded features and quiet demeanor, yet when waked up she is very vivacious and ever alert for repartee.

A gentleman laughingly observed the other day: "If Uncle Jerry Rusk, with his bonds and balloons and all that sort of thing, means to bring about a big storm and wet, I'll bet that if he takes his daughter along her smile will upset all his plans. She is proof against the sunshine of that smile, even if it were of Uncle Jerry's own make."

THE JACKSON STATUE.

A Grand Work of Art Recently Unveiled in Washington.

The statue, which is by Valentine, is in its bronze and of heroic size. The figure of Jackson is that of a full suit of confederate gray, the gold lace showing distinctly on his coat sleeves. His left hand rests on the pommel of heavy cavalry boots, the tops reaching midway above the knee. His sword hangs by his side in its scabbard. In his right hand he carries his field glasses. The head is bare and his long hair is thrown back from his broad, forehead. He mouth is firmly set and his eagle eye looks out to the south.

The pedestal on which the statue stands is of Georgia granite. It is 14 feet 6 inches in height and is composed of three blocks of the finest granite. The first is 7x8½ feet; the second is 7x8½ feet, the third is 6x8 feet; the second is 4 feet 6 inches high, the third 5 feet 8 inches; the sixth is 3x3 feet, on which the statue rests. The granite base is 5 feet high, the bronze plinge 1 foot, and the bronze statue is 8 feet high, making a total height of 18 feet.

When the Czar Travels.

It is a serious matter for ordinary travelers when the czar of Russia starts on a journey. The other day, when he was going from St. Petersburg to Moscow, a trainful of business men proceeding in the opposite direction was put on a siding in order that the imperial train might pass, and for two hours everybody was kept the closest prisoners in all the doors and windows in each car were closed and locked, and special watchmen in the pay of the railway attempted to open them. During the preparations for the czar's trip there was an absolute suspension of postal and telegraphic communication between Moscow and St. Petersburg for two whole days.

Woman's Capacity.

A couple of schoolboys were coming along a fierce argument. They were talking about their teacher and whether or not women or men were better in that capacity.

"Women are all right," said the older one contentiously, "in some of the branches, but a woman can't teach mathematics."

"That's what you think," exclaimed the younger one with extreme interest. "Can't she! Well, you ought to have seen Miss Blank throw arithmetics at us one day, and you'd change your mind."—Detroit Free Press.

Modern Methods.

"Kin I 'sindify' my entrance doin's?" Deed I kin, Mr. Willis. Yer pays de company a few cents a week on yer wages, an' when yer dies dey pays yer a hundred dollars for de kyarcass.

"Am dat p'intedly a fac'? Den I s'pose dey keeps it yerself. It am a mighty brail 'rangement."—Munsey's Weekly.

The Value of Citizenship.

Cassidy (to his brother Tim, just landed)—That's the courthouse. We'll dhrop in and yez can take out yure first citizen's papers.

Tim—An' is there anything to pay?

Cassidy—A thrifle — about twinty cints, sure, 'tis a thrifle for naturalizin'. In fohve years it'll pay two dollars an'lly at'ivvy election.—Puck.

A Sure Remedy.

A—So you have sworn off from using tobacco?

B—Yes; I suffered a good deal during the first week, but after that I felt all right.

A—What did you take to allay the craving for tobacco?

B—I took to smoking again. That allayed the craving right off."—Texas Siftings.

Very Suspicious.

Magistrate—Why did you arrest this man?

Officer—On suspicion. I think he's a Philadelphia lawyer.

Magistrate—Do you know him?

Officer—No, it's merely but he said he was from Philadelphia, and he seemed to be a lawyer.—N. Y. Weekly.

Returned in Installments.

"What are you crying about?" asked a kind-hearted stranger of a lad who was standing in front of the post office, weeping as if his heart would break.

"I—I don't use postmarks to lick the editor."

"Well, has he come down yet?" pursued the gentle inquirer.

"Pieces of him have," exclaimed the boy, indulging in a fresh burst of tears. "And I'm a-waitin' for the rest every mile ste."—Peterson's Weekly.

A Frightful Predicament.

Mrs. Grayneck—Why, Johnny, what in the world are you striking Willie for like that?

Johnny—Well, I should think I had good cause.

Mrs. Grayneck—What do you mean?

Johnny—Well, I let him use my beanshooter all last Sunday afternoon if he'd say my mistress she done got one de same color, pudge.

Messages for Two.

Call Boy (snap theatrical company)—Twenty-seven men at the stage door with bills and three reporters want to know if it's true the company is in financial straits.

Manager—Tell the bill collectors that I haven't a cent. Tell the reporters that the rumor that we are short of cash is the work of envious rivals.—Good News.

Rough on Men.

Ike—Ha! ha! ha! Here's a good bit in this paper about women.

She—What does it say about the women?

Ike—It says that more than half the women in this country are crazy.

She (with a sigh)—I expect that's so. There are more than many married women an in this country.—Texas Siftings.

Gentlemen of Leisure.

Kind Caller—What is your little girl you are! Is your father in business in this city?

Little Girl—Business! My papa doesn't have to bother about business.

"Ah! Gentleman of leisure, then?"

"Ye'm; he's a detective."—Good News.

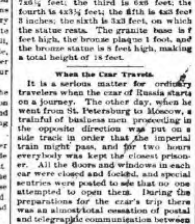
And Then the War Began.

Henpeck—I believe that there really is something in the saying that Friday is an unlucky day. I remember when I proposed to my best girl on a Friday.

Smith—And she rejected you?

Henpeck — No — unfortunately she married me.—Munsey's Weekly.

About the Size of It.



Boy (who has lost his way)—I say, mister, how far is it to Camptown Creek?

Man (surlily)—Find out. I ain't no city directory.

Boy (with acute emphasis)—No, you ain't; you're a volume on good manners, you are!—Life.

Marriage an Impossibility.

Photographer—Can't you assume a more pleasant expression than that? Just think of your best girl a few minutes.

Young Man (angrily)—It wouldn't do any good. She refused me about a week ago.—Jury.

Answered.

"What would you do if you had a horse like mine?" said Hanks, who is rather proud of his beast.

"I'd take it out into the woods and yell with it till it died," said Bjones, who prefers his own tenor.—Harper's Bazar.

CATARRH
CREAM BALM
Cleanses the Nasal Passages, Allays Pain and Inflammation.
Heals the Sores.
Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell.
HAY-FEVER
A particle is applied into each nostril and is agreeable. Price 50 cents at Druggists; by mail, registered, 60 cents. ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren street, New York.
ELY'S
CREAM BALM CURE

AT THE NEWARK BEE HIVE.
THE "BEE-HIVE"
THE LARGEST FANCY GOODS HOUSE IN THE

CITY DEPARTMENT.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE SOCIETY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY OF UNION.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - City Editor

—The food paper-doll—that the wife of Mayor Gilbert, "and daughters", are at Saratoga.

—Pyrhbius is now fixed at Royston Beach and fine catches of weak fish are a big mode daily.

—The Westfield pine have secured Tom O'Rourke, an old Crescent player, to catch for them next Saturday.

—Delinquents are warned that a list of property to be sold for non-payment of taxes is to be published in a day or two.

—Games have been arranged for the Norwich U. team to be played by the nine in this city Wednesday after non of next week, and t Westfield again t the nine of that town, the next day, Thursday.

—W. E. J hnson, president of the Emancipation Day celebration, requests THE PRESS to announce that his entire people extend a hearty and sincere vote of thanks to those who assisted in the success of the affair.

—The Cuban Giants, the wonder of the professional colored clubs now giving exhibitions in this section, are booked to defeat the We tfield ball players, Saturday, by the score of 8 to 4. A large number of Plainfieldians will go over.

—Election of officers of Plainfield people came Tuesday with Trinity Sunday-school excursion. Plainfield always sends the largest excursions, and the people seem to enjoy their visits to Asbury Park—Asbury Park Daily Journal.

—Saturday the Westfield base-ball nine play the Crescent League's team on the latter's grounds. The Westfields are out-classed by the Plainfield players and cannot possibly win unless by accident as they have won before, or by the bad playing of the Crescents.

—Fine crabbing at the Central railroad bay bridge. Uncle Steve Ryder has a boat house on the Bergen Point bank of the bridge, and those who call on the Plainfield friends feel at home and always manage to send them home well supplied with fish if they are biting and crabs.

—The "Colored Orphans" object people do behave themselves better than the masses of the "white folks," was proven again Thursday. The city was full of the ouldst of all classes and the best behaved one a thriving business, yet it was not necessary for the police to make an arrest.

—A Plainfielder writes from Asbury Bury Park: "The white girl is becoming a conspicuous figure upon the beach. From the dusty waste hat which surmounts her head she is to the tan of the white shoes upon her feet, she is clothed in garments of white. And she is a beauty, too, when she is a beauty."

—A speaker at Chautauqua the other day said that the reason some men are so ill-natured is because they are so badly clothed. If the philosopher at Chautauqua have just looked this out they'd behind the times. Poor men who work for small salaries have known it for many moons.—Baltimore American.

—The "diagonal" parking on the waterworks trenches don't seem to be bothered by the frightful heat of the sun's broiling rays, but it is noticed that looks of envy are cast by the side of the gangs on Park avenue, at the fortunate few who have the cooler berth underneath the railway bridge, where a grateful shade is cast over the whole of toil.

—No effort will be made to arrest the woman who was accused of setting fire to butcher Arnold's barn, unless some new evidence is discovered. Her only property, which was uninsured, was encangered by the fire, and it is deemed improbable that she would commit a wrong and illegal act than has injured herself more than anyone else.

—A Jerseyman predicts that the coming winter will be long and cold, because the nut crop is immense. Some people are in such a hurry to forecast the winter weather that they forget to wait and see what the goose bone has to say. Nothing will be positively known of the next winter's freezes and breezes until the goose bone comes on with its readings.

—Probably a full half of the newspaper recipes put out in the course of a year will do to read but not to follow. Here is one that is found in an exchange, but it is not accompanied with an affidavit as to its efficacy. Here it is: "It is said that common salt sprinkled liberally around places infested by rats will drive them away. This is a simple experiment and will cost much to try it."

—New Jersey is getting so many doctors that the public have a right to expect cheaper pills and less "vanity" tasting medicine before a arrest while. Statistics that forty-four of the fifty-one candidates who recently presented themselves at Trenton for examination to practice as physicians in this State were successful in answering a sufficient number of questions for them to pass.

—The huckleberry season is now at its height, and people are feeding on it. Never no mountain and vicinity report the crop as an exceedingly large one. Many people living in the huckleberry section always bake a few pies with the fruit, though for the sale of these berries is the principal source of income to many families. The berry trade puts hundreds of dollars in circulation throughout the region in which the berries grow.

—The Flemington Democrat-Advertiser says of the recent base-ball game of the Plainfield Bicycle Club in that place: "A much finer ball game than Friday's was not as yet been played upon our grounds this season. And we must say of the members of the visiting Plainfield club that a more gentlemanly set of fellows have not come to this place in some time. Our boys will go to Plainfield some time in the near future."

—The Central Railroad of New Jersey has secured the right of way for a branch line to Long Branch, the route being along the base of the Atlantic Highlands across the Shrewsbury River. The New Jersey Southern, which is operated and owned by the Jersey Central, is to be compelled by the United States Government to move its present bridge over the Sandy Hook in October, so that the building of a branch is made necessary.

—At The Edgemoor, 34 SeaView avenue, Ocean Grove, Philadelphia will find a most comfortable home when visiting the shore. The house fronts on Wesley Lake, and is only one block from the ocean. The table supply is abundant and thoroughly satisfactory, and every comfort of the guests is carefully looked after. The estimable proprietress is S. Augusta Hart of this city. A great many Plainfield people patronize this place.

—Three new stations are now being built on the Central Railroad between here and Jersey City. The old ruin at Connecticut farms is to be succeeded by a pretty cozy-stone structure on the opposite side of the tracks; an entirely new station is being put up at Grossland, and another is nearly completed half-way between Clarement and Roselle ville. Elizabeth still sports the same old rookery that came over with Father Noah on the Mayflower and will probably remain in a state of duty till the wall of the last Elizabethite is heard in the land.

I was troubled with catarrh for three years, using different remedies and doctoring with physicians, but got no relief. I was induced to try Ely's Cream Balm. In less than one week I could breathe freely through both nostrils. I have used in all three bottles and am entirely cured. I am now in the best health I have enjoyed for years. I cheerfully recommend Ely's Cream Balm to all sufferers from catarrh.—E. H. Hall, Middletown, N. Y.

PERSONALIA.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. H. Pollon are at Carleton House, Spring Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Vanderbeek are happy over the coming of a little son.

Mrs. C. E. Vail presented her husband with another boy, Friday morning.

Mrs. T. Logan Murphy spent Friday at Monte Vesuvius.

Henry A. McGee and family are at the Samoset House, Mouse Island, Maine.

Mrs. J. B. Probasco and niece, Miss Mary Steele, are home from Asbury Park.

Mrs. Dr. Hall has returned from a trip to Albany, Saratoga and Richfield Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Brower are at South Columbia, Herkimer county, N. Y.

L. B. Woolston and daughter have gone to Beverly, N. J., for a week's vacation.

Mrs. Sarah Green, of 152 Park avenue, has gone to Corning, N. Y., for the month of August.

Miss Ida Williams, of Madison avenue, is registered at the Duncan House, Asbury Park.

Mrs S. G. Holmes, of Baltimore, is visiting her brother, Samuel A. Wallace, of Grove street.

Miss Lillian Newman, principal of the Bryant school, has returned from her summer vacation.

Miss Grace Clark of Grand View avenue, has gone to Orange to spend the month of August.

The Misses Fannie and Mamie Rafferty, of Park avenue, have gone to Asbury Park for two weeks.

Mrs. M. E. Edgerton, of 133 East Front street, is spending the summer at Wentworth Hall, Jackson, N. H

Miss Ida M. Weaver and Miss Lottie Moore, of North Plainfield, are registered at The Kelsey, Asbury Park.

C. G. Crawford and wife, of East Fifth street, are in Chicago on their way to Denver and Colorado Springs.

Miss Legra D. Wenzel, of Evona, is spending the month of August at Flemington, Hunterdon county.

Miss Beulie A. Randolph has sailed on the steamship City of New York, for an extended visit to Europe.

H. A. Clark, who was recently hurt by the falling of a lightning rod upon his head, is recovering from the accident.

Mrs. Wm. Addis, of Boston, and daughters, are at the Berkshire hills, visiting a brother of Mr. Addis, for the month of August.

T. H. Bartindale and family are enjoying the cool ocean breezes at Cape Cottage, Cape Elizabeth, Maine, for a time.

William H. Williams, the popular and old reliable newsdealer of this city, spent yesterday with friends at Cold Springs, N. Y.

City Judge Codrington has returned in good trim for business after a short vacation spent in the Orange county hills, New York.

The Rev. A. F Todd of Dunellen occupied Mr. Schenck's pulpit Sunday morning and evening, and delivered two well-written sermons.

David Masterson, of this city, a member of the Elizabeth Lawn Tennis club, is entered in the big tournament to be held at Cooperstown, N. Y.

The Rev. L. O. Greenville, who was pastor of the New Market Baptist church, twenty years ago, delivered a sermon to his old congregation Sunday.

J. H. Manning, the popular Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association, has returned from the seashore, thoroughly bronzed by the sun.

William A. Stryker, of Washington, N. J., who was city sometimes new paper work with his duties as Prosecutor of the Pleas for Warren county, was in town last week.

Alice Heidly, the fourteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Heidly, died at their home near Dunellen, Saturday. She had been sick for some time with consumption.

Geo. H. Bockafeller, a popular young man in Elizabeth society, and one of the leading members of the Mercury Wheelmen's Club of that city, has been spending the summer among Plainfield friends.

Georgiana Spencer, daughter of William F. Spencer, and niece of H. Newton Spencer of the borough, will be married to John Lacy next Tuesday, August 18, at 5.30o p. m. at the Washingtonville Memorial chapel.

Richard G. Barkalow, a former resident of Plainfield, and now of 33 Chestnut street, Newark, is visiting his brother Lewis, of Dunellen street, North Plainfield, while his wife is enjoying a stay with friends at Parkersburg, Pa.

The Misses Emily and Millie Hudson, of Brooklyn, have returned home after a pleasant week's stay with friends in this city. Miss Emily Hudson is a very talented young musician and cultivation of music, her repertoire includes the most difficult and recent popular selections.

After a lingering illness, Clarkson B. Hope, son of Stevenson B. Hope, and ex-foreman of Gazelle Engine company, died Monday, of consumption. He was confined to his bed but a few days. His death was painless and peaceful. He was in his thirty-fourth year. Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon, at 3 o'clock.

The huckleberry season is now at its height, and people are feeding on it. Never no mountain and vicinity report the crop as an exceedingly large one. Many people living in the huckleberry section always bake a few pies with the fruit, though for the sale of these berries is the principal source of income to many families. The berry trade puts hundreds of dollars in circulation throughout the region in which the berries grow.

Editor W. J. Leonard says: "The short address made by Mayor Gilbert, of Plainfield, at the Emancipation Day celebration, could not well have been improved upon. Here it is: 'It is a matter of that common salt sprinkled liberally around places infested by rats will drive them away. This is a simple experiment and will cost much to try it."

—New Jersey is getting so many doctors that the public have a right to expect cheaper pills and less "vanity" tasting medicine before a arrest while. Statistics that forty-four of the fifty-one candidates who recently presented themselves at Trenton for examination to practice as physicians in this State were successful in answering a sufficient number of questions for them to pass.

—The huckleberry season is now at its height, and people are feeding on it. Never no mountain and vicinity report the crop as an exceedingly large one. Many people living in the huckleberry section always bake a few pies with the fruit, though for the sale of these berries is the principal source of income to many families. The berry trade puts hundreds of dollars in circulation throughout the region in which the berries grow.

—The Flemington Democrat-Advertiser says of the recent base-ball game of the Plainfield Bicycle Club in that place: "A much finer ball game than Friday's was not as yet been played upon our grounds this season. And we must say of the members of the visiting Plainfield club that a more gentlemanly set of fellows have not come to this place in some time. Our boys will go to Plainfield some time in the near future."

—The Central Railroad of New Jersey has secured the right of way for a branch line to Long Branch, the route being along the base of the Atlantic Highlands across the Shrewsbury River. The New Jersey Southern, which is operated and owned by the Jersey Central, is to be compelled by the United States Government to move its present bridge over the Sandy Hook in October, so that the building of a branch is made necessary.

—At The Edgemoor, 34 SeaView avenue, Ocean Grove, Philadelphia will find a most comfortable home when visiting the shore. The house fronts on Wesley Lake, and is only one block from the ocean. The table supply is abundant and thoroughly satisfactory, and every comfort of the guests is carefully looked after. The estimable proprietress is S. Augusta Hart of this city. A great many Plainfield people patronize this place.

—Three new stations are now being built on the Central Railroad between here and Jersey City. The old ruin at Connecticut farms is to be succeeded by a pretty cozy-stone structure on the opposite side of the tracks; an entirely new station is being put up at Grossland, and another is nearly completed half-way between Clarement and Roselle ville. Elizabeth still sports the same old rookery that came over with Father Noah on the Mayflower and will probably remain in a state of duty till the wall of the last Elizabethite is heard in the land.

Mrs. Thomas S. Armstrong and children have gone to Middletown, N. Y.

A. D. Cook and family are at the Hancock House, Saratoga, for two weeks.

There will be no music Saturday afternoon tnen given by the Hillside Tennis club, until Sept. 5.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Mittleton, jr., will go to Saratoga and the Adirondacks for the balance of the season.

Manager Armstrong, of Reynolds's pharmacy, is one of a quartette who are going to camp for the rest of the month in the woods of Maine, eleven miles from Jacksontown.

PRAISE FOR THE LOCAL PAPER.

And Sound Words and Censure Against the Blind that Pitches in Plainfield News Badly from THE PRESS.

[From The Elizabeth Herald.]

The gift sheet of New York which has invaded the communities of the state is an alleged Jersey news edition, spats its spleen this morning on what it pleases to call rural newspaper and country editors, and states that this is the silly season for country journalism, and ridicules the publishing that "John Brown's house has been painted" that "a row of beds and hedgings is being built", and that "diphtheria is raging".

It might be appropriate to ask, when do the managers of the delectable Sunday edition see for themselves any other season but the one they allude to? If it is true as it is that the country papers their Jersey edition would be issued in blank form This could be verified if Reybols glimpse could be had by the reader into the butcher shop of the gift sheet which is an abortion on journalism. And see the amount of Jersey news which is hacked from the columns of the delicated subscribers. And again, to watch the World's representatives with feverish heat await the issue of the alleged country paper that he may get the facts of each news item, but who do the sorts it that it becomes an article of condemnation to the city or town in which it occurred.

The article in question this morning would seek to lower the suburban paper to the country reader, for the purpose of self gain. The public is wise little to appreciated that its shot falls far short and rebounds to its sender as silly. The experience of all capable journalists of the past and present generation teaches the fact that it is the short, crisp, terse, trenchant and gossipy bit of news that interests the reader, and to that paper which publishes them falls the honor, glory and circulation.

To the paper which gives its brain power to serve the public with truthful and not libelous news rather than compel its working force of the office to hatch out lottery schemes that the gambling element may be satisfied, or to lie daily for no other purpose than to catch a price, is the paper for the people, young and old.

The local paper is issued for the moral and business interests of its community It is directly responsible for its utterances which are backed by facts. It does not attempt to destroy the fair name of the family circle, or the integrity of its public servants, unless warranted by facts.

Its object is to foster and to nurse the growing interests of the city or town in which it is published. It does not appear at the office as a nightmare or as a nucleus of immorality, or as a catalogue for prices.

It is in every sense a newspaper, paying its editors, reporters, compositors and press room force with money secured by honest newspaper work, not from the profits of lottery schemes or the small attendance into its columns of filthy, immoral stories, or stories whose foundation is sensation, and which are called for by the city of the editor, "Never mind the facts: let the story be spicy."

Boosting the Kilwood Building.

Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, Monday night voted to leave the Kilwood building on West Second street, the latter part of this month. They have secured the Knights of Pythias's hall on Park avenue, in the Coward building. This leaves only two lodges in the Kilwood building, and they stay only because they have a lease and have agreed to about $1,000 each in furnishings. They are Perseverance Lodge, K. of P., and Plainfield Lodge, I. O. O. F.

A Pest Unknown in Plainfield.

[From The Newark Advertiser.]

At dusk last Sunday night, what was first supposed to be a huge black cloud or cloud proved to be a compact mass of mosquitoes which lighted on the city of Elizabeth, driving the people from the streets and into their houses. The cloud was built in many of the streets to drive the pests away. Services in many of the churches were postponed. It is believed that the mosquito plague been we great in Elizabeth or in the State. The recent heavy rains, it is said, have driven the mosquitoes from the meadows. They were also very bad in Newark.

The Death of Edgar Steile.

Concerning the death of Edgar F Steile, which occurred at Wellsville, Allegheny county, N. Y., June 13, at the age of 73 years, the correspondent of the Olean Democrat, Recorder, of Alfred Centre, N. Y., says:

"The deceased was born in Shelton, N. J., and was one of seven children—four sisters and three brothers. Two sisters and Mary Steile, only one of whom, Freeman Steile, of Crossingville, Pa., survives. The brothers were Jacob Steile, of Plainfield, N. J., Mrs. C. J. Watson, of Wellsville, N. Y., and Misses Emma and Laura Steile, of Erie, Pa. He was a member of the Second Baptist church of Cuyahoga, Pa., in 1860, and became a constituent member of the Seventh-Day Baptist church in Wellsville, where he was engaged in the mercantile business for many years, and was also a banker. Some weeks ago, as told exclusively in THE PRESS, she fell from a tree, injuring her spine and causing paralysis from which she never recovered.

Good Racing at Plainfield's Park.

The New York and Brooklyn sportsmen who attended the races on Park avenue, Saturday, paid high compliments to the Plainfielders, and assured them that they had never seen better racing anywhere than that afforded here.

The first race was between Fosher's Dynamite and M. Quinn's Kitty Pilot, for a mile heat. His time was the best was: At the quarter in 39½; at the half, 1.19½; three-quarters, 1.58; home, 2.39. Second heat—39½, 1.19, 1.58, 2.37½.

This race was trotted admirably. The two horses were so close together, the entire distance, that one sheet could have covered both.

A year ago neither horse could trot a mile in 3.50 They have been magnificently trained—Dynamite by Nash, and Kitty Pilot by C. G. Brown, until now they are high priced queens of the turf.

A second race was run between Hayes's Andy and Van Derbeck's Reputation. Andy won both heats. His time was: First heat—41, 1.22, 2.05, 2.46½. Second —39, 1.23½, 2.05½, 2.46½.

—The lots party at Hotel Netherwood has been postponed from Saturday to Monday evening.

A Catskill Physician.

I give to Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills the credit of doing more for me than all other medicines combined for the last twenty years. I had dyspepsia in its worst form, and have suffered 25 years. They relieve me at once, and in a comfort after eating, and have in 30 days done me more good than I have seen 25 years of medicine and doctoring. I am a physician myself, and know what I say. Sold by druggists. Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Cure, 25 cents per box. Prof. T. Jones Deane, M. D.

A RED-LIGHT PARTING.

How the People of Newton's Church Bade Farewell to Their Pastor.

[From the Newton Herald of August 7.]

A very pretty feature of the recent Connecticut trip of the Holy Cross church choir took place Monday night at about 11 o'clock, when the steamer bearing the choristers back to New York was off Milwin's Point, where they had spent the week. A young man was on board who had just come from the Point, armed with a red signal light, and when he got news that the people, especially the girls, who were left behind, intended to salute the boys from the Point as the steamer Corning sailed by. There was a thin mist over the Sound, and the shore was fully two miles away, but the captain said that the steamer's lights could be seen by the people on the land, and so the choir filled back their chairs or hung on the railing and gazed into the blackness, eight on each side, to be the first to see the light from shore. And sure enough, just when the first soprano said they were opposite the Point two bright red spots flared out in the mist to the westward, and in another minute the signal on the steamer was lighted in reply, and the choir again saluted the distant friends by blowing the great chime whistle of the Corning. It seemed almost as if the responsive lights had bridged the watery depths, and the more imaginative thought they could see the people on shore. After the first salute, however, the lights began to fade, and finally went out altogether, and the darkness wrapped everything again in its sable embrace. It was the sudden kind of a parting when the kindred flames died away and the black night swallowed up the last sign of those good friends and that week of pleasure; and the hour of the merry-making for a moment, while their minds wandered back to the camp, and the fun, and the girls.

TWO SINGULAR ACCIDENTS.

A Fall of Four Feet Proves Fatal, While One of Forty Results in Little Injury.

(FROM THE PRESS of Aug. 8.)

Mary Wagner, who was paralyzed by falling a distance of four feet, from a cherry tree, at Dunellen, July 7, died at Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday afternoon at three o'clock. She was about fifty years of age, and had long been an esteemed resident of Dunellen, where for years she was companion to Mrs. Whitehack. Funeral services will be held at the Dunellen Presbyterian church to-morrow afternoon at 2.30.

James Leonard, a mason, had a terrible fall, but miraculously escaped serious injury, yesterday afternoon. The scaffold on which he was working, on the new Grace church building, was forty feet above the ground. A portion of it gave way, and he fell headlong on a heap of building stone. He was taken to the Muhlenberg Hospital, where his injuries were found to be a dislocated wrist and a number of bad bruises. But no bones were broken, and he will soon be at work again.

PERHAPS A FEMALE FIRE-BUG.

Has Own Children Say That They Saw Her Strike the Match.

A small frame stable owned and occupied by Charles Arnold, and situated just at the rear of his butcher shop at 21 Liberty street, was destroyed by fire Monday afternoon.

An alarm was sent in at 5.45 from box 34, and within five minutes two streams of water were being poured into the flames. The stable was little more than a shed, however, and the firemen could do little beyond preventing the fire from spreading to the adjoining buildings. The heat of the blaze was very intense, while it lasted, for the stable was well filled with hay and straw. The loss is about $400, insured.

A number of children who were playing about in the neighborhood say that they saw a woman pause at the stable door, set down a pitcher of beer, and light two matches and throw them into the straw. They describe the woman and give her name. She is the mother of some of the little ones. An effort will be made to have the woman arrested, but it is feared that she cannot be convicted on the evidence of the children alone, since they are too small to make their testimony of sufficient legal weight. The woman in question is said to bear a grudge against the chief of Arnold.

When accused of having caused the fire, the woman denied the charge, and in turn said that the children were liars. She also said they were playing with matches in the stable.

Cruelty and Death to a Dog.

Some malicious person fed a dog belonging to John J. Finley, of 79 East Front street, with poison, and the dog died in great agony. The sufferings of the animal became so great that it had to be killed.

Malicious Mischief at the Club-house.

Another gross indignity has been committed at the Union County Country club-house. Some days ago some malicious person entered the building at an hour when detection was unlikely and deliberately ruined the surface of one of the billiard tables by slashing it repeatedly with a sharp knife. It is suspected that the offender was a discharged servant. Harsh punishment awaits the discovery of his identity.

Nine Wagner Buried.

At the Presbyterian church, Dunellen, Sunday, services were held over the remains of Mary A. Wagner who died Saturday at Muhlenberg Hospital. Miss Wagner, who was 56 years of age, had lived with Mrs. Vanderveer for many years, and was much thought of by the family and all others who knew her. Some weeks ago, as told exclusively in THE PRESS, she fell from a tree, injuring her spine and causing paralysis from which she never recovered.

Grand Musical at Plainfield's Park.

The Coney Island and Brooklyn sportsmen who attended the races on Park avenue, Saturday, paid high compliments to the Plainfielders, and assured them that they had never seen better racing anywhere than that afforded here.

The first race was between Fosher's Dynamite and M. Quinn's Kitty Pilot, for a mile heat. His time was the best was: At the quarter in 39½; at the half, 1.19½; three-quarters, 1.58; home, 2.39. Second heat—39½, 1.19, 1.58, 2.37½.

This race was trotted admirably. The two horses were so close together, the entire distance, that one sheet could have covered both.

A year ago neither horse could trot a mile in 3.50 They have been magnificently trained—Dynamite by Nash, and Kitty Pilot by C. G. Brown, until now they are high priced queens of the turf.

A second race was run between Hayes's Andy and Van Derbeck's Reputation. Andy won both heats. His time was: First heat—41, 1.22, 2.05, 2.46½. Second —39, 1.23½, 2.05½, 2.46½.

—The lots party at Hotel Netherwood has been postponed from Saturday to Monday evening.

A Catskill Physician.

I give to Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills the credit of doing more for me than all other medicines combined for the last twenty years. I had dyspepsia in its worst form, and have suffered 25 years. They relieve me at once, and in a comfort after eating, and have in 30 days done me more good than I have seen 25 years of medicine and doctoring. I am a physician myself, and know what I say. Sold by druggists. Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Cure, 25 cents per box. Prof. T. Jones Deane, M. D.

E. R. HACKEY, M. D.

LOST BUT ONE GAME IN THREE.

Plainfield's Pitcher Pitches Some Remarkable Ball.

[From THE PRESS of August 7.]

The Crescent League team got home from Connecticut this afternoon, well satisfied with the loss of only one game of the three played. The game lost was at Norwich yesterday, and the defeat was entirely because the Crescents are, as always, very weak in the pitcher's box.

Taylor pitched in the beginning and at the wind-up. Hassmill was put in the box in the fourth inning and each of the pitchers did well. In the fourth Taylor knocked a long fly that was beautifully caught by Bonner in deep centre. In the fifth inning Hassmill gave two men their base on balls, but struck three in succession. The gentle Willis Murphy followed with a rank hit and O'Connell with one over the fence.

All the Crescents that the PRESS reporter talked with agreed that Umpire Berriman "roasted" the Plainfield players most unjustly, giving them nine fouls and "roasted" them in the first game in that city. The scores by innings, yesterday and the day before, were:

Norwich.....0 0 1 0 0 0 1 0 *—2
Crescents.....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0
Base hits.....1 3 1 1 1 0 2 1 1—10
Errors—Crescents, 5; Williamsetts, 4.

Norwich.....0 2 3 0 0 0 0 0 1—6
Crescents.....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0
Base hits.....2 1 1 0 1 0 1 2 1
Errors—Norwich, 2; Crescents, 6.

NOT A FIRE-BUG.

Instead, a Wayward Boy, Who Was Breaking Into His Mother's House.

The arrest of Fred. Willmuth, at the fire, Monday afternoon, gave rise to the rumor that a fire-bug was in the toils. Willmuth is a fifteen-year-old son of Amelia Willmuth, who lives near 21 Liberty street. He is familiarly known as "Dutchy". Of late he has been a very wayward lad, and his mother applied to the police because he had repeatedly run away from home. He was in the habit of jumping on moving coal trains, and in various ways causing her great anxiety and worriment. The officers have been looking for him several days past, but it took the fire scare to bring him out of his hiding place. He could not resist the temptation to run to the fire, and consequently he was speedily arrested

After spending a night in the police station, the lad was next morning sent home to his mother, on promise of good behavior in the future.

Ready to Put Water in Your House.

Any day after Saturday the Plainfield Water Supply company will be ready to connect the house along the line of its mains. Application may be made at the offices of the company, 6 East Front street.

Narrow Escapes.

A horse driven by F. O. Smith, of 126 West Front street, took fright at the noise of the parade Tuesday and ran away from Fourth street, through Liberty, to Seventh, where it was caught. Mr. Smith was thrown out, run over, and severely injured. One of his legs is thought to be fractured. The wagon was smashed into kindling wood.

John Harkins's New Team.

John Harkins says that there will be no game with his new base-ball team, the New Brunswicks, before next week Tuesday or Thursday. The team will appear in their new uniforms, which will be ready about Monday next, and which are described as very "tony". The colors are gray and maroon, and the suits will be lettered with the name of the team.

The battery for next week's game will be Francis and Kennedy.

In The Netherwood's Pretty Ladies That Attract Him.

A correspondent at Netherwood hotel writes thuse to the Richfield News:

Since the season opened the hotel when anything in the shape of entertainment is on hand. August 1 was a holiday, not just so August as his name would seem to imply—but, on the contrary, one of the most jovial and pleasant occasions ever known here. Miller's right hand man on such occasions, for several years has been his chief assistant in their new uniforms, which will be ready about Monday next, and which are described as very "tony". The colors are gray and maroon, and the suits will be lettered with the name of the team.

The battery for next week's game will be Francis and Kennedy.

In The Netherwood's Pretty Ladies That Attract Him.

A correspondent at Netherwood hotel writes thuse to the Richfield News:

Since the season opened the hotel when anything in the shape of entertainment is on hand. August 1 was a holiday, not just so August as his name would seem to imply—but, on the contrary, one of the most jovial and pleasant occasions ever known here. Miller's right hand man on such occasions, for several years has been his chief assistant here. Sometimes I think that his friendship for the proprietor of the Netherwood is not the only magnet which draws him hither. He is an indefatigable pedestrian, and I honestly believe that the beautiful women who congregate here at Netherwood their summer home, have a great deal to do towards attracting him to this locality. Now I am going over to the Hotel Breslin to-morrow to spend a week with Mr. Brockway, so I will put up a little job on him. I am not of Mr. Hutchison's creed; but I thereby believe that I can save him from the charge of adultery, and at the same time, not sacrifice the feelings of the animal because so great that it had to be killed.

Malicious Mischief at the Club-house.

Another gross indignity has been committed at the Union County Country club-house. Some days ago some malicious person entered the building at an hour when detection was unlikely and deliberately ruined the surface of one of the billiard tables by slashing it repeatedly with a sharp knife. It is suspected that the offender was a discharged servant. Harsh punishment awaits the discovery of his identity.

Complaints Against a Saloon.

Theodore Kurtwals, of 6 West Second street, made a complaint to Mayor Gilbert Friday that the Kilwood saloon, adjoining his property, was a nuisance to the neighborhood, and asked that it be suppressed. The Mayor promised to investigate the matter on his return from New York Saturday.

Mr. Kurtwals says that the noise of the carousings in the saloon became so intolerable that he politely requested the proprietor to close the windows, but was refused to shut it out from his family's hearing. This the proprietor refused to do, and for his own protection Mr. Kurtwals put up a high board fence which shuts off from view the sights in the saloon that disgusted him, and which partially deadens the sounds of the carousal and maudlin revelry. But the fence also obstructs the light from entering through the Elkwood windows, and the proprietor said he would not have objected to it, so—says Mr. Kurtwals—they gather at the windows and make all manner of disagreeable sounds, and call him all manner of names. This annoyance is kept up continually. He says that the nuisance is driving his wife nearly distracted, and he would rather move than to live in such confusion. He denies that anybody in his place taunted Kurtwals or any of his family, but says that he has been known to turn out one of his hotel boarders because her baby cried, and another because her dog barked. Mrs. Kurtwals also complained because one of the Kilwood's upper windows was broken. She said some of the glass would fall on her and kill her.

Powers Had to Plant for the Possession of His Own Property.

When Charles Hand took possession of the Crescent's ball ground Tuesday, he owned everything on the ground, no matter to whom it belonged. There was about a hundred dollars worth of bagging piled along the north side of the ball ground, and that Mr. Powers, of Somerset street, had left there temporarily, being compelled to unload it from freight cars before he could ready for cart in after the parade.

Hand seized possession of this bagging in spite of protests, and made a fence of it to walk with it along Fourth street. Then Powers tore the sidewalk up and carried the bags away. Now, it is said, Hand will have to pay Powers for the use of the bagging, or else Powers will take the possession of Powers's own property.

FACTS, NOT TALK, PROVE IT.

Why the Wife of Sam Ball, but a Few Days Married, Left Somerville Don't be Ill.

Some Somervillians who, it is said, are now present in this city upon the occasion of a recent fire, is said to have rebuilded the Plainfield department and intended to launch too slow in getting its engines to work.

This, if so, is rather rough on the Somerville fire department.

If Plainfield is slow about getting to a fire, no one can beat her in Round Brook. Then the Plainfield and Somerville departments were sent for, and met.

Somerville arrived seven minutes ahead of Plainfield. Yet the latter's steamer was unloaded, on the ground, and throwing a stream on the fire some minutes before Somerville's engine got to work.

When Somerville's firemen can hitch up, drive to the fire and have water on it in five minutes from the time the alarm is struck, they can beat Plainfield, but not before.

Borough Wells Want Water.

George H. Fairchild, the efficient head man of the North Plainfield fire department, superintended the baking of Aaron, Regine, No. 1, one day last week. The dough light. The steamer was first placed on the fire well on Grandview avenue, and soon pumped it dry. Water was then taken to Stony brook. She worked finely at both places.

The deplorable fact is stated that there is not a good well in the borough. The wells are all choked up with sand and mud, and need cleaning. The Borough Council ought to take action immediately, as at present the borough has almost no protection in case of fire.

New Brunswick's New Ball Team.

A New York paper publishes the following information about John Harkins's new nine:

"A new base-ball nine has been formed in New Brunswick which is to be the State semi-professional league, composed of the Plainfield, Westfield, Somerville, West End and probably the New Jersey Athletic Club. The new team will enter in the courts the question of the constitutionality of the city ordinance recently passed forbidding ball playing within certain restricted limits. The new team will be aimed at the athletic grounds of Rutgers College, and closes the best ball field in the State. John Harkins, a well-known ball player, formerly of the Brooklyns, has charge of the undertaking. He is collecting subscriptions for the club, which will be known as the New Brunswicks. Nearly all of the players will be residents of the town, with the exception of the catcher, who will be an outsider. Harkins himself will play with the team, except when they play the Somervilles. He went to New York Monday to get about uniforms."

Rare People Travelling, But Fewer Trunks.

Baggage-master Jeremiah F. Garretson says that the number of people who have gone out of town this week far exceeds the number that went during the same period last year. The amount of baggage, however, has been far less. Each person has been content to take fewer trunks. The cause of the curtailing of baggage is the introduction of excess rates, which compels all over a certain amount to be paid for liberally. Some people are not long aware of the new rule found, much to their surprise, that the expense of transporting their numerous trunks is more than their own car fare. One family who last year took fourteen trunks away with them got all their baggage into three this year. The excess rates are hard on the ladies, for condensation of baggage means curtailment of room for fine dress es.

The number of pieces of baggage coming into town during May, June and July of this year was 200 less than came in during the same quarter of 1890.

A Family Terribly Bereaved.

Frederick Roome, 17 years of age, grandson of the late Judge and Mrs. Jane Roome of this city, died of consumption at the old homestead on Washington avenue, North Plainfield, Sunday morning at 4 o'clock. He was the only surviving son of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham P. M. Bergen, of New York.

The sincere sympathy of scores of friends in this city and elsewhere will be extended to the bereaved parents who have been so sorely afflicted in the loss of their children as have but few others. Only one is now living of a family of five. Four bright and brave young sons have cut down and taken away in their prime promising manhood. An only daughter, Carrie, remains—a woman of the sweetest character and a devoted Christian. She, too, is ailing, but like the brother who died above morning, is not afraid of death. Her unselfishness has been shown during the days of her illness, when she has wished she could die for her brother and have his live.

Some fifteen years ago Mr. and Mrs. Roome lived at the City hotel in this city. Their daughter was then a pupil of the Plainfield public schools. Since then they have resided in New York. Their home is charming, with everything that money could buy. But the ghost of slowly developing consumption haunted that home. Two years ago Mr. Roome rented the Myrtle avenue house on Myrtle avenue, hoping a change of air would help another son, who died that fall after the family returned to New York.

Emancipation Day

The colored people of Plainfield had a very profitable day over the Emancipation Celebration Thursday. They hugely enjoyed their base-ball games, and their parade in the afternoon was very creditable. Most all of the colored citizens of Plainfield were in line, either afoot, on horseback, or in carriages, and numbers of visitors from Morristown, New Brunswick, Raritan, and other places, joined in the procession. Several fife and drum corps and brass bands, most of them composed of colored people, furnished the music. The local colored drum corps presented an especially fine appearance. The Morristown and Raritan musicians marched through Front St., Park av., Fourth street, Dunellen avenue, and Somerset street. Many of the visitors remained over night, and these very men whom he had so fiercely attacked the day before for not being guilty of the very act which it had pleased him to call dishonest, were the sermons which, by the way, could not have been set up in type without a further violation of the printer's property—soap and the bath. We suppose, however, that Dr. Merrill would have the divine law suspended in his case and in his only.

But the inconsistency did not end there. The preacher branded the reporter as a "sinner", because he was "playing his vocation"! The reporter was doing his duty, and the preacher knew it. The only difference was that the slave of the quill probably earned about $3 by "playing his vocation" in reporting the sermon, while Dr. Merrill would put as money in his purse some $10 or $100 for the delivery of it. Had the man been preaching for nothing, for the pure love of saving souls, there would be no sense in him. But when he was not only absent from his legitimate sphere of duty in Kansas, when he was not only enjoying what the reporter so unfeelingly terms "vacation", but stopping on his salary, but was also earning money in a second capacity, and that capacity the preaching of the divinely commissioned message of salvation. They were reckless simply of Plainfield and hypocrisy.

Let the man, the reporter and not the preacher was lost in serving the Sunday by doing his duty faithfully.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure.
The cream of tartar baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength.—Latest U. S. Government Food Report.

THE TWO GOOD EYES.

(A CONTRAST.)

I.

Now, a railway station. Guest saying "good bye" to his host.

Guest.
"Well, Dick, good bye! I've had a splendid day.
Thanks for your invite, but I cannot stay.
But do see when you're passing by,
Drop in, my boy, and have "pot-luck" Good bye."

Host.
(That's how we, sir, say "good bye." This is how you, lads, say "good bye.")

II.

Now the same. Lady guest and child saying "good bye" to her host and hostess.

Lady Guest (in one breath)—
"We're here at last. I thought we'd miss the train.
We mustn't leave it quite so late again,
Though Smith's quite a darling to say 'good bye,'
For never notice how the moments fly.
You're sure you put in all the wraps, my dear?
You surely never know, this time of

MIDSUMMER STYLES.

Frocks for Wear in the Realm of the Day Star.

A Little Study in Colors—How Rose Champa on the Lawn Contrasts Green at Lenchoma and Dances Without Misgivings.

[COPYRIGHT, 1891.]

It seems to me often when I look about on any assemblage of women that it might not be a bad thing for the women who spend something to take in her pocketbook, along with her handkerchief and her memorandum and her extra hairpins, a table of colors, so arranged as to show her at a glance how any hue will vary according to the light in which she may wear it.

One sees this everywhere this season. Now the woman who wishes to buy and to wear blue to advantage should never forget that if she chooses the shade that most becomes her in any ordinarily lighted apartment the most count on its appearing more of a violet blue in a room with less light, and adding forward turquoise if she wears it out of doors. The question for her to settle is, can she wear violet blue or turquoise, as the fabric she is buying intended for such use that she can count upon its being seen in an average light always?

It was only yesterday morning that I happened to see a bright, vivacious looking girl buying what over the shop counter looked like a parasol of scarlet chiffon. She opened it and held it above her head for her companion's approval, and against her clear brown skin the effect was charming. So her companion told her, I think; for she blushed and he was a young man. It never occurred to her, and the young man fortunately might never have eyes to see it, that what was scarlet indoors would become out of doors more of a reddish brown. Now reddish brown would not in the least suit the vivacious young woman. To get the effect she wanted, that of scarlet in the sunlight, she needed to buy, if only she had known it, something that was a good red indoors.

These changes of hue, according to changes of light, are things that very few women study. You won't find one in twenty who knows, for example, that if you buy orange in an average light you must wear it as brown in twilight and as yellow in sunshine, or that if you set your heart on a frock of yellow green, you must ask yourself is it to be for a walking dress, in which case it won't be yellow green at all but almost yellow, or isn't for wear in a dim parlor, in which case it will have very little yellow in it, but will appear quite green.

These things add to the difficulties of successful dressing. The red brown that whirled by me in the waltz perhaps a half hundred times, so that I ought to be able to be quite accurate about the black lace which draped the front of the skirt and sleeves, and about the bodice with its tucic ruff of pink silk edged with lace at the hips and its full, tapered back—and about the soft sash of silk and satin ribbon.

TWO NEWPORT GOWNS.

Long ago nature might have been so lavish with her children that each man and woman said and did exactly the right thing at the right time, and with exactly the right expression. But all that has passed away. We are taught in etiquette books and in society to conceal our emotions. A ladylike mood is one with smooth and even accent and a voice that never rises or falls beyond a certain pitch are things ordinarily to be cultivated. Never, in ordinary parlor conversation must the face express more emotion than a smile, regret, disgust, contempt, pleasure and surprise, must all be veiled beneath an outward mask of serenity. The woman of breeding will never show by the lifting of an eyelid that she thinks a person is bad tempered, unkind or even cruel. At all times a beautiful calm overspreads her features; she walks slowly, speaks deliberately, and whatever effect she may wish to produce she does entirely by means of little arts and actions that are pretty, rather than effective. In a parlor this may be quite agreeable, but upon the stage the effect is lost and the woman would appear inane and lifeless.

And it is because of this that theatrical managers dread the society woman who goes upon the stage. She may in th is so pretty on the piazza all the afternoon sometimes quite spoils its wearer as the shadows begin to fall and it turns a reddish purple. If she must wear a red dish purple she has to take care to have a pretty wrap to hide till it is quite dark the obnoxious hue, in which case it becomes a gray which can wear yellow in a parlor, or the paler yellow it becomes out of doors, who is made to look more uncomfortably wan and sickly if she is out until twilight and her yellow shades into others. There is a great deal to know about colors but this is enough for one lesson.

THE HAT IN AUGUST.

Very pretty toilets are seen at the summer luncheon of sheer black chiffon draped over silks of bright hues. A breakfast was served at twelve yesterday in honor of a young married woman just starting with her husband for a tour around the world. The husband was not invited to the "ladies' breakfast," however. The table decorations were the pink, bell-like wood orchids which are the commonest and among the prettiest of the sorts that grow wild. They were thrust deep in a cream-colored vase in the middle of the table, and this vase itself was half hidden in ferns.

The hostess wore orchid-pink silk, over which long black chantilly was laid, the white skin showing through the misty shading at neck and arms. A pale green tarlatan was worn by one of the toilets that graced the occasion; it had running through it a line of deeper blue. About the waist was a deep flounce with a blue beading and at the waist a blue velvet corselet, through the arms thrust a bunch of blue streaming ribbons. The grayish blue hat was trimmed with the same ribbons. A third costume was a most successful combination of old rose and black, the skirt in flounces of black moussaline de soie over old rose silk edged with very narrow black ribbon; the waist in striped arrangement of the two colors, with a wide black sash drawn through a large jet buckle.

At a bright little luncheon on the other day at which Mrs. Potter Palmer, just home from her trip across the Atlantic, was the guest of honor, there was a fine opportunity to study hats, which continue to be, as the summer progresses, still worth studying. Mrs. Palmer herself wore a white chip with gold insertion, raised off the brim by bandeaux. Pink roses in front and gold bows were the trimmings. A large flat hat in tan-colored chiffon was worn by the guest who had red hair, the brim partially veiled with cream-colored lace, and had lace falling over the edge in a frill. Pink roses of some sort were laid flat on the brim with some tan-colored velvet bows.

A black felt hat, which was not a broadbrim but but which came sailing jauntily up from on a yacht one day this week, had its crown set top with knotted handkerchiefs, from which were thrust long ostrich tips one after another, as if making inquiry of the four winds of heaven, yellow, heliotrope and black and white. A white rainbow straw, which again was not a yachting hat but figured one day on Broad way, was trimmed entirely with blue snowcovered flowers, forming a wreath about the crown with taller ones like asters in front and rear.

Wonderful embroideries are used this summer for the corselet bodices and for the linings of the high Medici collars. The smartest high collars stand out boldly at the sides, but hug close the high collar bands, have seen their best days, for the turn-down frills, finishing dresses low at the throat, are every day gaining ground. Skirts are seen often out the long way of the stuff

IS WHITE AND YELLOW, and with one seam; when they are

TO MAKE AN ACTRESS.

A Man of Experience Gives the Honorary Requirements.

Letting Down Not Come Naturally—It Must Be Taught—Lessons Upon the Stage—Silent Action as an Art.

[COPYRIGHT, 1891.]

CTING is a art which must be learned by hard study both on and off the stage. It requires much and varied preparation. Of course nature has given some people a better start in the race for success, but even they must work hard to win. Many a good voice, a good face, a good figure, a good walk and an expressive face. Others have to acquire these. The former are fortunate, while the latter are not, but these things are wholly aside from the dramatic instinct. Without that last an actress is never a success, beautifully gifted though she may be. But give her this instinct and she is a success from the beginning, because she had that which she required to acquire if possible to all other things are subservient.

Ordinarily, with people who lack training, stage expression and expression is conveyed by the face. At best the hands are brought into use, but rarely is the rest of the body called upon to perform any office other than that of a vehicle to hold the head and arms. Now, this is entirely wrong. The body must talk, and one should be able to show by the movements of the body whether one is pleased or displeased, and whether one is agreeing with the speaker or disagreeing.

Take the simple sentence: "It is not so." Think of how many ways there are of saying that without uttering a sound. Let us leave out all except the one sequence that comes with emphasis. To begin with, suppose you wish to say simply and as quietly as possible: "It is not so." Without speaking a word, a closing of the eyelids and a slight drooping of the mouth expresses this sentence. We repeat the thought more emphatically. This time the eyes are closed, the mouth droops, the nose contracts slightly, very slightly, and the head is turned a little to one side. There is a slight closing of the hand.

Again: "It is not so." The right hand moves across the body with a negative gesture toward the right, the back of the hand is uppermost and the head moves toward the left with a negative turn that is almost a shake. Once more: "It is not so." And now the whole body moves. The hips, shoulders and head seem to be turning violently away as if in utter abhorrence of the idea, while the hand sweeps away as if it were brushing all thought of the object from the mind.

But one may way remains, without actual speech and that is, to rise with all these negative gestures, to turn from the room with the long stride that indicates grief, disgust, denial and despair.

Lifting the shoulders and lifting the chin are both strong expressions. They are rare and should only be used when the head is turned a little to one side. There is a slight closing of the hand.

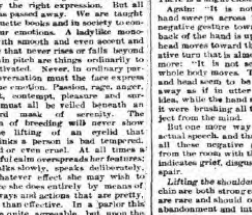
Again: "It is not so." The right hand moves across the body with a negative gesture toward the right, the back of the hand is uppermost and the head moves toward the left with a negative turn that is almost a shake. Once more: "It is not so." And now the whole body moves. The hips, shoulders and head seem to be turning violently away as if in utter abhorrence of the idea, while the hand sweeps away as if it were brushing all thought of the object from the mind.

But one may way remains, without actual speech and that is, to rise with all these negative gestures, to turn from the room with the long stride that indicates grief, disgust, denial and despair.

Lifting the shoulders and lifting the chin are both strong expressions. They are rare and should only be used when every shade of dialect, much business faculty, and a mind well stored by observation, study and experience. The larger the knowledge of other arts, the better.

I would say to everyone who wishes to go upon the stage: Abandon all hopes of sudden success and devote yourself honestly, earnestly and thoroughly to systematic drill and training.

FRANKLIN H. SARGENT,
Director of the American Academy of the Dramatic Arts.



"SUPPOSE THAT OPPOSITE YOU STANDS YOUR LOVER."

first place have prestige and name as a social leader, and if she be connected with fine family and has gone upon the stage because of domestic or other distress, this fact gives her a more curious curiosity in advance from an indulgent public who, having heard of her previously, are willing to go once to see her behind the footlights.

All this is very well as long as the novelty and the interest and novelty last, but there comes a time when the society woman, having been seen once by all the world, sinks into oblivion in the minds of the fair-minded public. There are then, actuated by motives other than those which should impel anyone choosing a vocation, the actress is either frivolous, vain, indolent or incompetent. They notice that she does not improve and that having seen her once, and gratified their curiosity, they have seen all that there is to be seen.

One of the first tests in examining candidates for our school of acting is to put them upon the stage and after picturing a dramatic scene and locating the characters ask them to carry certain lines. I say to a young woman: "Suppose that opposite you stands your lover, between you and him is your father, who objects to your attachment for your lover and seeks to estrange you. A woman who is the best friend of his pair of the play stands in the background, scowling and lowering upon your lover. Your lover is pleading. Forgive—forgive. Show this woman what you mean by forgive." How would you reply and where would you locate these characters?

Now, a young woman with the true dramatic instinct will locate all these characters, put them in their right positions upon the stage and, springing easily into her own mind, will say her lines with the words that you can see in your mind's eye and which will reach another. She may not, being untaught, say the lines with propriety, but she will at least plainly see that she realizes how many people are upon the stage, where they are, and to whom she should look when making an appeal.

Another girl, with a good voice, and apparently the same natural advantages as the other, will have a vague look in her eyes, and will say the lines looking at the floor, and with no regard for particular, thus robbing them of all interest.

What kind of a girl do we like best to train for an actress?

Well! It is hard to tell exactly, because the most successful actress into her composition so largely that given all the qualities which I am about to enumerate, a young woman might become to us and be refused admission. We first consider her nationality. The French and Italians are the best, as they are the most adaptable and susceptible. The Germans are next, if we except Americanes, who being a mixture of all nationalities are brightest at all. There are others upon the variety stage, but they make American actresses unable, and their beauty will induce girls to learn a part and mimic those points

"IT IS NOT SO."

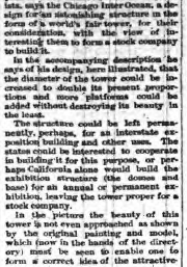
AN AMERICAN TOWER.

The Original Idea Presented by Theophilus Reichard.

Copy of the Design for a Structure of Steel Which Will Be Higher Than Anything Ever Attempted Before and Superior to Anything Yet Suggested.



Fresh Fish—Hello, Rastus, would you like to hunt up the dentist's address?

Uncle Rastus—Dat all right, honey; when I wants jaws, I'll drop yers a line.—Life.

Misunderstood.

William the Wanderer sat the kitchen window, sniffing the delicious odor of the cooking dinner. "Delicious odor," he smelt—

The Cook—I know ye do, an' of yer don't go away from here I'll put th' Board av Hilth on ye.—Jury.

Sarcasm.

Mrs. Scrimp (to visitor, with pack)—G'lang, there! We don't want no peddlers 'round here!

Visitor—I kid some English grammars mit me, ma'am. Mebbe you could use vun of those.—Judge.

A Tortuous Question.

He (coming home late)—Very sorry, my dear, but I was detained down town by some pressing business.

She—Pressing business! Hm! Was it your typewriter girl?—Munsey's Weekly.

Railroads.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.
THE STANDARD RAILWAY OF AMERICA
PROMINENT THROUGHOUT BY THE
Interlocking Switch and Block Signal Systems.

TRAINS FOR THE WEST.

On and after Oct. 26, 1890, Eastern Time. Both as follows:

Leave Plainfield 2 52, 3 27, 6 54, 9 30, 11 55 a. m. 12 noon 1, 1 41, 3 07, 5 30, 8 13 9 45, 11 59 p. m. 12 night. For Chicago—2 52, 6 54, 11 55 a. m., 12 noon 1, 1 41, 3 07, 5 30, 8 13 9 45, 11 59 p. m. 12 night. For Pittsburg—2 52, 6 54, 9 30, 11 55 a. m. 1 41, 5 30, 8 13, 11 59 p. m. For Harrisburg—2 52, 6 54, 9 30, 11 55 a. m. 1 41, 5 30, 8 13, 11 59 p. m. For Baltimore—2 52, 6 54, 9 30, 11 55 a. m. 1 41, 5 30, 8 13, 11 59 p. m. For Washington—2 52, 6 54, 9 30, 11 55 a. m. 1 41, 5 30, 8 13, 11 59 p. m.

Leave New York from foot of Liberty street, 2 00, 3 30, 5 30, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 a. m. 12 00 noon, 1 00, 2 00, 3 00, 4 00, 5 00, 6 00, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 p. m. 12 00 night. Sundays—2 00, 4 00, 5 00, 6 00, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 a. m. 12 00 noon, 1 00, 2 00, 3 00, 4 00, 5 00, 6 00, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 p. m. 12 00 night.

Leave Plainfield 1 20, 4 12, 6 18, 8 12, 9 42 a. m. 12 00 noon, 2 12, 3 45, 5 30, 7 30, 9 04, 10 47 p. m. 12 00 night. Sundays—1 20, 4 12, 6 18, 8 12, 9 42 a. m. 12 00 noon, 2 12, 3 45, 5 30, 7 30, 9 04, 10 47 p. m. 12 00 night.

Leave New York from foot of Liberty street, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 a. m. 12 00 noon, 1 00, 2 00, 3 00, 4 00, 5 00, 6 00, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 p. m. 12 00 night. Sundays—8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 a. m. 12 00 noon, 1 00, 2 00, 3 00, 4 00, 5 00, 6 00, 7 00, 8 00, 9 00, 10 00, 11 00 p. m. 12 00 night.

PLAINFIELD AND NEWARK.

Leave Plainfield 1 20, 4 12, 6 18, 8 12, 9 42 a. m. 12 00 noon, 2 12, 3 45, 5 30, 7 30, 9 04, 10 47 p. m. 12 00 night. Sundays—1 20, 4 12, 6 18, 8 12, 9 42 a. m. 12 00 noon, 2 12, 3 45, 5 30, 7 30, 9 04, 10 47 p. m. 12 00 night.

Leave Newark 6 15, 7 45, 8 45, 9 45, 10 45, 11 45 a. m. 12 45, 1 45, 2 45, 3 45, 4 45, 5 45, 6 45, 7 45, 8 45, 9 45, 10 45, 11 45 p. m. 12 45 night. Sundays—6 15, 7 45, 8 45, 9 45, 10 45, 11 45 a. m. 12 45, 1 45, 2 45, 3 45, 4 45, 5 45, 6 45, 7 45, 8 45, 9 45, 10 45, 11 45 p. m. 12 45 night.

PLAINFIELD AND SOMERVILLE.

Leave Plainfield 7 30, 9 04 a. m. 12 00 noon, 2 12, 3 45, 5 30, 7 30, 9 04, 10 47 p. m. 12 00 night. Sundays—7 30, 9 04 a. m. 12 00 noon, 2 12, 3 45, 5 30, 7 30, 9 04, 10 47 p. m. 12 00 night.

Leave Somerville 6 40, 8 10, 9 10, 10 10, 11 10 a. m. 12 10, 1 10, 2 10, 3 10, 4 10, 5 10, 6 10, 7 10, 8 10, 9 10, 10 10, 11 10 p. m. 12 10 night. Sundays—6 40, 8 10, 9 10, 10 10, 11 10 a. m. 12 10, 1 10, 2 10, 3 10, 4 10, 5 10, 6 10, 7 10, 8 10, 9 10, 10 10, 11 10 p. m. 12 10 night.

PLAINFIELD AND RARITAN.

Leave Plainfield 6 00, 8 00, 10 00 a. m. 12 00 noon, 2 00, 4 00, 6 00, 8 00, 10 00 p. m. 12 00 night. Sundays—8 00, 10 00 a. m. 12 00 noon, 2 00, 4 00, 6 00, 8 00, 10 00 p. m. 12 00 night.

Leave Raritan 6 40, 8 40, 10 40 a. m. 12 40, 2 40, 4 40, 6 40, 8 40, 10 40 p. m. 12 40 night. Sundays—8 40, 10 40 a. m. 12 40, 2 40, 4 40, 6 40, 8 40, 10 40 p. m. 12 40 night.

PLAINFIELD AND LAKE HOPATCONG.

Leave Plainfield 11 30 a. m. Sundays—11 30 a. m.

Leave Lake Hopatcong 5 15 p. m. Sundays—5 15 p. m.

LEAVE PLAINFIELD.

For Bound Brook, Somerville, Bridgewater, Flemington, Lambertville, Trenton, Philadelphia, Bethlehem, Easton, Phillipsburg, Manch Chunk, Williamsport, Tamaqua, Shamokin, Sunbury, Harrisburg, Mauch Chunk, Williamsport, Scranton, Wilkesbarre, Hazleton, Mauch Chunk, Tamaqua, Pottsville, Shamokin, Sunbury, Harrisburg, Reading

The Constitutionalist,
A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.
M. L. FORCE & A. L. FORCE, Editors and Proprietors.
AT PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY.
TERMS—TWO DOLLARS A YEAR.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXIV. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, AUGUST 20, 1891. No. 34.

"Support the Constitution, which is the cement of the Union, as well in its limitations as in its authorities."—MADISON.

Rates of Advertising

Space	1 WEEK	2	3	4	1 MONTH	2	3	6	12
1 in.	$0.75	$1.00	$1.25	$1.50	$2.00	$3.00	$4.00	$6.00	$10.00
2 in.	1.25	2.00	2.50	3.00	3.50	5.00	6.00	8.00	15.00
3 in.	1.75	2.50	3.00	3.50	4.00	6.00	8.00	10.00	20.00
4 in.	2.00	3.00	3.50	4.00	5.00	7.00	9.00	12.00	25.00
5 in.	2.50	3.50	4.00	4.50	6.00	8.00	10.00	15.00	30.00
6 in.	3.00	4.00	4.50	5.00	7.00	9.00	12.00	18.00	35.00
7 col.	5.00	7.00	8.00	9.00	12.00	16.00	20.00	30.00	50.00

All Elegy's must be sold dead.

"Table of Everything" column, 10c. per line.

Double rate for insertion of above rates.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

JACKSON & CODDINGTON,
Counsellors-at-Law,
Commissioners of Deeds, Masters-in-Chancery, Notaries Public, Solicitors of Patents, Conveyancers and Search Clerks, etc.
Office, Corner of Park Avenue and Second street.—ap27

GEORGE W. DAY,
General Auctioneer,
Sales of Property solicited. P. O. Box 134, Dunellen, N. J., or 128 Park Ave., Plainfield. Terms reasonable.

DR. CHARLES R. TREICH,
Dentist,
30 West Front street. A new local anesthetic application for extracting teeth without pain. Good fitting a specialty.—jy27

H. HAND,
Auctioneer,
P. O. Address, Lock Box 71, South Plainfield, N. J. Orders left at T. J. Cherry's second-hand store, 56 West Front street, Plainfield, N. J., will receive prompt attention.—ap20

OSCAR S. TEALE,
Architect,
247 Broadway, New York city, Rooms 32 and 33, (Supervising Architect Mail Building.) Residence, Plainfield, N. J.—jy30

BUSINESS CARDS.

P. P. VAN ARSDALE,
PIANO TUNER.
Is constantly in the city to keep in order, Tuner and Repairer of Pianos and Organs for sale and to let, or both by the month. Also, Agent for the celebrated "A. Weed Sewing Machine." No. 6 York avenue will receive prompt attention. Residence, 31 East 7th street, corner Elm street.—dy1m

JOHN CHANDLER,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Residence and Shop, No. 36 East 3d St.
Jobbing promptly attended to. ap27

T. J. GILLIES,
Auctioneer & Real Estate Agent.
SALESROOM—Madison Avenue and Fifth Street, Plainfield.
Goods received on consignment.

WM. B. RANDOLPH,
[Successor to E. B. Maynard.]
PRACTICAL BARBER
AND Artistic Hair Dresser,
No. 26 PARK AVENUE,
Ladies' and Children's Hair Cutting done at their residences. Shaving, Shampooing, &c., satisfactorily performed.—j17tf

TO THE PUBLIC!

We wish to inform our customers and the public generally that we have on hand the best quality of
LEHIGH COAL,
Fresh from the Mines.
It is under cover and well protected from the weather. We are prepared to deliver it well at normal and in good order promptly. We are also prepared to furnish all kinds of Seasoned Lumber and Masons' Materials at short notice.
A. D. COOK & BRO.
—1m8tf

J. Hervey Doane,
6 PARK AVENUE.
[Formerly Garrit.]
Watches,
Clocks
And Jewelry.
Repairing neatly and promptly done.
—ap27

FOR
BEAUTIFUL DESIGNS
In Furniture
GO TO
23, 25 and 27 PARK AVE.
Garret Q. Packer,
SANITARY PLUMBING,
Brick and Portable Furnaces,
GAS FITTING,
TIN ROOFING,
Etc., Etc.
I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class manner and workmanship guaranteed.
Having associated myself with the Messrs. Plumbers Association of New York City, I am now able to do first-class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in paying that rotten non-union tax of three cents, and in all cases.
S. W. LITTELL,
No. 2 NORTH AVE. opp. the Plainfield, N. J.
GEORGE A. MOORE,
[Of the late firm of Moore Bros.]
Is now the sole proprietor of the old coach House established at
No. 14 WEST SECOND STREET,
Where he will continue to supply patrons with the Choicest Brands of Fresh and Salt Meats,
Fish of all kinds, Oysters, Game, Game in season, at the lowest Market Prices.
Anything not usually kept in stock, furnished at short notice.—ap27

HOTELS AND SALOONS.

FORCE'S HOTEL,
NORTH AVENUE, (NEAR R. R. STATION,)
JAS. H. FORCE, Prop'r.
A FIRST-CLASS FAMILY HOTEL. Steam Heat. Fireclass Plumbing.
Transient guests at reasonable rates. 10-31-tf

SOMERSET HOTEL,
Corner Somerset and Emily Streets,
NORTH PLAINFIELD.
RICHARD A. SOYCE, Prop'r.
Permanent and transient board at fair rates. Fresh cows stables and stocks a specialty. Meals at all reasonable hours.

Dime Savings Institution
OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Is now receiving deposits payable on demand, with interest, at the rate of three (3) per cent. per annum payable semi-annually.
JOHN W. MURRAY, President.
WILLIAM WHITE, Vice "
NATHAN HARRIS, "
ELIAS R. POPE, Treasurer.
ASST.

Jas. M. Dunn,
Dealer in
GROCERIES, PROVISIONS,
Vegetables, Fruits, etc.
No. 36 Park Ave.
OPPOSITE NORTH AVENUE.
THORBURN & CO'S GARDEN SEEDS,
SENT IN THE WORLD.
ALL GOODS DELIVERED FREE OF CHARGE.
—ap27

ESTABLISHED 1836
C.E. & J.W. BROWN,
[Successors to G.P. & C. E. Brown & Co.,]
[Importers, Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
WALL PAPER.
321 Canal Street,
NEW YORK.
English Tints, Anaglypta, Hand, Decorative, Ramed Floral Papers, &c. Borrage for Halls.

Manufacturers of Window Shades,
3-13-93

LIVERY.

A. M. SEGUINE,
(Successor to John W. Laing.)
Laing's Hotel Stables

Front street, opposite Madison avenue.
Coaches for Weddings, Parties and Private Calls. Light carriages of all descriptions for pleasure.
RIDING OR LIVERY.
Carnival, safe drivers for shopping calls or pleasure drives. Special attention given to boarding horses by the day, week or month.—oct15y1
TELEPHONE CALL, NO. 24.

Livery Stables!
Mr. D. S. ROBERTS
Has Removed to His New Building on
NORTH AVENUE,
Adjoining Potter's Hotel. Mr. Roberts will have no livery stables and will devote his entire attention to his livery business. Horses and carriages for funerals a specialty. Prompt attention given to orders. 4p

Accommodation Express.
PETER RICKERT, Proprietor.
Office—Insurance Agencies, Parkhurst House.
The Accommodation Express undertakes to do all errands, deliver packages, collect and forward goods or messages to and from the Depot, or to any part of Plainfield, Dunellen, Grant's Station, etc., with care and safety. Prompt attention given to Orders.

INSURANCE.

WILLIAM A. WOODRUFF,
FIRE AND LIFE
INSURANCE AGENT,
Office cor. Front St. and Park Ave.,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Real Estate for Sale & Exchange.
MONEY TO LOAN
On Approved Security.
MAY1

J. C. Pope & Co.,
GENERAL AGENTS OF THE
German American Ins. Co.,
of New York.
Also represents other first-class Fire assurance Companies. Agents of the Inman Steamship Lines. Drafts on Ireland for sale. First and Only National Bank Stock Bought and Sold. Also,
BUILDING LOTS
And Other Real Estate for sale.
OFFICE:
6 E. FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD.
JAMES C. POPE. ELIAS R. POPE

Fresh Garden Seeds
AND FERTILIZERS,
Farm and Garden Implements,
Lawn Mowers Refrigerators,
Ice Cream Freezers,
Gasoline Stoves, Hardware, Tools, etc.
J. J. HEIDELOFF,
No. 19 SOMERSET ST. 4-24-y

EDUCATIONAL.

NEW JERSEY
State Normal & Model Schools,
TRENTON, N. J.
Fall Term Will Commence MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 14.
The Normal School gives a thorough professional training for teaching; the Model Schools, for business, the drawing-room or college. Total tuition, including books, boards, &c., at the Normal, $164 to $168 per year; at the Model, $80 per year. Blanks can be obtained by any one named by sixteen Democratic legislators. Scholarships entitling free tuition. For further particulars address
JAS. M. GREEN, President,
Trenton, N. J.
7 30 sw

Miss SCRIBNER
AND
Miss NEWTON'S
SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
AND KINDERGARTEN,
17 LaGrande Avenue,
CORNER OF WASHINGTON STREET,
Will reopen WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 16, 1891.
The regular course will include Modeling, Drawing and sewing. F 15 tf

PAINTERS & PAINTERS SUPPLIES

Paints, Varnishes, Glass.
WINDOW SHADES AND FIXTURES.
WALL PAPERS!
PAPER HANGING A SPECIALTY.
A. SWALM,
No. 6 North Avenue, Plainfield.
ap20

L. B. WOOLSTON. J. F. BUCKLE
Woolston & Buckle,
PAINTERS,
Wall Papers,
PAINTER'S SUPPLIES. 28 NORTH AVENUE
ap20tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

LEWIS B. CODDINGTON,
[Successor to T. J. Carey,]
Furniture and Freight Express!
OFFICE—26 W. FRONT ST.
Large Covered Vans for Furniture. Goods delivered to ANY part of the U. S. Satisfaction guaranteed. Charges reasonable. P. O. Box 928. Telephone No. 28. Piano moving a specialty. 118tf

CANOPIES
For Weddings, Parties, Etc.,
TO HIRE. CHARGES REASONABLE
Hugo Weigman,
26 EAST FRONT STREET, PLAINFIELD, N. J.
MAY30tf

ADRIANCE
Buckeye Mowers
AND REAPERS.
Agricultural Machinery
Depot.
Gasoline Stoves, Refrigerators,
Tinware and Plumbing.
A. M. GRIFFEN,
13 East Front Street.
TELEPHONE CALL, 6. 11 11-tf

SPEER'S
GRAPE WINES,
ALSO
UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.
Used in the principal churches for communion. Excellent for females, weakly persons and the aged.

ADAPTED TO HOSPITALS AT THE REST FOR CONSUMPTION.

Speer's Port Grape Wine,
FOUR YEARS OLD.
THIS Celebrated Wine is the pure juice of the finest ripe Oporto Grape, raised in Speer's vineyards, and left many years in wood before it becomes partly ratafied before gathering. Its invaluable
Tonic and Strengthening Properties
are unsurpassed by any other Wine. Being produced under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed by the principal Hospitals and Boards of Health who have used it. The Proprietor's claim, as a guarantee of purity, is based on the fact that his vineyards are in the open air, and cultivated and cared in the vicinity of where the wonder grows.
It is in every respect a WINE TO BE RELIED ON.

Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice
is the juice of the Oporto Grape, preserved in its natural fresh, sweet state as it runs from the press by fumigation and clarification, thereby saving the exciter of fermentation. It is highly recommended by physicians, and will keep in any climate.

Speer's Sacramental Claret
is held in high estimation for the purpose as a Dry Table Wine, especially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Sherry is a Wine of rare excellence, and partakes of the rich qualities of the grape from which it is made.

Speer's P. J. Brandy
IS A PURE distillation of the grape, and stands the highest test of analysis. It is a fine tonic, and is used extensively by physicians.
See that the signature of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is on every bottle. None genuine without it.
SOLD BY DRUGGISTS WHO KEEP FIRST CLASS WINES. 4-23-y

TOBACCO, SEGARS, &c.

H. EGGERDING,
No. 17 Park Avenue,
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Manufacturer of the Celebrated
C. O. D. CIGAR.
The best 5c cigar in the State, and made on the premises from the finest leaves.
CLEAR HAVANA BRANDS A SPECIALTY.
A large assortment in the Choicest Brands of Foreign and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobaccos always on hand.
Smokers Articles in Great Variety.

C. M. FINE,
Dealer in HAVANA & DOMEST'C
—SEGARS!—
0.10 PARK AVE., (UPSTAIRS OVER SECOND ST.)
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Tobacco and Smoker's Materials,
of every description.
The celebrated "Old Judge" Smoking Tobacco, with other representative brands always on hand.
42tf

A. WOLFF,
Manufacturer of
CIGARS,
And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco and smokers' articles. Has removed from 20 W. Front street to 61 West Front street, one door east of Madison avenue, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.
4 2 tf

CARNEY BROS., Ag'ts,
7 WEST FRONT ST.
TINNERS,
PLUMBERS,
GAS FITTERS.
PARLOR STOVES,
COOK STOVES,
HEATERS.
Grates and Bricks for all kinds of Stove can be found here, at Jobbers' prices. Bring your Tinware mending to us. The best Tinners, the best Plumbers, and the best Gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction.
Keys of All Kinds are Made Here.
Tinware Made to Order.
Ranges, Brick and
Portable Furnaces
SANITARY PLUMBING.

FASHIONS IN BATHING.

Bathing Dress and Methods in American and Europe.

The Bathing Machine of the English Woman—Dress of the Belle—Bathing by a Swinging Cable at Brighton—The Hanging Path of Biarritz.

(COPYRIGHT, 1891.)

Modes and methods in English bathing women and French bathgoers. "Remember, my love, we are going to Trouville this year. You will have to get some bathing dresses made in Paris," were the words said by an American mamma to her daughter who had made a sensation last year at Bar Harbor by wearing white flannel suits which were everything that was respectable until dipped in the water. After that their color changed to pink or bathroom was the scene of their subsequent bleaching treatment. What her mamma hoped that the Parisian dressmakers would be able to turn out for her daughter which would prove more attractive to the fastidious loungers on the French coast it is difficult to surmise, but it must not be supposed that as foreign watering places multiply the ladies will let the court of Neptune and Amphitrite are more becoming than those in use in America.

It is conceded in all polite society that at a certain time of the year when the icy waters of the Atlantic begin to modify their temperature and the waves court the swimmers or merely the wings bathers, the world of fashion and the invigorating breeze of a plunge, that men and women may cast aside much of the conventional covering prescriptive demands and appear together on the sea beach in costumes that would not only be comical but utterly reprehensible in a ball-room or on Broadway. The cut of these costumes only leaves to the lawmakers of society a lady may show a great deal more than her shoulders in a ball-room; but when she is to exhibit ten inches above her ankle (a modicum of leg which the ripples of the surf now look on as prudery compared with what they often wash) she would be regarded as a brazen thing, unfit for Newport, Cañon or Delaware Water Gap archs. But let the bathing season commence and how few pretty women appear on the ocean whose figures are not be divined beneath their dark bathing suit, while many are the wonderful outlines of fashionable beauty which fade into terrible reality when their frauds are given away by the heartless surf. This is one of the most fruitful joking-grounds for the summer journalist in the watering place—not merely for the flirtations on the piazza around the hotel or boarding house, nor for the chaos after one when the week days take the fathers and husbands away to New York; but more especially for the ever-recurring attacks on girl bathers and their vanities; their diminishing suits and their out-of-sight stockings. After all the marine life among the bathers of most seashores I cannot say that women in

TROUVILLE—A PRETTY PLUNGER.

THE RUBY COMEDIAN.

America display more than the natural amour propre every woman ought to possess, as evinced by a desire to look her best, and a little ridicule is poured on in trotting across the sands from her bath house to the water.

The most trying moment for a bather is the entrance on the scene; the promenade down the beach when the eyes of those in the water and the eyes of those lounging around will detect any flaw or deformity, any incongruous appearance or unfortunate tendency which nature or want of taste may accentuate.

"The woman who knows she is well made, can walk with the dandrebe of a goddess and is certain there is nothing in her costume which calls for pity or cavil may set out from her bonried bunkie where she left the fig-leaves of fashion and calmly traverse the strip of sand separating her dressing room from the sea, conscious that no unnecessary doodle, no matchless make-up will enhance her attractions or prevent her beauty making its mark. While the cruel eye goes round from lip to lip among the groups on the sands, where the bathers are making castles and mounted granges with their spades as some abnormally thin old maid helplessly amples past into the rippling water, or some overgrown matron shakes the shore in her laudable attempts to conceal her ayoirdupois among the breakers. In England this ordeal is not one of the miseries of life. The English have no bathing costume such as we have in America. All bathing in the sea is done from what are called bathing machines. These are simply cabins on wheels drawn out to the water, higher or lower, as the customer may demand, with steps at the back to enable the bather to step into the waves. On many shores these machines have awnings like the head of a hansom or the hood of an omnibus, effectually concealing the fair occupant till she emerges in the protecting depths of the sea or open sea; and though the lounger on the beach is deprived the pleasure of witnessing the plunge of the siren and the frolics of the nymph the unwieldy matron and the ossified old maid are saved the charges of an effective suit which often verges on contempt.

In some places, as at Brighton, where the beach is pebbly, stone or shelving, the machines are let down by cables from a shelving path over the high bluffs above and when a stranger finds himself for the first time left in his wooden cabin in a machine with the bell which the drivers depart to haul another machine, his first thing may be better imagined than described.

In England the bathing woman is an institution. Though living all the summer in the sea she looks more like a porpoise than a mermaid, but she is most useful in giving confidence to the timorous and even the boldest how to swim. She is replaced in France by the polisseur, who takes ladies in his arms and swims with them, and is much patronized when a strong bather and a good swimmer.

In the hour of a French play by Mathieu, le Prince Bonne Journe mene au rivage her Parisian public.

The English bathing machine has been adopted at many of the French watering places, more especially those contiguous to England. Calais, Boulogne and Dieppe are all full of bathing establishes, and the French have introduced family cabins divided into two or three compartments for ladies and children. At Trouville, Etretat and Biarritz, at Ostende and Blankenberg, all fashionable resorts either for French or English, the cabins as at Long Branch or Narragansett are in use.

Fashion has given no trouble her head about the modes for bathing when the beautiful Eugenie, empress of the French, made Biarritz the only place for lovely women. She wanted sea air at that period. There the fair Spanish Maledon first instituted the carmar de bain, which has since become so necessary an adjunct to the trousseau of every fashionable beauty.

At that time the English women wore for sea baths a dark blue flannel gown with a belt tied around the neck with a string, and coming down to her ankles.

THE COUNTESS GOES SWIMMING.

made her look like a shapeless bag; added to which she concealed her hair in a yellow oilskin cap. Very pretty, no doubt—except when some libertine wave insisted in pulling it over head—but tasteless and embarrassing to a figure.

But at Biarritz the Princesse de Trouville, the artistic bloomers. Some of the beauties of the imperial court followed suit to the empress' innovation with elaborate fancies, and frills and ribbons soon grazed the robes that Madame de Monijo and the Countess de Fortalles wore when bathing, while every woman wore sandals on her bare feet and carried a long Turkish bathing stick as she paraded the beach between France and Spain.

On the French coast the sandal is a necessity in some form, on account of the prevalence of an annoying fish (Trachinus Draco) known in England as the weaver. This name comes from the French Vive, given it by the coast fishermen in recognition of the power of living out of water for some time after capture.

Ammonia is always kept by the proprietor of the bathing establishments in case of accidents caused by this particularly objectionable fish. He is not large, but the prickles of his gill-covers and dorsal fin sting almost like a hornet, and I have seen a foot and a hand swollen to double their normal size from the injuries it has occasioned. In France it is compulsory by law for fishermen to cut off the stings of these fishes when caught.

ENGLISH BATHING WOMAN.

The bathing sandal is much thought of by its wearers in France. Not so many years ago, Paris was placarded with the colored advertisements of a "sa-sandal christened Amanda by Mr Manufacturers. Vive le pas sur Rade De Mr Sandal" (could be) to be seaside without Amanda! stared the Parisian and his guests in the face from within a week after she left college.

As much care and taste are displayed in these sea shore sandals as Helen of Troy or Phryne of Athens could have used in past ages. On the French shore may be doubtless seen a variety of color and form in the dress seen in the waves. Every Parisian dressmaker wishes to get even a bathing dress with his or her individual taste; but it is not by any means good form or bon ton to show the charms of the figure as carefully as would lead people to suppose, and indeed anything like immorality is left to those low individuals of bad taste and worse morals, who will always find a way to make themselves conspicuous in public.

In every country and on every shore there are thoughtless dudes with no brain beyond their own small self, who encourage girls to make idiots of themselves, in no country perhaps more so than in France. If a bathing costume is wanted more exaggerated and extravagant than another's it will be found either on the Trouville shore in France or on the variety stage, in America; but rarely if ever, on our eastern coasts, from Atlantic City to Narragansett Pier. In most French watering places part of the bathing area is roped for men alone; only these with ladies and families being allowed to bathe together. Ropes are used as with us; but there are always boatmen or more bathing nymphs and gods down continually during bathing hours to guard against accidents, and there is immediate assistance at hand which might be well introduced into America. The bather is dragged to the shore in the water too long it is not necessary to walk till he turns blue to discover it. His feet will grow cold. How to avoid ill effects on undressing the cabin or machine; the polisseur or old woman is a blue blanket or bathing sheet, which envelops the wet form of her wearer into which the latter can plunge while dressing. The bather is then handed to the shore and has moved nearly from sickness, if not from death.

THE LATEST PARISIAN STYLE.

The bathers are, but not more so than the opposite sex; only as they are not so numerous they are not the general observation. Out of all sight

WHATEVER form of printed matter you require we can be of service to you; whether it be

Letter Headings,
Circulars,
Programmes, Menus,
Addresses,
Memorials,
By-Laws of Societies,
Prospectuses and Reports of Financial Associations, or any other matter for Public or Private Circulation.
Everything.

WEEKLY CONSTITUTIONALIST.

DAILY PRESS

(Chautauqua Building).

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

ON OUR COAST.

low, or as it is called in some parts on our coasts "the sea-pass," is as strong in the Down channel as in the open Atlantic. Every child should learn to swim. It may mean life not only to the child, but later on to others, as no fearless swimmer ever hesitates to plunge in when a fellow creature is drowning.

To those going to Europe it may be useful to know what are the most characteristic bathing resorts. In England, Scarborough, on the coast of Yorkshire, is far the most lively of watering places, though its more modest neighbor, Filey, is much more beautiful, the rocks and cliffs being more than picturesque. In the south, Eastbourne has the most attractions, Brighton being a winter resort for Londoners. Margate and Ramsgate are more like Coney Island. Bournemouth and the Isle of Wight are most fashionable and admirable for bathing and yachting, but very expensive. In France, Trouville still is queen of watering places. Boulogne has too many English visitors, but the bathing sands are superb. Ostend has great attractions for the German and English people. Dieppe has unusually whole troops of French and English, and may be well recommended as a typical French watering place.

DAVID WEMBLER.

Speaking from Experience.

An old country gentleman, returning home rather late, discovered under his kitchen window a yokel with a lantern, who, when asked his business there, stated that he had only come courting.

"Come a-what?" said the irate gentleman.

"A-courting, Sir. I'se courting Ma-ry."

"It's a lie!" exclaimed the old gentleman. "What do you want a lantern for? I never used one when I was a young man."

"No, Sir," was the yokel's reply, "I don't think you did judging by the results."—Jury.

A Married Look.

Mrs. Grumpe—Your friend, Mr. Baldpate, did not mention his wife the whole evening.

Mr. Grumpe—Wife? He's an old bachelor.

"Well, I declare! I took it for granted he was married."

"Why?"

"Oh, I don't know. He has a sort of married look somehow."

He used to live out west, and once he was treed for three days and three nights by a grizzly."—N. Y. Weekly.

His Ads.

(To witness)—What is your age, sir?

Old Bean—What has that to do with this case?

"I insist upon an answer."

(After a pause) "I was just five years old at the breaking out of the war."

"What war?"

(With extreme reluctance) "The Blackhawk war."—Chicago Tribune.

A Shrewd Girl.

Laura—What a clever girl Jennie is! She had sixty-seven offers of marriage within a week after she left college.

Clara—Indeed! And she is not very good looking.

Laura—No; but the subject of the essay that she read at her graduation was: "How to Employ Money at Twenty Dollars a Week."—Munsey's Weekly.

Would Have the Desired Effect.

First Chicago Woman—Mrs. Lakefront was here to-day and she inveighed terribly against the divorce evil in this city.

Second Chicago Woman—Shall we cut her acquaintance?

First Chicago Woman—No; I shall whisper it about privately that she is guilty of heresy.—Judge.

Adding Insult to Injury.

Train Robber ("going through" the passengers)—Well, I never! Got a watch in your pocket, hey yes! If it wasn't for my pressing engagements I'd turn ye over to the town authorities just ahead, for carrying concealed weapons without a permit.—Puck.

Dullpate's Story.

Dullpate (pausing)—Every one laughed when I told that funny story at the table.

Miss Brighteye—Yes, it was real mean of them to laugh at you.—Good News.

Brutal.

She—It is better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all.

He—Yes. It is better for the florists, for the jewelers, and sometimes even for the lawyers.—Harper's Bazar.

TROUBLES OF A YOUNG RAKE.

Grandmamma—You seem very solemn this morning, Johnny. What's the matter?

Johnny—I'm in trouble, grandma. Jessie Jackson says I've trifled with her affections and she's going to have nothing more to do with me hereafter, and the fact is I love another girl.—Munsey's Weekly.

My Opinion.

Count (to an agitated whisper)—There are thirteen of us at this table!

Countess—Ah, Count, don't be superstitious. I don't count.—Chicago Tribune.

THE WOMAN OF FASHION.

She Goes From a Picturesque to a Long Gown.

Short Dresses That Are Easy to Make—How to Secure a Pretty Variety of Costumes—Shirting Dress—Leather as Trimming.

[COPYRIGHT, 1891.]

Very swell are the "Louie" coats in the Down channel as they trundle over on afternoon's walk. Velveteen forms the material for the skirt which accentuates the coat-tail sizes for the coat itself. That is, the wearer of it has a fondness for looking as if she had just stepped out of an ancient picture gallery.

The skirt is made perfectly plain, and as scanty in front as possible, with a full back and demi-train. The coat has high puffed sleeves and is so long that it reaches almost to the knees. There are big hip pockets and broad lapels turning back with a high standing collar. For the throat there is a broad satin front, with a bow of chiffon trimmed with lace at the neck. The deep turned back cuffs are also of the sueded satin, edged near the hand with a frill of lace so cut that it falls down over the knuckles. As to the color of the velveteen a great deal is left to the wearer's taste, only she must not wear a light shade, because that detracts from the ancient picturesqueness of the affair.

Black velvet with a pink brocade vest and pink brocade cuffs, lapels and collar makes a charming combination, and one which lingers on the memory after the wearer of it has passed out of sight in the crowd. With a dress like this a woman should swear the old time court hat worn by the Louis. It is three cornered and looped up on the rim with rosettes to match the brocaded vest and cuffs. The hats faced with velveteen to match the gown and puffings of chiffon and lace cover the round crown.

Dressed in a costume like this, with a gold-handled riding whip in her hand and the lash gracefully coiled in her fingers, the woman of fashion saunters forth for an afternoon promenade on the beach or by the springs, with Fido by her side. Leaving herself with all the pride which a woman feels when she knows she is exquisitely dressed.

Another of these Louis costumes was of brown velveteen combined with yellow brocade. Dark blue velveteen and gold lace and brocade were the materials in another. Crimson and pale wine color formed another, and so on, and so on. In every case the combination must offer a decided contrast in color, the brocade being very light and rich looking and the velvet dark and heavy.

SEASIDE AFTERNOON GOWN.

For a boat sake in which one is to remain seated, merely doing the picturesque in one corner of the boat, it really matters little what kind of a skirt is worn, provided the waist and the hat be pretty, be, saving, natty and jaunty. Very smart skirts of some nice material may be made up by the half dozen. The silk used to live out west, and once he was treed for three days and three nights by a grizzly."—N. Y. Weekly.

His Ads.

(To witness)—What is your age, sir?

Old Bean—What has that to do with this case?

"I insist upon an answer."

(After a pause) "I was just five years old at the breaking out of the war."

"What war?"

(With extreme reluctance) "The Blackhawk war."—Chicago Tribune.

A Shrewd Girl.

Laura—What a clever girl Jennie is! She had sixty-seven offers of marriage within a week after she left college.

Clara—Indeed! And she is not very good looking.

Laura—No; but the subject of the essay that she read at her graduation was: "How to Employ Money at Twenty Dollars a Week."—Munsey's Weekly.

Would Have the Desired Effect.

First Chicago Woman—Mrs. Lakefront was here to-day and she inveighed terribly against the divorce evil in this city.

Second Chicago Woman—Shall we cut her acquaintance?

First Chicago Woman—No; I shall whisper it about privately that she is guilty of heresy.—Judge.

Adding Insult to Injury.

Train Robber ("going through" the passengers)—Well, I never! Got a watch in your pocket, hey yes! If it wasn't for my pressing engagements I'd turn ye over to the town authorities just ahead, for carrying concealed weapons without a permit.—Puck.

Dullpate's Story.

Dullpate (pausing)—Every one laughed when I told that funny story at the table.

Miss Brightyes—Yes, it was real mean of them to laugh at you.—Good News.

Brutal.

She—It is better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all.

He—Yes. It is better for the florists, for the jewelers, and sometimes even for the lawyers.—Harper's Bazar.

TROUBLES OF A YOUNG RAKE.

Grandmamma—You seem very solemn this morning, Johnny. What's the matter?

Johnny—I'm in trouble, grandma. Jessie Jackson says I've trifled with her affections and she's going to have nothing more to do with me hereafter, and the fact is I love another girl.—Munsey's Weekly.

My Opinion.

Count (to an agitated whisper)—There are thirteen of us at this table!

Countess—Ah, Count, don't be superstitious. I don't count.—Chicago Tribune.

SEASIDE AFTERNOON GOWN.

THE WOMAN OF FASHION.

She Goes From a Picturesque to a Long Gown.

Short Dresses That Are Easy to Make—How to Secure a Pretty Variety of Costumes—Shirting Dress—Leather as Trimming.

[COPYRIGHT, 1891.]

Very swell are the "Louie" coats in the Down channel as they trundle over on afternoon's walk. Velveteen forms the material for the skirt which accentuates the coat-tail sizes for the coat itself. That is, the wearer of it has a fondness for looking as if she had just stepped out of an ancient picture gallery.

The skirt is made perfectly plain, and as scanty in front as possible, with a full back and demi-train. The coat has high puffed sleeves and is so long that it reaches almost to the knees. There are big hip pockets and broad lapels turning back with a high standing collar. For the throat there is a broad satin front, with a bow of chiffon trimmed with lace at the neck. The deep turned back cuffs are also of the sueded satin, edged near the hand with a frill of lace so cut that it falls down over the knuckles. As to the color of the velveteen a great deal is left to the wearer's taste, only she must not wear a light shade, because that detracts from the ancient picturesqueness of the affair.

Black velvet with a pink brocade vest and pink brocade cuffs, lapels and collar makes a charming combination, and one which lingers on the memory after the wearer of it has passed out of sight in the crowd. With a dress like this a woman should swear the old time court hat worn by the Louis. It is three cornered and looped up on the rim with rosettes to match the brocaded vest and cuffs. The hats faced with velveteen to match the gown and puffings of chiffon and lace cover the round crown.

Dressed in a costume like this, with a gold-handled riding whip in her hand and the lash gracefully coiled in her fingers, the woman of fashion saunters forth for an afternoon promenade on the beach or by the springs, with Fido by her side. Leaving herself with all the pride which a woman feels when she knows she is exquisitely dressed.

Another of these Louis costumes was of brown velveteen combined with yellow brocade. Dark blue velveteen and gold lace and brocade were the materials in another. Crimson and pale wine color formed another, and so on, and so on. In every case the combination must offer a decided contrast in color, the brocade being very light and rich looking and the velvet dark and heavy.

SEASIDE AFTERNOON GOWN.

For a boat sake in which one is to remain seated, merely doing the picturesque in one corner of the boat, it really matters little what kind of a skirt is worn, provided the waist and the hat be pretty, be, saving, natty and jaunty. Very smart skirts of some nice materials may be made up by the half dozen. The silk used to live out west, and once he was treed for three days and three nights by a grizzly."—N. Y. Weekly.

His Ads.

(To witness)—What is your age, sir?

Old Bean—What has that to do with this case?

"I insist upon an answer."

(After a pause) "I was just five years old at the breaking out of the war."

"What war?"

(With extreme reluctance) "The Blackhawk war."—Chicago Tribune.

A Shrewd Girl.

Laura—What a clever girl Jennie is! She had sixty-seven offers of marriage within a week after she left college.

Clara—Indeed! And she is not very good looking.

Laura—No; but the subject of the essay that she read at her graduation was: "How to Employ Money at Twenty Dollars a Week."—Munsey's Weekly.

Would Have the Desired Effect.

First Chicago Woman—Mrs. Lakefront was here to-day and she inveighed terribly against the divorce evil in this city.

Second Chicago Woman—Shall we cut her acquaintance?

First Chicago Woman—No; I shall whisper it about privately that she is guilty of heresy.—Judge.

Adding Insult to Injury.

Train Robber ("going through" the passengers)—Well, I never! Got a watch in your pocket, hey yes! If it wasn't for my pressing engagements I'd turn ye over to the town authorities just ahead, for carrying concealed weapons without a permit.—Puck.

Dullpate's Story.

Dullpate (pausing)—Every one laughed when I told that funny story at the table.

Miss Brightyes—Yes, it was real mean of them to laugh at you.—Good News.

Brutal.

She—It is better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all.

He—Yes. It is better for the florists, for the jewelers, and sometimes even for the lawyers.—Harper's Bazar.

TROUBLES OF A YOUNG RAKE.

Grandmamma—You seem very solemn this morning, Johnny. What's the matter?

Johnny—I'm in trouble, grandma. Jessie Jackson says I've trifled with her affections and she's going to have nothing more to do with me hereafter, and the fact is I love another girl.—Munsey's Weekly.

My Opinion.

Count (to an agitated whisper)—There are thirteen of us at this table!

Countess—Ah, Count, don't be superstitious. I don't count.—Chicago Tribune.

SEASIDE AFTERNOON GOWN.

THE WOMAN OF FASHION.

She Goes From a Picturesque to a Long Gown.

Short Dresses That Are Easy to Make—How to Secure a Pretty Variety of Costumes—Shirting Dress—Leather as Trimming.

[COPYRIGHT, 1891.]

Very swell are the "Louie" coats in the Down channel as they trundle over on afternoon's walk. Velveteen forms the material for the skirt which accentuates the coat-tail sizes for the coat itself. That is, the wearer of it has a fondness for looking as if she had just stepped out of an ancient picture gallery.

The skirt is made perfectly plain, and as scanty in front as possible, with a full back and demi-train. The coat has high puffed sleeves and is so long that it reaches almost to the knees. There are big hip pockets and broad lapels turning back with a high standing collar. For the throat there is a broad satin front, with a bow of chiffon trimmed with lace at the neck. The deep turned back cuffs are also of the sueded satin, edged near the hand with a frill of lace so cut that it falls down over the knuckles. As to the color of the velveteen a great deal is left to the wearer's taste, only she must not wear a light shade, because that detracts from the ancient picturesqueness of the affair.

Black vel

The Constitutionalist.
W. L. FORCE, A. L. FORCE
Editors and Proprietors.

COMMERCE.

From the earliest periods of civilization ocean commerce has not only been the great disseminator of enlightenment, but the creator of national wealth and influence.

It has made the people of many countries rich and prosperous, and today, England is the financial and commercial ruler of the world because of her wise and intelligent encouragement of commerce.

The mercantile steamers of England plough the billows of every sea and pour into her coffers golden earnings.

Where are those who should in like manner course the globe and fly the once proud ensign of the United States?

Nowhere to be seen or heard of, driven from existence by such absurd legislation as McKinley tariffism.

It is a national disgrace, and more than that, a wholesale outrage upon legitimate American enterprise and industry.

The grain crops of Europe promise shortness and those of this country abundance. Under the operation of the natural law of supply and demand, a heavy exportation of bread-stuffs must follow.

Who will reap the benefits of ocean transportation?

American ship owners?

No! Unfortunately no! Our exported products must be carried abroad beneath foreign flags and for the enrichment of foreign merchants.

What a shameful fact to contemplate!

WOOL.

The McKinley tariffites in their anxiety to subsidize certain special interests at the public expense were profuse in promises.

They promised too much.

The chickens are coming home to roost, notwithstanding Canadian eggs are taxed.

To throw dust in the eyes of farmers a high duty was placed on wool, with the assurance that it would raise the market price of the native product.

Since the McKinley bill went into effect the price of American wool has gone down.

The farmers have rubbed their eyes and are exceedingly wrath. They begin to see the sunlight of truth.

A Dakota Republican lone states the case: "The western part of North Dakota is distinctively a wool-growing country, and the fact that the price of wool has been actually falling since the operation of the new law does not contribute largely to enthuse North Dakota farmers in favor of McKinley protection. The fact, doubtless, is that manufacturers find it less profitable to manufacture a high grade of cloth from purely native wools, and consequently the increased price demanded from the manufacturer for fine grades of imported wools necessary to mix with the native wools has tended to lessen the demand for home-grown fleeces, the amount of native wools consumed in the manufacture of certain standard fabrics being proportionately decreased to correspond with the amount of finer imported wools consumed."

There you have the plain facts.

Bogus taxation in the form of McKinley order inadequate both the manufacturer and the raiser.

PRICE TO BE WOULD SEVER THE SHACKLES AND GIVE PROFIT TO BOTH.

Domestic fleece tumbles, but practical tariff education advances.

IN MEMORY OF SENATOR CANFIELD.

A subscription has been started by Mr. Robert Dunlap and the Hotel Brevoort to erect on the Drakesville road between Mr. Arlington depot and the borough seat, a fountain and watering trough to perpetuate the memory of the late Senator Canfield. It is an unnecessary step, as all who lived in the vicinity were drawn to him by his personal magnetism, and an intimate acquaintance resulted in a life long friendship, but their idea is to have that which will continually testify to their appreciation of his sterling worth, honesty and integrity. It is earnestly desired that all should contribute to this end, and any amount, however small, will be cheerfully received and credited. Mayor H. L. Dunham, of Dover, and Dr. J. W. Taylor, of Sthenoma, will also receive subscriptions.

The location of the fountain will be about midway along the boulevard which Senator Canfield constructed, near Hotel Brevoort, at Lake Hopatcong, and which will hereafter be known as Canfield avenue. At this point Mr. Dunlap has purchased about an acre of ground and by excavating the mountain stream has made a pretty little pond. The estimated cost of the fountain is about $1,500, and with its pretty surroundings will be a fitting and lasting memorial.

Ex-President Cleveland's speech at Cape Cod, recently, was characteristic of him. It was full of genial humor, but it was marked throughout by that earnest and robust patriotism which animates his utterances.

The Ohio Alliance has adopted a novel and economical plan of campaign. Their speakers will be carried from place to place in hay wagons, speaking from them when necessary, and living with the farmers as they go through the country.

Senator Calvin S. Brice, Chairman of the National Democratic Committee, having returned from Europe, proposes now to give his attention to the political campaign in Ohio. He intends to visit every part of the State and give all the aid he can to Governor Campbell's canvass for re-election.

The New York Sun, reviewing the recent census of Ireland, shows that its total population is three and a-half millions less than it was fifty years ago. The tables show that in 1841 there was a population of 8,196,194. Each succeeding decade then shows a steady decrease, until the recent one gives a population of only 4,706,162. Fifty years ago the population averaged 206 to the square mile, to-day it is only 151.

The New York World is daily becoming more irresponsible in its stronghold of Jersey news. There are more fake writers for the World's Jersey edition than that journal can afford to support much longer. It is dangerous for the way towns are deserted and unsanctified by these fake writers. The World is a great paper in many ways, but it's Jersey edition is a failure as regards truthfulness.

The wonderful cave just discovered in Ohio will come in handy for Mr. McKinley to crawl into and hide himself after the election.

The National Democratic Committee will not meet to fix the time of the National Convention until February 22, 1892. This has been the custom for many years past preceding a Presidential election, and there is no call for an extraordinary meeting, at an early date, as has been lately stated in the papers. About the place of holding the next Democratic Convention no conclusion will be reached until next February, when the full committee meets. St. Louis wants it, so does Detroit and Chicago. The chances are that it will go to Chicago, it gets everything these times.

Every day a stronger feeling grows that Senator McPherson would make a strong and available candidate for the Presidency on the Democratic ticket. Especially the Galveston, Texas, Daily News, the leading Democratic organ of that entire section of the South, contained an interview with Major Samuel Klotz, of Newark, who is a Democrat of influence and standing in this State. Among other things Mr. Klotz said: "The issue will be just what Mr. Cleveland and your Mr. Mills has made it—tariff reform. All other matters will be subsidiary. The fight will be that the tariff I feel sure that Mr. Cleveland will be nominated, and I feel equally sure that he will be elected, unless the Republicans put up some man of exceptional popularity and power against him. I believe he will carry New York, Connecticut and Massachusetts, and will be elected easily."

What naked wind would make a good standard bearer in case Mr. Cleveland was not selected, he said: "I don't know that the party can do better than to take up Senator McPherson of my own State. He is a Democrat of the Cleveland school, honest, upright and the soul of integrity. His record on the tariff question is as good as that of Cleveland or Mills, although he may not be generally known as they. He can carry New York as easily, if not easier, than Mr. Cleveland. Connecticut will vote for him, and I think that he will make just as strong a candidate as the party can find anywhere. He believes in more silver coinage, but does not believe in the government paying 15 cents more for the silver it buys to make money out of than the private individual. The fact that which he makes jewelry and plate out of McPherson is strong in his own State and strong everywhere else where genuine Democracy is recognized as a popular idea."

A MOMENTOUS MEETING.

The Council Will Consider the Mayor's Veto and Other Matters of Importance, Friday Evening.

A special meeting of the Council will be held Friday evening for the purpose of considering and acting upon the ordinance ordinating; the contracts for water and sewerage; the Mayor's veto of the water ordinance; the appointment of election officers, and the introduction of ordinances concerning the use and the repair of the streets.

TAXES TAKE A TUMBLE.

Two Points Less Than Last Year, in the Rate.

The local tax rate for the coming year was fixed by the Plainfield Common Council Tuesday night at $2.28 on each $100 This is a decrease of 2 cents on $100 less than the rate fixed last year. The school tax for next year had to be increased 5 cents, and the library 1 cent, which would have made an increase of 6 cents over the rate fixed for this year, but the Council succeeded in reducing the city tax 8 cents, and the library 1 cent, which with the State school and county taxes were each fixed at 2 cents lower, a total reduction of 10 cents, making a net reduction of 2 cents.

The tax rate fixed last year was $2.24 on each $100; the year before, $2.15; the year before that, $2.18.

The total assessment of Plainfield property made last year was $6,118,400; the year before, $5,712,113. This year it is $6,118,700.

The total valuation, the percentage, and the various amounts to be raised by taxation for the coming year, are as follows: Total assessed valuation..... $6,3663,00

	Rate.
County	.66	$40,899.91
State school	.30	19,099.80
Library	.1	6,375.61
City	.44	28,005.28
Poor	.7	4,441.71
Interest	.17	10,791.01
School	.45	28,555.95
Bonds	.12	7,614.36
Total		$144,377.83

The following is a list of last year's assessments:

Total assessed valuation..... $6,118,400

	Rate.
County	.66	$40,392.14
State school	.32	19,578.56
Library	.4	2,447.36
City	.44	26,922.73
Poor	.7	4,284.72
Fire	.18	11,013.12
Interest	.17	10,403.28
Bonds	.12	7,342.08
Total	.2.24	$137,605.16

The Council spent considerable time examining a sewer Hubbard's bonds previous to acceptance, and it was nearly midnight before they concluded their labor of adjusting the great annual tax problem.

FIGHTING THE SALOONS.

The "Concert" Fixtures Must Go, and Be Kept Under Cover.

The only business before the City Common Council Tuesday night, excepting tax matters, was the proposition to abolish the "concert" features of the bar-rooms and the plan for preventing the Sunday sale of liquor.

The ordinance which had been drafted relating to the latter was then submitted and the portion bearing on the "concert" features read so as to prohibit objectionable entertainments, whether of music, dancing, theatricals or otherwise with bar-rooms. It had been threatened that if the saloons were prevented from giving "concerts" they in turn would have a big opening for the playing of music at the big hotels, where it is made an outside pleasure to the guests, and where no objectionable features are introduced. The ordinance was drawn with a view to permit the reputable entertainments usual in hotel parlors and pleasure, but aimed to suppress the things that were found in the bar-rooms so notorious. Its anti-Sunday-selling section provided that every barroom should be closed and open to public view from 12 p. m. every Saturday to 6 a. m. the following Monday—that is, that the curtains and blinds should be arranged so that from the street observers by looking in have an unobstructed view of the interior. This, it is thought, will aid materially in suppressing the Sunday liquor traffic. The ordinance was unanimously adopted on its first and second readings and was ordered engrossed and advertised.

As a test beauty it will be something cruel to ask a woman to call for something to drink. Hires's Root Beer is delicious and the plan for preventing the Jersey family should have it in their house. The plumbing was done by Quinby & Bros. A number of the citizens of the place have called. Ask your druggist or grocer for Hires's.

LATTER-DAY CHRONICLES—NO. 2.

Being the True Story of Joseph and His Brethren, and How King Alexander and His Wise Men Settled the Hash of the Israelites of Rush.

Now in all the land of Nova Cesarea there was no more comely, spot to look upon than the valley of Rush. Plentiful and there dwelt many people. And among the tents pitched on the plain were those of Joseph and his brethren. And whereas they had departed from the camp of his brethren, and did pitch his tents apart from the camp, by the wayside, and there did build a palace like unto that of a king, and his brethren dwelt in harmony together, and they greatly prospered.

But it came to pass in the reign of Alexander, in the first year of his reign, that Joseph departed from the camp of his brethren, and did pitch his tents apart from the camp, by the wayside, and there did build a palace like unto that of a king, and his brethren dwelt in harmony together, and they greatly prospered.

And the fame of Joseph and his palace waxed yet greater, and even yet more than his brethren, throughout all Nova Cesarea, and of the multitudes that came to his palace many could find no entrance, because of the press, and were turned away; and others, and other wise travellers there was discontent.

And they said: "Who is this man, that he should have dominion over us; that he should have thought like unto those of kings? Behold, he hath many camels of running brooks and ours lie idle within the casks?" And they plotted among themselves.

And when Joseph saw that the people did murmur, he was troubled in spirit. And he gathered his young men together and said unto them: "Get ye hence, and bring me hands a fair to look upon; maidens of beauty, and whose breasts are as pearls, and whose prattle is as the murmur of babbling brooks. Let them be fair and shapely, and full of comeliness and delight of form. And bid them dance and sing within my courts and before the people." And it was so.

And the multitudes turned back from the mighty instrument of wind, and did make merry with the maidens in the courts of Joseph. And the noise of their mirth was great.

And the neighbors of Joseph were sore in spirit, when the noise of the merry-making was heard, for quiet had hitherto been the portion of each, and their sleep had been the sleep of peace.

But now they were disturbed in heart, and could not rest, because of the lusty noise.

And from among the neighbors appeared one who spake unto Joseph and said: "Behold, thy mirth was lamentable; let the noise of their frolic be stilled: lest we be overwhelmed with confusion, and lest our wives and our children be made mad with the vitals of the earth."

But Joseph heeded not the words of his neighbor, and his neighbor died him his wrath, and he did build a high wall between my tents and the tents of Joseph, that shall shut off from us eye and mine ear the sight and the sounds of the hilarity of his accursed race."

And they builded the wall, and behold it was to the people in the palace of Joseph as a thick cloud against the light of the sun, and it shut off from them the light of the sun, and they were in darkness.

Even behold in the sea was amazing of teeth in the courts of Joseph, for the anger of the people was greatly stirred because of the building of the wall.

But the maidens in the palace danced and sang as never before, and they found favor in the eyes of the people, and the people forgot their anger, and made merry, and their frolic was greater even than hitherto.

And all the sellers of wine saw that the hearts of the people were light, by reason of the dance, and they each built a palace like unto the palace of Joseph, and they got them together their young men and their young maidens, and their maidens, and did make merry, and did call in all the people. And much wine flowed, and the maidens brought tambourines, and they danced before the multitudes. And the sound of much music was abroad in the land—both of the harp, and of the sackbut, and of the psaltery, and of the lute, and of the dulcimer—yea; of all instruments of music, both of string and of brass.

Now this was in the reign of Alexander, in the first year of his reign.

And Alexander called together a council of his wise men, and said unto them: "What thing is this that the people do? See ye not that this is a wicked generation? See ye not that their works are the works of Belial? Behold, I will send out my hand against this thing. Let us bend the words of the righteous, and let the wicked cease their evil works, or perish."

And the wise men unto themselves, and graved it upon their statute books, and they caused the frolic in the palaces of Joseph to cease, and the sound of the harp, and of the sackbut, and of the psaltery, and of the lute, and of the dulcimer—yea; of all instruments of music, both of string and of brass.

And the sellers of wine saw that the hand of Alexander was upon the dance, and

CITY DEPARTMENT.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY OF UNION.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - City Editor.

—Twenty-one miles of mains have been laid by the Water Supply company. Nine more are to be laid.

—Borough Magistrate T. E. Crosley and Justice Judicial business during July. The amount of fines collected was only $10.

—Insurance agent W. A. Woodruff adjusted the loss at the fire of Arnold the butcher in less than two hours after the fire.

—The city collector of New Brunswick, announces that he will have either the poll tax or the body of every male resident.

—Warren Engine company, No. 1, has added $35 to the firemen's relief fund by selling with wager a tub in a Plainfield house.

—The "Unions" of Grant avenue will play the "Richmonds" Saturday afternoon, at 3:30, on the Grant avenue grounds.

—The grocers' association of this city will have a gala day at Boynton Beach, Monday, Sept. 7, to which all their friends are invited.

—The Waterbury Americus enviously says: "The Holy Cross colored choir of Plainfield, N. J., is one of the finest in the country."

—Charles Williams was adjudged not guilty of by North Plainfield's fleet chief, by the court at Somerville, Friday, and goes discharged.

—The annual reunion of the 14th Regt. N. J. Vols., will be held at Asbury, on Sept. 17. There are a number of the surviving members in this city, who will attend.

—An attempt was made to rob the chicken coop of Mrs. Gaghen, West Front street, a few evening ago. Mrs. Gaghan saw the thief and chased him. He frightened a girl and escaped unseen.

—The Rockaway excursion detail of Post 73, G. A. R., have left nothing undone to make the trip on Friday, the 21st inst., an enjoyable affair, and promise their patrons plenty of room and no hitches in the transfer from rail to steamer.

—A private parlor car has been secured by the Plainfield Knights for their trip to Atlantic City, next week. A few seats are still left which can be secured by application to Asa Collier, Wm. H. Sebring, or Joseph G. Miller. The cost will be $1.50 extra.

—The borough has been compelled to follow the example of the city in borrowing money in order to meet its expenses. Last night the clerk was instructed to borrow $75 for use on Somerset street, $500 for use on other thoroughfares, and $100 for general purposes.

—The young people's society of Christian Endeavor of Trinity Reformed church have joined with the church and Sunday-school in the purchase of the new Christian Endeavor edition of gospel hymn books, No. 6, and will begin singing from them next Sunday.

—Aaron L. Zimmerman & Son, brickmakers, of Fresh Pond, L. I., have made an assignment. The employes will get forty-five cents on the dollar. Mr. Zimmerman for many years was a brickmaker here, where he likewise failed and left numerous creditors.

—A strange fish was detected prowling around a Newstown house two or three nights ago, at an unseemly hour. He pleased that he was ill and was looking for a well to get a drink of water. Though he was not molested in any way, he was permitted to depart in peace.

—The special parlor car that the Knights Templar of this city have, engaged for their trip to Asbury Park, Thursday of next week, will leave Plainfield at 7:30 a. m., and will be returned here in the evening. Twenty-two of the thirty-five seats in the car have already been engaged.

—The Salvation Army all over the country has been raising what it calls a self-denial fund. The Plainfield corps has credited with giving nearly $100, which is more than any other corps in the country gave, except New York and Minneapolis. And the Plainfield corps had a new hall, too. To the assiduous labors of Adjutant Loyh and Lieutenant Watkins the success of the subscription here is due.

The Bulgar Said "Oh 7" and Ran.

An unknown man, supposed to be a tramp, entered the house of Robert Hart, on South Second street, about 4 o'clock Sunday morning. He was not, however, able to carry anything away with him, for Mr. Hart suddenly jumped upon him out of bed. On going to the door of his room, he saw the burglar on the stairway. The burglar said "Oh!" and Mr. Hart slipped on a pair of coats and chased him along the railway track until he lost sight of him.

Soldiers' Reunion.

The surviving members of the 30th Regt., N. J. Vols., will hold their first grand reunion in Veghte's grove, near Somerville, Thursday, Sept. 3, where the boys will welcome their old commander, Col. A. R. Twichell, who is determined to spare no labor or expense to make the reunion an enjoyable occasion. A mammoth clam bake will be one of the features of the day. The public are invited to be present and participate in the enjoyment.

Good Sermons by an Able Stcker.

The Rev. L. E. Livermore, pastor of the New Market Seventh-day Baptist church, preached very acceptably to well-sized and appreciative audiences, Sunday morning and evening, in the Trinity Reformed church. Mr. Livermore has many warm friends in Mt. Airy among the congregation. His sermon at the morning service, on "The Rainbow" was very fine and very instructive. At the evening service the theme was "Why I am a Christian". He answered that question very ably, and the way he knocked the props from under infidelity was convincing and edifying.

A Beautiful Man Likely a Yachtsman.

John W. Handren, formerly of Dunellen, and J. N. Robins, the proprietor of the Erie Basin Dry Docks, South Brooklyn, yesterday at the United States District Court in New York city against the steam yacht Legonda, which is owned by the Rev. William L. Moore, who lives at the Plaza Hotel, but is at present at Bar Harbor. They have a bill against the owner of the yacht for about $6,000 for putting in a new bottom and making extensive repairs. The yacht is now in charge of Deputy United States Marshal Trautman.

A Good Ten-Inning Game.

A game of base-ball was played on the Fourth street grounds Tuesday after, noon between the Jersey Blues and the Fourth Ward Athletic Clan. The Fourth Warders were defeated by the score of 11 to 10 in a former game they defeated the Jersey Blues by the score of 12 to 11. The ball yesterday was one and was hard to pitch. E. Lawler struck out 5 men of the 9 in the 9 innings. Connors, who was the catcher for the Jersey Blues, made him a good game. The umpire was T. Flynn. The battery for the Fourth Warders was Kane and Cowsly. Lynch did the shortstop work, while each of the Fourth Warders made a fine running catch. The time of the game was 1:35. The score was tied in the last inning and ten innings had to be played.

Mrs. Hiram D. Moffett is visiting friends in Paterson, for a week.

G. R. Maltby will have been looking on a trip to Jersey, Jeffersonville.

Miss Lizzie Estlis is enjoying a two weeks' vacation with relatives at Raritan.

Col. John Dedrick, of Arlington avenue, is fishing, crabbing and bathing at Belmar.

Charles F. Abbott and family, of Prospect avenue, have returned from the Adirondacks.

Mrs. Harry F. Robinson of Fanwood is seriously ill. Dr. Westcott is in constant attendance.

Elwin Leland and family and A. L. Coddens and wife are at the Edgemoor, Cape May.

H. W. Abrleman and son, of 32 Madison avenue, are visiting friends at Newburgh, N. Y.

Miss Mabel Knight, of Arlington avenue, has arrived home from a week's vacation at Millstone.

Rollo O. Helfen, of Chicago, the champion tennis-tie target shot of the world, is a guest of Harry Van Keller.

A. S. Roe and wife, formerly of Dunellen, have taken up their residence in Plainfield, at 8 First place.

E. MacGregor, organist of the First Baptist church, will leave town to day for a vacation at Saratoga.

Master Herbert Robinson, of Paterson, is spending this week with his aunt, Mrs. George Dunham, at 10 West Second street.

The Misses Kitty and Bessie Blumm, of Somerset street, are enjoying a two weeks' vacation among friends in the mountains.

Capt. F. L. C. Martin, of the Plainfield Bicycle club, has returned from a three weeks' trip on his wheel through the Catskill mountains.

James C. Manning and family returned Monday from a ten days' outing at Ocean Grove. Now the other fishermen will have a chance.

During the absence of manager Sladen, at Rockfellow's grocery, Lance Mundy is acting-manager. He has many warm friends in Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher, who were injured, recently, in a runaway accident at Long Branch, have gone to the seaside again.

Mrs. John M. Crane, Miss Crane and the younger Cranes, returned home Saturday from a few week's vacation on the Hudson.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Buckelew are in Plainfield for a few weeks. Mrs. Buckelew is a daughter of James M. Dunn of East Fifth street.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Allen, of Philadelphia, spent a pleasant Sabbath at the residence of their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Gayle, 18 Vine street.

Mr. and Mrs. Townsend H. Fellows, of Albany, are visiting their mother, Mrs. Mary L. Fellows, and their sister, Miss Blanche Fellows, at 97 Duer street.

Miss Mattie Humble, of this city, is enjoying the cool mountain air with her grandmother, Mrs. Martha Mundy, on the top of the mountain, at the rear of Round Brook.

Mrs. John Houlstone, wife of a former hotel proprietor of Scotch Plains, died at the house of her son-in-law, Alexander Wheeler, in that town, Thursday last. She was sixty-four years of age.

One of the special articles sent out this week to 1,000 papers, from the literary department of The United Press, is another compilation of George Perry Taggart's, entitled, "Where?"

Olga L. Weigman, the infant daughter who was born to Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Weigman at the time Mr. Weigman lost his life in the burning of his barn, died Saturday at the age of five months.

The sincere sympathy of their hosts of friends is with Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Moffett, extended to Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Dilts upon the loss of their infant son, who died Saturday at the age of four months.

Miss Plainfield, Mediterranean and Fanwood people who were present at the Cranford river carnival, Saturday night, are deeply indebted to Mr. Metcalf of that town, for his successful efforts to entertain the visitors.

William Tilden is making for himself a beautiful summer home at Chimney Rock. He has built a cottage among the ledges, and is going to build a fine cabin at the old burned mill and construct a pretty artificial lake.

Harry Williams, formerly Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of this city, and now State Secretary of Virginia, is one of the twenty American delegates who are attending the World's convention of Y. M. C. A's, at Amsterdam, Holland.

Samuel R. Jessup and Miss Alice Hayworth were married Monday, at the home of Mrs. Moore, Prescott place, by the Rev. Dr. Newell, of Hope chapel. The groom is connected with the Potter press works. The bride arrived from England, Saturday, with Mr. Jessup's father and mother.

Harry Smith, general superintendent of all the Edison electric light plants in New York city, is negotiating for the purchase of forty acres of land in Washington Valley. It is now the property of A. H. Wilmont, and part of what is so well known as the Wolf Hill farm. Mr. Smith intends erecting a handsome and spacious home thereon.

Walter Chamberlin, one of the Sun's bright young men, and who hails from Plainfield, spent a day in this city, Saturday night for a rest from recent hard work. Chamberlin's good looks proved an enchanting bait he had two powerful less than three hours from susceptible young creatures—so Chamberlin says.—Asbury Park Daily Journal.

Walter Brown, of the Metropolitan Telephone and Telegraph company, of New York, and Waldron Hoppins of the New York and New Jersey Telephone company, of Brooklyn, spent Sunday with Harry Smith. After dinner they drove to Plainfield and through its charming suburbs, they expressed themselves delightedly with their day's outing.

Messrs. Wm. F. Arnold and Arthur Griffen returned Friday from a few days' trip to Barnegat, where they had extraordinary luck and sport in catching carp, barring out bathing and the well known and popular William Morris, of Point Pleasant, who kindly remembered friends in this city with fine mementos of his skill in the above-mentioned sport entertained home.

Among those who have recently taken the degree of Bachelor of Arts at the University of Michigan, is Miss Josephine Sturdevant of Jurisprudence, appears the name of Samuel Pope, Trinity College, formerly a pupil of the Scotch Plains public school. He is the elder son of the late Wm. Rushton Pope of Scotch Plains, and nephew of Samuel Pope, Queen's Counsel, the leader of the English Parliamentary Bar, whose profession he is to follow. He will soon be called to the Bar of the Middle Temple, London.

A dinner was given by John F. Wisners to a number of friends from the Manhattan Club and the Union County Country Club, at the club-house on West Seventh street, 12th instant. The event was a most enjoyable one. The guests were informed with the Casino, and surprised and delighted at the beauty and completeness of the club-house. The dinner was prepared and served by the club chef, and was of surpassing excellence. The wines were of choicest vintage. In every way the host made the occasion one long to be remembered with most pleasurable feelings, and the Manhattan members will carry back to their city homes the memory of the kind hospitality the Plainfield club-house at Scotch Plains.

CITIZENS UPRISING AGAINST KEAN.

His Water Company Don't Seem Overly Popular at the Present Time.

The people of Cranford are not going to sit still and let John Kean, the millionaire octopus, seize their town. That is, he won't if they can help it—but they probably can't. He is bound to Elizabeth, he is tightening his clutches on Plainfield every day, and if he can't rule the Cranford water supply, he'll ruin anybody else who attempts to.

The people of Plainfield should take warning by the action of their brighter and braver neighbors in Cranford. Don't be afraid of Kean! He may have the Supreme Court under orders; and he boasts that he has in his pay every lawyer of ability in Union county except Craig & Marsh; but he can't scare THE PRESS. He shan't get this city in his clutches so long as THE PRESS lives—and it will never die.

The Cranford people, as said before, are uprising against Kean and his attempt to steal their river and control their water supply. A mass meeting of the citizens recently resulted in the appointment of a committee, and the latter has already issued a call. It reads:

"The newly organized Union Water Company is without legal existence, and all of its acts under its organization are null and void."

The committee also decided the company was a "menace to the natural interests of Cranford."

Here is the finding of the committee:

The Union Water Company as organized is not a de facto or a de jure corporation of this State, and that the attempt at organization recently made by Messrs. Cahill, Vanderpool, Hedges, Kean and others, under the style of the Union Water Company, has no legal standing.

The new company has not represented private present. Lawyer H. Wilbur stated for the old incorporators, who opposed the new company, that they held 700 of the 1,000 shares of the original stock. These 700 shares they would hand over to trustees without money and without price, and the people of Cranford could subscribe for them. The idea of dropping of the stock was to get money to pay the expenses of a legal contest. The original stockholders were willing to stand their share of the expense by re-subscribing for stock, but they did not propose to fight the battle for the people outside-hanged. If the people did not take the stock outsiders would, but in any event an effort would be made to prevent the water supply from Elizabeth stealing the Railway River.

Alden Bigelow said the charter was originally obtained to prevent the city of Elizabeth taking the water.

It was resolved to take subscriptions for the stock and 371 shares were subscribed for by the citizens.

A stockholder of the John Kean company said afterwards that the action taken by the people in subscribing for the stock, or any other action they might take, would not make the least difference to the new company, for it was the only company legally organized to act under the charter, and it would go on with the work at the proper time. It is conceded that the matter will have to be settled by the courts.

A YOUNG GIRL RESCUED.

She Was in a Plainfield Saloon When Her Brother Took Her Away.

An angry scene occurred at the Elwood saloon on West Second street early Monday morning.

Among the singers at the saloon, during the past week, has been a young woman named Daisy Delmore, from Brooklyn. Her brother, a New York business man, had been given to understand that she would return home last week Friday. As she did not appear, he grew alarmed, and at daylight Monday came to this city and sought admission to the Elwood. She was very excited, and the language evidenced such a dangerous condition of mind that at first he was denied entrance, but finally he went through the house, found her, and took her home with him. She was greatly distressed at the circumstances in which he found her, and quite an exciting scene occurred, during which he threatened to take legal proceedings against the proprietor. "Daisy is very young"—he said—"and was a good girl. Neither she nor I is ever dreamed, when her engagement to sing was made, that the place is the resort it is. If I take this matter into the courts, as I hope to be able to, instruments developments may be expected."

PYTHIAN DAY IN PLAINFIELD.

Great Preparations for the Annual Inspection and Parade of the Knights.

Pythians all over the State are planning for a notable event to be held in this city Sept. 16, when the annual parade and inspection of the first regiment of the order will be held under command of Col. George H. Rhodes, of Elizabeth. Many of the uniforms worn will be brand-new, a handsome spectacle will be presented. Head-quarters will be established at the Crescent Rink. The line of procession will be formed at 3 o'clock.

At the last session of the Grand Lodge $100 in drill prizes was appropriated, which is to be divided into three parts for the best-drilled division in the State. The eleven divisions comprising the regiment are Palestine No. 1, of Jersey City; Unity, No. 3, of Elizabeth; Black Prince, No. 4, of Newark; Plainfield, No. 5, of New Brunswick; Red Cross, No. 6, of Long Branch; Monmouth, No. 9, of Red Bank; Ortyga, No. 19, of Phillipsburg; Excelsior, No. 11, of Jersey City; Orient, No. 13, of Plainfield, and Calanthe, No. 4, of Orange.

Crescent Division, of this city, is making great preparations to entertain the guests.

Knights Templar's Day.

Thursday, August 27, will be a great day at Atlantic City—it will be Knights Templar's Day. Damascus Commandery, No. 6, of Newark, have arranged for an excursion on that day, and will attend in a body, accompanied by their friends. They will leave Newark at 8 o'clock in the morning of the 27th on a special fast express train, and will have over seven hours of pleasure at the largest and finest summer resort on the New Jersey coast. The round trip rate will be $3.50 each. A number of members of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, of this city, with friends, will accompany Damascus on their excursion. Any of the people desiring to participate in this excursion may procure tickets of Wm. H. Sebring, 37 Park avenue.

From Office Boy to President.

Daniel Underhill, an uncle of Mrs. Andrew Lindsley, of Mrs. Joseph W. Gavett, of this city, and one of the best known and most highly esteemed veterans of the fire insurance business in New York city, died Saturday morning at his residence, No. 229 West Thirty-sixth street, in his seventh-first year, of the infirmities due to age. Mr. Underhill had been connected with the Mechanics' Fire Insurance Company for fifty-four years, when he resigned last March because of failing health. He began as office boy and rose to the presidency. He then became clerk, secretary and, in 1876, president of the company. Mr. Underhill was of Quaker descent, his family having come to New York city from Maryland. He was an active Mason and a volunteer fireman.

His wife died in November last, and the letter to the company he resigned are one daughter, several nephews and nieces. His brother was Mrs. J. W. Underhill, and his sister Mrs. A. F. Gavett's mother.

THE RECONSTRUCTION OF MUSIC HALL.

Bohemian Plans Submitted for the Perfection of the Acoustics and the Beautifying of the Interior.

Architect Charles Smith's plans for the reconstruction of the interior of Music Hall, will unquestionably accomplish everything desired. The acoustics will be perfected, the glare of the house will be dispelled and it will be excelled by no suburban theatre in the country for comfort and beauty. All that is now necessary for the future success of Music Hall, is that the directors should carry out Mr. Smith's plans and recommendations—the new management will do the rest.

The plans propose eight private boxes—two above and two below—each side of the proscenium arch. These will cut out some of the present seats at the ends of the dress-circle and gallery, but at the same time close up the ugly recesses of the auditorium now at both sides of the arch. The corners in the back of the hall will be rounded and their echoes thus avoided. The present ceiling will be removed and a new one put in, which will run around the gallery back of the front rows and break up the volume of sound that is now rendered so bulk and then thrown back to meet the sound that follows.

The doors and windows are all to be grouped in plush, and every echoes thus destroyed, while more carpet is proposed for the floor to deaden the sharp sounds. The redecorating suggested by the interior will be in the style of the interior of the new Opera House, with the approval of the majority of Music Hall's patrons. The place needs just such a light coming up. With the plush hangings of a rose tint and the same material used in upholstering the top of the dress-circle rail, the effect would be most elegant, and fashionable.

The new management hope to announce the opening of the new house on Sept. 8. The best of the New York successes of last season have been secured for 1891-92 at Music Hall.

EXTENDING ITS GRASP.

The Water Supply Company Now Reaching Out for Borough Patronage.

The Plainfield Water Supply company seem determined to extend their waterworks system into the borough of North Plainfield, but their treatment of the Borough Council in the matter is as courteous as it is decided. In a communication to the Council Friday the company announced that the works in Plainfield city would be fully completed by Sept. 1, and that the company were prepared to extend the system through the borough, acting under its old State charter, during September. The company desired, however, to act in harmony with the Council, and suggested that the Council appoint representatives to discuss with the company the plans for the extension. The Council decided to refer the matter to the special committee, consisting of Councilmen Hegeman, Hummer and Buckle, to be reported on at the next regular meeting of the Council.

BOROUGH COUNCIL DOINGS.

Recorder Smith Plainfield is to Have Two Election Districts.

The North Plainfield Borough Council examined the books of Assessor Cooley Monday night, and after making changes in a few assessments accepted them as corrected. An ordinance was introduced dividing the borough into two election districts, in compliance with the law, which requires such division when more than 600 votes have been cast at an election. District No. 1 is to be that part of the borough lying northwest of Emily street, and No. 2 that lying southeast of that thoroughfare. The ordinance was adopted on its first and second reading, and was laid on the table till the next meeting.

Good and Bad Qui Vive Fences.

"Good fences make good neighbors."

"To the pure all things are pure."

These quotations are respectfully referred to Asbury Park Beatley and the Comstocks of Ocean Grove.

Wanted—A Councilman

